When work is per se dangerous and the employer does not stipulate that the contractor shall use proper precautions to avoid injury to others, the employer is liable; Matheny v. Wolffs, 2 Duv. (Ky.) 137; Sulzbacher v. Dickie, 6 Daly (N. Y.) 469; or when the work contracted for becomes or occasions a public nuisance, unless it be due solely to the negligence of the contractor; Wood v. School Dist., 44 Ia. 27; Wabash, St. L & P. Ry. Co. v. Farver, 111 Ind. 195, 12 N. E. 296, 60 Am. Rep. 696; Kepperly v. Ramsden, 83 Ill. 354; Edmundson v. R. Co., 111 Pa. 316, 2 Atl. 404; Conners v. Hennessey, 435; Vogel v. New York, 92 N. Y. 10, 44 Am 112 Mass. 96; or when the contractor is incompetent; Cuff v. R. Co., 35 N. J. L. 17, 10 Am. Rep. 205; and that the employer was ignorant of such incompetency will not excuse him; id.; but see Brannock v. Elmore, 114 Mo. 55, 21 S. W. 451. But it was held that when the defendants employed a carpenter and bridge builder of experience to build a bridge, it was not enough for the plaintiff to show that the work was unskilfully done; it must appear that the defendants were guilty of negligence in selecting him; that they either knew, or with proper diligence ought to have known, his incompe tency; Mansfield Coal & Coke Co. v. Mc Enery, 91 Pa. 185, 191, 36 Am. Rep. 662.

INDEPENDENT CONTRACTOR

The general rule is that the employer is only liable in three cases: 1. Where the act of the contractor is one which if done by the employer would be done at his peril. 2. Where the contractor is employed to execute certain work which the employer is under a statutory duty to perform. 3. Where the work which the contractor is employed to do is unlawful or a public nuisance; Engel v. Eureka Club, 137 N. Y. 100, 32 N. E. 1052, 33 Am. St. Rep. 692. For a general rule of non-liability for acts of independent contractor, see King v. R. Co., 66 N. Y. 181, 23 Am. Rep. 37. In other cases the employer is not liable; Conners v. Hennessey, 112 Mass. 96.

In Covington & C. Bridge Co. v. Steinbrock, 61 Ohio St. 215, 55 N. E. 618, 76 Am. St. Rep. 375, through negligence of an independent contractor employed to tear down a building partly destroyed by fire, the wall fell, damaging plaintiff's building, and the defendant was held liable though he used due care in selecting his contractor. He was held negligent on the broad principle that one cannot escape liability for an injury that might have been anticipated as a probable consequence if reasonable care were omitted. This case is criticised in 14 H. L. R. 62, as partially abrogating the independent contractor rule in Ohio. Some cases establish a rule holding the employer in a contract for labor on a highway as an insurer, owing a duty to the public; Hill v. Tottenham, 106 L. T. R. 127; Penny v. Wimbledon Council [1899] 2 Q. B. 72; Halliday v. Telephone Co. [1899] 2 Q. B. 392; The Snark [1899] P. D. 74. This line of cases is approved by 14 Harv. L. R. 63, as an exception to the general rule, but the writer thinks that the weight of authority in this country is in favor of the independent contractor rule and against the Ohio case.

After acceptance of the contract work, the employer will be liable for an injury caused by a defect in it; Gorham v. Gross, 125 Mass. 232, 28 Am. Rep. 224; Bast v. Leonard, 15 Minn. 304 (Gil. 235); Chartiers Val. Gas Co. v. Lynch, 118 Pa. 362, 12 Atl

Rep. 349; Fanjoy v. Seales, 29 Cal. 243; Cunningham v. R. Co., 51 Tex. 503, 32 Am. Rep. 632; Kansas Cent. Ry. Co. v. Fitz-simmons, 18 Kan. 34; and, if ratified by him, for the tortious acts of the contractor; Coomes v. Houghton, 102 Mass. 211; Parker v. R. Co., 81 Ga. 387, 8 S. E. 871.

As to the liability of a municipal corporation, it has been held that such a corporation cannot rid itself of responsibility for the acts of an independent contractor; King v. R. Co., 66 N. Y. 181, 23 Am. Rep. 37; as he is acting under the authority of the district or city council, and without such authority, he would be a trespasser on the streets; 74 L. T. Rep. 69; and notwithstanding the nature of the work to be performed, it is the duty of the municipality to see that the streets are in a safe condition for travel; Kemper v. City of Louisville, 14 Bush (Ky.) 87; Mayor, etc., of City of Savannah v. Waldner, 49 Ga. 316; Mayor, etc., of Baltimore v. O'Donnell, 53 Md. 110, 36 Am. Rep. 395; Grant v. City of Brooklyn, 41 Barb. (N. Y.) 381; Schweickhardt v. City of St. Louis, 2 Mo. App. 571; Mayor, etc., of Memphis v. Lasser, 9 Humph. (Tenn.) 760; contra, Painter v. Mayor, etc., 46 Pa. 213; or, as it is held in England, so to construct its sewers as not to injure the gas mains or other underground conveniences, and the municipality was held liable even when there was an independent contractor for the injury caused by an explosion in a private house because of an escape of gas from a main broken by the negligence of the contractor; [1896] 1 Q. B. 335.

And this rule is to be applied even though the contractor has stipulated that he will be responsible for all damages that may be caused in the execution of the work; Inhabitants of Veazle v. R. Co., 49 Me. 119; Smith v. City of St. Joseph, 42 Mo. App. 392; Pettengill v. City of Yonkers, 116 N. Y. 558, 22 N. E. 1095, 15 Am. St. Rep. 442; Mc-Allister v. City of Albany, 18 Or. 426, 23 Pac. 845; contra, Osborn v. Ferry Co., 53 Barb. (N. Y.) 629. It has been held that where there is a statutory requirement that the contract be given to the lowest bidder, the municipality was not liable; James v. City of San Francisco, 6 Cal. 528, 65 Am. Dec. 526.

See Master and Servant; Municipal Corporation; Negligence.

in a contract upon which one party has a right of action against the other for any injury sustained by him by reason of a breach of the covenants or promises in his favor, and where an allegation of non-performance of his covenant by the plaintiff is no defence to such action.

When the performance of one depends or is conditional on the prior performance of the other, the agreements or covenants are said to be dependent. McCrelish v.

Churchman, 4 Rawle (Pa.) 26; Tompkins v. Elliot, 5 Wend. (N. Y.) 496. Where performance of each is dependent or conditional upon performance of the other, they are mutually dependent.

Where there are promises on both sides in an agreement,—executory considerations,—it always becomes a question whether one party is bound to perform his before the opposite party shall be required to perform those on his side. When the agreements are dependent, neither party is bound actually to perform his part of the agreement to entitle him to an action for a breach by the other; it is enough that he was able to perform his part and offered to do so; Hammond v. Gilmore's Adm'r, 14 Conn. 479; Moore v. Hopkins, 15 La. Ann. 675.

Where the consideration is executory, technically speaking, the promise and not the performance is the consideration, and hence the obligation of one may be independent of the performance of the other. Upon examination and proper construction of mutual promises, it may appear "that the obligation of the one promise is made expressly or impliedly conditional upon the due performance of the other; and then the performance of the promise, constituting the executory consideration, is a condition precedent to the liability to perform the other promise; in the latter case the mutual promises are called dependent, and in the former they are called independent." Leake, Cont. 344.

In Jones v. Barkley, 2 Dougl. 684, Lord Mansfield thus classified mutual promises: "There are three kinds of covenants. Such as are called mutual and independent, where either party may recover damages from the other for the injury he may have received by a breach of the covenants in his favor, and where it is no excuse for the defendant to allege a breach of the covenants on the part of the plaintiff. 2. There are covenants which are conditions and dependent, in which the performance of one depends on the prior performance of another, and, therefore, till this prior condition is performed, the other party is not liable to an action on his covenants. 3. There is also a third sort of covenants, which are mutual conditions to be performed at the same time; and, in these, if one party was ready, and offered, to perform his part, and the other neglected, or refused, to perform his, he who was ready and offered has fulfilled his engagement, and may maintain an action for the default of the other; though it is not certain that either is obliged to do the first act." In this case, it was clearly laid down that the criterion by which it is determined whether promises are dependent or not, is the intention of the parties, and this is to be determined from the whole contract; id.; Adams v. Williams, 2 W. & S. (Pa.) 227; Philadelphia, W. & B. R. Co. v. Howard, 13

How. (U. S.) 307, 14 L. Ed. 157; 29 L. J. C. P. 253; or as Lord Kenyon aptly says, "It must depend on the good sense of the case;" 6 Term 570. The rule is stated in Loud v. Water Co., 153 U. S. 564, 576, 14 Sup. Ct. 928, 38 L. Ed. 822. "The question whether covenants are dependent or independent must be determined in each case upon the proper construction to be placed on the language employed by the parties to express their agreement. If the language is clear and unambiguous it must be taken according to its plain meaning as expressive of the intention of the parties, and, under settled principles of judicial decision, should not be controlled by the supposed inconvenience or hardship that may follow such construction. If the parties think proper, they may agree that the right of one to maintain an action against another shall be conditional or dependent upon the plaintiff's performance of covenants entered into on his part. On the other hand, they may agree that the performance by one shall be a condition precedent to the performance by the other. The question in each case is, which intent is disclosed by the language employed in the contract." The intention is to be discovered from the order of time in which the acts are to be done, rather than from the construction of the agreement or the arrangement of the words; Goodwin v. Lynn, 4 Wash. C. C. 714, Fed. Cas. No. 5,553; Speake v. Sheppard, 6 Harr. & J. (Md.) 85. See also Howland v. Leach, 11 Pick. (Mass.) 151; Knight v. Worsted Co., 2 Cush. (Mass.) 287; Leonard v. Dyer, 26 Conn. 176, 68 Am. Dec. 382; Cadwell v. Blake, 6 Gray (Mass.)

It is said that the dependency may be expressed or implied, as the condition is expressed or implied, and that the doctrine of implied dependency was introduced by Lord Mansfield, in Kingston v. Preston, cited in 2 Dougl. 684, before which, if there was no expressed dependency, a breach by one party was no defence to an action by the other and only gave him a cross-action; Harr. Cont. 153.

What is meant by implied dependency may be stated: From the definition of dependency it is clear that the term is used to describe certain conditions which necessarily belong only to bilateral contracts. As these conditions must originate in the intention of contracting parties, if expressed in the contract, they are governed by the law of conditions generally. In the absence of precise expression, the law imputes an intention, which creates an implied condition. The principles which regulate these conditions constitute the law of implied dependency and they are peculiar to the subject; Langd. Sum. Cont. 134.

The question of dependency is so much a matter of intention that there is much truth in the remark "that arbitrary rules are useless"; Harr. Cont. 153. Nevertheless certain rules of construction have been generally agreed upon and applied in the interpretation of contracts, with respect to this subject.

A note to Pordage v. Cole, 1 Wms. Saund. 319, termed by Pollock (Contracts 386) "the classic on the subject," gives the five rules of Mr. Serjeant Williams which are most referred to (Langd. Sel. Cas. Cont. 641, n. 5). These rules are adopted, in a different order, in Leake, Cont. 345, and substantially the same general principles have been grouped in four rules: 1 Bouv. Inst. 701; Platt. Cov. These classifications are extremely interesting as affording a good illustration of what is practically an early codification of the principles governing an important branch of the law of contract, and, while the first is accessible, their repetition here is proper, as they must necessarily be referred to in connection with the brief statement which present limitations permit, of the rules of construction generally accepted.

The rules of Mr. Serjeant Williams are: 1. If a day be appointed for payment of money or part of it, or for doing any other act, and the day is to happen, or may happen, before the thing which is the consideration of the money or other act is to be performed, an action may be brought for the money, or for not doing such other act before performance; for it appears that the party relied upon his rem-edy, and did not intend to make the performance a condition precedent; and so it is where no time is fixed for performance of that which is the consideration or the money or other act. 2. But when a day is appointed for the payment of money, etc., and the day is to happen after the thing which is the consideration of the money, etc., is to be performed, no action can be maintained for the money, etc., before performance. 3. Where a covenant goes only to part of the consideration on both sides, and a breach of such covenant may be paid for in damages, it is an independent covenant, and an action may be maintained for a breach of the covenant on the part of the defendant without averring performance in the declaration. 4. But where the mutual covenants go to the whole consideration on both sides, they are mutual conditions, and performance must be averred. 5. Where two acts are to be done at the same time, as, where A covenants to convey an estate to B on such a day, and, in consideration thereof B covenants to A a sum of money on the same day, neither can maintain an action without showing performance of, or an offer to perform, his part, though it is not certain which of them is obliged to do the first act; and this particularly applies to all classes of sale. 1 Wms. Saund. 320 b. The rules referred to as given by Bouvier (Inst. 701) are: When the mutual covenants go to the whole of the consideration on both sides, they are mutual conditions, the one precedent to the other. Where the act of one party must necessarily precede any act of the other, as where one agrees to manufacture an article from materials to be furnished by the other, or to pay for goods on delivery, or to pay money on demand, the covenants are independent, and one act is a condition precedent to the other.

When mutual covenants go only to a part of the consideration on both sides, and when a breach may be paid for in damages, the defendant has a remedy on his covenant, and is not allowed to plead it as a condition precedent.

When a day is appointed for the payment of money, and the day comes before the thing for which the money is to be paid can be done, then, though the agreement is to pay the money before the doing of the thing, yet an action may be brought for the money before the performance; because the ! agreement is positive that the money shall be paid on that day, and the presumption is that the party intended to rely on his remedy and not on a previous performance.

Benjamin also lays down five rules based on those of Williams, but not following them in detail. first combines rules 1 and 2; the second, third, and fourth are rules 3, 4, and 5 respectively; and the fifth is a brief statement, substantially, of the rule of intention of Lord Mansfield in Jones v. Barkley, which it is said "remains unchanged"; Benj. Sales § 561. For these rules of Benjamin see id. § 562.

Dependent promises can only exist as part of the same contract, but more than one contract may be included in one instrument; Harr. Contr. 159; Langd. Sum. Contr. § 115. So, on the other hand, each of two mutual promises may be contained in a separate instrument, each complete in itself and neither making any reference to the other. In such case, it has been said, there is no doubt that each forms a separate unilateral contract; id. § 117.

To be dependent, a simultaneous performance must have been intended; 8 Term 366; Sheeren v. Moses, 84 Ill. 448; Kane v. Hood, 13 Pick. (Mass.) 281; it is not sufficient that the performance of each promise was intended to be within the same period; 11 H. L. Cas. 337. They must be capable of performance at the same time and place, and involve an exchange of rights: Langd. Sum. Cont. $ 133; but if a time is fixed for the performance of one, and not the other, they are dependent; id.; 4 H. & N. 500.

All the stipulations of a contract should be considered in determining the question of dependency, which may be general,-as to the whole consideration on each side,or, it may exist only as to two distinct promises. Thus a contract may be partly bilateral and partly unilateral and as to the former part, the promises may be dependent.

A unilateral contract, from its nature, can contain only independent promises.

The conditions which must exist to render implied dependency possible are thus enu-"1st. The subject of implied demerated: pendency must be a covenant or a promise, as distinguished from a debt. 2dly. The subject of dependency and the thing upon which it depends must be of the same nature, i. e. they must both be covenants or both be promises. 3dly. The covenants or the promises must be mutual. 4thly. They must each be a part of the same contract; and it does not follow that they are so because they are made at the same time, or are contained in the same instrument. 5thly. If in writing, they must each be contained in the same instrument, or in different instruments which refer to each other. 6thly. The contract which contains the covenants or the promises must be wholly bilateral, or else it must clearly appear that the covenants or promises in question were given and received in payment for each other. 7thly. The performance of each of the covenants or promises must, it seems, be equally certain in legal contemplation;" Langd. Sum. Cont. § 120.

INDEPENDENT PROMISES

When the mutual contracts go to the whole of the consideration on both sides, they are mutual conditions, the one precedent to the other, but where a covenant goes only to a part of the consideration, it is not a condition precedent, but an action lies for the breach of it; Howland v. Leach, 11 Pick. (Mass.) 151; 1 Wms. Saund. 320 e, rules 3 & 4; 29 L. J. Ex. 73. Professor Langdell goes further and insists that two promises are not mutually dependent unless the performance of one is full payment for the performance of the other; Sum. Contr. §§ 133, 136; but Professor Harriman considers this "theory of equivalency," though "most ingeniously developed," as not "based on satisfactory authority"; Contr. 158. This difference of opinion between these able writers on the subject is itself sufficient to show that the point is not definitely settled. Possibly the lack of precise authority upon this single point of a subject, of which the substantial principles have been settled for more than a century, might be considered as fairly indicating that it is more interesting than material,-rather theoretical than practical. See [1894] App. Cas. 266. It should, perhaps, rather be said that differences of opinion (of which another on a very practical point is noted infra) between these two writers who have, more than any others, philosophically examined the subject, indicate that the generalizations of Mr. Serjeant Saunders, while containing the essential principles, are to be applied only with some modification to modern conditions. It is therefore essential that the student or practitioner in dealing with particular cases should include in his researches both the ancient learning and the modern investigations which have illuminated the topic. To these it is hoped that this title may furnish a reference,—it is manifestly possible to do little more, in the way of critical examination and comparison of cases.

Where a day is appointed for payment of money or doing any act, and such day must or may happen before the thing which is the consideration of the payment or performance of the other act, is to be made or done, the promises are independent; 1 Wms. Saund. 320 b, rule 1; Betts v. Perine, 14 Wend. (N. Y.) 219; Seers v. Fowler, 2 Johns. (N. Y.) 272; Couch v. Ingersoll, 2 Pick. (Mass.) 300; a distinction has been drawn, however, as to whether the time of the latter payment or performance is fixed entirely by reference to the former, and when it is so, the first is a condition precedent; Northrup v. Northrup, 6 Cow. (N. Y.) 296; otherwise, if it is to be determined without reference to the other; 10 A. & E. 50.

It is the second of Serjeant Williams' rules, and the view is supported by Leake (Cont. 346), that if the day appointed is to happen after the act or payment, the promises are dependent; the cases cited being 18 C. B. 673 and 25 L. J. C. P. 254. view that the last promise to be performed is dependent,—the other not,—is supported by Langdell (Sum. of Contr. § 122), on the authority of Grant v. Johnson, 5 N. Y. 247, which is put directly upon that rule. But Harriman (Contr. 154) dissents from this view and considers the authority relied upon by Langdell as "unsound in its reasoning," and he subjects it to severe criticism, as the result of what he terms the "peculiar and erroneous doctrine" of the New York courts. In this connection it is to be observed also that the rule thus questioned is not included in the fundamental rules of construction set forth in Bouvier's Institutes.

If two acts are to be done at the same time the promises are mutually dependent; 1 Wms. Saund. 320 e, rule 5; 9 Q. B. 164; but each must be capable of performance concurrently, 4. e. in a moment of time; the object of both must be an exchange of property or right; and it must be between the immediate parties to the contract and capable of being performed at the same place; Langd. Sum. Cont. § 69; Northrup v. Northrup, 6 Cow. (N. Y.) 296.

In case of contracts for payment of purchase money of land by instalments it is said that the promises to pay those instalments which become due before the date set for the delivery of the deed are absolute and independent, and in no way affected by a failure to deliver the deed at the time specified. But where the deed is to be delivered simultaneously with the payment of the last instalment, then on payment of the previous instalments the tender of the deed and the tender of the last instalment become mutual concurrent conditions; Kane v. Hood, 13 Pick. (Mass.) 281; Sheeren v. Moses, 84 Ill. 448.

Where a contract is made for the sale of goods to be delivered in instalments each to be paid for on delivery, it was held that the promises were dependent, and the failure to deliver one instalment as stipulated released the other party from the obligation to accept future deliveries; Norrington v. Wright, 115 U. S. 188, 6 Sup. Ct. 12, 29 L. Ed. 366. In this case the supreme court reviewed the English cases and considered the doctrine of Hoare v. Rennie, 5 H. & N. 19, as better supported by English authority than Simpson v. Crippin, L. R. 8 Q. B. 14, and Brandt v. Lawrence, 1 Q. B. Div. 344; the case relied upon to establish this view was Bowes v. Shand, 2 App. Cas. 455, and it was considered as not contravened by Mersey Co. v. Naylor, 9 App. Cas. 434, which was followed in the House of Lords in [1909] A. C. 118, as was also Freeth v. Burr, L. R. 5 C. P. 213, both said to be on broader lines than Pordage v. Cole, 1 Wms. Saund. 319. See, also, Hill v. Blake, 97 N. Y. 216; King Philip Mills v. Slater, 12 R. I. 82, 34 Am. Rep. 603; Shinn v. Bodine, 60 Pa. 182, 100 Am. Dec. 560; contra, Winchester v. Newton, 2 Allen (Mass.) 492; 25 Am. L. Reg. N. S. 59; 21 id. 398, n.

INDETERMINATE. That which is uncertain, or not particularly designated; as, if I sell you one hundred bushels of wheat, without stating what wheat. See CONTRACT.

INDETERMINATE SENTENCES. See SENTENCE.

INDIAN. The name of the aboriginal inhabitants of America.

In general, Indians had no political rights in the United States: they could not vote at the general elections for officers, nor hold In New York they were considered as citizens, and not as aliens, owing allegiance to the government and entitled to its protection; Jackson v. Goodell, 20 Johns. (N. Y.) 188. The Cherokee nation in Georgia was a distinct community; Worcester v. Georgia, 6 Pet. (U. S.) 515, 8 L. Ed. 483. See Lee v. Glover, 8 Cow. (N. Y.) 189; Danforth v. Wear, 9 Wheat. (U. S.) 673, 6 L. Ed. 188; Dana v. Dana, 14 Johns. (N. Y.) 181; Jackson v. King, 18 Johns. (N. Y.) 506. The title of the Indians to land was that of occupation merely, but could be divested only by purchase or conquest; Gillespie v. Cunningham, 2 Humph. (Tenn.) 19; Stockton v. Williams, 1 Dougl. (Mich.) 546; Godfrey v. Beardsley, 2 McClean 412, Fed. Cas. No. 5,497; Johnson v. McIntosh, 8 Wheat. (U. S.) 571, 5 L. Ed. 681; 2 Washb. R. P. 521; 3 Kent 378.

By act of March 3, 1871, no Indian nation or tribe within the United States shall be recognized as an independent nation with whom it may contract by treaty, but prior treaties are not to be thereby impaired.

By act of March 3, 1885, any Indian committing certain crimes within any territory, and within or without an Indian reservation, is subject to the laws of the territory, and shall be tried in the same manner and be subject to the same penalties as other persons charged with the same crimes; and if such offence be committed within a reservation in a state, he shall be subject to the same laws, etc., as if it were committed within the exclusive jurisdiction of the United States. This act was held constitutional in U. S. v. Kagama, 118 U. S. 375, 6 Sup. Ct. 1109, 30 L. Ed. 228. See U. S. v. Thomas, 151 U. S. 577, 14 Sup. Ct. 426, 38 L. Ed. 276; U. S. v. King, 81 Fed. 625. The United States courts have jurisdiction of crimes committed by Indians within a reservation; U. S. v. Celestine, 215 U. S. 278, 30 Sup. Ct. 93, 54 L. Ed. 195.

The crime of murder committed by one

Cherokee Indian upon the person of another within the jurisdiction of the Cherokee nation is not an offence against the United States; Talton v. Mayes, 163 U. S. 376, 16 Sup. Ct. 986, 41 L. Ed. 196.

The indictment, the venue of the trial, and the jury on the prosecution of an Indian for murder committed in a territory are to be according to the territorial laws; In re Gon-shay-ee, 130 U. S. 343, 9 Sup. Ct. 542, 32 L. Ed. 973.

The act of February 8, 1887, provides for the allotment of lands to Indians in severalty. By it Indians receiving allotments thereby have the benefit of, and are subject to, the laws both civil and criminal of the state or territory in which they reside; In re Heff, 197 U. S. 488, 25 Sup. Ct. 506, 49 L. Ed. 848. Every Indian born in the United States to whom an allotment shall have been made by this act, or under any law or treaty, and any Indian born within the United States who has voluntarily taken up his residence therein apart from any Indian tribe and adopted the habits of civilized life, is made a citizen of the United States, without impairing his right to tribal property.

Under the act of April 26, 1906, Indians are not permitted to alienate or encumber allotted lands within twenty-five years. The leasing of their lands, other than homesteads for more than one year, may be made under rules prescribed by the secretary of the interior; in case of the inability of a fullblood Indian owning a homestead to work or farm the same, the secretary may authorize the leasing of it; Tiger v. Investment Co., 221 U. S. 286, 31 Sup. Ct. 578, 55 L. Ed. Authority is given to all persons of lawful age and sound mind to dispose of their property by will, but they may not disinherit parent, spouse or children of fullblood Indian unless with the approval of a judge of a United States court in the territory or by the United States commissioner; id.; though such heirs have been admitted to full citizenship; id.; Cherokee Nation v. Hitchcock, 187 U. S. 294, 23 Sup. Ct. 115, 47 L. Ed. 183; U. S. v. Rickert, 188 U. S. 432, 23 Sup. Ct. 478, 47 L. Ed. 532.

The United States has supervision over the right of full-blood Indians to dispose of their lands by will and to require their conveyances of inherited lands to be approved by a court; Tiger v. Investment Co., 221 U. S. 286, 31 Sup. Ct. 578, 55 L. Ed. 738. Controversies over allotments while the same are held in trust by the United States are not primarily cognizable in any court; Mc-Kay v. Kalyton, 204 U. S. 458, 27 Sup. Ct. 346, 51 L. Ed. 566.

Prior to the act of August 15, 1894, the authority to determine the rights of claimants to allotments was vested in the secretary of the interior; Hy-Yu-Tse-Mil-Kin v. Smith, 194 U. S. 408, 24 Sup. Ct. 676, 48 L.

Ed. 1039. That act provided that all Indians entitled to allotments may prosecute or defend any action in relation thereto in the circuit court of the United States. The judgment in favor of any claimant to an allotment has the same effect, when properly certified to the secretary of the interior, as if such allotment had been allowed and approved by him; McKay v. Kalyton, 204 U. S. 458, 27 Sup. Ct. 346, 51 L. Ed. 566. This act was amended February 6, 1901, the amendment expressly requiring that in such proceedings the United States should be defendant; McKay v. Kalyton, 204 U. S. 458, 27 Sup. Ct. 346, 51 L. Ed. 566.

An Indian woman who marries a citizen of the United States, voluntarily resides apart from her tribe, and adopts the habits of civilized life, becomes a citizen of the United States and of the state in which she resides; Hatch v. Ferguson, 57 Fed. 959; in a few states, marriages between white persons and Indians are forbidden by statute; Tiff. Pers. & Dom. Rel. 26. See CITIZENS; INDIAN TRIBE.

INDIAN DEPREDATIONS ACTS. As early as May 19, 1796, an act was passed by congress, providing an eventual indemnification to citizens of the United States for depredations committed by Indians in taking or destroying their property; 1 St. L. 472. Other acts of a similar character were passed from time to time. By the act of March 3, 1891, congress conferred on the court of claims jurisdiction of claims for property taken and destroyed by Indians.

INDIAN TERRITORY. Formerly one of the territories of the United States. It was bounded on the north by the state of Kansas, on the east by the states of Arkansas and Missouri, on the south by the state of Texas, and on the west and north by the territory of Oklahoma. It comprised the Indian reservations of the Quapaw Agency and of the Cherokees, Choctaws, Chickasaws, Creeks, and Seminoles, the five civilized tribes. See OKLAHOMA.

INDIAN TRIBE. A separate and distinct community or body of the aboriginal Indian race of men found in the United States.

Such a tribe, situated within the boundaries of a state, and exercising the powers of government and sovereignty, under the national government, is deemed politically a state,—that is, a distinct political society, capable of self-government; but it is not deemed a foreign state in the sense of the constitution. It is rather a domestic dependent nation. Such a tribe may properly be deemed in a state of pupilage; and its relation to the United States resembles that of a ward to a guardian; Cherokee Nation v. Georgia, 5 Pet. (U. S.) 1, 8 L. Ed. 25; Jackson v. Goodell, 20 Johns. (N. Y.) 193; 3 Kent 308; Story, Const. § 1096; U. S. v. Kagama,

Wall v. Williamson, 8 Ala. 48.

The obligation of the United States to protect Indians' use of land is of honor, not of law; they are wards and congress can make any change in the disposition of their lands which it deems best; Conley v. Ballinger, 216 U. S. 84, 30 Sup. Ct. 224, 54 L. Ed. 393.

"They were and always have been regarded as having a semi-independent position when they preserved their tribal relations; not as states, not as nations, not as possessed of the full attributes of sovereignty, but as a separate people with the power of regulating their internal and social relations, and thus far not brought under the laws of the Union or of the state within whose limits they resided;" U. S. v. Kagama, 118 U. S. 375, 6 Sup. Ct. 1109, 30 L. Ed. 228. See Lowe v. Kansas, 163 U. S. 84, 16 Sup. Ct. 1031, 41 L. Ed. 78. Their local self-government is subject to the supreme legislative authority of the United States; Cherokee Nation v. R. Co., 135 U. S. 641, 10 Sup. Ct. 965, 34 L. Ed. 295.

The United States has power to pass such laws as may be necessary to their full protection and to punish all offences committed against them or by them within their reservation; U. S. v. Thomas, 151 U. S. 577, 14 Sup. Ct. 426, 38 L. Ed. 276. No state can, either by its constitution or other legislation, withdraw the Indians within its limits from the operation of the laws of congress regulating trade with them; notwithstanding any rights it may confer on them as electors or citizens; U. S. v. Holliday, 3 Wall. (U. S.) 407, 18 L. Ed. 182; The Kansas Indians, 5 Wall. (U. S.) 737, 18 L. Ed. 667; The New York Indians, 5 Wall. (U. S.) 761, 18 L. Ed. 708. See State v. Campbell, 53 Minn. 354, 55 N. W. 553, 21 L. R. A. 169; nor can it authorize leases of Indian lands; Buffalo, R. & P. Ry. Co. v. Lavery, 75 Hun 396, 27 N. Y. Supp.

The Pueblo Indians of New Mexico are not an Indian tribe within the meaning of the acts of congress; U. S. v. Joseph, 94 U. S. 614, 24 L. Ed. 295. The Indians residing in Maine, whose tribal organizations have ceased to exist, are not "Indian tribes," within the treaty-making power of the federal government; State v. Newell, 84 Me. 465, 24 Atl. 943. The policy of congress is to vest in the courts of the Cherokee nation jurisdiction of all controversies between Indians, or in which a member of the nation is the only party; In re Mayfield, 141 U.S. 107, 11 Sup. Ct. 939, 35 L. Ed. 635. See Indian.

By act of March 3, 1893, congress inaugurated the policy of terminating the tribal existence and government of the Indians and allotting their lands in severalty. Agreements were negotiated by the Dawes commission with each of the tribes designed to carry out the objects indicated. The agree-118 U. S. 384, 6 Sup. Ct. 1109, 30 L. Ed. 228; ment with the Seminoles was made in 1897, with the Creeks in 1901 and 1902, with the Choctaws and Chickasaws in 1898 and in 1902, and with the Cherokees in the latter year; Ex parte Webb, 225 U. S. 663, 32 Sup. Ct. 769, 56 L. Ed. 1248.

> When Oklahoma was admitted into the Union, Nov. 16, 1907, the then existing tribal governments of the Five Civilized Tribes were continued in full force.

> See Tiger v. Investment Co., 221 U. S. 286. 31 Sup. Ct. 578, 55 L. Ed. 738.

> Congress may prohibit the introduction of liquor in to the Indian country; U. S. v. Sutton, 215 U.S. 291, 30 Sup. Ct. 116, 54 L. Ed. 200.

> Treaties or agreements of the United States with Indian tribes are to be construed in the sense in which they would naturally be understood by the Indians; Jones v. Meehan, 175 U. S. 1, 20 Sup. Ct. 1, 44 L. Ed. 49.

> INDIANA. The name of one of the states of the United States.

> This state was admitted into the Union by virtue of a resolution of congress, approved December 11,

> The boundaries of the state are defined, and the state has concurrent jurisdiction with the state of Kentucky on the Ohio river, and with the state of Illinois on the Wabash. As to the soil, the southern boundary of Indiana is low-water mark on the Ohio river.

The first constitution of the state was adopted in the year 1816, and has since been superseded by the present constitution, which was adopted in the year 1851. Amendments were adopted in 1881. 1907, an amendment gave the general assembly power to prescribe qualifications for admission to practice law.

INDICARE. In the Civil Law. To show or discover. To fix or tell the price of a thing. Calv. Lex.

INDICATIF. An abolished writ by which a prosecution was in some cases removed from a court-christian to the Queen's Bench. Encyc. Lon.

INDICATION. In the Law of Evidence. A sign or token; a fact pointing to some inference or conclusion. Bur. Circ. Ev. 251, INDICATIVE EVIDENCE. This is not evidence so called, but the mere suggestion of evidence proper, which may possibly be secured if the suggestion is followed up. Brown.

INDICAVIT. A writ or prohibition that lay for a patron of a church where the clergyman presented by him to a benefice is made defendant in an action of tithes commenced in the ecclesiastical court of another clergyman, where the tithes in question extended to the fourth part of the benefice; for in this case the suit belonged to the king's court (i. e. the common law court) by the Stat. Westm. 2, c. 5. Cowell. The person sued might also avail himself of this writ. Toml.

INDICIA (Lat.). Signs; marks. Conjectures which result from circumstances not absolutely certain and necessary, but merely probable, and which may turn out not to be true, though they have the appearance of truth.

The term is much used in the civil law in a sense nearly or entirely synonymous with circumstantial evidence. It denotes facts which give rise to inferences, rather than the inferences themselves. However numerous indicia may be, they only show that a thing may be, not that it has been. An indicium can have effect only when a connection is essentially necessary with the principal. Effects are known by their causes, but only when the effects can arise only from the causes to which they are attributed. When several causes may have produced one and the same effect, it is, therefore, unreasonable to attribute it to any particular one of such causes.

The term is much used in common law of signs or marks of identity: for example, in replevin it is said that property must have indicia, or ear-marks, by which to distinguish it from other property of the same kind. So it is much used in the phrase "indicia of crime," in a sense similar to that of the civil law.

INDICTABLE. Capable of being indicted; liable to be indicted; as, an indictable offender.

That forms a subject or ground of indictment; as, an indictable offence. Encyc. Dict.

INDICTED. Having had an indictment found against him.

INDICTEE. One who is indicted. See INDITEE.

INDICTION. The space of fifteen years. It was used in dating at Rome and in England. The institution of indiction dates from the time of Constantine I., Sept. 1, or, according to some authorities, Sept. 15, 312; but the first instance of the use is mentioned in the Theodosian Code, under the reign of Constantius II. The papal court adopted computation by indictions about 800, the commencement of the first indiction being referred to Jan. 1, 313. The first year was reckoned the first of the first indiction, and so on till the fifteen years afterwards. sixteenth year was the first year of the second indiction; the thirty-first year was the first year of the third indiction, etc.

INDICTMENT. A written accusation against one or more persons of a crime or misdemeanor, presented to, and preferred upon oath or affirmation by, a grand jury legally convoked. 4 Bla. Com. 299; Co. Litt. 126; 2 Hale, Pl. Cr. 152.

An accusation at the suit of the crown, found to be true by the oaths of a grand jury (q, v).

A written accusation of a crime presented upon oath by a grand jury.

The word is said to be derived from the old French word inditer, which signifies to indicate, to show, or point out. Its object is to indicate the offence charged against the accused. Rey, des Inst. l'Angl. tome 2, p. 347.

A presentment and indictment differ; 2 Inst. 739. A presentment is properly that which the grand jurors find and present to the court from their own knowledge or observation. Every indictment which is found by the grand jurors is presented by them to the court; and therefore every indictment is a presentment, but not every presentment is an indictment; Com. v. Keefe, 9 Gray (Mass.) 291; Story, Const. § 1784. An indictment is required under United States laws for capital or otherwise infamous crimes, but an information is authorized in many states; Beavers v. Henkel, 194 U. S. 73, 24 Sup. Ct. 605, 48 L. Ed. 882, where it is said that an indictment is prima facie evidence of probable cause. See the requirements of an indictment in Pettibone v. U. S., 148 U. S. 204, 13 Sup. Ct. 542, 37 L. Ed. 419.

The essential requisites of a valid indictment are,-first, that the indictment be presented to some court having jurisdiction of the offence stated therein; and the indictment must allege specifically that the crime was committed within its jurisdiction; Mc-Coy v. State, 22 Neb. 418, 35 N. W. 202; Ort v. State, 25 Tex. App. 453, 8 S. W. 644; Smith v. State, 25 Tex. App. 454, 8 S. W. 645; State v. Hobbs, 37 W. Va. 812, 17 S. E. 380; second, that it appear to have been found by the grand jury of the proper county or district; third, that the indictment be found a true bill, and signed by the foreman of the grand jury; fourth, that it be framed with sufficient certainty; for this purpose the charge must contain a certain description of the crime or misdemeanor of which the defendant is accused, and a statement of the facts by which it is constituted, so as to identify the accusation; 2 Hale, Pl. Cr. 167; Stewart v. Com., 4 S. & R. (Pa.) 194; 4 Bla. Com. 301; Brown v. State, 26 Tex. App. 540, 10 S. W. 112; it should set out the material facts charged against the accused; State v. O'Flaherty, 7 Nev. 153; Pettibone v. U. S., 148 U. S. 197, 13 Sup. Ct. 542, 37 L. Ed. 419; the ultimate facts and not the evidence; Brown v. U. S., 143 Fed. 60, 74 C. C. A. 214; but need not specify the statute on which founded; Crabb v. State, 88 Ga. 584, 15 S. E. An indictment may charge a statutory offence in the language of the statute without greater particularity when, by that means, all that is essential to constitute the offence is stated fully and directly, without uncertainty or ambiguity; State v. Light, 17 Or. 358, 21 Pac. 132; State v. Howe, 100 N. C. 449, 5 S. E. 671; State v. Holmes, 40 La.

Ann. 170, 3 South. 564; fifth, the indictment other day previous to the finding of the inmust be in the English language. But if dictment; Jacobs v. Com., 5 S. & R. (Pa.) any document in a foreign language, as a libel, be necessarily introduced, it should be set out in the original tongue, and then translated, showing its application; 6 Term 162.

Each count is, as it were, a separate indictment; Selvester v. U. S., 170 U. S. 262, 18 Sup. Ct. 580, 42 L. Ed. 1029. Intent must be averred if a part of the offence; U. S. v. Clark, 125 Fed. 92.

The formal requisites are:

First, the venue, which at common law should always be laid in the county where the offence has been committed, although the charge be in its nature transitory, as a battery; Hawk. Pl. Cr. b. 2, c. 25, s. 35. See People v. Scott, 74 Cal. 94, 15 Pac. 384. The venue is stated in the margin thus: "City and county of _____, to wit."

Second, the presentment, which must be in the present tense, and is usually expressed by the following formula: "The grand inquest of the commonwealth of ______, inquiring for the city and county aforesaid, upon their oaths and affirmations present." See, as to the venue, Graham v. State, 1 Ark. 171; Hite v. State, 9 Yerg. (Tenn.) 357; Turns v. Com., 6 Metc. (Mass.) 225; People v. Wong Wang, 92 Cal. 277, 28 Pac. 270.

Third, the name and addition of the defendant; but in case an error has been made in this respect, it is cured by the plea of the defendant; Bac. Abr. Misnomer (B), Indictment (G 2); 2 Hale, Pl. Cr. 175; 1 Chitty, Pr. 202; Russ. & R. 489. Where the defendant's name is stated differently in different parts of the indictment, it is fatally defective; Kinney v. State, 21 Tex. App. 348, 17 S. W. 423; or where it fails to state his given name, or aver that it is not known, a plea of misnomer in abatement should be sustained; Turner v. People, 40 Ill. App. 17; Pancho v. State, 25 Tex. App. 402, 8 S. W. 476; or where it gives a wrong name; Lewis v. State, 90 Ga. 95, 15 S. E. 697. See IDEM SONANS.

Fourth, the names of third persons, when they must be necessarily mentioned in the indictment, should be stated with certainty to a common intent, so as sufficiently to inform the defendant who are his accusers. When, however, the names of third persons cannot be ascertained, it is sufficient, in some cases, to state "a certain person or persons to the jurors aforesaid unknown." 2 East, Pl. Cr. 651, 781; 2 Hale, Pl. Cr. 181; 8 C. & P. 773.

Fifth, the time when the offence was committed should, in general, be stated to be on a specific year and day. In some offences, as in perjury, the day must be precisely stated; U. S. v. Bowman, 2 Wash. C. C. 328, Fed. Cas. No. 14,631; but although it is necessary that a day certain should be laid in the indictment, yet, in general, the prosecutor may give evidence of an offence committed on any dictment; Jacobs v. Com., 5 S. & R. (Pa.) 316. See 1 Chitty, Cr. Law 217, 224; Com. v. Alfred, 4 Dana (Ky.) 496; Vowells v. Com., 84 Ky. 52; Com. v. Le Clair, 147 Mass. 539, 18 N. E. 428; Crass v. State, 30 Tex. App. 480, 17 S. W. 1096; People v. Formosa, 131 N. Y. 478, 30 N. E. 492, 27 Am. St. Rep. 612; Ball v. U. S., 140 U. S. 118, 11 Sup. Ct. 761, 35 L. Ed. 377. It is not material, except where time is of the essence of the offence, to charge in an indictment the true day on which an offence was committed, or to prove the day as charged; State v. Swaim, 97 N. C. 462, 2 S. E. 68. In the absence of a statute abrogating the common-law rule, there is no doubt that an indictment charging the commission of an offence at an impossible date, is fatally defective; as, for instance, charging the commission of the crime on a certain day in the year, 18903, notwithstanding the fact that there was a statutory provision that no indictment should be deemed invalid for stating imperfectly the time when the offence was committed; Terrell v. State, 165 Ind. 443, 75 N. E. 884, 2 L. R. A. (N. S.) 251, 112 Am. St. Rep. 244, 6 Ann. Cas. 851. As to averments of time and place in an indictment for homicide, see note 3 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1019.

Sixth, the offence should be properly described. This is done by stating the substantial circumstances necessary to show the nature of the crime, and next, the formal allegations and terms of art required by law. Steph. Cr. Proc. 156. An omission of matter of substance in an indictment is not aided or cured by verdict; U. S. v. Hess, 124 U. S. 483, 8 Sup. Ct. 571, 31 L. Ed. 516. An indictment charging a crime "on or about" a certain date is not defective, these words being surplusage, the real date being that specifically charged; State v. McCarthy, 44 La. Ann. 323, 10 South. 673.

As to the substantial circumstances. The whole of the facts of the case necessary to make it appear judicially to the court that the indictors have gone upon sufficient premises should be set forth; but there should be no unnecessary matter, nor anything which on its face makes the indictment repugnant, inconsistent, or absurd. there is no necessary ambiguity, the court is not bound, it has been observed, to create one by reading the indictment in the only way which will make it unintelligible. It is a clear principle that the language of an indictment must be construed by the rules of pleading, and not by the common interpretation of ordinary language; for nothing indeed differs more widely in construction than the same matter when viewed by the rules of pleading and when construed by the language of ordinary life; 16 Q. B. 846; 2 Hale. Pl. Cr. 183; Bac. Abr. Indictment (G 1); Com. Dig. Indictment (G 3). Averments of matters not material or necessary ingredients in the offence charged may be rejected as surplusage; State v. Kern, 51 N. J. L. 259, 17 Atl. 114. An indictment is not insufficient by reason of any defect or imperfection in matter of form only, which shall not tend to the prejudice of the defendant; Caha v. U. S., 152 U. S. 211, 14 Sup. Ct. 513, 38 L. Ed. 415. All indictments ought to charge a man with a particular offence, and not with being an offender in general: to this rule there are some exceptions, as indictments against a common barrator, a common scold, and a keeper of a common bawdy-house; such persons may be indicted by these general words; 1 Chitty, Cr. Law 230, and the authorities there cited. The offence must not be stated in the disjunctive, so as to leave it uncertain on what it is intended to rely as an accusation: as, that the defendant erected or caused to be erected a nuisance; Com. v. Grey, 2 Gray (Mass.) 501, 61 Am. Dec. 476; 6 D. & R. 143; 2 Rolle, Abr. 31.

INDICTMENT

There are certain terms of art used, so appropriated by the law to express the precise idea which it entertains of the offence, that no other terms, however synonymous they may seem, are capable of filling the same office: such, for example, as traitorously (q. v.), in treason; feloniously (q. v.), in felony; Kaelin v. Com., 84 Ky. 354, 1 S. W. 594; State v. Bryan, 112 N. C. 848, 16 S. E. 909; State v. Hang Tong, 115 Mo. 389, 22 S. W. 381; burglariously (q. v.), in burglary; maim (q. v.), in mayhem, etc.

Seventh, the conclusion of the indictment should conform to the provision of the constitution of the state on the subject, where there is such provision; as in Pennsylvania; Const. art. 5, s. 11, which provides that all "prosecutions shall be carried on in the name and by the authority of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and conclude against the peace and dignity of the same"; see State v. McClung, 35 W. Va. 280, 13 S. E. 654; it is not necessary that each count should so conclude; Stebbins v. State, 31 Tex. Cr. R. 294, 20 S. W. 552. As to the necessity and propriety of having several counts in an indictment, see 1 Chitty, Cr. Law 248; Steph. Cr. Proc. 153; Count; as to joinder of several offences in the same indictment, see 1 Chitty, Cr. Law 253; Archb. Cr. Pl. 60; in one count, see 9 L. R. A. 182, note. A count in an indictment may refer to allegations in other counts to avoid repetition; People v. Graves, 5 Park. Cr. R. (N. Y.) 134; People v. Danihy, 63 Hun 579, 18 N. Y. Supp. 467; Blitz v. U. S., 153 U. S. 308, 14 Sup. Ct. 924, 38 L. Ed. 725. Several defendants may, in some cases, be joined in the same indictment; Archb. Cr. Pl. 59; as where one is charged with assault with intent to kill, and another as accessory before the fact; State

v. Lang, 65 N. H. 284, 23 Atl. 432; Com. v. Devine, 155 Mass. 224, 29 N. E. 515.

At common law an indictment cannot be amended by the court. It was said by Lord Mansfield in Rex v. Wilkes: "Indictments are found upon the oaths of a jury, and ought only to be amended by themselves;" 4 Burr. 2527. The rule has been continuously adhered to; Hawk. P. C. b. 2, c. 25, § 97; Stark. Cr. Pl. 287; Whart. Cr. Pl. & Pr. § 90; Com. v. Drew, 3 Cush. (Mass.) 279; State v. Sexton, 10 N. C. 184, 14 Am. Dec. 584. "It is a well-settled rule of law that the statute respecting amendments does not extend to indictment;" Shaw, C. J., in Com. v. Child, 13 Pick. (Mass.) 200; and "an amendment cannot be allowed even with the consent of the prisoner"; Com. v. Mahar, 16 Pick. (Mass.) 120; People v. Campbell, 4 Park. Cr. R. (N. Y.) 387. The caption, however, may be amended, being, as it is said, no part of the indictment itself; State v. Williams, 2 McCord (S. C.) 301; State v. Society, 42 N. J. L. 504; Allen v. State, 5 Wis. 337.

In England the rule forbidding an amendment of an indictment has been changed by stat. 14 and 15 Vict. c. 100. In this country the subject does not rest on the common law. but there is also to be considered the constitutional guaranty to an accused of a trial, "on a presentment or indictment by a grand jury." It was settled by the United States supreme court that in the federal courts an indictment cannot be amended by the court, buth by reason of the common-law rule and the constitutional provision; Ex parte Bain, 121 U. S. 1, 7 Sup. Ct. 781, 30 L. Ed. 849. The question whether the rule could be changed by statute was not actually involved, but it would seem to be settled in the negative by the reasoning of the opinion in that case. The question had been considered in some state courts, and it has been held that without amendment of the state constitution, the legislature may authorize amendment of indictments by the court, not changing the offence; Miller v. State, 53 Miss. 403; in other cases it was held that the legislature might dispense with or regulate matter of form; Brown v. People, 29 Mich. 232; State v. O'Flaherty, 7 Nev. 157; but they could not "dispense with such allegations as are essential to reasonable particularity and certainty in the description of the offence: Mc-Laughin v. State, 45 Ind. 338.

It is said by Bishop that "If a statute should authorize a material amendment to be made in an indictment for an offence which, by the constitution of the state was punishable only by indictment, the statutory direction would be a nullity." Bish. Cr. Proc., 2d ed. § 97; 26 Am. L. Reg. N. S. 446.

An indictment may be quashed at common law for such deficiency in body or caption as will make a judgment given on it against the defendant erroneous, but it is a matter of discretion; Bac. Abr. Indictment, K: 1 Chitty, Cr. Law 298; Archb. Cr. Pl. 66.

After verdict in a criminal case, it will be presumed that those facts without proof of which the verdict could not have been found were proved, though they are not distinctly alleged in the indictment; provided it contains terms sufficiently general to comprehend them in reasonable intendment; 2 C. & K. 868; 1 Tayl. Ev. § 73; Steph. Cr. Proc. After verdict, defective averments in the second indictment may be cured by reference to sufficient averments in the first count; 2 Den. Cr. Cas. 340. A single good count in an indictment is sufficient to sustain a verdict of guilty and judgment thereon; Mead v. State, 53 N. J. L. 601, 23 Atl. 264; Hornsby v. State, 94 Ala. 55, 10 South.

It is not error to join distinct offences in one indictment, in separate counts, against the same person; Ingraham v. U. S., 155 U. S. 434, 15 Sup. Ct. 148, 39 L. Ed. 213.

In an indictment for a statutory offence, while it is doubtless true that it is not always sufficient to use simply the language of the statute in describing the offence, yet, if such language is, according to the natural import of the words, fully descriptive of the offence, then it ordinarily is sufficient; Potter v. U. S., 155 U. S. 438, 15 Sup. Ct. 144, 39 L. Ed. 214. The general rule is that the offence can be described in the words of the statute, and it is for the defendant to show that greater particularity is required by reason of the omission from the statute of some element of the offense; Armour Packing Co. v. U. S., 209 U. S. 84, 28 Sup. Ct. 428, 52 L. Ed. 681.

The fact that a grand jury has ignored an indictment is not a bar to the subsequent finding of a true bill for the same offence; U. S. v. Martin, 50 Fed. 918. The finding of an indictment must appear from the order book of the court in which defendant was indicted; if it does not so appear, a verdict against him will be set aside; Simmons v. Com., 89 Va. 156, 15 S. E. 386; Goodson v. State, 29 Fla. 511, 10 South. 738, 30 Am. St. Rep. 135. The fact that the foreman of the grand jury in signing his name to the indorsement of "a true bill" used his initials instead of his full Christian name, is not ground for quashing the indictment; Zimmerman v. State, 4 Ind. App. 583, 31 N. E. 550; State v. Orrick, 106 Mo. 111, 17 S. W. 176, 329. One cannot be convicted of a higher degree of offence than that charged in the indictment; McCollough v. State, 132 Ind. 427, 31 N. E. 1116; but there may be a conviction of a lesser offence; Brown v. State, 31 Fla. 207, 12 South. 640.

U. S. R. S. § 1235, provides that no indictment shall be deemed insufficient, nor the trial or judgment thereon be affected, by reason of any defect in matter of form only, which shall not tend to the prejudice of the defendant.

See AD TUNC ET IBIDEM; INFAMOUS CRIME; INFORMATION; GRAND JURY; AGAINST THE WILL; RECITAL.

INDICTOR. He who causes another to be indicted. The latter is sometimes called the indictee.

INDIFFERENT. To have no bias or partiality. Mitchell v. Kirtland, 7 Conn. 229. A juror, an arbitrator, and a witness ought to be indifferent; and when they are not so they may be challenged. See Fitch v. Smith, 9 Conn. 42.

INDIGENA, INDIGENÆ. A native; born or bred in the same country or town. Ainsw. A subject born, or naturalized by act of parliament. Opposed to alienigena. Rymer, to. 15, p. 37; Co. Litt. 8 a; U. S. v. Wong Kim Ark, 169 U. S. 662, 18 Sup. Ct. 456, 42 L. Ed. 890.

INDIGENT. One who is destitute of property or means of comfortable sustenance; one who is needy or poor. Juneau County v. Wood County, 109 Wis. 330, 85 N. W. 387.

The term was designated for the benefit of the laboring population which is only self-supporting while employed, and is applied to those who were afforded a temporary support from the county for a special time; People v. Supervisors, 121 N. Y. 345, 24 N. E. 830. See DEPENDENT.

INDIGENT INSANE. Those who have no income over and above what is sufficient to support those who may be legally dependent on them. In re Hybart, 119 N. C. 359, 25 S. E. 963.

INDIRECT EVIDENCE. Evidence which does not prove the fact in question, but one from which it may be presumed.

Inferential evidence as to the truth of a disputed fact, not by testimony of any witness to the fact, but by collateral circumstances ascertained by competent means. 1 Stark. Ev. 15; Wills, Circ. Ev. 24; Best, Ev. 21, § 27, note; 1 Greenl. Ev. § 13.

INDITEE (L. Fr.). In Old English Law. A person indicted. 9 Coke.

INDIVIDUUM (Lat.). In the Civil Law. That cannot be divided. Calv. Lex.

INDIVISIBLE. That cannot be separated. The effect of the breach of a contract depends in a large degree upon whether it is to be regarded as indivisible or divisible; i. e. whether it forms a whole, the performance of every part of which is a condition precedent to bind the other party or is composed of several independent parts, the performance of any one of which will bind the other party pro tanto. This question is one of construction, and depends on the circumstances of each case; and the only test is whether the whole quantity of the things concerned, or the sum of the acts to be done, is of the essence of the contract. It depends, therefore, in the last resort, simply upon the intention of the parties; Broumel v. Rayner, 68 Md. 47, 11 Atl. 833; Wooten v. Walters, 110 N. C. 251, 14 S. E. 734, 736. See 9 Q. B. D. 648; Gill v. Lumber Co., 151 Pa. 534, 25 Atl. 120; Norrington v. Wright, 115 U. S. 188, 6 Sup. Ct. 12, 29 L. Ed 366; Barrie v. Earle, 143 Mass. 1, 8 N. E. 639, 58 Am. Rep. 126; King Philip Mills v. Slater, 12 R. I. 82, 34 Am. Rep. 603; Pope v. Porter, 102 N. Y. 366, 7 N. E. 304.

When a consideration is entire and indivisible, and it is against law, the contract is void in toto; Woodruff v. Hinman, 11 Vt. 592, 34 Am. Dec. 712; Frazier v. Thompson, 2 W. & S. (Pa.) 235. When the consideration is divisible, and part of it is illegal, the contract is void only pro tanto. In such case, it has been said, the connection between the different contracts is physical, not legal. See, generally, Harr. Contr. 132; Gelpcke v. Dubuque, 1 Wall. (U. S.) 220, 17 L. Ed. 530.

To ascertain whether a contract is divisible or indivisible is to ascertain whether it may or may not be enforced in part, or paid in part, without the consent of the other party. See Entirety; Independent Prom-

INDIVISUM (Lat.). That which two or more persons hold in common without partition; undivided.

INDORSE. To write on the back. Bills of exchange and promissory notes are indorsed by a party's writing his name on the See Indorsement. Writs in Massachusetts are indorsed in some cases by a person's writing his name on the back, in which case he becomes liable to pay the costs of the suit.

INDORSEE. The person or party to whom a bill of exchange is indorsed, or transferred by indorsement. See Indorsement.

INDORSEE IN DUE COURSE. An indorsee in due course is one who, in good faith, in the ordinary course of business, and for value, before its apparent maturity or presumptive dishonor, and without knowledge of its actual dishonor, acquires a negotiable instrument duly indorsed to him, or indorsed generally, or payable to the bearer.

INDORSEMENT. That which is written on the back of an instrument in writing and which has relation to it.

Writing one's name on the back of a promissory note or other negotiable instrument. Partridge v. Davis, 20 Vt. 499.

Written on the back of an original instrument, or on an "allonge" attached thereto, if there be not sufficient space on the original paper. Fountain v. Bookstaver, 141 Ill. 461, 31 N. E. 17; Crutchfield v. Easton, 13 Ala. 337; Bishop v. Chase, 156 Mo. 158, 56 not. Neg. Instr. Act § 136.

S. W. 1080, 79 Am. St. Rep. 515. It need not appear that it was physically impossible to indorse on the instrument; it may be on another paper when necessity or convenience requires it; Crosby v. Roub, 16 Wis. 616, 84 Am. Dec. 720.

An indorsement is generally made primarily for the purpose of transferring the rights of the holder of the instrument to some other person. It has, however, various results, such as rendering the indorser liable in certain events; and hence an indorsement is sometimes made merely for the purpose of additional security. This is called an accommodation indorsement when done without consideration.

It was said by Chief Justice Gibson that "the contract of indorsement is not an independent one, but a parasite which, like the chameleon, takes the hue of the thing with which it is connected. Attached to commercial paper, it becomes a commercial contract operating as a contingent guaranty of payment and a transfer of the title where the paper is negotiable; attached to any other chose in action, it becomes an equitable assignment of the beneficial interest without recourse to the assignor"; Patterson v. Poindexter, 6 W. & S. (Pa.) 227, 234, 40 Am. Dec. 554, quoted with approval in National Union Bank v. Shearer, 225 Pa. 470, 480, 74 Atl. 351, 17 Ann. Cas. 664.

A blank indorsement is one in which the name of the indorser only is written upon the instrument. It is commonly made by writing the name of the indorser on the back; Folwell v. Beaver, 13 S. & R. (Pa.) 315; but a writing across the face may answer the same purpose; Folger v. Chase, 18 Pick. (Mass.) 63; 16 East 12. Its effect is to make the instrument thereafter payable to bearer; Byles, Bills *151; Neg. Instr. Act § 131. If an instrument payable to bearer is indorsed specially, it may nevertheless be further negotiated by delivery. id. § 129.

The holder may convert a blank indorsement into a special indorsement by writing over the signature of the indorser in blank any contract consistent with the character of the indorsement. id. § 130.

A conditional indorsement is one made subject to some condition without the performance of which the instrument will not be or remain valid. 4 Taunt. 30. A bill may be indorsed conditionally, so to impose on the drawee who afterwards accepts a liability to pay the bill to the indorsee or his transferees in a particluar event only; Byles, Bills *150. An indorsement on a note, making it payable on a contingency does not affect its negotiability; Tappan v. Ely, 15 Wend. (N. Y.) 362.

But the person required to pay the instrument may disregard the condition and make payment to the indorsee or his transferee. whether the condition has been fulfilled or An indorsement in full, or a special indorsement, is one in which mention is made of the name of the indorsee. Chitty, Bills 170. The omission of the words "or order" is not material, for the indorsee takes it with all its incidents, including its negotiable quality; Byles, Bills *151. The omission of the words "or order" in a special indorsement will not restrain the negotiability of a bill; 2 Burr. 1216; 1 Stra. 557.

A qualified indorsement is one which restrains or limits, or qualifies, or enlarges the liability of the indorser, in any manner different from what the law generally imports as his true liability, deducible from the nature of the instrument. Chitty, Bills 261; 7 Taunt. 160. The words commonly used are sans recours, without recourse; Upham v. Prince, 12 Mass. 14. An indorsement without recourse, or at the indorsee's "own risk," will not expose the indorser to any liability; Lawrence v. Dobyns, 30 Mo. 196; Cady v. Shepard, 12 Wis. 639; Fitchburg Bank v. Greenwood, 2 Allen (Mass.) 434; Craft v. Fleming, 46 Pa. 140. But such an indorsement warrants the genuineness of all prior signatures; Dumont v. Williamson, 18 Ohio St 516, 98 Am. Dec. 186; that the indorser has title to the note; Mays v. Callison, 6 Leigh (Va.) 230; that the note is valid between the original parties, and not illegal or without consideration; Blethen v. Lovering, 58 Me. 437; Challiss v. McCrum, 22 Kan. 157, 31 Am. Rep. 181; and that the parties were competent to contract; id. The assignment without recourse leaves the assignor liable as vendor; Bevan v. Fitzsimmons, 40 Ill. App. 108.

It does not render the note non-negotiable; Page v. Ford (Or.) 131 Pac. 1013; Neg. Instr. Act § 135.

A restrictive indorsement is one which restrains the negotiability of the instrument to a particular person or for a particular purpose; Hermann v. Bank, 1 Rob. (La.) 222. Such are "Pay A. B. or order, for my use," or "for my account," or "only." Neg. Instr. Act §§ 132, 133, 134.

By the law merchant, bills and notes payable to order can be transferred only by indorsement; Russell v. Swan, 16 Mass. 314; Humphreyville v. Culver, 73 Ill. 485; Habersham v. Lehman, 63 Ga. 380; Central Trust Co. v. Bank, 101 U. S. 68, 25 L. Ed. 876; Osgood's Adm'rs v. Artt, 17 Fed. 575; Sto. Prom. N. § 120; Hatch v. Barrett, 34 Kan. 223, 8 Pac. 129. Indorsement is not complete before delivery of the note; Dann v. Norris, 24 Conn. 333; Spencer v. Carstarphen, 15 Colo. 445, 24 Pac. 882.

Delivery means transfer of possession, either actual or constructive, from one person to another. Neg. Instr. Act § 124. Hence the word indorsee in a declaration on a bill imports a delivery; Wood's Byles, Bills § 153.

An instrument promising to pay a sum certain with interest, as per annexed coupons, reciting that note and coupons were secured by mortgage, was negotiable; but an indorsement, "for value received, we hereby assign and transfer the within bond, together with all our interest in, and rights under the same, without recourse," was not a commercial indorsement, but a mere assignment passing an equitable interest subject to the defences of the makers, and the negotiability of the instrument was thereby destroyed, and the subsequent indorsement of the transferee did not make him liable for payment in the absence of any independent contract; De Hass v. Roberts, 59 Fed.

When, by such an assignment, the legal title is left in the payee, the equitable interest merely passing to the transferee, it necessarily follows that the negotiable character of the instrument is destroyed; Aniba v. Yeomans, 39 Mich. 171. And a subsequent indorsement by the transferee does not, in the absence of a special contract, render him liable; Dan. Neg. Inst. 666; Gray v. Donahoe, 4 Watts (Pa.) 400; Citizens' Nat. Bank v. Piollet, 126 Pa. 194, 17 Atl. 603, 4 L. R. A. 190, 12 Am. St. Rep. 860. The indorsement of a non-negotiable note without proof of a special contract to become responsible means nothing and creates no liability; Fear v. Dunlap, 1 G. Greene (Ia.) 334; Dan. Neg. Inst. 709. See also Graham v. Wilson, 6 Kan. 489; Story v. Lamb, 52 Mich. 525, 18 N. W. 248; First Nat. Bank of Trenton v. Gay, 71 Mo. 627. The person making such indorsement guaranties the note to be genuine, and that it is what it purports to be: nothing more. He does not guaranty its payment, although he might do this by independent contract expressed in the contract or otherwise; Fear v. Dunlap, 1 G. Greene (Ia.) 334.

The effect of the indorsement of a negotiable promissory note or bill of exchange is to transfer the property in the note to the person mentioned in the indorsement when it is made in full; Brown v. McWhite, 30 S. C. 356, 9 S. E. 277; or, when made in blank, to any person to whose possession it may lawfully come thereafter even by mere delivery, so that the possessor may sue upon it in his own name at law, as well as if he had been named as the payee; Evans v. Gee, 11 Pet. (U. S.) 80, 9 L. Ed. 639; Seabury v. Hungerford, 2 Hill (N. Y.) 80; Everett v. Tidball, 34 Neb. 803, 52 N. W. 816; Howland v. Bates, 1 Misc. 91, 20 N. Y. Supp. 373; Jones v. Shapera, 57 Fed. 457, 6 C. C. A. 423.

Any person who has possession of the instrument is presumed to be the legal bona fide owner for value, until the contrary is shown; Palmer v. Marshall, 60 Ill. 289.

The payee of a note can restrain its negotiability, but a subsequent indorser can revive its negotiable quality; Holmes v. Hooper, 1 Bay (S. C.) 160.

INDORSEMENT

The parties are presumed to stand to each other in the relations in which their names appear. Where the holder has knowledge, the facts may be shown as between him and the other parties; Whitehouse v. Hanson, 42 N. H. 9.

An indorsement on the last day of grace is good; Crosby v. Grant, 36 N. H. 273; contra, Pine v. Smith, 11 Gray (Mass.) 38. An indorsement is presumed to be of the same date as the instrument; Snyder v. Oatman, 16 Ind. 265; Stewart v. Smith, 28 Ill. 397; or at least to have been made before maturity; Blum v. Loggins, 53 Tex. 136; Collins v. Gilbert, 94 U. S. 753, 24 L. Ed. 170.

An indorsement may be made before the bill or note itself, and so render the indorser liable to all subsequent parties; Byles, Bills *167; Durham v. Clogg, 30 Md. 284. A blank indorsement upon a blank piece of paper, with intent to give a person credit, is, in effect, a letter of credit; if a promissory note is afterwards written on the paper, the indorser cannot object; Dougl. 496; Violett v. Patton, 5 Cra. (U. S.) 142, 3 L. Ed. 61; but if the holder had notice of any fraud he cannot fill in the blanks; 3 Q. B. D. 643.

When the indorsement is made before the note becomes due, the indorsee and all subsequent holders are entitled to recover the face of the note against the maker, without any right on his part to offset claims which he may have against the payee; or, as it is frequently stated, the indorsee takes it free of all equities between the antecedent parties of which he had no notice; 8 M. & W. 504; Savings Bank of New Haven v. Bates, 8 Conn. 505; Thompson v. Gibson, 1 Mart. N. 8. (La.) 150; Swift v. Tyson, 16 Pet. (U. S.) 1, 10 L. Ed. 865. The indorser of a promissory note before maturity without recourse is responsible thereon if the note is fraudulent, fictitious, or forged; Palmer v. Courtney, 32 Neb. 773, 49 N. W. 754.

An indorsement admits the signatures and capacity of every prior party; Byles, Bills *155.

The blank indorsement of a non-negotiable bill has been held to operate as the drawing of a bill payable to bearer; 33 L. J. Q. B. 209. The indorsement of a non-negotiable note by a payee operates to assign the payee's rights to the indorser, who takes the former's place; Gorman v. Ketchum, 33 Wis.

After a bill is due, the indorsee takes it on the credit of the indorser and subject to all equities; 4 M. & G. 101; as was said by Lord Ellenborough, "it comes disgraced to the indorsee;" 1 Campb. 19. But the maker can only set up such defences as are connected with the note, not those arising out of an independent transaction; Arnot v. Woodburn, 35 Mo. 99; 3 H. & N. 891; such as set-off as against the holder; Way v. Lamb, 15 Ia. 79; 10 Exch. 572. It is otherwise as to a check, which may be transferred by indorsement after it is payable; Byles, Bills *171; but taking a check six days old is a circumstance from which the jury may infer fraud; 9 B. & C. 388. A note payable on demand is not to be taken as overdue without some evidence of demand of payment and refusal; 4 B. & C. 327; although it is several years old and no interest has been paid on it; Byles, Bills *171; a promissory note payable on demand is intended to be a continuing security; 9 M. & W. 15; but it has been held to be overdue and dishonored after a reasonable time; Carll v. Brown, 2 Mich. 401; so after three months; Herrick v. Woolverton, 41 N. Y. 581, 1 Am. Rep. 461; (but see Herrick v. Woolverton, 42 Barb. [N. Y.] 50); after ten months; Morey v. Wakefield, 41 Vt. 24, 98 Am. Dec. 562.

A bill or note cannot be indorsed for part of the amount due the holder, as the law will not permit one cause of action to be cut up into several, and such an indorsement is utterly void as such, but when it has been paid in part, it may be indorsed as to the residue; Frank v. Kaigler, 36 Tex. 305.

Indorsers, also, unless the indorsement be qualified, become liable to pay the amount demanded by the instrument upon the failure of the principal, the maker of a note, or the acceptor of a bill, upon due notification of such failure, to any subsequent indorsee who can legally claim to hold through the particular indorser; Story, Bills § 224.

The indorsement of a draft to a fictitious indorsee is usually treated as making it payable to bearer; see Fictitious PAYEE; Phillips v. Bank, 140 N. Y. 556, 35 N. E. 982, 23 L. R. A. 584, 37 Am. St. Rep. 596; Neg. Instr. Act § 9; but not unless the maker knows the payee to be fictitious and actually intends the paper to be made payable to a fictitious person; Chism v. Bank, 96 Tenn. 641, 36 S. W. 387, 32 L. R. A. 778, 54 Am. St. Rep. 863; Shipman v. Bank, 126 N. Y. 318, 27 N. E. 371, 12 L. R. A. 791, 22 Am. St. Rep. 821; Armstrong v. Bank, 46 Ohio St. 512, 22 N. E. 866. 6 L. R. A. 625, 15 Am. St. Rep. 655; contra. Kohn v. Watkins, 26 Kan. 691, 40 Am. Rep. 336.

In most of the cases a person not a party to the instrument who writes his name on the back of it before delivery is in many states considered an original promisor; Malbon v. Southard, 36 Me. 147; White v. Howland, 9 Mass. 314, 6 Am. Dec. 71; Baker v. Block, 30 Mo. 225; Carr's Ex'x v. Rowland, 14 Tex. 275; Sylvester v. Downer, 20 Vt. 355, 49 Am. Dec. 786; and in Pennsylvania it was held that such irregular indorser was not liable to the payee; Schafer v. Bank, 59 Pa. 144, 98 Am. Dec. 323. By Neg. Instr. Act § 156, it is provided that: Where a person, not otherwise a party to an instrument, places thereon his signature in blank before delivery, he is liable as indorser in accordance with the following rules: If the instrument is payable to the order of a third person, he is liable to the payee and all subsequent parties; if it is payable to the order of maker or drawer or to bearer, then he is liable to all parties subsequent to the maker or drawer; if he signs for the accommodation of the payee, he is liable to all parties subsequent to the payee.

One who takes a note from its maker or payee is chargeable with knowledge that the indorsement of a third party thereon was for accommodation, and in a case of a corporation, such an act is ultra vires; Brill Co. v. Ry. Co., 189 Mass. 431, 75 N. E. 1090, 2 L. R. A. (N. S.) 525.

A plaintiff, in suing the first indorsee may omit to state in his declaration all the indorsements but the first indorsement in blank, and aver that the first blank indorser indorsed directly to himself; in such case all the intervening indorsements must be struck out; Byles, Bills *155; Merz v. Kaiser, 20 La. Ann. 377.

An indorsement by an officer of a corporation, where the fact appears on the instrument, dees not render him individually liable; State Nat. Bank v. Singer, 39 La. Ann. 813. 2 South. 599.

An indorsement by one of several executors will not transfer the property; 2 C. & K. 37; Smith v. Whiting, 9 Mass. 334; contra, in case of administrators; Sanders v. Blain's Adm'r; 6 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 446, 22 Am. Dec. 86; and see Wheeler v. Wheeler, 9 Cow. (N. Y.) 34. An executor cannot complete his testator's indorsement by delivering the instrument, which has already been signed by the testator; Wood's Byles, Bills 58; 1 Exch. 32.

The holder may at any time strike out any indorsement which is not necessary to his title. The indorser whose indorsement is struck out and all indorsers subsequent to him are thereby relieved from liability on the indorsement; Neg. Instr. Act § 147.

By the general law merchant, the indorser of a negotiable instrument is bound instantly, and may be sued after maturity, upon demand and notice of non-payment. But by the statutes of some of the states the maker must first be sued and his property subjected; Watson v. Hahn, 1 Colo. 385; Mason v. Burton, 54 Ill. 349; Booth v. Storrs, 54 Ill. 472; Harrison v. Pike, 48 Miss. 46.

The effect of acceptance upon a bill is to remove the acceptor to the head of the list as principal, while the drawer takes his place as first indorser.

A course of decisions with respect to restrictive indorsement has given rise to much discussion, resulting in so general a change in clearing-house rules as to amount to a revolution in banking methods.

The litigation arising from the relations between a bank, its depositor, and the indorsee of a check or draft commences with the early English case of Price v. Neal, followed in England and this country, in which it was held by Lord Mansfield that if the drawee pays a bill which he afterwards finds to be forged, he has no recourse against an innocent indorser: 3 Burr. 1354; nor has a bank which paid a forged check; Taunt. 76: Levy v. Bank, 1 Binn. (Pa.) 27. See also Bank of U. S. v. Bank, 10 Wheat. (U. S.) 333, 6 L. Ed. 334; U. S. Nat. Bank v. Bank, 59 Hun 495, 13 N. Y. Supp. 411. The precise principle on which the doctrine of Price v. Neal was founded, has been a subject of varying opinion and the different theories concerning it, as also a voluminous citation of the cases, will be found in an article by Professor J. B. Ames in 4 Harv. L. Rev. 297. An extended review and discussion of the cases will also be found in Keener, Quasi-Cont. While it is true that a bank pays a forged check at its own peril, if the depositor be free from negligence; Shipman v. Bank, 126 N. Y. 319, 27 N. E. 371, 12 L. R. A. 791, 22 Am. St. Rep. 821; it was held that no title passed through a forged indorsement, and hence payment by a bank made on the faith of it may be recovered from an indorsee even if bona fide for value; Canal Bank v. Bank, 1 Hill (N. Y.) 290.

A later decision had a very far-reaching effect with respect to the effect of restrictive indorsements. What has been characterized as "the doctrine, newly announced by the courts," has been thus stated: "Where a draft is indorsed to a bank for collection or for account of the indorser, the form of indorsement carries notice to the bank of payment that the bank to whom the paper is thus indorsed is a mere agent of the indorser to collect, having no proprietary interest in the paper; hence if the paper turns out to be forged (i. e. raised in amount, or payee's indorsement forged), the agent bank's own indorsement is not a guaranty of genuineness, and it is under no liability to repay the amount collected, after it has paid the same over to its principal." 13 Banking L. J. 75.

The first case was National Park Bank v. Bank, 114 N. Y. 28, 20 N. E. 632, 11 Am. St. Rep. 612, and this, it was said at a convention of bankers, "proved a revelation to many of us, and pointed out the great danger which lurked in checks and other paper having restrictive indorsements," and the second case, National City Bank of Brooklyn v. Westcott, 118 N. Y. 468, 23 N. E. 900, 16 Am. St. Rep. 771, was said "to have opened the eyes of banks, heretofore unacquainted with the decision (of the Seaboard Bank Case), to the real status of liability in case of restrictive indorsement;" address of S. G. Nelson, 13 Bkg. L. J. 445. The same doctrine was followed in other cases, so that it is fully established in New York and some other states and in the federal circuit court; Wells, Fargo & Co. v. U. S., 45 Fed. 337; U. S. v. Bank, 70 Fed. 232; Mechanics' Bank v. Packing Co., 70 Mo. 643; Germania Bank of Minneapolis v. Boutell, 60 Minn. 189, 62 N. W. 327, 27 L. R. A. 635, 51 Am. St. Rep. 519; Northwestern Nat. Bank v. Bank, 107 Mo. 402, 17 S. W. 982, 15 L. R. A. 102; and the basic principle of these decisions was already approved by the United States supreme court, which held that "the words 'for collection' evidently had a meaning. That meaning was intended to limit the effect which would have been given to the indorsement without them, and warned the party that, contrary to the purpose of a general or blank indorsement, this was not intended to transfer the ownership of the note or its proceeds." Sweeney v. Easter, 1 Wall. (U. S.) 166, 173, 17 L. Ed. 681; which was followed in a case of indorsement "for collection"; Commercial Nat. Bank v. Armstrong, 148 U. S. 50, 13 Sup. Ct. 533, 37 L. Ed. 363; and as to an indorsement "for account," it was said, "It does not purport to transfer the title of the paper, or the ownership of the money when received;" White v. Bank, 102 U. S. 658, 26 L. Ed. 250. In one state the contrary view has been taken and the bank of deposit of a draft with a forged indorsement, although a mere "indorsee for collection," was held liable to refund to its correspondent bank which had paid the money; Rhodes v. Jenkins, 18 Colo. 49, 31 Pac. 491, 36 Am. St. Rep. 263. See Onondaga County Sav. Bank v. U. S., 64 Fed.

INDORSEMENT

The result of the decisions cited was the general adoption of a rule by most of the associations, clearing-house substantially like that of New York, excluding, from the exchanges, paper having a qualified or restricted indorsement, such as "for collection" or "for account of," unless the same was guaranteed. In Chicago such paper was absolutely excluded. The result has been to make the question, what is a restrictive indorsement, one of vital importance and the judicial opinion is not uniform. The following have been held to be restrictive: "for collection;" Sweeny v. Easter, 1 Wall. (U. S.) 166, 173, 17 L. Ed. 681; People's Bank of Baltimore v. Keech, 26 Md. 521, 90 Am. Dec. 118; "for account;" White v. Bank, 102 U. S. 658, 26 L. Ed. 250; "for my use;" Wilson v. Holmes, 5 Mass. 543, 4 Am. Dec. 75; "credit my account;" Lee v. Bank, 1 Bond. 387, Fed. Cas. No. 8,186; "Pay to P. or order only;" Power v. Finnie, 4 Call (Va.) 411; "for deposit;" Beal v. Somerville, 50 Fed. 647, 1 C. C. A. 598, 17 L. R. A. 291 (contra, National Commercial Bank v. Miller, 77 Ala. 168, 54 Am. Rep. 50); "for deposit to the credit of;" Freeman v. Bank, 87 Ga. 45, 13 S. E. 160; contra (by a divided court), Ditch v. Bank, 79 Md. 192, 29 Atl. 72, 138, 23 L. R. A. 164, 47 Am. St. Rep. 375; but while the presumption is that it is restrictive, the bank may show by extrinsic evidence that it was not so, either by reason of a special agreement; Beal v. Somerville, 50 Fed. 647, 1 C. C. A. 598, 17 L. R. A. 291; or because the proceeds were passed to the depositor's credit and subject to check before collection; Fourth Nat. Bank of Cincinnati v. Mayer, 89 Ga. 108, 14 S. E. 891.

703, 12 C. C. A. 407.

Where a bank to which a forged check was sent for collection credited the person sending it with the amount, without actually remitting the money, it could, on discovering the forgery, charge back the amount; Birmingham Nat. Bank v. Bradley, 103 Ala. 109, 15 South. 440, 49 Am. St. Rep. 17. See articles critically reviewing the cases, in the latter of which the conclusion is reached that an indorsement for deposit is restrictive; 13 Banking L. J. 361, 429; and see also Norton, Bills & N. 123; Daniel, Neg. Instr. §§ 636, 637, 698.

The indorsement or assignment of an instrument by a corporation or by an infant passes the property therein, notwithstanding that from want of capacity the corporation or infant may incur no liability thereon. Neg. Instr. Act § 138.

Where the holder of an instrument payable to his order transfers it for value without indorsing it, the transfer vests in the transferee such title as the transferor had therein, and the transferee acquired, in addition, the right to have the indorsement of the transferor. Neg. Instr. Act § 123.

See GUARANTY; BILLS OF EXCHANGE; PROM-ISSOBY NOTES; NEGOTIABILITY.

in Criminal Law. An entry made upon the back of a writ or warrant.

When a warrant for the arrest of a person charged with a crime has been issued by a justice of the peace of one county. which is to be executed in another county, it is necessary, in some states, that it should be indorsed by a justice of the county where it is to be executed: this indorsement is called backing.

INDORSER. The person who makes an indorsement.

By section 154, a person placing his signature upon an instrument otherwise than as maker, drawer or acceptor, is deemed to be an indorser, unless he clearly indicates by appropriate words his intention to be bound in some other capacity. Neg. Instr. Act § 154.

The indorser of a bill of exchange, or other negotiable paper, by his indorsement undertakes to be responsible to the holder for the amount of the bill or note, if the latter shall make a legal demand from the payer, and, in default of payment, give proper notice thereof to the indorser. But the indorser may make his indorsement conditional, which will operate as a transfer of he may make it qualified, so that he shall not be responsible on non-payment by the payer; Chitty, Bills 179, 180.

To make an indorser liable on his indorsement to parties subsequent to his own indorsee, the instrument must be commercial paper; for the indorsement of a bond or single bill will not, per se, create a responsibility; Folwell v. Beaver, 13 S. & R. (Pa.) 311. See Story, Bills 202; Evans v. Gee, 11 Pet. (U. S.) 80, 9 L. Ed. 639.

When there are several indorsers, the first in point of time is generally, but not always, first responsible; there may be circumstances which will cast the responsibility, in the first place, as between them, on a subsequent indorsee; Chalmers v. McMurdo, 5 Munf. (Va.) 252, 7 Am. Dec. 684; Rhinehart v. Schall, 69 Md. 352, 16 Atl. 126; Sweet v. Woodin, 72 Mich. 393, 40 N. W. 471.

The fact that an indorsee, when he puts his name on a draft, did not think it would render him liable as an indorser, will not relieve him; First Nat. Bank v. Crabtree, 88 Ia. 731, 52 N. W. 559. Where the owner and holder of a promissory note after maturity sells and indorses the note, signing his name after that of the original payee, he is an indorser and not a joint maker; Lank v. Morrison, 44 Kan. 594, 24 Pac. 1106.

INDUCEMENT. In Contracts. The benefit which the promisor is to receive from a contract is the inducement for making it.

In Criminal Law. The motive. Confessions are sometimes made by criminals under the influence of promises or threats. When these promises or threats are made by persons in authority, the confessions cannot be received in evidence. See Confession.

la Pleading. The statement of matter which is introductory to the principal subject of the declaration or plea, and which is necessary to explain or elucidate it. Such matter as is not introductory to, or necessary to elucidate the substance or gist of, the declaration, plea, etc., nor collaterally applicable to it, is surplusage.

An inducement is, in general, more a matter of convenience than of necessity, since the same matter may be stated in the body of the declaration; but by its use confusion of statement is avoided; 1 Chitty, Pl. 259.

But in many cases it is necessary to lay a foundation for the action by a statement, by way of inducement, of the extraneous or collateral circumstances which give rise to the plaintiff's claim. For instance, in an action for a nuisance to property in the possession of the plaintiff, the circumstances of his being possessed of the property should be stated as inducement, or by way of introduction to the mention of the nuisance; 1 Chitty, Pl. 292; Steph. Pl. 257.

When a formal traverse is adopted, it the bill if the condition be performed; or | show that the matter contained in the traverse is material; 1 Chitty, Pl. 38. TRAVERSE; INNUENDO; COLLOQUIUM.

In an indictment there is a distinction between the allegation of facts constituting the offence, and those which must be averred by way of inducement. In the former case, the circumstances must be set out with particularity; in the latter, a more general allegation is allowed. An "inducement to an offence does not require so much certainty." Com. Dig. Indictment (G 5). In an indictment for an escape, "debito modo commissus" is enough, without showing by what authority; and even "commissus" is sufficient; 1 Ventr. 170. So, in an indictment for disobedience to an order of justices for payment of a church-rate, an averment, by way of inducement, that a rate was duly made as by law required, and afterwards duly allowed. and that the defendant was by it duly rated, was held sufficient, without setting out the facts which constituted the alleged due rating, etc., although in the statement of the offence itself it would not have been sufficient; 1 Den. Cr. Cas. 222.

INDUCIÆ (Lat.). In Civil Law. truce; cessation from hostilities for a time agreed upon. Also, such agreement itself. Calv. Lex. So in international law; Grotius, de Jure Bell. lib. 3, c. 2, § 11; Huber, Jur. Civit. p. 743, § 22.

In Old Practice. A delay or indulgence allowed by law. Calvinus, Lex.; Du Cange; Bract. fol. 352 b; Fleta, lib. 4, c. 5, § 8. See Bell. Dict.; Burton, Law of Scotl. 561. So used in old maritime law; e. g. an induciæ of twenty days after safe arrival of vessels was allowed in case of bottomry bond, to raise the principal and interest; Locceivus, de Jure Marit. lib. 2, c. 6, § 11, INDUCIÆ LEGALES (Lat.). In Scotch Law. The days between the citation of the defendant and the day of appearance; the days between the teste day and day of return of the writ.

INDUCTIO. In the Civil Law. Obliteration, by drawing the pen or stylus over the writing. Dig. 28, 4; Calv. Lex.

INDUCTION. In Ecclesiastical Law. The giving a clerk, instituted to a benefice, the actual possession of its temporalities, in the nature of livery of seisin. Ayliffe, Parerg.

Forbearance (q. v.); de-INDULGENCE. lay in enforcing a legal right.

INDULTO. In Spanish Law. The condonation or remission of the punishment imposed on a criminal for his offence. L. 1, t. 32, pt. 7. This power is exclusively vested in the king.

The right of exercising this power has should be introduced with an inducement, to been often contested, chiefly as impolitic for the reason set forth in the following Latin verses:

"Plus sæpe nocet patientia regis Quam rigor: ille nocet paucis; hæc incitat omnes, Dum se ferre suos sperant impune reatus.

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIE-TIES. Societies formed in England for carrying on any labor, trade, or handicraft, whether wholesale or retail, including the buying and selling of land, and also (but subject to certain restrictions) the business of banking (I. and P. Soc. Act, 1876, 6). Such a society (which must consist of seven persons at least) when registered under the act becomes a body corporate with limited liability, and with the word "limited" as the last word in its name (id. 7, 11), and is regulated by rules providing for the amount of the shares, the holding of meetings, the mode in which the profits are to be applied, etc.; id. 9.

INDUSTRIAM. PER (Lat.). A qualified property in animals feræ naturæ may be acquired per industriam, i. e. by a man's reclaiming and making them tame by art, industry, and education; or by so confining them within his own immediate power that they cannot escape and use their natural liberty. 2 Steph. Com. 5.

INEBRIATE. See HABITUAL DRUNKARD. INEBRIETY. See DIPSOMANIA; DRUNKEN-NESS.

INELIGIBILITY. The incapacity to be lawfully elected; disqualification to hold an office if elected or appointed to it. State v. Murray, 28 Wis. 99, 9 Am. Rep. 489.

This incapacity arises from various causes; and a person may be incapable of being elected to one office who may be elected to another: the incapacity may also be perpetual or temporary.

Among perpetual inabilities may be reckoned, the inability of a citizen born in a foreign country to be elected president of the United States.

Among the temporary inabilities may be mentioned, the holding of an office declared by law to be incompatible with the one sought; the non-payment of the taxes required by law; the want of certain property qualifications required by the constitution; the want of age, or being too old.

As to the effect on an election of the candidate having the highest number of votes being ineligible, see Election. See also Eligi-BILITY.

INE, CODE OF. A code of the West Saxons dating from 688 to 695. Adopted by Alford, probably with alterations. Seebohm, Tribal Customs, 386.

INEVITABLE ACCIDENT. A term used in the civil law, nearly synonymous with fortuitous event. Neal v. Saunderson, 2

Any accident which cannot be foreseen and prevented. Though used as synonymous with act of God (q. v.), it would seem to have a wider meaning, the act of God being any cause which operates without aid or interference from man; 4 Dougl. 287, 290, per Lord Mansfield; McArthur v. Sears, 21 Wend. (N. Y.) 198; Fish v. Chapman, 2 Ga. 349, 46 Am. Dec. 393. In Story on Bailments § 489, the two phrases are treated as synonymous, but in a later edition, the editor, Judge Bennett, notes the distinction just mentioned and considers the phrase inevitable accident one of wider significance. See Hays v. Kennedy, 41 Pa. 379, 80 Am. Dec. 627, where this and similar expressions are discussed and distinguished; Webb, Poll. Torts 160.

Inevitable accident is a relative term and must be construed not absolutely but reasonably with regard to the circumstances of each particular case, and where having reference to a marine collision, it may be regarded as an occurrence which the party charged with the collision could not possibly prevent by the exercise of ordinary care, caution, and maritime skill; The Morning Light, 2 Wall. (U. S.) 560, 17 Wall. 862; 2 E. L. & E. 559. With reference to this subject Chief Justice Drake said that inevitable accident occurs only when the disaster happens from natural causes, without negligence or fault on either side; and when both parties have endeavored, by every means in their power, with due care and caution, and with a proper display of nautical skill, to prevent the occurrence of the accident; Sampson v. U. S., 12 Ct. Cl. 491; Union S. S. Co. v. Steamship Co., 24 How. (U. S.) 307, 16 L. Ed. 699.

Where a rat made a hole in a box where water was collected in an upper room, so that the water trickled out and flowed on the plaintiff's goods in a lower room; L. R. 6 Ex. 217; where pipes were laid down with plugs, properly made, to prevent the pipes bursting, and a severe frost prevented the plugs from acting and the pipes burst and flooded the plaintiff's cellar; 11 Ex. 781; where a horse took fright without any default in the driver or any known propensity in the animal, and the plaintiff was injured; 3 Esp. 533; where a horse, travelling on the highway, became suddenly frightened at the smell of blood; Jackson v. Town of Belleview, 30 Wis. 257; where a horse, being suddenly frightened by a passing vehicle, became unmanageable and injured the plaintiff's horse; 1 Bingh. 13; where a mill dam, properly built, was swept away by a freshet of unprecedented violence; Livingston v. Adams, 8 Cow. (N. Y.) 175; it was held that no action would lie; otherwise when the falling of the tide caused a vessel to strand, as this could have been foreseen; Bohannan v. Hammond, 42 Cal. 227. A bailee is exempt from liability for loss of the consigned goods Smedes & M. (Miss.) 572, 41 Am. Dec. 609. arising from inevitable accident; he may, however, enlarge his liability by contract; | not diminished by the fact of the obscurity Sturm v. Boker, 150 U. S. 312, 14 Sup. Ct. 99, 37 L. Ed. 1093. See Act of God.

INFALISTATUS. in Old English Law. Exposed upon the sands, or seashore. A species of punishment mentioned in Hengham. Cowell.

INFAMIA (Lat.). Infamy; ignominy or disgrace.

By infamia juris is meant infamy established by law as the consequence of crime; infamia facti is where the party is supposed to be guilty of such crime, but it had not been judicially proved. Com. v. Green, 17 Mass. 515, 541.

INFAMIS (Lat.). In Roman Law. One who, in consequence of the application of a general rule, and not by virtue of an arbitrary decision of the censors, lost his political rights but preserved his civil rights. Savigny, Droit Rom. § 79.

A crime which INFAMOUS CRIME. works infamy in one who has committed it. The fifth amendment of the constitution of the United States declares that, with certain exceptions not here material, "no person shall be held to answer for a capital, or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a grand jury." A similar provision is contained in many of the state constitutions, although in some later ones there is a tendency to abridge the common-law strictness of requiring indictment by a grand jury.

It is settled that the provision of the federal constitution above quoted restricts only the United States so that a state may authorize an offence—capital or infamous—to be prosecuted by information; State v. Jackson, 21 La. Ann. 574: this rule of construction has been uniformly applied to the general restrictions contained in the first eight amendments; Barron v. Baltimore, 7 Pet. (U. S.) 243, 8 L. Ed. 672; Murphy v. People, 2

Cow. (N. Y.) 815; Pom. Const. L. §§ 231-8. Under the fifth amendment of the United States constitution, a person charged with murder, committed in Oklahoma Territory prior to statehood, must be prosecuted by indictment; Reed v. State, 2 Okl. Cr. App. 589, 103 Pac. 1042; Hayes v. State, 3 Okl. Cr. App. 1, 103 Pac. 1061; but an indictment is not required even in cases of commonlaw felonies under a state constitutional provision that no one shall be deprived of his liberty except by the laws of the land, and the legislature may authorize prosecutions by an information; State v. Stimpson, 78 Vt. 124, 62 Atl. 14, 1 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1153, 6 Ann. Cas. 639.

It was said by Mr. Justice Miller, "There has been great difficulty in deciding what was meant a hundred years ago by the phrase infamous crime, which is used in this constitutional amendment. That difficulty is S. 1, 7 Sup. Ct. 781, 30 L. Ed. 849; Parkinof the language itself as construed by what is known of the laws and usages of our ancestors at that time, in connection with the fact that both state and federal legislation in regard to crime may have made that infamous since, which would not have been so considered then;" Miller, Const. U. S. 504. The question was not authoritatively decided by the supreme court until 1885, when in Ex parte Wilson the theory that the true test is the nature of the crime, as understood at common law, was distinctly negatived, and it was said by Mr. Justice Gray for the court: "When the accused is in danger of being subjected to an infamous punishment, if convicted, he has the right to insist that he shall not be put upon his trial except on the accusation of a grand jury;" and the fifth amendment, declaring in what cases a grand jury should be necessary, practically affirmed the rule of the common law. This was that informations were not allowed for capital crimes nor for any felony, i. e. an offence which caused a forfeiture; 4 Bla. Com. 94, 95, 310; thus the requirement of an indictment depended upon the consequences of the convict, and it was concluded that the constitutional substitution of the words "a capital or otherwise infamous crime" for capital crimes or felonies, "manifestly had in view that rule of the common law, rather than the rule on the very different question of the competency of witnesses. The leading word capital describing the crime by its punishment only, the associated words or otherwise infamous crime must, by an elementary rule of construction, include crimes subject to any infamous punishment, even if they should be held to include also crimes infamous in their nature, independently of the punishment affixed to them."

Having determined that the character of the punishment was to be the criterion applied in such cases, the court discussed the question what punishment would be considered infamous, and carefully confining the decision to the requirements of the case, continued thus: "Deciding nothing beyond what is required by the facts of the case before us, our judgment is that a crime, punishable by imprisonment for a term of years at hard labor, is an infamous crime, within the meaning of the Fifth Amendment of the constitution." Ex parte Wilson, 114 U. S. 417, 418, 5 Sup. Ct. 935, 29 L. Ed. 89; U. S. v. Petit, 114 U.S. 429 note, 5 Sup. Ct. 1190, 29 L. Ed. 93.

This decision was followed by a number of others which adhered to the same doctrine and decided that imprisonment in a state prison or a penitentiary with or without hard labor was an infamous punishment: Mackin v. U. S., 117 U. S. 348, 6 Sup. Ct. 777, 29 L. Ed. 909; Ex parte Bain, 121 U.

30 L. Ed. 959; U. S. v. De Walt, 128 U. S. 393, 9 Sup. Ct. 111, 32 L. Ed. 485; Medley, Petitioner, 134 U.S. 160, 10 Sup. Ct. 384, 33 L. Ed. 835; In re Mills, 135 U. S. 263, 10 Sup. Ct. 762, 34 L. Ed. 107; In re Claasen, 140 U. S. 200, 11 Sup. Ct. 735, 35 L. Ed. 409.

Before this decision there had been a tendency on the part of the courts towards the doctrine that the question of infamy was to be determined by the nature of the crime and not at all by the character of the punishment.

Prior to the independence of the United States there were understood to be two kinds of infamy,—one based upon the opinion of the people respecting the mode of punishment, and the other having relation to the future credibility of the offender; Eden, Penal L. ch. 75. Because the legal bearing of the subject was mainly if not entirely with respect to the settlement of rules determining what crimes would disqualify the perpetrator from testifying. Accordingly the classification of crimes other than treason or felony, which were held to be infamous, were naturally those the commission of which would tend to cast discredit upon the veracity of the criminal,—denominated generally by the term crimen falsi. The manifest purpose of the constitutional provision under consideration was the incorporation into fundamental law of one of the great guarantees of liberty. "A mere reference to the history and adoption of this provision into the federal constitution is sufficient to show that it was not a question of competency or incompetency to testify that the framers of our government were considering, but rather in consequences to the liberty of the individual in securing him against accusation and trial for crimes of great magnitude, without the previous interposition of a grand jury:" Butler v. Wentworth, 84 Me. 25, 24 Atl. 456, 17 L. R. A. 764.

As was said by Shaw, C. J., in an opinion quoted with approval in Ex parte Wilson, supra, "The state prison for any term of time is now by law substituted for all the ignominious punishment formerly in use; and, unless this is infamous, then there is now no infamous punishment other than capital."

It is said in a case subsequent to that in which the supreme court settled the principle, under the laws of the United States, an infamous crime is one for which the statutes authorized the courts to award an infamous Its character as being infapunishment. mous does not depend on whether the punishment ultimately awarded is an infamous one, but whether it is in the power of the courts to award an infamous punishment, or whether the accused is in danger of being subjected to an infamous punishment; Ex parte McClusky, 40 Fed. 71; Ex parte Wilson, 114 U. S. 417, 5 Sup. Ct. 935, 29 L. Ed. 89; But- Copley, 67 Pa. 386, 5 Am. Rep. 441; U. S. v.

son v. U. S., 121 U. S. 281, 7 Sup. Ct. 896, | ler v. Wentworth, 84 Me. 25, 24 Atl. 456, 17 L. R. A. 764.

> The authoritative settlement of this question by the supreme court renders it unnecessary to refer to the earlier decisions of the federal courts, which in some cases supported a different view. Many of them are referred to in the opinion of the supreme court, and the theories on which they are based are expressly disapproved. In some of the state courts the same conclusion was reached; Gudger v. Penland, 108 N. C. 593, 13 S. E. 168, 23 Am. St. Rep. 73; State v. Reeves, 97 Mo. 668, 10 S. W. 841, 10 Am. St. Rep. 349; Butler v. Wentworth, 84 Me. 25, 24 Atl. 456, 17 L. R. A. 764.

> It has also been held that a crime to the conviction and punishment of which congress has superadded a disqualification to hold office, is thereby made infamous; U. S. v. Waddell, 112 U. S. 76, 5 Sup. Ct. 35, 28 L. Ed. 673; Ex parte Wilson, 114 U. S. 417. 5 Sup. Ct. 935, 29 L. Ed. 89. The course of decisions cited renders the cases as to particular crimes of little value, but of those held to be infamous under the principle stated are, larceny; U. S. v. Fuller, 3 N. M. (Johns.) 367, 9 Pac. 597; Ex parte McClusky, 40 Fed. 71; assault with intent to kill; Ex parte Brown, 40 Fed. 81; selling liquors without paying a revenue tax; U. S. v. Johannesen, 35 Fed. 411; In re Mills, 135 U. S. 263, 10 Sup. Ct. 762, 34 L. Ed. 107; refusing to register voters; U. S. v. Cobb, 43 Fed. 570; counterfeiting United States securities; Ex parte Wilson, 114 U. S. 417, 5 Sup. Ct. 935, 29 L. Ed. 89; embezzlement and making false entries by an officer of a nutional bank; U. S. v. De Walt, 128 U. S. 393, 9 Sup. Ct. 111, 32 L. Ed. 485; Ex parte Bain, 121 U. S. 1, 7 Sup. Ct. 781, 30 L. Ed. 849; In re Classen, 140 U. S. 200, 11 Sup. Ct. 735, 35 L. Ed. 409. When a state authorizes prosecution by information, one accused of grand larceny before its admission as a state cannot be so prosecuted; State v. Kingsly, 10 Mont. 537, 26 Pac. 1066. See INFAMY; INDICTMENT; IN-FORM ATION.

> INFAMY. That state which is produced by the conviction of crime and the les of honor, which renders the infamous person incompetent as a witness, or juror.

> The loss of character or position which results from conviction of certain crimes, and which formerly involved disqualification as a witness and juror.

> When a man was convicted of an offence inconsistent with the common principles of honesty and humanity, the law considered his oath of no weight, and excluded his testimony as of too doubtful and suspicious & nature to be admitted in a court of justice to deprive another of life, liberty, or property: Bull. N. P. 291; County of Schuylkill v.

Brockius, 3 Wash. C. C. 99, Fed. Cas. No. 14,652.

To affect the credibility of a witness it may be shown that he has been convicted of felony; Clifford v. Fire-Proofing Co., 232 Ill. 150, 83 N. E. 448; but mere rumor of accusation of crime cannot be a basis for his impeachment; Sheppard v. State, 56 Tex. Cr. R. 604, 120 S. W. 446. One convicted of felony but not sentenced is a competent witness, although several days have passed since conviction and no motion for a new trial has been filed; Rice v. State, 50 Tex. Cr. R. 648, 100 S. W. 771.

The statutory abolition of this disqualification, see infra, has rendered the subject obsolete in England; Stark. Ev. (Sharsw. ed.) 118; and equally so in the United States as a question of evidence, but the constitutional guarantee against conviction of an infamous crime, otherwise than by indictment, has to a considerable extent involved the discussion of the common-law definition of such crimes. As to this branch of the subject, see Infamous Crime.

The crimes which at common law rendered a person incompetent were treason; 5 Mod. 16, 74; felony; Co. Litt. 6; 1 T. Raym. 369; larceny; Taylor v. State, 62 Ala. 164; even petit larceny at common law; 5 Mod. 75; Sylvester v. State, 71 Ala. 17; Burns v. Campbell, id. 271; but not if reduced to a misdemeanor; Barbour v. Com., 80 Va. 287; Welsh v. State, 3 Tex. App. 114; receiving stolen goods; Rohan v. Sawin, 5 Cush. (Mass.) 287; see Clee v. Seaman, 21 Mich. 290; all offences founded in fraud, and which come within the general notion of the crimen falsi of the Roman law; Leach 496; as perjury and forgery; Co. Litt. 6; Fost. 209; Poage v. State, 3 Ohio St. 229; piracy; 2 Rolle, Abr. 886; swindling, cheating; Fost. 209; barratry; 2 Salk. 690; conspiracy; 1 Leach 442; subornation of perjury; 2 G. & B. 145; suppression of testimony by bribery or by a conspiracy to procure the absence of a witness, or other conspiracy to accuse one of a crime and barratry; 1 Leach 442; bribing a witness to absent himself from a trial in order to get rid of his evidence; Fost. 208. From the decisions, Greenleaf deduces the rule "that the crimen falsi of the common law not only involves the charge of falsehood, but also is one which may injuriously affect the administration of justice, by the introduction of falsehood and fraud;" 1 Greenl. Ev. $ 373.

But the attempt to procure the absence of a witness, not amounting to a conspiracy; State v. Keyes, 8 Vt. 57, 30 Am. Dec. 450; keeping a gaming house; 1 R. & M. N. P. 270; a bawdy house; Deer v. State, 14 Mo. 348; adultery; Little v. Gibson, 39 N. H. 505; maliciously obstructing railroad cars; Com. v. Dame, 8 Cush. (Mass.) 384; deceits in false weights, etc.; 1 Greenl. Ev. § 373; false pretences; Fisher v. Ins. Co., 33 Fed. 544; Ritter v. Press Co., 68 Mo. 458; embezzlement under some conditions of the law; Schuylkill County v. Copley, 67 Pa. 386, 5 Am. Rep. 441; conspiracy to cheat and defraud creditors; Bickel's Ex'r v. Fasig's Adm'r, 33 Pa. 463; were held not infamous. The test has been said to be "whether or not the crime shows such depravity or such a disposition to pervert public justice in the courts as creates a violent presumption against the truthfulness of the offered witness,-the difficulty being in the application of this test." 1 Bish. New Cr. L. 974. By statute in England and in most of the states. the disqualification of infamy is removed, but a conviction may usually be proved to affect credibility; Com. v. Gorham, 99 Mass. 420; Donohue v. People, 56 N. Y. 208; Curtis v. Cochran, 50 N. H. 242. But the difference in statutory regulations is such as to preclude general statement and to require reference to the local law in particular cases.

In Alabama one convicted of an infamous crime cannot execute the office of executor, administrator, or guardian, and conviction extinguishes all private trusts not susceptible of delegation, and also disqualifies him from holding office or voting; Bibb v. State, 83 Ala. 84, 3 South. 711. Other disabilities have been created by statute in other states. See Barker v. People, 3 Cow. (N. Y.) 686, 15 Am. Dec. 322.

As the law was administered prior to the statutory removal of the disability to testify, it was the crime not the punishment which rendered the offender unworthy of belief; 1 Phill. Ev. 25; but that is not now recognized as the true test by which to determine what, in the sense of the American constitutional law, is an infamous crime. See that title.

In order to incapacitate the party the judgment must have been pronounced by a court of competent jurisdiction; 2 Stark. 183; 1 Sid. 51. The disqualification came only from the final judgment of the court; Bull. N. P. 392; State v. D'Amery, 48 Me. 327; Blaufus v. People, 69 N. Y. 107, 25 Am. Rep. 148; and not from the crime; State v. Free, 1 McMull. (S. C.) 494; or mere conviction, or the infamous nature of the punishment; 1 Bish. New Cr. L. § 975. The proof of the crime was by the record of conviction; Com. v. Quin, 5 Gray (Mass.) 478.

It has been held that a conviction of an infamous crime in another country, or another of the United States, does not render the witness incompetent on the ground of infamy; Com. v. Green, 17 Mass. 515; State v. Landrum, 127 Mo. App. 653, 106 S. W. 1111; contra, State v. Candler, 170 N. C. 393; though this doctrine appears to be at variance with the opinions entertained by foreign jurists, who maintain that the state or condition of a person in the place of his domicil accompanies him everywhere; Story, Confl. Laws § 620, and the authorities there cited; Fœlix, Traité de Droit Intern, Privé 31; Merlin, Répert. Loi, 6, n. 6. In some states such a record has the same effect as a domestic one; State v. Foley, 15 Nev. 64, 37 Am. Rep. 458; Chase v. Blodgett, 10 N. H. 22; in some it is admitted only on the question of credibility; Com. v. Knapp, 9 Pick. (Mass.) 496, 20 Am. Dec. 491; and again it has been held that the full faith and credit, required to be given to records of other states, does not extend to enforcing in one state personal disabilities imposed upon a person convicted of crime in another state; Sims v. Sims, 75 N. Y. 466; reversing Sims v. Sims, 12 Hun (N. Y.) 231; and expressly disapproving Chase v. Blodgett, 10 N. H. 24 and State v. Candler, 10 N. C. 393. question is to be determined by the law of the forum, and therefore the record should set forth a copy of the indictment; 9 Wis. 140. In some states the record is rejected altogether; Campbell v. State, 23 Ala. 44. See State v. Ridgely, 2 Harr. & McH. (Md.) 120, 1 Am. Dec. 372; State v. Harston, 63 N. C. 294.

The competency of such a witness was restored by pardon; U. S. v. Rutherford, 2 Cra. C. C. 528, Fed. Cas. No. 16,210; State v. Blaisdell, 33 N. H. 388; Yarborough v. State, 41 Ala. 405; unless the disability is annexed to the conviction, by statute; Foreman v. Baldwin, 24 Ill. 298; whether granted before sentence; Cummings v. Missouri, 4 Wall. (U. S.) 332, 18 L. Ed. 356; or after it has been complied with; Hoffman v. Coster, 2 Whart. (Pa.) 453. See Boyd v. U. S., 142 U. S. 450, 12 Sup. Ct. 292, 35 L. Ed. 1077; Martin v. State, 21 Tex. App. 1, 17 S. W. 430. But the completion of the sentence does not remove the disability; U.S. v. Brown, 4 Cra. C. C. 607, Fed. Cas. No. 14,661; State v. Benoit, 16 La. Ann. 273; contra, State v. Connor, 7 La. Ann. 379. A pardon does remove it even if it contains a clause declaring that it is intended to relieve from imprisonment and not from legal disabilities incident to conviction, such clause being held repugnant; People v. Pease, 3 Johns. Cas. (N. Y.) 333; but after a pardon the conviction is admissible to affect credibility; Baum v. Clause, 5 Hill (N. Y.) 196; Curtis v. Cochran, 50 N. H. 242.

The judgment for an infamous crime, even for perjury, did not preclude the party from making an affidavit with a view to his own defence; 2 Stra. 1148; 1 Greenl. Ev. § 374. He might, for instance, make an affidavit in relation to the irregularity of a judgment in a cause in which he was a party; for otherwise he would be without a remedy. But the rule was confined to defence; and he could not, at common law, be heard upon oath as complainant; 2 Salk. 461. When the witness became incompetent from infamy of character, the effect was the same as if he were dead; if he had attested any instrument as a witness, previous to his conviction, evidence might be given of his handwriting; 2 Stra. 833; Stark. Ev. pt. 2, § 193, pt. 4, p. 723.

A person infamous cannot be a juror, if indeed the disqualification of infamy does not extend to more crimes in jurors than in witnesses; 1 Bish. New Cr. L. § 977; 1 Co. Litt. 6 b.

See Infamous Crime; Crimen Falsi.

INFANGTHEF, INFANGENETHEF. The right of the lord of the manor to sit in judgment on the thief caught on his own land.

The jurisdictional powers granted in the charters of the thirteenth century frequently included this right, which extended to the hanging of the thief so caught, and, for this purpose, the manorial gallows was erected on the land of the lord. The privilege of utfangenethef, more rarely given, conferred the right of hanging the thief, wherever caught, if he had upon his person the stolen goods, and if he were prosecuted by the loser of the goods; 1 Poll. & Maitl. 564; Holdsw. Hist. E. L. 11.

INFANS. In the Civil Law. A child under the age of seven years; so called "quasi impos fandi" (as not having the faculty of speech). Cod. Theodos. 8, 18, 8.

INFANT. One who is not of full age. In England and this country one under the age of twenty-one years. Co. Litt. 171. Under the common law full age was attained at twenty-one, and under the civil law at twenty-five; 1 Bla. Com. 463. This period is arbitrary and is fixed by statute. In the United States the common-law period has been generally adopted. In Louisiana and Texas the age of majority was twenty-one years as well under the early Spanish laws as under the common law; Means v. Robinson, 7 Tex. 502.

But he is reputed to be twenty-one years old, or of full age, the first instant of the last day of the twenty-first year next before the anniversary of his birth; because, according to the civil computation of time, which differs from the natural computation, the last day having commenced, it is considered as ended. Savigny, Dr. Rom. § 182; Wells v. Wells, 6 Ind. 447. Accordingly, a man is held entitled to vote on the day before the twenty-first anniversary of his birth; State v. Clarke, 3 Harring. (Del.) 557; Hamilin v. Stevenson, 4 Dana (Ky.) 597. See Age.

If, for example, a person were born at any hour of the first day of January, 1810 (even a few minutes before twelve o'clock of the night of that day), he would be of full age at the first instant of the thirty-first of December, 1830, although nearly forty-eight hours before he had actually attained the full age of twenty-one years, according to years, days, hours, and minutes, because there is in this case no fraction of a day; 1 Sid. 162; 1 Kebl. 589; 1 Salk. 44, 625; Raym. 1094; 1 Bla. Com. 463, 464;

1 Lilly, Reg. 57; tomyns, Dig. Enfant (A); Savigny, Dr. Rom. §§ 383, 384; 2 Kent 233. See AGE; Fraction of A Day.

A curious case occurred in England of a young lady who was born after the house-clock had struck while the parish clock was striking, and before St. Paul's had begun to strike, twelve, on the night of the fourth and fifth of January, 1805; the question was whether she was born on the fourth or fifth of January. Coventry gives it as his opinion that she was born on the fourth because the house-clock does not regulate anything but domestic affairs, that the parochial clock is much better evidence, and that a metropolitan clock ought to be received with "implicit acquiescence." Coventry, Ev. 182. It is conceived that this can only be prima facie; because if the facts were otherwise, and the parochial and metropolitan clocks should both have been wrong, they would undoubtedly have had no effect in ascertaining the age of the child.

The sex makes no difference at common law; a woman is, therefore, an infant until she has attained the age of twenty-one years; Co. Litt. 161. It is otherwise, however, in some of the United States; Stevenson v. Westfall, 18 Ill. 209; Develin v. Riggsbee, 4 Ind. 464. In Idaho, act 1864, females come of age at the age of eighteen. The same rule exists in Vermont, Ohio, Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota, Kansas, Nebraska, Maryland, Missouri, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Oregon, Nevada, and Washington; see 2 Kent 233 note; Stevenson v. Westfall, 18 Ill. 209; Dent v. Cock, 65 Ga. 400; Sparhawk v. Buell's Adm'r, 9 Vt. 41; Cogel v. Raph, 24 Minn. 194; Parker v. Starr, 21 Neb. 680, 33 N. W. 424; Jackson v. Allen, 4 Colo. 263.

Before arriving at full age, an infant may do many acts. A male at fourteen is of discretion, and may consent to marry; and at that age he may disagree to and annul a marriage he may before that time have contracted; he may then choose a guardian, and if his discretion be proved, may, at common law, make a will of his personal estate; he may act as executor at the age of seventeen years; he may incur a liability in equity if be actually represented himself to be of full age and the party dealing with him was misled; Pollock, Contr. 81; he cannot be adjudicated a bankrupt in the absence of an express representation to the creditor that he was of full age; id. 82.

On arriving at full age men are sui juris for all private purposes and also may vote and hold office except in cases especially otherwise provided for by law. See Age.

A female at seven may be betrothed or given in marriage; at nine she is entitled to dower; at twelve she may consent or disagree to marriage; and, at common law, at seventeen she may act as executrix. At full age they may exercise all rights which belong to their sex. At common law the age of puberty was as above stated, fourteen for males and twelve for females, and this was taken from the civil law; Inst. 1. 22; Bla. Com. 436. While this may have been fixed in the civil law with due regard to natural development in the climate where that law had its origin, the fact that it is not so in countries governed by the common law is recognized by statutes in many states changing the age of consent to marriage.

Considerable changes of the common law have taken place in many of the states. In New York and several other states an infant is now deemed competent to be an executor; in Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, and other states, if an infant is named as executor in the will, administration with the will annexed will be granted during his minority, unless there shall be another executor who shall except, when the minor on arriving at full age may be admitted as joint executor; Tyler, Inf. & Cov. 133.

As the services of an infant are held in law to belong to his parent, it is the general rule that the infant cannot recover damages for their loss by reason of personal injury during minority; Clark Mile-End Spool Cotton Co. v. Shaffery, 58 N. J. L. 229, 33 Atl. 284; Farrar v. Wheeler, 145 Fed. 482, 75 C. C. A. 386; Comer v. Lumber Co., 59 W. Va. 688, 53 S. E. 906, 8 Ann. Cas. 1105, 6 L. R. A. (N. S.) 552, and note, where the cases are collected at large. But where a child has been abandoned by his father at the age of nine years, he is emancipated and the father has lost the right to his services and earnings; Swift & Co. v. Johnson, 138 Fed. 867, 71 C. C. A. 619, 1 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1161; hence in a statutory action for a son's death for the sole benefit of the father, he could recover only nominal damages.

As a general rule the law of the domicil of birth determines the age of majority; 2 Kent 233, where are also stated some qualifications of the rule. See DOMICIL.

In general, an infant is not bound by his contracts, unless to supply him necessaries; Bacon, Abr. Infancy, etc. (I 3); 9 Viner, Abr. 391; 1 Comyns, Contr. 150, 151; Penrose v. Curren, 3 Rawle (Pa.) 351, 24 Am. Dec. 356; but see Vasse v. Smith, 6 Cra. (U. S.) 226, 3 L. Ed. 207; Horner v. Thwing, 3 Pick. (Mass.) 492; Vance v. Wold, 1 N. & McC. (S. C.) 197, 9 Am. Dec. 683; or unless, by some legislative provision, he is empowered to enter into a contract; as, with the consent of his parent or guardian, to put himself apprentice, or enlist in the service of the United States; Com. v. Murray, 4 Binn. (Pa.) 487, 5 Am. Dec. 412; McDonald v. Montague, 30 Vt. 357; but a contract of enlistment is not voidable like other contracts of an infant; In re Morrissey, 137 U. S. 157, 11 Sup. Ct. 57, 34 L. Ed. 644. See Enlistment. A dwelling-house is not within the definition of necessaries, so as to render an infant liable on a contract for its erection; Allen v. Lardner, 78 Hun 603, 29 N. Y. Supp. 213.

At common law, contracts for articles other than necessaries made by an infant, after full age might be ratified by him, and would then become in all respects binding. In England Lord Tenterden's Act.

9 Geo. IV. c. 14, $ 5, required the ratification to be in writing. But now by the Infants' Relief Act, 1874, 37 & 38 Vict. c. 62, "All contracts entered into by infants for the repayment of money lent, or to be lent, or for goods supplied, or to be supplied (other than contracts for necessaries), and all accounts stated shall be absolutely void," and "no action shall be brought whereby to charge any person upon any promise made after full age to pay any debt contracted during infancy, or upon any ratification made after full age of any promise or contract made during infancy, whether there shall or shall not be any new consideration for such promise or ratification after full age."

Contracts made with him are merely voidable; Holmes v. Rice, 45 Mich. 142, 7 N. W. 772; and may be enforced or avoided by him on his coming of age; Vaughan v. Parr, 20 Ark. 600; New Hampshire Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v. Noyes, 32 N. H. 345; Peterson v. Laik, 24 Mo. 541, 69 Am. Dec. 441; Phipps v. Phipps, 39 Kan. 495, 18 Pac. 707; but must be avoided within a reasonable time; Mustard v. Wohlford's Heirs, 15 Gratt. (Va.) 329, 76 Am. Dec. 209; Palmer v. Miller, 25 Barb. (N. Y.) 399; Dolph v. Hand, 156 Pa. 91, 27 Atl. 114, 36 Am. St. Rep. 25. See Mette v. Feltgen, 148 Ill. 357, 36 N. E. 81. this general rule there may be an exception in case of contracts for necessaries; because these are for his benefit. See NECESSARIES. Elrod v. Myers, 2 Head (Tenn.) 33; Sinklear v. Emert, 18 Ill. 63; Wilhelm v. Hardman, 13 Md. 140; New Hampshire Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v. Noyes, 32 N. H. 345; Merriam v. Cunningham, 11 Cush. (Mass.) 40; Sams v. Stockton, 14 B. Monr. (Ky.) 232; but an infant is not liable upon a bill of exchange at the suit of an indorsee of the bill, although it was accepted for the price of necessaries; [1891] 1 Q. B. 413; bills and notes of an infant, whether negotiable or not, are voidable; Fant v. Cathcart, 8 Ala. 725; State v. Plaisted, 43 N. H. 413; Boody v. McKenney, 23 Me. 517. The privilege of avoiding a contract on account of infancy is strictly personal to the infant, and no one can take advantage of it but himself; Voorhees v. Wait, 15 N. J. L. 343; Smith v. Reid, 51 N. C. 494; Campbell v. Wilson, 23 Tex. 252, 76 Am. Dec. 67; Jones v. Butler, 30 Barb. (N. Y.) 641; Alsworth v. Cordtz, 31 Miss. 32; Hooper v. Payne, 94 Ala. 223, 10 South. 431. See Baldwin v. Rosier, 48 Fed. 810. When the contract has been performed, and it is such as he would be compellable by law to perform, it will bind him; Co. Litt. 172 a. And all the acts of an infant which do not touch his interest, but take effect from an authority which he has been trusted to execute, are binding; 3 Burr. 1794; Fonbl. Eq. b. 1, c. 2, § 5, note c. The contracts of an infant, when not intrinsically illegal, are voidable, not void, and may be ratified by him upon arriving at maturity; Kendrick v. Neisz, 17 Colo. 506, 30 Pac. 245; Holmes v. Rice, 45 Mich. 142, 7 N. W. 772; but not during his 86 N. W. 147, 86 Am. St. Rep. 567; contra, Stafford v. Roof, 9 Cow. (N. Y.) 626.

He may still avoid the contract even if he has spent the consideration; New York Building Loan Banking Co. v. Fisher, 23 App. Div. 363, 48 N. Y. Supp. 152; Price v. Furman, 27 Vt. 268, 65 Am. Dec. 194; Eureka Co. v. Edwards, 71 Ala. 248, 46 Am. Rep. 314; Walsh v. Young, 110 Mass. 396; contra, Johnson v. Ins. Co., 56 Minn. 365, 57 N. W. 934, 59 N. W. 992, 26 L. R. A. 187, 45 Am. St. Rep. 473; L. R. 24 Q. B. 166; but if he still has the consideration in specie he must return it as a prerequisite to a disaffirmance; Dickerson v. Gordon, 52 Hun 614, 5 N. Y. Supp. 310; Harvey v. Briggs, 68 Miss. 60, 8 South. 274, 10 L. R. A. 62; Craig v. Van Bebber, 100 Mo. 584, 13 S. W. 906, 18 Am. St. Rep. 569; or, if he has received consideration for a release, it may be credited by the jury as against recovery, if he sues before his majority; Worthy v. Oil Mill, 77 S. C. 69, 57 S. E. 634, 11 L. R. A. (N. S.) 690, 12 Ann. Cas. 688, and note. The other party need not be placed in statu quo; Dube v. Beaudry, 150 Mass. 448, 23 N. E. 222, 6 L. R. A. 146, 15 Am. St. Rep. 228; Morse v. Ely, 154 Mass. 458, 28 N. E. 577, 26 Am. St. Rep. 263; Dawson v. Helmes, 30 Minn. 107, 14 N. W. 462; Whitcomb v. Joslyn, 51 Vt. 79, 31 Am. Rep. 678. An infant has been enjoined from breach of contract; Mutual Milk & Cream Co. v. Prigge, 112 App. Div. 652, 98 N. Y. Supp. 458; [1892] 3 Ch. 502; but these decisions have been criticized as indefensible 20 Harv. L. Rev. 64. The title to chattels purchased by an infant passes to him and his repudiation of the contract does not revest it in the vendor; Lamkin & Foster v. Le Doux. 101 Me. 581, 64 Atl. 1048, 8 L. R. A. (N. S.) 104. and note.

The contract cannot be avoided by an adult with whom the infant deals; Gates v. Davenport, 29 Barb. (N. Y.) 160; Johnson v. Rockwell, 12 Ind. 76; Warwick v. Cooper, 5 Sneed (Tenn.) 659; Monaghan v. Ins. Co., 53 Mich. 238, 18 N. W. 797; Patterson v. Lippincott, 47 N. J. L. 457, 1 Atl. 506, 54 Am. Rep. 178; Towle v. Dresser, 73 Me. 252; or by a third person in a collateral proceeding; Doane v. Covel, 56 Me. 527; Beardsley v. Hotchkiss, 96 N. Y. 201; Winchester v. Thayer, 129 Mass. 129. See Thaw v. Ritchie, 136 U. S. 519, 10 Sup. Ct. 1037, 34 L. Ed. 531.

it will bind him; Co. Litt. 172 a. And all the acts of an infant which do not touch his interest, but take effect from an authority which he has been trusted to execute, are binding; 3 Burr. 1794; Fonbl. Eq. b. 1, c. 2, § 5, note c. The contracts of an infant, when not intrinsically illegal, are voidable, not void, and may be ratified by him upon arriving at maturity; Kendrick v. Neisz, 17 Colo. 506, 30 Pac. 245; Holmes v. Rice, 45 Mich. 142, 7 N. W. 772; but not during his minority; Lansing v. R. Co., 126 Mich. 663, N. E. 265, 7 Am. St. Rep. 418; Millsaps v. Estes, 137 N. C. 535, 50 S. E. 227, 70 L. R. A. 170, 107 Am. St. Rep. 496; Kirkham v. Wheeler-Osgood Co., 39 Wash. 415, 81 Pac. 869, 4 Ann. Cas. 532; Conrad v. Lane, 26 Minn. 389, 4 N. W. 695, 37 Am. Rep. 412 and note; Alt v. Graff, 65 Minn. 191, 68 N. W. 9; Whitcomb v. Joslyn, 51 Vt. 79, 31 Am. Rep. 678; Carolina Interstate Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Black, 119 N. C. 329, 25 S. E. 975; Tobin v. Spann, 85 Ark. 556, 109 S. W. 534, 16 L. R. A. (N. S.) 672; Sims v. Everhardt, 102 U. S. 313, 26 L. Ed. 87.

The rule that an infant is not liable in tort for misrepresentation in obtaining a contract which he afterwards repudiates is generally stated to have been laid down in Johnson v. Pye, 1 Sid. 258, 1 Keb. 905, 914, 1 Lev. 169, in only one of which reports is the decision to that effect, and the contrary is stated by high early authorities; Com. Dig. Actions on the case for deceit, A. 10; Bac. Abr. Infancy I. 3. But the doctrine seems to be established in England; 9 Exch. 422 (where Johnson v. Pye was recognized as authority); 1 B. & S. 836; 12 C. B. (N. S.) 272; 18 Ch. D. 109. In this country there was early a disposition to repudiate the rule; Badger v. Phinney, 15 Mass. 359, 8 Am. Dec. 105; Walker v. Davis, 1 Gray (Mass.) 506 (the authority of which cases, however, was not controlling in Slayton v. Barry, 175 Mass. 513, 56 N. E. 574, 49 L. R. A. 560, 78 Am. St. Rep. 510); Fitts v. Hall, 9 N. H. 441, where Parker, C. J., in a much discussed opinion, expressly disregarded Johnson v. Pye, as does Judge Cowen in Wallace v. Morss, 5 Hill (N. Y.) 391, and Judge Daly in Eckstein v. Frank, 1 Daly (N. Y.) 335 (the latter disapproving an intermediate case in Brown v. McClune, 5 Sandf. [N. Y.] 224), followed in Schunemann v. Paradise, 46 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 426; and the infant was held liable for fraud though a contract obtained by him was void; Gaunt v. Taylor, 60 Hun 586, 15 N. Y. Supp. 589. To the same effect are Yeager v. Knight, 60 Miss. 730; Rice v. Boyer, 108 Ind. 472, 9 N. E. 420, 58 Am. Rep. 53; Neff v. Landis, 110 Pa. 204, 1 Atl. 177; Hughes v. Gallans, 10 Phila. 618; New York Bldg. Loan Banking Co. v. Fisher, 20 Misc. 242, 45 N. Y. Supp. 795.

In equity a false representation as to his age estops an infant from pleading his infancy; Charles v. Hastedt, 51 N. J. Eq. 171, 26 Atl. 564; Ferguson v. Bobo, 54 Miss. 121; Commander v. Brazil, 88 Miss. 668, 41 South. 497, 9 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1117; Ingram v. Ison, 80 S. W. 787, 26 Ky. L. Rep. 48; but not the mere failure to tell his age; Baker v. Stone, 136 Mass. 405; Davidson v. Young, 38 III. 145. Under the Spanish law, governing contracts made and acts done in Louisiana and Texas before the introduction of the Rep. 676; Alvey v. Reed, 115 Ind. 148, 17 | to be of age and from his person appeared to be so, any contract with him was valid; Means v. Robinson, 7 Tex. 502, 513; contra, Kilgore v. Jordan, 17 Tex. 341. An infant cannot retain the benefits of his contract, and thus affirm it, after becoming of age, and yet plead infancy to avoid the payment of the purchase money; Henry v. Root, 33 N. Y. 526; Utermehle v. McGreal, 1 App. D. C. 359; but see Morse v. Ely, 154 Mass. 458, 28 N. E. 577, 26 Am. St. Rep. 263; Bloomer v. Nolan, 36 Neb. 51, 53 N. W. 1039, 38 Am. St. Rep. 690.

A conveyance of land by a minor without consideration is void; Robinson v. Coulter, 90 Tenn. 705, 18 S. W. 250, 25 Am. St. Rep. 708. The deed of an infant is held not void but voidable only; Vallandingham v. Johnson, 85 Ky. 288, 3 S. W. 173; and so is a mortgage; Skinner v. Maxwell, 66 N. C. 45; State v. Plaisted, 43 N. H. 413; Monumental Bldg. Ass'n No. 2 v. Herman, 33 Md. 128; but the deed may be ratified after reaching his majority, either expressly or impliedly; Darraugh v. Blackford, 84 Va. 509, 5 S. E. 542; but see Hill v. Nelms, 86 Ala. 442, 5 South, 796; Hoffert v. Miller, 86 Ky. 572, 6 S. W. 447; and not before; Sims v. Everhardt, 102 U. S. 300, 26 L. Ed. 87.

A ward of chancery who married without consent was imprisoned for contempt; [1909] 2 Ch. 260. The filing of a bill against an infant or paying into court funds settled upon an infant constitutes him a ward of chancery; 3 K. & G. 213.

An infant may disaffirm a marriage settlement executed by her, after the disability of infancy and coverture is removed; Smith v. Smith's Ex'r, 107 Va. 112, 57 S. E. 577, 122 Am. St. Rep. 831, 12 Ann. Cas. 857, 12 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1185, where the English and American authorities are collected in the opinion and note.

It is frequently held that an infant is not competent to appoint an agent; Holden v. Curry, 85 Wis. 504, 55 N. W. 965; Ware v. Cartledge, 24 Ala. 622, 60 Am. Dec. 489; Robbins v. Mount, 27 N. Y. Super. Ct. 553; Trueblood v. Trueblood. 8 Ind. 195, 65 Am. Dec. 756; Turner v. Bondalier, 31 Mo. App. 582; Burns v. Smith, 29 Ind. App. 181, 64 N. E. 91, 94 Am. St. Rep. 268; Poston v. Williams, 99 Mo. App. 513, 73 S. W. 1099; 16 M. & W. 778; to buy beer for him; State v. Field, 139 Mo. App. 20, 119 S. W. 499; nor can he execute a power of attorney; 2 Edm. Sel. Cas. 132; Glass v. Glass, 76 Ala. 368; Pickler v. State, 18 Ind. 266 (where it is said it would be "probably void"); nor can he legally appoint an attorney to appear for and defend him in an action; Fuller v. Smith, 49 Vt. 253; but on the other hand there are cases which hold that he can create an agency, at least so far that acts done under it are not void but voidable; Coursolle v. Weycommon law, if a minor represented himself | erhauser, 69 Minn. 328, 72 N. W. 697; Hardy

v. Waters, 38 Me. 450. An infant may be an | ceived. 1 Hale, Pl. Cr. 25-29. The law asagent and his agency may be created by parol; Talbot v. Bowen, 1 A. K. Marsh. (Ky.) 436, 10 Am. Dec. 747; or a trustee; Des Moines Ins. Co. v. McIntire, 99 Ia. 50, 68 N. W. 565. A service by one as deputy sheriff is good; Irving v. Edrington, 41 La. Ann. 671, 6 South. 177; State v. Toland, 36 S. C. 515, 15 S. E. 599; contra, Gilson v. Kuenert, 15 S. D. 291, 89 N. W. 472; or he may be a notary; U. S. v. Bixby, 9 Fed. 78; or an appraiser; White v. Land Co., 82 S. W. 571, 26 Ky. L. Rep. 775; id., 83 S. W. 628, 26 Ky. L. Rep. 1235; or clerk of a militia company; In re Dewey, 11 Pick. (Mass.) 265; or a deputy clerk to take acknowledgments; Talbott's Devisees v. Hooser, 75 Ky. 408.

INFANT

The property of an infant is not liable to a mechanic's lien for material purchased by him during infancy; Bloomer v. Nolan, 36 Neb. 51, 53 N. W. 1039, 38 Am. St. Rep. 690. When avoiding an executory contract relating to his personal property, he need not refund the money received, where he has squandered it; Petrie v. Williams, 68 Hun 589, 23 N. Y. Supp. 237.

The protection which the law gives an infant is to operate as a shield to him, to protect him from improvident contracts, but not as a sword to do injury to others; Clark v. Tate, 7 Mont. 171, 14 Pac. 761. An infant is, therefore, responsible for his torts, as for slander, trespass, and the like; Conklin v. Thompson, 29 Barb. (N. Y.) 218; Baxter v. Bush, 29 Vt. 465, 70 Am. Dec. 429; Wheeler & Wilson Mfg. Co. v. Jacobs, 2 Misc. 236, 21 N. Y. Supp. 1006; but he cannot be made responsible in an action ex delicto, where the cause arose on a contract; Penrose v. Curren, 3 Rawle (Pa.) 351, 24 Am. Dec. 356; Andrews v. Woodmansee, 15 Wend. (N. Y.) 233; Fitts v. Hall, 9 N. H. 441; Humphrey v. Douglass, 10 Vt. 71, 33 Am. Dec. 177; Wallace v. Morss, 5 Hill (N. Y.) 391; Lowery v. Cate, 108 Tenn. 54, 64 S. W. 1068, 57 L. R. A. 673, 91 Am. St. Rep. 744; 38 Am. L. Rev. 371, where the cases are collected. But see Vasse v. Smith, 6 Cra. (U. S.) 226, 3 L. Ed. 207; Badger v. Phinney, 15 Mass. 359, 8 Am. Dec. 105; Peigne v. Sutcliffe, 4 McCord (S. C.) 387, 17 Am. Dec. 756. It is well settled that an infant bailee of a horse is liable in an action ex delicto for every tortious wilful act causing injury or death to the horse, the same as though he were an adult; Campbell v. Stakes, 2 Wend. (N. Y.) 137, 19 Am. Dec. 561; Eaton v. Hill, 50 N. H. 235, 9 Am. Rep. 189; Field, Inf. 32.

With regard to the responsibility of infants for crimes, the rule is that no infant within the age of seven years can be guilty of felony or be punished for any capital offence; for within that age an infant is, by presumption of law, doli incapax and cannot be endowed with any discretion; and against this presumption no averment shall be resumes that this legal incapacity ceases when the infant attains the age of fourteen years; id.; but subjects this assumption to the effect of proof; State v. Learnard, 41 Vt. 585. Between the age of seven and fourteen years an infant is deemed prima facie to be doli incapax; but in this case the maxim applies, malitia supplet ætatem: malice supplies the want of mature years; 1 Russ. Cri. 2, 3; Godfrey v. State, 31 Ala. 323, 70 Am. Dec. 494; State v. Nickleson, 45 La. Ann. 1172, 14 South. 134; and the question whether such a child is capable of committing an assault with intent to murder, is for the jury: McCormack v. State, 102 Ala. 156, 15 South. 438. See State v. Milholland, 89 Ia. 5, 56 N. W. 403; 1 Bishop, N. Cr. L. § 368. The reports abound with cases where clear evidence of criminal consciousness was shown, and of very marked atrocity, from the age of nine years and upward; 1 Russ. Cr. 2-6; 1 Hale, Pl. Cr. 25-29. See Discretion. also 36 L. R. A. 196, note, for English and American authorities on criminal capacity of children with respect to different crimes.

The Court of Chancery has a general jurisdiction over the persons and property of infants which is, in this country, usually vested in a court specially designated by statute. This equitable care and oversight is very wide; U. S. v. Morse, 218 U. S. 493, 31 Sup. Ct. 37, 54 L. Ed. 1123, 21 Ann. Cas. 782; and is exercised over them as infants without regard to property, and whether or not they are wards of court; [1892] 2 Ch. 496; and has been exercised in the removal of a guardian appointed by the mother after the father's death, for the welfare of the child; id.; or excluding the father from guardianship. if an improper person; 2 Bligh (N. S.) 124; or removing a guardian however appointed; Cowls v. Cowls, 3 Gilman (Ill.) 435, 44 Am. Dec. 708; Miner v. Miner, 11 Ill. 43; or providing that the child shall be brought up in the father's religion, even if the mother's is different; L. R. 6 Ch. 544; or changing the religion in which he was to be brought up, from that of the father, on the application of the child who was a ward of the court aged thirteen; [1907] 2 Ch. 557, C. A.; the paramount duty of the court being to consult the welfare of the child as above religious distinctions and parental wishes; 8 De G. M. & G. 760, 771; [1893] 1 Ch. 143, 148.

The income of a trust fund for the benefit of an infant may be applied to his maintenance or education with the consent of other interested persons; Pitts v. Trust Co., 21 R. I. 544, 45 Atl. 553, 48 L. R. A. 783, 79 Am. St. Rep. 821; 5 Ves. 195; 11 id. 604; where there is no other provision practicable; 1 Cr. & Ph. 317; and this may be without, or in opposition to, provisions of the will; 1 Madd. 253; 5 Ves. 195.

Infant defendants are not properly before the court when not served with summons, and there is no appointment of a guardian ad litem to represent them; Carrigan v. Drake, 36 S. C. 354, 15 S. E. 339. Where infant defendants have no special or separate defence, no separate answer is necessary, but joinder in the general answer of defendants is sufficient; Western Lumber Co. v. Phillips, 94 Cal. 54, 29 Pac. 328. See GUARDIAN AD LITEM.

Not only does the state exercise oversight and control over the person and property of infants, but the constitutional guarantees of personal liberty, trial by jury and the like, including those secured by the fourteenth amendment of the federal constitution are generally held not impaired by statutes providing for investigation or care of infants either as delinquents or in the absence or default of natural guardians. Such decisions have been rendered in cases of the commitment of delinquent children to reformatory institutions; Ex parte Crouse, 4 Whart. (Pa.) 9; Com. v. Fisher, 213 Pa. 48, 62 Atl. 198, 5 Ann. Cas. 92; Reynolds v. Howe, 51 Conn. 472; Rule v. Geddes, 23 App. D. C. 31; Ex parte Ah Peen, 51 Cal. 280; State v. Children's Home Society, 10 N. D. 493, 88 N. W. 273; Wilkison v. Board of Children's Guardians, 158 Ind. 1, 62 N. E. 481; Roth v. House of Refuge, 31 Md. 329; Milwaukee Industrial School v. Supervisors of Milwaukee County, 40 Wis. 328, 22 Am. Rep. 702; but when the commitment is penal in its nature and not merely reformatory or for care, education, etc., it has been held that there must be some sort of trial and conviction: State v. Ray, 63 N. H. 406, 56 Am. Rep. 529; People v. Turner, 55 Ill. 280, 8 Am. Rep. 645 (though a statute providing less summary proceedings was held constitutional; In re Ferrier, 103 Ill. 367, 43 Am. Rep. 10; County of McLean v. Humphreys, 104 Ill. 378).

If a parent or guardian deems the commitment to be an infringement of his rights, he has his remedy by a proper proceeding; In re Sharp, 15 Idaho 120, 96 Pac. 563, 18 L. R. A. (N. S.) 886, where the general subject is discussed in the opinion and a note classifying the cases.

The commitment of a destitute child to a charitable institution at the public expense is not a criminal proceeding, and on being satisfied that the parents have reformed and become able to care for the child, the power of the chancery court to intervene and restore to them the custody of the child is limited only by the necessities of the case, having due regard to the welfare of the infant; In re Knowack, 158 N. Y. 482, 53 N. E. 676, 44 L. R. A. 699.

As to the rights of counsel respecting an infant's suit, see Attorney; as to infant's right of action for death of parent, see proceedings, see Divorce; as to enlistment of infants, see Enlistment.

And see generally as to the liability of an infant who misrepresents his age, 8 Y. L. J. 235; 16 id. 56, where the cases are collected. See CHILD; AGE; EN VENTRE SA MÈRE; BAS-TARD; ADOPTION; ELECTION OF RIGHTS AND REMEDIES; RELIGIOUS EDUCATION; DISCRE-

INFANTICIDE. In Medical Jurisprudence. The murder of a new-born infant. It is thus distinguishable from abortion and fæticide, which are limited to the destruction of the life of the fætus in utero.

The crime of infanticide can be committed only after the child is wholly born; 5 C. & P. 329; 6 id. 349. But the destruction of a child en ventre sa mère is a high misdemeanor: 1 Bla. Com. 129. See 2 C. & K. 784: 7 C. & P. 850.

This question involves an inquiry, first, into the signs of maturity, the data for which are—the length and weight of the fœtus, the relative position of the centre of its body, the proportional development of its several parts as compared with each other, especially of the head as compared with the rest of the body, the degree of growth of the hair and nails, the condition of the skin, the presence or absence of the membrana pupillaris, and in the male the descent or non-descent of the testi-cles; Dean, Med. Jur. 140; Tayl. Med. Jur. 534. Second, was it born alive? The second point pre-sents an inquiry of great interest both to the legal and medical professions and to the community at large. In the absence of all direct proof, what organic facts proclaim the existence of life subse-quent to birth? These facts are derived principally from the circulatory and respiratory systems. From the former the proofs are gathered-from the character of the blood, that which is purely feetal being wholly dark, like venous blood, and forming coagula much less firm and solid than that which has been subjected to the process of respiration. From the condition of the heart and blood-vessels. The circulation anterior and subsequent to birth must necessarily be entirely different. That anterior, by means of the fœtal openings,-the foramen ovale, the ductus arteriosus, and the ductus venosus,-is enabled to perform its circuit without sending the entire mass of the blood to the lungs for the purpose of oxygenation. When the extra-uterine life commences, and the double circulation is es-tablished, these openings usually close; so that their closure is considered probable evidence of life subsequent to birth; 1 Beck, Med. Jur. 478; Dean, Med. Jur. 142. From the difference in the distribution of the blood in the different organs of the body. The two organs in which this difference is most perceptible are the liver and the lungs,—especially the latter. The circulation of the whole mass of the blood through the lungs distends and fills them with blood, so that their relative weight will be nearly doubled, and any incision into them will be followed by a free effusion.

From the respiratory system proofs of life sub-sequent to birth are derived. From the thorax: From the thorax: its size, capacity, and arch are increased by respiration. From the lungs: they are increased in size and volume, are projected forward, become rounded and obtuse, of a pinkish-red hue, and their density is inversely as their volume; Dean, Med. Jur. 149 et seq. The fact of the specific gravity of the lungs being diminished in proportion to their diminution in density gives rise to a celebrated test,—the hydrostatic,—the relative weight of the lungs with water; 1 Beck, Med. Jur. 459 et seq. The rule is, that lungs which have not respired are specifically DEATH; as to custody of infants in divorce heavier than water, and if placed within it will sink to the bottom of the vessel. If they have re-spired, their increase in volume and decrease in density render them specifically lighter than water, and when placed within it they will float. There are several objections to the sufficiency of this test; for example lungs which have never respired may become so distended with putrefactive gases as to float, and, on the other hand, lungs which have respired may be the seat of congestion or inflammation which would cause them to sink; but it is fairly entitled to its due weight in the settlement of this question; Dean, Med. Jur. 154 et seq. From the state of the diaphragm: prior to respiration it is found high up in the thorax. The act of expanding the lungs enlarges and arches the thorax, and, necessary consequence, the diaphragm scends.

INFANTICIDE

The fact of life at birth being established, the next inquiry is, how long did the child survive? The proofs here are derived from three sources. The fatal openings, their partial or complete closure. The more perfect the closure, the longer the time. The series of changes in the umbilical cord. These are-1, the withering of the cord; 2, its desiccation or drying, and, 3, its separation or dropping off,—occurring usually four or five days after birth; 4, cicatrization of the umbilicus,—occurring usually from ten to twelve days after birth. The changes in the skin, in the process of exfoliation of the epidermis, which commences on the abdomen, and extends thence successively to the chest, groin, axilim, interscapular space, limbs, and, finally, to the hards and feet.

As to the modes by which the life of the child may have been destroyed. The criminal modes most commonly resorted to are—1, suffocation; drowning; 3, cold and exposure; 4, starvation; wounds, fractures, and injuries of various kinds; a mode not unfrequently resorted to is the intro-duction of sharp-pointed instruments in different parts of the body: also, luxation and fracture of the neck, accomplished by forcibly twisting the head of the child, or pulling it backwards; 6, strangulation; 7, poisoning; 8, intentional neglect to tie the umbilical cord; and, 9, causing the child to inhale air deprived of its oxygen, or gases posi-tivaly deletarious. All these modes of destroying tively deleterious. All these modes of destroying life, together with the natural or accidental ones, will be found fully discussed by the writers on medical jurisprudence. 1 Beck, Med. Jur. 509; Dean, Med. Jur. 179; Ryan, Med. Jur. 137; Dr. Cummins, Proof of Infanticide Considered; Storer & Heard, Criminal Abortion; Brown, Infanticide; Toulmouche, Études sur Infanticide.

INFEOFFMENT. The act or instrument of feofiment. In Scotland it is synonymous with saisine, meaning the instrument of possession: formerly it was synonymous with investiture. Bell, Dict.

INFERENCE. A conclusion drawn by reason from premises established by proof.

A deduction or conclusion from facts or propositions known to be true. Hughes, 44 Wis. 336.

When the facts are submitted to the court, the judges draw the inference; when they are to be ascertained by a jury, the jury must do so. The witness is not permitted, as a general rule, to draw an inference and testify that to the court or jury. It is his duty to state the facts simply as they occurred. Inferences differ from presumptions

INFERIOR COURTS. An inferior court is a court of special and limited jurisdiction; it must appear on the face of its proceedings that it has jurisdiction, and that the parties process, or its proceedings will be void. Cooley, Const. Lim. 508. Another distinction between superior and inferior courts is: in the latter case, a want of jurisdiction may be shown even in opposition to the recitals contained in the record; id. 509; citing Sheldon v. Wright, 5 N. Y. 497; Sears v. Terry, 26 Conn. 273; this is the general rule, though there are apparent exceptions of those cases where the jurisdiction may be said to depend upon the existence of a certain state of facts, which must be passed upon by the courts themselves, and in respect to which the decision of the court once rendered, if there was any evidence whatever on which to base it, must be held final and conclusive in all collateral inquiries, notwithstanding it may have erred in its conclusions; Cooley, Const. Lim. 509, citing 1 B. & B. 432; Freem. Judg. § 523; Wanzer v. Howland, 10 Wis. 16.

INFICIATIO (Lat.). In Civil Law. Denial. Denial of fact alleged by plaintiff,especially, a denial of debt or deposit. Voc. Jur. Utr.; Calvinus, Lex.

INFIDEL. One who does not believe in the existence of a God who will reward or punish in this world or that which is to Willes 550. One who professes no religion that can bind his conscience to speak the truth. 1 Greenl. Ev. § 368. One who does not recognize the inspiration or obligation of the Holy Scriptures, or generally recognized features of the Christian religion. Gibson v. Ins. Co., 37 N. Y. 580.

This term has been very indefinitely applied. Under the name of infidel, Lord Coke comprises Jews and heathens; Co. 2d Inst. 506; Co. 3d Inst. 165; and Hawkins includes among infidels such as do not believe either in the Old or New Testament; Hawk. Pl. Cr. b. 2, c. 46, s. 148.

The objection to the competency of witnesses who have no religious belief is removed in England and in most of the United States by statutory enactments; 1 Whart. Ev. § 395.

It has been held that at common law it is only requisite that the witness should believe in the existence of a God who will punish and reward according to desert; 1 Atk. 21; Butts v. Swartwood, 2 Cow. (N. Y.) 431; Wakefield v. Ross, 5 Mas. 18, Fed. Cas. No. 17,050; Arnold v. Estate of Arnold, 13 Vt. 362; Blair v. Seaver, 26 Pa. 274; that it is sufficient if the punishment is to be in this world; Shaw v. Moore, 49 N. C. 25; contra, Atwood v. Welton, 7 Conn. 66. And see People v. McGarren, 17 Wend. (N. Y.) 460; Cubbison v. McCreary, 2 W. & S. (Pa.) 262; Brock v. Milligan, 10 Ohio 121. A witness's belief is to be presumed till the contrary appear; Donnelly v. State, 26 N. J. L. 463; id., 26 N. J. L. 601; and his disbellef must be shown by declarations made prewere subjected to its jurisdiction by proper | viously, and cannot be inquired into by examination of the witness himself; 1 Greenl. Ev. § 370, n.; Scott v. Hooper, 14 Vt. 535.

INFIHT (Sax.). An assault upon an inhabitant of same dwelling. Gloss. Anc. Inst. & Laws of Eng.

INFIRM. Weak, feeble.

When a witness is infirm to an extent likely to destroy his life, or to prevent his attendance at the trial, his testimony de bene esse may be taken at any age. 1 P. Wms. 117. See Witness.

INFIRMATIVE. Weakening. Webster, Dict. Tending to weaken or render infirm; disprobabilizing. 3 Benth. Jud. Ev. 13, 14. Exculpatory is used by some authors as synonymous. See Wills, Circ. Ev. 120; Best, Pres. $ 217.

INFLUENCE. Most frequently used in connection with "undue," and refers to persuasion, machination, or constraint of will presented or exerted to procure a disposition of property, by gift, conveyance, or will. Anderson, L. Dict.

INFORMALITY. Want of customary or legal form.

INFORMATION. in French Law. act or instrument which contains the depositions of witnesses against the accused. Pothier, Proc. Civ. sect. 2, art. 5.

In Practice. A complaint or accusation exhibited against a person for some criminal offence. 4 Bla. Com. 308.

An accusation in the nature of an indictment, from which it differs only in being presented by a competent public officer on his oath of office, instead of a grand jury on their oath. 1 Bish. Cr. Proc. § 141.

It differs in no respect from an indictment in its form and substance, except that it is filed at the mere discretion of the proper law officer of the government, ex officio, without the intervention of a grand jury; 4 Bla. Com. 308. The process has not been formally put in motion by congress for misdemeanors, but is common in civil prosecutions for penaltles and forfeitures; 3 Story, Const. 659. The information is usually made upon knowledge given by some other person than the officer called the relator. "It comes from the common law without the aid of statutes; 5 Mod. 459; it is a concurrent remedy with indictment for all misdemeanors except misprision of treason, but not permissible in any felony." Bish. Cr. Pr. § 14; Com. v. Inhabitants of Waterborough, 5 Mass. 257; Com. v. Barrett, 9 Leigh (Va.) 665.

As to the power of a legislature to dispense with indictment, see Infamous Crime. A state law which permits the prosecution of felonies by information does not violate the United States Constitution; Bolln v. Nebraska, 176 U. S. 83, 20 Sup. Ct. 287, 44 L. Ed. 382; and a legislature may modify or regarding the grand jury; State v. Guglielmo, 46 Or. 250, 79 Pac. 577, 80 Pac. 103, 69 L. R. A. 466, 7 Ann. Cas. 976.

Under United States laws, informations are resorted to for illegal exportation of goods; U. S. v. Mann, 1 Gall. 3, Fed. Cas. No. 15,717; in cases of smuggling; U. S. v. Lyman, 1 Mas. 482, Fed. Cas. No. 15,647; and a libel for seizure is in the nature of an information; Sawyer v. Steele, 3 Wash. C. C. 464, Fed. Cas. No. 12,406; The Samuel, 1 Wheat. (U. S.) 9, 4 L. Ed. 23. The provisions of the United States constitution which provide that no person shall be held to answer for a capital or otherwise infamous crime, unless on presentment, etc., of a grand jury, have been held to apply only to the proceedings in the federal courts; Whart. Cr. Pl. & Pr. 88; Noles v. State, 24 Ala. 672; State v. Keyes, 8 Vt. 57, 30 Am. Dec. 450.

An information is sufficiently formal if it follows the words of the statute; The Emily, 9 Wheat. (U. S.) 381, 6 L. Ed. 116; Whiting v. State, 14 Conn. 487, 36 Am. Dec. 499; but enough must appear to show whether it is found under the statute or at common law; Knowles v. State, 3 Day (Conn.) 103. It must, however, allege the offence with sufficient fulness and accuracy; Whitney v. State, 10 Ind. 404; and must show all the facts demanding a forfeiture, as in a penal action, when it is to recover a penalty; Com. v. Messenger, 4 Mass. 462; Merriam v. Langdon, 10 Conn. 461.

An information cannot be made on "information and belief" unless the facts are stated showing the source of information and the grounds of belief; People v. Wyatt, 186 N. Y. 383, 79 N. E. 330, 10 L. R. A. (N. S.) 159, 9 Ann. Cas. 972.

Where it is for a first offence, the fact need not be stated; Kilbourn v. State, 9 Conn. 560; otherwise, where it is for a second or subsequent offence for which an additional penalty is provided; Wilde v. Com., 2 Metc. (Mass.) 408. It need not show that there has been a preliminary examination or a waiver thereof; State v. Geer, 48 Kan. 752, 30 Pac. 236. It cannot be amended by adding charges; Com. v. Rodes, 1 Dana (Ky.) 595; contra, that it can be amended before trial; State v. Rowley, 12 Conn. 101; State v. Weare, 38 N. H. 314; 1 Salk. 471. By the common law a mistake in an information may be amended at any time; State v. White, 64 Vt. 372, 24 Atl. 250. The information charging a statutory offence cannot be amended after verdict so as to include another offence found by the jury; Turner v. Dickerman, 88 Mich. 359, 50 N. W. 310. It must be signed by the officer before filing; State v. Nulf, 15 Kan. 404; but not necessarily in Texas; Rasberry v. State, 1 Tex. App. 664; and must conclude with "against the peace and dignity of the state;" Wood v. entirely abolish the constitutional provisions | State, 27 Tex. App. 538, 11 S. W. 525. In England, a verification was not required; but it is usually otherwise by statute in America; Baramore v. State, 4 Ind. 524; District of Columbia v. Herlihy, 1 McArth. (D. C.) 466.

A part of the defendants may be acquitted and a part convicted; State v. Taylor, 1 Root (Conn.) 226; and a conviction may be of the whole or a part of the offence charged; Hill v. Davis, 4 Mass. 137. In some states it is a proceeding by the state officer, filed at his own discretion; State v. Dover, 9 N. H. 468; Levy v. State, 6 Ind. 281; in others, leave of court may be granted to any relator to use the state officer's name, upon cause shown; Camman v. Min. Co., 12 N. J. L. 84; Respublica v. Griffiths, 2 Dall. (U. S.) 112, 1 L. Ed. 311; Cleary v. Deliesseline, 1 McCord (S. C.) 35; State v. Deliesseline, id. 52. See State v. Terrebone, 45 La. Ann. 25, 12 South. 315. In England, the right to make an information was in the attorney-general, who acted without the interference of the court; 3 Burr. 2089. In former times the officer proceeded upon any application, as of course; 4 Term 285; but by an act passed in 1692, it was provided that leave of court must be first obtained and security entered; see 2 Term 190. It is said to be doubtful whether leave of court is necessary in this country; 1 Bish. Cr. Pr. § 144. A prosecuting officer may, on his own motion, present a bill to the grand jury, without presenting an affidavit charging the offence, if he deems it necessary for the public good; and his action in doing so will be disturbed only in case of abuse of discretion; State v. Bowman, 43 S. C. 108, 20 S. E. 1010. It is sufflcient for the district attorney to be present in court when the accused first appears and there to ratify the information filed by his deputy in his absence; State v. Guglielmo, 46 Or. 250, 79 Pac. 577, 80 Pac. 103, 69 L. R. A. 466, 7 Ann. Cas. 976.

See Indictment; Grand Jury; Infamous Crime.

information and Belief. Said to be the proper words for an averment in a bill in equity; see Elliott & Hatch Book-Typewriter Co. v. Fisher, 109 Fed. 330. See Affidavit.

INFORMATION IN THE NATURE OF A QUO WARRANTO. A proceeding against the usurper of a franchise or office. See Quo WARRANTO.

information of intrusion. A proceeding instituted by the state prosecuting officer against intruders upon the public domain. See Com. v. Andre's Heirs, 3 Pick. (Mass.) 224; Com. v. Hite, 6 Leigh (Va.) 588, 29 Am. Dec. 226.

INFORMATUS NON SUM (Lat. I am not informed). A formal answer made in court or put upon record by an attorney when he has nothing to say in defence of his client. Styles, Reg. 372.

INFORMER. A person who informs or prefers an accusation against another, whom he suspects of the violation of some penal statute.

When the informer is entitled to the penalty or part of the penalty, upon the conviction of an offender, he is or is not at common law a competent witness, according as the statute creating the penalty has or has not made him so; 1 Phill. Ev. 97; Ros. Cr. Ev. 107; Com. v. Frost, 5 Mass. 57; 1 Saund. 262, c. See U. S. v. Murphy, 16 Pet. (U. S.) 213, 10 L. Ed. 937; 4 East 180. The court is not bound to instruct the jury that the testimony of such a witness is to be received with great caution and distrust, since the credibility of witnesses is for the jury, and counsel are permitted to argue the question to them; State v. Hoxsie, 15 R. I. 1, 22 Atl. 1059, 2 Am. St. Rep. 838.

INFORTIATUM (Lat.). In Civil Law. The second part of the Digest or Pandects of Justinian. See Digest.

This part, which commences with the third title of the twenty-fourth book and ends with the thirty-eighth book, was thus called because it was the middle part, which, it was said, was supported and fortified by the two others. Some have supposed that this name was given to it because it treats of successions, substitutions, and other important matters, and, being more used than the others, produced greater fees to the lawyers.

INFRA (Lat.). Below, under, beneath, underneath. The opposite of supra, above. Thus, we say, primo gradu est—supra, pater, mater, infra, filius, filia: in the first degree of kindred in the ascending line, above is the father and the mother, below, in the descending line, son and daughter. Inst. 3. 6. 1.

In another sense, this word signifies within: as, infra corpus civitatis, within the body of the country; infra præsidia, within the guards. So of time, during: infra furorem, during the madness. This use is not classical. The sole instance of the word in this sense in the Code, infra anni spatium, Code, b. 5, tit. 9, § 2, is corrected to intra anni spatium, in the edition of the Corpus Jur. Civ. of 1833 at Leipsic. The use of infra for intra seems to have sprung up among the barbarians after the fall of the Roman empire.

INFRA ÆTATEM (Lat.). Within or under age.

INFRA ANNUM LUCTUS (Lat.). Within the year of grief or mourning. 1 Bla. Com. 457; Cod. 5. 9. 2. But intra anni spatium is the phrase used in the passage in the Code referred to. See Corp. Jur. Civ. 1833, Leipsic. Intra tempus luctus occurs in Novella 22, c. 40. This year was at first ten months, afterwards twelve. 1 Beck, Med. Jur. 612. See Annus Luctus.

INFRA BRACHIA (Lat.). Within her arms. Used of a husband de jure as well as de facto. Co. 2d Inst. 317. Also, inter brachia. Bracton, fol. 148 b. It was in this sense that a woman could only have an appeal for murder of her husband inter brachia sua. Woman's Lawyer, pp. 332, 335.

INFRA CORPUS COMITATUS (Lat.). Within the body of the county.

The common-law courts have jurisdiction infra corpus comitatus: the admiralty, on the contrary, has no such jurisdiction, unless, indeed, the tide-water may extend within such county. Waring v. Clarke, 5 How. (U. S.) 441, 451, 12 L. Ed. 226. See ADMIRALTY; FAUCES TERRE.

INFRA DIGNITATEM CURIÆ (Lat.). Below the dignity of the court. Example: in equity a demurrer will lie to a bill on the ground of the triviality of the matter in dispute, as being below the dignity of the court. See Smets v. Williams, 4 Paige, Ch. (N. Y.) 364. See Maxims (de minimis non curat lex).

INFRA HOSPITIUM (Lat.). Within the inn. When once a traveller's baggage comes infra hospitium, that is, in the care and under the charge of the innkeeper, it is at his risk. See Guest; Innkeeper.

INFRA PRÆSIDIA (Lat. within the walls). A term used in relation to prizes, to signify that they have been brought completely in the power of the captors; that is, within the towns, camps, ports, or fleet of the captors. Formerly the rule was, and perhaps still in some countries is, that the act of bringing a prize infra præsidia changed the property; but the rule now established is that there must be a sentence of condemnation to effect this purpose. 1 C. Rob. 134; 1 Kent 104; Chitty, Law of Nat. 98; Abbott, Shipp. 14; Hugo, Droit Romain § 90.

INFRACTION (Lat. infrango, to break in upon). The breach of a law or agreement; the violation of a compact. In the French law this is the generic expression to designate all actions which are punishable by the Code of France.

INFRINGEMENT. A word used to denote the act of trespassing upon the incorporeal right secured by a patent or copyright. Any person who, without legal permission, shall make, use, or sell to another to be used, the thing which is the subject-matter of any existing patent, is guilty of an infringement, for which damages may be recovered at law by an action on the case, or which may be remedied by a bill in equity for an injunction and an account.

The manufacture, sale, or use of an invention protected by letters patent, within the area and time described therein by a person not duly authorized to do so. Rob. Pat. § 890.

Infringement is a mixed question of law and fact; California Artificial Stone Paving Co. v. Molitor, 113 U. S. 609, 5 Sup. Ct. 618, 28 L. Ed. 1106. Whether a device is an infringement is determined by the claims of the patent, and not by the actual invention; Meissner v. Manuf'g Co., 9 Blatchf. 363, 5 Fish. 285, Fed. Cas. No. 9,397. There is no infringement unless the invention can be practised completely by following the specifications. An infringement is a copy made after, and agreeing with, the principle laid down in the patent; and if the patent does not fully describe everything essential to the thing patented, no infringement will take place by the fresh invention of processes which the patentee has not communicated to the public; Page v. Ferry, 1 Fish. 298, Fed. Cas. No. 10,662. Where the same advantages are gained by substantially the same means. there is infringement; Wallicks v. Cantrell, 12 Fed. 790. The test is whether the defendant uses anything which the plaintiff has invented; Crompton v. Knowles, 7 Fed. 199.

However different, apparently, the arrangements and combinations of a machine may be from the machine of the patentee, it may in reality embody his invention, and be as much an infringement as if it were a servile copy of his machine. If the machine complained of involves substantial identity with the one patented, it is an infringement. If the invention of the patentee be a machine, it is infringed by a machine which incorporates, in its structure and operation, the substance of the invention,-that is, an arrangement which performs the same service, or produces the same effect, in the same way, or substantially the same way; Sickels v. Borden, 3 Blatchf. 535, Fed. Cas. No. A device may be an infringement though it be itself a new invention; Zeun v. Kaldenberg, 16 Fed. 539. To obtain the same result by the same mode of operation constitutes infringement; Shaver v. Mfg. Co., 30 Fed. 68; and so where there is a mere formal change; Strobridge v. Landers, 11 Fed. 880; or variations in size, form, and degree: Asmus v. Alden, 27 Fed. 684; Lull v. Clark, 13 id. 456.

An invention limited to certain forms is infringed only by the use of those forms; Toepfer v. Goetz, 31 Fed. 913.

Where the same result is accomplished, the same function performed, and the mode of operation is the same, a mere difference in the location of parts will not avoid infringement; 42 O. G. 297.

An improvement may be an infringement; Brainard v. Cramme, 12 Fed. 621. An improvement and its original are separate inventions, and the inventor of one infringes by the use of the other; Royer v. Coupe, 29 Fed. 358; American Bell Telephone Co. v. Dolbear, 15 Fed. 448. It is, however, presumed that use under one patent does not infringe another; Smith v. Woodruff, 1 MacArthur (D. C.) 459; and the grant of a second patent is prima facie evidence that the inventions are different, and that the later patented invention is not an infringement of the former; La Baw v. Hawkins, 1 Bann. & A. 428, Fed. Cas. No. 7,960; American Pin Co. v. Oakville Co., 3 Blatchf. 190, Fed. Cas. No. 313.

To experiment with a patented article for scientific purposes, or for curiosity, or amusement, is said not to constitute infringement; Poppenhusen v. Falke, 4 Blatchf. 493, Fed. Cas. No. 11,279, but this cannot be invariably true. To make and exhibit a device at a fair, but not for use or sale, is not an infringement; Standard Measuring Mach. Co. v. League, 15 Fed. 390; nor is mere exposure for sale; 4 A. & E. 251; nor advertising an invention; 19 O. G. 727; but the latter is strong evidence of infringement; 19 O. G. 727. To make an article for sale abroad is an infringement; Ketchum Harvester Co. v. Harvester Co., 8 Fed. 586.

An infringement may be committed by repairing as well as making the invention, if it involves reconstruction either in whole or in part; Goodyear Dental Vulcanite Co. v. Preterre, 3 Bann. & A. 471, Fed. Cas. No. 5,596. To make a part with intent to use it, or to sell it to be used, in connection with the other parts of the invention, is infringement; Celluloid Mfg. Co. v. American Zylonite Co., 30 Fed. 437.

One who makes and sells one element of a patented combination with the intention and for the purpose of bringing about its use in such a combination, is guilty of infringement; Thomson-Houston Electric Co. v. Brass Co., 80 Fed. 712, 26 C. C. A. 107; but not where the article made by the alleged infringer was not separately patented and was of a perishable nature (sheets of toilet paper); id. It has been held that replacing broken or worn-out parts is not necessarily infringement; Shickle, Harrison & Howard Iron Co. v. Car Coupler Co., 77 Fed. 739, 23 C. C. A. 433; Thomson-Houston Electric Co. v. Specialty Co., 75 Fed. 1009, 22 C. C. A. 1. See Heaton-Peninsular Button-Fastener Co. v. Specialty Co., 77 Fed. 288, 25 C. C. A. 267, 35 L. R. A. 728, citing many cases.

No act of making, use, or sale can be an infringement of a patented invention unless it is performed during the life of the patent; Marsh v. Nichols, Shepard & Co., 128 U. S. 605, 9 Sup. Ct. 168, 32 L. Ed. 538; Rein v. Clayton, 37 Fed. 354, 3 L. R. A. 78; see Kirk v. U. S., 163 U. S. 55, 16 Sup. Ct. 911, 41 L. Ed. 66. An infringement may be committed by the use, after the patent issues, of a device constructed before the creation of the monopoly, notwithstanding the good faith of its purchaser or maker and his belief that it will never be protected by a patent; 3 Rob. Pat. § 907; Lyon v. Donaldson, 34 Fed. 789.

One who buys a patented article of manufacture from one authorized to sell it at the an absolute property in it, unrestricted in time or place; Keeler v. Folding Bed Co., 157 U. S. 659, 15 Sup. Ct. 738, 39 L. Ed. 848, whether a patentee may protect himself and his assignees by special contracts brought home to the purchasers was not decided in the case. A licensee of a patent for Michigan sold pipes to be laid in Connecticut, where he had no patent right; it was held that he was not liable for infringement; Hobbie v. Jennison, 149 U. S. 355, 13 Sup. Ct. 879, 37 L. Ed. 766; see Adams v. Burks, 17 Wall. (U. S.) 453, 21 L. Ed. 700.

A re-issue is not infringed by an act committed before the surrender of the original patent; 2 Rob. Pat. § 696. A re-issue with a broader claim is not infringed by the use of devices made before the original patent, though they are covered by the new claim; Ives v. Axle Co., 11 Fed. 510, 20 Blatchf. 333. A device which does not infringe the original cannot infringe the re-issue, if the scope of the original is measured by its description and not by its claims alone; Cammeyer v. Newton, 4 Bann. & A. 159, Fed. Cas. No. 2,344.

A patent for a combination of old elements is not infringed by using less than all the elements, where the two combinations are not the same in operation; Faurot v. Hawes, 3 Fed. 456. A claim for a combination of three elements is not infringed by the use of two only, though the third is useless, for the patentee must stand by his claim; Coolidge v. McCone, 1 Bann. & A. 78, Fed. Cas. No. 3,186. A combination is not infringed where one essential element is omitted and another is substituted accomplishing the same result in a different way; Schmidt v. Freese, 12 Fed. 563.

A patent for a manufacture is infringed in whatever way the article is made; Celluloid Mfg. Co. v. American Zylonite Co., 30 Fed. 437; Badische Anilin & Soda Fabrik v. Mfg. Co., 3 Bann. & A. 235, Fed. Cas. No. 721.

Where a product is patented as the result of a certain process it is infringed only when made by that process; Cochrane v. Soda Fabrik, 111 U. S. 293, 4 Sup. Ct. 455, 28 L. Ed. 433.

A patent for a composition of matter is infringed if the new element does the same thing as the one for which it is substituted. though otherwise it is different; Woodward v. Morrison, 5 Fish. 357, Fed. Cas. No. 18,008. A composition of matter is not infringed, if elements are substituted producing different results; Smith v. Murray, 27 Fed. 69.

One is not liable in damages as an infringer if the patentee put his invention on the market not marked patented (with date), unless he had notice of the patent: Dunlap v. Schofield, 152 U. S. 244, 14 Sup-Ct. 576, 38 L. Ed. 426; Coupe v. Royer, 155 place where it is sold, becomes possessed of U. S. 584, 15 Sup. Ct. 199, 39 L. Ed. 263. actual or constructive notice; Dunlap v. Schofield, 152 U.S. 244, 14 Sup. Ct. 576, 38 L. Ed. 420.

Speaking in a general sense, it is doubtless true that the test of infringement in respect to the claims of a design-patent is the same as in respect to a patent for an art, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter; but it is not essential to the identity of the design that it should be the same to the eye of an expert. If in the eye of an ordinary observer, giving such attention as a purchaser usually gives, two designs are substantially the same; if the resemblance is such as to deceive such an observer and sufficient to induce him to purchase, one supposing it to be the other, the one patented is infringed by the other; Miller v. Smith, 5 Fed. 359; Gorham Mfg. Co. v. White, 14 Wall. (U. S.) 511, 20 L. Ed. 731.

In granting letters patent to authors and inventors for the exclusive right to their respective writings and discoveries, the United States reserves no right to publish such writings or use such inventions; James v. Campbell, 104 U. S. 356, 26 L. Ed. 786.

The United States is liable, under its contract, for the use of a patented article, but it is not liable in tort; U. S. v. Mfg. Co., 156 U. S. 552, 15 Sup. Ct. 420, 39 L. Ed. 530. While it has no right to use a patented device, yet no suit will lie against it without its consent; Belknap v. Schild, 161 U. S. 10, 16 Sup. Ct. 443, 40 L. Ed. 599; jurisdiction to recover royalties or compensation under a contract is in the court of claims; U.S. v. Palmer, 128 U. S. 262, 9 Sup. Ct. 104, 32 L. Ed. 442. It is doubtful whether a government official who uses an invention solely for the benefit of the government can be sued for infringement, and whether the case is not one solely for the court of claims; James v. Campbell, 104 U. S. 356, 26 L. Ed. 786. Where an officer of the United States uses, in his official capacity, a patented device made and used by the United States, the patentee is not entitled to an injunction, and cannot recover profits, if the only profit is a saving to the United States; but such officers, although acting under its orders, are personally liable to be sued for their own infringement of a patent; Belknap v. Schild, 161 U. S. 10, 16 Sup. Ct. 443, 40 L. Ed. 599; see Kirk v. U. S., 163 U. S. 49, 16 Sup. Ct. 911, 41 L. Ed. 66. A city is liable for an infringement by its officers for its benefit; Munson v. City of New York, 3 Fed. 338, 5 Bann. & A. 486.

The managing officers of corporations have been, in some cases, joined as defendants in cases involving the infringement of patents; Iowa Barb-Steel Wire Co. v. Wire Co., 30 Fed. 123; Nichols v. Pearce, 7 Blatchf. 5, Fed. Cas. No. 10,246; contra, Matthews & Willard Mfg. Co. v. Lamp Co., 73 Fed. 212; but risdiction act of 1789, it means citizen. Shaw

The burden is on the complainant to prove in Glucose Sugar Refining Co. v. Preserving Co., 135 Fed. 540, Adams, D. J., after considering and citing many authorities, concludes that the weight of authority, and especially of the more recent cases, as well as reason, is against the joinder of officers of a corporation in ordinary cases. He admits that there is much contrariety of opinion. This case was followed in American Bank Protection Co. v. Protection Co., 181 Fed. 350, even where the directors had signed indemnity agreements to purchasers of infringing In Whiting Safety Catch Co. v. articles. Wheeled Scraper Co., 148 Fed. 396, the joinder was sustained because the individual defendant owned all the corporate stock, directed its affairs, and conspired with it to commit the infringement.

> See PATENTS; COPYRIGHT; TRADE-MARKS; UNITED STATES COURTS.

> INFUSION. In Medical Jurisprudence. pharmaceutical operation, which consists in pouring a hot or cold fluid upon a substance whose medical properties it is desired to ex-The product of this operation. An infusion differs from a decoction in that the latter is produced by boiling the drug.

> Although infusion differs from decoction, they are said to be ejusdem generis; and in the case of an indictment which charged the prisoner with giving a decoction, and the evidence was that he had given an infusion, the difference was held to be immaterial; 3 Campb. 74.

> INGENIUM (Lat. of middle ages). A net or hook. Du Cange; hence, probably, the meaning given by Spelman of artifice, fraud A machine, Spelman, Gloss., es-(engin). pecially for warlike purposes; also, for navigation of a ship. Du Cange.

> INGENUI (Lat.). In Civil Law. freemen who were born free. Vicat. Vocab. They were a class of freemen, distinguished from those who, born slaves, had afterwards legally obtained their freedom: the latter were called, at various periods, sometimes liberti, sometimes libertini. An unjust or illegal servitude did not prevent a man from being ingenuus.

> INGRESS. EGRESS, AND REGRESS. These words are frequently used in leases to express the right of the lessee to enter, go from, and return to the lands in question.

> INGRESSU (Lat.). An ancient writ of entry, by which the plaintiff or complainant sought an entry into his lands. Abolished in 1833. Tech. Dict.

> INGROSSING. The act of copying from a rough draft a writing in order that it may be executed: as ingrossing a deed.

> INHABITANT. One who has his domicil in a place; one who has an actual fixed residence in a place. As used in the federal ju-

v. Mining Co., 145 U. S. 444, 12 Sup. Ct. 935, 36 L. Ed. 768.

A mere intention to remove to a place will not make a man an inhabitant of such place, although, as a sign of such intention, he may have sent his wife and children to reside there; 1 Ashm. 126. Nor will his intention to quit his residence, unless consummated, deprive him of his right as an inhabitant; Barnet's Case, 1 Dall. (Pa.) 153, 1 L. Ed. 77; Lyle v. Foreman, 1 Dall. (Pa.) 480, 1 L. Ed. 232. See 14 Viner, Abr. 420; 6 Ad. & E. 153.

"The words 'inhabitant,' 'citizen,' and 'resident,' as employed in different constitutions to define the qualifications of electors, mean substantially the same thing; and one is an inhabitant, resident, or citizen at the place where he has his domicil or home;" Cooley, Const. Lim. 755; Munroe v. Williams, 37 S. C. 81, 16 S. E. 535, 19 L. R. A. 665. But the terms "resident" and "inhabitant" have also been held not synonymous, the latter implying a more fixed and permanent abode than the former, and importing privileges and duties to which a mere resident would not be subject: Board of Sup'rs of Tazewell County v. Davenport, 40 Ill. 197; Bartlett v. Mayor, etc., 5 Sandf. (N. Y.) 44; Isham v. Gibbons, 1 Bradf. (N. Y.) 69; Lee v. City of Boston, 2 Gray (Mass.) 484; State v. Ross, 23 N. J. L. 517. Where a question was to be submitted to the "inhabitants" of a municipality it has been held to mean legal voters; Walnut v. Wade, 103 U. S. 683, 26 L. Ed. 526. When relating to municipal rights, powers, or duties, the word inhabitant is almost universally used as signifying precisely the same as domiciled; Borland v. City of Boston, 132 Mass. 98, 42 Am. Rep. 424.

Property conveyed to the inhabitants of a town as a body politic and corporate vests in the town as a corporation; Town of Newmarket v. Smart, 45 N. H. 87. See ALIEN; CITIZEN; DOMICIL; NATURALIZATION; HOME.

INHERENT POWER. An authority possessed without its being derived from another. A right, ability, or faculty of doing a thing, without receiving that right, ability, or faculty from another.

INHERITABLE BLOOD. Blood of an ancestor which, while it makes the person in whose veins it flows a relative, will also give him the legal rights of inheritance incident to that relationship. See 2 Bla. Com. 254, 255. Descendants can derive no title through a person whose blood is not inheritable. Such, in England, are persons attainted and aliens. But attainder is not known in this country. See 4 Kent 413, 424; 1 Hill. R. P. 148; 2 id. 190.

INHERITANCE. A perpetuity in lands to a man and his heirs; the right to succeed to the estate of a person who dies intestate. Dig. 50. 16. 24. The term is applied to lands. child or relation takes property from another at his death, except by devise, and includes as well succession as descent; as applied to personal property, it can mean nothing else than to signify succession; Horner v. Webster, 33 N. J. L. 413.

The property which is inherited is called an inheritance.

The term inheritance includes not only lands and tenements which have been acquired by descent, but every fee-simple or fee-tail which a person has acquired by purchase may be said to be an inheritance, because the purchaser's heirs may inherit it; Littleton § 9. This would now be called an estate of inheritance; 1 Steph. Com. 231. See ESTATES.

in Civil Law. The succession to all the rights of the deceased. It is of two kinds: that which arises by testament, when the testator gives his succession to a particular person; and that which arises by operation of law, which is called succession ab intestat. Heineccius, Lec. El. §§ 484, 485.

INHERITANCE ACT. The English statute of 3 & 4 Will. IV. c. 106, regulating the law of inheritance. 2 Chitty, Stat. 575; 2 Bla. Com. 37; 1 Steph. Com. 388.

INHERITANCE TAX. See TAX.

INHIBITION. In Civil Law. A prohibition which the law makes or a judge ordains to an individual. Halifax, Anal. p. 126.

In English Law. The name of a writ which forbids a judge from further proceeding in a cause depending before him: it is in the nature of a prohibition. Termes de la Ley; Fitzh. N. B. 39. Also a writ issuing out of a higher court christian to a lower and inferior, upon an appeal; 2 Burn, Ec. L. 339. In the government of the Protestant Episcopal church, a bishop can inhibit a clergyman of his diocese from performing clerical functions.

INITIAL (from Lat. initium, beginning). Beginning; placed at the beginning. Webster. Thus, the initials of a man's name are the first letters of his name: as, G. W. for George Washington. Initials are no part of a name; Monroe Cattle Co. v. Becker, 147 U. S. 47, 13 Sup. Ct. 217, 37 L. Ed. 72. A middle name or initial is not recognized by law; Milk v. Christie & Todd, 1 Hill (N. Y.) 102; Bratton v. Seymour, 4 Watts (Pa.) 329; Allen v. Taylor, 26 Vt. 599; King v. Hutchins, 28 N. H. 561; McKay v. Speak, 8 Tex. 376; Long v. Campbell, 37 W. Va. 665, 17 S. E. 197; Johnson v. Day, 2 N. Dak. 295, 50 N. W. 701; Hicks v. Riley, 83 Ga. 332, 9 S. E. 771. But see Com. v. Perkins, 1 Pick. (Mass.) 388; but the first initial is, and a variance therein is fatal to an indictment; English v. State, 30 Tex. App. 470, 18 S. W. 94. In an indictment for forgery, an instrument signed It includes all the methods by which a "T. Tupper" was averred to have been made it was held good; State v. Jones, 1 McMull. (S. C.) 236, 36 Am. Dec. 257. Signing of initials is good signing within the Statute of Frauds; 12 J. B. Moore 219; 2 Mood. & R. 221; Add. Contr. 46, n.; Palmer v. Stephens, 1 Den. (N. Y.) 471. When in a will the legatee is described by the initials of his name only, parol evidence may be given to prove his identity; 3 Ves. 148. The fact that the foreman of the grand jury in signing his name to the indorsement of "a true bill" on the indictment, used only the initials of, instead of his full Christian name, is not ground for quashing the indictment; Zimmerman v. State, 4 Ind. App. 583, 31 N. E. 550. As to the use of an initial in a ballot, see Election. See Name.

INITIATE. Commenced.

A husband was, in feudal law, said to be tenant by the curtesy initiate when a child who might inherit was born to his wife, because he then first had an inchoate right as tenant by the curtesy, and did homage to the lord as one of the pares curtis; whence curtesy. This right became consummated on the death of the wife before the husband. See 2 Bla. Com. 127; 1 Steph. Com. 247.

INITIATE TENANT BY CURTESY. A husband becomes tenant by curtesy initiate in his wife's estate of inheritance upon the birth of issue capable of inheriting the same. The husband's estate by curtesy is not said to be consummate till the death of the wife. 2 Bla. Com. 127, 128; 1 Steph. Com. 365, 366

INITIATIVE. In French Law. The name given to the important prerogative conferred by the charte constitutionnelle, art. 16, on the king to propose, through his ministers, projects of laws. 1 Toullier, n. 39. See Veto.

INITIATIVE, REFERENDUM, AND RE-CALL. Initiative is the right of a specified number of the electorate to unite in proposing laws to the legislative body, which, after due consideration, must submit the same to the vote of the people for their approval or disapproval.

Referendum is the referring of legislative acts to the electorate for their final acceptance or rejection.

At the end of 1911, the initiative and referendum were in force in 209 cities in 25 states, and were a part of the fundamental law, for state purposes, in 11 states: Maine, Missouri, South Dakota, Arkansas, Oklahoma, California, Colorado, Arizona, Montana, Oregon, and Washington. In 1912 Idaho, Wyoming, and Nebraska adopted these measures.

Recall is provision for the retirement of an elected officer, by a vote of the electorate. In 1911 the right to recall was provided in Idaho, Montana, North and South Dakota, Washington, Wisconsin, Wyoming, and California. Like provisions were adopted in 1912 in Ohio, Arizona and Nebraska. In Illinois with intent to defraud Tristam Tupper, and it was held good; State v. Jones, 1 McMull. (S. C.) 236, 36 Am. Dec. 257. Signing of initials is good signing within the Statute of Frauds; 12 J. B. Moore 219; 2 Mood. & R. 221; Add. Contr. 46, n.; Palmer v. Stephens, 1 Den. (N. Y.) 471. When in a will the lega-

An initiative and referendum amendment to the state constitution was held not repugnant to the national constitution guaranteeing to every state a republican form of government; Kadderly v. Portland, 44 Or. 118, 74 Pac. 710, 75 Pac. 222; nor does that provision of the federal constitution prohibit a direct vote of the voters of a subdivision of a state in strictly local affairs; In re Pfahler, 150 Cal. 71, 88 Pac. 270, 11 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1092, 11 Ann. Cas. 911. Whether the initiative and referendum provisions in the constitution of Oregon so alter the form of its government as to make it no longer republican, according to Article IV, § 4 of the United States constitution, is a purely political question as to which the courts have no jurisdiction; Pacific States Telephone & Telegraph Co. v. Oregon, 223 U. S. 118, 32 Sup. Ct. 224, 56 L. Ed. 377, dismissing writ of error to the judgment in 53 Or. 162, 99 Pac. 427; to the same effect, Kiernan v. Portland, 223 U. S. 151, 32 Sup. Ct. 231, 56 L. Ed. 386.

See Referendum in America by Dr. E. P. Oberholtzer.

The report of a special committee of the American Bar Association on the Recall of Judges (Rome G. Brown, Chairman) to the 1913 meeting, contains much information on that subject. The practice was adopted in Oregon in 1908; in California in 1911; in Colorado in 1912 (and also a provision for the recall of judicial decisions as to the constitutionality of statutes and of certain city charters); Arizona in 1912; Nevada in 1912. In Kansas and Minnesota a vote will be taken in 1914. In Arkansas a constitutional amendment was adopted in 1912, but was held to have been improperly submitted. The report gives an extensive bibliography on Judicial Recall.

injunction. A prohibitory writ, issued by the authority and generally under the seal of a court of equity, to restrain one or more of the defendants or parties or quasi parties to a suit or proceeding in equity, from doing, or from permitting his servants or others who are under his control to do, an act which is deemed to be inequitable so far as regards the rights of some other party or parties to such suit or proceedings in equity. Eden, Inj. c. 1; Kerr, Inj. 9; Jeremy, Eq. Jur. b. 3, c. 2, § 1; Story, Eq. Jur. § 861; Will. Eq. Jur. 341; 2 Green, Ch. 136; 1 Madd. 126.

Washington, Wisconsin, Wyoming, and California. Like provisions were adopted in 1912 as the correlation of the writ of mandamus, in Ohio, Arizona, and Nebraska. In Illinois, the one enjoining the performance of an unlawful act, the other requiring the performance of a lawful or neglected act; Beach,

Under the present practice in England, injunction is not by writ, but the order of the court has the same effect.

The interdict of the Roman law resembles, in many respects, our injunction. used in three distinct but cognate senses. 1. It was applied to signify the edicts made by the prætor, declaratory of his intention to give a remedy in certain cases, chiefly to preserve or to restore possession; this interdict was called edictal: edictale, quod prætorii edictis proponitur, ut sciant omnes ea forma posse implorari. 2. It was used to signify his order or decree, applying the remedy in the given case before him, and was then called decretal: decretale, quod prætor re nata implorantibus decrevit. It is this which bears a strong resemblance to the injunction of a court of equity. 3. It was used, in the last place, to signify the very remedy sought in the suit commenced under the prætor's edict; and thus it became the denomination of the action itself. Livingston on the Batture case; 2 Story, Eq. Jur. § 865.

Mandatory injunctions command the defendant to do a particular thing. Preventive, commands him to refrain from an act. The former are resorted to rarely and are seldom allowed before a final hearing; Corning v. Nail Factory, 40 N. Y. 191; Audenried v. R. Co., 68 Pa. 370, 8 Am. Rep. 195; 10 Ves. 192; 20 Am. Dec. 389, note; Bailey v. Schnitzius, 45 N. J. Eq. 178, 13 Atl. 247, 16 Atl. 680. They are not granted except to prevent a failure of justice and then only when the right is clearly established; Buettgenbach v. Gerbig, 2 Neb. (unof.) 889, 90 N. W. 654; Budd v. Camden Horse R. Co., 63 N. J. Eq. 804, 52 Atl. 1130, affirming 61 N. J. Eq. 543, 48 Atl. 1028; nor where there is unreasonable delay in the application; MacKintyre v. Jones, 9 Pa. Super. Ct. 543.

Preliminary or interlocutory injunctions are used to restrain the party enjoined from doing or continuing to do the wrong complained of, either temporarily or during the continuance of the suit or proceeding in equity in which such injunction is granted, and before the rights of the parties have been settled by the decree of the court in such suit or proceeding. The sole object of a preliminary injunction is to preserve the status quo until the merits can be heard. The status quo is the last actual peaceable uncontested status which preceded the pending controversy, and a wrongdoer cannot shelter himself behind a sudden or recently changed status, though made before the chancellor's hand actually reached him; Fredericks v. Huber, 180 Pa. 572, 37 Atl. 90. See RE-STRAINING ORDER.

Final or perpetual injunctions are award-

inary injunction already issued is made final or perpetual, by the final decree of the court, or when the rights of the parties so far as relates to the subject of the injunction are finally adjudicated and disposed of by the order or decree of the court; 2 Freem. Ch. 106; Caruthers v. Hartsfield, 3 Yerg. (Tenn.) 366, 24 Am. Dec. 580; Kruson v. Kruson, 1 Bibb (Ky.) 184; Kerr, Inj. *12.

In England, injunctions were divided into common injunctions and special injunctions; Eden, Inj. 178, n.; Will. Eq. Jur. 342. The common injunction was obtained of course when the defendant in the suit in equity was in default for not entering his appearance, or for not putting in his answer to the complainant's bill within the times prescribed by the practice of the court; Story, Eq. Jur. § 892; 18 Ves. 523; Jeremy, Eq. Jur. Special injunctions were founded upon the oath of the complainant, or other evidence of the truth of the charges contained in his bill of complaint. They were obtained upon a special application, and usually upon notice of such application given to the party whose proceedings were sought to be enjoined; Story, Eq. Jur. § 892; Jeremy, Eq. Jur. 339; 18 Ves. 522.

In the federal courts and in the equity courts of most of the states the English practice of granting the common injunction has been discontinued or superseded, either by statute or by rules of the courts; the preliminary injunctions are, therefore, all special injunctions in the courts of this country where such English practice has been superseded.

When used. The injunction is used in a great variety of cases, of which cases the following are some of the most common: to stay proceedings at law by the party enjoined; Albritton v. Bird, R. M. Charlt. (Ga.) 93; Lyles v. Halton, 6 Gill & J. (Md.) 122; Bell v. Cunningham, 1 Sumn. 89, Fed. Cas. No. 1,246; Gridley v. Wynant, 23 How. (U. S.) 500, 16 L. Ed. 411; Monson v. Lawrence, 27 Conn. 579; Frith v. Roe, 23 Ga. 139; to restrain the transfer of stocks, of promissory notes, bills of exchange, and other evidences of debt; Story, Eq. Jur. §§ 906, 955; 2 Vern. 122; Osborn v. Bank, 9 Wheat. (U. S.) 738, 6 L. Ed. 204; Jones v. Edwards, 57 N. C. 257; Burns v. Weesner, 134 Ind. 442, 34 N. E. 10; to restrain the transfer of the title to property; Morris Canal & Banking Co. v. Mayor, etc., 12 N. J. Eq. 252; Gayle v. Fattle, 14 Md. 69; Stringham v. Brown, 7 Ia. 33; Conant v. Warren, 6 Gray (Mass.) 562; Lee v. Simpson, 37 Fed. 12, 2 L. R. A. 659; or the parting with the possession of such property; 3 V. & B. 168; Oneieda Mfg. Society v. Lawrence, 4 Cow. (N. Y.) 440; to restrain the party enjoined from setting up an unequitable defence in a suit at law; Mitf. Eq. Pl. 134; to restrain ed, or directed to be issued, or the prelim- the collection of illegal taxes; St. Louis &

8. F. R. Co. v. Apperson, 97 Mo. 300, 10 S. W. 478; Norman, etc., v. Boaz, 85 Ky. 557, 4 S. W. 316; Clee v. Sanders, 74 Mich. 692, 42 N. W. 154; or taxes imposed in contravention of the United States constitution; In re Tyler, 149 U. S. 164, 13 Sup. Ct. 785, 37 L. Ed. 689; to restrain the infringement of a patent; Atwill v. Ferrett, 2 Blatchf. 39, Fed. Cas. No. 640; Sullivan v. Redfield, 1 Paine 441, Fed. Cas. No. 13,597; Schneider v. Glass Co., 36 Fed. 582; or a copyright, or the pirating of trade-marks; 17 Ves. 424; Schneider v. Williams, 44 N. J. Eq. 391, 14 Atl. 812; Smail v. Sanders, 118 Ind. 105, 20 N. E. 296; Brown Chemical Co. v. Stearns & Co., 37 Fed. 360; to restrain a party from passing off his goods as those of another by means of simulating his labels, packages, etc.; Lawrence Mfg. Co. v. Mfg. Co., 138 U. S. 537, 11 Sup. Ct. 396, 34 L. Ed. 997; to prevent the removal of property; Trustees of Davidson College v. Chambers' Ex'rs, 56 N. C. 253; or the evidences of title to property, or the evidences of indebtedness, out of the jurisdiction of the court; to restrain the committing of waste; 4 Kent 161; Brady v. Waldron, 2 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 148; Parsons v. Hughes, 12 Md. 1. Cowles v. Shaw, 2 Ia. 496; Thomas v. James, 32 Ala. 723; to prevent the creation or the continuance of a private nuisance; Hill v. Sayles, 12 Cush. (Mass.) 454; Cunningham v. Rice, 28 Ga. 30; Weimer v. Lowery, 11 Cal. 104; Snyder v. Cabell, 29 W. Va. 48, 1 S. E. 241; Ulbricht v. Water Co., 86 Ala. 587, 6 South. 78, 4 L. R. A. 572, 11 Am. St. Rep. 72; Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Whalen, 149 U.S. 157, 13 Sup. Ct. 822, 37 L. Ed. 686; or of a public nuisance particularly noxious to the party asking for the injunction; Mitf. Eq. Pl. 124; City of New York v. Mapes, 6 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 46; Packet Co. v. Sorrels, 50 Ark. 466, 8 S. W. 683; De Vaughn v. Minor, 77 Ga. 809, 1 S. E. 433; to restrain illegal acts of municipal officers; Pope v. Inhabitants of Halifax, 12 Cush. (Mass.) 410; Baldwin v. City of Buffalo, 29 Barb. (N. Y.) 396; Lumsden v. City of Milwaukee, 8 Wis. 485; Briggs v. Borden, 71 Mich. 87, 38 N. W. 712; Pennoyer v. Mc-Connaughy, 140 U.S. 1, 11 Sup. Ct. 699, 35 L. Ed. 363; to prevent a purpresture; Langsdale v. Bonton, 12 Ind. 467; to restrain the breach of a covenant or agreement; 1 D. M. & G. 619; Singer Sewing-Mach. Co. v. Embroidery Co., 1 Holmes 258, Fed. Cas. No. 12,904, see infra; to restrain the publication of a libel; [1891] 2 Ch. 269; Grand Rapids School Furniture Co. v. Furniture Co., 92 Mich. 558, 52 N. W. 1009, 16 L. R. A. 721, 31 Am. St. Rep. 611; [1892] 1 Ch. 571; but see [1891] 2 Ch. 294; to restrain the alienation of property pending a suit for specific performance; 3 D. J. & S. 63; to restrain the disclosure of confidential communications, papers, and secrets; Kerr, Inj. § 436; Bisph.

N. Y. Supp. 487; 9 Hare 255; to restrain the publication of unpublished manuscripts, letters, etc.; 4 H. L. C. 867; 2 Mer. 437; to restrain members of a firm from doing acts inconsistent with the partnership articles, etc.; 12 Beav. 414; to restrain waste, even though the title be in litigation; Erhardt v. Boaro, 113 U. S. 537, 5 Sup. Ct. 565, 28 L. Ed. 1116; to restrain the cutting of timber on land the title to which is in dispute; Wood v. Braxton, 54 Fed. 1005; to restrain the construction of a permanent tunnel through a lot; Richards v. Dower, 64 Cal. 62, 28 Pac. 113; or a continuous trespass, where a party claims a right of way over the land, the use of which if permitted will ripen into an easement; Murphy v. Lincoln, 63 Vt. 278, 22 Atl. 418; Learned v. Castle, 78 Cal. 454, 18 Pac. 872, 21 Pac. 11; see Warren Mills v. Seed Co., 65 Miss. 391, 4 South. 298, 7 Am. St. Rep. 671; Heilbron v. Canal Co., 75 Cal. 426, 17 Pac. 535, 7 Am. St. Rep. 183; Ellis v. Wren, 84 Ky. 254, 1 S. W. 440; to restrain trespass, leaving the question of title to be settled by a suit at law; Cheesman v. Shreve, 37 Fed. 36; to restrain a railway from entering and taking possession of land without first having acquired the right to do so; Lake Erie & W. R. Co. v. Michener, 117 Ind. 465, 20 N. E. 254; Kansas City, St. J. & C. B. R. Co. v. R. Co., 97 Mo. 457, 10 S. W. 826, 3 L. R. A. 240; to restrain intimidation of workmen by labor unions; Cœur D'Alene Consolidated & Mining Co. v. Miner's Union, 51 Fed. 260, 19 L. R. A. 382 (see LABOR); to restrain a boycott; Casey v. Typographical Union, 45 Fed. 135, 12 L. R. A. 193; to restrain Sunday base ball games; McMillan v. Kuehnle, 76 N. J. Eq. 256, 73 Atl. 1054 (which was put on the ground of nuisance, as the court had no jurisdiction to enforce, by injunction, the Sunday laws); to restrain a defaulting or insolvent executor or administrator from getting in assets; Kerr, Inj. § 451; 1 Will. Exec. 275; to restrain a trustee from the misuse of his powers; 1 Hare 146; to protect certain liens, as that of an equitable mortgagee, or of a solicitor upon his client's papers; 7 D. M. & G. 288; to restrain companies from doing illegal acts, either as against the public or third parties, or the members thereof; 13 Beav. 45; to restrain the unlawful diversion of water; Heilbron v. Canal Co., 75 Cal. 426, 17 Pac. 535, 7 Am. St. Rep. 183; Dayton v. Drainage Com'rs, 128 Ill. 271, 21 N. E. 198; or the pollution of a stream; Barrett v. Cemetery Ass'n, 159 Ill. 385, 42 N. E. 891, 31 L. R. A. 109, 50 Am. St. Rep. 168; or the flowage of land by a water company, unless the award is paid; Wilmington Water-Power Co. v. Evans, 166 Ill. 548, 46 N. E. 1083; to restrain the erection of a house across a public alley; Cohen v. Bank, 81 Ga. 723, 7 S. E. 811. It lies to prevent a threatened breach of trust Eq. 427; Little v. Gallus, 4 App. Div. 569, 38 in the diversion of corporate funds by illegal payment out of its capital or profits; Pollock | v. Trust Co., 157 U. S. 429, 15 Sup. Ct. 673, 39 L. Ed. 759; at the suit of a private person to prevent the publication of his picture (but not where the person is of public reputation); Corliss v. E. W. Walker Co., 64 Fed. 280, 31 L. R. A. 283; but not to restrain the publication of a biography of the complainant or of a member of his family: Corliss v. E. W. Walker Co., 57 Fed. 434; but it will lie to enjoin the publication of a picture of a deceased member of complainant's family, where the respondent had not observed the conditions under which he obtained it; Corliss v. E. W. Walker Co., 57 Fed. 434. See PRIVACY.

Equity will enjoin the construction of a street railway over a part of a turnpike road, the fee of which is owned by the complainant; Philadelphia & Trenton R. Co. v. R. Co., 6 Pa. D. R. 269; at the suit of a wife, whose title is not disputed, will enjoin her husband's creditors from selling her property for payment of his debts; Smith v. Eline, 18 Pa. C. C. R. 560; and will enjoin a hardware store situated in a populous district from keeping and selling dynamite, and from overloading its building with a stock of hardware, when it thereby becomes a menace to passers-by; McDonough v. Roat, 8 Kulp (Pa.) 433.

An injunction will be granted to restrain a company in voluntary liquidation from distributing its assets among its shareholders without providing for future liabilities under a lease; 32 Ch. D. 41; to restrain a husband from going to his wife's house settled to her separate use, in a case where proceedings are pending between them for divorce or a judicial separation, and they are living apart; 24 Ch. 346; to enjoin a husband from dealing with his property where alimony is claimed; [1893] P. 284; [1896] P. 36, but see [1896] P. 35; against trades unionists who maliciously induce employer's contractees to break their contracts; [1893] 1 Q. B. 715; for maliciously inducing an employer to dismiss his employes; [1895] 2 Q. B. 21; against picketing; [1896] 1 Ch. 811; to restrain the publication of notes of a lecture where the audience was limited and were admitted by ticket; 28 Ch. D. 374; to restrain the publication of any valuable information, e. g. of prices communicated to a limited public for a limited purpose; [1896] 1 Q. B. 147; to restrain the sale of a volume of letters; 2 Atk. 341; to restrain the publication of confidential information obtained during service; 19 Q. B. D. 629; such as drawings; [1892] 2 Ch. 518; advertisements; [1893] 1 Ch. 218; to restrain the vendor of a good will from soliciting his former customers; [1896] App. Cas. 7; or a photographer who had taken a likeness of a lady in order to supply her with copies for money, from selling or exhibiting copies; 40 Ch. D.

345; or to prevent a fraudulent transfer or removal from the jurisdiction of a debtor's property, in aid of an execution; People v. Van Buren, 136 N. Y. 252, 32 N. E. 775, 20 L. R. A. 446.

An injunction will not be granted, as a rule, to take property out of the possession of one party and put it into that of another whose title has not been established at law; Lacassagne v. Chapuis, 144 U. S. 119, 12 Sup. Ct. 659, 36 L. Ed. 368; Roy v. Moore, 85 Conn. 159, 82 Atl. 233; Flannery v. Hightower, 97 Ga. 592, 25 S. E. 371 (but record evidence of title is not absolutely necessary to sustain a bill to enjoin an ejectment; Michie v. Ellair, 54 Mich. 518, 20 N. W. 564; and if the plaintiff's title is the better one in respect to possession, an injunction will issue; Dosoris Pond Co. v. Campbell, 25 App. Div. 179, 50 N. Y. Supp. 819; id., 164 N. Y. 596, 58 N. E. 1087); nor where both the possession of realty and the right of possession are in doubt; Stone v. Snell, 4 Neb. (Unof.) 430, 94 N. W. 525; nor where the title to personal property is the sole question in dispute; Kistler v. Weaver, 135 N. C. 388, 47 S. E. 478; nor to restrain a defendant in a case pending for the infringement of letters patent, from issuing circulars alleging that the plaintiff's patent in suit is invalid: Baltimore Car-Wheel Co. v. Bemis, 29 Fed. 95; Kidd v. Horry, 28 Fed. 773; (contra. Emack v. Kane, 34 Fed. 46; Bell v. Mfg. Co., 65 Ga. 452; and it lies in England by statute; 14 Ch. Div. 763; Kidd v. Horry, 28 Fed. 774; L. R. 7 Eq. 488); nor to restrain a patentee who has begun, and is proceeding with, a suit on his patent, from notifying a manufacturer's customers, in a courteous way, that he intends to enforce his rights; New York Filter Co. v. Schwarzwalder, 58 Fed. 577; nor to restrain defendant from falsely representing that a patentee's invention is an infringement of his, and thus deterring purchasers; Whitehead v. Kitson, 119 Mass. 484.

It is necessary to the obtaining an injunction, as to other equitable relief, that there should be no plain, adequate, and complete remedy at law; Greene v. Mumford, 5 R. I. 472, 73 Am. Dec. 79; Thomas v. Protective Union, 121 N. Y. 45, 24 N. E. 24, 8 L. R. A. 175; Pusey v. Wright, 31 Pa. 387; Thomas v. James, 32 Ala. 723; Coe v. Mfg. Co., 37 N. H. 254; Franklin Telegraph Co. v Harrison, 145 U.S. 459, 12 Sup. Ct. 900, 36 L. Ed. 776; where there is adequate remedy at law one will not be granted; Harding v. Hawkins, 141 Ill. 572, 31 N. E. 307, 33 Am. St. Rep. 347; Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Cannon, 49 Fed. 517; Wardens St. Peter's Episcopal Church v. Town of Washington, 109 N. C. 21, 13 S. E. 700; Wolf River Lumber Co. v. Boom Co., 83 Wis. 426, 53 N. W. 678; Planet Property & Financial Co. v. Ry. Co., 115 Mo. 613, 22 S. W. 616. An injunction will not be granted while the rights between the parties are undetermined, except in cases where material and irreparable injury will be done; Spring v. Strauss, 3 Bosw. (N. Y.) 607; Bell v. Purvis, 15 Md. 22; Burnett v. Whitesides, 13 Cal. 156; Branch Turnpike Co. v. Board of Sup'rs, id. 190; Reed v. Jones, 6 Wis. 680; Watrous v. Rodgers, 16 Tex. 410; Patterson v. McCamant, 28 Mo. 210; Cohen v. L'Engle, 24 Fla. 542, 5 South. 235; but where it is irreparable and of a nature which cannot be compensated, and where there will be no adequate remedy, an injunction will be granted; Webber v. Gage, 39 N. H. 182; Pope v. Inhabitants of Halifax, 12 Cush. (Mass.) 410; Cunningham v. R, Co., 27 Ga. 499; U. S. v. Parrott, 1 McAll. 271, Fed. Cas. No. 15,-998; Wood v. Braxton, 54 Fed. 1005; Griffith v. Hilliard, 64 Vt. 643, 25 Atl. 427. preliminary injunction against the infringement of a patent will not be granted in case of doubt as to the infringement; Norton Door Check & Spring Co. v. Hall, 87 Fed. 691; where defendant confessedly intends to regain possession of certain premises by force, such act being punishable as a breach of the peace, he will not be restrained by injunction; Latham v. R. Co., 45 Fed. 721.

The owner of a dwelling-house, called for 60 years "Ashford Lodge," is not entitled to an injunction restraining the proprietor of an adjoining house known as "Ashford Villa" for 40 years from changing its name to "Ashford Lodge"; 10 Ch. D. 294. injunction will not lie to prevent a club from carrying out the decision of the members when acting under their rules, unless it be shown that the rules are contrary to natural justice, or that what has been done is contrary to the rules, or that there has been bad faith in a decision; 5 Eq. 63; 13 Ch. D. 346; 17 Ch. D. 615. A member of an incorporated club has a standing in equity for an injunction to restrain the club from carrying out its declared purpose of committing an act which, if found to be criminal, will imperil the charter of the club; Klein v. Livingston Club, 177 Pa. 224, 35 Atl. 606, 34 L. R. A. 94, 55 Am. St. Rep. 717.

Where there was a conspiracy to prevent workmen by intimidation or persuasion from entering into or continuing in the plaintiff's employment, an injunction was granted to restrain the maintenance of a patrol of two men in front of the plaintiff's premises, placed there in furtherance of such conspiracy; Vegelahn v. Guntner, 167 Mass. 92, 44 N. E. 1077, 35 L. R. A. 722, 57 Am. St. Rep. 443; but a corporation is not entitled to an injunction against persons or organizations on the ground that they have conspired to injure it by compelling its members to leave it; Silver State Council No. 1 of American Order of Steam Engineers v. Rhodes, 7 Colo. App. 211, 43 Pac. 451. See BOYCOTT.

works, the fact that by so doing it would violate contract rights of an existing water company does not give an individual property owner the right to enjoin the city on the ground that his taxes would be increased thereby; Moore v. City of Walla Walla, 60 Fed. 961.

Equity will not enjoin a municipal corporation in the exercise of its lawful powers, unless the proposed act is ultra vires and would work irreparable injury: Murphy v. East Portland, 42 Fed. 308; but a resident taxpayer and real estate owner is entitled to bring a suit to enjoin the execution of a municipal contract illegally awarded, whatever may be alleged to be his ulterior purpose; Mazet v. City of Pittsburgh, 137 Pa. 561, 20 Atl. 693.

An injunction against a newspaper to restrain it from copying literary matter from another newspaper will not be refused because such is the practice of newspapers; [1892] 3 Ch. 489, where the cases are collected.

In England, equity, in special cases of contracts for personal services, will restrain the violation of the contract, whenever the legal remedy of damages would be inadequate and the contract is of such a kind that its negative specific enforcement is possible. rule was at first applied to contracts which were in form expressly negative, but has since been extended to affirmative contracts which imply negative stipulations; Pom. Eq. Jur. § 1343; L. R. 16 Eq. 149; Western Union Telegraph Co. v. R. Co., 1 McCra. 558, 3 Fed. 423; Western Union Telegraph Co. v. R. Co., 1 McCra. 565, 3 Fed. 430; Singer Sewing Mach. Co. v. Embroidery Co., 1 Holmes 253, Fed. Cas. No. 12,904. But where there was a contract for personal service containing a stipulation by the employed that he will "act exclusively for" his employer, the employed will not be restrained by injunction from entering the employ of another person in the absence of a negative covenant in the contract, express or implied, which is clear and definite; 75 L. T. Rep. 526; Sternberg v. O'Brien, 48 N. J. Eq. 370, 22 Atl. 348.

An injunction will not be granted to enforce a part of a bilateral contract where it cannot specifically enforce the whole; Welty v. Jacobs, 171 Ill. 624, 49 N. E. 723, 40 L. R. A. 98, 49 N. E. 723; unless the terms of the agreement are distinct and independent; 6 Sim. 333; 1 De G., M. & G. 604.

An injunction restraining the breach of a contract is a negative specific enforcement of that contract. The jurisdiction of equity to grant such injunction is substantially coincident with its jurisdiction to compel specific performance, and wherever a contract is one of a class which will be specifically enforced, a court of equity will restrain its breach by injunction, if this is the only practical mode Where a city had power to build water- of enforcement; Welty v. Jacobs, 171 Ill. 624, 49 N. E. 723, 40 L. R. A. 98. The breach of a negative promise will be enjoined whenever the contract is one of which the court would decree specific performance, if by such decree its observance by the party refusing to perform could be practically enforced; Metropolitan Exhibition Co. v. Ewing, 42 Fed. 198, 7 L. R. A. 381.

In this class of cases it is considered proper to interfere directly by preventing a breach which the person has bound himself not to make; L. R. 43 Ch. Div. 165; 1 De G. M., & G. 604. If the negative remedy of injunction will oblige the defendant either to carry out his contract or to lose all benefit of the breach, and the remedy at law is inadequate, and there is no reason of policy against it, the court will restrain conduct which is contrary to the contract, although it may be unable to enforce a specific performance of it; Philadelphia Ball Club v. Lajole, 202 Pa. 210, 51 Atl. 973, 58 L. R. A. 227, 90 Am. St. Rep. 627.

Usually, in view of the peculiar personal relations which result from a contract of service, it would be inexpedient from the standpoint of public policy, to attempt to enforce such a contract specifically. It is held to be an invasion of one's natural liberty to compel him to work for another. One who is placed under such constraint is in a condition of involuntary servitude; Arthur v. Oakes, 63 Fed. 310, 11 C. C. A. 209, 25 L. R. A. 414. But where the promised service is of a special, unique, or unusual and extraordinary or intellectual character which gives it peculiar value, the loss of which can not be reasonably compensated in damages in an action at law, an injunction will be granted where there is an express negative covenant; Philadelphia Ball Club v. Lajoie, 202 Pa. 210, 51 Atl. 973, 58 L. R. A. 227, 90 Am. St. Rep. 627; Duff v. Russell, 14 N. Y. Supp. 134, affirmed 133 N. Y. 678, 31 N. E. 622; [1894] 1 Q. B. 125; 1 De G., M. & G. 604; but there must be a clear and definite negative covenant; Gossard Co. v. Crosby, 132 Ia. 155, 109 N. W. 483, 6 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1115, and note; or, if one is to be implied, which is quite possible, it must be so definite that the court can see exactly the limit of the injunction that it is to grant; 75 L. T. N. S. 528, following [1891] 2 Ch. 428, where it was held that from a contract by an agent to act exclusively for his employer, a negative covenant not to do business for other employers could not be implied. In the Iowa case above cited, it is said: "The better and greater weight of the authorities tends to these conclusions: 1. That equity will not undertake to decree specific performance of contracts for personal service. 2. In the absence of an express negative covenant, equity will not aid the enforcement of these contracts by injunction. 3. Even when there is not be granted save in exceptional cases where by reason of the peculiar or extraordinary character of the promised service, a violation of the agreement will cause injury to the other party for which an action at law will afford no adequate remedy."

An injunction will be granted where the remedy at law, though there be one, is inade-To protect an innocent purchaser of the stock and good-will of a business by enjoining the sale thereof by the sheriff, where the damages recoverable would be only for the value of the stock, without compensation for the loss of business; North v. Peters, 138 U. S. 271, 11 Sup. Ct. 346, 34 L Ed. 936; to prevent the illegal sale of a church-pew under an attachment, upon the ground that it would be an outrage to the owners' religious feelings; Deutsch v. Stone, 27 Weekly Law Bull. (Ohio) 20; to prevent the illegal issue of corporate bonds; Denny v. Denny, 113 Ind. 22, 14 N. E. 593; Watson v. Sutherland, 5 Wall. (U. S.) 74, 18 L. Ed. 580; to prevent the destruction of ornamental trees on the plaintiff's grounds; Shipley v. Ritter, 7 Md. 408, 61 Am. Dec. 371; to restrain the cutting off of the supply of natural gas furnished under a contract; Graves v. Gas Co., 83 Ia. 714, 50 N. W. 283; where the redress at law would be inadequate by reason of the defendant's insolvency; Saltus v. Belford Co., 133 N. Y. 499, 31 N. E. 518. An injunction will be granted to enjoin a public nuisance if it be continuous and peculiarly injures the plaintiff or his property; Lamming v. Galusha, 135 N. Y. 239, 31 N. E. 1024; or where a criminal prosecution is threatened, under color of an invalid statute, for the purpose of compelling the relinquishment of a property right; Central Trust Co. v. R. Co., 80 Fed. 218.

An injunction will not be granted on the application of a private person, to protect purely public rights; Springer v. Walters, 139 Ill. 419, 28 N. E. 761; nor, except in a great emergency, to interfere with public improvements; Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Everett, 40 N. J. Eq. 350, 3 Atl. 126; nor to restrain the abuse of a public trust, unless the complainant can show some peculiar interest therein; Chicago v. Building Ass'n, 102 IIL 379, 40 Am. Rep. 598; nor to compel the lessees of an opera house to allow the plaintiff to use the house under a contract therefor, where the effect would be to compel the lessee to break a contract with an innocent third party; Foster v. Ballenberg, 43 Fed. 821; nor to prevent the maintenance of a nuisance on a highway where it could be abated by indictment; Inhabitants of the Township of Raritan v. R. Co., 49 N. J. Eq. 11, 23 Atl. 127.

sence of an express negative covenant, equity will not aid the enforcement of these contracts by injunction.

3. Even when there is an express negative covenant, injunction will

As a general rule equity has no jurisdiction to enjoin criminal prosecutions; Minneapolis Brewing Co. v. McGillivray, 104 Fed. 258; Fitts v. McGhee, 172 U. S. 516, 19 Sup.

Ct. 289, 43 L. Ed. 535; Davis & F. Mfg. Co. v. Los Angeles, 189 U. S. 207, 23 Sup. Ct. 498, 47 L. Ed. 778; In re Sawyer, 124 U. S. 200, 8 Sup. Ct. 482, 31 L. Ed. 402; Portis v. Fall, 34 Ark. 375; Paulk v. City of Sycamore, 104 Ga. 24, 30 S. E. 417, 41 L. R. A. 772, 69 Am. St. Rep. 128; State v. Wood, 155 Mo. 425, 56 S. W. 474, 48 L. R. A. 596; Flaherty v. Fleming, 58 W. Va. 669, 52 S. E. 857, 3 L. R. A. (N. S.) 461. So enforcement of contempt proceedings will not be enjoined; Sanders v. Metcalf, 1 Tenn. Ch. 419; Tyler v. Hamersley, 44 Conn. 419, 26 Am. Rep. 471; nor impeachment of city officers, where the power to impeach is given by charter; State v. Judges of Civil Dist. Court, 35 La. Ann. 1075.

There are cases, however, which form an exception to the general rule, in which it has been held that criminal acts may be restrained by injunction. In In re Sawyer, 124 U.S. 200, 8 Sup. Ct. 482, 31 L. Ed. 402, Field, J., says: "In many cases proceedings criminal in their character, taken by individuals or organized bodies of men, tending, if carried out to despoil one of his property or other rights, may be enjoined by a court of equity." This is on the ground that the action sought to be enjoined is in the nature of a fraudulent use or an abuse of legal proceedings where the rights of the applicant for an injunction are clear, and the proceedings are obviously nothing but a circuitous method of depriving him of his property, or where municipal authorities are in fact attacking the vested property rights of individuals or corporations; Georgia Ry. & Elec. Co. v. Oakland City, 129 Ga. 576, 59 S. E. 296, where it was held that as a clear right was being invaded under an invalid ordinance, an injunction, might be granted, not against the proceeding altogether but against the excessive multiplicity of prosecutions. And injunctions were granted where a city attempted unlawfully to destroy a railroad franchise which it had no right to revoke, by means of a quasi criminal ordinance; Port of Mobile v. R. Co., 84 Ala. 115, 4 South. 106, 5 Am. St. Rep. 342; also where a city sought, by threatening arrest and prosecution of its employees, to prevent a railroad company from fencing a strip of land forming a part of its right of way but which it was sought to claim as a street; Georgia R. & Banking Co. v. Atlanta, 118 Ga. 486, 45 S. E. 256; and city officials were enjoined from closing a club house under an invalid ordinance which declared that every place where liquor was sold was a nuisance; Canon City v. Manning, 43 Colo. 144, 95 Pac. 537, 17 L. R. A. (N. S.) 272. But an injunction was refused against a county attorney for prosecuting salesmen for the sale of alcohol to druggists for use as a drug, on the ground that such sales were not in violation of the law, and that it was a question for the criminal court; Greiner-Kelley Drug Co. v. Truett, 97 Tex. 377, 79 S. W. 4.

So an injunction is sometimes granted to prevent an illegal action which is also a crime. The indictment is a punitive and not a preventive remedy and therefore does not oust the jurisdiction of equity; State v. Maury, 2 Del. Ch. 141; or it may be granted against acts which are indictable when they make a continuing injury to property or business; Vegelahn v. Guntner, 167 Mass. 92, 44 N. E. 1077, 35 L. R. A. 722, 57 Am. St. Rep. 443. This comparatively recent development of equity jurisdiction is now comparatively well settled. Its efficiency has been in preventing the evils of strikes. See Judge Taft's Address, Report of Amer. Bar Ass'n, 1895, p. 265; 6 L. R. Eq. 551; Cœur d'Alene Consolidated & Min. Co. v. Miners' Union, 51 Fed. 260, 19 L. R. A. 382; Toledo, A. A. & N. M. Ry. Co. v. Pennsylvania Co., 54 Fed. 730, 19 L. R. A. 387; Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. v. R. Co., 60 Fed. 803; Arthur v. Oakes, 63 Fed. 310, 11 C. C. A. 209, 25 L. R. A. 414; U. S. v. Agler, 62 Fed. 824; Hamilton-Brown Shoe Co. v. Saxey, 131 Mo. 212, 32 S. W. 1106, 52 Am. St. Rep. 622; In re Debs, 158 U. S. 564, 15 Sup. Ct. 900, 39 L. Ed. 1092; 33 Am. L. Reg. (N. S.) 609.

An injunction has also been granted to restrain a prize fight; Columbian Athletic Club v. State, 143 Ind. 98, 40 N. E. 914, 28 L. R. A. 727, 52 Am. St. Rep. 407; 35 Am. L. Reg. (N. S.) 100; an injunction will lie to restrain railroad employees from acts of violence and intimidation and from enforcing rules of labor unions resulting in irremediable injury to the company and the public, such as those requiring an arbitrary strike without cause; Toledo, A. A. & N. M. Ry. Co. v. Pennsylvania Co., 54 Fed. 746, 19 L. R. A. 395. And also to restrain a railroad company and its employees from refusing to interchange interstate commerce, freight, and traffic facilities with a connecting line of railway; Toledo, A. A. & N. M. Ry. Co. v. Pennsylvania Co., 54 Fed. 730, 19 L. R. A.

An injunction will be granted to restrain one from inducing a breach of a contract of employment; Employing Printers' Club v. Doctor Blosser Co., 122 Ga. 509, 50 S. E. 353, 69 L. R. A. 90, 106 Am. St. Rep. 137, 2 Ann. Cas. 694; Flaccus v. Smith, 199 Pa. 133, 48 Atl. 894, 54 L. R. A. 640, 85 Am. St. Rep. 779; [1903] 2 K. B. 545; Beekman v. Marsters, 195 Mass. 205, 80 N. E. 817, 11 L. R. A. (N. S.) 201, 122 Am. St. Rep. 232, 11 Ann. Cas. 332. where it is said, "No case has been cited which holds that a right to compete justifies a defendant in intentionally inducing a third person to take away from the plaintiff his contractual rights"; and in [1902] 2 K. B. 86, in discussing the rights of a labor union to induce the plaintiff's employers to break their contract of apprenticeship with him, it is said: "The plaintiffs have a cause of action against the defendants, unless the court is satisfied when they interfered with the contractual right of the plaintiff, the defendants had a sufficient justification for their interference. I think their sufficient justification for interference with plaintiff's right must be an equal or superior right in themselves, and that no one can legally excuse himself to a man of whose contract he has procured a breach on the ground that he acted on a wrong understanding of his own rights, or without malice or bona fide, or in the best interests of himself, nor even that he acted as an altruist, seeking the good of another and careless of his own advantage."

So a malicious interference with an existing contract will be restrained; American Law Book Co. v. Edward Thompson Co., 41 Misc. 396, 84 N. Y. Supp. 225; or an attempt to induce a breach of a contract for the exclusive sale of a certain article within a certain territory; New York Phonograph Co. v. Jones, 123 Fed. 197; or one for the sale of manufactured articles under certain restrictions either as to the price on a re-sale or as to the manner of their use; Dr. Miles Medical Co. v. Goldthwaite, 133 Fed. 794.

But it has been held that, where defendants maliciously and by slanderous representations induced their son to break an engagement of marriage with the plaintiff, the plaintiff had no right of action against the defendants; Leonard v. Whetstone, 34 Ind. App. 383, 68 N. E. 197, 107 Am. St. Rep. 252.

The granting of an injunction is not limited to a case where damages could not be recovered in an action at law; Schuyler v. Curtis, 15 N. Y. Supp. 787; but as a general rule it will not be granted where the party may be compensated in damages; Lewis v. Lumber Co., 99 N. C. 11, 5 S. E. 19.

In England and here this writ was formerly used as the means of enforcing their decisions, orders, and decrees. But subsequent statutes have in most cases given to courts of equity the power of enforcing their decrees by the ordinary process of execution against the property of the party; so that an injunction to enforce the performance of a decree is now seldom necessary. See Decree; Writ of Assistance.

Injunctions may be used to restrain the commencement or the continuance of proceedings in foreign courts, upon the same principles upon which they are used to restrain proceedings at law in courts of the same state or country where such injunction is granted, the jurisdiction in this class of cases, however, being purely in personam; 3 Myl. & K. 104; Story, Eq. Jur. § 899; High, Inj. § 103; Bisph. Eq. 424. But a state court will not grant an injunction to stay proceedings at law previously commenced in a federal court. But it is otherwise when the state court has first acquired jurisdiction;

Home Ins. Co. v. Howell, 24 N. J. Eq. 238; Akerly v. Vilas, 15 Wis. 401; Knowlton v. Steamship Co., 53 N. Y. 76. Nor will a federal court grant an injunction to stay proceedings at law previously commenced in a state court, except where such injunction may be authorized by any law relating to proceedings in bankruptcy; Dial v. Reynolds, 96 U. S. 340, 24 L. Ed. 644; such suit being prohibited by U. S. R. S. § 720. As to what suits to enjoin state officers are suits against the state, see STATE.

And upon the ground of comity, as well as from principles of public policy, the equity courts of one state will not grant an injunction to stay proceedings previously commenced in a court of a sister state, where the courts of such sister state have the power to afford the party applying for the injunction the equitable relief to which he is entitled; Harris v. Pullman, 84 Ill. 20, 25 Am. Rep. 416; the power exists but could not be exercised where the court of law has concurrent jurisdiction and first assumed it, unless there be some special equity; Bank of Bellows Falls v. R. Co., 28 Vt. 470; but in a proper case, the equity courts of one state can restrain persons within their jurisdiction from the prosecution of suits in another state; Cole v. Cunningham, 133 U. S. 107, 10 Sup. Ct. 269, 33 L. Ed. 538; Bigelow v. Smelting Co., 74 N. J. Eq. 457, 71 Atl. 153.

A very strong case should be made out to warrant a court of equity in interfering with a judgment at law; Hines v. Beers, 76 Ga. 9; Whitehill v. Butler, 51 Ark. 341, 11 S. W. 477; but it will enjoin a judgment at law if the matters set up in the bill, as a ground of relief, constitute equities unavailable as a defence in the action at law; Johnson v. Christian, 128 U. S. 374, 9 Sup. Ct. 87, 32 L. Ed. 412; no injunction against proceedings at law will issue where the plaintiff has a good defence at law; Cruickshank v. Bidwell, 176 U.S. 73, 20 Sup. Ct. 280, 44 L. Ed. 377; Clark v. Reeder, 40 Fed. 513. An injunction will lie to restrain a multiplicity of suits; Blindell v. Hagan, 54 Fed. 40. See MULTIPLICITY.

Established principles of equity jurisdiction are: (1) That one may not be enjoined from doing lawful acts to protect and enforce his rights of property or of person, unless his acts to that effect are clearly shown to be done unnecessarily, not for the purpose of preserving and enforcing his rights, but maliciously to vex, annoy and injure another; and (2) that where the injury to the applicant, if the preliminary injunction is refused, will be probably greater than the injury to the opponent if it is granted, it should be issued; while if the contrary is the probable result the application for it should be denied; Kryptok Co. v. Lens Co., 190 Fed. 767, 111 C. C. A. 495, 39 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1, citing Russell v. Farley, 105 U. S. 433, 26 L. Ed.

1060; Shubert v. Woodward, 167 Fed. 47, 92 C. C. A. 509; Blount v. Societe, 53 Fed. 98, 8 C. C. A. 455.

An injunction bill is usually sworn to by the complainant, or is verified by the oath of some other person who is cognizant of the facts and charges contained in such bill, so far at least as relates to the allegations in the bill upon which the application for the preliminary injunction is based. an order allowing such injunction is thereupon obtained by a special application, either with or without notice to the party enjoined and with or without security to such party, as the law or the rules and practice of the court may have prescribed in particular classes of cases; Perry v. Parker, 1 W. & M. 280, Fed. Cas. No. 11,010. Unless a preliminary injunction is to be applied for, a bill ordinarily need not be sworn to.

Equity rule 78 (U. S. S. C., 33 Sup. Ct. xxxix) provides that no temporary restraining order shall be made unless upon affidavit or a verified bill.

The bill must disclose a primary equity in aid of which this secondary remedy is asked; Washington v. Emery, 57 N. C. 29; Smith v. Lard, 28 Ga. 585; Pittman v. Robicheau, 14 La. Ann. 108.

Where the plaintiff has slept on his rights and allowed the alleged wrong to exist for a long time, he is not entitled to an injunction; Morris v. Edwards, 62 Tex. 205; as where the plaintiff had permitted the completion of the building which he sought to enjoin; Orne v. Fridenberg, 143 Pa. 487, 22 Atl. 832, 24 Am. St. Rep. 567; and where the plaintiff who was the owner of land bounded by a highway, permitted a railway to be built on the highway; Planet Property & Financial Co. v. Ry. Co., 115 Mo. 613, 22 8. W. 616. But it is otherwise where the plaintiff seeks the aid of an injunction for the protection of his legal rights, there being laches, but nothing to constitute an estoppel; Syracuse Solar Salt Co. v. R. Co., 67 Hun 153, 22 N. Y. Supp. 321. But delay in bringing suit is not a defence if it appear that matters still remain in statu quo; 2 Sim. N. S. 78. An injunction in a patent case will not be granted where, by reason of the plaintiff's delay, the defendant would be subjected to special hardship; Ney Mfg. Co. v. Drill Co., 56 Fed. 152; nor where the plaintiff has been guilty of misrepresentations as to his goods covered by a trademark; Manhattan Medicine Co. v. Wood, 108 U. S. 218, 2 Sup. Ct. 436, 27 L. Ed. 706; Joseph v. Macowsky, 96 Cal. 518, 31 Pac. 914, 19 L. R. A. 53. An injunction will not be granted when the plaintiff's right is doubtful; Babcock & Wilcox Co. v. Exposition Co., 54 Fed. 214; Preston v. Smith, 26 Fed. 884; nor, it has been held, where the right on which it is claimed is, as a matter of law, unsettled; Citizens' Coach Co. v. R. Co., 29

N. J. Eq. 299; Delaware, Lackawanna & W. R. Co. v. Transit Co., 43 N. J. Eq. 71, 10 Atl. 490.

Formerly the plaintiff could not obtain relief by injunction until his rights had been settled at law; Gardner v. Newburgh, 2 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 162, 7 Am. Dec. 526; but this doctrine is not now maintained.

Injunctions are not granted where complainant's rights are not clear, and where an injury more or less irreparable is not likely to result unless defendants are enjoined; Delaware, L. & W. R. Co. v. Transit Co., 45 N. J. Eq. 50, 17 Atl. 146, 6 L. R. A.

An injunction is ordinarily preventive, and will not be granted to correct a wrong already done or restore to a party rights of which he has been deprived; Com'rs of Highways v. Deboe, 43 Ill. App. 25; East Saginaw St. Ry. v. Wildman, 58 Mich. 286, 25 N. W. 193.

There must be at least a reasonable probability of injury to the plaintiff in order to justify an injunction; Genet v. Canal Co. & Co., 122 N. Y. 505, 25 N. E. 922; Lorenz v. Waldron, 96 Cal. 243, 31 Pac. 54; a mere threat of injury is not ordinarily a sufficient ground; Bond v. Wool, 107 N. C. 139, 12 S. E. 281; Johnson Railroad Signal Co. v. Signal Co., 55 Fed. 487, 5 C. C. A. 204. There must be a well-grounded apprehension of immediate injury; Potter v. Street Ry., 83 Mich. 285, 47 N. W. 217, 10 L. R. A. 176; Ruge v. Fish Co., 25 Fla. 656, 6 South. 489; Sherman v. Clark, 4 Nev. 142, 97 Am. Dec. 516. It is not necessary to prove that a wrong has actually been committed; where rights had been infringed, and the party has good reason to believe they will be infringed, an injunction will issue;, Poppenhusen v. Comb Co., 4 Blatch. 184, Fed. Cas. No. 11,281. A bill will lie for an injunction, if a patent right has been admitted, upon the wellgrounded proof of an intention to violate the right; Woodworth v. Stone, 3 Story, 749, Fed. Cas. No. 18,021. A bill in equity will lie for an injunction to prevent an anticipated infringement of a patent, no infringement having actually occurred: Sherman v. Nutt, 35 Fed. 149; where there was no proof of actual sales, but the defendant had exhibited his lamps at a fair, and distributed circulars to the public and otherwise advertised his lamps for sale, it was held that if sales had not actually been made, such a wrong was threatened, and that was sufficient to call for an injunction; White v. Heath, 10 Fed. Where the defendant had formerly been engaged in infringing, the mere fact that since the commencement of the suit he had ceased to do so and did not threaten to renew his sales, is not an answer to an application for a preliminary injunction to restrain the continuance or renewal of such infringement; Potter v. Crowell, 3 Fish. Pat. Cas. 112, Fed. Cas. No. 11,323.

An injunction writ should contain upon its face sufficient to inform the party enjoined of what he is restrained from doing or from permitting to be done by those who are under his control, without the necessity of his resorting to the complainant's bill; Summers v. Farish, 10 Cal. 347.

Where a preliminary injunction is needed, the complainant's bill should contain a proper prayer for such process; Walker v. Devereau, 4 Paige Ch. (N. Y.) 229; Sullivan v. Judah, 4d. 444; 3 Sim. 273. Damages for breach of covenant may be decreed in conjunction with relief by injunction; Stofflet v. Stofflet, 160 Pa. 529, 28 Atl. 857. A court of equity may impose any terms in its discretion as a condition of granting or continuing an injunction; Myers v. Block, 120 U. S. 206, 7 Sup. Ct. 525, 30 L. Ed. 642.

The remedy of the party injured by the violation of an injunction by the party enjoined is by an application to the court to punish the party enjoined for contempt in disobeying the process of the court; People v. McKane, 78 Hun 154, 28 N. Y. Supp. 981; Lake Erie & W. Ry. Co. v. Bailey, 61 Fed. 494.

To render a person amenable to an injunction, it is neither necessary that he be a party to the suit or served with a copy of it, so long as he appears to have had actual notice; Ex parte Lennon, 166 U. S. 548, 17 Sup. Ot. 658, 41 L. Ed. 1110; and a stranger with notice or knowledge of its terms, is bound thereby, and may be punished for contempt for violating its provision; State v. Lavery, 31 Or. 77, 49 Pac. 852; Garrigan v. U. S., 163 Fed. 16, 89 C. C. A. 494, 23 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1295; O'Brien v. People, 216 Ill. 354, 75 N. E. 108, 108 Am. St. Rep. 219, 3 Ann. Cas. 988

Where trustees of a friendly society who had been enjoined from distributing certain funds, resigned, and their successors, with notice of the injunction, proceeded to make the forbidden distribution, both sets of trustees were held to be in contempt and were committed; 51 L. J. Ch. 414. See 66 L. T. Ch. D. 267.

Where the complainant in an injunction case after its issue contracted with the defendant in reference to the subject matter in a way inconsistent with the injunction, such contract would relieve from contempt for violating it; Howard v. Durand, 36 Ga. 346, 91 Am. Dec. 767; Com. v. Ward, 5 Pa. Co. Ct. 479; James v. Mayrant, Harp. Eq. (S. C.) 180; Rodgers v. Nowill, 17 Jur. 111; Kempson v. Kempson, 61 N. J. Eq. 303, 48 Atl. 244; but a mere acquiescence in the violation of the injunction was held insufficient; Bond v. Pennsylvania Co., 126 Fed. 749, 61 which the defendant is enjoined from selling in order to ascertain whether the injunction is being violated, is not such an invitation to violate it as to relieve from the contempt; Ex parte Cash, 50 Tex. Cr. R. 623, 99 S. W. 1118, 9 L. R. A. (N. S.) 304, 123 Am. St. Rep. 865. The mere consent or solicitation of one party to the violation of the injunction by the other will not justify it, but there must be some action by the court; Bowers v.

See CONTEMPT. Von Schmidt, 87 Fed. 293. Lord Cairns' Act (21 & 22 Vict. c. 27, § 2) conferred upon the Court of Chancery jurisdiction to award damages in lieu of an in-It enacts that "in all cases in junction. which the Court of Chancery has jurisdiction to entertain an application for an injunction * * * against the commission or continuance of any wrongful act * it shall be lawful for the same court, if it shall think fit, to award damages to the party injured, either in addition to or in substitution for such injunction." "Such jurisdiction ought not to be exercised except under very exceptional circumstances. I will not attempt to specify them or lay down rules for the exercise of judicial discretion. It is sufficient to refer by way of example to trivial and occasional nuisances; cases in which a plaintiff has shown that he only wants money; vexatious and oppressive cases; and cases where the plaintiff has so conducted himself as to render it unjust to give him more than pecuniary relief. all such cases as these and in all others where an action for damages is really an adequate remedy-as where the acts complained of are already finished-an injunction can be properly refused"; Per Lindley, L. J., in [1895] 1 Ch. 287, 316.

In this country there has been no legislation by Congress except as to one class of cases, and the federal courts of equity have no inherent power to ascertain the damages sustained by reason of tortious acts unattended with profits to the wrong doer. It was said, in relation to this subject, that it required an act of parliament to change the law in England, and the only modification to be found in the federal law is with respect to the infringement of patents which has been effected by direct act of congress. R. S. § 4921; Corbin v. Taussig, 137 Fed.

In some cases in the state courts damages have been settled as an incident to injunctive relief "under special circumstances"; Reese v. Wright, 98 Md. 272, 56 Atl. 976; or the right to an account for past damages as an incident to the injunction suit to restrain a continuing trespass; Lonsdale Co. v. Woonsocket, 25 R. I. 428, 56 Atl. 448; Roberts v. Vest, 126 Ala. 355, 28 South. 412; or damages for past injury in a suit to re-C. C. A. 355; and a mere offer by an agent strain further detention of land; Busby v. of the complainant to purchase an article Mitchell, 29 S. C. 447, 7 S. E. 618; and in one case past damages for a nuisance were held recoverable under a practice act in an injunction suit; Platt v. City of Waterbury, 72 Conn. 531, 45 Atl. 154, 48 L. R. A. 691, 77 Am. St. Rep. 335. But it was held that damages for past overflows of land, the right to recover which was complete at the time of filing the bill and which could be enforced in a single action at law, could not be recovered in a suit to enjoin future overflows; Stephenson v. Morgan, 64 N. J. Eq. 219, 53 Atl. 677; and where the suit was to enjoin a trespass, the judgment could only cover such damages as had accrued and not permanent ones; Stowers v. Gilbert, 156 N. Y. 600, 51 N. E. 282; and in one state it was held that where the Court of Chancery, prior to the adoption of the constitution, had jurisdiction in a case independently of any statute, the legislature could not confer jurisdiction to adjudicate damages as incident to an injunction against a trespass; McMillan v. Wiley, 45 Fla. 487, 33 South. 993.

A remainderman or reversioner in a suit to enjoin waste may, to avoid multiplicity of actions, have damages as at law; Williamson v. Jones, 43 W. Va. 562, 27 S. E. 411, 38 L. R. A. 694, 64 Am. St. Rep. 891; Corbin v. Taussig, supra. But as a rule damages are not recoverable in equity; see Pom. Eq. Jur. §§ 112, 178.

In many jurisdictions in a suit for injunction it is held that affirmative relief may be given to the defendant as well as an injunction relating to the same matter; Sternberg v. Wolff. 56 N. J. Eq. 389, 39 Atl. 397, 39 L. R. A. 762, 67 Am. St. Rep. 494; Collinsville Granite Co. v. Phillips, 123 Ga. 830, 51 S. E. 666; Smith v. Richardson, 1 Utah, 245.

Equity will restrain the commission of injuries outside of its territorial jurisdiction, by a decree in personam, where it has acquired jurisdiction over the defendant. Such are suits for the specific performance of contracts, for the enforcement of trusts, for relief on the ground of fraud, for settling partnership accounts; Pom. Eq. Jur. § 1318. Penn v. Lord Baltimore, 1 Ves. Sen. 144; Brown v. Desmond, 100 Mass. 267; Newton v. Bronson, 13 N. Y. 587, 67 Am. Dec. 89; Tardy v. Morgan, 3 McLean, 358, Fed. Cas. No. 13,752; Potter v. Hollister, 45 N. J. Eq. 508, 18 Atl. 204; and where a resident of another state having no property in the state of the forum is a plaintiff in an action at law, he is so far amenable to the jurisdiction of the courts of that state that an injunction bill may be entertained against him; Chalmers v. Hack, 19 Me. 124; a defendant may be enjoined from committing waste upon property situated abroad; Marshall v. Turnbull, 32 Fed. 124. But where is specific property, and the relief such that, if granted, it must act directly upon the sub- granted by such courts respectively. But apject-matter, and not upon the person of the defendant, the jurisdiction must be exercised in the place where the subject-matter is situated, as a suit to abate a nuisance; Pom. Eq. Jur. § 1318; Miss. & Mo. R. R. Co. v.

Ward, 2 Black (U. S.) 485, 17 L. Ed. 311. An injunction may issue to restrain a party over whom the court has jurisdiction from bringing a suit in a foreign state which would result in oppression; Royal League v. Kavanagh, 233 Ill. 175, 84 N. E. 178. The rule has been applied to a divorce suit; Kempson v. Kempson, 63 N. J. Eq. 783, 52 Atl. 360, 625, 58 L. R. A. 484, 92 Am. St. Rep. 682; to a patent suit where suits in another jurisdiction were enjoined until the pending cause should be decided; Commercial Acetylene Co. v. Lighting Co., 159 Fed. 935, 87 C. C. A. 206; and to a suit for the administration of a trust fund, where the fund and all the contesting creditors were within the state; O'Connor v. Root, 130 Ia. 553, 107 N. W. 608; also to a case where the foreign jurisdiction was sought in order to evade the laws of the domicil; Sandage v. Mfg. Co., 142 Ind. 148, 41 N. E. 380, 34 L. R. A. 363, 51 Am. St. Rep. 165; Miller v. Gittings, 85 Md. 601, 37 Atl. 372, 37 L. R. A. 654, 60 Am. St. Rep. 352; and to a case in which insolvency proceedings were pending and a creditor sought to prosecute attachment proceedings in another state; Hazen v. Bank, 70 Vt. 543, 41 Atl. 1046, 67 Am. St. Rep. 680; and where a party had accepted a legacy under a will and threatened proceedings in another state attacking the will; Rader v. Stubblefield, 43 Wash. 334, 86 Pac. 560, 10 Ann. Cas. 20; or where a party had recognized the validity of an assessment for creditors and was about to seek a preference over other creditors by proceedings in another state; Kendall v. Coke Co., 182 Pa. 1, 37 Atl. 823, 61 Am. St. Rep. 688; also where the foreign suit involved the same cause of action and was intended to reach practically the same result; Webster v. Ins. Co., 62 Misc. 345, 115 N. Y. Supp. 892; United Cigarette Mach. Co. v. Wright, 156 Fed. Where the court could not enforce its 244. decree, no injunction will be granted; Hawley v. Bank, 134 Ill. App. 96; American School-Furniture Co. v. J. M. Sauder Co., 106 Fed. 731. See a full note in 25 L. R. A. (N. S.) 267; and see Kessler v. Eldred, 206 U. S. 285, 27 Sup. Ct. 611, 51 L. Ed. 1065.

Where equity has issued a writ of ne exeat, it may enjoin a suit in another state for false imprisonment under the writ; Gooding v. Reid, Murdock & Co., 177 Fed. 684, 101 C. C. A. 310.

In the Judicial Code of March 3, 1911, 36 Stat. 1087, it is provided in section 264 that injunctions may be granted by any justice of the suit is strictly local, the subject-matter the supreme court or any judge of a district court in cases in which they might be order in a cause pending in the circuit to which he is allotted shall not be heard by a justice of the supreme court elsewhere than within such circuit unless it is otherwise stipulated in writing by the parties. Section 265 provides that no injunction shall be granted by any federal court to stay proceedings in any state court except in cases where it is authorized in bankruptcy proceedings; and (by section 266) no interlocutory injunction suspending or restraining the enforcement of a state law, by restraining the action of a state officer in its enforcement, shall be granted upon the ground of the unconstitutionality of such statute, except upon application presented to a justice of the supreme court or to a circuit or district judge and it must be heard and determined by three judges of whom at least one shall be a supreme court or circuit judge; and an appeal may be taken from the order made in such case direct to the supreme court. Section 263 authorizes the granting of a restraining order upon notice of motion for an injunction where there appears to be danger of irreparable injury by reason of delay.

The equity rules (No. 73, 33 Sup. Ct. xxxix) provide that no preliminary injunction shall be granted without notice, nor shall any temporary restraining order unless it clearly appears that immediate and irreparable loss or damage will result before the matter can be heard on notice in which case a temporary restraining order may be granted without notice, but there must be a hearing in not more than ten days with precedence of all other matters not of the same character. The opposite party may move to dissolve the temporary restraining order on two days notice and the matter shall be heard as expeditiously as possible. Rule 74 provides that on appeal from a final decree granting or dissolving an injunction, the justice or judge allowing the same may suspend, modify or restore the injunction during the pendency of the appeal upon such terms as he may consider proper; and an injunction, when granted, independent of a statute, will usually not be modified or dissolved except by the judge who granted it; Klein v. Fleetford, 35 Fed. 98. It is provided in section 36 of the judicial Code that all injunctions in a state court in cases afterwards removed to a federal court, remain in full force until dissolved or modified.

As to injunctions in particular cases, see the title of the particular subject to which the remedy is to be applied; and as to injunctions against enforcing an illegal contract, see full note in 48 L. R. A. 842.

without damage. Wrong done without damage or loss will not sustain an action. The following cases illustrate this principle: 1 plications for an injunction or restraining Ld. Raym. 940, 948; 2 B. & P. 86; 5 Co. 72; order in a cause pending in the circuit to 9 id. 113; Bull. N. P. 120.

INJURIOUS WORDS. In Louisiana. Slander, or libellous words.

INJURY (Lat. in, negative, jus, a right). A wrong or tort; cited in Woodruff v. Min. Co., 18 Fed. 753, 781.

Any legal wrong which will give a cause of action to the one whose rights, person or property are injured thereby. Penn. R. Co. v. Merchant, 119 Pa. 561, 13 Atl. 690, 4 Am. St. Rep. 659 (as used in Pa. Constitution).

Absolute injuries are injuries to those rights which a person possesses as being a member of society.

Private injuries are infringements of the private or civil rights belonging to individuals considered as individuals.

Public injuries are breaches and violations of rights and duties which affect the whole community as a community.

Injuries to personal property are the unlawful taking and detention thereof from the owner; and other injuries are some damage affecting the same while in the claimant's possession or that of a third person, or injuries to his reversionary interests.

Injuries to real property are ousters, trespasses, nuisances, waste, subtraction of rent, disturbances of right of way, and the like.

Relative injuries are injuries to those rights which a person possesses in relation to the person who is immediately affected by the wrongful act done.

It is obvious that the divisions overlap each other, and that the same act may be, for example, a relative, a private, and a public injury at once. For many injuries of this character the offender may be obliged to suffer punishment for the public wrong and to recompense the sufferer for the particular loss which he has sustained. The distinction is more commonly marked by the use of the terms civil injuries to denote private injuries, and of crimes, misdemeanors, etc., to denote the public injury done: though not always; as, for example, in case of a public nuisance which may be also a private nuisance.

Injuries arise in three ways: first, by non-feasance, or the not doing what was a legal obligation, or duty, or contract, to perform; second, misfeasance, or the performance in an improper manner of an act which it was either the party's duty or his contract to perform; third, malfeasance, or the unjust performance of some act which the party had no right or which he had contracted not to do.

The remedies are different as the injury affects private individuals or the public.

When the injuries affect a private right and a private individual, although often also affecting the public, there are three descriptions of remedies: first, the preventive, such as defence, resistance, recaption, abatement of nuisance, surety of the peace, injunction, etc.; second, remedies for compensation, which may be by arbitration, suit, action, or summary proceedings before a justice of the peace: third, proceedings for punishment, as ! by indictment, or summary proceedings before a justice. When the injury is such as to effect the public, it becomes a crime, misdemeanor, or offence, and the party may be punished by indictment, or summary conviction for the public injury, and by civil action at the suit of the party for the private wrong. But in cases of felony the remedy by action for the private injury is generally suspended until the party particularly injured has fulfilled his duty to the public by prosecuting the offender for the public crime; and in cases of homicide the remedy is merged in the felony; 1 Chitty, Pr. 10; Ayliffe, Pand. 592.

1581

There are many injuries for which the law affords no remedy. In general, it interferes only when there has been a visible physical injury inflicted, while it leaves almost totally unprotected the whole class of the most malignant mental injuries and sufferings, unless in a few cases where, by a fiction, it supposes some pecuniary loss, and sometimes affords compensation to wounded feelings. A parent, for example, cannot sue, in that character, for an injury inflicted on his child, and when his own domestic happiness has been destroyed, unless the fact will sustain the allegation that the daughter was the servant of her father, and that by reason of such seduction he lost the benefit of her services; but the proof of loss of service has reference only to the form of the remedy. And when the action is sustained in point of form, damages may be given not only for the loss of service, but also for all that the plaintiff can feel from the nature of the injury; Phelin v. Kenderdine, 20 Pa. 354; Lavery v. Crooke, 52 Wis. 612, 9 N. W. 599, 38 Am. Rep. 768. Another instance may be mentioned. A party cannot recover damages for verbal slander in many cases: as, when the facts published are true; for the defendant would justify, and the party injured must fail. Nor will the law punish criminally the author of verbal slander imputing even the most infamous crimes, unless done with intent to extort a chattel, money, or valuable thing. The law presumes, perhaps unnaturally enough, that a man is incapable of being alarmed or affected by such injuries to his feelings. See 1 Bish. Cr. L. § 591.

The true and sufficient reason for these rules would seem to be the uncertain character of the injury inflicted, the impossibility of compensation, and the danger, supposing a pecuniary compensation to be attempted, that injustice would be done under the excitement of the case. The sound principle, as the experience of the law amply indicates, is to inflict a punishment for crime, but not put up for sale, by the agency of a court of justice, those wounded feelings which would constitute the ground of the action.

The rule as indicated above has its limitations, however, in particular cases; Wyman v. Leavitt, 71 Me. 227, 36 Am. Rep. 303. Thus, it has been held that, when bodily pain is caused, mental pain follows necessarily, and the sufferer is entitled to damages for the mental pain as well as for the bodily; Lawrence v. R. Co., 29 Conn. 390; Fairchild v. Stage Co., 13 Cal. 599; Pennsylvania & O. Canal Co. v. Graham, 63 Pa. 290, 3 Am. Rep. 549; Ford v. Jones, 62 Barb. (N. Y.) 484; but damages for the mental suffering of one person, on account of physical injury to another, are too remote to be given by court or jury; 2 C. & P. 292.

There is a material distinction between damages and injury. Injury is the wrongful act or tort which causes loss or harm to another. Damages are allowed as an indemnity to the person who suffers loss or harm from the injury. The word injury denotes the illegal act, the term damages means the sum recoverable as amends for the wrong; City of North Vernon v. Voegler, 103 Ind. 319, 2 N. E. 821.

in Civil Law. A delict committed in contempt or outrage of any one, whereby his body, his dignity, or his reputation is maliciously injured. Voet, Com. ad Pand. 47, t. 10, n. 1.

A real injury is inflicted by any act by which a person's honor or dignity is affected: as, striking one with a cane, or even aiming a blow without striking; spitting in one's face; assuming a coat of arms, or any other mark of distinction proper to another, etc. The composing and publishing defamatory libels may be reckoned of this kind; Erskine, Pr. 4. 4. 45.

A verbal injury, when directed against a private person, consists in the uttering contumelious words, which tend to injure his reputation by making him little or ridiculous. Where the offensive words are uttered in the heat of a dispute and spoken to the person's face, the law does not presume any malicious intention in the utterer, whose resentment generally subsides with his passion; and yet even in that case the truth of the injurious words seldom absolves entirely from punishment. Where the injurious expressions have a tendency to blacken one's moral reputation or fix some particular guilt upon him, and are deliberately repeated in different companies, or handed about in whispers to confidants, the crime then becomes slander, agreeably to the distinction of the Roman law; Dig. 15, § 12 de Injur.

INLAGARE, INLEGIARE. To restore to protection of law. Opposed to utlagare. Bract. lib. 3, tr. 2, c. 14, § 1; Du Cange.

INLAGATION. Restoration to the protection of law.

INLAGH. A man who is under the protection of the law, and not outlawed. Cowell.

INLAND. Within the same country. The demesne reserved for the use of the lord. Cowell. Inland, or domestic, navigation is that carried on in the interior of the country, and does not include that upon the great lakes; Moore v. Transp. Co., 24 How. (U. S.) 1, 16 L. Ed. 674; The Cotton Plant, 10 Wall. (U. S.) 577, 19 L. Ed. 983. As to what are inland bills of exchange, see BILLS OF EXCHANGE.

INMATE. One who dwells in a part of another's house, the latter dwelling at the same time in the said house. Kitch. 45 b; Com. Dig. Justices of the Peace (B 85); 1 B. & C. 578; 2 M. & R. 227; 2 Russ. Cr. 937; 1 M. & G. 83; Johnson v. Santa Clara County, 28 Cal. 545. See Lodger.

INN. A house where a traveller is furnished with everything he has occasion for while on his way. Bac. Abr. Inns (B); 3 B. & Ald. 283; Kisten v. Hildebrand, 9 B. Monr. (Ky.) 72, 48 Am. Dec. 416. A public house of entertainment for all who choose to visit it. Wintermute v. Clarke, 5 Sandf. (N. Y.) 247; Fay v. Imp. Co., 93 Cal. 253, 26 Pac. 1099, 28 Pac. 943, 16 L. R. A. 188, 27 Am. St. Rep. 198; Foster v. State, 84 Ala. 451, 4 South. 833. A coffee-house or a mere eating-house is not an inn. To constitute an inn there must be some provision for the essential needs of a traveller upon his journey, namely, lodging as well as food; 13 Rep. 299, citing People v. Jones, 54 Barb. (N. Y.) 316. See INNKEEPEB.

INNAVIGABLE. A term applied in foreign insurance law to a vessel not navigable, through irremediable misfortune by a peril of the sea. The ship is relatively innavigable when it will require almost as much time and expense to repair her as to build a new one. Targa, 238, 256; Emerigon, to. 1, 577, 591; 3 Kent 323, n.

INNER BARRISTER. See BARRISTER.

INNER TEMPLE. See INNS OF COURT.

INNINGS. Lands gained from the sea by draining. Cunningham, Law Dict.; Callis, Sewers 38.

INNKEEPER. The keeper of a common inn for the lodging and entertainment of travellers and passengers, their horses and attendants, for a reasonable compensation. Bac. Abr. Inns, etc.; Story, Bailm. § 475. Any one who makes it his business to entertain travellers and passengers, and provide lodging and necessaries for them, their horses and attendants, is an innkeeper. Edw. Bailm. § 450; even though the house is situated on enclosed grounds; Fay v. Imp. Co., 93 Cal. 253, 26 Pac. 1099, 28 Pac. 943, 16 L. R. A. 188, 27 Am. St. Rep. 198. But one who entertains strangers occasionally, although he may receive compensation for it, is not an innkeeper; State v. Matthews, 19 N. C. 424; Bonner v. Welborn, 7 Ga. 296; 1 Morr. 184.

See Guest; Boarder. It is not necessary that he should furnish accommodations for horses and carriages; 3 B. & Ald. 283; the keeper of a tavern; id.; and of a hotel; 2 Chitty 484; is an innkeeper. So is one who keeps a hotel on what is called the European plan, furnishing lodging to guests, and keeping an eating-house where they may purchase meals at their option; Krohn v. Sweeney, 2 Daly (N. Y.) 200. But the keeper of a mere restaurant is not an innkeeper if he only furnishes meals to his guests; Carpenter v. Taylor, 1 Hilt. (N. Y.) 193. Nor is the keeper of a coffee-house, nor of a boarding house, nor lodging-house; 8 Co. 32; 2 E. & B. 144; Hall v. Pike, 100 Mass. 495; Jalie v. Cardinal, 35 Wis. 118. One who receives lodgers and boards them under a special contract for a limited time, or who lets rooms to guests by the day or week, and does not furnish them entertainment, is not an innkeeper; Cromwell v. Stephens, 2 Daly (N. Y.) 15. See Moore v. Development Co., 87 Cal. 483, 26 Pac. 92, 22 Am. St. Rep. 265. Where the plaintiff attended a ball given by an innkeeper, stabled his horse at the inn, drank and paid for liquors, and paid for his ticket of admission to the ball, it was held that the relationship of innkeeper and guest did not exist; Fitch v. Casler, 17 Hun (N. Y.) 126. Where one boarded with his family at a hotel in New York, paying a specified amount for his rooms, and an additional amount for board if he took his meals regularly, and if not, paying for whatever he ordered at the restaurant attached to the hotel, it was held that the innkeeper was liable for personal property stolen from the plaintiff's room; Hancock v. Rand, 17 Hun (N. Y.) 279 (criticized in 20 Alb. L. J. 64, citing many cases); and see Lusk v. Belote, 22 Minn. 468. Where one merely leaves his horse with an innkeeper, the relation of innkeeper and guest does not exist; Healey v. Gray, 68 Me. 489, 28 Am. Rep. 80; so where he leaves goods at the inn without indicating any intention to become a guest; Toub v. Schmidt, 60 Hun 409, 15 N. Y. Supp. 616; so when a guest paid his bill and left the inn, having deposited money with a clerk, to be kept till his return; Whitemore v. Haroldson, 2 Lea (Tenn.) 312. It terminates when the guest delivers his baggage to a porter to be checked for safe keeping, the porter having no authority to receive it, and pays his bill, and in his absence the baggage is stolen; Glenn v. Jackson, 93 Ala. 342, 9 South. 259, 12 L. R. A. 382.

The business of an innkeeper at common law is of a quasi public character invested with many privileges and burdened with many responsibilities; De Wolf v. Ford, 193 N. Y. 397, 86 N. E. 527, 21 L. R. A. (N. S.) 860, 127 Am. St. Rep. 969. They are not insurers of the safety of their guests. They are bound only to reasonable care. They are not liable for acts of their servants beyond the scope of their employment; Clancy v. Barker, 131 Fed. 161, 66 C. C. A. 469, 69 L. R. A. 653 (citing 47 L. J. C. P. 598; Weeks v. McNulty, 101 Tenn. 499, 48 S. W. 809, 43 L. R. A. 185, 70 Am. St. Rep. 693; Sheffer v. Willoughby, 163 Ill. 518, 45 N. E. 253, 34 L. R. A. 464, 54 Am. St. Rep. 483; Stanley v. Bircher's Ex'r, 78 Mo. 245, 248; Curtis v. Dinneen, 4 Dak. 245, 30 N. W. 148), Thayer, C. J., dissented upon the ground that the relation of an innkeeper to his guest is practically like that of a common carrier to a passenger, citing Clancy v. Barker, 71 Neb. 83, 98 N. W. 440, 103 N. W. 446, 69 L. R. A. 642, 115 Am. St. Rep. 559, 8 Ann. Cas. 682. He must protect a guest against third persons; a fortiori, he must protect him from injuries from his servants, and since the servants are provided, among other things for the purpose of protecting guests, every injury inflicted upon the guest by the servant, either intentionally or negligently, is a breach of his duty of protection and renders the innkeeper liable to the guest; Clancy v. Barker, 71 Neb. 83, 98 N. W. 440, 103 N. W. 446, 69 L. R. A. 642, 115 Am. St. Rep. 559, 8 Ann. Cas. 682; Curran v. Olson, 88 Minn. 307, 92 N. W. 1124, 60 L. R. A. 733, 97 Am. St. Rep. 517; contra, Rahmel v. Lehndorff, 142 Cal. 681, 76 Pac. 659, 65 L. R. A. 88, 100 Am. St. Rep. 554. In Rommel v. Schambacher, 120 Pa. 579, 11 Atl. 779, 6 Am. St. Rep. 732, the same rule was applied where the assault (a practical joke) was by the plaintiff's drunken companion in a saloon, but in full view of the defendant. He is bound to take in and receive all travellers and wayfaring persons, and to entertain them, if he can accommodate them, for a reasonable compensation; Wand. Inns, 46; 3 B. & Ald. 285; 4 Exch. 367. See Willis v. McMahan, 89 Cal. 156, 26 Pac. 649. For a refusal to do so he is liable civilly and criminally; 7 C. & P. 213. While he must accept all proper persons if he has room, he need not assign a guest to any particular apartment; but a room once assigned to a guest is his until he gives it up, subject to the right of access of the innkeeper at all reasonable times and for all reasonable purposes; De Wolf v. Ford, 193 N. Y. 397, 86 N. E. 527, 21 L. R. A. (N. S.) 860, 127 Am. St. Rep. 969. If all rooms are full he need not receive guests; [1902] 1 K. B. 696.

It is no defence that the traveller did not tender the price of his entertainment, or that the guest was travelling on Sunday, or that the innkeeper had gone to bed, or that the guest refused to tell his name, otherwise if the guest was drunk, or was behaving in an improper manner; Com. v. Naylor, 34 Pa. 86; 7. C. & P. 213. He may enforce reasonable rules to prevent immorality, drunkenness or other offensive conduct, inconv. Ford, 193 N. Y. 397, 86 N. E. 527, 127 Am. St. Rep. 969, 21 L. R. A. (N. S.) 860. The innkeeper may demand prepayment; 9 Co. 87. He may not exclude persons from entering the inn and going into the public room on lawful business; Markham v. Brown, 8 N. H. 523, 31 Am. Dec. 209.

He must guard their goods with proper diligence. It has been held that he is liable only for the goods which are brought within the inn; 8 Co. 32; Scheffer v. Corson, 5 S. D. 233, 58 N. W. 555. A delivery of the goods into the personal custody of the innkeeper is not, however, necessary in order to make him responsible; for, although he may not know anything of such goods, he is bound to pay for them if they are stolen or carried away, even by an unknown person; Dig. 4, 9, 1; 3 B. & Ald. 283; 1 Sm. L. C. 47; Washburn v. Jones, 14 Barb. (N. Y.) 193; 8 Co. 32; Fay v. Imp. Co., 93 Cal. 253, 26 Pac. 1099, 28 Pac. 943, 16 L. R. A. 188, 27 Am. St. Rep. 198; Bowell v. De Wald, 2 Ind. App. 303, 28 N. E. 430, 50 Am. St. Rep. 240; Labold v. Hotel Co., 54 Mo. App. 567; Quinton v. Courtney, 2 N. C. 41; Houser v. Tully, 62 Pa. 92, 1 Am. Rep. 390. Thus, when a guest's luggage was, at his suggestion, taken to the commercial room, 8 B. & C. 9; and when a lady's reticule with money in it was left for a few minutes on a bed in her room; 2 B. & Ad. 803; the innkeeper was held liable; and if he receive the guest, the custody of the goods may be considered as an accessory to the principal contract, and the money paid for the apartments as extending to the care of the box and portmanteau; Jones, Bailm. 94; 1 Bla. Com. 430; 2 Kent 458. The particular responsibility of an innkeeper does not extend to goods lost or stolen from a room occupied by a guest for a purpose of business distinct from his accommodation as guest, such as the exhibition of samples of merchandise; Fisher v. Kelsey, 121 U. S. 383, 13 Sup. Ct. 929, 30 L. Ed. 930. The liability of an innkeeper is the same in character and extent with that of a common carrier; Berkshire Woollen Co. v. Proctor, 7 Cush. (Mass.) 417; Manning v. Wells, 9 Humphr. (Tenn.) 746, 51 Am. Dec. 688; Mateer v. Brown, 1 Cal. 221, 52 Am. Dec. 303; 8 B. & C. 9; Norcross v. Norcross, 53 Me. 163; Thickstun v. Howard, 8 Blackf. (Ind.) 535.

He is an insurer of a guests's goods; De Wolf v. Ford, 193 N. Y. 397, 86 N. E. 527. 21 L. R. A. (N. S.) 860, 127 Am. St. Rep. 969; he owes the duty of safely keeping the property of his guests; Rockhill v. Hotel Co., 237 III. 98, 86 N. E. 740, 22 L. R. A. (N. S.) 576. Even where the plaintiff's horse and wagon containing goods of value were destroyed in the night by fire, the cause of which was unknown it was held that the innkeeper was liable; Hulett v. Swift, 33 N. Y. 571, 88 Am. Dec. 405; contra, Cutler v. Bonney, 30 Mich. sistent with the proprieties of life; De Wolf | 259, 18 Am. Rep. 127, n. See 6 L. R. A. 483, n. It is held that he is prima facie liable for the loss of goods; Rockhill v. Hotel Co., 237 Ill. 98, 86 N. E. 740, 22 L. R. A. (N. S.) 576; Watt v. Kilbury, 53 Wash. 446, 102 Pac. 403.

His liability does not cease as soon as the guest has paid his bill and left; the guest has a reasonable time to remove his baggage; Kaplan v. Titus, 64 Misc. 81, 117 N. Y. Supp. 944. An innkeeper is liable for a valise delivered to the hotel porter at leaving; Rockhill v. Hotel Co., 237 Ill. 98, 86 N. E. 740, 22 L. R. A. (N. S.) 576. He is liable for baggage entrusted by a guest to a hotel porter sent to a railroad station to solicit guests; Coskery v. Nagle, 83 Ga. 696, 10 S. E. 491, 6 L. R. A. 483, 20 Am. St. Rep. 333; but not if he changes his mind and does not go to the hotel; Tulane Hotel Co. v. Holohan, 112 Tenn. 214, 79 S. W. 113, 105 Am. St. Rep. 930, 2 Ann. Cas. 345; or merely goes there, receives a telegram and leaves without registering; L. R. 12 Q. B. Div. 27.

He is responsible for the acts of his domestics and servants, as well as for the acts of his other guests, if the goods are stolen or lost; Berkshire Woollen Co. v. Proctor, 7 Cush. (Mass.) 417; McDonald v. Edgerton, 5 Barb. (N. Y.) 560; Labold v. Hotel Co., 54 Mo. App. 567; but he is not responsible for any tort or injury done by his servants or others to the person of his guest, without his own co-operation or consent; 8 Co. 32. But it has been held that he is liable to a female guest for a servant's unjustifiable acts in the course of his employment in forcing his way into her room while she was in scant attire, accusing her of immoral conduct and ordering her to leave the hotel; De Wolf v. Ford, 193 N. Y. 397, 86 N. E. 527, 127 Am. St. Rep. 969, 21 L. R. A. (N. S.) 860; he must exercise reasonable care that neither he nor his servants shall by uncivil, harsh, or cruel treatment, destroy the comfort or peace of the guest; id.

The innkeeper will be excused whenever the loss has occurred through the fault of the guest, the act of God, or of the public enemy; 4 M. & S. 306; Hadley v. Upshaw, 27 Tex. 547, 86 Am. Dec. 654; Elcox v. Hill, 98 U. S. 218, 25 L. Ed. 103. An omission on the part of the guest to lock his door will not necessarily prevent his recovery; 6 H. & N. 265; Classen v. Leopold, 2 Sweeny (N. Y.) 705. Where a guest was given a room temporarily and in his absence his baggage was placed in the hall, the innkeeper was held liable for its loss; [1891] 2 Q. B. 11. When the guest misleads the innkeeper as to the value of a package and thus throws him off his guard, it has been held that he cannot recover; Edw. Bailm. § 466. See Bendetson v. French, 46 N. Y. 266. The failure of a guest to inform an innkeeper that his valise placed in the cloak or baggage room, contains valuables, is not negligence: Bowell v. De Wald. 2 Ind. App. 303, 28 N. E. 430, 50 Am. St. Rep. 240; guest may retain personal custody of necessary wearing apparel and jewelry worn daily, for which the innkeeper becomes liable; Fay v. Imp. Co., 93 Cal. 253, 26 Pac. 1099, 28 Pac. 943, 16 L. R. A. 188, 27 Am. St. Rep. 198; a guest may recover for the loss of goods brought into the inn in the usuai manner; Epps v. Hinds, 27 Miss. 657, 61 Am. Dec. 528; Sasseen v. Clark, 37 Ga. 242.

An innkeeper may make reasonable regulations as to the manner in which he will receive and keep goods; Orange County Bank v. Brown, 9 Wend. (N. Y.) 85, 114, 24 Am. Dec. 129. He must furnish reasonable accommodations. See 8 M. & W. 269. When the proprietor of a hotel employs a servant to receive and keep the property of guests while at meals, his liability for the default of this servant in the custody of property so received is not affected by the fact that he has also provided a check-room for the safe-keeping of such property; Labold v. Hotel Co., 54 Mo. App. 567.

The innkeeper is entitled to a just compensation for his care and trouble in taking care of his guest and his property; and, to enable him to obtain this, the law invests him with some peculiar privileges, giving him a lien upon the goods brought into the inn by the guest, and, it has been said, upon the person of his guest (contra, 3 M. & W. 248), for his compensation; 3 B. & Ald. 287; see Mowers v. Fethers, 61 N. Y. 34, 19 Am. Rep. 244; Dunlap v. Thorne, 1 Rich. (S. C.) 213; McDaniels v. Robinson, 26 Vt. 335, 62 Am. Dec. 574; 3 M. & W. 248; Cook v. Kane, 13 Or. 482, 11 Pac. 226, 57 Am. Rep. 28; and this though the goods belong to a third person, if the innkeeper was ignorant of the fact; Schoul., Bailm. 326; 12 Q. B. 197; Young v. Kimball, 23 Pa. 193; Fox v. Mc-Gregor, 11 Barb. (N. Y.) 41; Covington v. Newberger, 99 N. C. 523, 6 S. E. 205; Manning v. Hollenbeck, 27 Wis. 202; Singer Mfg. Co. v. Miller, 52 Minn. 516, 55 N. W. 56, 21 L. R. A. 229, 38 Am. St. Rep. 568; a lien was also held to attach upon the goods of the wife; 25 Q. B. Div. 491. Sewing machines were sent by his principal to a commercial traveller while he was at an inn, to be used in the course of business for sale to customers in the neighborhood. The innkeeper had express notice that they were the property of the employer but he received them as the baggage of the traveller, who left the inn without paying his bill; held that the innkeeper had a lien on the goods for the amount of the bill; [1895] 2 Q. B. 501. The court below considered that the question of knowledge was immaterial, because "the goods in question were of a kind which a commercial traveller would in the ordinary course carry about with him to the inns at which he put up as part of the regular apparatus of his calling, and which the innkeeper would consequently be bound to receive into his inn and to take care of while they were there."

At common law this lien could be enforced only by legal proceedings, and not by a sale; Fox v. McGregor, 11 Barb. (N. Y.) 41; Edw. Bailm. § 476. This has been changed in New York by statute. As to detaining the horse of a guest, see Peet v. McGraw, 25 Wend. (N. Y.) 654; Mason v. Thompson, 9 Pick. (Mass.) 280, 20 Am. Dec. 471. The landlord may also bring an action for the recovery of his compensation. Where an innkeeper owes his guest for labor more than the guest owes for board, he has no lien; Hanlin v. Walters, 3 Colo. App. 519, 34 Pac. 686. An innkeeper's lien does not attach to goods in possession of one who is received as a boarder, and not as a guest or traveller; Singer Mfg. Co. v. Miller, 52 Minn. 516, 55 N. W. 56, 21 L. R. A. 229, 38 Am. St. Rep. 568.

An innkeeper in a town through which lines of stages pass has no right to exclude the driver of one of these lines from his yard and the common public rooms where travellers are usually placed, who comes there at proper hours, and in a proper manner, to solicit passengers for his coach and without doing any injury to the innkeeper; Markham v. Brown, 8 N. H. 523, 31 Am. Dec. 209.

The common-law liability of innkeepers has been changed in England and in most of the states by statute which provides that the innkeeper shall not be liable for money, etc., if he provides a safe for safe-keeping, and duly notifies his guests thereof. If due notice is not given, the common-law liability remains; Holstein v. Phillips, 146 N. C. 366, 59 S. E. 1037, 14 L. R. A. (N. S.) 475, 14 Ann. Cas. 323; L. R. 2 Ex. Div. 463. If, under the statute, the guest delivers the articles to the innkeeper, the latter's liability is not affected by the statute.

Where a trunk filled with goods for sale was left by an expressman on the sidewalk in the usual place in front of the inn and the expressman's check was given to the clerk, the innkeeper was held not liable; Becker v. Haynes, 29 Fed. 441; so of a stock of jewelry left with an attendant in the coat room; Elcox v. Hill, 98 U. S. 218, 25 L. Ed. 103; and of a package containing a gold locket of the value of $221 handed to the clerk without any information as to its contents; Horton v. Arcade Co., 114 Mo. App. 337, 89 S. W. 363.

Under the New York statute an innkeeper was held not liable for $50 stolen from under the guest's pillow while asleep; but was liable for a valuable watch; Ramaley v. Leland, 43 N. Y. 539, 3 Am. Rep. 728; see also Becker v. Warner, 90 Hun 187, 35 N. Y. Supp. 739; and for a gold watch and silver forks and a silver soup ladle stolen from a guest's trunk; Briggs v. Todd, 28 Misc. 208, 59 N. Y. Supp. 23. But in Rains v. Maxwell House Co., 112 Tenn. 219, 79 S. W. 114, 64 L. R. A. 470, 2 Ann. Cas. 488, the statute was held to apply to a watch. Money necessary for travelling expenses ($90) and a watch were held not within the statute; Maltby v. Chapman, 25 Md. 310. If the innkeeper is shown to have been negligent he is liable to the full value of the goods; [1891] 2 Q. B. 11; otherwise under the English statute, only for their value up to £30.

The act does not apply where a guest had packed her goods to leave the hotel and delivered them to the hotel porter sent to receive them; Rockhill v. Hotel Co., 237 Ill. 98, 86 N. E. 740, 22 L. R. A. (N. S.) 576; nor where the loss of goods is due to the negligence of the innkeeper's servant; id.

It has been held that a hotelkeeper, in whose safe a boarder deposits money for safe-keeping, is no more than a bailee, and when the money is stolen from the safe by his night clerk, is not liable therefor, in the absence of proof of want of ordinary care in employing him; Taylor v. Downey, 104 Mich. 532, 62 N. W. 716, 29 L. R. A. 92, 53 Am. St. Rep. 472. See Beale, Innkeepers.

INNOCENCE. The absence of guilt. See Presumption.

An act authorizing one alleging that he had been unjustly convicted of crime to present a claim for damages to the state board of claims was passed in New York in 1905. See Roberts v. State, 160 N. Y. 217, 54 N. E. 678.

Provisions for the compensation of innocent persons who have been imprisoned exist in many European states, including Germany, Hungary, Austria, France, Denmark, Sweden, Norway, Portugal and Spain and in Mexico. See 3 Journ. Cr. L. & Criminology 684.

INNOCENT AGENT. One who does the forbidden thing, moved thereto by another person, yet incurs no legal guilt, because either not endowed with sufficient mental capacity or not acquainted with the necessary facts. Bish. Cr. L. § 310; Smith v. State, 21 Tex. App. 107, 17 S. W. 552.

INNOCENT CONVEYANCES. In English Law. A technical term used to signify those conveyances made by a tenant of his leasehold which do not occasion a forfeiture: these are conveyances by lease and release, bargain and sale, and a covenant to stand seised by a tenant for life. 1 Chitty, Pr. 243

INNOMINATE CONTRACTS. In Civil Law. Contracts which have no particular names, as permutation and transaction. Inst. 2. 10. 13. There are many innominate contracts; but the Roman lawyers reduced them to four classes, namely, do ut des, do ut facias, facio ut des, and facio ut facias. Dig. 2. 14. 7. 2.

or inclosure (clausum inclausura).

INNOTESCIMUS (Lat.). In English Law. An epithet used for letters patent, which are always of a charter of feoffment, or some other instrument not of record, concluding with the words Innotescimus per præsentes, etc. Tech. Dict.

INNOVATION. In Scotch Law. The exchange of one obligation for another, so that the second shall come in the place of the first. Bell, Dict. Also the earlier use for NOVATION.

INNOXIARE. To purge one of a fault and declare him innocent. Toml.

INNS OF CHANCERY. See INNS OF COURT.

INNS OF COURT. Voluntary noncorporate legal societies seated in London having their origin about the end of the 13th and the beginning of the 14th century. Encyc. Brit. They consist of the Inns of Court and Chancery.

The four principal Inns of Court are the Inner Temple, Middle Temple, Lincoln's Inn, and Gray's Inn.

To each of the four Inns of Court certain Inns of Chancery were attached. To the Inner Temple, Clifford's Inn, Lyon's Inn and Clements' Inn; to the Middle Temple, the Strand Inn, New Inn and a third of which the name even is forgotten; to Lincoln's Inn, Thavie's Inn (Thavy) and Furnival's Inn; and to Gray's Inn, Staple Inn and Barnard's Inn. In these dwelt the clerks of the chancery who prepared the original writs issuing out of chancery, and also the younger apprentices who acquired some elementary knowledge of civil procedure by copying those writs. Many students entered an Inn of Chancery and passed from there to an Inn of Court. In Hale's time this custom had become obsolete. These Inns of Chancery gradually fell into the hands of solicitors and now have ceased to exist. See [1902] 1 Ch. 774; Odg. C. L. 1424. See 17 L. Q. R. 7, citing [1902] 2 Ch. 511.

There were formerly two (if not three) Serjeant's Inns, whose membership was confined to the Serjeants and Judges of the Superior Courts of Westminster. They no longer exist. See SERJEANTS-AT-LAW.

Of the origin of the Inns of Court Inderwick says: "The fixture of a certain court for the trial of civil causes in London also encouraged the calling or profession of advocacy, and led to the institution of the Inns of Court, where students of the law could congregate as at a University, hear lectures on the Roman law and the laws of their country, and pre-pare themselves for their future duties." King's Peace 91. Each inn is self-governing, and quite distinct from all others, all, however, possessing equal privileges; but latterly they have joined in impos-ing certain educational tests for the admission of It is entirely in the discretion of an inn of court to admit any particular person as a mem-ber. One who desires to enter must have passed an INNONIA. In Old English Law. A close examination at some University in the British Dominicon inclosure (clausum inclausura). Spel. S Consolidated Regulations of the four Inns.

> No person can be called to the bar, and therefore no person can become a judge, unless he is a member of an Inn of Court. The Benchers of the four Inns are said to have the power to disbar barristers of their Inn; but see Barrister. As to the exercise of such power, see Council of the Bab. The Inns are not subject to the jurisdiction of the courts, but only to the control of the judges as visitors. See L. R. 18 Eq. 127.

> The Benchers and Readers of the Inns were those who have publicly lectured in their Inn. They governed their Inn, under a Treasurer or Pensioner. From the Readers, the Serjeants-at-Law were usually appointed. Below them came the Utter-Barristers. The remaining or junior members were Inner-Barristers. 2 Holdsw. Hist. E. L. 423.

> See Leaming, Phila. Lawy. in London Courts; Odgers, C. L.; 2 Holdsw. Hist. E. L.; [1900] 2 Ch. 511 (as to Clifford's Inn); BENCHERS; BARRISTERS; Bellot, Exclusion of Attorneys from Inns of Court in 26 L. Q. R. 37, and Jurisdiction of the Inns of Court over Inns of Chancery in 26 L. Q. R. 384; L. R. 18 Eq. 127; Bellot, Inner & Middle Temple, with bibliography.

> INNUENDO (Lat. innuere, to nod at, to hint at; meaning. The word was used when pleadings were in Latin, and has been translated by "meaning").

in Pleading. A clause in the declaration, indictment, or other pleading containing an averment which is explanatory of some preceding word or statement.

An averment of the meaning of alleged libellous words. Collins v. Pub. Co., 152 Pa. 187, 25 Atl. 546, 34 Am. St. Rep. 636. The defamatory meaning which the plaintiff sets on words complained of, in an action for libel; its office is to show how they came to have that defamatory meaning and how they relate to him. Buckstaff v. Viall, 84 Wis. 129, 54 N. W. 111.

It derives its name from the leading word by which it was always introduced when pleadings were in Latin. It is mostly used in actions of slander, and is then said to be a subordinate averment, connecting particular parts of the publication with what has gone before, in order to elucidate the defendant's meaning more fully. 1 Stark. Sland. 431.

It is the office of an innuendo to define the defamatory meaning which the plaintiff sets on the words, to show how they come to have that meaning, and also to show how they relate to the plaintiff, whenever that is not clear on the face of them; Odg. Lib. & Sl. *100. See Colloquium. It may be used to point to the plaintiff as the person intended in the defendant's statement. It may show that a general imputation of crime is intended to apply to the plaintiff; Heard, Sland. § 226; 1 H. L. Cas. 637; Nestle v. Van Slyck, 2 Hill (N. Y.) 282; but it cannot be allowed to give a new sense to words where there is no such charge; 8 Q. B. 825. See Glatz v. Thein, 47 Minn. 278, 50 N. W. 127.

Where a defamatory meaning is apparent on the face of the libel itself, no innuendo is necessary, though often inserted; Sanford v. Rowley, 93 Mich. 119, 52 N. W. 1119; Republican Pub. Co. v. Miner, 3 Cal. App. 568, 34 Pac. 485; where the words prima facie are not actionable, an innuendo is essential to the action; Odg. Lib. & Sl. *99.

lts office is to deduce inferences from premises already stated, not to state the premises themselves. An innuendo is not an issuable averment. Facts extrinsic to the article and essential to the identification of the article with the person complaining cannot be embodied in an innuendo; Duvivier v. French, 104 Fed. 278, 43 C. C. A. 529, per Grosscup, C. J., citing McLaughlin v. Fisher, 136 Ill. 111, 24 N. E. 60.

It may point to the injurious and actionable meaning, where the words complained of are susceptible of two meanings; 8 Q. B. 841; and generally explain the preceding matter; 12 Ad. & E. 317; but cannot enlarge and point the effect of language beyond its natural and common meaning in its usual acceptation; Heard, Sland. § 219; Newell, Def. Sland. & L. 619, 620; 9 Ad. & E. 282; Commonwealth v. Snelling, 15 Pick. (Mass.) 335; Viedt v. Newspaper Co., 19 D. C. 534; unless connected with the proper introductory averments; 1 C. B. 728; Ryan v. Madden, 12 Vt. 51; Maxwell v. Allison, 11 S. & R. (Pa.) 343; Van Vechten v. Hopkins, 5 Johns. (N. Y.) 211, 4 Am. Dec. 339. These introductory averments need not be in the same count; 2 Wils. 114; Bloss v. Tobey, 2 Pick. (Mass.) 329. Where the language of an alleged libel was ambiguous, the innuendoes averring the meaning plaintiff claimed should be attached to the words complained of, are proper; Barnard v. Pub. Co., 63 Hun 626, 17 N. Y. Supp. 573.

For the innuendo in case of an ironical libel, see 7 Dowl. 210; 4 M. & W. 446.

If not warranted by preceding allegations, it may be rejected as superfluous; Heard, Sland. § 225; but only where it is bad and useless,—not where it is good but unsupported by evidence, even though the words would be actionable without an innuendo; Newell, Def. Sland. & L. 629; 3 H. L. Cas. 395; 1 Ad. & E. 558; 4 B. & C. 655; Cro. Eliz. 609. See Turton v. New York Recorder, 3 Misc. 314, 22 N. Y. Supp. 766.

In the case of words not per se actionable, the innuendo must be pleaded and proved; Unterberger v. Scharff, 51 Mo. App. 102.

See LIBEL

INOFFICIOSUM (Lat.). In Civil Law. Inofficious; contrary to natural duty or affection. Used of a will of a parent which disinherited a child without just cause, or of that of a child which disinherited a parent, and which could be contested by querela inofficiosi testamenti; designated by Blackstone as remarkable on the ground "that the testator had lost the use of his reason;" 1 Com. 447; 2 id. 502; 2 Steph. Com. 589; Dig. 2. 5. 3, 13; Paulus, lib. 4, tit. 5, § 1. Even a brother or sister could set aside such a testament if the person actually instituted heir was turpis or infamous. The old writ de rationabili parte bonorum, in the English law, resembled in some respects the querela inofficiosi testamenti; but there is nothing which corresponds to it in the English law at the present day; Moz. & W.

INOFFICIOUS TESTAMENT. In Civil Law. A testament contrary to the natural duty of the parent, because it totally disinherited the child, without expressly giving the reason therefor. See preceding title.

INOFICIOCIDAD. In Spanish Law. Every thing done contrary to a duty or obligation assumed, as well as in opposition to the plety and affection dictated by nature: inofficiosum dicitur id omne quod contra pietatis officium factum est. The term applies especially to testaments, donations, dower, etc., which may be either revoked or reduced when they affect injuriously the rights of creditors or heirs.

INOPS CONSILII (Lat.). Destitute of or without counsel. In the construction of wills a greater latitude is sometimes given, because the testator is supposed to have been inops consill.

INORDINATUS. An intestate.

INPENY and OUTPENY. Money which by the custom of some manors is paid by an incoming and an outgoing tenant. Spelm.; Holth.

INQUEST. A body of men appointed by law to inquire into certain matters: as, the inquest examined into the facts connected with the alleged murder. The grand jury is sometimes called the grand inquest.

The judicial inquiry itself by a jury summoned for the purpose, is called an inquest. The finding of such men, upon an investigation, is also called an inquest, or an inquisition.

The most familiar use of the word is to designate the inquiry by a coroner (q. v.) into the causes of death, whether sudden, violent, or in prison. To justify an inquest it is not necessary that a death should be both sudden and violent; either is sufficient; Lancaster County v. Dern, 2 Grant (Pa.) 262. The authority to hold an inquest extends to bodies brought into the county; People v. Fitzgerald, 105 N. Y. 146, 11 N. E. 378, 59

Am. Rep. 483; and when a person died in | used against him, if afterwards accused: be one county and was buried in another it was held that the inquest should be held by the coroner of the latter. After the verdict is returned the duty is completed and a second inquest cannot be held unless the first is quashed by a competent court; 3 El. & El. 137. No inquest can be held in any case except upon view of the body; this is jurisdictional and can be waived by no one; 3 B. & A. 260; if buried it may be exhumed, but must be reburied; 2 Hawk. P. C. 77. A postmortem examination may be ordered; Allegheny County v. Watt, 3 Pa. 462; but it should not be made before the jury have viewed the body; 1 Witth. & Beck. Med. Jur. 336; nor should it be in the presence of the jury, but they are to be instructed by the testimony of the physicians designated to make it; People v. Fitzgerald, 105 N. Y. 146, 11 N. E. 378, 59 Am. Rep. 483.

See DEAD BODY.

In holding an inquest the coroner acts judicially; Com. v. Hawkins, 3 Gray (Mass.) 463; People v. Devine, 44 Cal. 452; Boisliniere v. Board of County Com'rs, 32 Mo. 375. No person is entitled by reason of being suspected of causing the death, to be present, or to have counsel, or cross-examine the witnesses or produce others; 2 Hawk. P. C. 77; Crisfield v. Perine, 81 N. Y. 622, affirmed 15 Hun 200. The coroner may select and summon the jurors of inquest and fine any who are absent for non-attendance; Ex parte McAnnully, T. U. P. Charlt. (Ga.) 310; they must be sworn; 3 B. & A. 260; and this must appear in the certificate or be proved aliunde; People v. White, 22 Wend. (N. Y.) 167; they are the sole arbiters of the facts; but the coroner may instruct them in the law; id.; and compel the attendance of witnesses, for which purpose he has commonlaw powers; Com. v. Taylor, 11 Phila. (Pa.)

After hearing the evidence the jury should retire to deliberate upon their verdict, without the presence of the coroner, and, when agreed upon, it should be put in writing and is final, and the inquisition should be signed by the coroner and jury; 6 C. & P. 179, 602; the jury may sign by marks; State v. Evans, 27 La. Ann. 297; and if several bear the same Christian and surname they need not be distinguished in the caption by abode or otherwise; 7 C. & P. 538.

The effect of the inquisition is to author-. ize the arrest and commitment of the person charged by it, and upon his arrest he may make his own statement and have it returned with the inquisition, but he cannot be discharged until his case is passed upon by the grand jury; People v. Collins, 20 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 111; except of course after hearing by a judge upon habeas corpus.

The testimony of a witness, not charged must claim his privilege if he wishes to protect himself; Williams v. Com., 29 Pa. 102; Clough v. State, 7 Neb. 320; but if at the time of inquest he is in custody on suspicion, he cannot be examined as a mere witness, but only as an accused party in the same manner as if brought before a committing magistrate; People v. Mondon, 108 N. Y. 211, 8 N. E. 496, 57 Am. Rep. 709; the doctrine that silence gives consent does not apply to a coroner's inquest; People v. Willett, 92 N. Y. These rules were settled by the New York court of appeals as the result of a series of cases; Hendrickson v. People, 10 N. Y. 13, 61 Am. Dec. 721; People v. McMahon, 15 N. Y. 384; Teachout v. People, 41 N. Y. 7; People v. Mondon, 103 N. Y. 211, 8 N. E. 496, 57 Am. Rep. 709; People v. McGloin, 91 N. Y. 241.

Where the accused testifies voluntarily at the coroner's inquest, his evidence may be used against him on his subsequent trial for murder; Reg. v. Wiggins, 10 Cox C. C. 562. But testimony given by persons suspected of crime cannot be regarded as voluntary, so as to be admissible upon a subsequent trial, if, because of the temper of the community, their refusal to answer questions would almost certainly have resulted in their immediate arrest; Tuttle v. People, 33 Colo. 243, 79 Pac. 1035, 70 L. R. A. 33, 3 Ann. Cas. 513. For admissibility, on a trial for murder of testimony of accused at coroner's inquest, see note 70 L. R. A. 33.

Preventing a coroner from holding an inquest over a dead body, when it is required by law, is indictable; 13 Q. B. D. 331. Where the captain of a man-of-war, mistaking his legal duty, had prevented the coroner from holding an inquest on the body of a man hanged on his ship, the court, granting an information, refused to proceed also against his boatswain, who had participated in the transaction under his order; Andr. 231; but, adds Bishop, "an information is in a measure discretionary with the court, and perhaps on an indictment the boatswain would have been deemed liable;" 1 Bish. N. Cr. L. § 688 (3).

In Massachusetts there is now no coroner, but an inquest is held in such cases by a justice of certain designated courts, after an examination by regular medical examiners and a report that the death was caused by violence, or without such report upon the direction of the prosecuting officer. See Con-ONER; CONFESSION; ADMISSION.

INQUEST OF OFFICE. An inquiry made by the king's officer, his sheriff, coroner, or escheator, either virtute officii, or by writ sent to him for that purpose, or by commissioners specially appointed, concerning any matter that entitles the king to the possession of lands or tenements, goods or chatwith crime, given at the inquest may be | tels. It is done by a jury of no determinate number,—either twelve, or more, or less; 3 Bla. Com. 258; Finch, Law 323. An inquest of office was bound to find for the king upon the direction of the court. The reason given is that an inquest concluded no man of his right, but only gave the king an opportunity to enter, so that he could have his right tried; 3 Bla. Com. 260; 4 Steph. Com. 61; F. Moore 730; 3 Hen. VII. 10; 2 Hen. IV. 5. An inquest of office was also called, simply, "office."

INQUEST OF SHERIFFS. An inquest which directs a general inquiry as to the methods in which the sheriffs had been conducting the local government of the country (1170). 1 Holdsw. H. E. L. 21.

INQUIRY, WRIT OF. A writ sued out by a plaintiff in a case where the defendant has let the proceedings go by default, and an interlocutory judgment has been given for damages generally, where the damages do not admit of calculation. It issues to the sheriff of the county in which the venue is laid, and commands him to inquire, by a jury of twelve men, concerning the amount of damages. The sheriff thereupon tries the cause in his sheriff's court, and some amount must always be returned to the court. But the return of the inquest merely informs the court, which may, if it choose, in all cases assess damages and thereupon give final judgment. 2 Archb. Pr., Waterman ed. 952; 3 Bla. Com. 398; 3 Chitty, Stat. 495, 497.

INQUISITION. In Practice. An examination of certain facts by a jury impanelled by the sheriff for the purpose. The instrument of writing on which their decision is made is also called an inquisition. The sheriff or coroner, and the jury who make the inquisition, are called the inquest.

An inquisition on an untimely death, if omitted by the coroner, may in England be taken by justices of gaol delivery and oyer and terminer, or of the peace; but it must be done publicly and openly; otherwise it will be quashed. Inquisitions either of the coroner or of the other jurisdictions are traversable; 1 Burr. 18.

INQUISITOR. A designation of sheriffs, coroners super visum corporis, and the like, who have power to inquire into certain matters.

In Ecclesiastical Law. The name of an officer who is authorized to inquire into heresies, and the like, and to punish them. A judge.

inrolment, Enrolment (Law Lat. irrotulatio). The act of putting upon a roll.

Formerly, the record of a suit was kept on skins of parchment, which, best to preserve them, were kept upon a roll or in the form of a roll; what was written upon them was called the inrolment. After, when such inquiry arises.

records came to be kept in books, the making up of the record retained the old name of inrolment. Thus, in equity, the inrolment of a decree is the recording of it, and will prevent the rehearing of the cause, except on appeal or by bill of review. The decree may be enrolled immediately after it has been passed and entered, unless a caveat has been entered; 2 Freem. 179; Davoue v. Fanning, 4 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 199. And before signing and inrolment, a decree cannot be pleaded in bar of a suit, though it can be insisted on by way of answer; 2 Ves. 577; Davoue v. Fanning, 4 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 199. See Saunders, Ord. in Ch. Inrolment

Transcribing upon the records of a court deeds, etc., according to the statutes on the subject. See 1 Chitty, Stat. 425, 426; 2 id. 69, 76-78; 3 id. 1497. Placing on file or record generally; as annuities, attorneys, etc.

INSANE PERSON. See INSANITY.

INSANITY. In Medical Jurisprudence. The prolonged departure, without any adequate cause, from the states of feeling and modes of thinking usual to the individual in health.

Insanity is such a deprivation of reason that the subject is no longer capable of understanding and acting with discretion in the ordinary affairs of life. Snyder v. Snyder, 142 Ill. 60, 31 N. E. 303.

Legal insanity, which exonerates from crime or incapacitates from civil action, is a mental deficiency with reference to the particular act in question and not a general incapacity. It is the latter only as the result of judicial ascertainment that a person is non compos mentis, by inquisition in lunacy, or similar statutory proceeding, and this only results in a general civil disability and not, proprio vigore, in immunity from punishment for crime.

It results that there can be no general definition of legal insanity. It is a state or condition which must be noted with reference to each class of actions to which it is applied.

In criminal law it "is any defect, weakness, or disease of the mind rendering it incapable of entertaining, or preventing its entertaining in the particular instance, the criminal intent which constitutes one of the elements in every crime." 1 Bish. New Cr. L. § 381.

As a cause of civil incapacity it is such defect or weakness as prevents rational assent to a contract or due consideration of the facts properly and naturally entering into the testamentary disposition of one's estate. It is a want of due proportion in quality or quantity, or both,—between the mental capacity and power and the particular act, civil or criminal, as to which the inquiry arises.

The legal and the medical ideas of insanity are essentially different, and the difference is one of substance. The failure to keep it in mind has been the fruitful cause of confusion in trials involving the question of mental capacity for crime or contract, and has tended to render valueless and often absurd the testimony of witnesses called as experts. Many of these have testified witnout any conception of the real nature and definition of the insanity, which alone could have relation to the case.

The distinction between the medical and the legal idea of insanity has, perhaps, not been better stated than by Ray, who is quoted by Ordronaux, and again by Witthaus & Becker: "Insanity in medicine has to do with a prolonged departure of the individual from his natural mental state arising from bodily disease." "Insanity in law covers nothing more than the relation of the person and the particular act which is the subject of judicial investigation. The legal problem must resolve itself into the inquiry, whether there was mental capacity and moral freedom to do or abstain from doing the particular act." 1 Whitth. & Beck. Med. Jur. 181; U. S. v. Faulkner, 35 Fed. 730.

Of late years this word has been used to designate all mental impairments and deficiencies formerly embraced in the terms lunacy, idiocy, and unsoundness of mind. Even to the middle of the last century the law recognized only two classes of persons requiring its protection on the score of mental disorder, viz.: lunatics and idiots. The former were supposed to embrace all who had lost the reason which they once possessed and their disorder was called dementia accidentalis; the latter, those who had never possessed any reason, and this deficiency was called dementia naturalis. Lunatics were supposed to be much influenced by the moon; and another prevalent notion respecting them was that in a very large proportion there occurred lucid intervals, when reason shone out, for a while, from behind the cloud that obscured it, with its natural brightness. It may be remarked, in passing, that lucid intervals are far less common than they were once supposed to be, and that the restoration is not so complete as the descriptions of the older writers would lead us to infer. In modern practice, the term lucid interval signifies merely a remission of the disease, an abatement of the violence of the morbid action, a period of comparative calm; and the proof of its occurrence is generally drawn from the character of the act in question. It is hardly necessary to say that this is an unjustifiable use of the term, which should be confined to the genuine lucid interval that does occasionally occur.

It began to be found at last that a large class of

It began to be found at last that a large class of persons required the protection of the law, who were not idiots, because they had reason once, nor lunatics in the ordinary signification of the term, because they were not violent, exhibited no very notable derangement of reason, were independent of lunar influences, and had no lucid intervals. Their mental impairment consisted in a loss of intellectual power, of interest in their usual pursuits, of the ability to comprehend their relations to persons and things. A new term—unsoundness of mind—was therefore introduced to meet this exigency; but it has never been very clearly defined.

The law has never held that all lunatics and idiots are absolved from all responsibility for their civil or criminal acts. This consequence was attributed only to the severest grades of these affections,—to lunatics who have no more understanding than a brute, and to idiots who cannot "number twenty pence nor tell how old they are." Theoretically the law has changed but little, even to the present day; but practically it exhibits considerable improvement: that is, while the general doctrine remains unchanged, it is qualified, in one way or another, by the courts, so as to produce less practical injustice.

Insanity implies the presence of disease or congenital defect in the brain, and though it may be accompanied by disease in other organs, yet the cerebral affection is always supposed to be primary and predominant. It is to be borne in mind, however, that bodily diseases may be accompanied, in some stage of their progress, by mental disorder which may affect the legal relations of the patient

To give a definition of insanity not congenital, or, in other words, to indicate its essential element, the present state of our knowledge does not permit. Most of the attempts to define insanity are sententious descriptions of the disease, rather than proper definitions. For all practical purposes, however, a definition is unnecessary, because the real question at issue always is, not what constitutes insanity in general, but wherein consists the insanity of this or that individual. Neither sanity nor insanity can be regarded as an entity to be handled and described, but rather as a condition to be considered in reference to other conditions. Men vary in the character of their mental manifestations, insomuch that conduct and conversation perfectly proper and natural in one might in another, differently constituted, be indicative of insanity. In determining, therefore, the mental condition of a person, he must not be judged by any arbitrary standard of sanity or insanity, nor compared with other persons unquestionably sane or insane. He can properly be com-pared only with himself. When a person, without any adequate cause, adopts notions he once regarded as absurd, or indulges in conduct opposed to all his former habits and principles, or changes completely his ordinary temper, manners, and disposition,-the man of plain practical sense indulging in speculative theories and projects, the miser coming a spendthrift and the spendthrift a miser, the staid, quiet, unobtrusive citizen becoming noisy, restless, and boisterous, the gay and joyous becoming dull and disconsolate even to the verge of despair, the careful, cautious man of business plunging into hazardous schemes of speculation, the discreet and plous becoming shamefully reckless and profligate,—no stronger proof of insanity can be had. And yet not one of these traits, in and by itself alone, disconnected from the natural traits of character, could be regarded as conclusive proof of insanity. In accordance with this fact, the princi-ple has been laid down, with the sanction of the highest legal and medical authority, that it is the prolonged departure, without any adequate cause, from the states of feeling and modes of thinking usual to the individual when in health, which is the essential feature of insanity. Gooch, Lond. Quart. Rev. xliii. 355; Combe, Ment. Derang. 196; Meid-way v. Croft, 3 Curt. Eccl. 671.

Insanity produced by alcoholism is of two kinds: Delirium tremens, caused by the breaking down of the person's system by long continued or habitual drunkenness, and brought on by abstinence from drink, and called "settled insanity," to distinguish it from "temporary insanity," or drunkenness, directly resulting from drink; Evers v. State, 31 Tex. Cr. R. 318, 20 S. W. 744, 18 L. R. A. 421, 37 Am. St. Rep. 811. See DRUNKENNESS.

Criminal Responsibility. There is a concurrence in the law of civilized countries in absolving persons mentally unsound from criminal responsibility. In France, Germany, and Austria the rule is in substance that if a person is unconscious of the nature of his act, or his will is affected or the character of the act is not perceived, there is no crime; 1 Witth. & Beck. Med. Jur. 181; Krafft-Ebing, Ger. Psycho-Path.

That insanity, in some of its forms, annuls all criminal responsibility, and, in the same or other forms, disqualifies its subject from the performance of certain civil acts, is a well-established doctrine of the common In the application of this principle law. there has prevailed, for many years, the The law as utmost diversity of opinion. expounded by Hale, who divided insanity into partial insanity as to certain subjects, partial as to degree, and total insanity, was that partial insanity was not sufficient to excuse a person in the committing of any capital offence; 1 Hale, P. C. 30; and his doctrine was received without question until the beginning of the present century: 8 How. St. Tr. 322; 16 id. 764; 19 id. 947.

This ancient doctrine received its first serious shock in Hadfield's case, 27 id. 1281, 1311, in which Erskine, for the defence, admitted the language used by Coke and Hale as to requiring deprivation of memory and understanding to absolve from crime, but contended that, if taken literally, the words would apply to idiocy alone. He insisted that "of all the cases that have filled Westminster Hall with complicated considerations, the insane persons have not only had the most perfect knowledge and recollection of all the relations in which they stood towards others, and of the acts and circumstances of their lives, but have, in general, been remarkable for subtlety and acuteness; and that delusion of which the criminal act in question was the immediate unqualified offspring, was the kind of insanity which should rightly exempt from punishment." These views prevailed and Lord Kenyon held that the prisoner was deranged immediately prior to the act and that it was unlikely that he had meanwhile recovered, though, strictly speaking, proof might be required of his condition at the very moment of the shooting; accordingly the prisoner was acquitted with the approbation of the court. Subsequently, in Bellingham's case, 1 Collinson, Lun. 636; Shelf. Lun. 462, Lord Mansfield held that it must be proved that the prisoner was incapable of judging between right and wrong; that at the time of the act he did not consider that murder was a crime against the laws of God and nature; and that there was no other proof of insanity which would excuse crime. Similar language was used in Parker's case, Collin. Lun. 477; Higginson's case, 1 C. & K. 129; Stokes' case, 3 C. & K. 185, and so for about a generation the law of England was practically as settled by Hadfield's and Bellingham's cases, though there were occasional variations from it. The special feature of person responsible for crime, there must be a knowledge of right and wrong in the abstract. But the tendency of the cases was towards the modification of the test, so as to make the knowledge of right and wrong refer solely to the act in question; 5 C. & P. 168; 9 id. 525; 1 Cox, Cr. Cas. 80; 3 id. 275. This was pronounced to be the law by the English judges, in their answer to the questions propounded to them by the House of Lords on the occasion of the McNaghten trial, 10 Cl. & F. 200, where it was said by Tindal, C. J., for himself and the other judges: "To establish a defence on the ground of insanity, it must be clearly proved that at the time of committing the act, the party accused was laboring under such a defect of reason, from disease of the mind, as not to know the nature or quality of the act he was doing; or, if he did know it, that he was not aware he was doing what was wrong." Most of the English cases will be found in 1 Russ. Cr., Shars. ed. 14, and in the notes will be found a collection of American cases.

The test laid down in McNaghten's case has been generally applied in England and this country. In the former it has been definitely recognized as the law, and in the latter it has been generally adopted, though with frequent variations, as will appear infra.

As to the answers of the judges, Sir J. F. Stephen (3 Hist. Cr. L. 154) has stated his opinion that their authority is questionable, adding that he "knows that some of the most distinguished judges on the bench have been of the same opinion"; he also observes that they "leave untouched the most difficult questions connected with the subject." It appears that, since that case, neither the Court for Crown Cases Reserved nor any other English court in banc has delivered a considered written opinion on the subject.

In Coleman's case, in New York, Davis, J., charged the jury that the "test of the responsibility for criminal acts, when insanity is asserted, is the capacity of the accused to distinguish between right and wrong at the time and with respect to the act which is the subject of inquiry." left it to the jury to determine "whether or not at the time the accused committed the act she knew what she was doing, and knew that in shooting him she was doing a wrongful act." 1 N. Y. Cr. Rep. 1. With variations of expression this is the prevailing doctrine of the American courts; Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Terry, 15 Wall. (U. S.) 590, 21 L. Ed. 236; People v. Pico, 62 Cal. 50; State v. Windsor, 5 Harring. (Del.) 512; State v. Danby, 1 Houst. Cr. Cas. (Del.) 166; State v. West, id. 371; Humphreys v. State, 45 Ga. 190; Westmoreland v. State, id. 225; State v. Lawrence, 57 Me. 574; State v. the law of that period was that, to make a Mahn, 25 Kan. 182; U. S. v. Faulkner, 35

Fed. 730; Com. v. Heath, 11 Gray (Mass.) 303; Cunningham v. State, 56 Miss. 269, 21 Am. Rep. 360; People v. Finley, 38 Mich. 482; State v. Shippey, 10 Minn. 223 (Gil. 178), 88 Am. Dec. 70; State v. Erb, 74 Mo. 199; State v. Kotovsky, 74 Mo. 247; Hawe v. State, 11 Neb. 537, 10 N. W. 452, 38 Am. Rep. 375; State v. Spencer, 21 N. J. L. 196; State v. Brandon, 53 N. C. 463; Thomas v. State, 40 Tex. 60; Dove v. State, 3 Heisk. (Tenn.) 348; Dunn v. People, 109 Ill. 635; State v. Alexander, 30 S. C. 74, 8 S. E. 440, 14 Am. St. Rep. 879; Com. v. Winnemore, 1 Brewst. (Pa.) 356; Com. v. Mosler, 4 Pa. 264; U. S. v. Shults, 6 McLean, 121, Fed. Cas. No. 16,-286; Walker v. People, 88 N. Y. 86; Loeffner v. State, 10 Ohio St. 599. In many of the cases it is difficult to distinguish with certainty between what the court intends for a statement of the law and what is rather in the nature of practical suggestions addressed to the jury. In a New Hampshire case it was held that no one of the circumstances ordinarily relied upon is, as a matter of law, a test of mental disease, but that all symptoms and all tests of mental disease are purely matters of fact to be determined by the jury; State v. Pike, 49 N. H. 399, 6 Am. Rep. 533; and the same doctrine has been followed in other states; Hopps v. People, 31 Ill. 385, 83 Am. Dec. 231; Bradley v. State, 31 Ind. 492; Stevens v. State, 31 Ind. 485, 99 Am. Dec. 634. Very similar were the remarks addressed to the jury by the Lord Justice Clerk in a Scotch Justiciary case: "The question is one of fact, that matter of fact being whether when he committed this crime the prisoner was of an unsound mind. The counsel for the crown very properly said that this was entirely for you. It is not a question of medical science, neither is it one of legal definition, although both may materially assist you. It is a question for your common and practical sense." 3 Couper 16.

It was said that mental unsoundness, to render one free from criminal liability, must be such on the particular subject out of which the acts charged as an offence are claimed to have sprung, as to render him incapable of discerning the wrong of committing the same; U. S. v. Faulkner, 35 Fed. 730; Kearney v. People, 11 Colo. 258, 17 Pac. Occasionally the court has thought it sufficient for the jury to consider whether the prisoner was sane or insane.-of sound memory and discretion, or otherwise; see State v. Cory, State v. Prescott, in Ray, Med. Jur. 55. The capacity to distinguish between right and wrong has been held not to be a safe test in all cases; State v. Felter, 25 Ia. 67, per Dillon, C. J.; Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Terry, 15 Wall. (U. S.) 580, 21 L. Ed. 236. See also Brown v. Com., 78 Pa. 122. Whart, & St. Med. Jur. § 120, this test is said all cases. An instruction has been sustained. where there was a defence of insanity, that the defendant was not responsible unless he was conscious of his act at the time it was committed; People v. Clendennin, 91 Cal. 35, 27 Pac. 418.

The definition of insanity, in the trial of a case involving that issue, is for the court: Whart. & St. Med. Jur. § 112; see 1 F. & F. 87; and it has entire discretion as to the method of disposing of a suggestion that the prisoner is so insane as to render him unable to make a rational defence; U. S. v. Chisholm, 149 Fed. 284.

It is not error to instruct that insanity is a defence sometimes resorted to in default of other defences, and, while it is to be justly weighed, it is to be reckoned with; People v. Allender, 117 Cal. 81, 48 Pac. 1014.

It is proper to refuse to charge that if the defendant at the time of the act was affected with a mental disease that impaired his will and rendered him likely at any time to commit such an act, he must be acquitted; People v. Barthleman, 120 Cal. 7, 52 Pac. 112. Where the accused killed his wife during an attack of epilepsy, it is not error to charge that if he was insane up to the time of the act and was sane afterwards and remained sane until the present time they should find that he was sane when he committed the act; Taylor v. U. S., 7 App. D. C. 27; Snell v. U. S., 16 App. D. C. 501.

The defence of insanity is a legal defence and an instruction that it is viewed with disfavor is error; State v. Barry, 11 N. D. 428, 92 N. W. 809. Where the accused had been twice adjudged insane and committed to an asylum, but was discharged therefrom nearly two years before the act, there was no presumption of insanity; State v. Austin, 71 Ohio St. 317, 73 N. E. 218, 104 Am. St. Rep. 778.

The law of self-defence is applicable alike to the insane and the sane and the two defences are consistent and either one, if sustained, would justify a verdict of "not guilty"; State v. Wade, 161 Mo. 441, 61 S. W. 800.

In homicide, where there was evidence to support the request, the court should have charged that defendant was not guilty if he was laboring under such a defect of mind and reason as not to know the nature and quality of the acts he was doing, and was incapable of forming a criminal intent; that if the jury were not convinced beyond a reasonable doubt that, on the night of the shooting, defendant was of sound mind and discretion, and was capable of forming a criminal intent, they should acquit; that it was incumbent upon the prosecution to prove beyond a reasonable doubt the criminal intent with which the fatal shot was fired, and defendant's mental capacity for forming an into be generally satisfactory, but not to cover tent to commit the alleged crime; and that if the jury could not say that they had a moral certainty that, on the night of the shooting, defendant's mind and discretion were sufficient for him to form a rational intent to kill, his guilt had not been established; People v. Muste, 137 Mich. 216, 100 N. W. 455.

The rule already stated as to partial insanity applies equally to delusions, which as has been stated were first brought within the law of mental irresponsibility for crime by Hadfield's case, supra. In McNaghten's case, supra, the question as to delusions was answered thus: "That if a person was acting under an insane delusion, and was in other respects sane, he must be considered in the same situation as to responsibility as if the facts with respect to which the delusion exists were real. That is to say, that the acts of the criminal should be judged as if he had really been in the circumstances he imagined himself to be in. For example, if, under the influence of delusion, he supposes another man to be in the act of attempting to take his life, and he kills him, as he supposes, in self-defence, he would be exempt from punishment. If his delusion was that the deceased had inflicted an injury upon him in character and fortune, and he killed him in revenge for such supposed injury, he would be liable to punishment." In the Guiteau case, the jury were charged by Cox. J., on this subject, as follows: "An insane delusion is never the result of reasoning and reflection. It is not generated by them and it cannot be dispelled by them. . . . Whenever convictions are founded on evidence, on comparison of facts and opinions and arguments, they are not insane delusions. The insane delusion does not relate to mere sentiments or theories, or abstract questions of law, politics, or religion. All these are the subject of opinions, which are beliefs founded on reasoning and reflection. These opinions are often absurd in the extreme, and result from naturally weak or ill-trained reasoning powers, hasty conclusions from insufficient data, ignorance of men and things, credulous dispositions, fraudulent imposture, and often from perverted moral sentiments. But still, they are opinions, founded upon some kind of evidence, and liable to be changed by better external evidence or sounder reasoning. But they are not insane delusions;" Guiteau's Case, 10 Fed. 161. Following this opinion it was said that: "An insane delusion is an incorrigible belief, not the result of reasoning in the existence of facts which are either impossible absolutely or impossible under the circumstances of the individual." State v. Lewis, 20 Nev. 333, 22 Pac. 241.

It is a logical result of the nature of delusion and its legal relations as shown by these definitions that it will be of no avail as a defence unless, if true, the facts supposed to exist would have excused the crime; id.; Thurman v. State, 32 Neb. 224, 49 N. W. 338; People v. Taylor, 138 N. Y. 398, 34 N. E. 275; Smith v. State, 55 Ark. 259, 18 S. W. 237. This rule is well illustrated by a case in which it was held that an instruction that "defendant would not be responsible if he killed deceased under an insane delusion that deceased was trying to marry defendant's mother, and that this delusion caused the killing," was properly refused; Bolling v. State, 54 Ark. 588, 16 S. W. 658.

In order that delusion may be a defence it must be connected with the crime, and if a person has an insane delusion upon any one subject, but commits a crime not connected therewith, he is equally guilty as if he were in all respects sane; State v. Gut, 13 Minn. 341 (Gil. 315); Bovard v. State, 30 Miss. 600; State v. Huting, 21 Mo. 464. "A man whose mind squints, unless impelled to crime by this very mental obliquity, is as much amenable to punishment as one whose eye squints." Gibson, C. J., in Com. v. Mosler, 4 Pa. 264. See also Alison, Cr. L. 647; Ray, Insan. 106, 135, 227; 3 Couper 357; State v. Simms, 71 Mo. 538; 1 Bish. N. Cr. L. 304

"Where a defendant is acting under an insane delusion as to circumstances which, if true, would relieve the act from responsibility, such delusion is a defence;" Whart. & St. Med. Jur. § 125; but such delusions must involve an honest mistake as to the object to which the crime is directed; id. § 127; 3 F. & F. 839. The term delusion as applied to insanity, does not mean a mere mistake of fact, or being induced by false evidence to believe that a fact exists which does not exist; Middleditch v. Williams, 45 N. J. Eq. 726, 17 Atl. 826, 4 L. R. A. 738.

A disposition to multiply the tests, so as to recognize essential facts in the nature of insanity, has been manifested in this country to a much greater extent than in England.

The existence of an irresistible impulse to commit a crime has been recognized in the law; Steph. Cr. L. 91; and medical authorities are generally in agreement that, as it is put by Bishop, "the mental and physical machine may slip the control of its owner; and so a man may be conscious of what he is doing, and of its criminal character and consequences, while yet he is impelled to it by a power to him irresistible." 1 New Cr. L. 387; 3 Witth. & Beck. 270, 275; 1 Beck, Med. Jur., 10th ed. 723; Ray, Insan., 3d ed. §§ 17, 18, 22. But the writer last quoted adds: "Whether or not such is truly so must, in the nature of things, be a pure question of fact, it cannot be of law."

In England the courts have refused to recognize this ground of exemption from responsibility and limit the test to ability to distinguish between right and wrong; Clarke, Cr. L. 56; 1 Bish. N. Cr. L. $ 387; 3 C. & K. 185; 1 F. & F. 666; 3 Cox, C. C. 275.

The American cases are very difficult to classify with reference to this test, as indeed they are on most branches of the subject, nor is such the present purpose; all that is possible being, by reference to a selection of the cases, to illustrate the progress of the law and the direction in which, but not, critically, the precise extent to which, changes have been made since Lord Hale's time, keeping pace with the growth of scientific knowledge.

A full understanding of the scope of the doctrine now under consideration involves the further subject of power of resistance, which enters largely into this class of cases and is also more particularly referred to, infra.

In Roger's case, 7 Metc. (Mass.) 500, 41 Am. Dec. 458, the jury were directed to consider, in addition to the test of right and wrong, whether the prisoner, in committing the homicide, acted from an irresistible and uncontrollable impulse; and this case has been much relied on in American courts; Ray, Med. Jur. 58.

In Freth's case, 3 Phila. (Pa.) 105, Judge Ludlow charged: "If the prisoner was actuated by an irresistible inclination to kill, and was utterly unable to control his will, or subjugate his intellect, and was not actuated by anger, jealousy, revenge, and kindred evil passions, he is entitled to an acquittal," etc.

In the leading case of State v. Harrison it was said by Brannon, J.: "This irresistible-impulse theory test has been only recently presented, and while it is supported by plausible arguments, it is rather refined, and introduces what seems to me a useless element of distinction for a test, and is misleading to juries, and fraught with great danger to human life, so much so that even its advocates have warningly said it should be very cautiously applied and only in the clearest cases. What is this irresistible im-How shall we of the courts and pulse? juries know it? Does it exist when manifested in one single instance, as in the present case, or must it be shown to be habitual, or, at least, to have evinced itself in more than a single instance? . . . I admit the existence of irresistible impulse and its efficacy to exonerate from responsibility, but not as consistent with an adequate realization of the wrong of the act. It is that uncontrollable impulse produced by the disease of the mind, when that disease is sufficient to override judgment and obliterate the sense of right as to the acts done, and deprives the accused of power to choose between them; 36 W. Va. 729, 15 S. E. 982, 18 L. R. A. 224.

For other cases in which irresistible impulse is regarded as a defence, see Stevens v. State, 31 Ind. 485, 99 Am. Dec. 634; Blackburn v. State, 23 Ohio St. 146; Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Terry, 15 Wall. (U. S.) 580, 21 L. Ed. 236; but it is held that no impulse, however irresistible, is a defence, where there is a knowledge as to the particular act between right and wrong; State v. Brandon, 53 N. C. 463; State v. Miller, 111 Mo. 542, 20 S. W. 243; Lovegrove v. State, 31 Tex. Cr. R. 491, 21 S. W. 191; People v. Clendennin, 91 Cal. 35, 27 Pac. 418; Thomas v. State, 71 Miss. 345, 15 South. 237; Patterson v. State, 86 Ga. 70, 12 S. E. 174; Wilcox v. State, 94 Tenn. 106, 28 S. W. 312; Tayl. Med. Jur. 720; and that it was a crime morally, and punishable by the laws of the country; State v. Alexander, 30 S. C. 74, 8 S. E. 440, 14 Am. St. Rep. 879; Williams v. State, 50 Ark. 511, 9 S. W. 5.

As a perfectly natural outgrowth of the doctrine of irresistible impulse, there is to be found in the American cases a tendency more noticeable in late years, to add an additional qualification to the right and wrong test. These cases hold, not merely that the accused, to be considered accountable, must be able to distinguish between right and wrong with respect to the act in question, but must have sufficient mental power to control his impulses.

As the theory of irresistible impulses owes much of its development to the courts of Pennsylvania, so also has this correlative doctrine of the necessity of power to control it received great attention in that state. In Mosler's case, 4 Pa. 264, Gibson, C. J., said: "His insanity must be so great as entirely to destroy his perception of right and wrong; and it is not until that perception is thus destroyed that he ceases to be responsible. must amount to delusion or hallucination, controlling his will and making the commission of the act, in his apprehension, a duty of overruling necessity. The law is, that, whether the insanity be general or partial, the degree of it must be so great as to have controlled the will of its subject, and to have taken from him the freedom of moral action." And this language is repeated in Ortwein's case, 76 Pa. 414, 18 Am. Rep. 420, by Agnew, C. J., who declares it to be the law of the state. The essential relation of power to such cases is thus put, in Haskell's case, 2 Brewst. (Pa.) 491, by Brewster, J.: "A review of all the authorities I have been able to examine satisfies me that the true test in all these cases lies in the word 'power.' Has the defendant in a criminal case the power to distinguish right from wrong, and the power to adhere to the right and avoid the wrong? In these cases has the defendant, in addition to the capacities mentioned, the power to govern his mind, his body, and his estate? If he possess this power over his imagination he will be able to expel all delusive images, and the like control over his will would subdue all homicidal and other monomania. . . . I use the word power with reference to that control which humanity can expect from humanity."

Other cases supporting this view are, Smith v. Com., 1 Duv. (Ky.) 224; Com. v. Rogers, 7 Metc. (Mass.) 500, 41 Am. Dec.

Other cases seem to hold that one mentally disordered, though knowing right and wrong, and that the act is forbidden and punishable, is criminally responsible whether he has power over his conduct or not; Walker v. People, 26 Hun (N. Y.) 67; Flanagan v. People, 52 N. Y. 467, 11 Am. Rep. 731; People v. Carpenter, 102 N. Y. 238, 6 N. E. 584; Anderson v. State, 42 Ga. 9; Brinkley v. State, 58 Ga. 296; People v. Hoin, 62 Cal. 120, 45 Am. Rep. 651; State v. Murray, 11 Or. 413, 5 Pac. 55; State v. Scott, 41 Minn. 365, 43 N. W. 62; State v. Pratt, Houst. Cr. Cas. (Del.) 249; State v. Pagels, 92 Mo. 300, 4 S. W. 931. Though a crime is committed through lack of sufficient will power to control the conduct, and under an irresistible and uncontrollable impulse, the offender is responsible for the act; State v. Miller, 111 Mo. 542, 20 S. W. 243. In discussing this class of cases Bishop considers that a doctrine that "our law punishes any man for what he does under a necessity which it is impossible for him to resist," would be an "unprecedented horror." He assumes that the cases which appear to hold it are to be explained upon the theory that the judges do not believe in the existence of an irresistible or uncontrollable impulse. He himself does not assume to know whether as a fact there is, but as the experts assert it, he deems it to be the duty of a judge, where there is evidence tending to support the theory, to submit it to the jury and cast the responsibility upon them. 1 Bish. N. Cr. L. $ 383 b, 387.

To this remarkable diversity of views may be attributed, in some measure, no doubt, the actual diversity of results. To any one who has followed with some attention the course of criminal justice in trials where insanity has been pleaded in defence, it is obvious that, if some have been properly convicted, others have just as improperly been acquitted. It must be admitted, however, that the verdict in such cases is often determined less by the instructions of the court than by the views and feelings of the jury and the testimony of experts.

The defence of irresistible impulse has been the subject of legislation in some states, as in New York and Michigan, where by statute a morbid propensity, or uncontrollable impulse to commit a crime, in the mind of one who is conscious of the nature of the such knowledge, is no defence. See N. Y. Pen. Code § 21; Mich. Pen. Code § 19, 20.

What is sometimes called moral insanity, as distinguished from mental unsoundness, is not a defence to a charge of crime; Whart. & St. Med. Jur. §§ 164, 174; Tayl. Med. Jur. 677; 6 Jur. 201; 4 Cox, C. C. 149; Com. v. Heath, 11 Gray (Mass.) 303; Flanagan v. People, 52 N. Y. 467, 11 Am. Rep. 731; People v. McDonell, 47 Cal. 134; People v. Kerrigan, 73 Cal. 222, 14 Pac. 849; Guiteau's Case, 10 Fed. 161; State v. Potts, 100 N. C. 457, 6 S. E. 657; People v. Wood, 126 N. Y. 269, 27 N. E. 362; Flanagan v. People, 52 N. Y. 469, 11 Am. Rep. 731; but see Smith v. Com., 1 Duv. (Ky.) 224; Scott v. Com., 4 Metc. (Ky.) 227, 83 Am. Dec. 461; Andersen v. State, 43 Conn. 514, 21 Am. Rep. 669; St. Louis Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Graves, 6 Bush (Ky.) 268. See also Mann, Med. Jur. of Insan. 66, 120, 135. Nor, however violent and unnatural, will it defeat a will unless it is the emanation of a delusion; Taylor v. McClintock, 87 Ark. 243, 112 S. W. 405.

Morbid religious feelings may be of such a character as to amount to partial insanity, which, though sometimes the basis of delusions affecting criminal cases, is more frequently met with in connection with the subject of undue influence. In a case in which it was alleged that a testator was insane on the subject of spiritualism, it was held that, as an abstract proposition, a belief in spiritualism, though a person may be a monomaniac on that subject or any other form of religion, does not prove insanity; Connor v. Stanley, 72 Cal. 556, 14 Pac. 306, 1 Am. St. Rep. 84; Chafin Will Case, 32 Wis. 557; Will of Smith, 52 Wis. 543, 8 N. W. 616, 9 N. W. 665, 38 Am. Rep. 756; Turner v. Hand, 3 Wall. Jr. 88, Fed. Cas. No. 14,257; nor belief in the transmigration of souls; Bonard's Will, 16 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 128.

Insanity is not necessarily established by mere eccentricity of mind, manifesting itself in absurd opinions or extravagancies of dress and manners; Lee's Heirs v. Lee's Ex'rs, 4 McCord (S. C.) 183, 17 Am. Dec. 722; or an irritable temper and an excitable disposition; Willis v. People, 32 N. Y. 715; or depression coupled with a monomania or delusion that, by the lands wearing out and buildings going to ruin, starvation and the poorhouse were threatened; Gillespie v. Shuliherrier, 50 N. C. 157. Insanity produced by continued dissipation is a good defence; State v. Harrigan, 9 Houst. (Del.) 369, 31 Atl. 1052; mania à potu is a species of insanity; State v. Dillahunt, 3 Harr. (Del.) 551; and so is delirium tremens; People v. O'Connell, 62 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 436; Maconnehey v. State, 5 Ohio St. 77; Kelley v. State, 31 Tex. Cr. R. 216, 20 S. W. 357; but it must be shown to exist at the time act or that it is wrong, or to be incapable of the act is perpetrated, not antecedently; State v. Sewell, 48 N. C. 245. As to drunkenness in its varied forms, see that title.

If the accused was wanting in self-governing power, whether caused by insanity, gross intoxication or other controlling influences other than depravity or wickedness of heart, then his mind was not fully conscious of its own purposes and he was not guilty of murder in the first degree; Com. v. Van Horn, 188 Pa. 143, 41 Atl. 469. Where a defendant was insane from drugs, the court must charge thereon, though a charge on the general issue of insanity is given; Burton v. State, 46 Tex. Cr. R. 493, 81 S. W. 742. If the accused had sufficient mind to know right from wrong and to understand the nature and quality of the act, he was sane in law; Eckert v. State, 114 Wis. 160, 89 N. W. 826; if he did not possess the power to avoid the wrong and do the right, he was irresponsible; People v. Barthleman, 120 Cal. 7, 52 Pac. 112; Abbott v. Com., 107 Ky. 624, 55 S. W. 196; Jolly v. Com., 110 Ky. 190, 61 S. W. 49, 22 Ky. Law Rep. 1622.

Suicide is not conclusive evidence of insanity, but is admissible to show the absence of a sound and disposing mind; Pettitt's Ex'rs v. Pettitt, 4 Humph. (Tenn.) 191. Epilepsy alone does not establish insanity which will excuse crime; Lovegrove v. State, 31 Tex. Cr. R. 491, 21 S. W. 191; Com. v. Buccieri, 153 Pa. 535, 26 Atl. 228; and in its milder forms, causing temporary fits of insanity, the prima facie presumption is in favor of mental soundness; Corbit v. Smith, 7 Ia. 60, 71 Am. Dec. 431. See 3 Witth. & Beck. Med. Jur. 319. Proof that insanity was hereditary is admissible; Shaeffer v. State, 61 Ark. 241, 32 S. W. 679; but that alone is insufficient when the other evidence clearly shows that defendant knew that he was committing a wrong; Lovegrove v. State, 31 Tex. Cr. R. 491, 21 S. W. 191; Snow v. Benton, 28 III. 306.

An insane person cannot be legally charged with a criminal intent; State v. Brown, 36 Utah 46, 102 Pac. 641, 24 L. R. A. (N. S.) 545. Where it is admitted that a defendant in a murder case is neither an idiot nor an insane person, it is not competent to prove that he is weakminded; Rogers v. State, 128 Ga. 67, 57 S. E. 227, 10 L. R. A. (N. S.) 999, 119 Am. St. Rep. 364.

In reply to a defence of want of criminal capacity, proof was admitted that defendant had sometimes feigned insanity; Naanes v. State, 143 Ind. 299, 42 N. E. 609. But insanity cannot be proved by reputation; Walker v. State, 102 Ind. 502, 1 N. E. 856; State v. Coley, 114 N. C. 879, 19 S. E. 705.

See HYPNOTISM; KLEPTOMANIA.

The effect of the plea of insanity has sometimes been controlled by the instructions of the court in regard to the burden of proof and the requisite amount.

In many of the American states, there has 191 Pa. 375, 43 Atl. 211.

been a tendency towards a relaxation of the rule settled in England, and which formerly prevailed in almost all the states, to treat a plea of insanity as being strictly one in confession and avoidance which must be proved by the defendant either beyond a reasonable doubt or, as was said in many American cases, by a preponderance of evidence. See Burden of Proof.

The English rule was thus stated in Mc-Naghten's case: "Every man is presumed to be sane, and to possess a sufficient degree of reason to be responsible for his crimes, until the contrary be proved to their satisfaction;" 10 Cl. & F. 200; and it is the settled law of England; 3 C. & K. 188; 4 Cox, C. C. 149: 3 4d. 155.

As to whether such proof must be by a preponderance of evidence or beyond a reasonable doubt, the language of the English judges is not entirely free from ambiguity.

In many of the American cases the English rule is adhered to; State v. Spencer, 21 N. J. L. 202, followed in Genz v. State, 59 N. J. L. 488, 37 Atl. 69, 59 Am. St. Rep. 618: Ortwein v. Com., 76 Pa. 414, 18 Am. Rep. 420; Com. v. Gerade, 145 Pa. 289, 22 Atl. 464, 27 Am. St. Rep. 689; State v. Brandon, 53 N. C. 463; Kriel v. Com., 5 Bush. (Ky.) 362; Moore v. Com., 92 Ky. 630, 18 S. W. 833; Lovegrove v. State, 31 Tex. Cr. R. 491, 21 S. W. 191; Boswell v. State, 63 Ala. 307, 35 Am. Rep. 20; Maxwell v. State, 89 Ala. 150. 7 South. 824; Parsons v. State, 81 Ala. 577, 2 South. 854, 60 Am. Rep. 193 (where the subject is discussed at large); Bolling v. State, 54 Ark. 588, 16 S. W. 658; People v. Bawden, 90 Cal. 195, 27 Pac. 204; State v. De Rance, 34 La. Ann. 186, 44 Am. Rep. 426; State v. Clements, 47 La. Ann. 1088, 17 South. 502; State v. Lawrence, 57 Me. 574: Com. v. Rogers, 7 Metc. (Mass.) 500, 41 Am. Dec. 458; State v. Hanley, 34 Minn. 430, 26 N. W. 397; State v. Pagels, 92 Mo. 310, 4 S. W. 931; Bond v. State, 23 Ohio St. 349; State v. Bundy, 24 S. C. 439, 58 Am. Rep. 263; Baccigalupo v. Com., 33 Gratt. (Va.) 807, 36 Am. Rep. 795; State v. Strauder, 11 W. Va. 747, 27 Am. Rep. 606. See 36 Am. Rep. 467, n.

The terms of this rule cannot be better stated than in Com. v. Drum, 58 Pa. 9: "Where the killing is admitted, and insanity or want of legal responsibility is alleged as an excuse, it is the duty of the defendant to satisfy the jury that insanity actually existed at the time of the act, and a doubt as to such insanity will not justify a jury in acquitting upon that ground." This language was quoted with strong approval in Ortwein v. Com., 76 Pa. 414, 425, 18 Am. Rep. 420. In a much later Pennsylvania case it was said that "the burden of proof of insanity was with the defence from the beginning, and that it never shifted." Com. v. Heidler, 191 Pa. 375, 43 Atl. 211.

the idea that the issue is to be determined in each case by a preponderance of evidence, so that an effort to deduce from them a well established rule, supported by the weight of authority, as to whether the test is to be considered a preponderance of evidence or the establishment of the defence beyond a reasonable doubt, is subject to the same ambiguity that attaches to the language of the English judges. In addition to this question which arises upon the cases which put the burden of the defence upon the accused many courts have held that when evidence of insanity is introduced by the defendant, the burden of proving his criminal capacity is cast upon the prosecution (and most of the cases go to the extent of including this as one of the elements of the crime which must be proved beyond a reasonable doubt); U. S. v. Faulkner, 35 Fed. 730; Guiteau's Case, 10 Fed. 161, and note; Hodge v. State, 26 Fla. 11, 7 South. 593; Brown v. State, 40 Fla. 459, 25 South. 63; State v. Johnson, 40 Conn. 136; Langdon v. People, 133 Ill. 382, 24 N. E. 874; Plake v. State, 121 Ind. 433, 23 N. E. 273, 16 Am. St. Rep. 408; State v. Nixon, 32 Kan. 205, 4 Pac. 159; People v. Garbutt, 17 Mich. 9, 97 Am. Dec. 162 (but where the evidence is insufficient to raise a reasonable doubt, it does not shift the burden of proof to the prosecution; Snider v. State, 56 Neb. 309, 76 N. W. 574); State v. Pressler, 16 Wyo. 214, 92 Pac. 806, 15 Ann. Cas. 93; Territory v. McNabb, 16 N. M. 625, 120 Pac. 907; Cunningham v. State, 56 Miss. 269, 21 Am. Rep. 360; State v. Bartlett, 43 N. H. 224, 80 Am. Dec. 154; Brotherton v. People, 75 N. Y. 159; Walker v. People of N. Y., 88 N. Y. 81; King v. State, 91 Tenn. 617, 20 S. W. 169; Revoir v. State, 82 Wis. 295, 52 N. W. 84; and the supreme court of the United States has accepted this latter doctrine; Davis v. U. S., 160 U. S. 469, 16 Sup. Ct. 353, 40 L. Ed. 499; where it was held that the jury, to convict, must be "able, upon their consciences, to say that the evidence before them, by whomsoever adduced, is sufficient to show beyond a reasonable doubt the existence of every fact necessary to constitute the crime charged."

In a later case, Battle v. U. S., 209 U. S. 38, 28 Sup. Ct. 422, 52 L. Ed. 670, where the defence of insanity was interposed, the same court said: "The judge instructed the jury that the burden of proof was on the government to prove that fact beyond a reasonable doubt, and he was not called upon to go further. Until evidence is given on the other side, the burden of proof is satisfied by a presumption arising from the fact that most men are sane. In this case there was the merest shadow of evidence that the defendant was not of sound mind. The jury were told to consider all the evidence, including Many of the cases above cited rest upon of his own testimony, and the evidence relied upon by him was stated. In the circumstances he could ask no more."

In a criminal case the burden is on the defendant to prove by a preponderance of evidence the defence of insanity; People v. Suesser, 142 Cal. 354, 75 Pac. 1093; State v. Scott, 49 La. Ann. 253, 21 South. 271, 36 L. R. A. 721; State v. Robbins, 109 Ia. 650, 80 N. W. 1061; People v. Willard, 150 Cal. 543, 89 Pac. 124; Fults v. State, 50 Tex. Cr. R. 502, 98 S. W. 1057; Thomas v. State, 55 Tex. Cr. R. 293, 116 S. W. 600; State v. Hancock, 151 N. C. 699, 66 S. E. 137; Pribble v. People, 49 Colo. 210, 112 Pac. 220; though he need not prove it beyond a reasonable doubt; Burt v. State, 38 Tex. Cr. R. 397, 40 S. W. 1000, 43 S. W. 344, 39 L. R. A. 305, 330; Adair v. State, Okl. Cr. 284, 118 Pac. 416; but only to the satisfaction of the jury; State v. Porter, 213 Mo. 43, 111 S. W. 529, 127 Am. St. Rep. 589; and when that is done the burden is shifted; Hobbs v. State, 8 Ga. App. 53, 68 S. E. 515; but if not established by the state's evidence, defendant must prove it by direct evidence to the satisfaction of the jury; State v. Cole, 2 Pennewill (Del.) 344, 45 Atl. 391; or at least so as to raise a reasonable doubt; Johnson v. State, 57 Fla. 18, 49 South. 40. The burden of the defence of temporary insanity is on the defendant; State v. Hand, 1 Marv. (Del.) 545, 41 Atl. 192; or of incapacity produced by delirium tremens at the very time of the act; State v. Kavanaugh, 4 Pennewill (Del.) 131, 53 Atl.

Where the defence is insanity, until the defendant furnishes evidence thereon sufficient to raise a reasonable doubt, the prosecution may rest on the legal presumption that men are sane; State v. Wetter, 11 Idaho 433, 83 Pac. 341; and the mere fact of the commission of the crime is not sufficient to overcome this presumption; Davis v. State, 44 Fla. 32, 32 South. 822.

The rule that a person adjudged insane continues so until the contrary is shown, applies only to insanity of a nature liable to be permanent; Hempton v. State, 111 Wis. 127, 86 N. W. 596.

As to the rule on the subject, applied by the class of cases last referred to, see Burden The cases of the former class. OF PROOF. which put the burden on the defendant, as has already been suggested, in very many instances hold that a preponderance of proof only is required; and in some states the later cases show a virtual abandonment of the rule formerly adhered to by them. As for example in Massachusetts as will appear by the review of cases in that state in Davis v. U. S., 160 U. S. 481, 483, 16 Sup. Ct. 353, 40 L. Ed. 499. It results that it is not practicable to state what might be designated as a prevailing American rule. The subject the bearing of the prisoner and the manner is very fully discussed by Mr. Justice Harlan in the case last cited. The cases holding | til the contrary is shown; State v. Snell, different views of the subject will be found collected in the opinion and argument in that case and also in 14 Am. L. Reg. N. S. 25; 16 id. 449; Cl. Cr. L. 58; Mann, Med. Jur. of Insan. ch. iii.; Witth. & Beck. 508. And see memorandum on plea of insanity, State v. Baber, 11 Mo. App. 586.

A statute imposing upon the accused the burden of proving the defence of insanity is constitutional; McGhee v. State (Ala.), 59 South, 573.

In England, under 46 & 47 Vict. c. 38, relating to the trial of lunatics, the jury returns a verdict that the prisoner is "guilty, but insane at the time," whereupon the court records the verdict and orders the prisoner to be imprisoned during the pleasure of the Crown. Under 39 & 40 Geo. III. c. 94, the verdict was "not guilty, on the ground of insanity."

In some states in this country, where the verdict is an acquittal by reason of insanity, the fact must be so returned by the jury, and in such case the court are required to direct the confinement of the prisoner in an insane asylum.

A statute is not unconstitutional which provides that one acquitted of murder on the ground of insanity may be committed to the state lunatic asylum till he becomes sane. The fact of sanity is not established by the fact that he is placed on trial, if, under the statute, an insane person may be tried if he is competent to understand the proceeding and make his defense. His right to habeas corpus, after committal, to establish his sanity, satisfies his constitutional right to a hearing. The state may summarily deprive him of his liberty, under the police power, though no appeal is allowed from the order of acquittal. These questions were decided in People v. Chanler, 133 App. Div. 159, 117 N. Y. Supp. 322, id., 196 N. Y. 525, 89 N. E. 1109, 25 L. R. A. (N. S.) 946. See also People v. Baker, 59 Misc. 359, 110 N. Y. Supp. In subsequent habeas corpus proceedings the burden is on the petitioner to prove recovery of reason; People v. Lamb (the Thaw case) 118 N. Y. Supp. 389; so also in State v. Snell, 46 Wash. 327, 89 Pac. 931, 9 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1191; and he is not denied the protection of the law in such case; Petition of Dowdell, 169 Mass. 387, 47 N. E. 1033, 61 Am. St. Rep. 290; Petition of Le Donne, 173 Mass. 550, 54 N. E. 244. A committal of such person until the further order of the court is not void for uncertainty; and is no deprivation of due process of law; In re Brown, 39 Wash. 160, 81 Pac. 552, 109 Am. St. Rep. 868, 4 Ann. Cas. 488, 1 L. R. A. (N. S.) 540, where there is a full note on the confinement of one acquitted of crime by reason of insanity.

The insanity of one acquitted of murder on that ground is presumed to continue un- like.

supra; and the court may thereupon commit him to an asylum until he is proved sane; People v. Baker, supra; and so a court may stay an execution on the ground of insanity until a prisoner recovers; Ex parte State, ex rel. Atty. Gen., 150 Ala. 489, 43 South. 490, 10 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1129, 124 Am. St. Rep. 79.

A jury cannot disregard an overwhelming mass of evidence of insanity on the part of the accused and convict him on a legal presumption of sanity; State v. Brown, 36 Utah 46, 142 Pac. 641, 24 L. R. A. (N. S.) 545.

Side by side with this doctrine of the criminal law which makes persons, who from a medical point of view are considered insane, responsible for their criminal acts is another equally well authorized, viz.: that a kind and degree of insanity which would not excuse a person for a criminal act may render him legally incompetent for the management of himself or his affairs; Bellingham's case, 5 C. & This implies that the mind of an insane P. 168. person acts more clearly and deliberately, and with a sounder view of its relations to others, when about to commit a great crime than when buying or selling a piece of property. It is scarcely necessary to add that no ground for this distinction can be found in our knowledge of mental disease. On the contrary, we know that the same person who destroys his neighbor, under the delusion that he has been disturbing his peace or defaming his character, may, at the very time, dispose of his property with as correct an estimate of its value and as clear an insight into the consequences of the act as he ever had. If a person is incompetent to manage property, it is because he has lost some portion of his mental power; and this fact cannot be justly ignored in deciding upon his responsibility for criminal acts. Insanity once admitted, it is within the reach of no mortal comprehension to know exactly how far it may have affected the quality of his acts To say that, possibly, it may have had no effect at all, is not enough: it should be proved by the party who affirms it. See Maudsley, Responsibility in Mental Disease 111.

By the French penal code there can be no crime nor offence if the accused were in a state of madness at the time of the act. Art. 64. The same provision was introduced into Livingston's Code and into the Revised Statutes of New York, vol. 2, § 697. The law of Arkansas provides that a lunatic or insane person without lucid intervals shall not be found guilty of any crime or misdemeanor with which he may be charged; Rev. Stat. 236. In New York, however, in spite of this clear and positive provision of law, the courts have always acted upon the doctrines of the common law, and instructed the jury respecting the tests of that kind of insanity which annuls criminal responsibility; Freeman v. People, 4 Den. (N. Y.) 27, 47 Am. Dec. 216. In this case, the court declared that the insanity mentioned in the statute means only insanity in reference to the criminal act, and therefore its qualities must be defined.

Civil Incapacity. The general principle governing the civil incapacity of a person of an unsound mind is that any civil act is invalid if the actor was at the time laboring under such mental defect as to render him incapable of performing the act in question, rationally and without detriment to any person affected thereby.

The rule as to contracts is that insanity is such a defect as precludes rational assent, with respect to the nature of the contract, whether marriage, partnership, sale, or the

A judicial ascertainment of the insanity of a person is said to deprive him of contractual capacity, as a matter of law, and subsequent contracts are void; 4 Co. 123 b; Bac. Abr. Idiots and Lunatics (F.); Carter v. Beckwith, 128 N. Y. 312, 28 N. E. 582; Leonard v. Leonard, 14 Pick. (Mass.) 280; Imhoff v. Witmer's Adm'r, 31 Pa. 243; but when no conservator was appointed and there was no appearance of incapacity, a purchase was held valid; McCormick v. Littler, 85 Ill. 62, 28 Am. Rep. 610. See also 5 B. & C. 170: Sawyer v. Lufkin. 56 Me. 308; Richardson v. Strong, 35 N. C. 106, 55 Am. Dec. 430.

Such incapacity is not retroactive; Knox v. Knox, 30 S. C. 377, 9 S. E. 353; prior acts are not void but voidable; Jackson v. Gumaer, 2 Cow. (N. Y.) 552; but the condition is conclusively presumed to continue, after the finding, until it is superseded; In re Otis, 101 N. Y. 580, 5 N. E. 571; People v. Tax Com'rs, 100 N. Y. 215, 3 N. E. 85; but see McCleary v. Barcalow, 6 Ohio Cir. Ct. Rep. 481; Reese v. Reese, 89 Ga. 645, 15 S. E. 846. A deed or mortgage executed by such person during the period of lunacy, as found, is voidable, the presumption being against validity, but subject to be overcome by proof of sanity; Hughes v. Jones, 116 N. Y. 67, 22 N. E. 446, 5 L. R. A. 637, 15 Am. St. Rep. 386; and see Mott v. Mott, 49 N. J. Eq. 192, 22 Atl. 997; 1 Gr. Ev. § 556. The fact that one who assigns a leasehold interest is found to be a lunatic a few months later is only prima facie evidence of his incompetency at the time of his assignment; Sharbero v. Miller, 72 N. J. Eq. 248, 65 Atl.

The marriage of a person insane is void; Inhabitants of Middleborough v. Inhabitants of Rochester, 12 Mass. 363; Gathings v. Williams, 27 N. C. 487, 44 Am. Dec. 49; Powell v. Powell, 18 Kan. 371, 26 Am. Rep. 774; Wightman v. Wightman, 4 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 343; L. R. 1 P. & D. 335; Waymire v. Jetmore, 22 Ohio St. 271; True v. Ranney, 21 N. H. 52, 53 Am. Dec. 164. A marriage contracted while one party was insane from delirium tremens was held void; Clement v. Mattison, 3 Rich. (S. C.) 93; but mere weakness of mind not amounting to derangement is not sufficient; Rawdon v. Rawdon, 28 Ala. 565; Crump v. Morgan, 38 N. C. 91, 40 Am. Dec. 447; and for that merely, or intoxication, a court has no power to declare a marriage null and void; Elzey v. Elzey, 1 Houst. (Del.) 308. The same degree of mental capacity which enables a person to make a valid deed or will is sufficient to enable him to marry; Inhabitants of Atkinson v. Inhabitants of Medford, 46 Me. 510. It was held that a marriage celebrated by a person

Other civil contracts made by insane persons are voidable, not void; Turner v. Rusk, 53 Md. 65; George v. R. Co., 34 Ark. 613; McClain v. Davis, 77 Ind. 419; Van Patton v. Beals, 46 Ia. 62; Ingraham v. Baldwin, 9 N. Y. 45; Broadwater v. Darne, 10 Mo. 277; Ordron, Jud. Asp. Insan. ch. 6.

With respect to contracts, persons non compos mentis and infants are said to be parallel, both in law and reason; Seaver v. Phelps, 11 Pick. (Mass.) 304, 22 Am. Dec. 372; Breckenridge's Heirs v. Ormsby, 1 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 236, 19 Am. Dec. 71. A power of attorney made by an insane person is absolutely void; Dexter v. Hall, 15 Wall. (U. S.) 9, 21 L. Ed. 73; and a contract executory on both sides cannot be enforced against an insane person; Ewell, L. Cas. Disab. 525, where the cases are collected.

The test of legal capacity to contract, it was said, is that the party is capable of recollecting the property he is about to dispose of, the manner of distributing it, and the object of his bounty; the particular act being attended with the consent of his will and understanding; Miller v. Rutledge, 82 Va. 863, 1 S. E. 202.

Pollock enumerates three different theories as to contracts by insane persons which "have, at different times, been entertained in English courts and supported by respectable authority;" Poll. Cont. 87. These theories, with some of the authorities cited in support of them, are substantially as fol-lows: 1. That it is no ground, whatever, for avoiding a contract; Co. Litt. 2 b; 4 Co. 123 b; Bract. fol. 100 a, 165 b. As to this it is characterized as a frivolous technicality and doubtful whether it was really supported by the authorities Coke had before him; Poll. Cont. 89. 2. If one who contracts is too drunk or insane to know what he is about, his agreement is void for want of the consenting mind, but if his mind is only so confused or weak that he may know what he is about, but not fully understand the terms and effect, and this is known to the other party, the contract will be voldable at his option. The first division of this class would be simply void for want of consent; 2 Stra. 1104; 3 Campb. 33; Reinskopf v. Rogge, 37 Ind. 207; Burke v. Allen, 29 N. H. 106, 61 Am. Dec. 642; the second would come under the head of fraud; Miller v. Finley, 26 Mich. 249, 12 Am. Rep. 306; Wilson v. Oldham, 12 B. Monr. (Ky.) 55; Caulkins v. Fry, 35 Conn. 170. 3. The doctrine which has prevailed as already stated that all contracts by insane persons are voidable, not void, see supra.

In some courts what has been termed the Massachusetts doctrine prevails that contracts of insane persons are voidable without any reference to the knowledge of the other party; Seaver v. Phelps, 11 Pick. (Mass.) 304, 22 Am. Dec. 372; in others what is termed the English doctrine (because supported by more recent English authorities) that they are voldable if the other party knows of the insanity; Stockmeyer v. Tobin, 139 U. S. 176, 11 Sup. Ct. 504, 35 L. Ed. 123; Martinez v. Moll, 46 Fed. 724; (under La. Civ. Code); [1892] 1 Q. B. 599; Lancaster County Nat. Bank v. Moore, 78 Pa. 407, 21 Am. Rep. 24; and reasonable ground for knowledge is equivalent thereto: Unionly N. Buckmeter 29 V. 652. alent thereto; Lincoln v. Buckmaster, 32 Vt. 652; and there is still a third doctrine supported by some courts that if the other party was ignorant and the contract reasonable and not capable of rescission, so that the parties could be restored to their origwhile insane might be affirmed upon recovery without a new solemnization; Cole v. Cole, 5 Sneed (Tenn.) 57, 70 Am. Dec. 275.

ern Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v. Blankenship, 94 Ind. 535, 48 Am. Rep. 185; Riggs v. Tract Society, 84 N. Y. 330; Alexander v. Haskins, 68 Ia. 73, 25 N. W. 935;

Appeal of Kneedler, 92 Pa. 428.

The cases last cited rest upon Molton v. Camroux, 2 Ex. 487; 4 id. 17, which is considered the cornerstone of the law as to contracts with insane persons; Poll. Cont. 92; Leake, Cont. 248; but has been recently characterized as containing "loose statements" which have given rise to "an anomalous doctrine;" Harr. Cont. 235.

Whatever may be said of it, the case undoubtedly settled the law that such a contract was voidable and not void, and this was confirmed inferentially by a later case which held that such a contract might be ratified after the disability had passed; L. R. 8 Ex. 132.

It is generally considered that contracts for necessaries for an insane person are binding, if suited to their condition in life; 5 B. & C. 170; Richardson v. Strong, 35 N. C. 106, 55 Am. Dec. 430; Pearl v. M'Dowell, 3 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 658, 20 Am. Dec. 199; Maddox v. Simmons, 31 Ga. 512; Skidmore v. Romaine, 2 Bradf. Sur. (N. Y.) 122; Crowther v. Rowlandson, 27 Cal. 376; Fitzgerald v. Reed, 9 Smedes & M. (Miss.) 94; and this rule has been extended to other things which were reasonable and proper; Kendall v. May, 10 Allen (Mass.) 59; but if the other party has knowledge of the insanity the nature of the liability is rather quasi-contractual: 44 Ch. D. 94; Sawyer v. Lufkin, 56 Me. 308; Keener, Quasi-Cont. 20. This liability is not removed by the appointment of a committee, where necessaries are furnished in good faith and the committee has failed to provide them; Barnes v. Hathaway, 66 Barb. (N. Y.) 452; Stannard v. Burns' Adm'r, 63 Vt. 244, 22 Atl. 460.

Statutes making the estates of insane persons liable for their maintenance in state institutions are valid; Kaiser v. State, 80 Kan. 364, 102 Pac. 454, 24 L. R. A. (N. S.)

The fact that a husband causes his wife to be placed in an insane asylum is not evidence of his refusal to support her, nor of consent to her absence outside the home, rendering him liable for her support; Richardson v. Stuesser, 125 Wis. 66, 103 N. W. 261, 69 L. R. A. 829, 4 Ann. Cas. 784.

Deeds executed by persons of unsound mind are absolutely void; Wilkinson v. Wilkinson, 129 Ala. 279, 30 South. 578; Riggs v. Tract Society, 95 N. Y. 503; Ballew v. Clark, 24 N. C. 23; Bensell v. Chancellor, 5 Whart. (Pa.) 371, 34 Am. Dec. 561; 3 Witth. & Beck. Med. Jur. 386. In other cases it has been held that such a deed is voidable only; Arnold v. Iron Works, 1 Gray (Mass.) 434; Somers v. Pumphrey, 24 Ind. 231; Cates v. Woodson, 2 Dana (Ky.) 452. Other cases again hold that want of perfect soundness of mind does not affect the conveyance if there is still capacity for fully comprehending the import of the act; Miller v. Craig, 36 Ill. 109; Dennett v. Dennett, 44 N. H. 531, 84 Am. Dec. 97; Odell v. Buck, 21 Wend. (N. Y.) 142; Rippy v. Gant, 39 N. C. 443. See emn accusation of a crime against another

Smith v. Elliott's Adm'r, 1 Patt. & H. (Va.) 307; 1 Pingr. Mortg. § 349.

An action cannot be dismissed because it is brought by an insane person in his own name, unless the statute so provides; Wiesmann v. Donald, 125 Wis. 600, 104 N. W. 916, 2 L. R. A. (N. S.) 961.

As to testamentary capacity as affected by insanity, see WILL; DEMENTIA; UNDUE INFLUENCE.

In most states the statutes of limitation do not run against a person insane, nor does adverse possession ripen into title while the person out of possession is insane; Clarity v. Sheridan, 91 Ia. 304, 59 N. W. 52; but a plaintiff's claim is not affected by the insanity of the defendant's ancestor after the statute had begun to run; Asbury v. Fair, 111 N. C. 251, 16 S. E. 467. The time of sanity required in order to allow the statute to begin to run is such as will enable the party to examine his affairs and institute an action, and is for the jury; Clark's Executor v. Trail's Adm'rs, 1 Metc. (Ky.) 35.

Insanity is not a defence in an action of tort: but damages are compensatory and not punitive; McIntyre v. Sholty, 121 Ill. 660, 13 N. E. 239, 2 Am. St. Rep. 140; Lassone v. R. R., 66 N. H. 345, 24 Atl. 902, 17 L. R. A. 525; Williams v. Hays, 143 N. Y. 442, 38 N. E. 449, 26 L. R. A. 153, 42 Am. St. Rep. 743; Meyer v. Ry. Co., 54 Fed. 116, 4 C. C. A. 221.

A master of a vessel cannot excuse himself for negligently causing its destruction by showing that the orders which were given by him while temporarily insane caused such destruction; Williams v. Hays, 143 N. Y. 442, 38 N. E. 449, 26 L. R. A. 153, 42 Am. St. Rep. 743; but it is a complete defence in an action for words spoken slanderously about the plaintiff that they were uttered under an insane delusion of their truth; Irvine v. Gibson, 117 Ky. 306, 77 S. W. 1106, 111 Am. St. Rep. 251, 4 Ann. Cas. 569; and where a visitor falls through a hole in the floor of a building owned by a lunatic and left unguarded by him, there is no cause of action; Ward v. Rogers, 51 Misc. 299, 100 N. Y. Supp.

As to lucid intervals and the competency of insane persons as witnesses, see Lucid In-

As to the proper question to a medical expert witness, see MEDICAL EVIDENCE.

See Burden of Proof; Apoplexy; Deliri-UM FEBRILE; DELIBIUM TREMENS; DEMEN-TIA; DRUNKENNESS; HYPNOTISM; IDIOCY; IL-LUSION; IMBECILITY; KLEPTOMANIA; LUCID Intervals; Mania; Paranoia; Puerperal MANIA; PYROMANIA; SOMNAMBULISM; SUI-CIDE; TESTAMENTARY CAPACITY; INTERDIO-TION.

INSCRIPTION. In Civil Law. An engagement which a person who makes a solenters into that he will suffer the same punishment, if he has accused the other falsely, which would have been inflicted upon him had he been guilty. Code, 9. 1. 10; 9. 2. 16 and 17.

In Evidence. Something written or engraved.

Inscriptions upon tombstones and other proper places, as rings, and the like, are held to be evidence of pedigree; Bull. N. P. 233; 10 East 120; 13 Ves. 145. But their value as evidence depends largely on the authority under which they were made, and the length of time between their establishment and the events they commemorate; Clark v. Cassidy, 62 Ga. 407; Wanita Woolen Mills v. Rollins, 75 Miss. 253, 22 South. 819; Shotwell v. Harrison, 22 Mich. 415; Fondren v. Durfeé, 39 Miss. 326; Terwilliger v. Industrial Benefit Ass'n, 83 Hun 323, 31 N. Y. Supp. 938; 1 Greenl. Ev. § 106. See Declaration; Hearsay Evidence.

INSCRIPTIONES (Lat.). The name given by the old English law to any written instrument by which anything was granted. Blonnt.

INSENSIBLE. In Pleading. That which is unintelligible is said to be insensible. Steph. Pl. 378.

INSIDIATORES VIARUM (Lat.). Persons who lie in wait in order to commit some felony or other misdemeanor.

INSIMUL COMPUTASSENT (Lat.). They had accounted together. See Assumpsit.

INSINUACION. In Spanish Law. The presentation of a public document to a competent judge, in order to obtain his approbation and sanction of the same, and thereby giving it judicial authenticity.

"Insinuatio est ejus quod traditur sive agitur coram quocumque judice in scripturam redactio,"

This formality is requisite to the validity of certain donations inter vivos. Escriche, voc. Insinuacion.

INSINUATION. In Civil Law. The transcription of an act on the public registers, like our recording of deeds. It was not necessary in any other alienation but that appropriated to the purpose of donation. Inst. 2. 7. 2; Pothler, Traité des Donations, Entre Vifs, sec. 2, art. 3, § 3; 8 Toullier, n. 198.

INSINUATION OF A WILL. In Civil Law. The first production of it; or, leaving it in the hands of the register in order to its probate. 21 Hen. VIII. c. 5; Jacob, Law Dict.

INSOLVENCY. The condition of a person who is insolvent (q. v.). Inability to pay one's debts.

Bankruptcy, which is one species or phase of insolvency, denotes the condition of a trader or merchant who is unable to pay his debts in the course of business; 2 Bell, Com. 162; 1 M. & S. 338; Herrick v. Borst, 4 Hill (N. Y.) 650; Thompson v. Thompson, 4 Cush. (Mass.) 134. Insolvency, then, as distinguished from strict bankruptcy, is the condition or status of one who is unable to pay his debts; and insolvent laws are distinguished from strict bankruptcy laws by the following characteristics:

Bouv .- 101

Bankruptcy laws apply only to traders or merchants; insolvent laws, to those who are not trad-ers or merchants. Bankrupt laws discharge absolutely the debt of the honest debtor; Ogden v. Saunders, 12 Wheat. (U. S.) 230, 6 L. Ed. 606; Le Roy v. Crowninshield, 2 Mas. 161, Fed. Cas. No. 8,-269; Pugh, v. Bussel, 2 Blackf. (Ind.) 394; Van Hook v. Whitlock, 26 Wend. (N. Y.) 43, 37 Am. Dec. 246; 4 B. & Ald. 654; Baldw. 296. Insolvent laws discharge the person of the debtor from arrest and imprisonment, but leave the future acquisitions of the debtor still liable to the creditor; Sturges v. Crowninshield, 4 Wheat. (U. S.) 122, 4 L. Ed. 529; Pollitt v. Parsons, 2 H. & J. (Md.) 61. Both laws contemplate an equal, fair, and honest division of the debtor's present effects among his creditors pro rata. A bankrupt law may contain those regulations which are generally found in insolvent laws, and an insolvent law may contain those which are common to a bankrupt law; per Marshall, C. J., Sturges v. Crowninshield, 4 Wheat. (U. S.) 195, 4 L. Ed. 529. And insolvent laws quite coextensive with the English bankrupt system have not been infrequent in our colonial and state legislation, and no distinction was ever attempted to be made in the same between bankruptcies and insolvencies; 3 Sto. Const. 11; Bish. Insolv. Debt. 4.

Under the United States constitution the power to pass a bankrupt law is vested in congress, and this is held to include power to pass an act which provides for voluntary bankruptcy, or, strictly speaking, an insolvent law. So in the absence of congressional action, the states have passed laws which, though called insolvent laws, were in fact bankrupt laws, and their right to do so has been sustained, such laws being held valid; see BANKRUPT; except as limited by the prohibition against impairing the obligation of contracts, which title see; see also Cook v. Moffat, 5 How. (U. S.) 295, 12 L. Ed. 159; Hall v. Boardman, 14 N. H. 38; Savoye v. Marsh, 10 Metc. (Mass.) 594, 43 Am. Dec. 451. Stone v. Tibbetts, 26 Me. 110; Towne v. Smith, 1 Woodb. & M. 115, Fed. Cas. No. 14,-115; Larrabee v. Talbott, 5 Gill (Md.) 437, 46 Am. Dec. 637; Baldwin v. Hale, 1 Wall. (U. S.) 229, 17 L. Ed. 531; Cooley, Const. Lim. 360; Miller, Const. U. S. 616.

U. S. Bankruptcy Act of 1898 supersedes all state insolvent laws from the date of its passage; Parmenter Mfg. Co. v. Hamilton, 172 Mass. 178, 51 N. E. 529, 70 Am. St. Rep. 258.

So far as the jurisdiction of the state extends, its insolvent laws may have all the essential operation of a bankrupt law, not being limited to a mere discharge of the person of the debtor on surrendering his effects. And a creditor out of a state who voluntarily makes himself a party and accepts a dividend, is bound by his own act, and is deemed to have waived his exterritorial immunity and right; Sturges v. Crowninshield, 4 Wheat. (U. S.) 122, 4 L. Ed. 529; Braynard v. Marshall, 8 Pick. (Mass.) 194; Norton v. Cook, 9 Conn. 314, 23 Am. Dec. 342; Pugh v. Bussel, 2 Blackf. (Ind.) 394; Browne v. Stackpole, 9 N. H. 478. See 4 B. & Ald. 654;

Van Hook v. Whitlock, 26 Wend. (N. Y.) 43, 37 Am. Dec. 246; Scribner v. Fisher, 2 Gray (Mass.) 43; Beer v. Hooper, 32 Miss. 246.

The effect of a discharge upon non-resident creditors is examined in 6 Harv. L. Rev. 349, containing a very complete list of cases, to that date and concluding that it is the generally accepted doctrine that, in such case, a discharge will be of no effect (even in the courts of the state where the discharge is granted) against a non-resident, unless he becomes a party by voluntary appearance or personal service. The correctness of this conclusion, though it is admitted as established, is seriously challenged on grounds of expediency which are stated at large.

Where a discharge under a state insolvency law is obtained, it does not discharge the debt of a non-resident creditor who refuses to prove its claim in such proceedings; Bergner & Engel Brewing Co. v. Dreyfus, 172 Mass. 154, 51 N. E. 531, 70 Am. St. Rep. 251.

Insolvency may of course be simple or notorious. Simple insolvency is attended by no badge of notoriety. Notorious or legal insolvency, with which the law has to do, is designated by some public act or legal proceeding. This is the situation of a person who has done some notorious act to divest himself of all his property: as, making an assignment, applying for relief, or having been proceeded against in invitum under bankrupt or insolvent laws; Bish. Insolv. Debt. 3, n.; Thelusson v. Smith, 2 Wheat. (U. S.) 396, 4 L. Ed. 271; 7 Toullier, n. 45; Domat, liv. 4, tit. 5, nn. 1, 2; 2 Bell, Com. 165.

It is with regard to the latter that the insolvency laws (so called) are operative. They are generally statutory provisions by which the property of the debtor is surrendered for his debts; and upon this condition, and the assent of a certain proportion of his creditors, he is discharged from all further liabilities; Bartlet v. Prince, 9 Mass. 431; Otis v. Warren, 16 Mass. 53; 2 Kent 321; Ingr. Insolv. 9. This legal insolvency may exist without actual inability to pay one's debts when the debtor's estate is finally settled and wound up. (See definition). Insolvency, according to some of the state statutes, may be of two kinds, voluntary and involuntary. The latter is called the proceeding against the creditor in invitum. untary insolvency, which is the more common, is the case in which the debtor institutes the proceedings, and is desirous of availing himself of the insolvent laws, and petitions for that purpose.

Involuntary insolvency is where the proceedings are instituted by the creditors in invitum, and so the debtor forced into insolvency. The circumstances entitling either debtor or creditors to invoke the aid of the insolvent law are in a measure peculiar to each state. But their general characteristics are as follows:

Proceedings by creditors may usually be taken for fraudulent concealment, conveyance, or collusive attachment, of property; by petition in the designated tribunal, on notice to the debtor; possession of the property is taken by an officer of the courts, usually after proof of the allegations, and a meeting of creditors is called for the choice of an assignee by a vote of creditors, having relation both to number and amount. The assignee becomes practically the owner, in trust, with power to wind up the estate; he acts under the general direction of the court, calling meetings of creditors when required. right to a discharge varies in different states, in some being conditioned upon payment of a certain percentage or the assent of the majority of creditors or upon more stringent conditions in case of subsequent insolvency. The statutes vary as to the grounds of refusing a discharge for fraud, as in cases of paying or securing debts within a certain time before the application, or when the debtor is insolvent, or has reasonable cause to believe himself so. As to all these details the state statutes should be referred to.

As to American and English bankrupt law proper, see Bankrupt Laws; Bankrupt.

The English act 34 Geo. III. ch. 69, was called an insolvent debtor's act; but the first insolvency act properly so called was passed in 1826. The act of 7 & 8 Vict. cap. 70, called "an act for facilitating arrangements between debtor and creditor," is properly an insolvency law. This provided for the discharge of a non-trading debtor if he had a certain concurrence from his creditors. This was one-third, both in value and number, to the initiatory steps. To the discharge, a proportional consent at an initiatory meeting, and, finally, the consent of three-eighths in both number and value, or nine-tenths in value of creditors to the sum of twenty pounds and upwards.

Many of the states have laws for the distribution of insolvent estates, and also laws for the relief of poor debtors. These are not properly called insolvent laws in the sense in which we have used the words,—though the latter relieve the debtor's body from restraint upon a surrender of his goods and estate, and leave his future acquisitions still liable. See Poor Debtors.

INSOLVENT (Lat. in, privative, solvo, to pay). The condition of a person who is unable to pay his debts. 2 Bla. Com. 285, 471; Brouwer v. Harbeck, 9 N. Y. 589.

One who is unable to pay his debts as they fall due in the usual course of trade or business. 2 Kent 389; 1 M. & S. 338; Lee v. Kilburn, 3 Gray (Mass.) 600; Mitchell v. Bradstreet Co., 116 Mo. 226, 22 S. W. 358, 724, 20 L. R. A. 138, 38 Am. St. Rep. 592; although his assets in value exceed the amount of his liability; In re Ramazzina, 110 Cal. 488, 42 Pac. 970; or the embarrassment is only temporary; Langham v. Lanier, 7 Tex. Civ. App. 4, 26 S. W. 255; but it is held that mere inability to pay debts promptly as they mature is not conclusive; Mensing v. Atchison (Tex.) 26 S. W. 509; that one who has sufficient property subject to legal process to satisfy all legal demands is not insolvent; Smith v. Collins, 94 Ala. 394, 10

South. 334; and that a person who suspended business because of difficulties arising out of the commencement of an action was not necessarily an insolvent; American Waterworks Co. of New Jersey v. Venner, 18 N. Y. Supp. 379.

One who is unable to pay commercial paper in the due course of business is insolvent; Warren v. Nat. Bank, 10 Blatchf. 493, Fed. Cas. No. 17,202; Clarke v. Mott (Cal.) 33 Pac. 884.

A corporation is insolvent when its assets are insufficient for the payment of its debts, and it has ceased to do business, or has taken, or is in the act of taking, a step which will practically incapacitate it from conducting the corporate enterprise with reasonable prospect of success, or its embarrassments are such that early suspension and failure must ensue; Corey v. Wadsworth, 99 Ala. 68, 11 South. 350, 23 L. R. A. 618, 42 Am. St. Rep. 29.

A bank is insolvent when the cash value of its assets realizable in a reasonable time is not equal to its liabilities exclusive of stock liabilities; Ellis v. State, 138 Wis. 513, 119 N. W. 1110, 20 L. R. A. (N. S.) 444, 131 Am. St. Rep. 1022. An allegation that a corporation cannot pay its current obligations as they mature is sufficient for insolvency proceedings in equity; American Can Co. v. Preserving Co., 171 Fed. 540.

The clearing house rules, making members responsible for clearances of outside banks, for which they engage to clear, for one day after notice of the termination of their agreement, require payment of checks of such outside bank though known to be insolvent; and a contract for a deposit by the latter of cash and notes as indemnity for such clearances is valid, and the payments are not within a statute forbidding payments by an insolvent corporation made with intent to prefer creditors, and the money and securities held under the aforesaid contract are applicable to the amount of the checks so paid; O'Brien v. Grant, 146 N. Y. 163, 40 N. E. 871, 28 L. R. A. 361.

An insolvent building association may make an assessment on stock of a borrowing member to cover losses, and thereby equalize the members, so that they may go out on an equal footing at the closing up of the association; Wohlford v. Sav. Ass'n, 140 Ind. 662, 40 N. E. 694, 29 L. R. A. 177.

INSPECTION (Lat. inspicere, to look into). The examination of certain articles made by law subject to such examination, so that they may be declared fit for com-Quoted in Patapsco Guano Co. v. Board of Agriculture, 171 U.S. 345, 356, 18 Sup. Ct. 862, 43 L. Ed. 191.

The decision of the inspectors is not final; the object of the law is to protect the community from fraud, and to preserve the charman v. Northrop, 8 Cow. (N. Y.) 45. Griswold v. Ins. Co., 1 Johns. (N. Y.) 205; Hancock v. Sturges, 13 Johns. (N. Y.) 331: Seaman v. Patten, 2 Cai. (N. Y.) 312. Quantity is as legitimate a subject of inspection as quality; State v. Ins. Co., 40 La. Ann. 465, 4 South. 504.

In Practice. Examination. As to the right to inspect public records, see RECORDS.

INSPECTION LAWS. The right in the states to enact inspection laws, quarantine and health laws is undoubted and is recognized in the constitution; Story, Const. 515; Cooley, Const. Lim. 730. These may be carried to the extent of ordering the destruction of private property, when infected with disease or otherwise dangerous; id.; Thurlow v. Massachusetts, 5 How. (U. S.) 632, 12 L. Ed. 256.

The object of such laws is "to improve the quality of articles produced by the labor of the country; to fit them for exportation, or it may be for domestic use"; Gibbons v. Ogden, 9 Wheat. (U. S.) 203, 6 L. Ed. 23; to protect the community from frauds and impositions, and, as to articles designed for exportation, to preserve our reputation in foreign markets; Clintsman v. Northrop, 8 Cow. (N. Y.) 46.

Whenever inspection laws act on the subject before it becomes an article of commerce, they are confessedly valid; and also when, although operating on articles in interstate commerce, they provide for inspection under the police power of a state in the interest of public health etc.; Minnesota v. Barber, 136 U. S. 313, 10 Sup. Ct. 862, 34 L. Ed. 455; Patapsco Guano Co. v. Board of Agriculture, 171 U.S. 345, 18 Sup. Ct. 862, 43 L. Ed. 191; so as to oleomargarine inspection; Plumley v. Massachusetts, 155 U. S. 461, 15 Sup. Ct. 154, 39 L. Ed. 223; so as to a statute regulating the sale of commercial fertilizers for the protection of the public; Steiner v. Ray, 84 Ala. 93, 4 South. 172, 5 Am. St. Rep. 332; Vanmeter v. Spurrier, 94 Ky. 22, 21 S. W. 337. A Virginia act for the inspection of flour was held invalid because it required the inspection of flour from other states when it was not required from the native product; Voight v. Wright, 141 U. S. 62, 11 Sup. Ct. 855, 35 L. Ed. 638; a statute for the inspection of fertilizers was held not applicable where the sale and delivery were without the state; Martin v. Guano Co., 77 Ga. 257.

An inspection law (hides) affecting interstate commerce, is not, for that reason, invalid unless it is in conflict with an act of congress, or is an attempt to regulate interstate commerce; New Mexico v. R. Co., 203 U. S. 38, 27 Sup. Ct. 1, 51 L. Ed. 78. Congress has not enacted any legislation destroying the right of a state to provide for the inspection of cattle and prohibiting the bringing acter of the merchandise abroad; Clints- in of diseased cattle not inspected and passficials; Asbell v. Kansas, 209 U. S. 251, 28 Sup. Ct. 485, 52 L. Ed. 778, 14 Ann. Cas. 1101.

A state may declare that certain articles shall not be sold within its limits without inspection, and charge the cost of the inspection on those offering the article for sale; Patapsco Guano Co. v. Board of Agriculture, 52 Fed. 690. The question of the constitutionality of an inspection law affecting interstate commerce depends not only upon whether the excess proceeds of the tax may be used for other purposes, but whether they are actually so used; Foote v. Maryland, 232 U. S. 494, 34 Sup. Ct. 377, 58 L. Ed. -. If it has a real relation to the protection of the people and is reasonable, it is not invalid because it may incidentally affect interstate commerce, provided it does not conflict with legislation enacted by congress pursuant to its constitutional authority; Savage v. Jones, 225 U. S. 501, 32 Sup. Ct. 790, 56 L. Ed. 1182. Prima facie the charge is reasonable; Red "C." Oil Mfg. Co. v. Board, 222 U. S. 880, 32 Sup. Ct. 152, 56 L. Ed. 240.

A state cannot, under the guise of exerting its police powers, or of enacting inspection laws, make discrimination against the products and industries of some of the states in favor of the products and industries of its own or of other states; Brimmer v. Rebman, 138 U. S. 78, 11 Sup. Ct. 213, 34 L. Ed. 862; Voight v. Wright, 141 U. S. 62, 11 Sup. Ct. 855, 35 L. Ed. 638.

See Police Power; Commerce; License.

INSPECTOR. The name given to certain officers whose duties are to examine and inspect things over which they have jurisdiction: as, inspector of bark, one who is by law authorized to examine bark for exportation, and to approve or disapprove of its Inspectors of customs are officers appointed by the general government.

INSPEXIMUS (Lat.). We have seen. A word sometimes used in letters patent, reciting a grant, inspeximus such former grant, and so reciting it verbatim: it then grants such further privileges as are thought convenient. 5 Co. 54.

Inspeximus charters appear to have originated in 11 Henry III, when he announced to all religious and other persons who wished to enjoy their liberties that they must renew their charters under the king's new seal. A renewal tax was levied.

It was not until the time of Edward I that such charters became common; in the 13th year of his reign their various forms were prescribed by parliament. An inspeximus is nothing more than a royal acknowledgment of having seen some diplomas granted by the king, or one of his predeces-ed as healthy either by state or national of- | Rep. 310. They were also called charters of confirmation.

> INSTALLATION, INSTALMENT. The act by which an officer is put in public possession of the place he is to fill. The president of the United States, or a governor, is installed into office, by being sworn agreeably to the constitution and laws.

> INSTALMENT. A part of a debt due by contract, and agreed to be paid at a time different from that fixed for the payment of the other part. For example, if I engage to pay you one thousand dollars, in two payments, one on the first day of January and the other on the first day of July, each of these payments or obligations to pay will be an instalment.

> In such case, each instalment is a separate debt so far that it may be tendered at any time, or the first may be sued for although the other shall not be due; 3 Dane, Abr. 493, 494; 1 Esp. 129; 1 Maule & S. 706.

> Successive actions may be brought for instalments as they fall due; but all sums due when an action is begun must be included in it; Puckett v. Annuity Ass'n, 134 Mo. App. 501, 114 S. W. 1039. See SALES; PERFORMANCE; INDEPENDENT PROMISES.

> INSTANCE. Literally, standing hence, urging, solicitation. Webster, Dict. in Civil and French Law. In general, all sorts of actions and judicial demands. Dig. 44, 7, 58.

In Ecclesiastical Law. Causes of instance are those proceeded in at the solicitation of some party, as opposed to causes of office, which run in the name of the judge. Halif. Anal. p. 122.

INSTANCE COURT. in English Law. That branch of the admiralty court which had the jurisdiction of all matters except those relating to prizes.

The term is sometimes used in American law for purposes of explanation, but has no proper application to admiralty courts in the United States, where the powers of both instance and prize courts are conferred without any distinction; Glass v. The Betsy, 3 Dall. (U. S.) 6, 1 L. Ed. 485; The Emulous, 1 Gall. 563, Fed. Cas. No. 4,479; 3 Kent 355, 378. See Admiralty.

INSTANCIA. In Spanish Law. The institution and prosecution of a suit from its inception until definitive judgment. The first instance, "primera instancia," is the prosecution of the suit before the judge competent to take cognizance of it at its inception: the second instance, "secunda instancia," is the exercise of the same action before the court of appellate jurisdiction; and the third instance, "tercera instancia," is the prosecution of the same suit, either by an applicasors, which he confirms under the great seal, tion of revision before the appellate tribunal etc.; A. M. Eaton in 1902 Am. Bar Ass'n that has already decided the cause, or before some higher tribunal, having jurisdiction of the same.

All oivil suits must be tried and decided, in the first instance, within three years; and all criminal, within two years.

As a general rule, three instances are admitted in all civil and criminal cases. Art. 285. Const. 1812.

INSTANTER (Lat.). Immediately; presently. This term, it is said, means that the act to which it applies shall be done within twenty-four hours; but a doubt has been suggested by whom is the account of the hours to be kept, and whether the term instanter as applied to the subject-matter may not be more properly taken to mean "before the rising of the court," when the act is to be done in court, or "before the shutting of the office the same night," when the act is to be done there; 6 East 587; Tidd, Pr., 3d ed. 508, n.; 3 Chitty, Pr. 112. See 3 Burr. 1809; Co. Litt. 157.

INSTANTLY. directly; Immediately; without delay; at once. The word is a frequent occurrence in indictments for murder where the death is charged as having been the immediate result of a wound or blow inflicted. Where the killing has been alleged to have been caused by a battery it is necessary to allege an assault and to specify the time when the mortal stroke was given and the time of the death; the allegation that he "instantly did die" is insufficient; Lester v. State, 9 Mo. 666; as was an indictment which described the assault and then charges that of the mortal wound inflicted by defendant the deceased "did instantly die;" State v. Lakey, 65 Mo. 217; otherwise had the averment been that the deceased "did then and there instantly die"; State v. Steeley, 65 Mo. 218, 27 Am. Rep. 271. 8 Dowl. 157; 11 Ad. & El. 127; 3 Per & Dav. 52.

INSTAR (Lat.). Like; resembling; equivalent: as, instar dentium, like teeth; instar omnium, equivalent to all.

INSTIGATION. The act by which one incites another to do something, as, to injure a third person, or to commit some crime or misdemeanor, to commence a suit, or to prosecute a criminal. See ACCOMPLICE.

INSTITOR (Lat.). In Civil Law. A clerk in a store; an agent.

He was so called because he watched over the business with which he was charged; and it is immaterial whether he was employed in making a sale in a store, or whether charged with any other business. Institor appellatus est ex eo, quod negotio gerendo instet; nec multum facit tabernæ sit præpositus, an cuilibet alii negotiationi; Dig. lib. 14, tit. 3, 1, 3. Mr. Bell says that the charge given to a clerk to manage a store or shop is called institorial power; 1 Bell, Stair, Inst. by Brodie, b. 1, tit. 11, $$ 12, 18, 19; Story, Ag. § 8.

INSTITUTE. In Scotch Law. The person first called in the tailzie; the rest, or the heirs of tailzie, are called substitutes; Erskine Pr. 3. 8. 8. See TAILZIE, HEIR OF; SUBSTITUTES.

In Civil Law. One who is appointed heir by testament, and is required to give the estate devised to another person, who is called the substitute.

To name or to make an heir by testament; Dig. 28. 5. 65. To make an accusation; to commence an action.

INSTITUTES. Elements of jurisprudence; text-books containing the principles of law made the foundation of legal studies.

The word was first used by the civilians to designate those books prepared for the student and supposed to embrace the fundamental legal principles arranged in an orderly manner. Two books of Institutes were known to the civil lawyers of antiquity,-Gaius and Justinian.

I. Coke's Institutes. Four volumes of commentaries upon various parts of the English law.

Sir Edward Coke wrote four volumes of Institutes, as he was pleased to call them, though they have little of the institutional method to warrant such a title. The first volume is a very extensive commentary upon an excellent little treatise of tenures, compiled by Judge Littleton in the reign of Edw. IV. This comment is a rich mine of valuable common-law learning, collected and heaped together from the ancient reports and year-books, but greatly defective in method. The second volume is a comment on many old acts of parliament, without any systematic order; the third, a more methodical treatise on the pleas of the crown; and the fourth, an account of the several species of courts. These Institutes are usually cited thus: the first volume as Co. Litt., or 1 Inst.; the second, third, and fourth as, 2, 3, or 4 Inst., without any author's name. Bla. Com. 72.

II. GAIUS'S INSTITUTES. A tractate upon the Roman law, ascribed to Caius or Gaius. Of the personal history of this jurist nothing is known. Even the spelling of his name is matter of controversy, and he is known by no other title than Gaius, or Caius. He is believed to have lived in the reign of Marcus Aurelius. The history of Gaius's Institutes is remarkable. In 1816, Niebuhr was sent to Rome by the king of Prussia. On his way thither, he spent two days in the cathedral library of Verona, and at this time discovered these Institutes, which had been lost to the jurists of the middle ages. In 1817, the Royal Academy of Berlin charged Goeschen, Bekker, and Hollweg with the duty of transcribing the discovered manu-Com. 479, 5th ed.; Erskine, Inst. 3. 3. 46; 1 script. In 1819, Goeschen gave the first completed edition, as far as the manuscript number of the book, title, and section, thus: could be deciphered, to his fellow-jurists. It created an unusual sensation, and became a fruitful source of comment. It formed a new era in the study of Roman law. It gave the modern jurist the signal advantage of studying the source of the Institutes of Justinian. It is believed by the best modern scholars that Gaius was the first original tractate of the kind, not being compiled from former publications. The language of Gaius is clear, terse, and technical,-evidently written by a master of law and a master of the Latin tongue. The Institutes were unquestionably practical. There is no attempt at criticism or philosophical discussion: the disciple of Sabinus is content to teach law as he finds it. Its arrangement is solid and logical, and Justinian follows it with an almost servile imitation.

The best editions of Gaius are Goeschen's 2d ed., Berlin, 1824, in which the text was again collated by Bluhme, and the 3d ed. of Goeschen, Berlin, 1842, edited by Lachman from a critical revision by Goeschen which had been interrupted by his death. Gneist's edition (1857) is a recension of all the German editions prior to that date. In France, Gaius attracted equal attention, and we have three editions and translations: Boulet, Paris, 1827; Demangeat, 1866; and Pellat, 1870.

In 1859, Francesco Lisi, a learned Italian scholar, published, at Bologna, a new edition of the first book of Gaius, with an Italian translation en régard. The edition is accompanied and enriched by many valuable notes, printed in both Latin and Italian.

See also Abdy & Walker; S. F. Harris; Muirhead; T. L. Mears, Gaius, Poste's translation, 1890.

III. Justinian's Institutes are an abridgment of the Code and Digest, composed by order of that emperor and under his guidance, with an intention to give a summary knowledge of the law to those persons not versed in it, and particularly to students. Inst. Proem. § 3.

The lawyers employed to compile it were Tribonian, Theophilus, and Dorotheus. The work was first published on the 21st of November, 533, and received the sanction of statute law by order of the emperor. They are divided into four books: each book is divided into titles, and each title into separate paragraphs or sections, preceded by an introductory part. The first part is called principium, because it is the commencement of the title; those which follow are numbered, and called paragraphs. The work treats of the rights of persons, of things, and of actions. The first book treats of persons; the second, third, and the first five titles of er of the fourth book, of actions. The meth-

Inst. I. 2. 5.—thereby indicating book I. title 2, section 5. Where it is intended to indicate the first paragraph, or principlum, thus: Inst. B. I. 2. pr. Frequently the citation is simply I. or J. I. 2. 5. A second mode of citation is thus: § 5, Inst. or I. I. 2.—meaning book I, title 2, paragraph 5. A third method of citation, and one in universal use with the older jurists, was by giving the name of the title and the first words of the paragraph referred to, thus: $ senatusconsultum est I de jure nat. gen. et civil.which means, as before, Inst. B. I. tit. 2, § 5. See 1 Colquhoun, s. 61.

The first printed edition of the Institutes is that of Schoyffer, fol. 1468. The last critical German edition is that of Schrader, 4to. Berlin, 1832. This work of Schrader is the most learned and most elaborate commentary on the text of Justinian in any language. and was intended to form a part of the Berlin Corpus Juris. It is impossible in this brief article to name all the commentaries on these Institutes, which in all ages have commanded the study and admiration of jurists. More than one hundred and fifty years ago one Homberg printed a tract De Multitudine nimia Commentatorum in Institutiones Juris. But we must refer the reader to the best recent French and English editions. Ortolan's Institutes de l'Empereur Justinien avec le texte, la traduction en régard, et les explications sous chaque paragraphe, Paris, 3 vols., 8th Ed. 1870; Sohm's Institutes by Ledlie, 1892. This is, by common consent of scholars, regarded as the best historical edition of the Institutes ever published. Du Caurroy's Institutes de Justinien traduites et expliquées par A. M. Du Caurroy, Paris, 1851, 8th ed. 2 vols. 8vo. The Institutes of Justinian: with English Introduction, Translation, and Notes, by Thomas Collet Sandars, M. A. London, 1853, 8vo; 9th Ed. 1898, 1910. This work has been prepared expressly for beginners, and is founded mainly upon Ortolan, with a liberal use of LaGrange, Du Caurroy, Warnkoenig, and Puchta, as well as Harris and Cooper. The English edition of Harris, and the American one of Cooper, have ceased to attract attention. See J. B. Moyle's Institutiones Justiniani.

The most authoritative German treatises on the Pandects are the following: Windscheid, Dr. B., 3d ed., Dusseldorff, 1875; 2 vols.; Vangerow, Dr. K. A., 7th ed., Marburg, 1869; Brintz, Dr. A. B., 2d ed., Erlangen, 1879; Ihering, Dr. R., Jena, 1881. Incomparably the most philosophical exposition of the Roman system of jurisprudence is Savigny's Gesch. des röm. Rechts, coupled with his System des heut. röm. Rechts, the latter the fourth book, of things; and the remaind-published in Berlin in 1840. Of both, French translations have been published by Gueod of citing the Institutes should be under- noux. See also Sandars' Justinian, with an stood, and is now commonly by giving the introduction by William G. Hammond (1876). and Abdy and Walker's translation of the Institutes (1876), and T. L. Mears.

IV. THEOPHILUS' INSTITUTES. A paraphrase of Justinian, made, it is believed, soon after A. D. 533.

It is generally supposed that in A. D. 534, 535, and 536, Theophilus read his commentary in Greek to his pupils in the law school of Constantinople. He is conjectured to have died some time in a. p. 536. This paraphrase maintained itself as a manual of law until the eighth or tenth century. This text was used in the time of Hexabibles of Harmenipulus, the last of the Greek jurists. It is also conjectured that Theophilus was not the editor of his own paraphrase, but that it was drawn up by some of his pupils after his explanations and lectures, inasmuch as it contains certain barbarous phrases, and the texts of the manuscripts vary greatly from each other.

It has, however, always been somewhat in use, and jurists consider that its study aids the text of the Institutes; and Cujas and Hugo have both praised it. The first edition was that of Zuichem, fol., Basle, 1531; the best edition is that of Reitz, 2 vols. 4to, 1751, Haag. There is a German translation by Wüsterman, 1823, 2 vols. 8vo; and a French translation by Mons. Ilregier, Paris, 1847, 8vo, whose edition is prefaced by a learned and valuable introduction and dissertation. Consult Mortreuil, Hist. Du Droit Byzan., Paris, 1843; Smith, Dict. Biog. London, 1849, 3 vols. 8vo; 1 Kent 533; Profession d'Avocat, tom. ii. n. 536, page 95; Introd. á l'Etude du Droit Romaine, p. 124; Dict. de Jurisp.; Merlin, Répert.; Encyclopédie de d'Alembert.

INSTITUTION (Lat. instituere, to form, to establish).

la Civil Law. The appointment of an heir; the act by which a testator nominates one or more persons to succeed him in all his rights active and passive. Halifax, Anal. 39; Pothier, Tr. des Donations testamentaires, c. 2, s. 1, § 1; La. Civ. Code, 1598; Dig. 28. 5; 1, 1; 28. 6. 1, 2, § 4.

in Ecclesiasticai Law. To become a parson or vicar, four things are necessary, viz.: holy orders, presentation, institution, induction. Institution is a kind of investiture of the spiritual part of the benefice; for by institution the care of the souls of the parish is committed to the charge of the clerk,previous to which the oath against simony and of allegiance and supremacy are to be taken. By institution the benefice is full: so that there can be no fresh presentation (except the patron be the king), and the clerk may enter on parsonage-house and glebe and take the tithes; but he cannot grant or let them, or bring an action for them, till induction. See 1 Bla. Com. 389; 1 Burn, Eccl. Law 169.

in Political Law. A law, rite, or ceremony enjoined by authority as a permanent rule of conduct or of government: as, the Institutions of Lycurgus. Webster, Dict. An organized society, established either by law or the authority of individuals, for promoting any object, public or social. A private school or college may, by curtesy, be called an institution; but in legal parlance it implies foundation by law, by enactment or prescription; one may open and keep a private school, but cannot properly be said to institute it; Dodge v. Williams, 46 Wis. 70, 1 N. W. 92, 50 N. W. 1103.

in Practice. The commencement of an action: as, A B has instituted a suit against C D to recover damages for trespass.

INSTRUCTIONS. Orders given by a principal to his agent in relation to the business of his agency.

The agent is bound to obey the instructions he has received; and when he neglects so to do he is responsible for the consequences, unless he is justified by matter of necessity; Dusar v. Perit, 4 Binn. (Pa.) 361; 1 Liverm. Ag. 368. See Agent.

In Practice. The statement of a cause of action given by a client to his attorney, and which, where such is the practice, are sent to his pleader to put into legal form of a declaration. Warren, Law Stud. 284.

Instructions to counsel are their indemnity for any aspersions they may make an the opposite party; but attorneys who have a just regard to their own reputation will be cautious, even under instructions, not to make any unnecessary attack upon a party or witness. For such unjustifiable conduct the counsel will be held responsible. Eunom. Dial. 2, § 43, p. 132. For a form of instructions, see 3 Chitty, Pr. 117, 120, n.

Also the written or oral address of the presiding judge, in jury trials, delivered usually at the close of the arguments of counsel to the jury, informing them of the law applicable to the cause at trial, and their duties thereunder. A. & E. Encyc.

An omission to give instructions is not assignable as error where no request was made therefor in the court below; State v. Jackson, 112 N. C. 851, 17 S. E. 149; Bailey v. State, 26 Tex. App. 706, 9 S. W. 270; Duncombe v. Powers, 75 Ia. 185, 39 N. W. 261; Stuckslager v. Neel, 123 Pa. 53, 16 Atl. 94; State v. Johnson, 37 Minn. 493, 35 N. W. 373: People v. Fice, 97 Cal. 459, 32 Pac. 531; and errors or inaccuracies in charging the jury cannot be considered on appeal unless duly excepted to on the trial; State v. Hair, 37 Minn. 351, 34 N. W. 893; Georgia Pac. R. Co. v. West, 66 Miss. 310, 6 South. 207; Paddleford v. Cook, 74 Ia. 433, 38 N. W. 137; Frauenthal v. Bridgeman, 50 Ark. 348, 7 S. W. 388; Schroeder v. Rinehard, 25 Neb. 75, 40 N. W. 593; Chemical Co. of Canton v. Johnson, 101 N. C. 223, 7 S. E. 770, 775; a refusal to give instructions not excepted to; cannot be complained of on appeal; Burns v. People, 126 Ill. 282, 18 N. E. 550. Where a charge correctly states the law of the case, a judgment will not be reversed because the charge was abstract; Bonner v. State, 97 Ala. 47, 12 South. 408; State v. King, 111 Mo. 576, 20 S. W. 299; but an instruction is wrong which states hypothetically facts as to which there is no evidence; Jackson v. State, 88 Ga. 784, 15 S. E. 677; State v. Brackett, 45 La. Ann. 46, 12 South. 129. It is not error to recall a jury and charge them again at their request; Caston v. State, 31 Tex. Cr. R. 304, 20 S. W. 585. The improper admission of evidence is cured by an instruction not to consider the evidence so admitted; Shepard v. Ry. Co., 77 Ia. 54, 41 N. W. 564: Durant v. Mining Co., 97 Mo. 62, 10 S. W. 484; Dismukes v. State, 83 Ala. 287, 3 South, 671. Refusal to give correct instructions is not error if the court has already given them on the same point; Bener v. Edgington, 76 Ia. 105, 40 N. W. 117; People v. Madden, 76 Cal. 521, 18 Pac. 402; Beck v. State, 76 Ga. 452; Louisville, N. A. & C. Ry. Co. v. Wright, 115 Ind. 394, 16 N. E. 145, 17 N. E. 584, 7 Am. St. Rep. 432; Va. Midland R. Co. v. White, 84 Va. 498, 5 S. E. 573, 10 Am. St. Rep. 874; or where given in different words; Grand Trunk Ry. Co. v. Ives, 144 U. S. 408, 12 Sup. Ct. 679, 36 L. Ed. 485; Anthony v. R. Co., 132 U. S. 172, 10 Sup. Ct. 53, 33 L. Ed. 301.

The principles governing the subject of peremptory instructions were clearly stated by Harlan, J., in Travelers' Ins. Co. v. Randolph, 78 Fed. 754, 24 C. C. A. 305:

"It is well settled that if, at the close of the plaintiff's evidence, the court refuses to give a peremptory instruction for the defendant, such refusal cannot be assigned for error if the defendant does not stand upon the case made by the plaintiff, but introduces evidence in support of his defence" (citing Grand Trunk R. Co. v. Cummings, 106 U. S. 700, 1 Sup. Ct. 493, 27 L. Ed. 266; Accident Ins. Co. v. Crandal, 120 U. S. 527, 7 Sup. Ct. 685, 30 L. Ed. 740; Union Pac. R. Co. v. Callaghan, 161 U. S. 91, 16 Sup. Ct. 493, 40 L. Ed. 628). "But the failure of the defendant, at the close of the plaintiff's evidence, to ask a peremptory instruction will not, of itself, preclude such a motion at the close of the whole evidence." Travelers' Ins. Co. v. Randolph, 78 Fed. 759, 24 C. C. A. 305.

"A mere scintilla of evidence in favor of one party does not entitle him of right to go to the jury" (citing Schuylkill & D. Imp. & R. Co. v. Munson, 14 Wall. [U. S.] 442, 448, 20 L. Ed. 887). Nor can it "be withdrawn from the consideration of the jury simply because, in the judgment of the court, there is a preponderance of evidence in favor of the party asking a peremptory instruction. If the facts are entirely undisputed or uncontradicted, or if, upon any issue dependent upon facts, there is no evidence whatever in favor of one party, or, what is the same thing, if the evidence is so slight as to justify the court in regarding the proof as substantially all one way, then the court may direct a verdict according to its view of the law arising upon such a case. If a verdict is rendered contrary to the evidence, the remedy of the losing party is a motion for a new trial." 78 Fed. 759, 24 C. C. A. 305.

The conclusions were thus stated:

"That there must be something more than a scintilla of evidence supporting the case of the party upon whom the burden of proof rests, to require the submission of the case to the jury; that where there is a real conflict of evidence on a question of fact, whatever may be the opinion of the judge who tries the case as to the value of that evidence, he must leave the consideration of it for the decision of the jury; that where there are material and substantial facts which, if credited by the jury, would in law justify a verdict in favor of one par-ty, it is not error for the trial judge to refuse a peremptory instruction to the jury; that it is not a 'proper standard to settle for a peremptory instruction that the court, after weighing the evidence in the case, would, upon motion for a new trial, set aside the verdict, and that the court 'may, and often should, set aside a verdict, when clearly against the weight of the evidence, where it would not be justified in directing a verdict'; that, upon reason and authority, 'there is a difference between the legal discretion of the court to set aside a verdict as against the weight of evidence, and that obligation which the court has to withdraw a case from the jury, or direct a verdict for insufficiency of evidence'; and that 'in the latter case it must be so insufficient in fact as to be insufficient in law.'" 78 Fed. 760, 24 C. C. A. 305 (citing Mt. Adams & E. P. Inclined R. Co. v. Lowery, 74 Fed. 463, 20 C. C. A. 596).

In French Law. The means used and formality employed to prepare a case for trial. It is generally applied to criminal cases, and is then called criminal instruction; it is then defined the acts and proceedings which tend to prove positively a crime or delict, in order to inflict on the guilty person the punishment which he deserves.

INSTRUMENT. A document or writing which gives formal expression to a legal act or agreement, for the purpose of creating, securing, modifying, or terminating a right; a writing executed and delivered as the evidence of an act or agreement.

The writing which contains some agreement, and is so called because it has been prepared as a memorial of what has taken place or been agreed upon. It includes bills, bonds, conveyances, leases, mortgages, promissory notes, and wills, but scarcely accounts, ordinary letters or memoranda. The agreement and the instrument in which it is contained are very different things,—the latter being only evidence of the existence of the former. The instrument or form of the contract may be valid, but a contract itself may be void on account of fraud. See Ayliffe, Parerg. 305; Dun. Adm. Pr. 220. forthcoming bond is an "instrument for the payment of money." Coe v. Straus, 11 Wis. A bank check payable in confederate currency was held not "an instrument payable in money" under the Alabama Code in relation to commercial paper; Bank of Mobile v. Brown, 42 Ala. 108.

A statute requiring "any instrument of writing" sued on to be filed, does not apply to a contract signed by both parties and deposited with a third person for safe keeping, it applies only to obligations executed only by the party sued; Bowling v. Hax, 55 Mo. 446.

INSTRUMENT OF SASINE. An instrument in Scotland by which the delivery of "sasine" (i. e. seisin) is attested. Moz. & W.

INSTRUMENTA (Lat.). That kind of evidence which consists of writings not under seal: as, court-rolls, accounts, and the like. 3 Co. Litt., Thomas ed. 487.

INSUFFICIENCY. In Chancery Practice. After filing of defendant's answer, the plaintiff has six weeks in which to file exceptions to it for insufficiency,—which is the fault of not replying specifically to specific charges in the bill. Smith, Ch. Pr. 344; Mitf. Eq. Pl. 376, note. Sanders, Ord. in Ch., Index; Beach, Mod. Eq. Pr. 413.

Under the Judicature Act, 1875, order xxxi., rules 6, 9, 10, interrogatories are to be answered by affidavit, and if the party interrogated answers insufficiently, the party interrogating may apply to the court for an order requiring him to answer further. Moz. & W.

INSULA (Lat. island). A house not connected with other houses, but separated by a surrounding space of ground. Calvinus, Lex.

INSULAR POSSESSIONS. See PHILIP-PINES; PORTO RICO; TERRITORY.

INSUPER. Moreover; over and above. An old exchequer term, applied to a charge made upon a person in his account. Blount.

INSURABLE INTEREST. Such an interest in a subject of insurance as will entitle the person possessing it to obtain insurance.

It is essential to the contract of insurance, as distinguished from a wager, that the assured should have a legally recognizable interest in the insured subject, the pecuniary value of which may be appreciated and computed or valued. An earlier examination of the subject, as connected with life insurance, results in the conclusion from the authorities, that at common law that contract was not one of indemnity, and wagering policies were not unlawful, and therefore that logically, in such policies, an insurable interest should not be required, but that the American courts adopted what has been termed a rule of American common law that all wagers were void on grounds of public policy and, therefore, that there must be an insurable interest; 35 Am. L. Reg. N. S. 65. This rule, it was said, obtains in all the states except New Jersey and Rhode Island; Trenton Mut. Life & Fire Ins. Co. v. Johnson, 24 N. J. L. 576; Mowry v. Home Life Ins. Co., 9 R. I. 354; and see Clark v. Allen, 11 R. I. 439, 23 Am. Rep. 496.

Absence of an insurable interest is always a defense for the insurer even though there is an incontestible clause; Bromleys' Adm'r v. Life Ins. Co., 122 Ky. 402, 92 S. W. 17, 5 L. R. A. (N. S.) 747, 121 Am. St. Rep. 467, 12 Ann. Cas. 685.

The case of Godsall v. Boldero, 9 East 72, was so generally cited and relied on in the American cases that it is not easy to was overruled by Dalby v. I. & L. L. Assurance Company, 15 C. B. 365. It is of special interest to note that the New Jersey case in which the court expressly refused to follow Godsall v. Boldero, was decided about the time of the case which overruled it, but before it was reported in the United States. See also 2 Sm. L. Cas., 9th Am. ed. 1530, where both the English cases mentioned are reported, and the authorities in both countries are collected, the conclusion of the American editors being, that as to fire, marine, and life insurance there must be some interest in the insurer. See also Biddle, Ins. § 184, where it is said that wagering policies were not void in England at common law. See WAGER.

Where the subject-matter is property, as in fire and marine insurance, the question whether there is an insurable interest is generally free from difficulty and the rule established by the decisions is comparatively simple. It is not requisite that the insured party should have an absolute property in the insured subject, or that the subject or interest should be one that can be exclusively possessed or be transferable by delivery or assignment. Insurable interest involves neither legal nor equitable title; Carter v. Ins. Co., 12 Ia. 287; Pedrick v. Fisher, 1 Sprague 565, Fed. Cas. No. 10,900. The subject or interest must, however, be such that it may be destroyed, lost, damaged, diminished, or intercepted by the risks insured against. The interests usually insured are those of the owner in any species of property, of mortgagor, mortgagee, holder of bottomry or respondentia bond, of an agent, consignee, lessee, factor, carrier, bailee, or party having a lien or entitled to a rent or income, or being liable to a loss depending upon certain conditions or contingencies, or having the certainty or probability of a profit or pecuniary benefit depending on the insured subject; 1 Phill. Ins. c. 3; 11 E. L. & Eq. 2; 48 id. 292; Cobb v. Ins. Co., 6 Gray (Mass.) 192; Allen v. Ins. Co., 2 Md. 111; Rohrbach v. Ins. Co., 62 N. Y. 47, 20 Am. Rep. 451; Home Protection of North Ala. v. Caldwell Bros., 85 Ala. 607, 5 South. 338; California Ins. Co. v. Compress Co., 133 U. S. 387, 10 Sup. Ct. 365, 33 L. Ed. 730. Property subject to a deed of trust is encumbered under a provision against a chattel mortgage, and the insured has not unconditional and sole ownership; Hunt v. Fire Ins. Co., 196 U. S. 47, 25 Sup. Ct. 179, 49 L. Ed. 381. See Clymer Opera Co. v. Fire Ins. Co., 238 Pa. 137, 85 Atl. 1111.

It was formerly held that the interest in property insured must exist when the insurance was effected, and also at the time of the loss; Howard v. Ins. Co., 3 Den. (N. Y.) 301; Chrisman v. Ins. Co., 16 Or. 283, 18 Pac. 466: Folsom v. Ins. Co., 38 Me. 414: estimate the influence of that case before it | Biddle, Ins. § 157. This is not now the rule;

Arnould, Ins. 59; and in a case in which ! the insurance was upon a cargo, "on account of whom it may concern," the author just cited is approvingly quoted by Mr. Justice Swayne to the effect that, "it is now clearly established that an insurable interest, subsisting during the risk and at the time of loss, is sufficient, and the assured need not also allege or prove that he was interested at the time of effecting the policy," and he adds, "This is consistent with reason and justice, and is supported by analogies of the law in other cases." Hooper v. Robinson, 98 U. S. 528, 25 L. Ed. 219; Sun Ins. Office of London v. Merz, 64 N. J. L. 301, 45 Atl. 785, 52 L. R. A. 330.

It has been held that there is an insurable interest in an attaching creditor; 86 Me. 518; a purchaser in possession under a contract of sale; Dupuy v. Ins. Co., 63 Fed. 680; Quinn v. Parke & Lacy Machinery Co., 5 Wash. 276, 31 Pac. 866; Carpenter v. Ins. Co., 135 N. Y. 298, 31 N. E. 1015; 21 Can. S. C. R. 288; a person admitted as a partner, though the consideration was unpaid; Hanover Fire Ins. Co. v. Shrader, 11 Tex. Civ. App. 255, 31 S. W. 1100, 32 S. W. 344; a husband, in personal property in the name of his wife; id.; a commission merchant in goods consigned to him; Putnam v. Ins. Co., 5 Metc. (Mass.) 386; persons liable by contract, statute, or common law for the safe keeping of property; Savage v. Ins. Co., 36 N. Y. 655; carriers; Chase v. Ins. Co., 12 Barb. (N. Y.) 595; railroad companies; Monadnock R. Co. v. Ins. Co., 113 Mass. 77; warehousemen; Pelzer Mfg. Co. v. Office, 36 S. C. 213, 15 S. E. 562; a pipeline company in oil in its tanks; Western & A. Pipe Lines v. Ins. Co., 145 Pa. 347, 22 Atl. 665, 27 Am. St. Rep. 703; a sheriff in goods levied on; White v. Madison, 26 N. Y. 117; Warren v. Ins. Co., 31 Ia. 464, 7 Am. Rep. 160; one liable as indorser of a mortgage note; Williams v. Ins. Co., 107 Mass. 377, 9 Am. Rep. 41; or a trustee liable for the safe-keeping of property; Howard Fire Ins. Co. v. Chase, 5 Wall. (U. S.) 509, 18 L. Ed. 524; or who gives bond for its delivery; Fireman's Ins. Co. v. Powell, 13 B. Mon. (Ky.) 311; one in possession for life under a parol agreement to pay repairs, taxes, and insurance; Berry v. Ins. Co., 132 N. Y. 49, 30 N. E. 254, 28 Am. St. Rep. 548; a carpenter or builder erecting or repairing a building, to be paid for on completion; Protection Ins. Co. v. Hall, 15 B. Mon. (Ky.) 411; a vendor of land before payment in full; Wood v. North Western Ins. Co., 46 N. Y. 421; (but not one paid in full who has not conveyed; 2 N. S. W. L. R. 239); a lessor; Ely v. Ely, 80 Ill. 532; a tenant; id.; or subtenant; Georgia Home Ins. Co. v. Jones, 49 Miss. 80; (but not a tenant of glebe land after death of the lessor; 20 U. C. C. P. 170); a tenant by the curtesy; Harris v. Ins. Co., 50 Pa. 341; a simple con-person in lands of the latter, though subject to dower and homestead rights; Creed v. Sun Fire Office of London, 101 Ala. 522, 14 South. 323, 23 L. R. A. 177, 46 Am. St. Rep. 134; a mechanic's lien holder; Stout v. Ins. Co., 12 Ia. 371, 79 Am. Dec. 539; the successful bidder at an execution sale; Ætna Ins. Co. v. Miers, 5 Sneed (Tenn.) 139; the owner of lands, on buildings in process of erection; Foley v. Ins. Co., 71 Hun 369, 24 N. Y. Supp. 1131; the grantee of property conveyed in fraud of creditors; German Ins. Co. of Freeport v. Hyman, 34 Neb. 704, 52 N. W. 401; a grantee of property, although the conveyance may be subsequently declared fraudulent on petition of creditors before the loss occurred; Steinmeyer v. Steinmeyer, 64 S. C. 413, 42 S. E. 184, 59 L. R. A. 319, 92 Am. St. Rep. 809; one holding property in trust; Cross v. Ins. Co., 132 N. Y. 133, 30 N. E. 390; or who has an equitable interest; Swift v. Ins. Co., 18 Vt. 305; a mortgagee, to the extent of his mortgage interest; Fox v. Ins. Co., 52 Me. 333; Holbrook v. Ins. Co., 1 Curt. C. C. 193, Fed. Cas. No. 6,589; and a mortgagor, on his interest in the same building; Traders' Ins. Co. v. Robert, 9 Wend. (N. Y.) 405; Strong v. Ins. Co., 10 Pick. (Mass.) 40, 20 Am. Dec. 507; but the interests are independent and insurance by the mortgagor cannot be claimed by the mortgagee; Mc-Donald v. Black's Adm'r, 20 Ohio 185, 55 Am. Dec. 448; where the mortgagor insures and makes the loss payable to the mortgagee, as his interest may appear, the company is estopped to deny the insurable interest; Appleton Iron Co. v. Assurance Co., 46 Wis. 23, 1 N. W. 9, 50 N. W. 1100; a mortgagor who conveys subject to the mortgage, has an insurable interest in the real estate, being liable to the mortgagee for any deficiency; Hanover Fire Ins. Co. v. Bohn, 48 Neb. 743, 67 N. W. 774, 58 Am. St. Rep. 719. A partner may have an insurable interest in a building erected by the partnership on land of the other partner; Converse v. Ins. Co., 10 Cush. (Mass.) 37; and an agent in control may insure the property in his own name; Roberts v. Ins. Co., 165 Pa. 55, 30 Atl. 450, 44 Am. St. Rep. 642; a master of a ship on his right to primage on freight; Pedrick v. Fisher, Sprague 565, Fed. Cas. No. 10,900; or a halfowner of property in possession, may, if so authorized by the other owners, insure all the property in his own name; Hebner v. Ins. Co., 55 Ill. App. 275.

INSURABLE INTEREST

A partnership has been held to have no insurable interest in household furniture and wearing apparel of one of the partners; Georgia Home Ins. Co. v. Hall, 94 Ga. 630, 21 S. E. 828; so also an administratrix in real estate of the intestate; Bradford v. Ins. Co., 8 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 261, note; a charterer, who advances on the personal credit of the owner, who must pay, without regard to the issue of the voyage; Lee v. Barredà. tract creditor of the estate of a deceased | 16 Md. 190; a stockholder as an individual in the property of the corporation; Philips v. Ins. Co., 20 Ohio 174. It was held that an interest in the profit to be derived by the insured from the adventure of laying an Atlantic cable was insurable; though the insured was a shareholder in the company and would derive his profits from dividends; L. R. 2 Exch. 139.

Life Insurance. The insurable interest in life insurance rests upon a different basis from that on property. It has been said "that while in fire and marine insurance it is the interest and not the thing that is insured, in life insurance it is the thing and not the interest;" 35 Am. L. Reg. N. S. 79. With regard to the nature and amount of interest necessary for a policy of life insurance, no definite general principle seems yet to have been established, though the classes of insurable interests have been increasing. Every person has an insurable interest in his own life; Ætna Life Ins. Co. v. France, 94 U. S. 561, 24 L. Ed. 287; Union Fraternal League v. Walton, 109 Ga. 1, 34 S. E. 317, 46 L. R. A. 424, 77 Am. St. Rep. 350; Bloomington Mut. Ben. Ass'n v. Blue, 120 Ill. 121, 11 N. E. 331, 60 Am. Rep. 558; Campbell v. Life Ins. Co., 98 Mass. 381; Scott v. Dickson, 108 Pa. 6, 56 Am. Rep. 192; 1 Moo. & Rob. 481. It has been a much mooted question whether the beneficiary must have an interest. It has been held in many cases that a person may insure his own life and pay the premiums, for a beneficiary designated by him; Campbell v. Ins. Co., 98 Mass. 381; Gambs v. Life Ins. Co., 50 Mo. 44; Olmsted v. Keyes, 85 N. Y. 593; and there are dicta to this effect, frequently referred to, of Sharswood, J., American & Health Ins. Co. v. Robertshaw, 26 Pa. 189, and Paxson, J., in Scott v. Dickson, 108 Pa. 6, 56 Am. Rep. 192. To the contrary are Gilbert v. Moose's Adm'rs, 104 Pa. 74, 49 Am. Rep. 570; Watson v. Mut. Life Ass'n, 21 Fed. 698; and see Mutual Benefit Ass'n v. Hoyt, 46 Mich. 473, 9 N. W. 497, and a dictum in Ætna Life Ins. Co. v. France, 94 U. S. 561, 24 L. Ed. 287. If the beneficiary pays the premiums, it is generally held that he must have an interest; Goldbaum v. Leon, 79 Tex. 638, 15 S. W. 564; Amick v. Butler, 111 Ind. 578, 12 N. E. 518, 60 Am. Rep. 722; Riner v. Riner, 166 Pa. 617, 31 Atl. 347, 45 Am. St. Rep. 693. See Biddle, Ins. § 194; 35 Am. L. Reg. N. S. 79, where the authorities

It was held that when the policy is caused by the assured to be issued to another, the effect is the same as if issued to the applicant and assigned to the other, and an insurable interest is not required; Classey v. Ins. Co., 84 Hun 350, 32 N. Y. Supp. 335. A member of a beneficial association may change the beneficiary according to the rule and substitute a new one without regard to insurable interest; 22 Wash. L. R. 329; and where the policy was for the benefit of the insured unless he sustained a fatal accident, and in that case to a nephew, the latter contingency having happened, the nephew was not required to show an insurable interest; American Employers' Liability Ins. Co. v. Barr. 68 Fed. 873, 16 C. C. A. 51.

are collected.

The interest required to support an insurance on the life of another has been found by the courts difficult to define, and indeed as was said they "have left it very much undefined;" Mowry v. Ins. Co., 9 R. I. 346. Many attempts to formulate a definition have been made, but they are similar mainly in their vagueness and generality. those most quoted was that of Chief Justice Shaw, in Loomis v. Ins. Co., 6 Gray (Mass.) 396: "It must appear that the insured has some interest in the life of the cestui que vie; that his temporal affairs, his just hopes and well-grounded expectations of support, of patronage, and advantages in life will be impaired so that the real purpose is not a wager, but to secure such advantage, supposed to depend on the life of another; such, we suppose, would be sufficient to prevent it from being regarded as a mere wager. . . . We cannot doubt that a parent has an interest in the life of a child, and, vice versa, a child in that of a parent, not merely on the ground of a provision of law that parents and grandparents are bound to support their lineal kindred when they may stand in need of relief, but upon considerations of strong morals and the force of natural affection between near kindred, operating often more efficaciously than those of positive law." This was quoted with approval in Connecticut Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Schaefer, 94 U. S. 457, 24 L. Ed. 251, and in the opinion, Bradley, J,, added some observations not more definite: "Precisely what interest is necessary in order to take a policy out of the category of a mere wager has been the subject of much discussion. In marine and fire insurance the difficulty is not so great, because there insurance is considered as strictly an indemnity. But in life insurance the loss can seldom be measured by pecuniary values. Still, an interest of some sort in the insured life must exist. A man cannot take out insurance on the life of a total stranger, nor on that of one who is not so connected with him as to make the continuance of the life a matter of some real interest to him. . . . Indeed, it may be said generally that any reasonable expectation of pecuniary benefit or advantage from the continued life of another creates an insurable interest in such life. . . . The essential thing is, that the policy shall be obtained in good faith, and not for the purpose of speculating upon the hazard of a life in which the insured has no interest." In the same court, later, Field, J., in Warnock v. Davis, 104 U. S. 775, 26 L. Ed. 924, says: "It may be stated generally, however, to be of the party obtaining the insurance, either | as creditor of or surety for the assured, or from the ties of blood or marriage to him, as will justify a reasonable expectation of advantage or benefit from the continuance of his life. It is not necessary that the expectation of advantage or benefit should be always capable of pecuniary estimation. . . . But in all cases there must be a reasonable ground, founded on the relations of the parties to each other, either pecuniary or of blood or affinity, to expect some benefit or advantage from the continuance of the life of the assured." The last quotation was approved in Appeal of Corson, 113 Pa. 438, 6 Atl. 213, 57 Am. Rep. 479.

Notwithstanding the high authority both of these judges and the courts for which they were speaking, their utterances have been characterized as dicta, and such they are technically, but they undoubtedly fairly represent the views of those courts and all others who recognize that the interest may be based upon kinship and need not be pecuniary. Any effort to extract a more precise definition from the American cases is likely to end in the conclusion of another able judge, who said: "The question, what is such an interest in the life of another as will support a contract of insurance upon the life, is one to which a complete and satisfactory answer, resting upon sound principles, can hardly yet be said to have been given;" Hoar, J., in Forbes v. Ins. Co., 15 Gray (Mass.) 249, 77 Am. Dec. 360.

In England a pecuniary interest is required and must be proved; [1892] 1 Q. B. 864; with the possible exception that it is presumed in case of a wife who insures the life of her husband; Peake, Add. Cas. 70. The American courts take a less restricted view as shown by the definitions quoted, but no certain rule can be stated and the cases must be referred to, to ascertain whether any given relationship has been held sufficient.

A creditor may always insure the life of the debtor; Ulrich v. Reinoehl, 143 Pa. 238, 22 Atl. 862, 13 L. R. A. 433, 24 Am. St. Rep. 534; Martin v. Stubbings, 126 Ill. 387, 18 N. E. 657, 9 Am. St. Rep. 620; Rittler v. Smith, 70 Md. 261, 16 Atl. 890, 2 L. R. A. 844; Mace v. Life Ass'n, 101 N. C. 122, 7 S. E. 674; and in such case it has been termed a contract of indemnity, differing from other life insurance; Sharswood, J., in 4 Big. L. & Ac. Cas. 458; but this would be only as to the creditor: 15 C. B. 365; Goldbaum v. Leon, 79 Tex. 638, 15 S. W. 564; Crotty v. Ins. Co., 144 U. S. 621, 12 Sup. Ct. 749, 36 L. Ed. 566; and it is said that there is no further interest after the payment of the debt; id.; Ulrich v. Reinoehl, 143 Pa. 238, 22 Atl. 862, 13 L. R. A. 433, 24 Am. St. Rep. 534; but the question of interest is determined at the time of insurance and not of loss; see infra; Biddle, Ins. § 189. When the debtor collateral security, the policy is in trust for him, and he is entitled to have it delivered up to him on payment; L. R. 5 Ch. App. 32; but it is otherwise if the creditor pays the premiums and there is no agreement for redemption; 2 De G. & J. 582; Appeal of Corson, 113 Pa. 438, 6 Atl. 213, 57 Am. Rep. 479.

INSURABLE INTEREST

In cases other than these of creditors it may be said, in the language of Mr. Justice Bradley, that any reasonable expectation of pecuniary benefit or advantage from the continued life of another creates an insurable interest in such life; Connecticut Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Schaefer, 94 U. S. 457, 24 L. Ed. 251; United Brethren Mut. Aid Soc. v. Mc-Donald, 122 Pa. 324, 15 Atl. 439, 1 L. R. A. 238, 9 Am. St. Rep. 111; Bevin v. Ins. Co., 23 Conn. 244; Valton v. Assurance Society, 22 Barb. (N. Y.) 9; McKee v. Ins. Co., 28 Mo. 383, 75 Am. Dec. 129; 28 E. L. & Eq. 312; Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. O'Brien, 92 Mich. 584, 52 N. W. 1012.

It has been held that there was an insurable interest in a tenant, in the life of the landlord who had a life estate; Scott v. Dickson, 108 Pa. 6, 56 Am. Rep. 192; or of one partner in the life of another; Valton v. Assurance Co., 20 N. Y. 32; whose interest was not fully paid for; Connecticut Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Luchs, 108 U. S. 498, 2 Sup. Ct. 949, 27 L. Ed. 800; Bevin v. Ins. Co., 23 Conn. 244; Trenton Mut. Life & Fire Ins. Co. v. Johnson, 24 N. J. L. 576.

When an adequate interest exists at the time of the insurance, it is immaterial if there occur before death a diminution or entire cessation of it; Sides v. Ins. Co., 16 Fed. 650; Rawls v. Ins. Co., 27 N. Y. 282, 84 Am. Dec. 280; Connecticut Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Schaefer, 94 U. S. 457, 24 L. Ed. 251; and see note by J. D. Brannan on the last case in 16 Am. L. Reg. N. S. 399. But see Chrisman v. Ins. Co., 16 Or. 283, 18 Pac. 466.

On the subject of relationship there is little but confusion. It is said to be only of importance as tending to give rise to a reasonable expectation of pecuniary benefit from the continuance of the life of the insured; May, Ins. § 107; Bliss, Ins. § 31; United Brethren Mut. Aid Soc. v. McDonald, 122 Pa. 324, 15 Atl. 439, 1 L. R. A. 238, 9 Am. St. Rep. 111; Rombach v. Ins. Co., 35 La. Ann. 233, 48 Am. Rep. 239; or when there is a legal claim on the insured for support or service; id.; Charter Oak Life Ins. Co. v. Brant, 47 Mo. 419, 4 Am. Rep. 328; Keystone Mut. Benefit Ass'n v. Norris, 115 Pa. 446, 8 Atl. 638, 2 Am. St. Rep. 572. The interest has been held to exist in the case of a wife in the life of her husband; Central Nat. Bank v. Hume, 128 U. S. 195, 9 Sup. Ct. 41, 32 L. Ed. 370; McKee v. Ins. Co., 28 Mo. 383, 75 Am. Dec. 129 (but see Charter Oak Life Ins. Co. v. Brant, 47 Mo. 419, 4 Am. Rep. 328); Thompson v. Ins. Co., 46 N. Y. 674 (and see criticism of this case in 25 Am. L. Rev. 185 pays the premiums, and assigns the policy as and 35 Am. L. Reg. N. S. 171); Wallace v.

Ins. Co., 97 Minn. 27, 106 N. W. 84, 3 L. R. | Cq., 172 Pa. 111, 33 Atl. 712. One who was A. (N. S) 478 (which he cannot after divorce compel her to relinquish); and the husband in the life of the wife; Equitable Life Assur. Soc. v. Paterson, 41 Ga. 338, 5 Am. Rep. 535; Currier v. Ins. Co., 57 Vt. 496, 52 Am. Rep. 134; the marriage gives an interest; Keystone Mut. Benefit Ass'n v. Norris, 115 Pa. 446, 8 Atl. 638, 2 Am. St. Rep. 572; Holabird v. Ins. Co., 2 Dill. 166, Fed. Cas. No. 6,-587; and before marriage a feme sole has an interest in the life of her betrothed; Chisholm v. Ins. Co., 52 Mo. 213, 14 Am. Rep. 414; and so, semble, in Pennsylvania; Appeal of Corson, 113 Pa. 438, 6 Atl. 213, 57 Am. Rep. 479. As to other relations, it has been held that a son has an interest (on different grounds) in the life of his father; Appeal of Plymouth Mfg. Co., *81 Pa. 154; Guardian Mut. Life Ins. Co. of New York v. Hogan, 80 Ill. 35, 22 Am. Rep. 180; but not merely as son; id.; Continental Life Ins. Co. v. Volger, 89 Ind. 572, 46 Am. Rep. 185 (contra, Tucker v. Ins. Co., 50 Hun 50, 4 N. Y. Supp. 505); a father, in that of a minor son; Mitchell v. Ins. Co., 45 Me. 104, 71 Am. Dec. 529; or an adult son; Reserve Mut. Ins. Co. v. Kane, 81 Pa. 154, 22 Am. Rep. 741; Central Nat. Bank v. Hume, 128 U. S. 195, 9 Sup. Ct. 41, 32 L. Ed. 370; Loomis v. Ins. Co., 6 Gray (Mass.) 396; Grattan v. Ins. Co., 15 Hun (N. Y.) 74 (contra, in England, 1 Ch. D. 419); and the interest exists when relationship is by adoption; Hodge v. Ellis, 76 Ga. 272; as where the relation of father is assumed; Carpenter v. Ins. Co., 161 Pa. 9, 28 Atl. 943, 23 L. R. A. 571, 41 Am. St. Rep. 880; but a stepson has no interest in the life of his stepfather; United Brethren Mut. Aid Soc. v. McDonald, 122 Pa. 324, 15 Atl. 439, 1 L. R. A. 238, 9 Am. St. Rep. 111; nor a son-in-law in the life of the mother-inlaw; Stambaugh v. Blake, 22 W. N. C. (Pa.) 407. A grandmother has an interest in the life of a grandchild; Burke v. Ins. Co., 155 Pa. 295, 26 Atl. 445; an old woman who lived with her daughter and the father-inlaw of the latter, who had promised to keep her for life had an interest in his life; 16 Ins. L. J. 682. There is much difference of opinion as to brother and sister, but it is said that the relationship, without more, does not give an interest; Biddle, Ins. § 193; Lewis v. Ins. Co., 39 Conn. 100; Ætna Life Ins. Co. v. France, 94 U. S. 561, 24 L. Ed. 287; however, it has been held that a policy will stand if there is dependence, or indebtedness; Keystone Mut. Ass'n v. Beaverson, 16 W. N. C. (Pa.) 188; see Goodwin v. Ins. Co.. 73 N. Y. 480; [1892] 1 Q. B. 864; the last being the case of a stepsister. No interest exists in case of uncle or aunt and nephew or niece; Riner v. Riner, 166 Pa. 617, 31 Atl. 347, 45 Am. St. Rep. 693; Singleton v. Ins. Co., 66 Mo. 63, 27 Am. Rep. 321; but an aunt who stands in loco parentis to a nephew has an merely the "protector of the deceased whenever he stood in need of protection" has no insurable interest in his life; [1899] A. C.

An insurance procured by a religious society, supported largely by voluntary contributions, on the life of one of its members, is void; Trinfty College v. Ins. Co., 113 N. C. 244, 18 S. E. 175, 22 L. R. A. 291. In the absence of any insurable interest, the law will presume that the policy was taken out for the purpose of a wager or speculation; United Brethren Mut. Aid Soc. v. McDonald, 122 Pa. 324, 15 Atl. 439, 1 L. R. A. 238, 9 Am. St. Rep. 111; and wagering contracts in life insurance are not valid; Crotty v. Ins. Co., 144 U. S. 621, 12 Sup. Ct. 749, 36 L. Ed. 566.

The amount of insurable interest is the value of the insured subject as agreed by the policy, or its market value, or the pecuniary loss to which the assured is liable by the risks insured against, though the insured subject-for example, life or health-has not a market value; Mead v. Ins. Co., 7 N. Y. 530; 2 Pars. Mar. Law, c. 2, sec. 2.

In insurance cases generally an interest must be averred and some proof thereof be made; Biddle, Ins. § 197, and cases cited; but on fire policies if the application or policy shows an interest, it is generally sufficient, prima facie; id.; and so it was held on a life policy; Lewis v. Ins. Co., 39 Conn. 100; and the fact that the policy was made payable to plaintiff made a prima facie case; Parks v. Ins. Co., 26 Mo. App. 511. The facts showing interest are to be determined by the jury; Mitchell v. Ins. Co., 32 Ia. 421; Guardian Mut. Life Ins. Co. of New York v. Hogan, 80 Ill. 37, 22 Am. Rep. 180; Shaak v. Meily, 26 W. N. C. (Pa.) 569.

The weight of authority is that a policy of life insurance may be assigned to one who has no insurable interest; Grigsby v. Russell, 222 U. S. 149, 32 Sup. Ct. 58, 56 L. Ed. 133, 36 L. R. A. (N. S.) 642, where all the cases are given in the brief of counsel. A policy of life insurance is not avoided by a cessation of insurable interest; id.; distinguishing Connecticut Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Schaefer, 94 U. S. 457, 24 L. Ed. 251, and Warnock v. Davis, 104 U. S. 775, 26 L. Ed.

See, generally, articles by Erskine Hazard Dickson, 35 Am. L. Reg. N. S. 65, 161.

INSURANCE. A contract whereby, for an agreed premium, one party undertakes to compensate the other for loss on a specified subject by specified perils.

"An agreement by which one party, for a consideration (which is usually paid in money either in one sum or at different times during the continuance of the contract of the risk), promises to make a certain insurable interest in his life; Weber v. Ins. payment of money upon the destruction or injury of something in which the other party has an interest." Com. v. Wetherbee, 105 Mass. 149, 160.

An insurance in relation to property is a contract whereby the insurer becomes bound, for a definite consideration, to indemnify the insured against loss or damage, to a certain property named in the policy, by reason of certain perils to which it may be exposed. Dover Glass-Works Co. v. Ins. Co., 1 Marv. (Del.) 32, 29 Atl. 1039, 65 Am. St. Rep. 264.

"In fire insurance and marine insurance the thing insured is property; in life or accident insurance, it is the life or health of a person. In either case neither the time and amounts of payments by the assured, nor the modes of estimating or securing the payment of the sum to be paid by the insurer, affect the question whether the agreement between them is a contract of insurance. All that is requisite to constitute such a contract is the payment of the consideration by the one, and the promise of the other to pay the amount of the insurance upon the happening of injury to the subject by a contingency contemplated in the contract;" Com. v. Wetherbee, 105 Mass. 160; Masonic Association v. Taylor, 2 S. D. 324, 15 N. W. 93; Physicians Defense Co. v. Cooper, 199 Fed. 576, 118 C. C. A. 50.

Any one sui juris and capable of contracting generally may be insured, but insurance has been held not to be a necessary for which an infant might contract and be held liable against his option on coming of age; N. H. Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v. Noyes, 32 N. H. 345; Monaghan v. Ins. Co., 53 Mich. 238, 18 N. W. 797. In recent years, contracts of insurance by married women have been generally held valid, usually under statutes; McQuitty v. Ins. Co., 15 R. I. 573, 10 Atl. 635; Queen Ins. Co. v. Young, 86 Ala. 424, 5 South. 116, 11 Am. St. Rep. 51; Commercial Ins. Co. v. Spankneble, 52 Ill. 53, 4 Am. Rep. 582; Charter Oak Life Ins. Co. v. Brant, 47 Mo. 419, 4 Am. Rep. 328.

Any one otherwise capable of contracting may become an insurer, and formerly the business was largely conducted by partnerships, but, with the exception of risks taken at Lloyds (q. v.) and some other large partnerships, the business is now conducted, mainly, by insurance companies (q. v.). though, in England, quasi corporations organized under the Joint Stock Companies Acts insure under the authority of letters patent securing limited liability. See Joint STOCK COMPANY.

The insurer is sometimes called the underwriter, and the insured, the assured. The agreed consideration is called the premium; the written contract, a policy; the events insured against, risks or perils; and the subject, right, or interest to be protected, the insurable interest. See these several titles.

Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Luchs, 108 U. S. 504, 2 Sup. Ct. 949, 27 L. Ed. 800.

The policy is usually issued upon the application (q. v.) of the insured in writing, which contains the statement of facts entering into and forming a part of the contract.

It is reasonable to stipulate in a fire insurance policy that, if any statements made by the applicant are untrue, the policy shall be void; Deming Inv. Co. v. Ins. Co., 16 Okl. 1, 83 Pac. 918, 4 L. R. A. (N. S.) 607.

A renewal reinstates the original contract with all its terms and also incorporates into it the new terms expressed in the renewal application and representations contained therein become part of the contract; Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. McTague, 49 N. J. L. 587, 9 Atl. 766, 60 Am. Rep. 661.

It is not a false representation for a pregnant woman to state she is in sound bodily health, and she is not required to inform the company of her pregnancy; Merriman v. Grand Lodge, 77 Neb. 544, 110 N. W. 302, 8 L. R. A. (N. S.) 983, 124 Am. St. Rep. 867, 15 Ann. Cas. 124.

See REPRESENTATION; WARRANTY.

Whether facts concealed or misstated in an application are material is a question for the jury; State Ins. Co. of Des Moines v. Du Bois, 7 Colo. App. 214, 44 Pac. 756.

The happening of the event insured against and the consequent damage to the subject-matter, is termed the loss (q. v.).

Where the insurance is on property, an alienation will terminate the contract unless the insurance be transferred with the consent of the underwriter. See Assignment. An alienation of part of the property or diminution of the interest of the insured will not, in the absence of an express condition, avoid the policy; Pennsylvania Fire Ins. Co. v. Dougherty, 102 Pa. 568; Ætna Fire Ins. Co. v. Tyler, 16 Wend. (N. Y.) 385, 30 Am. Dec. 90; Sides v. Ins. Co., 16 Fed. 650; Gordon v. Ins. Co., 2 Pick. (Mass.) 249; Tiefenthal v. Ins. Co., 53 Mich. 306, 19 N. W. 9; 14 U. C. Q. B. 342; 25 Beav. 444; and the sale of a part does not avoid a policy forbidding merely "sale or transfer;" Quarrier v. Ins. Co., 10 W. Va. 507, 27 Am. Rep. 582; Blackwell v. Ins. Co., 48 Ohio St. 533, 29 N. E. 278, 14 L. R. A. 431, 29 Am. St. Rep. 574.

There is usually a clause, varying in exact terms, forbidding any change in title or possession, and, in such case, the sale of an undivided half interest is within its meaning and avoids the policy; McEwan v. Ins. Co., 1 Mich. N. P. 118; but a distinction has been taken between a sale of an interest in property and a sale of the property, and the assignment by a new partner to his firm of his insured property as firm assets was not a forfeiture; Scanlon v. Union Fire Ins. Co., 4 Biss. 511, Fed. Cas. No. 12,436; Savage v. Ins. Co., 52 N. Y. 502, 11 Am. Rep. 741. Clauses against alienation are conditions As to insured and assured, see Connecticut precedent; Lett v. Ins. Co., 125 N. Y. 82, 25

Bethel, 42 Ill. App. 475; and the question usually is whether there is a sale outright or by reason of something in the nature of a defeasance, either in law or by contract, the insured has not wholly parted with the property. As to such cases it is difficult, if not impossible, to lay down any general rule, and each case must be governed by the application of the general principles of the law of contracts and conditions to the particular form of the policy and the facts of the case. If there is, in fact, a total alienation, the opinion or motives of the parties in respect to it are not material; Langdon v. Fire Ins. Ass'n, 22 Minn. 193. A conveyance upon a condition to be performed before title vests will not avoid; Tittemore v. Ins. Co., 20 Vt. 546; so where the owner of an equity of redemption sells with a stipulation for payment of the mortgage by the purchaser and is compelled to take back the title for non-performance; Worthington v. Bearse, 12 Allen (Mass.) 382, 90 Am. Dec. 152; or where, for other reasons, the sale is not carried out and there is a reconveyance before loss; Power v. Ins. Co., 19 La. 28, 36 Am. Dec. 665; but see Davidson v. Ins. Co., 71 Ia. 532, 32 N. W. 514, 60 Am. Rep. 818.

An executory contract to convey the insured property with a consideration fully paid, but no transfer of title or possession, is not a change in interest, title or possession within the meaning of a forfeiture clause; Garner v. Ins. Co., 73 Kan. 127, 84 Pac. 717, 4 L. R. A. (N. S.) 654, 117 Am. St. Rep. 460, 9 Ann. Cas. 459; nor is the filing of a voluntary petition in bankruptcy where the fire occurs before the appointment of the receiver or trustee; Gordon v. Ins. Co., 120 La. 441, 45 South. 384, 15 L. R. A. (N. S.) 827, 124 Am. St. Rep. 434, 14 Ann. Cas. 886. Such conditions will apply to a mortgagee although there is a slip attached to the policy making the loss payable to him; Brecht v. Ins. Co., 160 Fed. 399, 87 C. C. A. 351, 18 L. R. A. (N. S.) 197; where property is insured in a trade name, a change in the personnel of the partners avoids the policy; American Steam Laundry Co. v. Ins. Co., 121 Tenn, 13, 113 S. W. 394, 21 L. R. A. (N. S.) 442; although the trade name is continued by the new owners; id. Void means voidable and the insurer must with reasonable promptness notify the assured of its intention to avoid the policy and tender the unearned premium which it has received; Glens Falls Ins. Co. v. Michael, 167 Ind. 659, 74 N. E. 964, 79 N. E. 905, 8 L. R. A. (N. 8.) 708.

Policies of insurance also usually contain conditions for forfeiture in case of incumbrance without notice, or in case the property be "levied upon or taken into possession or custody," and such conditions are valid; Dover Glass-Works Co. v. Ins. Co., 1 Marv.

N. E. 1088; Home Ins. Co. of New York v. | Where the property insured is subject to deeds of trust and there is a condition in the policy against a chattel mortgage, it was held that they were one and the same thing: Hunt v. Ins. Co., 196 U. S. 47, 25 Sup. Ct. 179, 49 L. Ed. 381. A breach renders the policy void; id.; Gray v. Assur. Co., 82 Hun 380, 31 N. Y. Supp. 237; and the question whether the execution of a mortgage increased the risk is immaterial; Milwaukee Mechanics' Ins. Co. v. Niewedde, 12 Ind. App. 145, 39 N. E. 757; breach of any promissory warranty avoids the policy irrespective of its materiality; McKenzie v. Ins. Co., 112 Cal. 548, 44 Pac. 922; nor does it matter that the loss was not produced or contributed to by the breach; Cogswell v. Chubb, 1 App. Div. 93, 36 N. Y. Supp. 1076. A judgment recovered in invitum is not within such condition; Gerling v. Ins. Co., 39 W. Va. 689, 20 S. E. 691; but a confession of judgment is; Hench v. Ins. Co., 122 Pa. 128, 15 Atl. 671, 9 Am. St. Rep. 74; and an agreement by one heir to pay the other heirs, in instalments, for property taken under a will; Renninger v. Ins. Co., 168 Pa. 350, 31 Atl. 1083. A technical seizure where the possession is unchanged is not an avoidance; Caraher v. Ins. Co., 63 Hun 82, 17 N. Y. Supp. 858; Smith v. Ins. Co., 89 Pa. 287; 5 Ont. App. 605. A provision for forfeiture for the levy of an execution relates to personalty and not to land; Colt v. Fire Ins. Co., 54 N. Y. 595; Hammel v. Ins. Co., 54 Wis. 72, 11 N. W. 349, 41 Am. Rep. 1.

> Under these conditions, a breach as to part of the insured property, which is not destroyed or injured, may not avoid the policy as to another part unaffected by the breach. Thus it was held that a recovery, under a live-stock policy, for a cow killed would not be prevented by the existence of incumbrances, in violation of a covenant in the policy, where the property actually lost was not encumbered; German Ins. Co. v. Fairbank, 32 Neb. 750, 49 N. W. 711, 29 Am. St. Rep. 459. Such contract is severable and any breach of the condition would avoid only as to such property as was covered by the incumbrance; Schuster v. Ins. Co., 102 N. Y. 260, 6 N. E. 406; Perry v. Ins. Co., 11 Fed. 478; 46 U. C. Q. B. 334; 10 Ont. 236; Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Walsh, 54 Ill. 164, 5 Am. Rep. 115. The same principle applies to the defence that the property insured was sold and conveyed; if the contract is severable, a breach as to one part does not operate as a defence with respect to property not included; Phenix Ins. Co. v. Grimes, 33 Neb. 340, 50 N. W. 168.

In insurance on manufacturing establishments it is usual to stipulate for avoidance if operations should cease without the consent of the insurer, and such provision is valid and is violated though a watchman was employed and the risk not increased; (Del.) 32, 29 Atl. 1039, 65 Am. St. Rep. 264. Dover Glass Works Co. v. Ins. Co., 1 Marv.

and the same is true of all conditions which are warranties. As to the distinction between representation and warranty and the law as to both, see those titles; and as to increase of risk, see RISKS AND PERILS.

Insurance on buildings or their contents is usually upon condition that if the former is suffered to be vacant or unoccupied, the policy will be void. In such case the forfeiture does not depend upon the insured's knowledge of the fact of vacancy; Schuermann v. Ins. Co., 161 Ill. 437, 43 N. E. 1093, 52 Am. St. Rep. 377; and a purchaser of the house and assignee of the policy is bound by the condition; Ranspach v. Ins. Co., 109 Mich. 699, 67 N. W. 967. Temporary absence of a tenant will not work a forfeiture: Huber v. Assur. Co., 92 Hun 223, 36 N. Y. Supp. 873; Burlington Ins. Co. v. Lowery, 61 Ark. 108, 32 S. W. 383, 54 Am. St. Rep. 196; nor will merely sleeping in the house occasionally and daily visits of the owner's wife to get provisions prevent forfeiture; Agricultural Ins. Co. v. Hamilton, 82 Md. 88, 33 Atl. 429, 30 L. R. A. 633, 51 Am. St. Rep. 457; or visits twice a day by an employé; Stapleton v. Ins. Co., 16 Misc. 483, 38 N. Y. Supp. 973. The insurer cannot establish a forfeiture without proving that the premises were unoccupied for any purpose; Pabst Brewing Co. v. Ins. Co., 2 Mo. App. 934. Buildings are vacant where the occupant has moved his family because of sickness with the intention of returning, and although he himself returns nearly every day; Knowlton v. Ins. Co., 100 Me. 481, 62 Atl. 289, 2 L. R. A. (N. S.) 517; so of the removal of a tenant. although the insured owner has no notice of such removal; Ohio Farmers' Ins. Co. v. Vogel, 166 Ind. 239, 76 N. E. 977, 3 L. R. A. (N. S.) 966, 117 Am. St. Rep. 382, 9 Ann. Cas. 91.

Keeping on hand certain articles is usually prohibited, either specifically or as a class. The breach of a condition against keeping inflammable substances does not prevent recovery, when the use of the particular substance was a necessary and usual incident of the subject insured; Maril v. Ins. Co., 95 Ga. 604, 23 S. E. 463, 30 L. R. A. 835, 51 Am. St. Rep. 102; as the use of gasoline, in a silverplating business, one day's supply only being brought in at once; Fraim v. Ins. Co., 170 Pa. 151, 32 Atl. 613, 50 Am. St. Rep. 753; or keeping an inflammable substance for sale as was customary where there was a clause, written in ink on the policy, containing the words "merchandise such as is usually kept in a country store;" Yoch v. Ins. Co., 111 Cal. 503, 44 Pac. 189, 34 L. R. A. 857; Faust v. Ins. Co., 91 Wis. 158, 64 N. W. 883, 30 L. R. A. 783, 51 Am. St. Rep. 876; Mascott v. Ins. Co., 68 Vt. 253, 35 Atl. 75.

The use of a gasoline torch by a painter will not avoid the policy, where the work has continued for less than the fifteen days al- primitive manner but showed purchases and (Del.) 32, 29 Atl. 1039, 65 Am. St. Rep. 264; lowed for repairs; Garrebrant ▼. Ins. Co., 75 N. J. L. 577, 67 Atl. 90, 12 L. R. A. (N. 8.) 443; but the storing of seed cotton by a tenant, against a provision in the policy, even without the knowledge of the insured, will avoid it; Edwards v. Ins. Co., 128 Ga. 353, 57 S. E. 707, 12 L. R. A. (N. S.) 484, 119 Am. St. Rep. 385, 10 Ann. Cas. 1036; a temporary increase of hazard, which ceases before the loss, will not prevent recovery; Sumter Tobacco Warehouse Co. v. Assurance Co., 76 S. C. 76, 56 S. E. 654, 10 L. R. A. (N. S.) 736, 121 Am. St. Rep. 941, 11 Ann. Cas. 780. Where a typewritten rider stipulated for insurance on such articles as are usually kept in a painter's shop, it prevailed against a printed condition against keeping benzine on the premises; Mascott v. Ins. Co., 68 Vt. 253, 35 Atl. 75.

> As to hazardous and extra-hazardous risks, generally, see RISKS AND PERILS.

> Iron Safe Clause. In order to promote the accurate adjustment of the loss, there is usually included in policies of insurance, on such property as a stock of merchandise, what is known as the "iron safe clause," which, in one form or another, provides that the books of the insured showing all business transactions, and the last inventory of the business, shall be kept in a fireproof safe at night and when the store is not opened for business. Such a clause is an express promissory warranty; Farmers' Fire Ins. Co. v. Bates, 60 Ill. App. 39; Home Ins. Co. of New Orleans v. Cary, 31 S. W. 321; but a substantial compliance only is required; Royal Ins. Co. v. Brown, 36 S. W. 591. Keeping the books in the safe at night, does not mean from sunrise to sunset, but from the close of business of the day according to custom; Jones v. Ins. Co., 38 Fed. 19; and where according to custom the door was locked but customers could get in by knocking, and the clerk who was in the store writing up books was absent for a short time when the fire occurred, the store was "opened for business" and the policy was not void; Sun Ins. Co. v. Jones, 54 Ark. 376, 15 S. W. 1034. But where the insurance was on a stock of liquor in a saloon, it did not excuse the violation of the iron safe clause that the same books were kept for a hotel and the saloon, the latter being opened night and day except Sunday, and the books being needed for constant settlements with the guests in the hotel; Southern Ins. Co. v. Parker, 61 Ark. 207, 32 S. W. 507 (distinguishing the last two cases). clause was held not to have been violated by failure to keep a blotter, containing the record of the sales of the day before, locked in the safe; Brown v. Ins. Co., 89 Tex. 590, 35 S. W. 1060 (reversing Palatine Ins. Co. v. Brown, 34 S. W. 462); where a cash sales book covering twenty-one days before the sale was inadvertently left out of the safe and burned, and the books were kept in a credit sales, some cash sales, and an inven- | 667, 9 Ann. Cas. 461; and where the baltory, taken shortly before the fire, it was held that a finding of compliance with the policy was warranted; Western Assur. Co. v. Redding, 68 Fed. 708, 15 C. C. A. 619; in another case it was said not to be an excuse for violation that through oversight the books were not put in the safe the night before the fire; Goldman v. Ins. Co., 48 La. Ann. 223, 19 South. 132.

1617

Where the bookkeeper, fearing the safe would not stand, took out the books to remove them to a safe place, and some of them fell and were burned, it was held that the covenant was not broken unless he was negligent; East Texas Fire Ins. Co. v. Harris, 7 Tex. Civ. App. 647, 25 S. W. 720.

Where the application showed in answer to inquiry that the books were kept in a dwelling at night a breach of the condition was not enforced; Sprott v. Ins. Ass'n, 53 Ark. 215, 13 S. W. 799.

The insurer must prove that the fire occurred at a time mentioned in the stipulation; Allemania Fire Ins. Co. v. Fred, 11 Tex. Civ. App. 311, 32 S. W. 243.

The character of the safe is not warranted; Sneed v. Assurance Co., 73 Miss. 279, 18 South. 928; and it is sufficient if it be one of a kind ordinarily known as fireproof; Knoxville Fire Ins. Co. v. Hird, 4 Tex. Civ. App. 82, 23 S. W. 393.

The stipulation in such a clause, that a set of books should be kept, including a record of all business transactions, does not require a book known as a "cash book," or any particular system of bookkeeping; Liverpool & L. & G. Ins. Co. v. Ellington, 94 Ga. 785, 21 S. E. 1006. The lost inventory of the business, within this clause, means the lost inventory of the goods insured; Manchester Fire Ins. Co. v. Simmons, 12 Tex. Civ. App. 607, 35 S. W. 722. The clause is complied with, by an inventory made, and books kept from the date of the policy, but an invoice is not an inventory; Home Ins. Co. of New York v. Bank, 71 Miss. 608, 15 South. 932. The question whether there was reasonable time between the issue of the policy and the fire to make an inventory is for the jury unless the evidence is undisputed; Allen v. Ins. Co., 106 Mich. 204, 64 N. W. 15. Where the inventory was shown to the adjuster after the fire, and afterwards lost, there was a performance of the condition; Pelican Ins. Co. v. Wilkerson, 53 Ark. 353, 13 S. W. 1103. But where the books do not furnish the necessary data, to verify the accounts rendered, the policy is avoided; id. The clause is not complied with where only unitemized bills are kept; Coggins v. Ins. Co., 144 N. C. 7, 56 S. E. 506, 8 L. R. A. (N. S.) 839, 119 Am. St. Rep. 924; a requirement to keep a set of books which clearly and plainly represent a complete record of the business is a promissory warranty; Ætna Ins. Co. v. Johnson, ances from an old set of books were carried forward into a new set and the old ones were exposed to fire and lost, there is not a compliance with the requirements of the clause; Ætna Ins. Co. v. Mount, 90 Miss. 642, 44 South. 162, 45 South. 835, 15 L. R. A. (N. S.)

Formal policy not required. Though a policy is the usual instrument by which insurance is effected, it is not necessary; First Baptist Church v. Ins. Co., 19 N. Y. 305; New England Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Robinson. 25 Ind. 536; Succession of Hearing, 26 La. Ann. 326; and it may be evidenced by  $\epsilon$ memorandum or note; Goodall v. Ins. Co., 25 N. H. 169; 76 L. T. N. S. 228; State Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Porter, 3 Grant (Pa.) 123; or a letter; Connecticut Fire Ins. Co. v. Bennett, 1 Ohio N. P. 71; 14 L. C. Jur. 219. Where the correspondence was held sufficient to create a valid contract for a policy of fire insurance, it was held that, after the property had been destroyed by fire, the insured was entitled to a decree for the amount agreed to be insured, less premium; Eames v. Ins. Co., 94 U. S. 621, 24 L. Ed. 298. In the absence of a statute forbidding it, it may be verbal; Henning v. Ins. Co., 2 Dill. 26, Fed. Cas. No. 6,366; Hamilton v. Ins. Co., 5 Pa. 339 (though this had been questioned; Smith v. Odlin, 4 Yeates [Pa.] 468); Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Farrish, 73 Ill. 166; Relief Fire Ins. Co. v. Shaw, 94 U. S. 574, 24 L. Ed. 291; Croft v. Ins. Co., 40 W. Va. 508, 21 S. E. 854, 52 Am. St. Rep. 902; Amazon Ins. Co. v. Wall, 31 Ohio St. 633, 27 Am. Rep. 533; overruling Cockerill v. Ins. Co., 16 Ohio, 148; Potter v. Ins. Co., 63 Fed. 382; and when made without specifying any date for the insurance to take effect, commences immediately; id. A usage to show a parol contract was inadmissible; 14 Ins. L. J. (Mass.) 427. In Canada it was held that to recover at law, on a contract of insurance by a corporation, there must be a sealed policy, but on a parol. contract the plaintiff may sue for a breach to deliver a policy, or proceed in equity; 16 U. C. Q. B. 477. The agreement to pay a premium is sufficient to support a verbal contract; Fitton v. Ins. Ass'n, 20 Fed. 766. See generally as to verbal contracts, Biddle, Ins. § 138, where the subject is treated historically.

An offer by a newspaper in each issue to pay a sum named to the heirs of one accidentally dying within twenty-four hours from the last issue, provided that the printed slip containing the offer should be found on the person of the deceased, is a contract of insurance; Com. v. Philadelphia Inquirer, 15 Pa. C. C. R. 463.

Binding Receipt. The usual practice is for the agent, upon the payment of the premium, to issue what is termed a binding reccipt, which is, in effect, an executory con-127 Ga. 491, 56 S. E. 643, 9 L. R. A. (N. S.) tract to issue a policy if the risk is accepted by the company, and, meanwhile, the insurance is in force. Such contracts are valid and will be enforced at law and in equity; Gold v. Ins. Co., 73 Cal. 216, 14 Pac. 786; Sandford v. Ins. Co., 11 Paige 547; and a charter provision requiring "all policies or contracts" to be signed by certain officers has been held not to apply to such agreements; Baile v. Ins. Co., 73 Mo. 371; Franklin F. Ins. Co. v. Colt, 20 Wall. (U. S.) 560, 22 L. Ed. 423; First Baptist Church v. Ins. Co., 19 N. Y. 305; Amazon Ins. Co. v. Wall, 31 Ohio St. 633, 27 Am. Rep. 533.

Where an insurance company delivers a binding slip on certain property, a complete temporary contract of insurance exists; Smith & Wallace Co. v. Ins. Co., 68 N. J. L. 674, 54 Atl. 458; so where such slip accompanies a new agreement; Belt v. Ins. Co., 163 N. Y. 555, 57 N. E. 1104, and the company is estopped from denying the authority of its agent issuing the binding slip where there is no notice to the applicant of any limitation of authority; Starr v. Ins. Co., 41 Wash. 228, 83 Pac. 116; Schlesinger v. Ins. Co., 37 App. Div. 531, 56 N. Y. Supp. 37. The question whether the binder was considered by both parties to be temporary insurance is for the Jury; Underwood v. Ins. Co., 66 App. Div. 531, 73 N. Y. Supp. 251. A memorandum on the books of the company, made by the agent and assented to by the applicant, is a sufficient binder; Queen Ins. Co. of America v. Laundry Co., 7 Ga. App. 787, 68 S. E. 310. It need not even state the premium to be paid by the insured; Jacobs v. Ins. Co., 148 Ill. App. 325. It becomes ineffective on delivery of policy to the insured; Goodhue v. Ins. Co., 184 Mass. 41, 67 N. E. 645; but there is no temporary insurance where the company declines the risk; Mohrstadt v. Ins. Co., 115 Fed. 81, 52 C. C. A. 675.

See AGREEMENT FOR INSURANCE.

Adjustment. Where a loss occurs, the ascertainment of the amount due upon the policy is termed adjustment (q. v.). Notice of the loss must be given in accordance with the terms of the condition, which is precedent to recovery; Central City Ins. Co. v. Oates, 86 Ala. 558, 6 South. 83, 11 Am. St. Rep. 67; L. R. 20 Ir. 93; Patrick v. Ins. Co., 43 N. H. 621, 80 Am. Dec. 197. This is distinct from proof of loss (q. v.), which must be also made as stipulated, or, in default of express provision, in a reasonable time; Springfield Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Brown, 128 Pa. 392, 18 Atl. 396. See Loss.

More Than One Policy. Other insurance may be taken on the same property without restriction unless there be such in the contract; Agricultural Ins. Co. v. Bemiller, 70 Md. 400, 17 Atl. 380; 14 Q. L. R. 293; Mowry v. Ins. Co., 9 R. I. 346; and no notice is required unless so stipulated; Murray v. Ins. Co., 2 Wash. C. C. 186, Fed. Cas. No. 9,961; but when the insurance is on property, only a right of contribution among insurers; Peoria Marine & Fire Ins. Co. v. Lewis, 18 Ill. 553; Clarke v. Assur. Co., 146 Pa. 561, 23 Atl. 248, 15 L. R. A. 127, 28 Am. St. Rep. 821; but it is usual to stipulate that each insurer, if there are more than one, shall be liable only pro rata; Barnes v. Ins. Co., 9 Fed. 813.

Where there are thirty insurers and the loss is less than the total amount insured, the holder of the policy is not limited in his recovery to the proportionate share of each insurer, but may recover for the whole loss, leaving to him his remedy against his associates; Sumner v. Piza, 91 Fed. 677; where there is a promise by the insured to take out insurance to the value of eighty per cent. of the property and he fails to do so, although the loss is less than the amount of insurance, he is regarded as an insurer for the difference between the amount actually insured and the eighty per cent; and he must sustain the loss of this proportion; Stephenson v. Ins. Co., 116 Wis. 277, 93 N. W. 19; Farmers' Feed Co. of New Jersey v. Ins. Co., 173 N. Y. 241, 65 N. E. 1105. It is usual to require notice to the company when other insurance is placed upon the property in other companies; Northern Assur. Co. v. Bldg. Ass'n, 183 U. S. 308, 22 Sup. Ct. 133, 46 L. Ed. 213. An agreement that several insurers are to be liable pro rata and that a single suit shall be brought, which shall be decisive as against all, is valid; New Jersey & Pennsylvania Concentrating Works v. Ackermann, 6 App. Div. 540, 39 N. Y. Supp.

As to excessive insurance on the same property, see Double Insurance.

Time Limit for Suit. It is usual in policies to have a time limit requiring an action to be brought within a designated period of the loss. Such condition is precedent to a recovery; Becket v. Imp. Co., 67 Ia. 338, 25 N. W. 271; 14 L. C. Jur. 256; and will apply in a forum other than that of the domicil of the insurer; Fullam v. Ins. Co., 7 Gray (Mass.) 61, 66 Am. Dec. 462. In some courts the time of the limitation is held to be computed from the date of the event which causes the loss; Johnson v. Ins. Co., 91 Ill. 92, 33 Am. Rep. 47; Steel v. Ins. Co., 47 Fed. 863; Chambers v. Ins. Co., 51 Conn. 17, 50 Am. Rep. 1; 19 Nov. Scot. Rep. 372; 18 Ont. 355; in others, from the time the loss was payable; Cooper v. Benefit Ass'n, 132 N. Y. 334, 30 N. E. 833, 16 L. R. A. 138, 28 Am. St. Rep. 581; Case v. Ins. Co., 83 Cal. 473, 23 Pac. 534, 8 L. R. A. 48; Matt v. Aid Ass'n, 81 Iowa, 135, 46 N. W. 857, 25 Am. St. Rep. 483; Spare v. Ins. Co., 17 Fed. 568.

The parties may agree to a reasonable time within which suit may be brought; six months is reasonable. It begins to run from the date of the fire, although there may be a provision making the loss payable sixty one indemnity can be collected, and there is days after proofs have been received by the company; Appel v. Ins. Co., 76 Ohio St. 52, 80 N. E. 955, 10 L. R. A. (N. S.) 674, 10 Ann. Cas. 821.

Limiting Jurisdiction of Courts. Efforts have been made both by contract and by statute to limit the right of suit on a policy to a particular jurisdiction; such provisions in a policy or by law have been held illegal; Nute v. Ins. Co., 6 Gray (Mass.) 174; Amesbury v. Ins. Co., id. 596; Reichard v. Ins. Co., 31 Mo. 518; May, Ins. § 490. Statutes which attempt thus to limit the jurisdiction are strictly construed, and as they generally provide that, after a loss, the directors shall meet and adjust the loss, and if it is not paid in a given time, suit may be brought in a particular court, the limitation is in many states confined to the exact case mentioned, and it is only where the amount has been so determined that it takes effect; Nevins v. Ins. Co., 25 N. H. 22; Martin v. Ins. Co., 53 Me. 419; Arnet v. Ins. Co., 22 Wis. 516; Boynton v. Ins. Co., 4 Metc. (Mass.) 212; Indiana Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v. Routledge, 7 Ind. 25; but in other cases the limitation has been enforced without reference to such previous ascertainment of the loss; Dutton v. Ins. Co., 17 Vt. 369. May, Ins. § 491.

Specifying the Law of the Contract. So, with respect to the effort to provide in the policy that the law of a certain state should determine its construction, where life policies have been issued in a state other than the same state of the company, it has been held that they are governed by statutory provisions in the state of the insured, although the policies stipulated that the contract was to be governed by the law of the same state.

A provision in a policy limiting recovery in cases of suicide is ineffectual as against a state statute declaring suicide to be no defense to an action; Whitfield v. Ins. Co., 205 U. S. 489, 27 Sup. Ct. 578, 51 L. Ed. 897.

See Lex Loci; Foreign Corporations; as to the rights and remedies of and against insurance companies in countries or states other than those of their domicil, and the effect of non-compliance with statutes regulating the manner of doing business.

The business of life insurance is not commerce; a state statute regulating insurance contracts between its residents and foreign corporations, is not invalid as a regulation of interstate commerce; Cravens v. Ins. Co., 148 Mo. 583, 50 S. W. 519, 53 L. R. A. 305, 71 Am. St. Rep. 628, affirmed in 178 U.S. 389, 20 Sup. Ct. 962, 44 L. Ed. 1116; State v Ins. Co., 71 Neb. 320, 99 N. W. 36, 100 N. W. 405, 102 N. W. 1022, 106 N. W. 767; Fisher v. Ins. Co., 136 N. C. 217, 48 S. E. 667; N. Y. Life Ins. Co. v. Deer Lodge County, 43 Mont. 243, 115 Pac. 911, affirmed 231 U. S. 595, 34 Sup. Ct. 274, 58 L. Ed. —, following Paul v. Virginia, 8 Wall. 168, 19 L. Ed. 357.

Subrogation. An insurer is entitled to subrogation (q. v.) in cases where such right would attach under the general principles applying to that subject; as, when payment is made for loss or damage to goods in transit, there is a subrogation to the rights of the owner against the carrier; Houston Direct Nav. Co. v. Ins. Co. (Tex.) 31 S. W. 560; Over v. R. Co., 63 Fed. 34; Stoughton v. Gas Co., 165 Pa. 428, 30 Atl. 1001; Southard v. R. Co., 60 Minn. 382, 62 N. W. 442, 619. And, on payment by the insurer of a loss which he was not legally bound to pay, he has a right of action against one through whose negligence the property was destroyed; Ry. Co. v. Fire Ass'n, 60 Ark. 325, 30 S. W. 350, 28 L. R. A. 83; he becomes entitled pro tanto, and should join the owner as plaintiff in an action for negligent burning; Wunderlich v. Ry. Co., 93 Wis. 132, 66 N. W. 1144. So, an insurer of title who paid off liens prior to a mortgage, as to which the mortgagee was indemnified by bond of the mortgagor, was subrogated to the right of action of the latter on the bond; St. Paul Title Ins. & Trust Co. v. Johnson, 64 Minn. 492, 67 N. W. 543.

Since a policy of fire insurance is a contract of indemnity, the insurer is entitled to recover from the insured not merely the value of any benefit received by him by way of compensation from other sources in excess of his actual loss, but also the full value of any rights or remedies of the insured against third parties which have been renounced by him, and to which, but for that renunciation, the insurer would have a right to be subrogated; [1896] 2 Q. B. 377.

Expected profits may be insured, as crops, against hail and frost or other risks, even before they are sown, but the profits must be insured as such; 3 N. & M. 819; Putnam v. Ins. Co., 5 Metc. (Mass.) 391; Loomis v. Shaw, 2 Johns. Cas. (N. Y.) 36; Niblo v. Ins. Co., 1 Sandf. (N. Y.) 551; or the future profits of one to whom the insured has advanced money to pursue an enterprise; Morrell v. Ins. Co., 10 Cush. (Mass.) 282, 57 Am. Dec. 92; Miller v. Ins. Co., 2 E. D. Sm. (N. Y.) 268; or a portion of the cargo of a ship expected to arrive, even if the insured has no property in such cargo, but has only purchased, for a specified sum, the right to take such goods for a further specified sum; French v. Ins. Co., 16 Pick. (Mass.) 397; but even if the insured has an ownership in the property, if he becomes insolvent before the arrival of the cargo and the goods are intercepted by the vendor, by right of stoppage in transitu, there can be no recovery on the policy; 10 B. & C. 99.

As to reinsurance, see that title.

The several forms of insurance contracts are classified mainly with reference to the character of the perils insured against. See infra.

Life insurance. The insurance of the life of a person is a contract by which the insurer, in consideration of a certain premium, either in a gross sum or periodical payments, undertakes to pay the person for whose benefit the insurance is made, a stipulated sum, or annuity equivalent, upon the death of the person whose life is insured, whenever this shall happen, if the insurance be for the whole life, or in case this shall happen within a certain period, if the insurance be for a limited time.

An agreement by the insurer to pay to the insured or his nominee a specified sum of money, either on the death of a designated life, or at the end of a certain period, provided the death does not occur before, in consideration of the present payment of a fixed amount, or of an annuity till the death occurs or the period of insurance is ended. Biddle, Ins. § 2. Bunyon's definition varies little, as does that of Park, but the latter elaborates the consideration which is described as "a certain sum proportioned to · the age, health, profession, and other circumstances of the person whose life is the object of insurance." Park, Ins. ch. xxii. In a leading case it was said by Parke, B., to be "a mere contract to pay a certain sum of money on the death of a person, in consideration of the due payment of a certain annuity for his life, the amount of the annuity being calculated, in the first instance, according to the probable duration of the life; and when once fixed, it is constant and invariable;" 15 C. B. 365.

A mutual contract by which the insurer, on the one hand, comes under an obligation to pay a certain sum of money upon the death of the insured, who, on the other hand, becomes bound to pay certain sums, either annually or otherwise, in the name of premiums, and these obligations are counterparts of one another. 3 Can. S. C., 4th ser. 1078.

The person whose life is insured is frequently termed the "life."

The sum to be paid in case of loss depends entirely upon the stipulation in the policy, and not at all upon the amount of the pecuniary interest in the life; Bevin v. Ins. Co., 23 Conn. 244.

There must be an insurable interest (q. v.). A large proportion of life insurance is now effected through the medium of beneficial associations (q. v.); they are generally formed under state incorporation laws and are subject to their own rules and regulations so far as they are consistent with the general or statutory law of the state. The benefits and advantages conferred by these associations are held to be insurance, and subject to regulation by the insurance laws of the state; State v. Nichols, 78 Ia. 747, 41 N. W. 4; Goodman v. Lodge No. 7, 67 Md. 117, 9 Atl. 13, 13 Atl. 627. While the rules and regulations enter into and become a part of the contract of insurance, the usage of the the contract, if the latter be clear and unambiguous; and words having a fixed meaning, either general or technical, will be interpreted according to that meaning as in other cases; Wiggin v. Knights of Pythias, 31 Fed. 122.

Some of the conditions of policies of life insurance are peculiar to this class of insurance. Among the most important of these are those relating to self-destruction and insanity. The risk in life insurance is the death of the insured proceeding from causes other than his voluntary act; Supreme Commandery of the Knights of the Golden Rule v. Ainsworth, 71 Ala. 436, 46 Am. Rep. 332. See Suicide.

Entering the military service is also usually stipulated against, but death at the hands of a roving band of thieves and robbers, while engaged as an engineer in building a bridge, under the direction of a military commander, is not within such a stipulation; Welts v. Life Ins. Co., 48 N. Y. 34, 8 Am. Rep. 518; but even an involuntary entrance will defeat a recovery; Dillard v. Ins. Co., 44 Ga. 119, 9 Am. Rep. 167.

The receipt of the premium by the insurer, after a known violation of the condition against residence abroad, is a waiver of the right to a forfeiture; Bevin v. Ins. Co., 23 Conn. 244; whether the knowledge be actual or constructive; L. R. 11 Eq. 197. Where a condition against absence from home beyond a stipulated time is violated, the insured will be excused if he be detained by reason of illness occurring within the time specified; Baldwin v. Ins. Co., 8 Bosw. (N. Y.) 530; but not where the illness occurs after the limits of the stipulation; Nightingale v. Ins. Co., 5 R. I. 38. Where the contract restricts the insured to the settled limits of the United States, it covers all regions within the boundaries of the country, whether inhabited or not; Casler v. Ins. Co., 22 N. Y. 427; and a permission to travel by sea in "a first rate vessel" will cover any mode of travel whether by cabin or steerage; Taylor v. Ins. Co., 13 Gray (Mass.) 434.

Equity cannot cancel a life insurance policy for fraud, if brought after death; Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Griesa, 156 Fed. 398; but if brought before the death, it does not abate on the death of the insured; Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Blair, 130 Fed. 971.

Where the insured commits murder, and thereafter assigns a policy on his life and is executed for his crime, his beneficiaries cannot recover on the policy; Burt v. Ins. Co., 187 U. S. 362, 23 Sup. Ct. 139, 47 L. Ed. 216: death by legal execution for crime is not a risk contemplated by the policy; Northwestern Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. McCue, 223 U. S. 234, 32 Sup. Ct. 220, 56 L. Ed. 419, 38 L. R. A. (N. S.) 57; Collins v. Ins. Co., 30 Pa. Co. Ct. R. 257, citing many cases; so where the assignee of a policy causes the death of the association will not bind courts in construing assured by felonious means; Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Armstrong, 117 U. S. 591, 6 Sup. Ct. 877, 29 L. Ed. 997; where the assignee of a beneficiary has murdered the assured, a constructive trust is established for the heirs of the assured; Schmidt v. Life Ass'n, 112 Ia. 41, 83 N. W. 800, 51 L. R. A. 141, 84 Am. St. Rep. 323. Where the insured is convicted and executed for a crime of which he is in fact innocent, insurance on his life is likewise unrecoverable; Burt v. Ins. Co., 105 Fed. 419, 44 C. C. A. 548. But recovery can be had for death of the insured, slain by the husband with whose wife insured was committing adultery; Supreme Lodge K. P. v. Crenshaw, 129 Ga. 195, 58 S. E. 628, 18 L. R. A. (N. S.) 258, 121 Am. St. Rep. 216, 12 Ann. Cas. 307.

The weight of decision has been in favor of the view, that the contract of *life insur-*suce between citizens of different states is not dissolved, but only suspended, by a war between the states; Hamilton v. Ins. Co., 98 Blatchf. 234, Fed. Cas. No. 5,986; Semmes v. Ins. Co., 18 Wall. (U. S.) 159, 20 L. Ed. 490; but, contra, New York Life Ins. Co. v. Statham, 93 U. S. 24, 23 L. Ed. 789.

Tentine. A system of insurance which under various forms is based upon the idea of a loan or investment of property for the benefit of a number of persons, the income at first being divided among all and the shares of members who die passing not to their own legal representatives but to increase the interest of the surviving member. until, at last, after the number of members has gradually diminished by successive deaths, the last survivor takes the whole income, or, if such be the terms agreed upon, the whole principal. The system took its name from Lorenzo Tonti, an Italian of the seventeenth century, who first conceived the idea and put it in practice. Merlin, Report.; Dalloz, Dict.; Schriber v. Rapp, 5 Watts (Pa.) 351, 30 Am. Dec. 327.

A policy of this character was the subject of litigation in the Massachusetts Supreme Court in a case in which the system is illustrated. It was to continue ten years if the insured should so long live, but in case of his death before that time, the dividends would not inure to the benefit of his estate, but be held by the company for the benefit of other policy holders and forfeited by him. The estate of the deceased received only the amount of the policy, which, however, would be forfeited for non-payment of premiums during the tontine term; policies of this character are kept in classes of ten, fifteen, or twenty years, called respectively the tontine periods, and accounts are kept with the funds of each class to ascertain the amount due upon each policy at the expiration of its tontine term, at which time the surplus profits are apportioned equitably among such policies as complete the term; Pierce v. Assurance Society, 145 Mass. 56, 12 N. E. 858, 1 the failure of the company to place all divi-. dends accruing upon a policy in a reserve fund in accordance with the terms of the policy did not excuse the non-performance of his contract by the insured, and a suit by such policy holder for an accounting by the company cannot be maintained on the ground of the failure to keep and invest the fund accruing from the dividends separately; Bogardus v. Ins. Co., 101 N. Y. 328, 4 N. E. 522. No trust relation exists between the company and the insured but it is simply one of contract measured by the terms of the policy; Cohen v. Ins. Co., 50 N. Y. 610, 10 Am. Rep. 522; Hencken v. Ins. Co., 98 N. Y. 627, affirming 11 Daly (N. Y.) 282. The situation of the parties is that of debtor and creditor merely, the amount of the debt being determined by the equitable apportionment to be made by the corporation through its officers; Pierce v. Assur. Soc., 145 Mass. 56, 12 N. E. 858, 1 Am. St. Rep. 433. The apportionment of the fund is not absolutely conclusive upon the policy holders. It is prima facie right, but may be shown to be based on erroneous principles; id.

The holder of a policy who has the option at the expiration of the tontine period to withdraw his share of the surplus is entitled to the inspection of books and papers, and a rule of court authorizing such inspection will be granted in order that he may intelligently exercise his options; Ellinger v. Assur. Soc., 132 Wis. 259, 111 N. W. 567, 11 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1089.

Fire insurance. A contract by which the insurer, in consideration of a certain premium received by him, either in a gross sum or by annual payments, undertakes to indemnify the insured against all loss or damage which he may sustain to a certain amount, in his property mentioned in the policy, by fire during the time agreed upon. Fire insurance is said to be in effect a contract of indemnity against loss or damage suffered by an owner or person having an interest in the property insured. Donnell v. Donnell, 86 Me. 518, 30 Atl. 67.

The principles applying to the subject are, in general, those governing marine policies and other kinds of insurance of property against the various perils which attend its use and ownership, and therefore the point to be mainly considered, as applied to fire insurance alone, is the exact definition of the peril insured against. With respect to the nature of the contract as an indemnity, the necessity of an interest in the property. the policy and the application, the effect of warranties and representations, respectively, and the loss and its adjustment, reference should be had to the discussion of the subject generally, supra, and in the various titles referred to.

policies as complete the term; Pierce v. Assurance Society, 145 Mass. 56, 12 N. E. 858, 1

Am. St. Rep. 433. Under such an insurance actual fire or ignition, and that it is not sufficient that there has been an injurious increase of heat which caused damage to the insured property, while nothing had taken fire which ought not to be on fire. The authority usually relied upon, for this general statement, is the early and leading case of Austin v. Drewe, 6 Taunt. 436, but this case has been much criticised; see Scripture v. Ins. Co., 10 Cush. (Mass.) 356, 57 Am. Dec. 111; 1 Bennett, Fire Ins. Cas. 104; Case v. Ins. Co., 13 Ill. 676; May, Ins. § 402.

There can be no recovery for damage by smoke from a lighted lamp when there is no ignition outside of the lamp; Fitzgerald v. Ins. Co., 30 Misc. 72, 62 N. Y. Supp. 824; or if the smoke proceeded from a fire "out of place," it is no defense that it originated in a fire in the place intended for it; Collins v. Ins. Co., 9 Pa. Super. Ct. 576; and a furnace fire built of unsuitable material, which becomes uncontrollable and develops extraordinary and excessive heat, so as to char woodwork and furniture and generally injure personal property, is a hostile fire, although there is no ignition; O'Connor v. Ins. Co., 140 Wis. 388, 122 N. W. 1038, 1122, 25 L. R. A. (N. S.) 501, 133 Am. St. Rep. 1081, 17 Ann. Cas. 1118. Damage to the interior of a boiler resulting from over-heating and absence of water in the boiler is not covered by a fire policy; American Towing Co. of Baltimore v. Ins. Co., 74 Md. 25, 21 Atl. 553.

A fire in a theatre, caused by the excessive heating of its walls by a fire outside, was held to be covered by the policy; Sohier v. Ins. Co., 11 Allen (Mass.) 336; and when a building is blown up by gunpowder to prevent the spreading of fire, the insurer against fire is liable if, but for being blown up, it would have been burned; City Fire Ins. Co. v. Corlies, 21 Wend. (N. Y.) 367, 34 Am. Dec. 258; Greenwald v. Ins. Co., 3 Phila. (Pa.) 323; Miller v. Ins. Co., 41 Ill. App. 395; L. R. 3 Exch. 71. These cases are distinguished from explosion, which is not fire, within a fire policy, when it occurs some distance off; 19 C. B. N. S. 126; Caballero v. Ins. Co., 15 La. Ann. 217; even though it was caused by fire; id.; and when the explosion is within the building, there must be ignition to bring it within the fire insurance; St. John v. Ins. Co., 11 N. Y. 516; but damage from fire caused by explosion on the premises is covered; Scripture v. Ins. Co., 10 Cush. (Mass.) 356, 57 Am. Dec. 111; Renshaw v. Ins. Co., 103 Mo. 595, 15 S. W. 945, 23 Am. St. Rep. 904; (unless it is expressly excepted; Greenwald v. Ins. Co., 3 Phila. [Pa.] 323); so also if the damage is from explosion caused by fire, as where a steamboat was burned as the result of an explosion of gunpowder; Waters v. Ins. Co., 11 Pet. (U. S.) 213, 9 L. Ed. 691; or when coals were thrown out of the stove; Daws v. Ins. Co., 127 Mass. 346, 34 Am. Rep. 384. In this case the policy contained the provision that "if a building shall surance should cease; and this was held to apply to inherent defects in the building. And when, under a similar policy "against fire originating in any case," there occurred an explosion and loss, it was held immaterial whether the fire resulted in combustion or explosion; Renshaw v. Ins. Co., 83 Mo. App. 394

Although a fire is raging in an adjacent building and at the time of the expiration of the policy a loss is inevitable, yet if, in fact, no fire has broken out at such expiration, there can be no recovery; Rochester German Ins. Co. v. Peasler Co., 120 Ky. 752, 87 S. W. 1115, 27 Ky. L. Rep. 1155, 1 L. R. A. (N. S.) 364, 9 Ann. Cas. 324.

A loss by reason of fire started by an explosion caused by a fire coming in contact with escaping gas was not within a policy which excepted loss by reason of or resulting from any explosion whatever; 2 Ins. L. J. 190. When damages by explosion are excepted unless caused by fire, the insurer is held liable only for the result of fire and not of the explosion which caused it; L. R. 3 Exch. 71; or by one caused by fire in its course; id.; contra, Washburn v. Ins. Co., 2 Fed. 633; Transatlantic Fire Ins. Co. of Hamburg v. Dorsey, 56 Md. 70, 40 Am. Rep. 403.

Though a fire policy provides that there shall be no recovery for loss caused by earth-quakes, the insured can recover for damage from a fire originally caused by an earth-quake; Williamsburgh City Fire Ins. Co. v. Willard, 164 Fed. 404, 90 C. C. A. 392, 21 L. R. A. (N. S.) 103.

A fire in a chimney, caused by accidental ignition of soot, or smoke issuing from such fire, is within a policy covering all loss or damage by fire to all goods contained in the building; Way v. Ins. Co., 166 Mass. 67, 43 N. E. 1032, 32 L. R. A. 608, 55 Am. St. Rep. 379. So also a loss by spontaneous combustion was held to be within a fire policy; 9 L. C. Q. B. 448; but see a criticism of this case in Providence Washington Ins. Co. v. Adler, 65 Md. 162, 4 Atl. 121, 57 Am. Rep. 314. Where a policy insures against explosion and accident and there was an exception of explosion or loss caused by the burning of the building, a destruction of the property by an explosion caused by raising a cloud of starch dust in an endeavor to extinguish flames was held a fire loss and not within the policy; American Steam Boiler Ins. Co. v. Refining Co., 57 Fed. 294, 6 C. C. A. 336, 21 L. R. A. 572.

also if the damage is from explosion caused by fire, as where a steamboat was burned as the result of an explosion of gunpowder; Waters v. Ins. Co., 11 Pet. (U. S.) 213, 9 L. Ed. 691; or when coals were thrown out of the stove; Daws v. Ins. Co., 127 Mass. 346, 34 Am. Rep. 384. In this case the policy contained the provision that "if a building shall fall, except as the result of a fire," the in-fire; but a company authorized to take fire risks is not thereby authorized to insure against lightning; Andrews v. Ins. Co., 37 Me. 256. A policy of insurance against lightning was held to cover destruction by tornado when the former accompanied the latter; Spensley v. Ins. Co., 54 Wis. 433, 11 N. W. 894.

Under a lightning clause attached to a fire policy, on horses "contained in" a barn, the insurer was held liable for a brood mare pasturing in a field. The policy against loss by lightning was said to be a contract of insurance of a peculiar kind, which must be construed in a reasonable, common-sense view, and so as not to reduce the contract to an absurdity; Haws v. Fire Ass'n, 114 Pa. 431, 7 Atl. 159; in this case the insurance was on horses alone, and, on that ground, they were distinguished in a later case, in which the policy embraced also property kept in a barn, other than live stock, and the company was held not liable for a horse killed by lightning while in pasture; Haws v. Ins. Co., 130 Pa. 113, 15 Atl. 915, 18 Atl. 621, 2 L R. A. 52.

Where an insurance policy excepts loss caused directly or indirectly by fire it is an accident, and not a fire, policy, and the complaint must show that the loss was not caused directly or indirectly by fire; Western Refrigerator Co. v. Ins. & Sec. Co., 51 Fed. 155.

When the insurance was against loss by "fire or storm," it did not cover damage by a freshet caused by melting snow with prevailing south winds and rain; Stover v. Ins. Co., 3 Phila. (Pa.) 38.

The exception of "loss by fire occasioned by mobs or riots," does not extend to a loss from the burning of a bridge by military authorities in time of war; Harris v. Ins. Co., 50 Pa. 341; of the risks of this class, usurped power is not an ordinary mob but a rebellious one or one having political purpose; 2 Wilson 363; it is "rebellion conducted by authority;" Lord Mansfield in Langdale v. Mason, 2 Marsh. Ins. 792; but it is not necessary that the destruction be commanded by a superior officer; Barton v. Ins. Co. of New York, 42 Mo. 156, 97 Am. Dec. 329; insurrection is "a seditious rising against the government, a rebellion, a revolt;" Spruill v. Life Ins. Co., 46 N. C. 126; and a riot is "where three or more persons actually do an unlawful act, either with or without a common cause . . . the intention with which the parties assemble, or at least act, being unlawful;" id.; but in another case it was held that the destruction of property in a riot is within the exception even if the rioters assembled originally for a lawful purpose; Dupin v. Ins. Co., 5 La.

The exemption of loss "by explosion of any kind, by means of invasion," etc., means by caused by invasion; Smiley v. Ins. Co., 14 W. Va. 33.

See Civil Commotion; Insurfection; In-VASION; MOB; RIOT; USURPED POWER.

Losses caused by the effort made to prevent the destruction of property by fire must be borne by the insurers and not by the insured; Agnew v. Ins. Co., 3 Phila. (Pa.) 193; as by water; Lewis v. Ins. Co., 10 Gray (Mass.) 159; or theft; Independent Mut. Ins. Co. v. Agnew, 34 Pa. 96, 75 Am. Dec. 638; Witherell v. Ins. Co., 49 Me. 200; Newmark v. Fire & Life Ins. Co., 30 Mo. 160, 77 Am. Dec. 608; unless expressly excluded; Fernandez v. Ins. Co., 17 La. Ann. 131; or removal when required by due diligence, according to the circumstances; Brady v. Ins. Co., 11 Mich. 425; Case v. Fire Ins. Co., 13 Ill. 676; (but see Hillier v. Ins. Co., 3 Pa. 470, 45 Am. Dec. 656); or falling of walls after an interval of a day; 7 Sc. Sess. Cas., 1st ser. 52; but the fire must be the proximate cause; Nave v. Ins. Co., 37 Mo. 429, 90 Am. Dec. 394. See Lewis v. Ins. Co., 10 Gray (Mass.) 159.

Insurance against fire covers a loss by the negligence of the insured not amounting to fraud; Cumberland Val. Mut. Protection Co. v. Douglas, 58 Pa. 419, 98 Am. Dec. 298. The contract of fire insurance is to be construed with reference to the laws of the state in which the property is situated and the policy issued; King Brick Mfg. Co. v. Ins. Co., 164 Mass. 291, 41 N. E. 277; Perry v. Ins. Co., 67 N. H. 291, 33 Atl. 731, 68 Am. St. Rep. 668.

An insane person cannot be held, in setting fire to his property, to have had such a fraudulent or wrongful design as to defeat the insurance thereon, though his estate may afterwards be called upon to respond for the act; D'Autremont v. Fire Ass'n, 65 Hun 475, 20 N. Y. Supp. 344; Bindell v. Ins. Co., 128 Ky. 389, 108 S. W. 325, 17 L. R. A. (N. S.) 189, 129 Am. St. Rep. 303.

Marine Insurance. A contract of indemnity by which one party, for a stipulated premium, undertakes to indemnify the other. to the extent of the amount insured, against all perils of the sea, or certain enumerated perils, to which his ship, cargo, and freight, or some of them, may be exposed during a certain voyage or fixed period of time.

A contract of indemnity (not perfect but approximate; 1 H. L. Cas. 287; 4 App. Cas. 755); against all losses accruing to the subject-matter of the policy from certain perils during the adventure. This subject-matter need not be strictly a property in the ship. goods, or freight; 2 B. & P. N. R. 269; L. R. 7 Q. B. 302; any reasonable expectation of pecuniary profit from the preservation of the subject-matter is insurable as a marine risk; as, where the joint owners of a vessel and cargo engaged in a joint adventure have a lien for their several interests and for advancements, each part-owner had an insurexplosion and invasion, etc., not explosion able interest in the joint venture; International Marine Ins. Co. v. Winsmore, 124 Pa. 61, 16 Atl. 516.

The insured must have a lawful interest at the time of the loss. See Insurable Interest.

The contract is one recognized by the general law and usage of nations, and therefore either native or alien may be insured. was settled in England after much judicial discussion (and some temporary legislation) that the insurance of enemy's property is illegal; 13 Ves. 64; see 3 Kent 254. same rule was recognized by continental jurists; id. 255; Val. Com. ii. 32; and in this country; Griswold v. Waddington, 16 Johns. (N. Y.) 438, where the subject was extensively discussed, and it is said that "it may be considered the established law of this country;" 3 Kent 256. Such contracts, made before the outbreak of war, are annulled by it; Snow, Lect. Int. L. 101.

Insurance by British underwriters of a foreign subject's treasure which is later captured by the foreign government of the insured, though war is afterwards declared between the two governments, is valid even though the seizure is made in contemplation of war and in order to support the war; [1902] A. C. 484, affirming [1901] 2 K. B. 419; [1900] 2 Q. B. 339; so where the treasure belongs to a British subject insured by British underwriters but situated in a foreign hostile country; [1901] 2 K. B. 849.

It may also be in favor of A, or whom it may concern, but those general words will only apply to a person with an interest in the subject and who was in the contemplation of the contract; Bauduy v. Ins. Co., 2 Wash. C. C. 391, Fed. Cas. No. 1,112; Hooper v. Robinson, 98 U. S. 528, 25 L. Ed. 219; Duncan v. Ins. Co., 129 N. Y. 237, 29 N. E. 76; if such person has authorized or adopted it; Sanders v. Ins. Co., 44 N. H. 238. intention of the insurer need not have fastened upon the very person, who seeks to take the benefit; an intention covers a person who takes such relation to the insurer as brings him within the clauses of the policy; Duncan v. Ins. Co., 129 N. Y. 237, 29 N. E. 76. See Haynes v. Rowe, 40 Me. 181. The insurance "on advances" is distinct from the ship itself; Providence Washington Ins. Co. v. Bowring, 50 Fed. 613, 1 C. C. A. 583, 1 U. S. App. 183.

As to who may be insurers in a marine policy there is no special rule.

An insurance on a ship named makes the latter a part of the contract and no other can be substituted, but a cargo may be changed from one ship to another; 3 Kent 257; and the master may be changed; Walden v. Ins. Co., 12 Johns. (N. Y.) 138. An insurance on the ship includes everything appurtenant to it; Boulay-Paty iii. 379; 1 Term 611, note. An insurance on goods need not name the ship, but may be "on any ship or ships;" Emer. i. 173; 2 H. Bla. 343.

Marine policies in England and this country usually contain the words "lost or not lost," and in such case they cover losses already accrued as well as future ones; Commercial Ins. Co. v. Hallock, 27 N. J. L. 645, 72 Am. Dec. 379. It is so without the words in other foreign countries; Roccus, de Ass. n. 51; 3 Kent 259; and it was said by Story, J., that "It would be so without reference to the words"; Hammond v. Allen, 2 Summ. 397, Fed. Cas. No. 6,000.

The most perfect good faith is required in this contract with respect to representations, warranties, and concealment, as to all of which see the several titles.

The insured is required both to pay the premium, and to represent fully and fairly all the circumstances relating to his subject-matter of the insurance, which may influence the determination of the underwriters in undertaking the risk or estimating the premium. A concealment of such facts amounts to a fraud, which avoids the contract; 8 Kent 282.

Where a policy covers a loss by perils of the sea or other perils, the insured may recover for a loss occasioned by the negligence of the master or crew or other persons employed by him; Copeland v. Ins. Co., 2 Metc. (Mass.) 432; General Mut. Ins. Co. v. Sherwood, 14 How. (U. S.) 351, 14 L. Ed. 452; L. R. 4 C. P. 117; Phœnix Ins. Co. v. Transp. Co., 117 U. S. 323, 6 Sup. Ct. 1176, 29 L. Ed. 873.

Perils and Loss. Insurance on goods carried on deck of an inland river steamer, according to custom, and lost, may be recovered; [1904] 1 K. B. 252; but there can be no recovery for loss occurring as a result of pushing through dangerous ice by the master of the vessel; Standard Marine Ins. Co. v. Transp. Co., 133 Fed. 636, 67 C. C. A. 602, 1 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1095.

As to the perils insured against generally, see Perils of the Sea; Risks and Perils; and as to the different kinds of marine policies, see Policy, Loss.

If, before the termination of the adventure, the assured has parted with all interest in the subject-matter of the insurance, he cannot recover on any loss subsequent to his transfer of the property; L. R. 7 Q. B. 302; and the insurer can take nothing by subrogation but the rights of the assured; Hall v. R. Co., 13 Wall. (U. S.) 367, 20 L. Ed. 594; The Potomac, 105 U. S. 630, 26 L. Ed. 1194; Mobile & M. Ry. Co. v. Jurey, 111 U. S. 584, 4 Sup. Ct. 566, 28 L. Ed. 527.

Sue and Labor Clause. This clause, common to all marine policies, protects the assured in times of danger and allows him to incur expenses for repairs or salvage up to the value of the property saved without affecting his rights under the policy. See 22 L. Q. R. 406.

England codified marine insurance in 1906.

Accident Insurance. That form of insurance which provides for specified payments in case of an accident resulting in bodily injury or death, as distinguished from casualty insurance, which is a term applied to insurance against loss or damage to property occasioned by accident. Employers' Liability Assur. Corp. v. Merrill, 155 Mass. 404, 29 N. E. 529. A foreign corporation, although an accident insurance company, has been held authorized to issue "horse or vehicle policies," "elevator policies," "general liability policies," and "outside liability policies;" id.

Accident insurance is intended to furnish indemnity against accidents and death caused by accidental means, and the language of the policy must be construed with reference to that proposition. In case of doubt the construction should be liberal in favor of the insured; Healey v. Acc. Ass'n, 133 Ill. 556, 25 N. E. 52, 9 L. R. A. 371, 23 Am. St. Rep. 637.

Accident policies have been held to cover death from shock and physical strain resulting from being run away with in a covered carriage, where there was no mark of physical injury nor contact with any physical object; McGlinchey v. Casualty Co., 80 Me. 251, 14 Atl. 13, 6 Am. St. Rep. 190; and see [1896] 2 Q. B. 248; suicide by an insane man; Accident Ins. Co. v. Crandal, 120 U. S. 527, 7 Sup. Ct. 685, 30 L. Ed. 740; death from drowning; 5 H. & N. 211; s. c., on appeal, 6 id. 839; falling into the water in a fit; 22 L. T. N. S. 820; 6 Q. B. Div. 42; death from inhaling illuminating gas; Paul v. Ins. Co., 112 N. Y. 472, 20 N. E. 347, 3 L. R. A. 443, 8 Am. St. Rep. 758; Fidelity & Casualty Co. of N. Y. v. Waterman, 59 Ill. App. 297; Pickett v. Ins. Co., 144 Pa. 79, 22 Atl. 871, 13 L. R. A. 661, 27 Am. St. Rep. 618; U. S. Mut. Acc. Ass'n v. Newman, 84 Va. 52, 3 S. E. 805; by taking poison; Healey v. Accident Ass'n, 133 Ill. 556, 25 N. E. 52, 9 L. R. A. 371, 22 Am. St. Rep. 637; or an overdose of medicine; Penfold v. Ins. Co., 85 N. Y. 319, 39 Am. Rep. 660; Northwestern Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Hazelett, 105 Ind. 212, 4 N. E. 582, 55 Am. Rep. 192; death caused by a piece of beefsteak passing into the windpipe while eating; American Accident Co. v. Reigart, 94 Ky. 547, 23 S. W. 191, 21 L. R. A. 651, 42 Am. St. Rep. 374; death from blood-poisoning, caused by the bite of a mosquito (although poison was expressly excepted); Omberg v. Accident Ass'n, 101 Ky. 303, 40 S. W. 909, 72 Am. St. Rep. 413; falling into the water as the result of a wound; Mallory v. Ins. Co., 47 N. Y. 52, 7 Am. Rep. 410; falling on a railroad track in a fit and being run over; 7 Q. B. Div. 216; being struck by the handle of a pitchfork while making hay and having peritonitis as a result of it; North American Life & Acc. Ins. Co. v. Burroughs, 69 Pa. 43, lifting a heavy weight; 1 F. & F. 505; being attacked and killed by a highwayman; Hutchcraft's Ex'r v. Ins. Co., 87 Ky. 300, 8 S. W. 570, 12 Am. St. Rep. 484; accidental shooting by a deputy sheriff who did not know at whom he was shooting and did not intend to kill the assured (there being an exception of death from design either of the insured or another person); Utter v. Ins. Co., 65 Mich. 545, 32 N. W. 812, 8 Am. St. Rep. 918; hernia resulting from an accidental fall (although the policy excluded hernia); 17 C. B. N. S. 122; rupture of a blood-vessel sustained while exercising with Indian clubs; McCarthy v. Ins. Co., 8 Biss. 362, Fed. Cas. No. 8,682; falling from the cars while walking during sleep; Scheiderer v. Ins. Co., 58 Wis. 13, 16 N. W. 47, 46 Am. Rep. 618.

Stepping out of a railway carriage when it has come to a full stop at a station and slipping off the iron step, thereby sustaining injuries, is a railway accident; 10 Exch. 45; death caused by blood poisoning resulting from an accidental cut is within the provision of external violence and accidental means; Central Accident Ins. Co. v. Rembe, 220 III. 151, 77 N. E. 123, 5 L. R. A. (N. S.) 933, 110 Am. St. Rep. 235, 5 Ann. Cas. 155; or from an accidental abrasion of the skin followed by bacterial infection; Cary v. Ins. Co., 127 Wis. 67, 106 N. W. 1055, 115 Am. St. Rep. 997, 9 Ann. Cas. 484; Jones v. Casualty Co., 140 N. C. 262, 52 S. E. 578, 5 L. R. A. (N. S.) 932, 111 Am. St. Rep. 843; contra, where there is an exemption of liability for death resulting from poisoning; McGlother v. Accident Co., 89 Fed. 685, 32 C. C. A. 318; Hill v. Ins. Co., 22 Hun (N. Y.) 187; and so where blood poisoning results from a wound in the hand caused by assaulting another; Fidelity & Casualty Co. of New York v. Stacey's Ex'rs, 143 Fed. 271, 74 C. C. A. 409, 5 L. R. A. (N. S.) 657, 6 Ann. Cas. 955; and death by accidental asphyxiation under an exemption from liability for death caused by gas or vapor; Travelers' Ins. Co. v. Ayers, 217 III, 391, 75 N. E. 506, 2 L. R. A. (N. S.) 168; but there may be a recovery for periostitis caused by pressure on the bones of the hand during sleep; Ætna Life Ins. Co. v. Fitzgerald, 165 Ind. 317, 75 N. E. 262, 1 L. R. A. (N. S.) 422, 112 Am. St. Rep. 232, 6 Ann. Cas. 551.

caused by the bite of a mosquito (although poison was expressly excepted); Omberg v. Accident Ass'n, 101 Ky. 303, 40 S. W. 909, 72 Am. St. Rep. 413; falling into the water as the result of a wound; Mallory v. Ins. Co., 47 N. Y. 52, 7 Am. Rep. 410; falling on a railroad track in a fit and being run over; 7 C. B. Div. 216; being struck by the handle of a pitchfork while making hay and having peritonitis as a result of it; North American Life & Acc. Ins. Co. v. Burroughs, 69 Pa. 43, 8 Am. Rep. 212; spraining the back while it a sufficient answer that the gas in the atmosphere as an extraordinary cause was a violent agency in the sense that it worked on the intestate so as to cause his death; that death is the result of accident or is unnatural, imports the extraordinary and violent agency of the cause;" Paul v. Ins. Co., 112 N. Y. 472, 20 N. E. 347, 3 L. R. A. 443, 8 Am. St. Rep. 758. The view which these courts considered untenable was, however, taken by the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania on a policy exactly similar. The court said: "The object of the company is to insure bodily injuries produced in a certain manner specified, that is, caused by external, violent, and accidental means; not injuries caused by any one of these means, but by all of them combined;" Pollock v. Acc. Ass'n, 102 Pa. 230, 48 Am. Rep. 204; but this language seems to be a dictum, because there was a condition in the policy excepting death or injury caused by the taking of poison, and the point of the case was that an involuntary taking of poison by mistake was within the exception; but in a New York case of death from inhaling gas there was also a proviso excepting death caused by inhaling gas, and the court construed it "to mean a voluntary and intelligent act by the assured and not an involuntary and unconscious act;" Paul v. Ins. Co., 112 N. Y. 472, 20 N. E. 347, 3 L. R. A. 443, 8 Am. St. Rep. 758. This case and the Pennsylvania case are therefore in direct opposition on the construction of the condition, and the former was decided after consideration of and with express dissent from the latter.

An exception that if the insured should die by his own hand, sane or insane, the policy should be void, "covers all conscious acts of the insured by which death by his own hand is compassed, whether he was at the time sane or insane, if the act was done for the purpose of self-destruction, it matters not that the insured had no conception of the wrong involved in its performance;" Streeter v. Acc. Soc., 65 Mich. 199, 31 N. W. 779, 8 Am. St. Rep. 882. In this case it was held that whether a fall six weeks before the insured shot himself was the cause of the killing was too conjectural to be submitted to the jury as a direct cause of the suicide. See Causa Proxima.

It has been held that death was not the result of accident within the meaning of the policy where it was occasioned by epilepsy; Tennant v. Ins. Co., 31 Fed. 322; sunstroke; 3 El. & El. 478; rupture caused by jumping from a train where nothing unforeseen happened from the time the insured left the platform to the time he alighted on the ground; Southard v. Assur. Co., 34 Conn. 574, Fed. Cas. No. 13,182; United States Mut. Acc. Ass'n v. Barry, 131 U. S. 100, 9 Sup. Ct. 755, 33 L. Ed. 60.

Where the insured was assassinated, there was not a voluntary exposure to unnecessacould be no recovery under a policy which ry danger was discussed with reference to a excepted death or injury inflicted by design of himself or another; Travellers' Ins. Co. v. McConkey, 127 U. S. 661, 8 Sup. Ct. 1360, 32 L. Ed. 308; Hutchcraft's Ex'r v. Ins. Co., 87 Ky. 300, 8 S. W. 570, 12 Am. St. Rep. 484; but where the death was the result of an accident, the fact that the negligence of the assured may have contributed to it is no defence in the absence of an express stipulation in the policy to that effect; Schneider v. Ins. Co., 24 Wis. 28, 1 Am. Rep. 157; Providence Life Ins. & Inv. Co. of Chicago v. Martin, 32 Md. 310; Champlin v. Assur. Co., 6 Lans. (N. Y.) 71.

Accident policies usually cover the risk incident to a specific occupation, a substantial change of which will, if it increase the risk, render the policy void. Such a stipulation is held to mean engaging in another employment as a usual business; Provident Life Ins. Co. v. Fennell, 49 Ill. 180; but it was not such a change for a school teacher while disengaged to be employed in building operations; id.; or for one to engage in pitching hay while visiting his grandfather; North American Life & Accident Ins. Co. v. Burroughs, 69 Pa. 43, 8 Am. Rep. 212; or for a locomotive engineer to climb over the tender to apply the brakes on a car; Providence Life Ins. Co. & Investment Co. of Chicago v. Martin, 32 Md. 310. In all such cases the question what is a substantial change of occupation is to be left to the jury; Stone's Adm'rs v. Casualty Co., 34 N. J. L.

The expression "voluntary exposure to unnecessary danger," used in stating the exceptions to the liability of an insurance company upon an accident policy, refers only to dangers of a real and substantial character which the insured recognized, but to which he, nevertheless, purposely and consciously exposed himself, intending at the same time to assume all the risks of the situation. Voluntary riding upon the platform of a rapidly moving railroad car is not, of itself and as a matter of law, a voluntary exposure to unnecessary danger and presents a question of fact for the jury. Where an accident insurance policy exempts the insurer from liability for injuries received while violating rules of a corporation, the question is for the jury as to whether the insured knew of a rule of the corporation which he is alleged to have violated, and the court should charge that in order to bind insured, it must be one which the corporation enforced or used reasonable effort to enforce; Travellers' Ins. Co. v. Randolph, 78 Fed. 754, 24 C. C. A. 305; opinion by Harlan, J., considering all the cases at length; and see 7 Am. L. Rev. 590, where the question whether death from freezing while climbing Mount Blanc was or was not a voluntary exposure to unnecessacase in which the point was raised but not settled, the suit being compromised.

In an exception prohibiting exposure to obvious or unnecessary danger and requiring diligence on the part of the assured, there can be no recovery where death was caused by being struck by a railroad train while running along the tracks in front of it in the night-time for the purpose of getting on a train approaching in an opposite direction on a parallel track; Tuttle v. Ins. Co., 134 Mass. 175, 45 Am. Rep. 316; nor where it was caused by falling from the platform of a railroad car between eleven and twelve o'clock at night when the train was in motion; Sawtelle v. Pass. Assur. Co., 15 Blatchf. 216, Fed. Cas. No. 12,392; or from unnecessarily passing on a dark and rainy night over a trestle known to be dangerous with two packages in his hands, although it was the usual route home of the assured and many others; Travelers' Ins. Co. v. Jones, 80 Ga. 541, 7 S. E. 83, 12 Am. St. Rep. 270; or where a shop hand of a railway company went on the platform when the train was in motion to leave the train when it should stop to cross over by a switch to another track (the exception not being applicable to the exposure of railway employes in the performance of their duty); Hull v. Acc. Ass'n, 41 Minn. 231, 42 N. W. 936; but where the insured by a voluntary act exposed himself to a hidden danger, the existence of which he had no reason to suspect, and thereby lost his life, his death was caused by accident and the company is liable; Burkhard v. Ins. Co., 102 Pa. 262, 48 Am. Rep. 205; a clause prohibiting voluntary exposure to unnecessary danger does not prohibit one from walking or being on a railway bridge or road-bed; Traders' & Travelers' Acc. Co. v. Wagley, 74 Fed. 457, 20 C. C. A. 588; Lehman v. Indemnity Co., 7 App. Div. 424, 39 N. Y. Supp. 912; see also where a passenger is overcome by the heat of the car, or nausea, and goes upon the platform; Marx v. Ins. Co., 39 Fed. 321; or getting from the platform at a depot upon the cars while in motion at a rate of speed less than that of a man walking; Schneider v. Ins. Co., 24 Wis. 28; going to the rescue of a shipwrecked crew, although the policy prohibited the insured from engaging in the business of wrecking; Tucker v. Ins. Co., 50 Hun 50, 4 N. Y. Supp. 505. Playing indoor baseball is not a voluntary exposure to danger; Hunt v. Accident Ass'n, 146 Mich. 521. 109 N. W. 1042, 9 L. R. A. (N. S.) 938, 119 Am. St. Rep. 655, 10 Ann. Cas. 449.

The exception against death or injury happening while the insured was intoxicated, or in consequence thereof, prevents a recovery, without reference to the question whether the condition was the cause of the injury or not; Standard Life & Accident Ins. Co. v. Jones, 94 Ala. 434, 10 South. 530; Shader v. Co., Assur. Co., 66 N. Y. 441, 23 Am. Rep. 65; as, 863.

where the deceased, being under the influence of liquor, was killed by a pistol shot while dining with a friend; id. To be under the influence of intoxicating liquor within the meaning of such exception means to have drunk enough to disturb the action of the mental and physical faculties so that they are no longer in their normal condition; id.; the expression is equivalent to "intoxicated"; Standard Life & Accident Ins. Co. v. Jones, 94 Ala. 434, 10 South. 530.

Where the death was caused by inadvertently taking an overdose of opium which had been prescribed by a physician, it was held within the exception of any death caused wholly or in part by medical treatment for disease; Bayless v. Travelers' Ins. Co., 14 Blatchf. 143, Fed. Cas. No. 1,138.

The question frequently arises what is total disability for which the policy entitles the insured to claim indemnity. In an English case in which this question was much discussed, it was held that a solicitor who had sprained his ankle while riding on horseback and was under the care of a surgeon for six weeks, unable to leave the house or transact business which could not be attended to in the house, but could write letters, read law, and the like while lying on a couch, was not totally disabled; 5 H. & N. 546. judgment was affirmed in Exchequer Chamber. The provision in this and similar cases is usually for a weekly allowance in case of accident causing any bodily injury of so serious a nature as wholly to disable the insured from following his business. Under such a clause total disability to labor must be shown; Rhodes v. Ins. Co., 5 Lans. (N. Y.) 71; by it is meant disability from doing substantially all kinds of the plaintiff's accustomed labor to some extent, and that the assured must be deprived of the power to do to any extent substantially all the kinds of his usual labor; 8 Am. Law Reg. N. S. 233; where the provision was for total disability there could be no recovery if the assured were able to do some parts of the accustomed work pertaining to his business or, if totally disabled in his own pursuit, he should be able to engage in some other; Lyon v. Assur. Co., 46 Ia. 631.

Where the provision was that the injured must be "wholly disabled to prevent him from the prosecution of any and every kind of business pertaining to his occupation," it was held error to instruct the jury that the defendant was to pay the amount agreed, if by the accident the plaintiff had been disabled in any way from prosecuting the business in which he was engaged, and that the plaintiff was entitled to recover for such time as he was "rendered wholly unable to do his accustomed labor, that is, to do substantially all kinds of his accustomed labor to some extent;" Saveland v. Fidelity & Casualty Co., 67 Wis. 174, 30 N. W. 237, 58 Am. Rep. 863.

It has been held that the meaning of the word accident, as used in a policy, is for the jury, as it is also to determine whether there was exposure to unnecessary danger; Travelers' Preferred Acc. Ass'n v. Stone, 50 Ill. App. 222; or whether the total loss of three fingers and a part of another on the same hand, destruction of the thumb, and a cutting of the hand is a loss of the hand causing "immediate, continuous, and total disability" within the meaning of that clause in an accident insurance policy; Lord v. Acc. Ass'n, 89 Wis. 19, 61 N. W. 293, 26 L. R. A. 741, 46 Am. St. Rep. 815; and see Sneck v. Ins. Co., 88 Hun 94, 34 N. Y. Supp. 545, where the plaintiff's hand was cut off a short distance above the knuckles, leaving nearly the whole palm and part of the second joint of the thumb, and it was held to be a loss of the entire hand within the meaning of the policy; overruling Sneck v. Ins. Co., 81 Hun 331, 30 N. Y. Supp. 881. See REPRESENTA-TION; ACT OF GOD.

A provision in a policy that the medical adviser of the insurer may examine the body of the insured or attend any post mortem examination which may be held, only authorizes examination of the body unburied and does not warrant exhumation and autopsy, nor does an exception of injuries of which there is no visible mark; Wehle v. Acc. Ass'n, 11 Misc. 36, 31 N. Y. Supp. 865.

See, generally, Cook, L. & Acc. Ins.; Niblack, Mut. Ben. & Acc. Insurance.

Casualty Insurance. A contract by which a person is indemnified against loss or damage to property, occasioned by accident. The term is thus applied in contradistinction to accident insurance by the Massachusetts Supreme Court, in Employers' Liability Assur. Corp. v. Merrill, 155 Mass. 404, 29 N. E. 529. The question was whether a foreign company licensed to do business in the state, but by statute restricted to one kind or class of business, was authorized to issue policies covering special classes of accidents, involving bodily injury and death. In this connection the court said: "The distinguishing feature of what is known in our legislation as 'accident insurance' is that it indemnifies against the effects of accidents resulting in bodily injury or death. Its field is not to insure against loss or damage to property, although occasioned by accident. So far as that class of insurance has been developed, it has been with reference to boilers, plate glass, and perhaps to domestic animals and injuries to property by street cars, and is known as 'casualty insurance."

The distinction is founded in reason and the terminology is well adapted to the subject. Its precision is in sharp contrast to the vagueness and want of definiteness which characterize the references of text writers and judges to the various forms of insurance which have come into use with the increase in number of perils to life and property.

Among the perils covered by this kind of insurance are included: the loss of horses and cattle, theft of valuables, breakage of plate glass, loss by tornadoes or force of the elements, explosion or bursting of boilers, etc. These policies usually stipulate certain exceptions against which they will not insure, as fire and lightning; but such a policy was held to cover a loss by flood; Hey v. Indemnity Co., 181 Pa. 220, 37 Atl. 402, 59 Am. St. Rep. 644. An exception against loss caused by leakage resulting from earthquakes or cyclones will cover leakage caused by a wind storm which resembles a tornado more than a cyclone; Maryland Casualty Co. v. Finch, 147 Fed. 388, 77 C. C. A. 566, 8 L. R. A. (N. S.) 308.

A carrier may lawfully insure against liability for loss of goods occasioned by the negligence of a servant; Minneapolis, St. P. & S. S. M. R. Co. v. Ins. Co., 64 Minn. 61, 66 N. W. 132; in such a case the liability of the insured becomes fixed on the happening of the accident, although the amount is contingent, to the extent that the amount which the insured may be adjudged to pay has not yet been ascertained; American Casualty Ins. Company's Case, 82 Md. 535, 34 Atl. 778, 38 L. R. A. 97.

A policy against loss or damage to property, and loss of life or injury to employes of the insured or other persons, payable to the insured for the benefit of such persons or their legal representatives, is a contract of indemnity, and a person who is injured by such explosion cannot sue the insurer; Embler v. Ins. Co., 8 App. Div. 186, 40 N. Y. Supp. 450.

In a policy on live stock the insurer is estopped to deny that the sum named in the policy is the insurable value of the horse; Illinois Live Stock Ins. Co. v. Koehler, 58 Where the policy covering Ill. App. 557. "two horses" was cancelled as to one, the insured may show that it was cancelled as to a mare covered by the policy; Pfeifer v. Ins. Co., 62 Minn. 536, 64 N. W. 1018. The provision for notice to the insurer by telegram, of the sickness of an animal, did not require such notice of a sickness which lasted only ten minutes and did not recur for seven weeks; Kells v. Ins. Co., 64 Minn. 390, 67 N. W. 215, 71 N. W. 5, 58 Am. St. Rep. 541. Where the insured had given notes for the horse, and in his contract for purchase stipulated that in case of the death of the animal within a certain time the vendor should take the insurance and give up the notes, it was not a breach of the stipulation in the policy that the vendee "is the sole, absolute, and unconditional owner;" id. The insurer is not bound by the consent of his agent to kill the horse insured, although suffering from an incurable disease: Tripp v. Live-Stock Ins. Co., 91 Ia. 278, 59 N. W. 1.

Where plate glass was insured and the insurer, exercising his option, employed a that purpose to replace it (the policy providing that the insured should when necessary remove any woodwork, gas fixtures, or other obstruction), the negligent removal of gas pipes by the contractor and a resulting explosion causing a breakage of the new glass, did not render the insurer liable; Mc-Cauley v. Casualty Co., 16 Misc. 574, 38 N. Y. Supp. 773.

Credit Insurance. A contract by which the insured is indemnified against loss by the failure of his customers to pay for goods sold to them. It is insurance against excess loss by the insured, i. e. against a loss which is in excess of a specified percentage of gross sales. It usually limits the losses insured against to a fixed amount by reason of sales to any one person, and limits the sales, covered by the policy, to customers having at least a specified minimum commercial rating by a specified commercial agency. It usually provides for an initial loss to be borne by the insured.

The insured is frequently termed the "indemnified," and so referred to in the policy. Such contract is not a contract of suretyship, but a policy of insurance; Tebbets v. Guarantee Co., 73 Fed. 95, 19 C. C. A. 281; Shakman v. Credit Co., 92 Wis. 366, 66 N. W. 528, 32 L. R. A. 383, 53 Am. St. Rep. 920; Mercantile Credit & Guaranty Co. v. Littleford Bros., 18 Ohio Cir. Ct. 889; and to be construed most strongly against the insurer; id.

It is like any other insurance contract and is governed largely by the same rules; Wadsworth v. Jewelers Co., 132 N. Y. 540, 29 N. E. 1104; Claffin v. Credit Co., 165 Mass. 501, 43 N. E. 293, 52 Am. St. Rep. 528. The agent who solicits it is within the purview of a statute making him the agent of the insurer; Shakman v. Credit Co., 92 Wis. 366, 66 N. W. 528, 32 L. R. A. 383, 53 Am. St. Rep. 920.

There is a distinction between this loss and other kinds of insurance with respect to the value of the policy, which has been thus stated: The loss provable on a policy of insurance is ordinarily the reserve value of the policy, or the amount sufficient to reinsure the holder in a solvent company for the same amount, to be paid upon a loss happening on the same conditions and within the same time. Credit insurance is peculiar; there does not appear to be any reserve value to the policies, nor are there any general tables to show the rate of reinsurance, nor any other solvent company in which re-insurance could be obtained. When no losses occurred it may be assumed that the premium is a fair price for the risk, and the loss may be taken to be a proportionate part of the premium. When actual losses have been sustained after the person with whom he had a contract for | may be accepted as evidence of the value of the policy; Duryee v. Credit Co. (N. J.) 32 Atl. 690.

> Under a policy of indemnity to the insured, to the extent of $10,000, against losses in excess of one-fourth of one per cent. of their annual sales, twelve per cent. additional to be deducted from the total gross losses, the claim not to exceed $7,500, by any one firm, where there was a loss with one firm of $20,000, the total gross loss from which deductions were to be made was $7,500, and the balance was the indemnity to be paid: Rice v. Ins. Co., 164 Mass. 285, 41 N. E. 276.

> A policy of credit insurance was terminated by the insolvency of the insured, and the deduction to be made before the "excess" was ascertained was calculated on the amount of sales made up to the time of insolvency and not on the amount stipulated for the term of the policy; 25 Ins. L. J. 842.

> A provision in such a policy that amounts realized from other security or indemnity shall be deducted before the adjustment of a loss, does not entitle the insurer to deduct the proceeds of a policy in another company which provides that it shall not cover losses insured by the first company, but shall only attach when that company's policy is exhausted; American Credit Indemnity Co. v. Wood, 73 Fed. 81, 19 C. C. A. 264. One who is the agent of the insurer for the purpose of soliciting such insurance, transmitting applications, and collecting premiums, and who receives pay therefor, has power to make an additional agreement providing that if the customer is not rated in Dun's and is rated in Bradstreet's, the latter shall be binding on the insurer; Shakman v. Credit Co., 92 Wis. 366, 66 N. W. 528, 32 L. R. A. 383, 53 Am. St. Rep. 920; and to vary details of the policy as to credit rating; id.

> Employer's Liability Insurance. A contract by which the company agrees to reimburse an employer for any loss occasioned by his liability for damages to an employé, injured in his service.

> The liability of the insurer becomes fixed on the happening of the accident or casualty, even though the amount of such liability is contingent, to the extent that the amount which the insured may be adjudged to pay has not been ascertained; American Casualty Ins. Co.'s Case, 82 Md. 535, 34 Atl. 778, 38 L. R. A. 97.

Under a policy of insurance against damage for which the insured may be liable under an employer's liability act (q. v.) where the workman has recovered damages for injuries in a common-law action, and not under the statute, the insurer will not be liable to reimburse the amount so recovered; 16 Can. S. C., 4th ser. 212; but where the policy contained a clause agreeing to indemnify the insured against damages sustained by the insolvency and before the proof, these losses employe while engaged in operations connected with the business of iron work, it was held to cover injuries received by reason of the construction of a building for the use of such business; Hoven v. Assur. Corp., 93 Wis. 201, 67 N. W. 46, 32 L. R. A. 388.

There is no obligation on the part of the insurer which can become the subject of garnishment in proceedings by an employé to enforce a judgment against the insured; Allen v. Ins. Co., 145 Fed. 881, 76 C. C. A. 265, 7 L. R. A. (N. S.) 958.

A policy which provides that the employer shall not settle with an employe without the consent of the insurer, who was to assume control of litigation, is a contract of indemnity against liability, and payment by the employer of a judgment recovered against him is not a condition precedent to the insurer's liability; id.; and a person who is injured cannot sue the insurer; Embler v. Ins. Co., 8 App. Div. 186, 40 N. Y. Supp. 450. But where the insurer was prohibited from suing until after judgment against him, in which case an action might be brought within thirty days after such judgment, it was held that the contract was not one of indemnity merely, so that an action would lie after judgment was recovered against the employer, though it was paid by him, such payment not being a condition precedent to recovery; Anoka Lumber Co. v. Casualty Co., 63 Minn. 286, 65 N. W. 353, 30 L. R. A. 689; nor is a discharge of liabilities by the insured, under a clause in the policy promising to pay "all damages with which the insured may be legally charged," such a contract being not one of indemnity alone, but also a contract to pay liabilities; American Employers' Liability Ins. Co. v. Fordyce, 62 Ark. 562, 36 S. W. 1051, 54 Am. St. Rep. 305. When the insured was required to give immediate notice to the insurer upon the occurrence of an accident and notice of any claim on account of it, the notice under the condition is not required until an accident happens and the employer has received notice of a claim made on account thereof; Anoka Lumber Co. v. Casualty Co., 63 Minn. 286, 65 N. W. 353, 30 L. R. A. 689.

Such a policy is in no sense a contract between the insurer and the employe, and any sum paid by the company to the employer on account of the death of an employe, whose widow had a right of action, is not an asset of the estate of the deceased; Hawkins v. McCalla, 95 Ga. 192, 22 S. E. 141.

It is generally provided in such policies that the insurer shall have control of the defence of any suits against the employer on claims covered by the insurance, and such a condition is strictly enforced; 15 Can. L. T. 86.

Fidelity Insurance. A contract to indemnify the insured against loss by reason of the default or dishonesty of the employé.

Bonds of indemnity given by fidelity insurance companies are analogous to ordinary policies of insurance, and are governed by the same principles of interpretation; Mechanics' Savings Bank & Trust Co. v. Guarantee Co., 68 Fed. 459.

All conditions in the policy must be complied with as in other cases of insurance, and where one of them is the prosecution of the person whose action is insured against, before he can recover, against the insurer, it was held, by an equally divided court, that the insured must conform to this condition even if he thereby became liable to an action for damages; 9 Ins. L. J. 160.

A statement in the application as to the frequency of measures usually taken by the employer to secure the fidelity of the employed is a warranty the breach of which will defeat recovery; 28 Scot. L. Rep. 394; but in an application for insurance, declarations of the integrity of a clerk, in answer to questions which manifestly relate to the course of business of the employer, are mere representations and not warranties; 7 Exch. 744. Where the bond provides that answers made to questions asked in the application shall be warranties, and the answers are made on the employer's "best knowledge and belief," mere falsity of the answers is not sufficient to avoid the bond, but the company must show that they are "knowingly false;" Mechanics' Savings Bank & Trust Co. v. Guarantee Co., 68 Fed. 459; and if such answers involved no misrepresentation or concealment, the contract could not be affected by loose parol statements, or concealment of facts about which no inquiry was made, or conduct on which no reliance was placed; Supreme Council Catholic Knights of America v. Casualty Co., 63 Fed. 48, 11 C. C. A. 96.

A representation that the person whose integrity is insured "has never been in arrears or default of his accounts" covers any which may have occurred prior to the time when he entered the service of the insured: 30 U. C. C. P. 360. To charge an embezzling employé with interest on the money embezzled converts the embezzlement into a debt and the insurer is not liable therefor; Milwaukee Theater Co. v. Casualty Co., 92 Wis. 412, 66 N. W. 360.

Leaving money temporarily in an insecurely locked room when there were various means of safe-keeping available, was held a violation of a guarantee of "diligent and faithful performance of his duty," for which an insurer was liable; 6 Leg. N. (Can.) 311; 16 Can. L. J. 334. So allowing a customer to make an overdraft on a bank was held negligence in the bank's agent who permitted it, the agent and the customer being together involved in brokerage transactions; 7 Revue Légale 57; s. c. 14 L. C. Jur. 186.

Where the employer retains the employed in his service after he knows of the latter's dishonesty, and without notice to and assent of the insurer, he cannot recover; Lancashire Ins. Co. v. Callahan, 68 Minn. 277, 71 N. W. 261, 64 Am. St. Rep. 475; but this rule will not apply to mere breaches of duty or contract obligation, not involving dishonesty of the servant or fraud and concealment on the part of the master; 4d.

A bank cannot recover for loss occurring after it has been informed that its teller is engaged in speculation and where it has not so notified the insurer, or not made any investigation; Guarantee Co. of N. A. v. Trust Co., 183 U. S. 402, 22 Sup. Ct. 124, 46 L. Ed. 253; the employer is not bound to use diligence to discover dishonesty, but where, in the exercise of reasonable and ordinary care, he could not have failed to infer dishonesty, he may properly be charged with knowledge of such fact; National Bank of Asheville v. Casualty Co., 89 Fed. 819, 32 C. C. A. 355; and if a bank's cashier leaves without notice, taking $5,000 of its money, and the president, with knowledge of the facts, but without disclosure to the company, renews the cashier's bond and pays the premium, there can be no recovery on the bond; id.

The employé is bound to reimburse the insurer for the loss sustained through him; Fidelity & Casualty Co. of N. Y. v. Eickhoff, 63 Minn. 170, 65 N. W. 351, 30 L. R. A. 586, 56 Am. St. Rep. 464; but, upon the payment of a loss, the insurer is subrogated to the rights of the employer in the prosecution of dishonest employés; London Guar., etc., Co. v. Geddes, 22 Fed. 639. And a stipulation between the insurer and the employé that the evidence of payment by the insurer to the employer should be conclusive evidence against the employé as to the fact and extent of his liability to indemnify the insurer, is void as against public policy; id.

Where the indemnity was for one year, and it was provided that a claim under the bond or any renewal thereof should embrace only acts during its currency, it was held that each renewal was a separate contract, and the discovery, during the term of the renewal of theft committed during the running of the bond under a previous renewal, would not make the company liable therefor, when the discovery was too late to hold the insurer under the bond on the renewal in force when the thefts were committed; De Jernette v. Casualty Co., 98 Ky. 558, 33 S. W. 828; and when it was provided that any claim under the bond should cover only defaults committed during its currency, and within twelve months prior to its discovery, it was held that it did not cover a default committed more than twelve months prior to such discovery which would have occurred within the year but for the falsification of the books within the year preceding; Fidelity & Casualty Co. v. Bank, 71 Fed. 116, 17 C. C. A. 641; reversing Consolidation Nat. Bank of Philadelphia v. Casualty Co., 67 Fed.

In American Surety Co. v. Pauly, 72 Fed. 470, 18 C. C. A. 644, on this subject, it was held (1) Where a policy stipulates for a notification of the dishonesty of the employé as soon as practicable after the occurrence of the act, and the evidence as to when the dishonesty was discovered was conflicting, the question what is a reasonable time is for the jury. (2) It is not necessary to give notice of suspicions of dishonesty. (3) The fact that the insured corporation has passed into the hands of a receiver will not absolve the insurer from liability. (4) Where proof of loss under the bond is set forth with reasonable plainness and in a manner which a person of ordinary intelligence cannot fail to understand, a failure to explicitly aver that a loss has been caused is immaterial. (5) The fact that one member of a corporation was cognizant of an employe's dishonesty, and that fraudulent collusion existed between them, cannot make the corporation responsible for a false certificate of character issued by him without the knowledge of other directors; American Surety Co. v. Pauly, 72 Fed. 470, 18 C. C. A. 644.

Guaranty Insurance. This term has sometimes been used to express indiscriminately the classes of insurance herein entitled Credit, Fidelity, and Title Insurance. The latter designations are conceived to be better adapted to the subject-matter, and their employment is not only the better usage but undoubtedly leads to a clearer understanding of the varied subject-matter now involved in the law of insurance.

The expression "Guaranty Insurance" has, however, an extended use in England and Canada, and is there used to designate insurance of the integrity of employes, the phrase "policy of guaranty" being in frequent use by the courts; 7 Jur. N. S. 1109; 30 U. C. C. P. 360; 16 Can. L. J. 334; 14 L. C. Jur. 186.

The term is also used in a few English cases involving the guaranty of merchants against losses in business from the bank-ruptcy, insolvency, or assignment with preference of their customers; 7 H. & N. 5.

In an American case of a date long prior to the use of these modern forms of insurance, an action of debt was sustained upon a policy of insurance guaranteeing to the bearer the payment of a note, and it was held that there was authority to issue such a policy under charter powers such as were at that time conferred upon insurance companies generally, and it was also held that the policy passed by delivery; Ellicott v. Ins. Co., 8 G. & J. (Md.) 166.

Title Insurance. A contract to indemnify the owner or mortgagee of real estate from loss by reason of defective titles, liens, or incumbrances.

Answers to questions in applications for such policies are held to amount to a warranty and the question of materiality cannot be raised; Stensgaard v. Ins. Co., 50 Minn. 429, 52 N. W. 910, 17 L. R. A. 575.

Where a title insurance company undertook to defend the interest of insured in the premises against a lien, it was bound to protect him through all stages of the proceeding to enforce the lien, as well after as before judgment therein, or notify him that it could not do so, and furnish him necessary information of the status of the proceeding in time to enable him to protect himself; and if, after giving such notice, the company defended the proceeding, but thereafter abandoned the defence, it was necessary for it to give insured another such notice; Quigley v. Trust Co., 64 Minn. 149, 66 N. W. 364.

Where an insurer agrees to indemnify a mortgagee against loss not exceeding $2,200 by reason of incumbrances, and to defend the land against such claims, a loss occurring by reason of the negligence of the insurer is not limited to the $2,200; Quigley v. Trust Co., 60 Minn. 275, 62 N. W. 287.

Under a title insurance policy, the fact that the conveyancing was done, not by the insurer but by the conveyancer of the insured, was held no defence, and the right of the insurer to do conveyancing, draw deeds, write wills, or the like, was denied, and their action in assuming such right, unwarranted by their charter, was declared to be a usurpation on the commonwealth; Gauler v. Trust Co., 9 Pa. C. C. R. 634.

In cases of defective title, or an incumbrance requiring removal, the insured would be entitled, in an action on the policy, to recover the costs and expenses incurred in curing the defect or removing the incumbrance; but in case of total loss of title the value of the property lost is the measure of damages, and where the insured had been compelled to pay more than the amount of the policy to get a good title, judgment was entered for that sum; id.

When the title was insured under a policy to the mortgagee and the latter bought in the property at a foreclosure sale, the purchase did not cancel the mortgage so as to annul the policy, but the insurer was liable to redeem the property from a sale under prior mechanic's liens; Minnesota Title Ins. & Trust Co. v. Drexel, 70 Fed. 194, 17 C. C. A. 56.

See Lien; Mortgage; Title; Warranty. Insurance against Birth of Issue. A form of insurance common in England by which the heir presumptive protects his interest against either the birth of an heir apparent or the attainment of majority, or to a particular age by an existing heir apparent. It is also and more commonly practised by tenants for life under settlements, who are entitled to reversions in fee simple subject to estates tail in their own issue by a particular marriage, and who, by this method, are enabled to mortgage their estates without burdening their life interests with premiums on life insurance. In this form of insurance the principal elements to consider are the age and the health of the party and the age at which women will cease to bear children. See Jac. Ch. 585, 586; 4 Hare 124; 5 De G. & S. 226; 10 Beav. 463; 19 4d. 565.

INSURANCE AGENT. An agent for effecting insurance may be such by appointment or the recognition of his acts done as such; 2 Phill. Ins. § 1848; Perkins v. Ins. Co., 4 Cow. (N. Y.) 645. He may be agent for either of the parties to the policy, or for distinct purposes for both; People v. Imlay, 20 Barb. (N. Y.) 68.

An insurance agent's powers may be more or less extensive according to the express or implied stipulations and understandings between him and his principals. They may be for filling up and issuing policies signed in blank by his principals, for transmitting applications to his principals filled up by himself, as their agent or that of the applicant, for receiving and transmitting premiums, for adjusting and settling losses, or granting liberties and making new stipulations, or for any one or more of these purposes; First Baptist Church v. Ins. Co., 19 N. Y. 305; Bouton v. Ins. Co., 25 Conn. 542; Camphill v. Ins. Co., 37 N. H. 35, 72 Am. Dec. 324; Augusta Insurance & Banking Co. of Georgia v. Abbott, 12 Md. 348; Howard Fire Ins. Co. v. Bruner, 23 Pa. 50; New York Union Mut. Ins. Co. v. Johnson, id. 72; East Texas Fire Ins. Co. v. Brown, 82 Tex. 631, 18 S. W. 713; Hahn v. Assurance Co., 23 Or. 576, 32 Pac. 683, 37 Am. St. Rep. 709.

It is reasonable for insurance companies to insert in their policies conditions that their agents shall not have authority to alter the expressed terms of the policies; Northern Assur. Co. v. Bldg. Ass'n, 183 U. S. 308, 22 Sup. Ct. 133, 46 L. Ed. 213; or to waive any stipulation therein unless endorsed on or added to the policy; Gish v. Ins. Co., 16 Okla. 59, 87 Pac. 869, 13 L. R. A. (N. S.) 826. An agent cannot act so as to bind his company beyond the scope of his authority; Deming Inv. Co. v. Ins. Co., 16 Okla. 1, 83 Pac. 918, 4 L. R. A. (N. S.) 607; Northern Assur. Co. v. Bldg. Ass'n, 183 U. S. 308, 22 Sup. Ct. 133, 46 L. Ed. 213; contra, Hancock Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Schlink, 175 Ill. 284, 51 N. E. 795, where it was held the agent could waive a condition before delivery. A present contract of insurance is not affected by signing an application and the statement of an agent that he would take care of it and get a policy; Whitman v. Ins. Co., 128 Wis. 124, 107 N. W. 291, 5 L. R. A. (N. S.) 407, 116 Am. St. Rep. 25.

ants for life under settlements, who are entitled to reversions in fee simple subject to estates tail in their own issue by a particular marriage, and who, by this method, are enabled to mortgage their estates without burbar Dwight, Com., in Pitney v. Ins. Co., 65

N. Y. 6: "It is clear that a person authorized to accept risks, to agree upon and settle the terms of insurance, and carry them into effect by issuing and renewing policies, must be regarded as the general agent of the company. (Post v. Ins. Co., 43 Barb. [N. Y.] 351.) The possession of blank policies and renewal receipts, signed by the president and secretary, is evidence of a general agency. (Carroll v. Ins. Co., 40 Barb. [N. Y.] 292.) The power of such an agent of a stock company is plenary as to the amount and nature of the risk, the rate of premium, and generally as to the terms and conditions, and he may make such memoranda and indorsements, modifying the general provisions of the policy, and even inconsistent therewith, as in his discretion seems proper, before the policy is delivered, and in some cases even afterward. (May, Ins. 129.) He may also insert, by memorandum or indorsement, a description of the property inconsistent with the description of the same contained in the application, and such change will be effectual to protect the insured, although the policy itself provides that all conditions named in the application are to be fully complied with and that the application shall be a part of the policy, and a warranty on the part of the insured. (May, Ins. 129; Gloucester Mfg. Co. v. Ins. Co., 5 Gray [Mass.] 497, 66 Am. Dec. 376.)"

An agent holding a commission from an insurance company authorizing him to take risks generally, without placing any limitation thereon, either as to the kinds of risks or as to the territory within which they may be, is a general agent; and the fact that the policy provides that, in any matter relating to the insurance, no person shall be deemed the agent of the company unless authorized in writing, and that the agent's commission states that he shall be subject to the rules of the company, and to such instructions as may be given him from time to time, do not impose on one dealing with the agent a duty to ascertain his authority to issue a policy on a risk extrahazardous and located in a place other than the town in which is situated the agent's office; German Fire Ins. Co. v. Tile Co., 15 Ind. App. 623, 43 N. E. 41.

The resident agent of an insurance company having general authority to issue policies and renewals, fix rates and accept risks, collect premiums and cancel insurance, and perform all the duties of a recording agent, is a general agent for the locality; Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Orr, 56 Ill. App. 629. If the agent acts as such for both the company and the insured the contract may be avoided by either party who, at the time of the contract, did not know of such business agency for the other party or had, not knowing the facts, ratified it; British-American Assur. Co. v. Cooper, 6 Colo. App. 25, 40 Pac. 147.

Bouv.-103

When an insurance agent solicited business in an adjoining state, assumed to act with full authority, received the premium and issued the policy, he may be considered as a general agent and not a special agent without authority to make the contract; Hahn v. Guardian Assur. Co., 23 Or. 576, 32 Pac. 683, 37 Am. St. Rep. 709.

It has been held in a federal case that before the execution of a policy, the power and authority of a local and soliciting agent are co-extensive with the business intrusted to his care, and his positive knowledge as to material facts and his acts and declarations within the scope of his employment are obligatory on his principal, unless restricted by limitations well known to the other party at the time of the transaction; West End Hotel & Land Co. v. Ins. Co., 74 Fed. 114.

The powers of agents were extensively discussed by the Kansas supreme court: "The bulk of the fire insurance business of the state is done by eastern companies, who are represented here by agents." "It is a matter of no small moment therefore that the exact measure and limit of the powers of these agents be understood. All the assured knows about the company is generally through the agent. All the information as to the powers of, and limitations upon, the agent is received from him. Practically, the agent is the principal in the making of the contract. It seems to us therefore that the rule may be properly thus laid down that an agent authorized to issue policies of insurance and consummate the contract binds his principal by every act, agreement, representation, or waiver, within the ordinary scope and limit of insurance business which is not known by the insured to be beyond the authority granted to the agent;" German Ins. Co. v. Gray, 43 Kan. 497, 23 Pac. 637, 8 L. R. A. 70, 19 Am. St. Rep. 150; and it was held in that case that an insurance company might, through its agents, by a parol contract, waive provisions stated in the policy with reference to the manner of altering or waiving its terms and conditions; Westchester Fire Ins. Co. v. Earle, 33 Mich. 143; the court, in considering the question whether an agent of a company might change by parol the conditions of a policy wherein it was provided that it could only be done upon the consent of the company written thereon, held that a written bargain is of no higher legal degree than a parol one. "Either may vary or discharge the other, and there can be no more force in an agreement in writing not to agree by parol than in a parol agreement not to agree in writing. Every such agreement is ended by the new one which contradicts it;" American Central Ins. Co. v. McLanathan, 11 Kan. 533.

"Where insurance companies deal with the community through a local agency, persons having transactions with the company are entitled to assume, in the absence of knowledge as to the agent's authority, that the acts and declarations of the agent are valid as if they proceeded directly from the company;" Hardwick v. Ins. Co., 20 Or. 547, 26 Pac. 840.

An attempted restriction upon the power of the officer or agents, acting within the scope of their general authority, to waive provisions of the policy, unless such waiver is written upon the policy itself, is ineffectual; Dick v. Ins. Co., 92 Wis. 46, 65 N. W. 742.

A provision in the application or in the policy making the person procuring the application the agent of the insured and not of the company, cannot change the legal status of such person as agent of the company or the law of agency if he is in fact the agent of the company; Coles v. Ins. Co., 41 W. Va. 261, 23 S. E. 733.

A broker was held to be the agent of the company where he solicited applications which were sent by him to the agent, by whom policies were sent to the broker and the premiums were charged to the broker; in such case the finding by the jury that the broker was the duly authorized agent of the company within the meaning of the provisions in the policy requiring payments of the premiums to the company or its duly authorized agent within a certain time, will not be disturbed; Estes v. Ins. Co., 67 N. H. 462, 33 Atl. 515. In the absence of direct proof of the broker's authority to act for the insurer or insured he may establish his agency by showing that the act relied on was within the scope of his authority; American Fire Ins. Co. v. Brooks, 83 Md. 22, 34 Atl. Where insurance is procured through a broker, though at his solicitation, he is the agent of the insured and his acts will not bind the company, but when his employment extends only to the procurement of the policy he ceases to be an agent of the insured on the execution and delivery; id.

A broker owes no duty of care or skill to the underwriter when he is acting on the instructions of his principal; 11 Com. Cas.

A broker employed by a firm of insurance agents to solicit business on commission, having a desk in their office, is not such an agent as that notice to him by a policy holder is notice to the firm; Arff v. Ins. Co., 2 N. Y. Supp. 188, 49 Hun, 610; and one is a mere broker who only represented the company in a single transaction and whose name did not appear on the policy, though he may have told the insurer that he represented the company, collected the premiums, and delivered the policy; Gude v. Ins. Co., 53 Minn. 220, 54 N. W. 1117.

An agent has no power to delegate his authority so as to impose a liability on the company; 15 Can. L. T. 49; Dwelling House But an insurance company is bound by the acts of a clerk of its agent in accepting risks and issuing policies against the same in the performance of his duties, and one dealing with the clerk, as such, is not bound to inquire into his authority as to those matters; id. An agent's solicitor who took applications on which policies were issued has been held the agent of the company in effecting such insurance; McGonigle v. Ins. Co., 168 Pa. 1, 31 Atl. 868.

It has been held that a general agent (appointed by contract in this case) had power to waive cash payments of premiums and extend credit; Pythian Life Ass'n v. Preston, 47 Neb. 374, 66 N. W. 445; American Employers' Liability Ins. Co. v. Fordyce, 62 Ark. 562, 36 S. W. 1051, 54 Am. St. Rep. 305; to receive notice of loss; Germania Fire Ins. Co. v. Stewart, 13 Ind. App. 627, 42 N. E. 286; waive proofs of loss; Bolan v. Fire Ass'n, 2 Mo. App. Rep. 1375; Loeb v. Ins. Co., 99 Mo. 50, 12 S. W. 374; contra, Ermentrout v. Ins. Co., 63 Minn. 305, 65 N. W. 635, 30 L. R. A. 346, 56 Am. St. Rep. 481. agent who has power to adjust losses may by parol waive formal proofs of loss; Mc-Guire v. Ins. Co., 7 App. Div. 575, 40 N. Y. Supp. 300. He cannot waive the iron safe clause, when that authority is expressly withheld from him by the policy; Roberts, Willis & Taylor Co. v. Ins. Co., 13 Tex. Civ. App. 64, 35 S. W. 955. He can insure goods subject to chattel mortgage by indorsement on, or annexation to, the policy, though it is forbidden in the printed conditions; McGuire v. Ins. Co., 7 App. Div. 575, 40 N. Y. Supp. 300. Local agents cannot bind the company by consenting to vacancies; McLeary v. Ins. Co. (Tex.) 32 S. W. 583; or that insurance on a risk, not usually taken by the company should take effect from the application (nor will it matter that a special agent, having no power to contract, was present and approved); O'Brien v. Ins. Co., 108 Cal. 227, 41 Pac. 298.

An agent, during the continuance of his agency, may at any time, even after loss, correct a policy issued by him by inserting the property included in the contract but omitted by mistake from the policy; Taylor v. Ins. Co., 98 Ia. 521, 67 N. W. 577, 60 Am. St. Rep. 210. The agent of a company, whose authority has been revoked by the execution by it of an assignment for the benefit of creditors, has thereafter no authority to cancel policies and pay rebates or to set off rebates against a claim by the assignee for premiums collected; Franzen v. Zimmer, 90 Hun 103, 35 N. Y. Supp. 612. The agent is liable for failure to cancel policy when directed to do so; London Assur. Corp. v. I ussell, 1 Pa. Super. Ct. 320; and when directed to cancel or reinsure a risk cannot reinsure in another Ins. Co. v. Snyder, 59 N. J. L. 18, 34 Atl. 931. company for which he is agen; without its assent; Empire State Ins. Co. v. Ins. Co., 138 | N. Y. 446, 34 N. E. 200.

Notice to an agent of matters within his commission is such to the company; 1 E. L. & Eq. 140; Capitol Ins. Co. v. Bank, 50 Kan. 449, 31 Pac. 1069; Bergeron v. Banking Co., 111 N. C. 45, 15 S. E. 883; Forward v. Ins. Co., 142 N. Y. 382, 37 N. E. 615, 25 L. R. A.

The insurer has been held bound or estopped by the knowledge or action of or notice to the agent in the following cases: By his knowledge of foreclosure proceedings; Dick v. Ins. Co., 92 Wis. 46, 65 N. W. 742; of the existence of a mortgage, and his attaching a clause making the loss payable to the mortgagee; Georgia Home Ins. Co. v. Stein, 72 Miss. 943, 18 South. 414; of a chattel mortgage; Robbins v. Ins. Co., 149 N. Y. 477, 44 N. E. 159; of incumbrance; German Ins. Co. v. Everett (Tex.) 36 S. W. 125; McDonald v. Fire Ass'n, 93 Wis. 348, 67 N. W. 719; Mcguire v. Ins. Co., 7 App. Div. 575, 40 N. Y. Supp. 300; where the agent is informed as to incumbrances and fills out the application, describing the property as not incumbered; Coles v. Ins. Co., 41 W. Va. 261, 23 S. E. 733; Perry v. Ins. Co., 67 N. H. 291, 33 Atl. 731, 68 Am. St. Rep. 668; where the agent, having power to issue and cancel policies, allowed a policy to remain in force after notice of an incumbrance; Phœnix Assur. Co. of London v. Coffman, 10 Tex. Civ. App. 631, 32 S. W. 810; where the application stated that no other company had refused to insure, and the agent had notice to the contrary; id.; where the agent incorrectly stated the title of the insured, after being correctly informed thereof; State Ins. Co. of Des Moines v. Du Bois, 7 Colo. App. 214, 44 Pac. 756; where the agent was acquainted with premises of the insured and could have made an accurate description through his knowledge of them, the company is estopped to avoid its obligation by showing a mis-description of the property: Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Moore. 13 Tex. Civ. App. 644, 36 S. W. 146. Where the insured makes true answers to the questions in an application, the validity of the insurance is not affected by the falsity of the answers inserted by the agent; Robinson v. Ins. Co., 1 App. Div. 269, 37 N. Y. Supp. 146; Bernard v. Ins. Ass'n, 17 Misc. 115, 39 N. Y. Supp. 356; Smith v. Ins. Co., 173 Pa. 16, 33 Atl. 567. In such case he will be regarded as the agent of the company, and not of the applicant and his knowledge of the falsity of the answer will be imputed to the company; Clubb v. Acc. Co., 97 Ga. 502, 25 S. E. 333. The company is not estopped by the agent's knowledge when that is acquired by him by virtue of his relation as attorney for the insured in a transaction with which the company was not connected; Union Nat. Bank v. Ins. Co., 71 Fed. 473, 18 C. C. A. 203; or when the knowledge of the upon the plan combining a stock capital with agent is acquired after the issuance of the policy; Taylor v. Ins. Co., 98 Ia. 521, 67 N. W. 577, 60 Am. St. Rep. 210; West End Hotel & Land Co. v. Ins. Co., 74 Fed. 114. where the notice was to one of a firm of insurance agents, another member of which issued the policy in suit and was given several months before the policy was applied for; Queen Ins. Co. of America v. May (Tex.) 35 S. W. 829; and it was held that when the policy provided that no agent could stipulate for a modification of its provisions not brought to the knowledge of his principal officer, knowledge of the general superintendent that material statements in the application were false was not knowledge of the company; Ward v. Ins. Co., 66 Conn. 227, 33 Atl. 902, 50 Am. St. Rep. 80.

An agent's knowledge of the state of title is notice to the company; Clymer Opera Co. v. Ins. Co., 238 Pa. 137, 85 Atl. 1111; contra, Northern Assur. Co. v. Bldg. Ass'n, 183 U. S. 308, 22 Sup. Ct. 133, 46 L. Ed. 213; Gish v. Ins. Co., 16 Okl. 59, 87 Pac. 869, 13 L. R. A. (N. S.) 826; but the company is not estopped by the knowledge of its agents where the insured is a party to a deception in an answer in the application; Mudge v. Supreme Court, 149 Mich. 467, 112 N. W. 1130, 119 Am. St. Rep. 686, 14 L. R. A. (N. S.) 279. Where the agent prepares the application from former applications and tells the applicant that it is all right, the company is estopped from the defence of falsity of the answers; Roe v. Ins. Ass'n, 137 Ia. 696, 115 N. W. 500.

Mere notice to an agent by insured that he would not pay the premium does not terminate the policy; Taylor v. Assur. Soc., 134 Fed. 932.

See, generally, an extended discussion and collection of cases on the authority of insurance agents, 34 Am. L. Reg. N. S. 654; WAR-BANTY.

INSURANCE COMPANY. A company which issues policies of insurance,-an incorporated company, and either a stock company, a mutual one, or a mixture of the two. In a stock company, the members or stockholders pay in a certain capital which is liable for the contracts of the company. In a mutual company, the members are themselves the parties insured; in other words, all the members contribute premiums to the fund, which is liable for indemnity to each member for loss, according to the terms of the contract. In the mixed class, certain members, who may or may not be insured, contribute a certain amount of the capital, for which they hold certificates of shares, and are entitled to interest on the same at a stipulated rate, or to an agreed share of the surplus receipts, after the payment of losses and expenses, to be estimated at certain pe-

There are in some states companies formed mutual insurance and issuing both bonds of isses of its members, is not an insurance mutual insurance and stock policies based upon the capital.

In New York it has been held that, under the statutes then in force regulating the formation of insurance companies and their organization, they could not be organized upon this plan so as to accept premium notes from some customers and cash premiums from others and assess the premium notes to pay losses in either branch of the business; Hart v. Achilles, 28 Barb. (N. Y.) 576. See also White v. Haight, 16 N. Y. 310.

Beneficial societies are sometimes held to be insurance companies within the meaning of the statutes regulating such companies; Berry v. Indemnity Co., 46 Fed. 439; and see State v. Benevolent Society, 72 Mo. 146; Com. v. Wetherbee, 105 Mass. 149; State v. Critchett, 37 Minn. 13, 32 N. W. 787; Golden Rule v. People, 118 Ill. 492, 9 N. E. 342. Where the main purpose of an order is that of life insurance, and insurance against sickness and disability, whatever purposes it may have, it is amenable to the laws of that state relating to insurance companies: it therefore must comply with the requirements of the statutes of that state (if the order is organized under the laws of another state), as to foreign insurance companies, before it can do business in that state; State v. Nichols, 78 Ia. 747, 41 N. W. 4. But in Wisconsin an association incorporated for the purpose of fraternal benevolent insurance upon the cooperative or assessment plan was a charitable and benevolent order within the meaning of the statute which, in line with the defined policy of the state, was exempted from the general laws relating to life insurance; State v. Whitmore, 75 Wis. 332, 43 N. W. 1133. In Pennsylvania a foreign mutual aid association of the same character was held not liable for violation of the laws regulating insurance companies; Com. v. Mutual Aid Ass'n, 94 Pa. 481; and the same association was held not to be a mutual insurance company in Ohio, the state of its incorporation; State v. Mutual Ass'n, 26 Ohio St. 19; so in many other states such associations are held not to be insurance companies within the purview of the general insurance laws of the state; State v. Ass'n, 35 Kan. 51, 9 Pac. 956; Sherman v. Com., 82 Ky. 102; State v. Ald Ass'n, 59 Ia. 125, 12 N. W. 782; Commercial League Ass'n of America v. People, 90 Ill. 166; Supreme Council of Order of Chosen Friends v. Fairman, 62 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 386; Elsey v. Relief Ass'n, 142 Mass. 224, 7 N. E. 844; Barbaro v. Occidental Grove, 4 Mo. App. 429; Rensenhouse v. Seeley, 72 Mich. 603, 40 N, W. 765; State v. Investment Co., 48 Minn. 110, 50 N. W. 1028. In Pennsylvania it was explicitly decided that an association organized not to do business for profit or gain but to aid pecuniarily the widows, orphans, heirs, and dev- peditions to supply insurgents with arms company; Northwestern Masonic Aid Ass'n v. Jones, 154 Pa. 99, 26 Atl. 253, 35 Am. St.

A physicians' defense company which contracts to pay the expenses of defending physicians against civil malpractice suits is an insurance company; Physicians' Defense Co. v. Cooper, 199 Fed. 576, 118 C. C. A. 50; Physicians' Defense Co. v. O'Brien, 100 Minn. 490, 111 N. W. 396; contra, Vredenburgh v. Defense Co., 126 Ill. App. 509; State v. Laylin, 73 Ohio St. 90, 76 N. E. 567.

A state has power to prohibit foreign insurance companies from doing business within its limits. It may impose such conditions as it pleases; Swing v. Lumber Co., 205 U. S. 275, 27 Sup. Ct. 497, 51 L. Ed. 799; Whitfield v. Ins. Co., 205 U. S. 489, 27 Sup. Ct. 578, 51 L. Ed. 895; Carroll v. Ins. Co., 199 U. S. 401, 26 Sup. Ct. 66, 50 L. Ed. 246.

Membership in a mutual company does not necessarily imply liability to assessment; Given v. Rettew, 162 Pa. 638, 29 Atl. 703. A surplus of such a company belongs equitably to the policy holders in the proportion in which they contributed to it and the directorate has no option to declare dividends; U. S. Life Ins. Co. v. Spinks, 96 S. W. 889, 29 Ky. L. Rep. 960, 13 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1053; contra, Greeff v. Assurance Society, 160 N. Y. 19, 54 N. E. 712, 46 L. R. A. 288, 73 Am. St.

Dividends of a mutual life company returned to policy holders are not income and are not taxable as such; Mutual Benefit Life Ins. Co. v. Herold, 198 Fed. 199; Fuller v. Ins. Co., 70 Conn. 647, 41 Atl. 4; L. R. 14 A. C. 381.

See Insubance.

INSURANCE POLICY. See POLICY.

INSURED. A person whose life or property interest is covered by a policy of insurance. See Insurance.

INSURER. The underwriter in a policy of insurance; the party agreeing to make compensation to the other. Sometimes, applied improperly to denote the party insured. See INSUBANCE.

INSURGENTS. Rebels contending arms against the government of their country who have not been recognized by other countries as belligerents. Insurgents have no standing in international law until recognized as belligerents. When recognized as belligerents the rules relating to contraband and other rules of war apply to them, but until so recognized their acts are merely the acts of individuals which may be piracy or any other crime according to the circumstances. The United States and other countries have statutes regulating dealings with insurgents in other countries and filibustering expeditions, as they are called, and exand ammunition are forbidden; Snow, Lect. Int. Law 132.

In general insurgents have no belligerent rights. Their war vessels are not received in foreign ports, they cannot establish blockades which third powers will respect, and they must not interfere with the commerce of other nations. In the older books on international law they were usually treated as pirates. Their hostilities are never regarded as legal war. As late as 1885 in The Ambrose Light, 25 Fed. 408, this subject was discussed and the authorities fully reviewed. and it was held that the liability of a vessel to seizure as piratical, turned wholly on the question whether the insurgents had obtained any previous recognition of belligerent rights, either from their own or any other government. The court only refrained from entering a decree of forfeiture of the vessel. as a pirate, because of an implied recognition of the insurgents as belligerents, contained in a letter of the secretary of state of the date of the seizure. In recent years, however, a certain amount of recognition has been accorded to insurgents. In 1894, when insurgents were bombarding Rio Janeiro, Admiral Benham took the position that American merchant vessels, moving about the harbor and discharging cargoes, did so at their own risk. But any attempt on the part of the insurgents to prevent legitimate movements of our merchant vessels at other times was not to be permitted. Of this official action it has been said: "This establishment of this point, which seemed to be the logical outcome of recent practice, almost recognizes an imperfect status, or right of action afloat, for insurgents;" Snow, Lect. Int. L. 25.

In U. S. v. Trumbull, 48 Fed. 99, it was held that insurgents may purchase arms in the United States without violating U.S. R. 8. § 5283, provided the arms are not designed to constitute any part of the furnishings or fittings of the vessel which carries them. This case was a prosecution in connection with the Itata which was also libelled for forfeiture by the United States. There was much discussion as to the meaning of the word "people" as used in the statute. had been previously said to be one of the denominations of a foreign power; U. S. v. Quincy, 6 Pet. (U. S.) 467, 8 L. Ed. 458; and that a vessel could not be said to be in the service of a foreign people, etc., unless they had received recognition as belligerents; The Carondelet, 37 Fed. 800; the case of The Salvador, L. R. 3 C. P. 218, cited to the contrary, is distinguishable as resting on the broader provisions of the English foreign enlistment act; but in the Itata case the question was not raised by the facts, and it was simply held that the neutrality laws did not cover the case of a vessel which recountry, with intent to carry them to a party of insurgents in a foreign country, but not with intent that they shall constitute any part of the fittings or furnishings of the vessel herself; and that she could not be condemned as piratical on the ground that she is in the employ of an insurgent party which has not been recognized by our government as having belligerent rights; The Itata, 56 Fed. 505, 5 C. C. A. 608. See also U. S. v. Weed, 5 Wall. (U. S.) 62, 18 L. Ed. 531; The Watchful, 6 Wall. (U. S.) 91, 18 L. Ed. 763; Snow, Lect. Int. L. 135.

In The Three Friends, 166 U.S. 1, 17 Sup. Ct. 495, 41 L. Ed. 987, the vessel was seized for a violation of U.S.R.S. § 5283, and was released by the district court upon the ground, inter alia, that the libel did not show that the vessel was fitted out and armed with intent that it should "be employed in the service of a foreign prince or state, or of any colony, district, or people with whom the United States are at peace." The libel was amended so as to read "in the service of a certain people, to wit, certain people then engaged in armed resistance to the government of the King of Spain, in the island of Cuba." The district court held that the word "people" was used in an individual and personal sense and not as an organized and recognized political power in any way corresponding to a state, prince, colony, or district. The supreme court reversed the decree, holding that the vessel had been inprovidently released, and that the word "people" in the statute covers any insurgent or insurrectionary body conducting hostilities, although its belligerency has not been recognized; and although the political department of the government had not recognized the existence of a de facto belligerent power engaged in hostility with Spain, it had recognized the existence of insurrectionary warfare, and the case sharply illustrated the distinction between recognition of belligerency, and of a condition of political revolt. See BELLIGERENCY.

INSURRECTION. A rebellion of citizens or subjects of a country or state against its government.

Any open and active opposition of a number of persons to the execution of the laws of the United States, of so formidable a character as to defy, for the time being, the authority of the government, constitutes an insurrection, even though not accompanied by bloodshed and not of sufficient magnitude to make success possible; In re Charge to Grand Jury, 62 Fed. 828.

As to the distinctions involved in the different words used to express organized resistance to governmental authority, see REBELLION.

was simply held that the neutrality laws did not cover the case of a vessel which redicted same and munitions of war, in this for calling forth the militia to execute the laws of the Union, suppress insurrections, and repel invasions."

INSURRECTION

Whenever the United States shall be invaded, or be in imminent danger of invasion, from any foreign nation or Indian tribe, it shall be lawful for the president of the United States to call forth such number of the militia of the state, or states, most convenient to the place of danger or scene of action, as he may judge necessary to repel such invasion, and to issue his orders, for that purpose, to such officer or officers of the militia as he shall think proper. And in case of an insurrection in any state against the government thereof, it shall be lawful for the president of the United States, on application of the legislature of such state, or of the executive (when the legislature cannot be convened), to call forth such number of the militia of any other state or states, as may be applied for, as he may judge sufficient to suppress such insurrection; U. S.

R. S. pp. 287, 1029.

Whenever the laws of the United States shall be opposed, or the execution thereof obstructed, in any state, by combinations too powerful to be suppressed by the ordinary course of judicial proceed-ings, or by the powers vested in the marshals by this act, it shall be lawful for the president of the United States to call forth the militia of such state, or of any other state or states, as may be necessary to suppress such combinations, and to cause the laws to be duly executed; and the use of militia so to be called forth may be continued, if necessary, until the expiration of thirty days after the commencement of the next session of congress.

Whenever it may be necessary, in the judgment of the president, to use the military force hereby directed to be called forth, the president shall forthwith, by proclamation, command such insurgents to disperse, and retire peaceably to their respective abodes, within a limited time; U. S. R. S. § 5300. The president may declare by proclamation whenever the inhabitants of any state or part thereof are found by him to be in a state of insurrection, that such inhabitants are in a state of insurrection against the United States and thereupon all commercial intercourse between them and the citizens of the United States shall be unlawful and shall cease so long as such condition of hostility continues, and all goods and chattels, wares and merchandise coming from such state or section into other parts of the United States or proceeding from other parts of the United States to such state or section together with the vessel or vehicle conveying the same shall be forfeited to the United States; but commercial intercourse may, in the discretion of the president, be permitted and licensed with loyal persons residing in such insurrectionary section, so far as to supply such persons with necessaries; U. S. R. S. §§ 5300-5304.

Capital cases for insurrection by a citizen of the United States against the government of any foreign countries having treaties with the United States may be tried before the minister of the United States in such country; id. § 4090. See Insurgents.

INTAKERS. In English Law. The name given to receivers of goods stolen in Scotland, who take them to England. 9 Hen. V. c. 27.

INTEGER (Lat.). Whole; untouched. Res integra means a question which is new and undecided. 2 Kent 177.

INTEMPERATE. If the habit is to drink to intoxication whenever occasion offers, and sobriety or abstinence is the exception, then the charge of intemperate habits is established, and it is not necessary that this cusState, 63 Ala. 152. See Mullinix v. People, 76 III. 213. See HABITUAL DRUNKARD; DRUNKENNESS.

INTENDANT. One who has the charge, management, or direction of some office, department, or public business.

INTENDED TO BE RECORDED. phrase is frequently used in conveyancing, in deeds which recite other deeds which have not been recorded. In Pennsylvania, it has been construed to be a covenant, on the part of the grantor, to procure the deed to be recorded in a reasonable time; Penn. v. Preston, 2 Rawle (Pa.) 14.

INTENDENTE. In Spanish Law. The immediate agent of the minister of finance, or the chief and principal director of the different branches of the revenue, appointed in the various departments in each of the provinces of the Spanish monarchy. See Escriche, Intendente.

INTENDMENT OF LAW. The true meaning, the correct understanding, or intention, of the law; a presumption or inference made by the courts. Co. Litt. 78.

It is an intendment of law that every man is innocent until he is proved to be guilty; see Presumption of Innocence; that every one will act for his own advantage; that every officer acts in his office with fidelity; that the children of a married woman, born during the coverture, are the children of the husband. See Bastardy. Many things are intended after verdict, in order to support a judgment; but intendment cannot supply the want of certainty in a charge in an indictment for a crime; 5 Cro. 121. See Com. Dig. Pleader (C 25), (S 31); Dane, Abr. Index; 14 Viner, Abr. 449; Westcott v. Garrison, 6 N. J. L. 132.

INTENT. See COMMON INTENT; INTEN-TION.

In Civil law. INTENTIO (Lat.). formal complaint or claim of a plaintiff before the prætor. "Reus exceptionem velut intentionem implet:" id est, reus in exceptione actor est. The defendant makes up his plea as if it were a declaration: i. e. the defendant is plaintiff in the plea.

In Old English Law. A count or declaration in a real action (narratio). Bracton, lib. 4, tr. 2, c. 2; Fleta, lib. 4, c. 7; Du Cange.

INTENTION, INTENT. A design, resolve. or determination of the mind.

In Criminal Law. To render an act criminal, a wrongful intent must exist; 7 C. & P. 428; U. S. v. Pearce, 2 McLean 14, Fed. Cas. No. 16,020; State v. Berkshire, 2 Ind. 207; State v. Bartlett, 30 Me. 132; Smith v. Kinne, 19 Vt. 564; State v. Voight, 90 N. C. 741. And with this must be combined a wrongful act; as mere intent is not punishable; 9 Co. 81 a; 2 C. & P. 414; Com. v. Morse, 2 Mass. tom should be an everyday rule: Tatum v. 138: Ross v. Com., 2 B. Monr. (Ky.) 417:

Torrey v. Field, 10 Vt. 353; U. S. v. Riddle, 5 Cra. (U. S.) 311, 3 L. Ed. 110; but see R. & R. 308; 1 Lew. Cr. Cas. 42; and generally, perhaps always, the intent and act must concur in point of time; 1 Bish. Cr. L. § 207; Cl. Cr. L. 45, 238, 265; but a wrongful intent may render criminal an act otherwise innocent; 1 C. & K. 600; Com. v. Hersey, 2 Allen (Mass.) 181; 1 East, Pl. Cr. 255; Ransom v. State, 22 Conn. 153.

In considering whether a defendant charged with doing a criminal act did it with criminal intent, his prior and accompanying acts are all to be considered, and the rule in civil cases as to the existence of a fraudulent intent may be invoked: State v. Musick, 101 Mo. 260, 14 S. W. 212.

Where a transaction on its face is as consistent with honesty as with fraud, it will be presumed that the intent was lawful; State v. Gritzner, 134 Mo. 512, 36 S. W. 39.

Courts must judge the intent a man has in doing an act by the means he employs and the thing to be accomplished. If they all be lawful, courts cannot impute malice or unlawful motives to the actor; Barton v. Rogers, 21 Idaho, 609, 123 Pac. 478, 40 L. R. A. (N. S.) 681.

Generally, where any wrongful act is committed, the law will infer conclusively that it was intentionally committed; Hill v. Com., 2 Gratt. (Va.) 594; Taylor v. State, 4 Ga. 14; Com. v. Hersey, 2 Allen (Mass.) 179; as the intent to take life may b einferred from the character of the assault, the use of a deadly weapon and the attendant circumstances; Jackson v. State, 94 Ala. 85, 10 South. 509; Winn v. State, 82 Wis. 571, 52 N. W. 775; and also that the natural, necessary, and even probable consequences were intended; 5 C. & P. 538; People v. Herrick, 13 Wend. (N. Y.) 87; Com. v. Blanding, 3 Pick. (Mass.) 304, 15 Am. Dec. 214; Hill v. Com., 2 Gratt. (Va.) 594; State v. Fuller, 1 Bay (S. C.) 245, 1 Am. Dec. 610; West v. State, 9 Humphr. (Tenn.) 66.

Generally speaking, when a statute makes an act indictable, irrespective of guilty knowledge, ignorance of fact is no defence; Com. v. Wentworth, 118 Mass. 441; L. R. 2 C. C. 154; Beckham v. Nacke, 56 Mo. 546; see Halsted v. State, 41 N. J. L. 552, 32 Am. Rep. 247; contra, Farrell v. State, 32 Ohio St. 456, 30 Am. Rep. 614, where the subject is fully treated. See Ignorance.

Intent is in a certain sense essential to the commission of a crime and in some classes of cases it is necessary to show moral turpitude; but there is a class of cases where purposely doing a thing prohibited by statute may amount to an offence though the act does not involve moral wrong, for instance where shippers pay a rate under the honest belief that it is the lawful rate when it is not; Armour Packing Co. v. U. S., 209 U. S. 85, 28 Sup. Ct. 428, 52 L. Ed. 681; a motive can also mean integeneral moral quality or dagent which is a constant pared with particular inductive moral quality or dagent which is a constant pared with particular inductive moral quality or dagent which is a constant pared with particular inductive moral quality or dagent which is a constant pared with particular inductive moral quality or dagent which is a constant pared with particular inductive moral quality or dagent which is a constant pared with particular inductive moral quality or dagent which is a constant pared with particular inductive moral quality or dagent which is a constant pared with particular inductive moral pared with particular inductive moral quality or dagent which is a constant pared with particular inductive moral pared with particular inductive moral quality or dagent which is a constant pared with particular inductive moral quality or dagent which is a constant pared with particular inductive moral quality or dagent which is a constant pared with particular inductive moral quality or dagent which is a constant pared with particular inductive moral quality or dagent which is a constant pared with particular inductive moral quality or dagent which is a constant pared with particular inductive moral quality or dagent which is a constant pared with particular inductive moral quality or dagent which is a constant pared with particular inductive moral quality or dagent which is a constant pared with particular inductive moral quality or dagent which is a constant pared with particular inductive moral quality or dag Torrey v. Field, 10 Vt. 353; U. S. v. Riddle, the contract after the change of rate is un-5 Cra. (U. S.) 311, 3 L. Ed. 110; but see R. availing; id.

When by the common law, or by the provision of a statute, a particular intention is essential to an offence, or a criminal act is attempted but not accomplished, and the evil intent only can be punished, it is necessary to allege the intent with distinctness and precision, and to support the allegations with proof. On the other hand, if the offence does not rest merely in tendency, or in an attempt to do a certain act with a wicked purpose, but consists in doing an unlawful or criminal act, the evil intention will be presumed, and need not be alleged, or, if alleged, it is a mere formal averment, which need not be proved; Com. v. Hersey, 2 Allen (Mass.) 180; 6 East 474; Com. v. Webster, 5 Cush. (Mass.) 306, 52 Am. Dec. 711; State v. Smith, 93 N. C. 516.

This proof may be of external and visible acts and conduct from which the jury may infer the fact; 8 Co. 146; or it may be by proof of an act committed, as, in case of burglary with intent to steal, proof of burglary and stealing is conclusive; 5 C. & P. 510; 2 Mood. & R. 40. When a man intending one wrong fails, and accidentally commits another, he will, except where the particular intent is a substantive part of the crime, be held to have intended the act he did commit; People v. Enoch, 13 Wend. (N. Y.) 159, 27 Am. Dec. 197; Com. v. Call, 21 Pick. (Mass.) 515; U. S. v. Ross, 1 Gall. 624, Fed. Cas. No. 16,196; 1 C. & K. 746.

Where intent is a material ingredient of the crime it is necessary to be averred, but it may always be averred in general terms; Evans v. U. S., 153 U. S. 584, 14 Sup. Ct. 934, 38 L. Ed. 830; 153 U. S. 608, 14 Sup. Ct. 939, 38 L. Ed. 839.

As to when a party can prove his intent under various circumstances, see note in 23 L. R. A. (N. S.) 367.

As to the distinction between intention and motive, see Pollock's First Book of Jurispr. 144, where he defines intention as the wish or desire accompanying an act and having regard not only to the act itself, but to the consequences to be produced; and as including will, but including much more than is commonly understood by will.

As to "motive," external or internal, he points out that external motive is a particular inducement to a course of action, but that motive can also mean internal motive, the general moral quality or disposition of the agent which is a constant element as compared with particular inducements, and gives weight in his deliberation to this or that inducement. The effect of general moral quality or disposition in the process of deliberation or choice is for many purposes more important than the average or objective value of things reputed desirable; this he deems to be the meaning of motive according to the best modern authors.

In Contracts. An intention to enter into | been made, being in direct contrad the contracts is necessary: hence the person must have sufficient mind to enable him to intend.

In Wills. governs unless the thing to be done be opposed to some unbending rule of law; 6 Cruise, Dig. 295; Smith v. Bell, 6 Pet. (U. S.) 68, 8 L. Ed. 322. This intention is to be gathered from the instrument, and from every part of it; 3 Ves. 105; Brown v. Bartlett, 58 N. H. 511; Hinton v. Milburn's Ex'rs, 23 W. Va. 166; Metcalf v. First Parish in Framingham, 128 Mass. 374; Banks v. Jones, 60 Ala. 605; Mather v. Mather, 103 Ill. 607; and from a later clause in preference to an earlier; Woodbury v. Woodbury, 74 Me. 413; Murfitt v. Jessop, 94 Ill. 158; Hemphill v. Moody, 62 Ala. 510.

See Interpretation; Construction; Stat-UTES; WILLS.

INTENTIONE. A writ that lay against him who entered into lands after the death of a tenant in dower, or for life, etc., and held out to him in reversion or remainder. Fitz. N. B. 203.

INTER ALIA (Lat.). Among other things: as, "the said premises, which, inter alia, Titius granted to Caius."

INTER ALIOS (Lat.). Between other parties, who are strangers to the proceeding in question.

INTER APICES JURIS. See APEX JURIS.

INTER CÆTEROS. Among others; in a general clause; not by name (nominatim). A term applied in the civil law to clauses of disinheritance in a will. Inst. 2, 13, 1; id. 2, 13, 3, INTER CANEM ET LUPUM (Lat. between the dog and the wolf). The twilight; because then the dog seeks his rest, and the wolf his prey. Co. 3d Inst. 63.

INTER PARTES (Lat. between the parties). A phrase signifying an agreement professing in the outset, and before any stipulations are introduced, to be made between such and such persons: as, for example, "This indenture, made the -- day of . 1848, between A B of the one part, and C D of the other." It is true that every contract is in one sense inter partes, because to be valid there must be two parties at least; but the technical sense of this expression is as above mentioned; Addison. Contr. 9.

This being a solemn declaration, the effect of such introduction is to make all the covenants comprised in a deed to be covenants between the parties and none others: so that should a stipulation be found in the body of a deed by which "the said A B covenants with E F to pay him one hundred dollars," the words "with E F" are inoperative, unless they have been used to denote Howe, Stud. Civ. L. 252; Dig. 4, 15, for whose benefit the stipulation may have is said by the writers of the Institutes with what was previously declared, and alone can sue for the non-payment; it a maxim that where two opposite inte The intention of the testator are expressed in a contract, the first der shall prevail; 7 M. & W. 63. Bu rule does not apply to simple contracts partes; 2 D. & R. 277.

When there are more than two sides contract inter partes, for example, a des when it is made between A B of the part, C D of the second, and E F of the there is no objection to one covenanting another in exclusion of the third. See 182; 4 Q. B. 207.

INTER SE, INTER SESE (Lat). A themselves. Story, Partn. § 405.

INTER-STATE LAW. See EXTRAD FUGITIVE FROM JUSTICE; COMMERCE; I STATE COMMERCE COMMISSION.

INTER VIVOS (Lat.). Between persons; as a gift inter vivos, which gift made by one living person to an It is a rule that a fee cannot pass by or transfer inter vivos, without appro words of inheritance. 2 Pres. Est. 64 Donatio Mortis Causa; Gifts.

INTERCALARE. In the Civil Law. introduce or insert among or between ers; to introduce a day or month in calendar; to intercalate. Dig. 50, 16, 9

INTERCEDERE. In the Civil Law. become bound for another's debt.

INTERCHANGEABLY. By way o change or interchange. This term pro denotes the method of signing deeds, I contracts, etc., executed in duplicate, each party signs the copy he delivers others.

INTERCOMMON. To enjoy a rig common mutually with the inhabitants contiguous town, vill, or manor. Whe commons of two adjacent manors join the inhabitants of both have immemo fed their cattle promiscuously on each er's common, this is called intercomm 2 Bla. Com. 33; Termes de la Ley.

INTERDICT. In Civil Law. The fo according to which the prætor order forbade anything to be done in a caus cerning true or quasi possession un should be decided definitely who had a to it. But in modern civil law it is a traordinary action, by which a summary sion is had in questions of possession or possession. Heineccius, Elem. Jur. ( 1287. Interdicts are either prohibitor stitutory, or exhibitory; the first being hibition, the second a decree for res possession lost by force, the third a for the exhibiting of accounts, etc.; id.

usage has obtained of calling them all interdicts as they are pronounced between two parties, inter duos dicuntur;" id. Interdicts! were decided by the prætor without the intervention of a judex, differing in this from actions (actiones).

According to Isidorus, however, the derivation is from quod interim dicitur. See Voc. the interdict was preliminary and conservative, and afterwards made final or not according to the result of the litigation. After the disappearance of this procedure "no doubt the remedies remained by the forms of action which succeeded. Some of the most important of these were really injunctions, either prohibitory or mandatory." Stud. Civ. L. 253. Like an injunction, the interdict was merely personal in its effects: and it had also another similarity to it, by being temporary or perpetual. Dig. 43. 1. 1, 3, 4. This similitude prompts the suggestion by the author last quoted, that "it is easy to perceive how they may have been adopted from the Roman and Canon law into the equity practice of England, and thence into that of America;" Howe, Stud. Civ. L. 254. See Story, Eq. Jur. § 865; Halifax, Anal. ch. 6. See Injunction.

la Ecclesiastical Law. An ecclesiastical censure, by which divine services are prohibited either to particular persons or particular places. These tyrannical edicts, issued by ecclesiastical powers, have been abolished in England since the reformation. and were never known in the United States. See 2 Burn, Eccl. Law 340. Baptism was allowed during an interdict; but the eucharist was denied, except in the article of death, and burial in consecrated ground was denied, unless without sacred offices. For the ancient form of an interdict, see Tomlin's L. Dict. h. t.

INTERDICTION. A prohibition of commercial intercourse between the citizens or subjects of the country enacting or proclaiming it and some other specified country or port.

By act of March 1, 1809, congress interdicted commercial intercourse between the United States and Great Britain, and in a case arising under this act, the United States suineans an entire cessation, for the time being, of all trade whatever.

It has been held in England and in this country that interdiction of commerce with the port of destination is not a loss within a policy of marine insurance; 11 East 22;

some (including Gaius) thought that from Ed. 235; Andrews v. Ins. Co., 3 Mas. 6, Fed. the true etymology of the word interdict, it Cas. No. 374; contra, 9 East 283; Olivera v. should be applied only to prohibitory orders, Ins. Co., 3 Wheat. (U. S.) 183, 4 L. Ed. 365; and that those which were restitutory or ex- Thompson v. Read, 12 S. & R. (Pa.) 440; Sihibitory were properly decreta, but that "the monds v. Ins. Co., 1 Wash. C. C. 382, 4 Dall. 417, Fed. Cas. No. 12,875. See 3 Kent 293.

> In Civil Law. A judicial decree, by which a person is deprived of the exercise of his civil rights.

> The condition of the party who labors under this incapacity.

There can be no voluntary interdiction, as erroneously stated by some writers: the Jur. Utr.; Sand. Just. 489; Mackeldey, Civ. status of every person is regulated by the Law §§ 258-64. In the formulary procedure law, and can in no case be affected by contract.

> Interdiction is the civil law proceeding by which, as by inquisition in lunacy (q. v.) under English and American law, a person is found to be incapable of the management of himself and his estate. It is devised for the special protection of the rights and persons of those who are unable to administer them themselves, and although the person interdicted is not permitted to exercise his legal rights, he is by no means deprived of their enjoyment. These rights are exercised for his benefit by a curator, who is held to a strict accountability, and the fidelity of whose administration is secured, in most cases, by a bond of security, and always by a tacif > mortgage on all his property.

>
> By the law of the twelve tables, prodigals alone by the law of the twelve tables, protigats alone could be interdicted. Curators were appointed for those afflicted with mental aberration, idiocy, or incurable diseases, qui perpetuo morbo laborant; but no decree of interdiction was pronounced was pronounced against them. By the modern civil law, prodigality and profligacy are not sufficient reasons for interdiction; but whenever a person is prostrated, either by mental or physical disease, to such a degree as to be permanently disabled from administering his estate, he may be interdicted.

> A decree of interdiction can be pronounced only by the court having jurisdiction of the domicil of the person to be affected. The causes assigned are imbecility, insanity, and madness.

> The application may be by any relative, or wife or husband; or, in case of madness, the public law officer must apply, or in case of imbecility or insanity he may do so. proceeding is by petition; the acts relied on are stated in writing; and the opinion of the family council is taken, the petitioners not participating. The judgment must be given at a public sitting, and, pending the proceedings, temporary administration may be provided for. Even if the application is rejected, the person against whom the proceedings are taken may be forbidden to go to law, compromise, borrow, receive payment of capital or give discharges, conveyances, or mortgages without advice of counsel appointed by the same judgment.

An appeal is provided, and there may be preme court held that the term interdiction another examination. The decree must be duly served and recorded, and posted in the tribunal of birth. From the day of judgment all acts are void, and it may have a retroactive effect, by which previous acts are annulled.

After death a person's sanity can only be Smith v. Ins. Co., 6 Wheat. (U. S.) 176, 5 L. attacked if he has been interdicted, unless the insanity result from the act questioned.

A guardian or curator is appointed, as in case of minors, to which it is by statute assimilated; the husband for his wife, as of right; the wife may be appointed for her husband, in which case the family council husband, in which case the family couregulate the manner of administration.

No one is compelled to act as guardian for more than ten years. The income must be used primarily to better the condition of the interdicted person. If his child marry, the family council fix the dowry. Interdiction ceases with the causes which made it necessary, and it may be withdrawn by proceedings similar to those by which it was obtained.

Such are substantially the rules on the subject of interdiction found in the law of Louisiana and the French Code. They are substantially the same in all the modern codes having the civil law for their basis.

In Louisiana it has been held that mental weakness is not sufficient unless interdiction be necessary for protection of person or property; Interdiction of Watson, 31 La. Ann. 757; the motives of the party applying should be fully investigated; Francke v. His Wife, 29 La. Ann. 302; trial by jury cannot be demanded and judgment may be at chambers: In re Ross, 38 La. Ann. 523; a nonresident cannot be interdicted; Interdiction of Dumas, 32 La. Ann. 679; testimony of experts does not control the court and is of little weight when they had seen defendant only once; Interdiction of Watson, 31 La. Ann. 757; and opinions of non-experts are of little weight; they should state facts; Eloi v. Eloi, 36 La. Ann. 563; costs of proceeding to interdict a wife, include fees of her lawyers, and are a debt of the community; Breaux v. Francke, 30 La. Ann. 336.

A judge may in the exercise of a sound legal discretion, without a special statutory authority, exclude relations from a family meeting to recommend a curator, and he is not restricted to a narrow construction of the term "conflicting interest" in the statute disqualifying persons, having such an interest, for participating in the family meeting; Interdiction of Bothick, 44 La. Ann. 1037, 11 South. 712. In the selection of a curator the family meeting is not limited to applicants, nor to persons suggested by relations of the interdict; id.

in Scotch Law. A legal restraint laid upon persons liable to be imposed upon, though having, to some extent, the exercise of reason, to prevent them from signing any deed affecting heritage, to their own prejudice, without the consent of their curators or interdictors. It is nearly superseded in practice by voluntary trusts. In cases where a trust cannot be obtained, the law relating to unconscionable bargains and to facility and circumvention is usually sufficient protection.

INTERDICTION OF FIRE AND WA Banishment by an order forbidding all sons to supply the person banished wit or water, they being considered the necessaries of life.

INTERDICTUM SALVIANUM (Lat)
Roman Law. The Salvian interdict. A cess which lay for the owner of a far obtain possession of the goods from his ant who had pledged them to him for rent of the land. Inst. 4, 15, 3.

INTERESSE (Lat.). Interest. The est of money; also an interest in land interesse termini (Lat.). An est in the term. The demise of a te land does not vest any estate in the but gives him a mere right of entry cland, which right is called his inter the term, or interesse termini. See Co 46; 2 Bla. Com. 144; 10 Viner, Abr. Dane, Abr. Index; 1 Washb. R. P.

A lessee for years who has never obseisin, was, unless he entered and took possession, deemed to have no estatemerely a contractual interesse termini. entry is still essential to the recovery land in specie; Jenks, Mod. Land L., T If the lessee dies before entry, his execan enter; Co. Litt. 46 b.

INTEREST (Lat. it concerns; it is vantage).

in Contracts. The right of property a man has in a thing. See INSURABLE EST.

On Debts. The compensation wh paid by the borrower of money to the for its use, and, generally, by a deb his creditor in recompense for his det of the debt.

The compensation allowed by law of by the parties to a contract for the forbearance or detention of money. Fi Hoover, 3 Tex. Civ. App. 81, 21 S. W.

Hoover, 3 Tex. Civ. App. 81, 21 S. W. A consideration paid for the use of or for forbearance in demanding it due. Maryland Casualty Co. v. Power 157 Fed. 514, 85 C. C. A. 106.

Legal interest is the rate of interest lished by the law of the country, which prevail in the absence of express stiput conventional interest is a certain agreed upon by the parties. Fow

Smith, 2 Cal. 568.

Interest is a matter of local regulative decisions of state courts are bind the courts of the United States; B John V. Farwell Co., 172 Fed. 58, 96 Courts, where a judgment is rendered to the passage of an act reducing the interest, it draws interest only at duced rate after the act takes effect; C v. Young, 95 N. Y. 428, 47 Am. Rep. 6

It has been said that at common laterest was not allowed; it can be sonly by statute; Pacific Coast S. S.

U. S., 33 Ot. Cl. 36; Sanderson v. Read, 75 Ill. App. 190. On the other hand, a party liable for a principal sum is liable for interest; it is an incident of the debt; Tidbah v. Bank, 100 Va. 741, 42 S. E. 867.

Who is bound to pay interest. The party to a contract who has expressly or impliedly undertaken to pay interest is, of course, bound to do so.

Buecutors; Adams v. Spalding, 12 Conn. 350; Findlay v. Smith, 7 S. & R. (Pa.) 284; administrators; Gwynn v. Dorsey, 4 Gill & J. (Md.) 453; Crowder v. Shackelford, 35 Miss. 321; assignees of bankrupts or insolvents; In re Dyott's Estate, 2 W. & S. (Pa.) 557; but see Thomas v. Car Co., 149 U. S. 95, 13 Sup. Ct. 824, 37 L, Ed. 663; guardians; Royston v. Royston, 29 Ga. 82; and trustees; Fay v. Howe, 1 Pick. (Mass.) 528; Dennis v. Dennis, 15 Md. 75; Royston v. Royston, 29 Ga. 82; Dickinson v. Owen, 11 Cal. 71; who have kept money an unreasonable length of time; Boynton v. Dyer, 18 Pick. (Mass.) 1; Royston v. Royston, 29 Ga. 82; and have made or might have made it productive; Gwynn v. Dorsey, 4 Gill & J. (Md.) 453; Stearns v. Brown, 1 Pick. (Mass.) 530; Lockhart v. Horn, 8 Woods, 542, Fed. Cas. No. 8,446; Bourne v. Maybin, 3 Woods, 724, Fed. Cas. No. 1,700; are chargeable with interest. Where a litigant claiming money as his own, was permitted to collect and retain it, subject only to the order of the court should it afterwards be decided he was not entitled to it, he is chargeable with interest; Kenton Ins. Co. v. Bank, 93 Ky. 129, 19 S. W. 185. When a loan is negotiated, the retention of a portion of it for an unreasonable time entitles the borrower to a rebate of interest; Dodge v. Tulleys, 144 U. S. 451, 12 Sup. Ct. 728, 36 L. Ed. 501.

Who are entitled to receive interest. The lender upon an express or implied contract for interest. Executors, administrators, etc., are in some cases allowed interest for advances made by them on account of the estates under their charge; Jennison v. Hapgood, 10 Pick. (Mass.) 77. The rule has been extended to trustees; Dilworth's Lessee v. Sinderling, 1 Binn. (Pa.) 488, 2 Am. Dec. 469; and compound interest, even, allowed; Barrell v. Joy, 16 Mass. 228.

On what claims allowed. When the debtor expressly undertakes to pay interest, he or his personal representatives having assets are bound to pay it. But if a party has accepted the principal, it has been determined that he cannot recover interest in a separate action; Tillotson v. Preston, 8 Johns. (N. Y.) 229. See Williams v. Craig, 1 Dall. (U. 8.) 315, 1 L. Ed. 153; Blodgett v. Gardiner, 45 Me. 542; Candee v. Webster, 9 Ohio St. 452.

On contracts where, from the course of dealings between the parties, a promise to pay is implied; 3 Brown, Ch. 436; Wood v. | by the courts as damages for the detention

Hickok, 2 Wend. (N. Y.) 501; Parker's Heirs v. Parker's Adm'r, 83 Ala. 459; Veiths v. Hagge, 8 Ia. 163. On account stated or other liquidated sum, whenever the debtor knows precisely what he is to pay and when he is to pay it; 2 Burr. 1085; 2 Cox 219; Mc-Mahon v. R. Co., 20 N. Y. 463; Kellenberger v. Foresman, 13 Ind. 475; Milton v. Blackshear, 8 Fla. 161; Henderson Cotton Mfg. Co. v. Machine Shops, 86 Ky. 668, 7 S. W. 142. But interest is not due for unliquidated damages, or on a running account where the items are all on one side, unless otherwise agreed upon; Van Beuren v. Van Gaasbeck, 4 Cow. (N. Y.) 496; Catlin v. Aiken, 5 Vt. 177; Shewel v. Givan, 2 Blackf. (Ind.) 313; Harrison v. Handley, 1 Bibb (Ky.) 443; Watkins v. Wassell, 20 Ark. 410; Nichols v. Ry. Co., 7 Utah 510, 27 Pac. 693; see Palmer v. Murray, 8 Mont. 312, 21 Pac. 126; but when the damages are to be assessed on the principle of compensation, and with reference to a definite standard, the jury may give additional damages in the nature of interest. This, however, is not strictly interest, but compensation for delay, measured by the rate of interest; Richards v. Gas Co., 130 Pa. 37, 18 Atl. 600. On the arrears of an annuity secured by a specialty; 3 Atk. 579; Addams v. Heffernan, 9 Watts (Pa.) 530; or given in lieu of dower; Elliott v. Beeson, 1 Harr. (Del.) 106; Smyser v. Smyser, 3 W. & S. (Pa.) 437. On bills and notes if payable at a future day certain, after due; 3 D. & B. 70; Rollman v. Baker, 5 Humphr. (Tenn.) 406; Joyner v. Turner, 19 Ark. 690; Ayres v. Hayes, 18 Mo. 252; Ramsdell v. Hulett, 50 Kan. 440, 31 Pac. 1092; if payable on demand, after a demand made; 5 Ves. 133; Nelson v. Cartmel's Adm'r, 6 Dana (Ky.) 7; Pate v. Gray, 1 Hempst. 155, Fed. Cas. No. 10,794a; Maxcy v. Knight, 18 Ala. 300; In re Estate of King, 94 Mich. 411, 54 N. W. 178. See Pullen v. Chase, 4 Ark, 210; Henry v. Roe & Burnside, 83 Tex. 446, 18 S. W. 806. But see Packer v. Roberts, 40 Ill. App. 613, where interest on a note due on demand was held to run from its date. Where the terms of a promissory note are that it shall be payable by instalments, and on the failure of any instalment the whole is to become due, interest on the whole becomes payable from the first default; 4 Esp. 147. Where, by the terms of a bond or a promissory note, interest is to be paid annually, and the principal at a distant day, the interest may be recovered before the principal is due; Sparks v. Garrigues, 1 Binn. (Pa.) 165; Greenleaf v. Kellogg, 2 Mass, 568. An accepted draft bears interest from the time of delivery, when no time of payment is stated therein; Clark v. Loan Ass'n, 65 Hun 625, 20 N. Y. Supp. 363.

When not stipulated for by contract or authorized by statute, interest is allowed of money or property; U. S. v. North Carolina, 136 U. S. 211, 10 Sup. Ct. 920, 34 L. Ed. 336.

On a deposit by a purchaser, which he is entitled to recover back, paid either to a principal or an auctioneer; Sugd. Vend. 327; 5 Taunt. 625. But see 4 Taunt. 334. For goods sold and delivered, after the customary or stipulated term of credit has expired; 2 B. & P. 337; Knox v. Jones, 2 Dall. (Pa.) 193, 1 L. Ed. 345; Bispham v. Pollock, 1 McLean 411, Fed. Cas. No. 1,442; McIlvaine v. Wilkins, 12 N. H. 474; Parke v. Foster, 26 Ga. 465, 71 Am. Dec. 221; Veiths v. Hagge, 8 Ia. 163.

Where goods are sold on a definite term of credit, interest runs from the date when the account becomes due, unless there are deductions or discounts to be adjusted; Harding, Whitman & Co. v. Knitting Mills, 142 Fed. 228; and so, where a tradesman regularly charges interest on an open account and the purchaser makes no objection thereto, an agreement to pay interest will be inferred; [1901] 2 Ch. 548.

On judgment debts; 2 Ves. 162. In a judgment on sci. fa. the interest is calculated on the old judgment and the new judgment entered for a lump sum; Berrybill v. Wells, 5 Binn. (Pa.) 61; Gwinn v. Whitaker's Adm'x, 1 H. & J. (Md.) 754; Sayre v. Austin, 3 Wend. (N. Y.) 496; Verree v. Hughes, 11 N. J. L. 91; Benjamin v. Bartlett, 3 Mo. 86; Marshall v. Dudley, 4 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 244. On judgments affirmed in a higher court; 4 Burr. 2128; 2 Campb. 428, n. See Lord v. City of New York, 3 Hill (N. Y.) 426; Nashua & L. R. Corp. v. R. Corp., 61 Fed. 237, 9 C. C. A. 468. In an accounting for profits made by selling an article contrary to contract, interest should be allowed; Fowle v. Park, 48 Fed. 789; also on the amount found as damages for breach of contract; Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. McCarty, 82 Tex. 608, 18 S. W. 716. On moncy obtained by fraud, or where it has been wrongfully detained; Reid v. Glass Factory, 3 Cow. (N. Y.) 426. On money paid by mistake, or recovered on a void execution; Winslow v. Hathaway, 1 Pick. (Mass.) 212; King v. Diehl, 9 S. & R. (Pa.) 409; Ricketson v. Wright, 3 Sumn. 336, Fed. Cas. No. 11,805; Leach v. Vining, 64 Hun 632, 18 N. Y. Supp. 822; see Gould v. Emerson, 160 Mass. 438, 35 N. E. 1065, 39 Am. St. Rep. 501. On moncy lent or laid out for another's use; 2 W. Bla. 761; Rapelie v. Emory, 1 Dall. (Pa.) 349, 1 L. Ed. 170; Upshaw v. Upshaw, 2 Hen. & M. (Va.) 381, 3 Am. Dec. 632; People v. Gasherie, 9 Johns. (N. Y.) 71, 6 Am. Dec. 263; Selleck v. French, 1 Conn. 32, 6 Am. Dec. 185; Fowler v. Shearer, 7 Mass. 14; Chamberlain v. Smith's Adm'rs, 1 Mo. 718. On money had and received after demand; Porter v. Nash, 1 Ala. 452; Hawkins v. Johnson, 4 Blackf. (Ind.) 21; Hackleman v. in an action for causing its death; St. Louis, I. M. & S. Ry. v. Biggs, 50 Ark. 169, 6 S. W. 724; Township of Plymouth v. Graver, 125 Pa. 24, 17 Atl. 249, 11 Am. St. Rep. 867. On purchase-money which has lain dead, where the vendor cannot make a title; Sugd. Vend. 327. On purchase-money remaining in purchaser's hands to pay off incumbrances; 1 Sch. & L. 134. On taxes wrongfully collected; County of Galveston v. Gas Co., 72 Tex. 509, 10 S. W. 583. See Boott Cotton Mills v. City of Lowell, 159 Mass. 383, 34 N. E. 367. Rent in arrear due by covenant bears interest, unless under special circumstances. which may be recovered in action; Obermyer v. Nichols, 6 Binn. (Pa.) 159, 6 Am. Dec. 439. See West v. Weyer, 46 Ohio St. 66, 18 N. E. 537, 15 Am. St. Rep. 552; but no distress can be made for such interest; Bantleon v. Smith, 2 Binn. (Pa.) 146, 4 Am. Dec. 430. Interest cannot, however, be recovered for arrears of rent payable in wheat; Van Rensselaer's Ex'rs v. Platner's Adm'rs, 1 Johns. (N. Y.) 276. See Graham v. Woodson, 2 Call. (Va.) 249; Cooke v. Wise, 3 Hen. & M. (Va.) 463.

Interest cannot be recovered as damages for the detention of the principal, after the principal sum has been paid; Stewart v. Barnes, 153 U. S. 456, 14 Sup. Ct. 849, 38 L. Ed. 781. Where interest is recoverable, not as a part of the contract, but by way of damages, if the plaintiff has been guilty of laches in unreasonably delaying the prosecution of his claim, it may be properly withheld; U. S. v. Sanborn, 135 U. S. 271, 10 Sup. Ct. 812, 34 L. Ed. 112. Interest allowed for non-payment of a judgment is in the nature of statutory damages; Morley v. R. Co., 146 U. S. 162, 13 Sup. Ct. 54, 36 L. Ed. 925.

On legacies. On specific legacies it has been held that interest is to be calculated from the date of the death of the testator; 2 Ves. Sen. 563; Shobe's Ex'rs v. Carr, 3 Munf. (Va.) 10; so on a gift of a fund in trust to pay the income to a sister for life; In re Hilyard's Estate, 5 W. & S. (Pa.) 30.

A general legacy, when the time of payment is not named by the testator, is not payable till the end of one year after testator's death, at which time the interest commences to run; 1 Sch. & L. 10; Eyre v. Golding, 5 Binn. (Pa.) 475; Wood v. Hammond, 16 R. I. 98, 17 Atl. 324, 18 Atl. 198; Couch v. Eastham, 29 W. Va. 784, 3 S. E. 23; and this is so whether the will has been proved during the year or not; Ogden v. Pattee, 149 Mass. 82, 21 N. E. 227, 14 Am. St. Rep. 401. Where only the interest is given, no payment will be due till the end of the second year; 7 Ves. 89. As a general rule pecuniary legacies do not bear interest till they are payable (one year after testator's death); Appeal of Townsend, 106 Pa. 268, 51 Am. Rep. 523.

Porter v. Nash, 1 Ala. 452; Hawkins v. Johnson, 4 Blackf. (Ind.) 21; Hackleman v. Moat, id. 164. On the value of an animal interest is not allowed before the arrival of the appointed period of payment, and that notwithstanding the legacies are vested; Prec. in Ch. 337. But when that period arrives, the legatee will be entitled although the legacy be charged upon a dry reversion; 2 Atk. 108. See, also, 1 Cox, Ch. 133. When the executor can pay a legacy without any possible inconvenience to the estate, it has been held that interest begins to run at once; Van Rensselaer v. Van Rensselaer, 113 N. Y. 207, 21 N. E. 75. When a legacy is given payable at a future day with interest, and the legatee dies before it becomes payable, the arrears of the interest up to the time of his death must be paid to his personal representatives; McClel. 141. And a bequest of a sum to be paid annually for life bears interest from the death of testator; Eyre v. Golding, 5 Binn. (Pa.) 475; Flickwir's Estate, 26 W. N. C. (Pa.) 374; and so also for a legacy of income for the support and maintenance of the legatee: Appeal of Townsend, 106 Pa. 268, 51 Am. Rep. 523; especially is this so when the legacy is to be paid by the executors transferring to the trustees for the legatee interest-bearing securities belonging to the testator's estate: id.

Where the legatee is a child of the testator, or one towards whom he has placed himself in loco parentis, the legacy bears interest from the testator's death, whether it be particular or residuary, vested but payable at a future time, or contingent if the child have no maintenance. In that case the court will do what in common presumption the father would have done-provide necessaries for the child; 2 P. Wms. 31; 1 Dick. Ch. 310; 2 Brown, Ch. 59; Davison v. Rake, 44 N. J. Eq. 506, 16 Atl. 227. In case of a child en ventre sa mère at the time of the father's death, interest is allowed only from its birth; 2 Cox, Ch. 425. Where maintenance or interest is given by the will, and the rate specified, the legatee will not, in general, be entitled to claim more than thè maintenance or rate specified; 3 Atk. 697, 716; 3 Ves. 286, n. And see further, as to interest in cases of legacies to children; 15 Ves. 363; 4 Madd. 275; 1 P. Wms. 783; 3 V. & B. 183.

Interest is not allowed by way of maintenance to any other person than the legitimate children of the testator; 3 Ves. 10; 4 id. 1; unless the testator has put himself in loco parentis; 1 Sch. & L. 5, 6. A wife; 15 Ves. 301; a niece; 3 Ves. 10; a grandchild; 1 Cox, Ch. 133; are, therefore, not entitled to interest by way of maintenance. See 2 Wms. Exec. 743. Nor is a legitimate child entitled to such interest if he have a maintenance, although it may be less than the amount of the interest of the legacy; 1 Sch. & L. 5; 3 Ves. 17. But see In re Bostwick, 4 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 103; 2 Roper, Leg. 202; Appeal of Townsend, 106 Pa. 268, 51 Am. Rep. 523, cited above.

ed, is fairly inferable from the will, interest will be allowed; 1 Swanst. 561, n.

Interest is not allowed for maintenance, although given by immediate bequest for maintenance, if the parent of the legatee, who is under moral obligation to provide for him, be of sufficient ability: so that the interest will accumulate for the child's benefit until the principal becomes payable; 3 Atk. 399; 1 Brown, Ch. 386; 3 id. 60, 416. But to this rule there are some exceptions; 3 Ves. 730; 4 Brown, Ch. 223; 4 Madd. 275,

Where a fund, particular or residuary, is given upon a contingency, the intermediate interest undisposed of-that is to say, the intermediate interest between the testator's death, if there be no previous legatee for life, or, if there be, between the death of the previous taker and the happening of the contingency-will sink into the residue for the benefit of the next of kin, or executor of the testator, if not bequeathed by him; but if not disposed of, for the benefit of his residuary legatee; 1 Brown, Ch. 57; 2 Atk. 329.

Where a legacy is given by immediate bequest, whether such legacy be particular or residuary, and there is a condition to divest it upon the death of the legatee under twenty-one, or upon the happening of some other event, with a limitation over, and the legatee dies before twenty-one, or before such other event happens, which nevertheless does take place, yet, as the legacy was payable at the end of the year after the testator's death, the legatee's representatives, and not the legatee over, will be entitled to the interest which accrued during the legatee's life, until the happening of the event which was to divest the legacy; 1 P. Wms. 501; 5 Ves. 335, 522.

Where a residue is given, so as to be vested, but not payable at the end of the year from the testator's death, but upon the legatee's attaining twenty-one, or upon any other contingency, and with a bequest over divesting the legacy, upon the legatee's dying under age, or upon the happening of the contingency, then the legatee's representatives in the former case, and the legatee himself in the latter, shall be entitled to the interest that became due during the legatee's life or until the happening of the contingency; 2 P. Wms. 419; 1 Brown, Ch. 81, 335; 3 Mer. 335.

Where a residue of personal estate is given, generally, to one for life with remainder over, and no mention is made by the testator respecting the interest, nor any intention to the contrary to be collected from the will, the rule appears to be settled that the person taking for life is entitled to interest from the death of the testator, on such part of the residue bearing interest as is not necessary for the payment of debts. And it is Where an intention, though not express immaterial whether the residue is only given generally, or directed to be laid out, with all convenient speed, in funds or securities, or to be laid out in lands. See 6 Ves. 520; 9 id. 89, 549, 553. Interest, in case of a remainder in an estate in money, does not run until the death of the life tenant; McCook v. Harp, 81 Ga. 229, 7 S. E. 174.

But where a residue is directed to be laid out in land, to be settled on one for life, with the remainder over, and the testator directs the interest to accumulate in the mean time until the money is laid out in land, or otherwise invested on security, the accumulation shall cease at the end of one year from the testator's death, and from that period the tenant for life shall be entitled to the interest; 6 Ves. 520; 2 S. & S. 396. Where a gift is made of the residue of the testator's estate to one person for life, and the principal is given over to another one at the death of the life tenant, the legatee is entitled to interest from the testator's death; Davison

v. Rake, 44 N. J. Eq. 506, 16 Atl. 227. Where no time of payment is mentioned by the testator, annuities are considered as commencing from the death of the testator; and, consequently, the first payment will be due at the end of the year from that event; if, therefore, it be not made then, interest, in those cases wherein it is allowed at all, must be computed from that period; Eyre v. Golding, 5 Binn. (Pa.) 475. See Saunderson v. Stearns, 6 Mass. 37; 1 Hare & W. Lead. Cas. 350.

How much interest is to be allowed. to time. In actions for money had and received, interest is allowed from the date of service of the writ; Hunt v. Nevers, 15 Pick. (Mass.) 500, 26 Am. Dec. 616; McIlvaine v. Wilkins, 12 N. H. 474. See U. S. v. Curtis, 100 U. S. 119, 25 L. Ed. 571. On debts payable on demand, interest is payable only from the demand; Hunt v. Nevers, 15 Pick. (Mass.) 500, 26 Am. Dec. 616; Wells v. Abernethy, 5 Conn. 222; Pope v. Barrett, 1 Mas. 117, Fed. Cas. No. 11,273. The words "with interest for the same" carry interest from date; 1 Stark. 452, 507; Horn v. Hansen, 56 Minn. 43, 57 N. W. 315, 22 L. R. A. Interest upon a quantum meruit for services rendered, does not begin to run until a demand is made; Farr v. Semple, 81 Wis. 230, 51 N. W. 319. It is allowed on the amount found as damages for breach of contract, from the date they accrued; Gulf, Colorado & S. F. Ry. Co. v. McCarty, 82 Tex. 608, 18 S. W. 716. Interest coupons bear interest from maturity of the coupons; Town of Solon v. Bank, 114 N. Y. 122, 21 N. E. 168; Cairo v. Zane, 149 U. S. 122, 13 Sup. Ct. 803, 37 L. Ed. 673; Scotland County v. Hill, 132 U. S. 107, 10 Sup. Ct. 26, 33 L. Ed. 261. See Coupons.

Interest on a dividend declared by a receiver should be allowed from the time it was declared and ought to have been paid; Armstrong v. Bank, 133 U. S. 433, 10 Sup. | manded beyond the principal sum, and bility of shareholders to creditors of tional bank from the time it goes into dation; Richmond v. Irons, 121 U. S. Sup. Ct. 788, 30 L. Ed. 864. Interest may be computed from the mencement of an action for the balan on a general account and the enforce of lien; North v. La Flesh, 73 Wis. 5 N. W. 633; Tootle v. Wells, 39 Kan. 4 Pac. 692.

Ct. 450, 33 L. Ed. 747. Interest runs

The general rule is that interest payable until the principal is due. the parties contract otherwise; Hutch Dixon, 11 Md. 32. On a note payable before three years after date with in at 8 per cent. per annum, the interest be paid at maturity; Ramsdell v. Hul Kan. 440, 31 Pac. 1092; Tanner v. 1 ment Co., 12 Fed. 646; Koehring v. minghoff, 61 Mo. 403, 21 Am. Rep. 402 tra, Cook v. Wiles, 42 Mich. 439, 4 N. V where the interest was held to be p each year.

The mere circumstance of war ex between two nations is not a sufficient son for abating interest on debts due subjects of one belligerent to another; ican Ins. Co. v. Canten, 1 Pet. (U. S. 7 L. Ed. 242; Paul v. Christie, 4 H. & (Md.) 161. But a prohibition of all course with an enemy during war fur a sound reason for the abatement of est until the return of peace; Hoare len, 2 Dall. (Pa.) 102, 1 L. Ed. 307; Fo v. Nagle, 2 Dall. (Pa.) 132, 1 L. Ed. 319 niston v. Imbrie, 3 Wash. C. C. 396, Fed No. 3,802; Sims v. Willing, 8 S. & R.

infra. A debt barred by the statute of tions and revived by an acknowled bears interest for the whole time; Wi v. Finney, 16 Vt. 297. · As to the allowance of simple and pound interest. Interest upon inter not allowed, except in special cases; Cas. Abr. 287; Birchard v. Knapp's I 31 Vt. 679; Stokely v. Thompson, 34 Pa and the uniform current of decision against it, as being a hard, oppressive tion, and tending to usury; Connecti Jackson, 1 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 14, 7 Am 471; Kennon v. Dickius, 1 N. C. 522, Dec. 642; Wheelock v. Moulton, 13 Vt Levens v. Briggs, 21 Or. 333, 28 Pac. L. R. A. 188; but interest on interest n allowed if agreed upon after the intercomes due; Barbour v. Tompkins, Va. 410, 7 S. E. 1; Merck v. Mortgag both interest on the principal and on t terest are computed at the maximum allowed by law; id. By the civil law, interest could not

1103; Bean v. Chapman, 62 Ala. 58.

79 Ga. 213, 7 S. E. 265; Sanford v.

quist, 80 Neb. 414, 118 N. W. 129; t

Digitized by Google

ments exceeding that amount were applied | to the extinguishment of the principal; Ridley's Views of the Civil, etc., Law 84.

Where a partner has overdrawn the partnership funds, and refuses, when called upon to account, to disclose the profits, recourse would be had to compound interest as a substitute for the profits he might reasonably be supposed to have made; Stoughton v. Lynch, 2 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 213.

When executors, administrators, or trustees convert the trust-money to their own use, or employ it in business or trade, or fail to invest, they have been charged with compound interest; Fay v. Howe, 1 Pick. (Mass.) 528; Schieffelin v. Stewart, 1 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 620, 7 Am. Dec. 507. Nothing but very culpable conduct will justify the compounding of interest against an administrator; Alvis v. Oglesby, 87 Tenn. 172, 10 S. W. 313; Cranson v. Wilsey, 71 Mich. 356, 39 N. Interest cannot ordinarily be compounded against a guardian; In re Ward's Estate, 73 Mich. 220, 41 N. W. 431; Peelle v. State, 118 Ind. 512, 21 N. E. 288; but it may be in some cases; Latham v. Wilcox, 99 N. C. 367, 6 S. E. 711.

In actions for negligence, interest cannot be allowed by the jury as such, but they may, in computing their verdict, consider the lapse of time since the cause of action arose; Plymouth Tp. v. Graver, 125 Pa. 24, 11 Atl. 249, 11 Am. St. Rep. 867. The question of allowances of interest on damages for tort is for the jury. They should not be directed to allow it; Brent v. Thornton, 106 Fed. 35, 45 C. C. A. 214. Interest may be recovered for the wrongful conversion of personal property, computed from the time of the conversion; Drumm-Flato Commission Co. v. Edmisson, 208 U. S. 534, 28 Sup. Ct. 367, 52 L. Ed. 606.

In an action to recover the annual interest due on a promissory note, interest will be allowed on each year's interest until paid; Greenleaf v. Kellogg, 2 Mass. 568; Catlin v. Lyman, 16 Vt. 45; Talliaferro's Ex'rs v. King's Adm'r, 9 Dana (Ky.) 331, 35 Am. Dec. 140; Gibbes v. Chisolm, 2 N. & McC. (S. C.) 38, 10 Am. Dec. 560; Bledsoe v. Nixon, 69 N. C. 89, 12 Am. Rep. 642; Cramer v. Lepper, 28 Ohio St. 59, 20 Am. Rep. 756; Calhoun v. Marshall, 61 Ga. 275, 34 Am. Rep. 101; contra, Hastings v. Wiswall, 8 Mass. 455; Ferry v. Ferry, 2 Cush. (Mass.) 92; Sparks v. Garrigues, 1 Binn. (Pa.) 152, 165; Young v. Hill, 67 N. Y. 162, 23 Am. Rep. 99.

A note which provides for a rate of interest, but omits to provide for the rate of interest after maturity, draws the legal rate; Brewster v. Wakefield. 22 How. (U. S.) 118, 16 L. Ed. 301; Holden v. Trust Co., 100 U. S. 72, 25 L. Ed, 567; Burns v. Anderson, 68 Ind. 202, 34 Am. Rep. 250; 42 L. J. Rep. N. S. 666; Holbrook v. Sims, 39 Minn. 122, 39 N. W. 74, 140; Everett v. Dilley, 39 Kan. 73, 17 584, 19 L. R. A. (N. S.) 83.

Pac. 661; Ferris v. Hard, 135 N. Y. 354, 32 N. E. 129; but a different view has been held; Brannon v. Hursell, 112 Mass. 63; Mayor & Aldermen of Jersey City v. O'Callaghan, 41 N. J. L. 349. See, as to charging compound interest, Barrow v. Rhinelander, 1 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 550; Sparks v. Garrigues, 1 Binn. (Pa.) 165; Brown v. Brent, 1 Hen. & M. (Pa.) 4; Lewis's Ex'r v. Bacon's Legatee, 3 Hen. & M. (Va.) 89; 1 Viner, Abr. 457, Interest (C); Com. Dig. Chancery (3 S 3); 1 Hare & W. Lead. Cas. 371. An infant's contract to pay interest on interest after it has accrued will be binding upon him when the contract is for his benefit; 1 Eq. Cas. Abr. 286; 1 Atk. 489; 3 id. 613. The including in a note payable a year after date with a certain rate of interest, until paid, of a year's interest, is not compounding interest; Foard v. Grinter's Ex'rs (Ky.) 18 S. W. 1034. As to interest on interest coupons, see infra.

As limited by the penalty of a bond. It is a general rule that the penalty of a bond limits the amount of the recovery; 2 Term But in some cases the interest is recoverable beyond the amount of the penalty; U. S. v. Gurney, 4 Cra. (U. S.) 333, 2 L. Ed. 638; Fake v. Eddy's Ex'r, 15 Wend. (N. Y.) 76; Lewis v. Dwight, 10 Conn. 95; Bank of U. S. v. Magill, Paine, 661, Fed. Cas. No. 929; Potter v. Webb, 6 Greenl. (Me.) 14; Judge of Probate v. Heydock, 8 N. H. 491. The recovery depends on principles of law, and not on the arbitrary discretion of a jury; Smedes v. Hooghtaling, 3 Caines (N. Y.) 49, 2 Am. Dec. 250.

The exceptions are—where the bond is to account for moneys to be received; 2 Term 388; where the plaintiff is kept out of his money by writs of error; 2 Burr. 1094; or delayed by injunction; 1 Vern. 349; 16 Viner, Abr. 303; if the recovery of the debt be delayed by the obligor; 6 Ves. 92; 1 Vern. 349; if extraordinary emoluments are derived from holding the money; 2 Bro. P. C. 251; or the bond is taken only as a collateral security; 2 Bro. P. C. 333; or the action be on a judgment recovered on a bond; 1 East See, also, Carter v. Carter, 4 Day (Conn.) 30, 4 Am. Dec. 177; Smedes v. Hooghtaling, 3 Caines (N. Y.) 49, 2 Am. Dec. 250; Harris v. Clap, 1 Mass. 308, 2 Am. Dec. 27; Com. Dig. Chancery (3 S 2); Viner, Abr. Interest (E).

But these exceptions do not obtain in the administration of the debtor's assets where his other creditors might be injured by allowing the bond to be rated beyond the penalty; 5 Ves. 329. See Viner, Abr. Interest (C 5).

Interest may be added to the amount of recovery on a bond although the total sum exceeds the penalty thereof; American Surety Co. v. Surety Co., 81 Conn. 252, 70 Atl.

Upon a bond given to appear in a United States court to answer to an indictment, no interest can be recovered; U.S. v. Broadhead, 127 U. S. 212, 8 Sup. Ct. 1191, 32 L. Ed. 147.

As to the allowance of foreign interest. The rate of interest of the place of performance is to be allowed, where such place is specified; De Wolf v. Johnson, 10 Wheat. (U. S.) 367, 6 L. Ed. 343; Scofield v. Day, 20 Johns. (N. Y.) 102; Braynard v. Marshall, 8 Pick. (Mass.) 194; Hawley v. Sloo, 12 La. Ann. 815; Thomas v. Beckman, 1 B. Monr. (Ky.) 29; Archer v. Dunn, 2 W. & S. (Pa.) 327; Austin v. Imus, 23 Vt. 286; Vinson v. Platt, 21 Ga. 135; Whitlock v. Castro, 22 Tex. 108; Davis v. Coleman, 29 N. C. 424; 5 C. & F. 1; otherwise, of the place of making the contract; 11 Ves. 314; Winthrop v. Carleton, 12 Mass. 4; Ingraham v. Arnold, 1 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 406; Arrington v. Gee, 27 N. C. 590; Fanning v. Consequa, 17 Johns. (N. Y.) 511, 8 Am. Dec. 442; Lapice v. Smith, 13 La. 91, 33 Am. Dec. 555; Smith v. Mead. 3 Conn. 253, 8 Am. Dec. 183; Hill v. George, 5 Tex. 87; Wheeler v. Pope, id. 262. But the rate of interest of either place may be reserved; and this provision will govern, if an honest transaction and not a cover for usury; Mullen v. Morris, 2 Pa. 85; Peck v. Mayo, 14 Vt. 33, 39 Am. Dec. 205; Depau v. Humphreys, 8 Mart. N. S. (La.) 1; Van Schaick v. Edwards, 2 Johns. Cas. (N. Y.) 355; De Wolf v. Johnson, 10 Wheat. (U. S.) 367, 6 L. Ed. 343. Coupons, after their maturity, bear interest at the rate fixed by the law of the place where they are payable, where there is no stipulation as to the rate after maturity; Cairo v. Zane, 149 U. S. 122, 13 Sup. Ct. 803, 37 L. Ed. 673; Scotland County v. Hill, 132 U. S. 107, 10 Sup. Ct. 26, 33 L. Ed. 261. See also Dicey, Confl. L., Moore's ed. 616, 625.

How computed. In casting interest on notes, bonds, etc., upon which partial payments have been made, every payment is to be first applied to keep down the interest; but the interest is never allowed to form a part of the principal so as to carry interest; Smith v. Shaw, 2 Wash. C. C. 167, Fed. Cas. No. 13,107; Meredith v. Banks, 6 N. J. L. 408; Anonymous, 3 N. C. 17; Dean v. Williams, 17 Mass. 417; Treat v. Stanton, 14 Conn. 445; Woodward v. Jewell, 140 U. S. 247, 11 Sup. Ct. 784, 35 L. Ed. 478.

When a partial payment exceeds the amount of interest due when it is made, it is correct to compute the interest to the time of the first payment, add it to the principal, subtract the payment, cast interest on the remainder to the time of the second payment, add it to the remainder, and subtract the second payment, and in like manner from one payment to another, until the time of judgment; Perl. Int. 168; Fay v. Bradley, 1 he cannot recover the interest in a separate Pick. (Mass.) 194; Lightfoot v. Price, 4 Hen. action; 1 Esp. 110; Tillotson v. Preston, 3

& M. (Va.) 431; Com. v. Vanderslice, 8 S. & R. (Pa.) 458; Smith v. Shaw, 2 Wash. (C. C.) 167, Fed. Cas. No. 13,107. See Williams v. Houghtaling, 3 Cow. (N. Y.) 86. The same rule applies to judgments; Hodgdon v. Hodgdon, 2 N. H. 169; Com. v. Vanderslice, 8 S. & R. (Pa.) 452.

Where a partial payment is made before the debt is due, it cannot be apportioned part to the debt and part to the interest. As, if there be a bond for one hundred dollars, payable in one year, and at the expiration of six months fifty dollars be paid in, this payment shall not be apportioned part to the principal and part to the interest, but at the end of the year, interest shall be charged on the whole sum, and the obligor shall receive credit for the interest of fifty dollars for six months; Tracy v. Wikoff, 1 Dall. (Pa.) 124, 1 L. Ed. 65.

A secured creditor of a bankrupt, selling his securities after the filing of the petition, must apply the proceeds, other than interest and dividends accrued since the filing, first to pay the debt with interest to date of petition, and not first to pay interest accrued since the petition. Interest and dividends accrued after the filing can be applied to interest on the debt accrued after the filing. This is also the English rule; Sexton v. Dreyfus, 219 U. S. 339, 31 Sup. Ct. 256, 55 L. Ed.

When interest will be barred. When the money due is tendered to the person entitled to it, and he refuses to receive it, the interest ceases; 3 Campb. 296; Loomis v. Knox, 60 Conn. 343, 22 Atl. 771; Riley v. McNamara, 83 Tex. 11, 18 S. W. 141. See Cheney v. Libby, 134 U. S. 68, 10 Sup. Ct. 498, 33 L. Ed. 818. A tender by a junior mortgagee to a senior mortgagee of the amount due on the senior mortgage, with accrued costs of foreclosure, does not, unless kept good, prevent the running of interest; Nelson v. Loder, 132 N. Y. 288, 30 N. E. 369.

Where the plaintiff was absent in foreign parts beyond seas, evidence of that fact may be given in evidence to the jury on the plea of payment, in order to extinguish the interest during such absence; McCall v. Turner, 1 Call. (Va.) 133; Blake's Ex'rs v. Quash's Ex'rs, 3 McCord (S. C.) 340; Borland v. Sharp, 1 Root (Conn.) 178. But see Schaeffer's Estate, 9 S. & R. (Pa.) 263.

Whenever the law prohibits the payment of the principal, interest during the prohibition is not demandable; Hoare v. Allen, 2 Dall. (Pa.) 102, 1 L. Ed. 307; Foxcraft v. Nagle, 2 Dall. (Pa.) 132, 1 L. Ed. 319; Crawford v. Willing, 4 Dall. (Pa.) 286, 1 L. Ed. 836. Where payment has been prevented by war, interest cannot be recovered; Selden v. Preston, 11 Bush (Ky.) 191. See supra.

If the plaintiff has accepted the principal,

Johns. (N. Y.) 229. ards, 14 Wend. 116.

For or against Government or State. Interest is not to be awarded against a sovereign government, unless its consent has been manifested by an act of its legislature or by a lawful contract of its executive officers; U. S. v. North Carolina, 136 U. S. 211, 10 Sup. Ct. 920, 34 L. Ed. 336. The U. S. is not liable to pay interest or claims against it, in the absence of express statutory provision therefor; U. S. v. Bayard, 127 U. S. 251, 8 Sup. Ct. 1156, 32 L. Ed. 159; Wightman v. U. S., 23 Ct. Cl. 144; U. S. v. Verdier, 164 U. S. 213, 17 Sup. Ct. 42, 41 L. Ed. 407; but this does not apply to subordinate governmental agencies (The National Home); National Volunteer Home v. Parrish, 229 U. S. 494, 33 Sup. Ct. 944, 57 L. Ed. 1296; interest must be allowed to the United States under U. S. R. S. § 966; id. A city is not liable for interest on its loans, after maturity, if it has provided funds to pay them; Friend v. ! City of Pittsburgh, 131 Pa. 305, 18 Atl. 1060, 6 L. R. A. 636, 17 Am. St. Rep. 811.

A general interest statute cannot be applied as against a county, and in an action clent; 5 Term 174; Butler v. Warren, 11 to recover taxes wrongfully exacted, interest cannot be recovered; Jackson County Com'rs v. Kaul, 77 Kan. 715, 96 Pac. 45, 17 L. R. A. (N. S.) 552.

the penalty is variously fixed by the different states. See Usury.

In Practice. Concern; advantage; benefit. Such a relation to the matter in issue as creates a liability to pecuniary gain or loss from the event of the suit. Inhabitants of Northampton v. Smith, 11 Metc. (Mass.) 395,

When used as a criterion of the proper parties to a suit it means interest in the object, not interest in the subject-matter; Penn v. Bahnson, 89 Va. 253, 15 S. E. 586.

A person may be disqualified to act as a judge, juror, or witness in a cause by reason of an interest in the subject-matter in dis-As to the disqualifying interest of judges, see Judge; as to the disqualifying interest of jurors, see CHALLENGE.

The old rule that interest disqualifies a witness has been abolished here and in England by statute. The only question now is one of credibility with the jury. A few cases may be given for historical reasons.

An interest disqualifying a witness must be legal, as contradistinguished from mere prejudice or bias arising from relationship, friendship, or any of the numerous motives by which a witness may be supposed to be influenced; 2 Hawk. Pl. Cr. 46, s. 25; must be present; Gilkinson v. The Scotland, 14 La. Ann. 417; Paxton v. Paxton, 38 W. Va. 616, 18 S. E. 765; must be certain, vested, and not uncertain and contingent: 2 P. Wms.

See Kellogg v. Rich- v. McKinnon, 25 Ga. 337; Millett v. Parker, 2 Metc. (Ky.) 608; Dundas v. Muhlenberg's Ex'rs, 35 Pa. 351; must be an interest in the event of the cause, or the verdict must be lawful evidence for or against him in another suit, or the record must be an instrument of evidence for or against him; Bass v. Peevey, 22 Tex. 295; Van Nuys v. Ter-hune, 3 Johns. Cas. (N. Y.) 83. But an interest in the question does not disqualify the witness; People v. Howell, 4 Johns. (N. Y.) 302; Miles v. O'Hara, 1 S. & R. (Pa.) 32; Baring v. Reeder, 1 Hen. & M. (Va.) 165, 168; or the fact that he has a case of the same kind pending; Warren v. McGill, 103 Cal. 153, 37 Pac. 144.

An attorney will under most circumstances be permitted to testify in behalf of his client; but the courts do not look with favor upon the practice; Follansbee v. Walker, 72 Pa. 229, 13 Am. Rep. 671. See Mealer v. State, 32 Tex. Cr. R. 102, 22 S. W. 142. Probably the test would lie in his withdrawal from the case.

The magnitude of the interest is altogether immaterial; a liability for costs is suffi-Johns. (N. Y.) 57.

Interest will not disqualify a person as a witness if he has an equal interest on both sides; 7 Term. 480; Wright v. Nichols, 1 For exceeding the legal rates of interest Bibb (Ky.) 298; Cushman v. Loker, 2 Mass. 108; Cameron v. Paul, 6 Pa. 322; Hidell v. Dwinell, 89 Ga. 532, 16 S. E. 79.

> INTEREST, MARITIME. See MARITIME INTEREST.

> INTEREST OR NO INTEREST. A provision in a policy of insurance, which imports that the policy is to be good though the insured have no insurable interest in the subject-matter. This constitutes a wager policy, which is bad by statute 19 Geo. II. c. 37, and generally, from the policy of the law; 2 Par. Mar. Law 89, note. See Insurable INTEREST; POLICY.

INTERFERENCE. See PATENTS.

INTERIM (Lat.). In the mean time; meanwhile. An assignee ad interim is one appointed between the time of bankruptcy and appointment of the regular assignee. 2 Bell, Com. 355.

INTERIM CURATOR. A person appointed by justices of the peace to take care of the property of a felon convict until the appointment by the Crown of an administrator or administrators for the same purpose. Moz. & W.

INTERIM ORDER. An order to take effect provisionally, or until further directions. The expression is used especially with reference to orders given pending an appeal. Usually, ad interim.

INTERLAQUEARE. In Old Practice. To 287; Ely v. Forward, 7. Mass. 25; Edwards link together, or interchangeably. Writs and bears no evidence on its face of h

called interlaqueata where several | handwriting with the original instru were issued against several parties residing in different counties, each party being summoned by a separate writ to warrant the tenant, together with the other warrantors. Fleta, lib. 5, c. 4, § 2.

INTERLINEATION. Writing between two lines.

Interlineations are made either before or after the execution of an instrument. Those made before should be noted previously to its execution; those made after are made either by the party in whose favor they are, or by strangers.

When made by the party himself, whether the interlineation be material or immaterial, they render the deed void; Cutts v. U. S., 1 Gall. 71, Fed. Cas. No. 3,522; Hunt v. Gray, 35 N. J. L. 227, 10 Am. Rep. 232; unless made with the consent of the opposite party. See 11 Co. 27 a; Hatch v. Hatch, 9 Mass. 307, 6 Am. Dec. 67; Jackson v. Malin, 15 Johns. (N. Y.) 293; President and Directors of Cumberland Bank v. Hall, 6 N. J. L. But see Wicke's Lessee v. Caulk, H. & J. (Md.) 41; McMicken v. Beauchamp, 2 La. 290; 4 Bingh. 123; Arrison v. Harmstead, 2 Pa. 191. See Express Pub. Co. v. Aldine Press, 126 Pa. 347, 17 Atl. 608.

When the interlineation is made by a stranger to an instrument in the hands of the promisee, though without his knowledge, if it be immaterial, it will not vitiate the instrument, but if it be material, it will, in general, avoid it; 11 Co. 27 a; L. R. 10 Ex. 330; see Murray v. Peterson, 6 Wash. 418, 33 Pac. 969; otherwise if the instrument be not then in the possession of a party; 6 East 309. If made while in the possession of an agent of the promisee, it avoids the instrument; L. R. 10 Ex. 330; contra, Hunt v. Gray, 35 N. J. L. 227, 10 Am. Rep. 232. The insertion of the words "or order" without the consent of the maker constitutes a material alteration which avoids the note; Taylor v. Moore (Tex.) 20 S. W. 53. An interlineation made in a bond, after its execution, by an agent of the obligee, without authority, will not invalidate it, but is only an act of spoliation: White Sewing Mach. Co. v. Dakin, 86 Mich. 581, 49 N. W. 583, 13 L. R. A. 313.

The decisions vary as to the effect of interlineations, when an instrument is put in evidence. In a late case the rule is stated thus: If the interlineation is in itself suspicious, as, if it appears to be contrary to the probable meaning of the instrument as it stood before the insertion of the interlined words; or if it is in a handwriting different from the body of the instrument, or appears to have been written with different ink, in all such cases, if the court considers the interlineation suspicious on its face, the presumption will be that it was an unauthorized alteration after execution. On the other hand, if the interlineation appears in the same 259, it was held that a negotiable note of been made subsequent to the execution instrument, and especially if it only i clear what was the evident intention of parties, the law will presume that it made in good faith, and before execu Cox v. Palmer, 3 Fed. 16. See Zimme v. Camp, 155 Pa. 152, 25 Atl. 1086. Whe terlineations in a deed are in the hand ing of the officer who attested it officer the presumption is that they were ma or before the execution of the instru Bedgood v. McLain, 89 Ga. 793, 15 S. E but it has been held that an alteration pearing on the face of a deed is presun have been made after its execution, an burden is upon the party presenting it plain the alteration; Sisson v. Pearso Ill. App. 81. If an instrument appears to have be tered, it is incumbent on the party of it to explain its appearance. Gen speaking, if nothing appears to the conthe alteration will be presumed to be temporaneous with the execution of the strument; but if there is ground of susp the law presumes nothing, but leave questions of the time when, the person whom, and the intent with which it done, to the jury, upon proofs to be ad by the party offering the instrumen Greenl. Ev. § 564; Stillwell v. Pattor Mo. 352, 18 S. W. 1075; Martin v. Kline Pa. 473, 27 Atl. 753; Houston v. Jords Tex. 352, 18 S. W. 702. See De Long v. cie, 45 Ill. App. 234. In cases of nego instruments, the holder is held to cl proof than in cases of deeds; 2 Dan. Instr. § 1417. See Wilson v. Hayes, 40 531, 42 N. W. 467, 4 L. R. A. 196, 12 A Rep. 754. In a carefully considered Beaman's Adm'rs v. Russell, 20 Vt. 20 Am. Dec. 775, the court adopt what it the old common-law rule that an alter of an instrument, if nothing appear to contrary, should be presumed to have made at the time of the execution. So, 1 Shepl. 386; Rankin v. Blackwell, 2 J Cas. (N. Y.) 198; contra, Hills v. Barne N. H. 395; Cochran v. Nebeker, 48 Ind It has been held, when a place of pay was inserted, that it was a question fo jury, but that it lay on the plaintiff t count for the alteration, etc.; 6 C. & P. Davis v. Carlisle, 6 Ala. 707; such an i tion after delivery is a material altera Winter v. Pool, 100 Ala. 503, 14 South. Gwin v. Anderson, 91 Ga. 827, 18 S. I But in Hayden v. Goodnow, 39 Conn. 1 was held that the burden of proof o counting for an alteration is not necess on the party producing the instrument.

In Neil v. Case, 25 Kan. 510, 37 Am.

Sisson v. Pearson, 44 Ill. App. 81.

material alteration, is admissible in evidence, ties to the dispute. See HAGUE TRIBUNALand the question as to the time of alteration is for the jury. The court said: If there is when the alteration was made, it is to be presumed that it was made before or at the time of the execution. Perhaps there might be cases where the alteration is attended with such manifest circumstances of suspicion that the court might refuse to allow the note to go to the jury without some explanation, etc. This title is fully treated in a note in 37 Am. Rep. 260. As to alteration of negotiable instruments, see 7 Harv. Law Rev. 1. See ALTERATION: ERASUBE.

INTERLOCUTOR. Properly means a judgment or judicial order pronounced in the course of a suit, which does not finally determine the cause. But in Scotch practice, the term is extended to the judgments of the Court of Session or the Lord Ordinary, which exhaust the point at issue, and which if not appealed against will have the effect of finally deciding the case. Bell; Moz. & W.

INTERLOCUTORY. Something which is done between the commencement and the end of a suit or action which decides some point or matter, which, however, is not a final decision of the matter in issue: as, interlocutory judgments, or decrees, or orders. The term seems to have originated with Lord Ellesmere; 1 Holdsw. Hist. E. L. 213.

See Decree; Judgment; Order; Injunc-

INTERLOPERS. Persons who interrupt the trade of a company of merchants, by pursuing the same business with them in the same place, without lawful authority.

INTERNAL REVENUE. See REVENUE; TAXATION.

INTERNATIONAL ARBITRATION. Arbitration may be defined in the words of the First Hague Conference as "the settlement of differences between states by judges of their own choice, and on the basis of respect for law." Arbitration thus differs from mediation, which is an interposition by a third party in the endeavor to reconcile opposing claims. On the other hand, arbitration differs from a judicial decision rendered by a court imposed upon the parties, as in the case of municipal courts in relation to the citizens of the state. It is essential to arbitration that the judges of the dispute in question be freely chosen by the parties, and that the parties shall have obligated themselves to accept the decision rendered. At the First Hague Conference, which met in 1899, a Permanent Court of Arbitration was established. This court is permanent only in the sense that it is composed of a list of judges, nominated by the signatory powers, from among whom the arbitrators in each those which are entered into with the object in evidence, bearing on its face an apparent individual case are to be selected by the par-

At the Second Hague Conference, which met in 1907, a voeu was expressed calling neither extrinsic nor intrinsic evidence as to the attention of the powers to the advisability of adopting an annexed Draft Convention for the Establishment of a Court of Arbitral Justice. This court, in the words of the Convention, is to be "freely and easily accessible, composed of judges representing the various judicial systems of the world, and capable of insuring continuity in arbitral jurisprudence." It is to consist of judges and deputy judges chosen for a period of twelve years. The difficulty of reaching an agreement as to the method of selecting the judges and the constitution of the court prevented the establishment of the court. Inasmuch as the judges are to form a permanent staff, the court is to that extent judicial rather than arbitral in character.

> While a decision based upon the principles of law is generally desired by the parties to a dispute, it is not inconsistent with the arbitration that the arbitrator should compromise conflicting claims which it is impossible otherwise to adjust, provided, however, that the powers of the arbitrator have not been limited by the parties to a strictly legal de-

> Arbitration was not unknown among the ancients, and many instances of its application occurred between the city-states of Greece; for example, in the time of Solon five Spartans were chosen to arbitrate between Athens and Megara as to the possession of the island of Salamis. II Philipson, While the refusal of Imperial 127-165. Rome to recognize other nations as on a footing of equality made impossible the existence of arbitration between Rome and other states, it frequently happened that Rome intervened as arbitrator between her more or less subject nations.

> In the Middle Ages the position of dominance held by the Holy Roman Empire among the states of Europe likewise militated against a system of arbitration, though there are instances in which the Emperor arbitrated between feudal lords. Moreover, the exercise by the papacy of spiritual dominion over the states of the Christian world made it possible for the Pope to exercise the rôle of mediator or arbitrator between Christian princes. The upheaval brought about by the religious wars of the 16th and 17th centuries caused the practice of arbitration to become practically obsolete, but in the closing years of the 18th century the practice was revived under the influence of the United States.

> There are two general classes of arbitration treaties; those entered into for the settlement, by arbitration, of a specific dispute which has arisen between two nations, and of submitting to arbitration disputes which may arise in the future. The former are called Special Arbitration Treaties or Compromis; the latter are called General Arbitration Treaties. Since the First Hague Conference General Arbitration Treaties have been universally adopted. These treaties usually provide for the settlement of all disputes of a legal nature with the exception of differences which affect the vital interests, the independence or the honor of the two An early case of an contracting parties. agreement to arbitrate future disputes is to be found in the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo entered into between the United States and Mexico on February 2, 1848. Under this treaty the two nations agreed to "endeavor, in the most sincere and earnest manner, to settle the differences so arising, and to preserve the state of peace and friendship in which the two countries are now placing themselves, using, for this end, mutual representations and pacific negotiations." case of failure, a resort shall not be had to reprisals or hostility of any kind "until the government of that which deems itself aggrieved shall have maturely considered, in the spirit of peace and good neighborship, whether it would not be better that such difference should be settled by the arbitration of commissioners appointed on each side, or by that of a friendly nation. And should such course be proposed by either party, it shall be acceded to by the other, unless deemed by it altogether incompatible with the nature of the difference, or the circumstances of the case."

The first arbitral agreement entered into by the United States was that with Great Britain under the Treaty of 1794, commonly called the Jay Treaty, which provided for three mixed commissions. One commission met in 1798 to determine what was the St. Croix River contemplated by the Treaty of Peace of 1783 as the boundary of the two countries. Another commission met in Philadelphia in 1797 to determine the compensation due British subjects in consequence of impediments which certain states of the United States had, in violation of the provisions of the Treaty of Peace, interposed to the collection of debts by British creditors. No decision was reached and the claims were afterwards adjusted by the Treaty of January 8, 1802. The third commission, which finished its report in 1804, passed upon claims of citizens of the United States arising from losses and damages sustained "by reason of irregular or illegal captures or condemnations of their vessels and other property" during the war between Great Britain and France; and also upon claims of British subjects for losses sustained from captures made within the territorial waters of the United States or by French privateers armed within the United States.

The Treaty of Ghent, December 24, 1814, provided for three arbitral commissions. One related to the ownership of certain islands in Passamaquoddy Bay. The award divided ownership, assigning the larger number to Great Britain. The second commission undertook to decide the boundary line from the source of the River St. Croix to the St. Lawrence River. No decision was rendered, and the question was referred to the arbitration of the King of the Netherlands in 1827. His award, however, was not satisfactory, and the matter was finally settled by the Webster-Ashburton Treaty of 1842. The third commission, which undertook to determine the eastern boundary through the Great Lakes, Ill failed to reach an agreement, and the question finally settled by the Treaty of 1842.

After the Treaty of Ghent a controversy are to the compensation due to citizens of the States for slaves who were in the territory is session of the British at the time of the treat the Convention of October 20, 1818, the question referred to the arbitration of the Emperor of sia, who rendered an award in favor of the States without, however, fixing the amount indemnity, which was decided by a mixed co sion under the Convention of July 12, 1822.

On February 8, 1853, there was a convention of all claims ing between the United States and Great B On July 1, 1863, a convention was concluded the two countries to determine the compensation the Hudson's Bay Company and the F Sound Agricultural Company on claims for ages, as well as for the transfer to the States of all their property and rights in teracknowledged by the Treaty of 1846 to be und sovereignty of the United States. The commernedered an award of $650,000 in favor of the ish claimants.

The Treaty of Washington of May 8, 1871, pr for four distinct arbitrations, the principal of was that held at Geneva with the object of sthe claims brought by the United States a Great Britain for losses and damages sustain the depredations of the Alabama and other Cerate cruisers fitted out and armed in British The arbitrators declined to recognize the of the United States for the indemnity for the in the transfer of the American merchant rot the British flag; for enhanced payment or rine insurance; for expenses incurred in post the Confederate cruisers; and for the protion of the war and the increased expenditur the suppression of the rebellion. But they aw in compensation for the direct loss growing the destruction of vessels and their cargoe sum of $15,500,000. The arbitral commission as December 15, 1871, to September 14, 1872.

The dispute as to the San Juan water bot was referred to the German Emperor, who Cotober 21, 1872, made an award in favor United States. Claims of British subjects at the United States, and of citizens of the States against Great Britain (excepting the ma claims) arising out of injuries during the War, were referred to a mixed commission ared by the United States, Great Britain and The fourth arbitration under the Treaty of

The fourth arbitration under the Treaty of ington was to determine the compensation of Great Britain for privileges accorded by that to the United States in connection with the ries along the northeastern coast of Canada arbitral commission rendered an award in 1 favor of Great Britain to the amount of $5, Under the Treaty of February 29, 1892, the States and Great Britain submitted certain tions relating to the protection of the fur stehning Sea to a tribunal of arbitration whi in Paris. An award was rendered denying the ership of the United States of seals outside maritime jurisdiction, but recognizing the neof imposing restrictions upon the killing of set the high seas. Claims of British subjects feeizure and detention of their vessels engathe seal fisheries of Behring Sea were settled mixed commission appointed in 1896.

In 1903 a joint commission was appointed

In 1903 a joint commission was appointed termine the boundary between Alaska and timinion of Canada, and an award was rende the same year largely in favor of the United In 1909 a special agreement was signed subto arbitration questions relating to the properticity of the fishery rights granted to States citizens by the Treaty of 1818. See Figs Arbitration.

The arbitrations between the United S and Great Britain have been, on the more important than those held with other; foreign countries. A brief reference to the more important cases between the United States and countries other than Great Britain and the date of the special agreement referring the question to arbitration is here ziven.

Brazil: March 14, 1870,—Claim for indemnity for less of the whaling ship "Canada" and its cargo through interference of Brazilian officials in 1856. Chile: November 10, 1858,—Claim growing out of the seizure of the American brig "Macedonia" by the Chilean navy was referred to the arbitration of the King of Belgium. August 7, 1892,—Mutual claims arising out of the Chilean wars of 1879—82 and 1890-91 were referred to a mixed commission. December 1, 1909,—Claim brought by the Alsop Com-pany against the Chilean government.

China: May 24, 1884,-Indemnity to American citizens for disputes of a fishery in Chinese territory. Colombia: September 10, 1857; February 10, 1864, -Rights under the Treaty with New Granada of 1946. August 17, 1874,—Indemnity for capture and use by insurgents of steamer "Montijo."

Costa Rica: July 2, 1860,-Indemnity to American citizens for injuries and losses sustained by acts of Costa Rican authorities.

Denmark: December 6, 1888,-Claim arising from seizure of vessels belonging to an American firm.

Dominican Republic: 1897,-Claim arising from essure by Dominican authorities of toll bridge owned by American citizen. 1903,-Two arbitrations between the Dominican government and American firms.

Ecuador: November 25, 1862,—Mutual claims of citizens for losses arising from governmental acts. February 28, 1893,—Indemnity for arrest of American citizen charged with complicity in the revolution of 1884.

France: January 15, 1880,-Claims of French citizens for injury to persons and property during the American Civil War and claims of American citizens for like injuries during the Franco-Prussian War.

Germany: November 7, 1899,-Samoan claims arising from military operations of Great Britain and the United States against Apia in 1899.

Guatemala: February 23, 1900,—Indemnity due American citizen for breach of contract and damags to property caused by authorities of Guatemala.

Haiti: May 24, 1884,—Personal claims arising from governmental action of Haiti against American citizens upon charges of piracy and traffic in slaves.

January 25, 1885,—Indemnity for damages sustained by American citizens during riots at Port-au-Prince. May 24, 1888,—Indemnity for arrest and imprisonment of United States citizen in 1884. October 18, 1899,-Indemnity for seizure and sale of property belonging to American citizen.

Mexico: April 11, 1839,—Indemnity to American cit-izens for losses suffered during revolutions. July 4, 1868,—Mutual claims arising since 1848. March 2, 1897,—Personal injuries sustained by American citizens at the hands of Mexican agents in 1892. 22, 1902,—Agreement reached referring to the Permanent Court of Arbitration at the Hague the claims advanced by the United States on behalf of the Roman Catholic Church in California against Mexico in regard to a permanent fund for mission purposes, known as the "Pious Fund of the Californias," donated by Spanish and Mexican subjects prior to the acquisition of California by the United States. June 24, 1910,—Ownership of a tract of land situated on the Rio Grande near El Paso, Texas.

Nicaragua: March 22, 1900,-Indemnity for seizure and detention of certain launches belonging to American citizens.

Paraguay: February 4, 1859,-Indemnity for con-Ascation of property of United States and Paraguay Navigation Company composed of American citizens. Peru: December 20, 1862,-Indemnity for capture claims. May 17, 1898,-Indemnity for arrest and detention of American citizen during revolution of Portugal: February 26, 1851,-Indemnity for destruction of American vessel by French fleet in Portuguese waters in 1814. June 13, 1891,-Indemnity for rescission of railway concession held by American and British citizens in Portuguese East Africa under grant from the Portuguese Government.

Russia: September 8, 1900,-Indemnity for seizure of American fishing vessels in Behring Sea by Russian cruisers.

Salvador: May 4, 1864,-Indemnity to American citizen for seizure of property. December 19, 1901,—Claims of American company arising from withdrawal of concessions made by government of Sal-

Siam: 1897,-Indemnity for attack by Siamese soldiers upon United States vice-consul at Siam. July 26, 1897,-Indemnity to American citizen for seizure and sale of personal property.

Spain: October 27, 1795,—Claims for illegal captures of American vessels by Spanish subjects. 1870,—Indemnity for seizure of American steamer by Spanish authorities. February 12, 1871,—Claims of American citizens growing out of insurrection in Cuba. February 28, 1885,—Indemnity for seizure and detention of American vessel.

Venezuela: April 25, 1866; December 5, 1885,-Mutual long-standing claims of a varied character. January 19, 1892,—Indemnity for seizure of American ships by Venezuelan government. February 17, 1903,—Pecuniary claims of American citizens. 7, 1903,—Question of the preferential right of Great Britain, Germany and Italy to payment of obliga-tions due from Venezuela prior to similar payment to other powers. February 13, 1909,-Claim of Orinoco Steamship Company against Venezuela brought in 1903 but not satisfactorily decided.

See Darby, International Tribunals; Mérignhac, Traité théorique et pratique de l'arbitrage international.

INTERNATIONAL LAW. Nature and Sources. International law is the law governing the relations between states. It is sometimes called Public International Law to distinguish it from Private International Law or, as the latter should more properly be called, the Conflict of Laws (q. v.). Private international law is the law which is applied when citizens of different nations are parties to a suit or other legal proceeding. Since it does not involve nations themselves, but only their citizens, it has no claim to the name "international." See Pri-VATE INTERNATIONAL LAW.

International law was not altogether unknown among the ancients, and many instances occur of its application by the Greek city-states, and by the Italian tribal states before the establishment of the Roman Empire; but the development of international law into the definite and well-recognized state in which it exists today did not begin until modern times.

In 1625 Hugo van Groot, better known as Grotius, published his treatise entitled De jure belli ac pacis, which marks an era in the growth of international law. Grotius bases his system, first, upon the law of nature, and secondly, upon the customs in existence between nations. He first deduces and confiscation of two American ships. January from the law of nature the principles which is, 1863,—Mutual claims. December 4, 1868,—Mutual should properly govern the conduct of states, from the law of nature the principles which and he thus establishes a priori certain by a coercive authority and acquire more rules of international law. But since the law of nature is illustrated in the practices which are universally observed by mankind, Grotius found it possible to establish the rules of international law by arguing a posteriori from the customs of nations. system has, therefore, a double foundation.

After Grotius, certain writers, led by Pufendorf, built up a system of international law based chiefly upon the law of nature, while another school, the Positivists, laid stress upon the positive character of international law as evidenced by the customs actually in existence between nations. Between these two schools there developed later a third school called the Grotian school, which takes account both of the law of nature as the basis of international law, and of the customs of nations as the embodiment of a positive system. The standpoint of the Grotian school has found greater favor among the Latin states of the continent of Europe, while the Positivist school is represented by English, American and German writers, though in each case with notable exceptions.

As a positive science international law may be defined as the collection of those generally accepted rules of conduct which nations consider so far binding upon themselves in their relations with one another as to lead them actually to abide by them in their general practice. Much discussion has attended the question as to how far these rules can properly lay claim to the title of "law." The Austinian school, which restricts law to the category of commands imposed by a political superior upon a political inferior, refuses to recognize the so-called international law as anything more than international morality, since it lacks the elements of law-giver, command, and sanction. On the other hand, the school of historical jurisprudence, of which Savigny may be regarded as the founder, taking law as the expression of the common will of a political community, maintains that international law possesses the character of true law inasmuch as it consists of rules adopted by the common consent of nations and enforced largely by the moral sanction of public opinion. Lord Russell of Killowen, in an address before the American Bar Association in 1896, considered Austin's definition as applying rather to the later development of arbitrary power than to that body of customary law which, in earlier stages of society, precedes law strictly so called, and which is made up of rules and customs which are laws in every real sense of the word, as, for example, the law merchant. And he continued: "In stages later still, as government becomes more frankly democratic, resting broadly on the popular will, laws bear less and more the character of customary law founded on consent."

Since international law is a body of rules actually accepted by nations as regulating their mutual relations, it follows that the test of the existence of a given rule is to be found in the consent of nations to abide by that rule. Now this consent is evidenced chiefly by the usages and customs of nations, which form therefore the principal source To ascertain what of international law. these usages and customs are it has been common to turn to the writings of publicists and to the decisions of state courts. Habana, 175 U.S. 677, 20 Sup. Ct. 290, 44 L. Ed. 320.

But while usage is the older and original source of international law, treaties are a later source of increasing importance. Until recently these treaties generally had their international effect only when the rule contained in them came to be gradually adopted by other nations and thus became part of the customary law, as, for example, the Declaration of Paris of 1856; but with the establishment of The Hague Conferences there have come into existence conventions of a law-making character, in that they are signed and ratified by the nations as a body.

State Sovereignty and Its Corollaries. The subjects of international law are sovereign states. The fundamental principles recognized by international law are that these states are independent each of the others in all that regards their domestic affairs, that they possess certain territory over which they have complete jurisdiction, and that they are all legally equal. Under these three principles it will be found convenient to group the chief rules of international law.

As a consequence of the sovereignty and independence of the states which form the family of nations, each state has a right to enter into such treaties and alliances with other states as it may find necessary or convenient. In order to maintain their independence the states of Europe have found it necessary from time to time to enter into alliances by which they have sought to maintain a balance of power. These alliances are an expression of the danger to the independence of states which might arise if any one of them should acquire & position of dominance. This necessity of maintaining a balance of power has led to the practice of intervention (q. v.) by which states have at times interfered in the affairs of other states. Intervention is ultimately based upon the principle of self-preservation, as the first law of international relations as of na-

The principle of the equality of states is illustrated in the whole histor; of international relations from the time of the Treaty and less the character of commands imposed of Westphalia in 1648. Swizerland and Belgium, for example, have been recognized as having equal rights with Great Britain and Russia. But, while this legal equality is recognized, there is no denial of the fact that certain of the Great Powers have exercised a predominating influence in international relations.

Over the territory within their boundaries as well as over the persons residing in that territory, states have complete jurisdiction. State territory may be acquired in several ways: by discovery followed by occupation; by military conquest followed by subjugation; by prescription; and by accretion. It is recognized that a maritime belt, traditionally measured by a marine league from the shore, is part of the territory of the state See TERRITORIAL WAwhich it surrounds. When the boundary between two states is marked by a river, the river takes on an international character, and apart from special cases determined by treaty, the mid-channel of the river constitutes the dividing line between the two countries. A river is likewise recognized as being international in character when it flows through two or more countries, though this is for purposes of commerce and does not exclude the jurisdiction of each state over that portion of the river within its domains. See RIVERS. Moreover, when a narrow body of water forms a passage way between two portions of the open sea or between the open sea and a bay or gulf open to the commerce of the world, the canal or strait assumes an international character and is open to the commerce of the world, subject to the purely administrative restrictions or tolls imposed by the power controlling the canal or strait.

After many struggles between maritime powers with conflicting interests, the open sea has come to be regarded as insusceptible of appropriation by any single state and as possessing, therefore, a purely international character. No state can exercise jurisdiction over the vessels of another state sailing the high seas, nor assume any exclusive right of fishing in certain waters not within the three-mile belt. See Sea.

The jurisdiction of a state over the persons residing within its domains gives rise to rules of international law when such persons happen to be citizens of another state. For many years it was held that a man could not, of his own accord, throw off his allegiance to one country and adopt the citizenship of another. While the United States courts recognized this principle, the Executive Department made constant efforts to obtain from European powers an acknowledgment of the right of Expatriation (q. v.), and in 1868 Congress passed an act in which the right was declared to be a "natural and inherent" one, but many foreign governments still exact military service of persons who, being born within their jurisdiction, have become the naturalized citizens of another state. See NATIONALITY; NATURALIZATION.

It has now become the general practice of nations to deliver up fugitive criminals which escape from one state and take refuge in another. This practice of extradition is still based upon treaties between individual nations defining the precise crimes for the commission of which a fugitive will be delivered up. See Extradition; Asylum; Fugitive from Justice.

The needs of international intercourse have given rise to a class of diplomatic agents  $(q.\ v.)$  whose position has now come to be definite in character. These agents are not only the channel of communication between the government which sends them and the government to which they are sent, but they are also the personal representatives of their government at the foreign court. See Ambassador; Minister; Chargé d'Affaires.

Treaties are the contracts entered into by states for the purpose of creating special relations between them. Good faith in the observance of these treaties has come to be a recognized principle of international law. When a difficulty arises as to their meaning, practically the same rules of interpretation are applied as those of municipal law in the case of contracts between individuals. See TREATY.

It is inevitable that disputes should arise between nations. International law recognizes three ways in which these disputes may be settled,-by amicable methods, by forcible methods falling short of war, and by When negotiations between the foreign offices of the two states have failed to settle a dispute it is not uncommon for the states to have recourse to arbitration. The practice of arbitration has come to be more and more general during the past one hundred years, and it is significant of the growth of international law, both in definiteness and in comprehension, that nations have been willing to submit questions of the highest importance to a decision based upon its principles. The Hague Tribunal (q. v.) represents a permanent court for the settlement, by arbitration, of disputes between See International Arbitration.

When friendly negotiations between states have failed to settle a dispute between two states, international law recognizes that a third state may offer its good offices and mediation. Special rules were laid down at The Hague Conference of 1907 defining the conditions of such mediation. See MEDIATION.

Apart from these amicable methods of settling international disputes, there are certain measures, such as retorsion (q. v.), reprisals (q. v.), embargo (q. v.), and pacific blockade (q. v.), by which one state endeavors to exercise compulsion over another state; without having recourse to actual war.

War is the status of armed conflict between two or more states. However improper a means of settling international disputes it may be from the standpoint of morality and justice, it is recognized by international law as a legal means of coercing an alleged offender. In the course of centuries certain rules have developed defining the rights of the belligerent parties and the limits within which armed forces may be employed, as well as the relations between belligerent powers and third parties not involved in the war.

At the First Hague Conference a Convention concerning the Laws and Customs of War on Land was adopted in which definite rules are laid down concerning the qualifications of belligerents, prisoners of war, the sick and wounded, the means of injuring the enemy, sieges and bombardments, spies, flags of truce, capitulations, armistices, military authority over the territory of the hostile state, and the internment of belligerents and the care of the wounded in neutral countries. A convention was also adopted providing for the adaptation of the principles of the Geneva Convention to maritime war. At the Second Hague Peace Conference, held in 1907, other conventions were adopted dealing with the commencement of hostilities, the status of enemy merchant-ships at the outbreak of hostilities, the conversion of merchant-ships into war-ships, the laying of automatic submarine contact mines, bombardment by naval forces in time of war, restrictions on the exercise of the right of capture in maritime war, and the establishment of an International Prize Court. sides these conventions certain declarations were adopted prohibiting the discharge of projectiles, etc., from balloons, the use of asphyxiating gases, and the use of bullets with a hard envelope. See WAR.

In recognizing that the state of war confers certain rights and imposes certain restrictions upon the belligerent parties, international law at the same time recognizes the existence of new rules governing the relations between the belligerents and other states not parties to the conflict. The principle upon which these rules are based is that the successful prosecution of war makes it necessary for the belligerents to impose certain restrictions, such as the establishment of blockades (q. v.) and the prohibition of traffic in contraband (q. v.), upon the intercourse between neutral states and the enemy. These restrictions are imposed in virtue of the rights of belligerents as against neutrals. On the other hand, if third parties wish to remain neutral in a contest between two or more states, it is incumbent upon them to abstain absolutely from all partici-

poses both active and passive duties. The passive duties are fulfilled if the nation refrains, in its corporate capacity, from giving either direct or indirect assistance to either belligerent. The active duties require the neutral state to prevent any use of its territory for the purposes of either belligerent, whether such use be made by the belligerents themselves or by citizens of the neutral state in the interest of the belligerents.

But there are limits to the extent to which belligerents may interfere with the intercourse of neutral states with the enemy. These limits mark what may be called the rights of neutrals. For a detailed statement of the rights and duties of belligerents and neutrals, see NEUTRALITY.

It has been suggested within recent years that certain rules of international law need to be modified when applied to the states of the American Continent. These modified rules may be said to constitute American International Law. On January 4, 1909, the First Pan American Scientific Congress held "that on this Continent there are problems sui generis or of a distinctly American character and that the states of this hemisphere, by means of agreements more or less general, have regulated matters which are of sole concern to them, or which, if of universal interest, have not yet been susceptible of universal agreement—thus incorporating in international law principles of American origin."

The codification of international law has been much discussed within recent years. The idea was first suggested by Bentham, whose fondness for ideal codes, not based upon the facts of international and national life, is well known. In 1863, at the request of President Lincoln, a code of the laws of war was drawn up by Francis Lieber for the use of the Federal armies, a large portion of which is embodied in the Convention concerning the Laws and Customs of War on Land, adopted by the Second Hague Conference. More elaborate and comprehensive codes are those of Bluntschli, published in 1868, of David Dudley Field, published in 1872, and of Pasquale Flore, published in The conventions of the two Hague Conferences, together with the Declaration of London (q. v.), represent an attempt to codify international law upon certain specific heads. How far codification can be successfully carried has been much discussed. Certain parts of international law are still in an undeveloped state, and it might perhaps be unwise to define rules which may soon be outgrown. Besides, it is clear, from the obstinate position taken by the powers at the Hague Conferences, that they are not yet ready for an agreement which will be in conflict with principles which they have long considered essential to their welfare pation in the conflict. This abstention im- and prosperity. While it is generally resognized by nations that the principles of international law should, in point of justice and morality, come up to the standard of the municipal law of individual states, at the same time the conflicting commercial interests of the Great Powers, and the increasingly intense national spirit manifested by them, make it difficult for them to reach an agreement upon any subject in which national interests are intimately involved. For a critical bibliography of the principal writers on international law, see 1 Opp. 83-103; also Hershey, Essentials of Int. Pub. Law 86-91.

International law is said by Sir F. Pollock to be a true branch of law notwithstanding all that may be said about its want of sovereign power and a tribunal. Its doctrines are founded on legal, not simply on ethical, ideas. They are not merely prevalent opinions as to what is really right and proper, but something as closely analogous to civil laws as the nature of the case will admit. They have been discussed by the methods appropriate to jurisprudence and not by those of moral philosophy. They appeal not to the general feelings of moral rightness, but to precedents, to treatles and to the opinion of specialists. They assume the existence among statesmen and publicists of a sense of legal as distinguished from moral obligation in the affairs of nations. Oxford Lectures 18. See also Westlake, Intern. Law.

INTERNMENT. Used of foreign troops of a belligerent coming into neutral territory. Hague Treaty, 1907. See TROOPS, FOREIGN.

INTERNUNCIO. A Papal minister of the second order, accredited to minor states where there is no nuncio (q. v.).

INTERPELLATE. To address with a question, especially when formal and public; originally used with respect to proceedings in the French legislature; used in reference to questions by the court to counsel during an argument.

INTERPLEADER. A proceeding in the action of detinue, by which the defendant states the fact that the thing sued for is in his hands, and that it is claimed by a third person, and that whether such person or the plaintiff is entitled to it is unknown to the defendant, and thereupon the defendant prays that a process of garnishment may be issued to compel such third person so claiming to become defendant in his stead. 3 Reeve, Hist. Eng. Law, c. 23; Mitf. Eq. Pl. 141; Story, Eq. Jur. § 800. Interpleader is allowed to avoid inconvenience; for two parties claiming adversely to each other cannot be entitled to the same thing; Brooke, Abr. Interpleader 4; hence the rule which requires the defendant to allege that different parties demand the same thing.

If two persons sue the same person in det-depending in the same court at the same time, the defendant may plead that fact, produce the thing (e. g. a deed or charter) in court, and aver his readiness to deliver it to either as the court shall adjudge, and thereupon pray that they may interplead. In such a case it has been settled that the plaintiff whose writ bears the earliest teste has the right to begin the interpleading, and the other will be compelled to answer; Brooke, Abr. Interpleader, 2.

Under the Pennsylvania practice, when goods levied upon by the sheriff are claimed by a third party, the sheriff takes a rule of interpleader on the parties, upon which, when made absolute, a feigned issue is framed, and the title to the goods is tested. The goods, pending the proceedings, remain in the custody of the defendant upon the execution of a forthcoming bond.

See 10 L. R. A. (N. S.) 748, note; Bill or INTERPLEADER.

INTERPOLATION. In Civil Law. act by which, in consequence of an agreement, the party bound declares that he will not be bound beyond a certain time. Wolff, Inst. Nat. § 752.

In the case of a lease from year to year, or to continue as long as both parties please, a notice given by one of them to the other of a determination to put an end to the contract would bear the name of interpolation.

INTERPRETATION. The discovery and representation of the true meaning of any signs used to convey ideas. Lieber, Leg. and Pol. Hermeneutics.

The "true meaning" of any signs is that meaning which those who used them were desirous of expressing. A person adopting or sanctioning them "uses" them as well as their immediate author. Both parties to an agreement equally make use of the signs declaratory of that agreement, though one only is the originator, and the other may be entirely passive. The most common signs used to convey ideas are words. When there is a contradiction in signs intended to agree, resort must be had to construction,-that is, the drawing of conclusions from the given signs, respecting ideas which they do not ex-Interpretation is the art of finding press. out what the author intended to convey; construction is resorted to in comparing two different writings or statutes. Construction is usually confounded with interpretation; but in common use, is generally employed in a sense that is properly covered by both when each is used in a sense strictly and technically correct; Cooley, Const. Lim. 70. Quoting this passage, it is said in U. S. v. Keitel, 211 U. S. 370, 29 Sup. Ct. 123, 53 L. Ed. 230, that while, abstractly, there may be a difference between the two words, yet in "common usage" they have "the same significance." A distinction between the two, first inue for the thing, and both actions are made in the Legal and Political Hermeneui tics, has been adopted by Greenleaf and other American and European jurists. Hermeneutics includes both.

1658

interpretation (interpretatio stricta) is adopted if just reasons, connected with the formation and character of the text, induce us to take the words in their narrowest meaning. This species of interpretation has generally been called literal, but the term is inadmissible. Lieber, Herm.

Extensive interpretation (interpretatio extensiva, called, also, liberal interpretation) adopts a more comprehensive signification of the word.

Extravagant interpretation (interpretatio excedens) is that which substitutes a meaning evidently beyond the true one: it is, therefore, not genuine interpretation.

Free or unrestricted interpretation (interpretatio soluta) proceeds simply on the general principles of interpretation in good faith, not bound by any specific or superior prin-

Limited or restricted interpretation (interpretatio limitata) is when we are influenced by other principles than the strictly hermeneutic ones. Ernesti, Institutio Interpretis.

Predestined interpretation (interpretatio predestinata) takes place if the interpreter, laboring under a strong bias of mind, makes the text subservient to his preconceived views or desires. This includes artful interpretation (interpretatio vafer), by which the interpreter seeks to give a meaning to the text other than the one he knows to have been intended.

The civilians divide interpretation into:-Authentic (interpretatio authentica), which proceeds from the author himself; i. e. of a law, by the legislature.

Usual (interpretatio usualis), when the interpretation is on the ground of usage.

Doctrinal (interpretatio doctrinalis), when made agreeably to rules of science. trinal interpretation is subdivided into extensive, restrictive, and declaratory: extensive, whenever the reason of a proposition has a broader sense than its terms, and it is consequently applied to a case which had not been explained; restrictive, when the expressions have a greater latitude than the reasons; and declaratory, when the reasons and terms agree, but it is necessary to settle the meaning of some term or terms to make the sense complete. See Holland, Jurispr. 344.

There can be no sound interpretation without good faith and common sense. The object of all interpretation and construction is to ascertain the intention of the authors, even so far as to control the literal signification of the words; for verba ita sunt intelligenda ut res magis valcat quam pereat. Words are, therefore, to be taken as those is subject to the general rule that a p who used them intended, which must be sumed to be in their popular and ordi signification; unless there is some good son for supposing otherwise, as where nical terms are used; Gibbons v. Ogd Wheat. (U. S.) 188, 6 L. Ed. 23; Gre Weller, 32 Miss. 678; Settle v. Van E 49 N. Y. 281; Weill v. Kenfield, 54 Cal. quoties in verbis nulla est ambiguitae nulla expositio contra verba fienda When words have two senses, of which only is agreeable to the law, that one prevail; Cowp. 714; Washington & I. F v. Nav. Co., 160 U. S. 77, 16 Sup. Ct. 23 L. Ed. 346; when they are inconsistent the evident intention, they will be reje 2 Atk. 32; when words are inadvert omitted, and the meaning is obvious, will be supplied by inference from the text, see Gran v. Spangenberg, 53 Mini 54 N. W. 933; a superfluous negative me omitted when the meaning is apparent; ters Pierce Oil Co. v. Deselms, 212 U. S. 29 Sup. Ct. 270, 53 L. Ed. 453. When guage is susceptible of two meanings, or which would work a forfeiture, while other would not, the latter must pre Jacobs v. Spalding, 71 Wis. 177, 36 N 608.

in Constitutions. The object of cons tion is to give effect to the intent of the ple in adopting it; this intent is t found in the instrument itself; Miller, C U. S. 100; People v. Purdy, 2 Hill (N 35. The whole is to be examined wi view to arriving at the true intention of part; it is not to be supposed that any v have been employed without occasion without intent that they should have as part of the law; if different por should seem to conflict, the courts sl harmonize them, if practicable, and sl lean in favor of a construction which render every word operative, rather one which may make some idle and a tory; Wheeling Gas Co. v. City of Whee 8 W. Va. 320; Ogden v. Strong, 2 Paine Fed. Cas. No. 10,460. It must be presu that words have been employed in natural and ordinary meaning; Gibbon Ogden, 9 Wheat. (U. S.) 1, 188, 6 L. Ed as understood when the instrument framed; Scott v. Sandford, 19 How. (U 393, 15 L. Ed. 691; technical words are sumed to have been employed in their nical sense. Where two provisions of a stitution are irreconcilably repugnant, which is last in order of time and local tion will prevail; Quick v. Whitewater T ship, 7 Ind. 570.

It is to be borne in mind that in the struction of the federal and state cons tions a different and indeed an opposite is applied. The former, being the fr work of a government of delegated pov to be lawfully exercised under an act of congress must be either expressly conferred or necessarily implied from some power granted. On the other hand, the state constitutions are not grants of power, but limitations on the residuum of absolute sovereign power which remains after subtracting that portion of it surrendered to the federal government. Accordingly, in construing a state constitution to ascertain whether a legislative act is valid, the only questions are whether that which it directs or authorizes is forbidden or whether it is included in the powers vested in the federal government.

The first resort is to the natural signification of the words in their order and grammatical arrangement; if they embody a definite meaning which involves no absurdity and no contradiction between different parts of the same instrument, there is no room for construction. This rule is said to apply to contracts, statutes and constitutions; Newell v. People, 7 N. Y. 9; Lake County v. Rollins, 130 U. S. 662, 9 Sup. Ct. 651, 32 L. Ed. 1060. See Manthey v. Vincent, 145 Mich. 327, 108 N. W. 667. If there is an ambiguity, the whole instrument is to be examined in order to determine the meaning of any part; State v. Hostetter, 137 Mo. 636, 39 S. W. 270, 38 L. R. A. 208, 59 Am. St. Rep. 515; People v. Metz, 193 N. Y. 148, 85 N. E. 1070, 24 L. R. A. (N. S.) 201.

When a constitution gives a general power or enjoins a duty, it also gives by implication every particular power necessary for the exercise of the one by the performance of the other; Field v. People, 2 Scam. (3 Ill.) 79, 83; Parks v. West, 102 Tex. 11, 111 S. W. 726.

The object for which a constitutional grant of power was given will have great influence in the construction; Gibbons v. Ogden, 9 Wheat. (U. S.) 1, 6 L. Ed. 23.

The safest rule is to look to the nature and objects of the particular powers, duties and rights, with all the lights and aids of contemporaneous history; and to give to each word just such force, consistent with its legitimate meaning, as will fairly secure and attain the ends proposed; Prigg v. Pennsylvania, 16 Pet. (U. S.) 539, 10 L. Ed. 1060; the subject or context and the intention of the framers in inserting a word in the federal constitution are all to be considered; Mc-Culloch v. Maryland, 4 Wheat. (U. S.) 316. 4 L. Ed. 579; the mischief to be prevented, as disclosed in the history of the country, will be considered; Craig v. Missouri, 4 Pet. (U. S.) 410, 7 L. Ed. 903. Every word must have due force and appropriate meaning; Holmes v. Jennison, 14 Pet. (U. S.) 540, 614, 10 L. Ed. 579; but the same words have not necessarily the same meaning when found in different parts of the same instrument; their meaning is controlled by the context; Cherokee Nation v. Georgia, 5 Pet. (U. S.) 1, 8 L. Ed. 25.

As aids to construction, the courts may refer to historical circumstances attending the framing and adoption of the constitution and the consequences attendant upon one construction or the other; Pollock v. Trust Co. (income tax cases) 157 U. S. 429, 15 Sup. Ct. 673, 39 L. Ed. 759; they may look to the history of the times; 4d. Interpretation must be in the light of the common law; U. S. v. Wong Kim Ark, 169 U. S. 649, 18 Sup. Ct. 456, 42 L. Ed. 890; a clause stricken from the draft may be referred to as an aid in the construction of the remaining clauses; Fletcher v. Peck, 6 Cra. (U. S.) 87, 3 L. Ed. 162.

Provisions of the constitution of the United States are not mathematical formulas having their essence in their form, but are organic living institutions transplanted from English soil. Their significance is not to be gathered simply from the words and a dictionary, but by considering their origin and the line of their growth; Gompers v. U. S., 233 U. S. 604, 34 Sup. Ct. 693, 58 L. Ed. —.

An act passed just after a constitution is adopted is a contemporary interpretation of the latter, entitled to much weight; Cooper Mfg. Co. v. Ferguson, 113 U. S. 727, 5 Sup. Ct. 739, 28 L. Ed. 1137.

See Constitutionality.

in Statutes. Where a law is expressed in plain and unambiguous terms, whether those terms are general or limited, the legislature should be intended to mean what they have plainly expressed, and consequently no room is left for construction; Lake County v. Rollins, 130 U. S. 671, 9 Sup. Ct. 651, 32 L. Ed. 1060. Statutes should receive a sensible construction, such as will effectuate the legislative intention, and, if possible, so as to. avoid an unjust or absurd conclusion; Lau Ow Bew v. U. S., 144 U. S. 47, 12 Sup. Ct. 517, 36 L. Ed. 340. They should be so construed, if practicable, that one section will not destroy another, but explain and support it; Bernier v. Bernier, 147 U. S. 242, 13 Sup. Ct. 244, 37 L. Ed. 152.

"Such a construction ought to be put upon a statute as will best answer the intention which the makers had in view, for qui hæret in litera, haret in cortice. In Bacon's Abridgement, Statutes 1, 5; Puffendorf, Book 5, chapter 12; Rutherford, 422, 527; and in Smith's Commentaries, 814, many cases were mentioned where it was held that matters embraced in the general words of the statutes, nevertheless were not within the statutes, because it could not have been the intention of the lawmakers that they should be included. They were taken out of the statutes bу an equitable construction. . . . In some cases the letter of a legislative act is restrained by an equitable construction; in others it is enlarged; in others the construction is contrary to the letter. The equitable construction which restrains the letter of a statute is defined by Aristotle, as frequently quoted in this manner: 'Æqui- | tas est correctio legis generaliter latæ qua parti deficit." Riggs v. Palmer, 115 N. Y. 506, 510, 22 N. E. 188, 5 L. R. A. 340, 12 Am. St. Rep. 819, opinion by Earl, J.

"All laws should receive a sensible construction. General terms should be so limited in their application as not to lead to injustice, oppression or an absurd consequence. It will always, therefore, be presumed that the legislature intended exceptions to its language, which would avoid results of this character. The reason of the law in such cases should prevail over its letter. common sense of man approves the judgment mentioned by Puffendorf, that the Bolognian law which enacted 'that whoever drew blood in the streets should be punished with the utmost severity,' did not extend to the surgeon who opened the vein of a person that fell down in the street in a fit. The same common sense accepts the ruling, cited by Plowden, that the statute of 1 Edward II, which enacts that a prisoner who breaks prison shall be guilty of felony, does not extend to a prisoner who breaks out when the prison is on fire-'for he is not to be hanged because he would not stay to be burnt." U. S. v. Kirby, 7 Wall. (U. S.) 482, 19 L. Ed. 278, quoted in Church of Holy Trinity v. U. S., 143 U. S. 461, 12 Sup. Ct. 511, 36 L. Ed.

The objects and purposes of a statute and the conditions of the enactment must be borne in mind so as to effectuate, rather than to destroy, the spirit of the intent. The purpose of the copyright statute is not so much to protect the thing as to protect the right of reproduction, and the statute should be construed in the character of the property to be protected; American Tobacco Co. v. Werckmeister, 207 U.S. 284, 28 Sup. Ct. 72, 52 L. Ed. 208, 12 Ann. Cas. 595.

"All laws should receive a sensible construction. General terms should be so limited in their application as not to lead to injustice, oppression or absurd consequence. It will always, therefore, be presumed that the legislature intended exceptions to its language which would avoid results of that character. The reason of the law in such cases should prevail over its letter;" Jacobson v. Massachusetts, 197 U.S. 39, 25 Sup. Ct. 358, 49 L. Ed. 643, 3 Ann. Cas. 765, citing U. S. v. Kirby, 7 Wall. (U. S.) 482, 19 L. Ed. 278; Lau Ow Bew v. U. S., 144 U. S. 47, 12 Sup. Ct. 517, 36 L. Ed. 340.

"It is a dangerous assumption to suppose that the legislature foresees every possible result that may ensue from the unguarded use of a single word, or that the language used in statutes is so precisely accurate that you can pick out from various acts this and that expression and, skilfully piecing them together, lay a safe foundation for some remote inference. Your Lordships are aware Am. Rep. 629. But statutes in derogan that from early times courts of law been continuously obliged, in endeavori carry out loyally the intentions of p ment, to observe a series of familiar pr tions for interpreting statutes, so imp and obscure as they often are. Learne umes have been written on this single ject." Lord Loreburn, L. C., in Nai University of St. Andrews [1909] L. R

"No statute is completely intelligib an isolated enactment. Every statute chapter, or a fragment of a chapter, body of law;" Ilbert, Legisl. Meth. & 1 254.

Reference may be had to the title act; Church of Holy Trinity v. U. S., 1 8. 457, 12 Sup. Ct. 511, 36 L. Ed. 226.

In construing a tariff act, when it is ed that the commercial use of a word fers from its ordinary significance, i der that the former may prevail over th ter it must appear that the commercia ignation is the result of established which was definite, uniform, and gene the time of the passage of the act; So Magone, 159 U. S. 418, 16 Sup. Ct. 67, Ed. 203.

Statutes, if penal, are to be strictly if remedial, liberally construed; Bish. L. 193; Dwarris, Stat. 246; that penal utes should be strictly construed, see v. R. Co., 222 U. S. 8, 32 Sup. Ct. 6, 56 1 68; but the rule that penal statutes are strictly construed is not violated by all their words to have full meaning, or eve more extended of two meanings, where construction best harmonizes with the text, and most fully promotes the polic objects of the legislature; U.S. v. Harty Wall. (U. S.) 386, 18 L. Ed. 830. Th parent object of the legislature is sought for as disclosed by the act itsel preamble in some cases, similar statut lating to the same subject, the consider of the mischiefs of the old law, and pe some other circumstances; Wilberforce, Law 99; and the court must be cont by the power manifested by the act an by the motive which initiated it; Bern v. Board of Trustees, 222 U.S. 334, 32 Ct. 147, 56 L. Ed. 225; but the known of congress in regard to the subject w considered; Richardson v. Harmon, 2 S. 96, 32 Sup. Ct. 27, 56 L. Ed. 110. statutes are to be reasonably construed a view to effecting their purpose; U.

Ed. 629. All statutes are to be construed with erence to the provisions of the common and provisions in derogation of the con law are held strictly; Durham v. Stat Ind. 477, 19 N. E. 327; Brown v. Fifi Mich. 322; Powell v. Sims, 5 W. Va.

R. Co., 212 U. S. 509, 29 Sup. Ct. 313, the common law are not to be construed so guage; and appeal to earlier decisions can strictly as to defeat the obvious intention of congress; Johnson v. Southern Pacific Co., 196 U. S. 1, 25 Sup. Ct. 158, 49 L. Ed. 363. Statutes extending the jurisdiction of the court of claims will be strictly construed; Blackfeather v. U. S., 190 U. S. 368, 23 Sup. Ct. 772, 47 L. Ed. 1099.

Acts of incorporation and those granting franchises and special benefits to corporations are to be construed strictly; nothing passes by implication; Charles River Bridge v. Warren Bridge, 11 Pet. (U. S.) 544, 9 L. Ed. 773; Bank of Pennsylvania v. Com., 19 Pa. 144; so of a municipal grant to an electric railway; Cleveland Electric Ry. Co. v. Ry. Co., 204 U. S. 116, 27 Sup. Ct. 202, 51 L. Ed.

A provision of a statute copied from that of another state is construed upon the interpretation placed upon the statute by such other state; Norfolk & W. Ry. Co. v. Cheatwood's Adm'x, 103 Va. 356, 49 S. E. 489; James v. Appel, 192 U. S. 129, 24 Sup. Ct. 222, 48 L. Ed. 377; Mann v. Carter, 74 N. H. 345, 68 Atl. 130, 15 L. R. A. (N. S.) 150; but this does not necessarily include subsequent variations of construction by such courts; Cathcart v. Robinson, 5 Pet. (U. S.) 280, 8 L. Ed. 120; when lower federal courts and the highest court of a foreign country construe like acts, the failure of congress to remedy that part of the act may be regarded as an acquiescence by congress in such judicial construction; White-Smith Music Pub. Co. v. Apollo Co., 209 U. S. 1, 28 Sup. Ct. 319, 52 L. Ed. 655, 14 Ann. Cas. 628.

An amended act is to be construed as if it had read from the beginning as it does with the amendment added to it; Black, Interpr. 357. The old act, so far as re-enacted, stands from its original date and the new stands from the date of the amendment. All of the old which is omitted in the new is repealed;

A re-enacted statute receives the same interpretation as the former act; Copper Queen Consol. Min. Co. v. Board of Equalization, 206 U. S. 474, 27 Sup. Ct. 695, 51 L. Ed. 1143. When congress in enacting revised statutes adopts language that has been construed by the courts, they adopt that construction; Sessions v. Romadka, 145 U. S. 29, 12 Sup. Ct. 799, 36 L. Ed. 609.

When two sections of the revised statutes taken together are not free from ambiguity and cannot be harmoniously applied, recourse must be had to legislation prior to the revised statutes from which those sections were drawn; Merchants' Nat. Bank of Baltimore v. U. S., 214 U. S. 33, 29 Sup. Ct. 593, 53 L. Ed. 899. In a general code a later section does not nullify an earlier one: Iglehart v. Iglehart, 204 U. S. 478, 27 Sup. Ct. 329, 51 L Ed. 575; in the case of a codifying statute, only be made upon some special ground; [1891] L. R. 145, A. C. In the U. S. Revised Statutes, the change of arrangement from earlier statutes will not be regarded as changing their scope and purpose, unless an intent to change the prior law is clearly expressed; Anderson v. S. S. Co., 225 U. S. 187, 32 Sup. Ct. 626, 56 L. Ed. 1047.

Language in a statute which has a well known meaning, sanctioned by decisions, is presumed to be used in that sense; Kepner v. U. S., 195 U. S. 100, 124, 24 Sup. Ct. 797, 49 L. Ed. 114, 1 Ann. Cas. 655. The presence of a provision in one part of a statute and its absence in another is an argument against reading it as implied where omitted; U. S. v. R. Co., 220 U. S. 37, 31 Sup. Ct. 362, 55 L. Ed. 361.

To change the phraseology creates a presumption of a change in intent; Crawford v. Burke, 195 U. S. 176, 25 Sup. Ct. 9, 49 L. Ed. 147; words defined in a prior statute will be understood in the same sense in substitute statutes unless the contrary appears; Purtell v. Coal & Iron Co., 256 Ill. 110, 99 N. E. 899, 43 L. R. A. (N. S.) 193.

When several acts relate to the same subject matter, a subsequent act may be considered upon the interpretation of prior legislation; Tiger v. Inv. Co., 221 U. S. 286, 31 Sup. Ct. 578, 55 L. Ed. 738; Swigart v. Baker, 229 U. S. 187, 33 Sup. Ct. 645, 57 L. Ed.

Where one statute relates to a subject generally and another deals with it more specifically, if they cannot be harmonized, the specific statute should control; Stadler v. Helena, 46 Mont. 128, 127 Pac. 454; Gardner v. School Dist., 34 Okl. 716, 126 Pac. 1018; usually a general intent in an act controls a particular intent. Where there is an earlier special and a later general statute (which is broad enough to include the former), the general will not be taken to repeal the special, unless the repeal is express or there is a manifest inconsistency; Rodgers v. U. S., 185 U. S. 83, 22 Sup. Ct. 582, 46 L. Ed. 816. But there will be a repeal where a later statute is a complete revision of the subject to which a former statute applied; U. S. v. Ranlett, 172 U. S. 133, 19 Sup. Ct. 114, 43 L. Ed. 393.

The rule known as the ejusdem generis rule (see that title) does not overrule all other rules. When the particular words exhaust the genus, general words must refer to words outside of those particularized; U. S. v. Mescall, 215 U. S. 26, 30 Sup. Ct. 19, 54 L. Ed. 77, following National Bank of Commerce v. Ripley, 161 Mo. 126, 61 S. W. 587; Gillock v. People, 171 Ill. 307, 49 N. E. 712; Winters v. Duluth, 82 Minn. 127, 84 N. W. 788.

Contemporaneous construction by a department of government is a rule of interpretathe first step should be to interpret the lan- | tion, but not an absolute one; it does not preclude inquiry as to its original correctness; Houghton v. Payne, 194 U. S. 88, 24 Sup. Ct. 596, 48 L. Ed. 888; so of a tariff act; Komada & Co. v. U. S., 215 U. S. 392, 30 Sup. Ct. 136, 54 L. Ed. 249; courts will be guided by the construction adopted by officers appointed to enforce an act; Deming v. McClaughry, 113 Fed. 640, 51 C. C. A. 349; in case of doubt, the interpretation of the proper department has great weight; Allemania Fire Ins. Co. of Pittsburg v. Ins. Co., 209 U. S. 327, 28 Sup. Ct. 544, 52 L. Ed. 815, 14 Ann. Cas. 948; any continued executive construction will be adopted; Solomon v. Commissioners of Cartersville, 41 Ga. 157; Wright v. Forrestal, 65 Wis. 341, 27 N. W. 52; but it must be long continued; Mackall v. Casilear, 137 U.S. 562, 11 Sup. Ct. 178, 34 L. Ed. 776.

Debates in congress are not appropriate sources of information as to the meaning of a statute, but reports of legislative committees may be referred to in order to throw light on its intent; Binns v. U. S., 194 U. S. 486, 24 Sup. Ct. 816, 48 L. Ed. 1087, approving Briggs v. U. S., 143 U. S. 357, 12 Sup. Ct. 391, 36 L. Ed. 180; recourse cannot be had to discussions in Parliament which precede the passing of an act; [1906] 2 K. B. 716. Such resort was had in Edger v. Board of Com'rs, 70 Ind. 331; and in Blake v. Bank, 23 Wall. (U. S.) 307, 23 L. Ed. 119, a badly expressed and apparently contradictory revenue act was interpreted by reference to the journals of congress, where it appeared that the peculiar phraseology was the result of an amendment made without due reference to the language in the original bill. statements of individual members cannot be referred to; 3 Q. B. D. 707; Leese v. Clark, 20 Cal. 387; County of Cumberland v. Boyd, 113 Pa. 52, 4 Atl. 346.

Such debates may show the conditions existing at the time the legislation was enacted; Standard Oil Co. v. U. S., 221 U. S. 1, 31 Sup. Ct. 502, 55 L. Ed. 619, 34 L. R. A. (N. S.) 834, Ann. Cas. 1912D, 734. In case of ambiguity, resort may be had to the report of the senate committee where the provision originated, which can be a guide to a true interpretation; Oceanic Steam Nav. Co. v. Stranahan, 214 U.S. 320, 333, 29 Sup. Ct. 671, 53 L. Ed. 1013, following Buttfield v. Stranahan, 192 U.S. 470, 24 Sup. Ct. 349, 48 L. Ed. 525. Resort may be had to the history of the times when the act was passed, but cannot be had to the speeches of members when it was adopted; U.S. v. Freight Ass'n, 166 U. S. 290, 17 Sup. Ct. 540, 41 L. Ed. 1007. But it was held by Lord Bramwell, 8 App. Cas. 501, that the courts cannot look at the history of an act, but only at its language. It was, however, said by Halsbury, L. C., that "it is quite legitimate to refer to the history" of a period "to understand what islature was then dealing"; [1896] A. C. 504. A court may place itself in the position of the authors of the words to be interpreted at the time they were written; [1906] 2 K. B. 716.

The duty of the court in construing a statute which is reasonably susceptible of two constructions to adopt that which saves its constitutionality, includes the duty of avoiding a construction which raises grave and doubtful constitutional questions, if it can be avoided; U. S. v. Delaware & Hudson Co., 213 U. S. 366, 29 Sup. Ct. 527, 53 L. Ed. 836.

Prof. Roscoe Pound (1912 Tenn. Bar Ass'n) quotes Prof. John C. Gray as "putting the matter very well thus: 'A fundamental misconception prevails and pervades all the books as to the dealing of the courts with statutes. Interpretation is generally spoken of as if its chief function was to discover what the meaning of the legislature really But when the legislature has had a real intention, one way or another on a point, it is not once in a hundred times that any doubt arises as to what its intention was. If that were all that the judge had to do with the statute, interpretation of the statutes, instead of being one of the most difficult of a judge's duties would be extremely easy. The fact is that the difficulties of socalled interpretation arise when the legislature has had no meaning at all; when the question which is raised on the statute never occurred to it; when what the judges have to do is, not to determine what the legislature did mean on a point which was present to its mind, but to guess what it would have intended on a point not present to its mind had the point been present."

The change of conditions as well as of the meaning of words in their ordinary use frequently creates difficulties in the application of statutes which in England led to the passage in 1889 of the General Interpretation Act. intended to cover the whole subject of statutory interpretation. A synopsis of its provisions, together with an instructive collation of words having a marked difference in their ordinary and judicial meaning, will be found in Ordronaux, Const. Leg. c. xi. In this country the subject has not been so comprehensively treated, but there will usually be found in the general statutes of each state a chapter defining the meaning of certain words as used in the statutes.

As to acts declaring the meaning of a prior act, see Statute.

when it was adopted; U. S. v. Freight Ass'n, 166 U. S. 290, 17 Sup. Ct. 540, 41 L. Ed. 1007. But it was held by Lord Bramwell, 8 App. Cas. 501, that the courts cannot look at the history of an act, but only at its language. It was, however, said by Halsbury, L. C., that "it is quite legitimate to refer to the history" of a period "to understand what was the subject matter with which the leg-tract occurs. When words are manifestly inconsistent with the declared purpose and object of the contract, they may be rejected; 2 Atk. 32. When words are omitted so as to defeat the effect of the contract, they will be supplied by the obvious sense and inference from the context. When words admit of two senses, that which gives effect to the design of the parties is preferred to that which destroys it; Add. Contr. 45; Cowp. 714.

Impossible things cannot be required. The subject-matter and nature of the context, or its objects, causes, effects, consequences, or precedents, or the situation of the parties, must often be consulted in order to arrive at their intention, as when words have, when literally construed, either no meaning at all or a very absurd one. The whole of an instrument must be viewed together and not each part taken separately; and effect must be given to every part, if possible; Lindley v. Groff, 37 Minn. 338, 34 N. W. 26. Assistance must be sought from the more near before proceeding to the remote. When one part is totally repugnant to the rest, it will be stricken out; but if it is only explanatory, it will operate as a limitation. As to the interpretation of a deed where the granting and habendum clauses are repugnant, see 12 L. R. A. (N. S.) note, 956. Reference to the lew loci or the usage of a particular place or trade is frequently necessary in order to explain the meaning; 2 B. & P. 164; 3 Stark. Ev. 1036; Gracy v. Bailee, 16 S. & R. (Pa.) 126. A court should read a written contract according to the obvious intention of the parties, in spite of clerical errors or omissions which can be corrected by perusing the whole instrument; Monmouth Park Ass'n v. Wallis Iron Works, 55 N. J. L. 132, 28 Atl. 140, 19 L. R. A. 456, 39 Am. St. Rep. 626; Chrisman v. Ins. Co., 16 Or. 283, 18 Pac. 466.

Words, however general, may be limited to the subject-matter in connection with which they are used; general words may be restricted to the same general genus as the words which preceded them; and where for many years words have received a judicial construction, it is reasonable to suppose that the parties so used them, and the courts would resort to such sense in reaching the meaning of the parties; 12 App. Cas. 484.

The enumeration of certain powers in respect to particular subjects in a written instrument is a negation of all other analogous powers with respect to the same subject-matter; Tucker v. Alexandroff, 183 U. S. 437, 22 Sup. Ct. 195, 46 L. Ed. 264.

When the language of the contract is ambiguous, the interpretation of it by the parties is entitled to great, if not controlling, influence; Topliff v. Topliff, 122 U. S. 121, 7 Sup. Ct. 1057, 30 L. Ed. 1110; Old Colony Trust Co. v. Omaha, 230 U. S. 100, 33 Sup. Ct. 967, 57 L. Ed. 1410 (a municipality); as shown by subsequent acts: New York v. Board of Tax Com'rs, 199 U. S. 1, 25 Sup. Ct. 705, 50 L. Ed. 65, 4 Ann. Cas. 381; before any controversy has arisen; Fitzgerald v. Bank, 114 Fed. 474, 52 C. C. A. 276; even if at variance with the literal meaning of the contract; District of Columbia v. Gallaher, 124 U. S. 505, 8 Sup. Ct. 585, 31 L. Ed. 526. Such construction is of more importance than the absolute meaning of the phraseology; Smith v. Crane, 169 Mo. App. 695, 154 S. W. 857; and will be accepted as the proper one; McMillin v. Titus, 222 Pa. 500, 72 Atl. 240; but it is said that this rule does not apply if the contract is free from ambiguity; Sternbergh v. Brock, 225 Pa. 279, 74 Atl. 166, 24 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1078, 133 Am. St. Rep. 877; In re Myers' Estate, 238 Pa. 195, 86 Atl. 89; Russell v. Young, 94 Fed. 45, 36 C. C. A. 71; in such case it cannot be affected by voluntary payments by one party to the other, through mistake, clearly not required by its terms and not demanded by the other party; Sharp v. Behr, 117 Fed. 864.

In Central R. R. Co. v. Jersey City, 209 U. S. 480, 28 Sup. Ct. 592, 52 L. Ed. 896, the interpretation placed by the court upon even a compact between two states, was said to have "the very powerful sanction of the conduct of the parties and of the existing condition of things."

Where a seller agreed to deliver a large quantity of cement "in car load lots f. o. b.," and it had uniformly provided the cars, it was held that this was a practical construction of the contract imposing that duty on the seller; Davis v. Cement Co., 134 Fed. 274 affirmed 142 Fed. 74, 73 C. C. A. 388.

In case of doubt, a party will be held to that meaning which he knew the other party believed the words to bear, if this can be done without making a new contract; Brent v. Chas. H. Lilly Co., 174 Fed. 877.

Words spoken cannot vary the terms of a written agreement; they may overthrow it. Words spoken at the time of the making of a written agreement are merged in the writing; 5 Co. 26; 2 B. & C. 634; parties cannot testify as to their intention or the meaning of a written contract; Gardt v. Brown, 113 Ill. 475, 55 Am. Rep. 434.

No representation, promise or agreement made, or opinion expressed in previous parol negotiations as to the terms or legal effect of the resulting written agreement can be permitted to prevail over the just interpretation of the contract, in the absence of some artifice which concealed its terms and prevented the complainant from reading it; New York Life Ins. Co. v. McMaster, 87 Fed. 63, 30 C. C. A. 532, per Sanborn, C. J. But where a writing is ambiguous or there are repugnant clauses, it is proper to consider all the negotiations leading to the contract, the subject-matter, the purpose to be effected, the consideration passing between the parties and all the surrounding circumstances when the contract was made; McMillin v. Titus, 222 Pa. 500, 72 Atl. 240; and prior negotiations, though merged in the contract, may be resorted to to determine whether the parties intended stipulations for delay as a penalty or liquidated damages; U. S. v. Bethlehem Steel Co., 205 U. S. 105, 27 Sup. Ct. 450, 51 L. Ed. 731.

Where there is a latent ambiguity which arises only in the application and does not appear upon the face of the instrument, it may be supplied by other proof; ambiguitas verborum latens verificatione supplctur; Mc-Dermott v. Ins. Co., 3 S. & R. (Pa.) 609.

Usages of the trade or place of making the contract are presumed to be incorporated, unless a contrary stipulation occurs. See LEX LOCI.

The rule that an agreement is to be construed most strongly against the party benefited can only be applied in doubtful cases; Hannibal & St. Joseph R. Co. v. Packet Co., 125 U. S. 260, 8 Sup. Ct. 874, 31 L. Ed. 731; and when other rules of interpretation fail; Patterson v. Gage, 11 Colo. 50, 16 Pac. 560. The more the text partakes of a solemn compact, the stricter should be its construction.

Jessel, M. R., in 6 Ch. D. 270, said: "The meaning of a contract must be ascertained according to the ordinary and proper rules of construction. If we can thus find out its meaning we do not want the maxim [that construction is more strongly against the one who used the words]. If we cannot find out its meaning, then the instrument is void and in that case it may be said to be construed in favor of the grantor, for the grant is annulled." If the intent of a contract cannot be ascertained, it will be held void for uncertainty; Gould v. Gunn (Ia.) 140 N. W. 380.

General expressions used in a contract are controlled by the special provisions therein. When there are two repugnant clauses in a deed, which cannot stand together, the first prevails. With a will the reverse is the case. In all instruments the written part controls the printed, if the two are inconsistent; Hutt v. Zimmer, 78 Hun 23, 28 N. Y. Supp. 1014; Schenck v. Saunders, 13 Gray (Mass.) 37; Union Pac. R. Co. v. Graddy, 25 Neb. 849, 41 N. W. 809; Mansfield Machine Works v. Common Council of Lowell, 62 Mich. 546, 29 N. W. 105; Thornton v. R. Co., 84 Ala. 109, 4 South. 197, 5 Am. St. Rep. 337; Thomas v. Taggart, 209 U. S. 385, 28 Sup. Ct. 519, 52 L. Ed. 845; Georgia Home Ins. Co. v. Jacobs, 56 Tex. 366; a special manuscript addition to a general printed form must govern if there is a repugnancy between them; Moore v. Lichtenberger, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 268; when a contract is embodied in several instruments, its true meaning is to be ascertained from a consid- every grant carries with it whatever is eration of all the instruments and the fect upon each other; Howard v. R. C Fla. 560, 5 South. 356; Smith v. Theoba Ky. 141, 5 S. W. 394; Phelps & Bi Windmill Co. v. Piercy, 41 Kan. 763, 21

If part of a contract is good, and being in restraint of trade, is bad, the mer may stand; U. S. Consol. Seeded I Co. v. Griffin & Skelley Co., 126 Fed. 3 C. C. A. 334. Different contracts mad tween the same parties on the same da to the same matter were construed to in Stadler v. Power Co., 139 Fed. 305, C. A. 435.

Dictionaries are not to be taken as a itative exponents of the meaning of in an act, but words should be taken in ordinary sense, and we are therefore for instruction to these books (Johnson Webster); 16 Q. B. D. 641, A sealed contract to pay a debt when in the debtor's opinion, his circumst would enable him to do so, is not en able; Nelson v. Von Bonnhorst, 29 Pa. but a contract to pay when able is gen held to impose an obligation; Denn Wheelwright, 60 Miss. 733; some cases sider it a contract to pay within a res ble time; Nunez v. Dautel, 19 Wall. (1 562, 22 L. Ed. 161; Noland v. Bull, 2 479, 33 Pac. 983; De Wolfe v. French, 5 420; or to pay at once; Kincaid v. Hi 1 Bibb (Ky.) 396. When the debto once become able to pay, the right of a vests, though later he becomes unat pay; Denney v. Wheelwright, 60 Miss Where no period is fixed, either may ordinarily withdraw on reasonable tice; Kenderdine Hydro Carbon Fuel ( Plumb, 182 Pa. 463, 38 Atl. 480; so in tracts of hiring or partnership; L. R. L. 550. But a contract between a tele company and a railroad company for a road telegraph line and service alon right of way was held perpetual in its gation; Western Union Telegraph C Pennsylvania Co., 129 Fed. 849, 64 C. 285, 68 L. R. A. 968, following L. R. L. 550; Franklin Telegraph Co. v. Har 145 U. S. 459, 12 Sup. Ct. 900, 36 L. Ed which was a contract between a mar turing company and a telegraph con for a private wire to New York. cases went upon the ground that the int nature of the contract showed that it have continuing effect, unless, by its one or either party could terminate it. In addition to the above rules, ther many presumptions of law relating to a ments, such as, that the parties to a s contract intend to bind their personal sentatives; that where several parties tract without words of severalty, the presumed to bind themselves jointly; mentioned, a reasonable time is meant; and other presumptions arising out of the nature of the case.

It is the duty of the court to interpret all written instruments; see Middlesex Turnpike Corporation v. Swan, 10 Mass. 384, 6 Am. Dec. 139; Levy v. Gadsky, 3 Cra. (U. S.) 180, 2 L. Ed. 404; Hassett v. McArdle, 7 Misc. 710, 28 N. Y. Supp. 48; Fidelity Title & Trust Co. v. Gas Co., 150 Pa. 8, 24 Atl. 339; written evidence; McCoy v. Lightner, 2 Watts (Pa.) 347; and foreign laws; Duffie v. Black, 1 Pa. 388; and where the terms of a parol agreement are shown without any conflict of evidence; Brannock v. Elmore, 114 Mo. 55, 21 S. W. 451; Elliott v. Wanamaker, 155 Pa. 67, 25 Atl. 826; or where a contract is contained in letters, no matter how voluminous they may be: Cincinnati Punch & Shear Co. v. Thompson, 80 Kan. 467, 102 Pac. 848.

Whether a written contract, to be performed in case a consolidation was effected between two corporations, is limited to one resulting from then pending negotiations, or whether it referred to a consolidation under a renewal of negotiations a year later, extrinsic evidence of the circumstances and the acts and declarations of the parties is admissible, and where that is conflicting, the construction of the contract is for the jury; Donner v. Alford, 136 Fed. 750, 69 C. C. A. 402.

Contracts are to be construed liberally in favor of the public, when the subject-matter concerns the interests of the public; Joy v. St. Louis, 138 U. S. 1, 11 Sup. Ct. 243, 34 L. Ed. 843.

See Construction; In Mitiori Sensu; Re-CITAL; TITLE; NONSENSE; ET CÆTERA; FROM; PREAMBLE; Beal, Cardinal Rules of Interpretation; Black, Interpretation.

INTERPRETATION CLAUSE. A clause frequently inserted in Acts of Parliament, declaring the sense in which certain words used therein are to be understood.

INTERPRETER. One employed to make a translation.

An interpreter should be sworn before he translates the testimony of a witness; In re Norberg, 4 Mass. 81.

A person employed between an attorney and a client to act as interpreter is considered merely as the organ between them, and is not bound to testify as to what he has acquired in those confidential communications; Andrews v. Solomon, Pet. C. C. 356, Fed. Cas. No. 378; Jackson v. French, 3 Wend. (N. Y.) 337, 20 Am. Dec. 699.

Communications made to an interpreter are not hearsay when he translates and communicates what has been said to him, and the party to whom it is made may testi-essary to its enjoyment; when no time is N. W. 274. Conversations carried on through an interpreter may be shown by either party thereto or a third person who hears it, its weight only and not its competency being affected thereby; Com. v. Vose, 157 Mass. 393, 32 N. E. 355, 17 L. R. A. 813.

Bouv.-105

> INTERREGNUM (Lat.). The period, in case of an established government, which elapses between the death of a sovereign and the accession of another. The vacancy which occurs when there is no government. See CORONATION.

> INTERROGATOIRE. In French An act, or instrument, which contains the interrogatories made by the judge to the person accused, on the facts which are the object of the accusation, and the answers of the accused. Pothier, Proc. Crim. s. 4, art. 2, § 1.

> INTERROGATORIES. Material and pertinent questions in writing, to necessary points, exhibited for the examination of witnesses or persons who are to give testimony in the cause.

> They are either original and direct on the part of him who produces the witnesses, or cross and counter, on behalf of the adverse party, to examine witnesses produced on the other side. Either party, plaintiff or defendant, may exhibit original or cross interrogatories.

> The form which interrogatories assume is as various as the minds of the persons who propound them. They should be as distinct as possible, and capable of a definite answer; and they should leave no loop-holes for evasion to an unwilling witness. Care must be observed to put no leading questions in original interrogatories, for these always lead to inconvenience; and for scandal or impertinence interrogatories will, under certain circumstances, be suppressed. See Willis, Int. passim; Gresl. Eq. Ev. pt. 1, c. 3, s. 1; Viner, Abr.; Daniell, Ch. Pr.

> INTERRUPTION. The effect of some act or circumstance which stops the course of a prescription or act of limitations. 3 Bligh, N. S. 444; 4 M. & W. 497.

> Civil interruption is that which takes place by some judicial act.

> Natural interruption is an interruption in fact. Tyler v. Wilkinson, 4 Mas. 404, Fed. Cas. No. 14,312; 2 Y. & J. 285. See EASE-MENTS; LIMITATIONS; PRESCRIPTION.

> INTERSECTION. The point of intersection of two roads is the point where their middle lines intersect. Pittsburg v. Cluley, 74 Pa. 259.

> INTERSTATE COMMERCE. See Com-MERCE.

INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMIS-A commission of five persons ap-SION. pointed by the president under the act of ty to it; Miller v. Lathrop, 50 Minn. 91, 52 February 4, 1887, to carry out the purpose

It sits usually in Washington, of the act. but can hold sittings at such other places as it may choose. By act of June 29, 1906, it was increased to seven members with terms of seven years. "It is not a court; it is a special tribunal continually engaged in an administrative and semi-judicial capacity in investigating railroad rates and practices"; Colorado Fuel & Iron Co. v. S. P. Co., 6 I. C. C. Rep. 508. Except the rulings of the Supreme Court and the directions of the district court in the particular case, it does not feel itself bound to follow all the decisions of the federal courts; 1 Drinker, Interst. Com. Act, § 262.

INTERSTATE COMMERCE

The functions of the Commission are to hear complaints as to violations of the Interstate Commerce Act and also to investigate of its own motion any violations which may come to its notice. It may not of itself institute criminal proceedings, but may and frequently does recommend such to the attorney general's department.

Since 1906, it has power not merely to find that a violation of the act has been caused, and to award damages to the injured party, but to prescribe a reasonable rate or regulation for that found to be improper. It may also prescribe joint through routes between connecting carriers, with through rates applicable thereto.

In actions before the Commission to recover damages for violations of the act, the statute of limitations is two years from the accrual of the cause of action. This period begins to run when the freight was payable and not when it was actually paid; Arkansas Fertilizer Co. v. U. S., 193 Fed. 667.

A letter to the Commission, setting out the facts and praying relief, is, however, sufficient to toll the running of the statute; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Dickerson, 191 Fed. 705, 112 C. C. A. 295.

The Commission has exclusive jurisdiction to question the reasonableness or legality of a tariff rate or regulation, filed in the manner prescribed by section 6 of the act. Until the Commission has declared such a rate illegal, no court, state or federal, has power to dispute its validity. Nor can the parties themselves contract for a different rate.

Practice before the Commission is informal compared with that in the courts. The Commission has no power to enforce its own orders, but the provision in the act by which the disobedience of a lawful order of the Commission subjects the offender to a fine of $5,000 for each day's continuance, makes such orders effective. This provision does not apply to orders for the payment of damages, as to which, under its constitutional right, the carrier may insist on a jury trial in the district court.

The usual method of contesting the validity of the Commission is by application for an injunction to the proper district court, with appeal to the Supreme Court in the manner provided by the act.

The Constitution of the United States, Art 8, gives to Congress the power "to regula merce with foreign nations and among the states and with the Indian tribes." The Ir Commerce Act was passed on February 4, seffect on April 5, 1887. It was amended h 1889, February 10, 1891, and February 8, 189 plementary acts were passed February 1 March 2, 1893, Feb. 19, 1903, June 29, 1906, 4 1908, June 18, 1910, and October 22, 1913. It applies to all carriers engaged in the tration of oil or other commodity, except was natural or artificial gas, by means of pipe partly by pipe lines and partly by rails partly by pipe lines and partly by water, an egraph, telephone and cable companies ( wire or wireless) engaged in sending message one state, territory, or district of the Unite to any other state, territory, or district, or foreign country, and to any carrier engage transportation of passengers and property by railroad (or partly by railroad and pa water when both are used under a common management, or arrangement for a continue riage or shipment), from one state or terr the District of Columbia, or from one pla territory to another place in the same terri from any place in the United States to an foreign country or from any place in the States through a foreign country to any oth in the United States, and also to the tra place in the United States to a foreign cour carried from such place to a port of transl or shipped from a foreign country to any the United States and carried to such pla a port of entry either in the United State adjacent foreign country.

It does not apply to the transportation of or property, etc., wholly within a state to or from a foreign country. It also exbridges and ferries used in connection w railroad and to express and sleeping car coult declares that all charges for services remonnection therewith shall be reasonable and prohibits all unjust and unreasonable. The charging of any greater or less comp

The charging of any greater or less compfor any service rendered any shipper or peris charged or collected from another for a contemporaneous service, etc., is declared to lawful.

The act provides that if any carrier shall install and operate switch connections, and cars to the best of its ability, without distion, the Commission may, on complaint file an order directing the carrier to comply vact.

Free passes and transportation prohibited in certain specified cases.

It forbids the giving any undue or unrer preference to one person, etc., or locality of other person or place, or to one description fic over another, and prohibits the carrisubjecting any shipper, locality, or traffic undue or unreasonable prejudice or disadit imposes a duty to afford reasonable, projequal facilities to connecting carriers, for the change of business, without discrimination.

It prohibits charging any greater composin the aggregate for the transportation of or of like kind of property for a shorter charged for a longer distance over the same the same direction, the shorter being include in the longer distance, except by authority Commission.

It prohibits railroad companies transport article or commodity other than timber, we may own, in whole or in part, or in which any interest, except such commodities as necessary and intended for its own use in the same as a common carrier.

It prohibits any agreement between carr the pooling of freights of competing railr for dividing their joint earnings.

It provides that the carriers shall print so of their rates, duly classified, and file copi the Commission and post copies in all their stations and offices for public inspection. These must specify terminal charges and any rules affecting the rates. These rates can only be advanced thirty days after public notice and an amendment of the schedules accordingly; nor can they be reduced except after three days' similar notice and the like amendment. Copies of all agreements between two or more carriers for making a line of through transportation are also required to be filed with the Commission. If joint tariffs of rates are provided for, copies of these tariffs must be filed with the Commission. Such publicity is to be given to these joint tariffs as the Commission may direct. This section contains the same requirement as to thirty days' notice of any advance and three days' notice of any reduction in the joint rates, as is prescribed respecting the rates of the individual carrier.

It is the duty of carrier to furnish written statement of rate on request and to keep posted name of agent to whom application for rate may be made.

It prohibits any scheme between carriers to prevent the continuous transportation of property without change of cars. No breaking of bulk, etc., unless necessary, shall be considered as breaking the continuous passage.

It provides that any carrier committing a breach of this act shall be liable in damages to the person injured, including a counsel fee to be taxed as costs. Any person aggrieved may complain before the Commission or bring suit in a federal court having jurisdiction, for damages. In the latter cases the court may compel all officers, etc., to appear and testify and to produce the books of the company; but no evidence which they may give shall be used against them in any criminal proceeding.

Any carrier, or, if a corporation, any officer, etc., thereof, guilty of an infraction of the act, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and subject to a fine of not to exceed $5,000, or if the offence is an unlawful discrimination in rates, to imprisonment for not to exceed two years, or both in the discretion of the court. False billing, classification etc., of goods is made a misdemeanor, whether by the carrier or its made a misdemeanor, whether by the carrier or its officer, or by the shipper, and so is the act of inducing a common carrier to discriminate unjustly.

It creates the Commission, who have authority, by sec. 12 to inquire into the management of the business of common carriers and to enforce the act; they may institute proceedings for that purpose and for the punishment of violations of the act; they may require the production of all necessary books, contracts, etc.

The Commission has power to establish through routes and joint rates, shipper to have right to designate route; it is unlawful for carriers to disclose information as to shipments. The Commission is empowered to determine maximum allowances to shippers for transportation services and to determine if any party is entitled to an award of damages.

Any person, corporation, association, or any mercantile, agricultural, or manufacturing society, or any body politic or municipal organization or State Railroad Commission may complain before the Commission of any infraction of the act, and the Commission itself may institute any inquiry on its own motion.

If the Commission find that the act has been contravened, it shall notify the carrier thereof.

If any carrier refuses to obey an order of the

If any carrier refuses to obey an order of the Commission, the latter or any party interested may apply to the federal court where such carrier has its principal office. Such court shall hear the case speedily, without formal pleadings; the findings of fact of the Commission shall be prima facie evidence of the matter therein stated. If it appear that any lawful order of the Commission has been disobeyed, the court shall enjoin further disobedience thereof. If the matter in dispute exceeds $2,000, either party may appeal.

Common carriers are required to make annual reports to the Commission, and the latter may prescribe a uniform system of keeping accounts.

The act expressly excepts the carriage of property free, or at reduced rates, for the United States, state, or municipal governments, or for charitable purposes, or to and from expositions, etc., or the free carriage of destitute persons transported by charitable societies; or the issuance of mileage, excursion, or commutation passenger tickets; or giving reduced rates to ministers of religion; or to certain indigent persons; or the exchange of passes between the officers of railroad companies for their officers and employés.

The initial carrier is liable for damage to the bolder of a bill of lading in spite of a contract to the contrary, but the initial carrier has recourse to the carrier responsible.

The provisions of the act are declared to be in addition to all remedies by common law or by stat-

By the act of March 2, 1889, the United States courts are given jurisdiction to issue writs of peremptory mandamus commanding the movement of interstate traffic or the furnishing of cars and other transportation facilities.

Under the Hepburn Act (1906) the Commission may require the carrier to furnish cars and shipping facilities; it may determine, on hearing, what are reasonable rates and enforce them (but not order an increase); it may fix through routes and rates and compel connecting lines to enter into through traffic agreements; but only where the public interest appears to require it.

The primary purpose of the act is to regulate the interstate business of carriers, and the secondary purpose (for which the Commission was established) was to enforce the regulations of the act. This power is not extended by any amendatory acts to mere investigations in regard to annual reports of carriers or of the Commission, or for the purpose of recommending legislation. Quære, whether Congress has power to compel testimony in regard to subjects which do not concern direct breaches of law, and whether it can delegate such power; Harriman v. Commission, 211 U. S. 407, 29 Sup. Ct. 115, 53 L. Ed. 253.

The Commission has no powers except those conferred by Congress; it cannot allow special privileges or relieve hardships, nor prevent anticipated violations of the act, except as therein provided. It will not assume an advisory jurisdiction. It cannot compel a carrier to stop reckless expenditure, nor award damages for defective service, nor require a carrier to adopt a particular form of ticket or bill of lading; 1 Drinker, Interst. Com. Act.

The Act of 1910 created the Commerce Court with jurisdiction to enjoin, set aside or suspend in whole or in part any order of the Interstate Commerce Commission. The proceedings of this court may be reviewed by the Supreme Court.

By Act of Oct. 22, 1913, the commerce court was abolished (from and after Dec. 31, 1913) and its jurisdiction was transferred to the district court. Cases must be heard by three judges (one at least to be a circuit judge) and at least two judges must concur. An appeal lies direct to the Supreme Court from any order granting or denying an interlocutory injunction. Such appeal must be taken in thirty days. An appeal from a final order must be taken in sixty days.

The Elkins Act of Feb. 19, 1903, provides that a carrier corporation is liable to conviction as well as its officers, agents, etc., for willful failure to file and observe tariffs. Discriminations and concessions from tariff charges are forbidden. Rates filed, published or participated in are conclusively deemed the legal rates, as against the carrier. For the acceptance of a rebate the person or firm so accepting shall, in addition to any penalty, forfeit to the United States, three times the amount of money so received and three times the value of any other consideration accepted. The Interstate Commerce Commission will enjoin discrimination and departure from tariff rates through a federal court sitting in equity having jurisdiction and the district attorney must prosecute such proceedings.

The Expedition Act of Feb. 11, 1903, provides for the expediting of causes arising under the Commerce Act, when the cause is of general public importance, by giving it precedence over others.

The Commission is made a body corporate, with legal capacity to be a party plaintiff or defendant in the federal courts, by reason of the provision in the act that it "shall have an official seal, which shall be judicially noticed," and that making it lawful for it to apply by petition for the enforcement of its orders; Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 162 U. S. 197, 16 Sup. Ct. 666, 40 L. Ed. 940.

The Commission has exclusive original jurisdiction to determine whether a regulation or a practice affecting rates or matters sought to be regulated by the act is unjust or unreasonable, unjustly discriminatory, preferential or prejudicial, and this although the regulation or practice complained of has ceased; Mitchell C. & C. Co. v. R. Co., 230 U. S. 247, 33 Sup. Ct. 916, 57 L. Ed. 1472.

The object of the Commerce Act is to compel the establishment of reasonable rates and their universal application. A guarantee to a shipper of a particular train is a discrimination, if not open to all; Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Kirby, 225 U. S. 155, 32 Sup. Ct. 648, 56 L. Ed. 1033, Ann. Cas. 1914A, 501.

The orders of the Commission are final unless (1) beyond the power which it could constitutionally exercise; or (2) beyond its statutory power; or (3) based upon a mistake of law. But questions of fact may be involved in the determination of questions of law, so that an order regular on its face may be set aside if it appears that (4) the rate is so low as to be confiscatory and in violation of the constitutional prohibition against the taking property without due process of law; or (5) if the Commission acted so arbitrarily and unjustly as to fix rates contrary to evidence or without evidence to support it; or (6) if the authority therein involved has been exercised in such an unreasonable manner as to cause it to be within the elementary rule that the substance and not the shadow determines the validity of the exercise of the power; Int. Com. Com. v. R. Co., 222 U. S. 541, 32 Sup. Ct. 108, 56 L. Ed. 308, citing Int. Com. Com. v. R. Co., 215 U. S. 452, 30 Sup. Ct. 155, 54 L. Ed. 280; Southern Pac. Co. v. Commission, 219 U.S. 433, 31 Sup. Ct. 288, 55 L. Ed. 283; Int. Com.

Com. v. R. Co., 216 U. S. 538, 30 Sup. Ct. 417, 54 L. Ed. 608.

Subject to the two leading prohibitions that their charges shall not be unreasonable or unjust, and that they shall not unjustly discriminate, so as to give undue preference to persons or traffic similarly circumstanced, the act leaves common carriers as they were at common law, free to make special contracts, to classify their traffic, to adjust and apportion their rates, and generally, to manage their important interests upon the same principles which are regarded as sound in other pursuits; Cincinnati, N. O. & T. P. Ry. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 162 U. S. 184, 16 Sup. Ct. 700, 40 L. Ed. 935; Union Pac. R. Co. v. Grain Co., 222 U. S. 215, 32 Sup. Ct. 39, 56 L. Ed. 171. act was not designed to prevent competition between different roads, or to interfere with the customary arrangements made by railway companies for reduced fares in consideration of increased mileage, where such reduction does not operate as an unjust discrimination. It is not all discriminations that are prohibited, but only those that are unjust and unreasonable; Interstate Commerce Commission v. R. Co., 145 U. S. 263, 12 Sup. Ct. 844, 36 L. Ed. 699, affirming 43 Fed. 37. The act is not to be construed so as to abridge or take away the commonlaw right of the carrier to make contracts and adopt proper business methods, further than its terms and recognized purposes require; a railroad company may lawfully charge low rates on coal in the summer months, if its rates are equal to all persons; Interstate Commerce Commission v. R. Co., 5 I. C. Rep. 656 (C. C., M. D. of Tenn.).

Interpretation. The act was intended to be an effective means for redressing wrongs resulting from unjust discrimination and undue preference, and this must be so whether persons or places suffer; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Ry. Co., 218 U. S. 88, 30 Sup. Ct. 651, 54 L. Ed. 959. The words "railway" and "railroad" are completely synonymous; West End Improvement Club v. Ry. & Bridge Co., 17 I. C. C. 239, 244. Section 15 is the dominating and controlling expression of the real object and meaning of the act. It makes of the Commission a special expert body to deal with rates, and not to supplant the courts; Joynes v. R. Co., 17 I. C. C. 361, 369. Carriers are left free to initiate their own rates, rules and regulations; Traer v. R. Co., 14 I. C. C. 165, 169.

The provisions of the Hepburn Act, as amended by the Carmack Amendment, and the Elkins Act forbidding carriers to evade the collection or payment of fixed tariff rates are not intended to extend the jurisdiction in matters outside of its province as a common carrier, nor are they intended to limit and prescribe the use which shall be made of the rates which the carrier puts into effect; California Commercial Ass'n v. Wells-Fargo & Co., 14 I. C. C. 422, 428.

The law stands for what it means from the date when it takes effect and not from the date when it is construed by the Commission. Ordinarily the date of the announcement by the Commission of its interpretation of a particular provision is therefore of little real importance; Liberty Mills v. R. Co., 23 I. C. C. 182, 185.

The act does not apply to the carriage of property by rail or otherwise wholly within a state; Ex parte Koehler, 30 Fed. 867; when the carrier issues no bills of lading to points beyond its line, receives no freight on through bills of lading, and has no arrangement with other roads for a conventional division of charges or a common management; Interstate Commerce Commission v. R. Co., 77 Fed. 942; but if a railroad company, whose line is entirely within one state, issues through bills of lading to points in other states, it is within the act; In re Annapolis, W. & B. R. Co., 1 I. C. Rep. 315. Receivers of railroad companies are common carriers and subject to the act; Independent Refiners' Ass'n of Titusville, Pa., v. R. Co., 6 I. C. Rep. 379. The appointment of a receiver of a part of an interstate road lying within a state does not interfere with interstate commerce; McKinney v. Gas Co., 206 Fed. 772. A carrier subject to the act cannot, by leasing its road, free itself from liability for practices illegal under the act, nor after the termination of the lease escape liability for damages for injuries sustained during the lease; Independent Refiners' Ass'n of Titusville, Pa., v. R. Co., 6 I. C. Rep. 378.

The act does not come within the constitutional prohibition as to impairing the obligation of contracts, although its effect may be to prevent the literal enforcement of pre-existing contracts; Kentucky & I. Bridge Co. v. R. Co., 2 I. C. Rep. 102; id., 2 I. C. C. R. 162; 45 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. (Mont.) 234.

The mere circumstance that there is in a given case a preference does not, of itself, show that such preference is unreasonable; Interstate Commerce Commission v. R. Co., 5 I. C. Rep. 685 (C. C. of A.); id., 74 Fed. 715, 21 C. C. A. 51.

One of the most satisfactory tests of the reasonableness of the rates of one carrier is a comparison with the rates of other carriers operating in the same territory under the same general conditions; Chamber of Commerce of City of Milwaukee v. R. Co., 15 I. C. C. 460, 466. The rates in different directions on the same line between the same points need not be identical; Wilburine Oil Works v. R. Co., 18 I. C. C. 548. Each case must be decided upon its own merits, and in arriving at a conclusion in respect to the rates here involved, the decisions in another case against carriers operating in a different territory under essentially dissimilar circumstances and conditions affords no proper criterion therefor; Chicago Lumber & Coal Co. v. R. Co., 16 I. C. C. 323, 328.

Evidence that the rates on a certain commodity are higher in certain cases than certain other rates, and that they produce a large revenue to the carrier, does not make a prima facie case that they are unreasonable. The reasonableness must be determined by an examination of the whole subject; Howell v. R. Co., 2 I. C. Rep. 162. The fact that a road earns little more than operating expenses is not to be overlooked in fixing rates, but it cannot be made to justify grossly excessive rates. Wherever there are more roads than the business, at fair rates, will remunerate, they must rely upon future earnings for the return on investments and profits; New Orleans Cotton Exchange v. R. Co., 2 I. C. Rep. 289.

The relative fairness of a rate is not determined alone by its being low. Low rates to one place may not be just if still lower rates are given to another place; In re Chicago, St. P. & K. C. R. Co., 2 I. C. Rep. 137. The legitimate interests of carrying companies, as well as of traders and shippers, should be considered in determining the lawfulness of rates under the act. Ocean competition may constitute a dissimilar condition, and conditions which exist beyond the seaboard of the United States can be legitimately regarded for the purpose of justifying a difference in rates charged by railroads between import and domestic traffic; Texas & P. R. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 5 I. C. Rep. 405; id., 162 U. S. 197, 16 Sup. Ct. 666, 40 L. Ed. 940; City of Spokane v. R. Co., 15 I. C. C. 376.

Trade centres are not, as a matter of right, entitled to have more favorable rates than the smaller towns for which they form distributive centres; and carriers may give the smaller places rates as favorable as the larger ones; when the rates are impartial in themselves as between large and small towns, the fact that one large centre may have an advantage over another in the business of the small places does not make out a case of undue preference. Impartial rates are not rendered illegal by their effect upon the business of localities; Martin v. R. Co., 2 I. C. Rep. 32; that rates should be fixed in inverse proportion to the natural advantages of competing towns with the view of equalizing "commercial conditions" is at variance with justice; Eau Claire Board of Trade v. R. Co., 4 I. C. Rep. 65; Freight Bureau of Cincinnati v. R. Co., 7 id. 180. A through rate does not unjustly discriminate against an intermediate point because less proportionally than the rate from such point to the common destination; Milwaukee Chamber of Commerce v. R. Co., 2 I. C. Rep. 393.

A railroad company is under special obligation to give reasonable rates for its local business. It may accept business from other carriers on through rates which, when divided between them, will give to any one of them for its division less than its own local rates; Lippman & Co. v. R. Co., 2 I. C. Rep. 414

Through transportation over connecting lines is favored by the act, and the rate is correctly adjusted upon the distance through, and not upon the shorter distances over, the several lines; Coxe Brothers & Co. v. R. Co., 3 I. C. Rep. 460. While the question of distance is important in establishing rates, it is not an absolute and unconditional right from which a departure may not be justified by other considerations. The public benefits, the greater volume of business warranting lower rates to all, and the force of competition may furnish reasons that outweigh a claim of right founded merely on geographical considerations; Imperial Coal Co. v. R. Co., 2 I. C. Rep. 436. See McMorran v. R. Co., id. 604.

When rates are on their face disproportionate or relatively unequal, the burden is on the carrier to justify them; McMorran v. R. Co., 2 I. C. Rep. 604. At any hearing involving a rate increased after Jan. 1, 1910, or sought to be increased after this act, the burden of proving that the increase is just and reasonable is on the carrier.

In determining rates on a short local line, where the cost of service is great, owing to steep grades, sparse population, and light traffic, such circumstances should have much controlling weight. This rule was applied where a road existing under such conditions was charged with unjust rates in transporting oil, as compared with the cost of piping it to the same point; Rice, Robinson & Witherop v. R. Co., 2 I. C. Rep. 298.

Ordinarily there is no better measure of railroad service in carrying goods than distance, though it is not always controlling. And where the rates for carrying freight from a certain territory over one road are considerably greater than the rates charged by another road from neighboring territory to the same place, the higher rates will be held excessive; James & Abbott v. R. Co., 2 I. C. Rep. 609. Greater compensation in the aggregate for the shorter, than for the longer, haul over a direct line is unlawful; Cordele Machine Shop v. R. Co., 6 I. C. Rep. 361.

Mileage, while a circumstance to be considered with the conditions in fixing rates, is by no means controlling or the most important; Interstate Commerce Commission v. R. Co., 5 I. C. Rep. 656 (C. C., M. D. of Tenn.).

A through rate is not necessarily reasonable because it does not exceed the aggregate of two reasonable local rates; Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. v. Minnesota, 186 U. S. 257, 22 Sup. Ct. 900, 46 L. Ed. 1151.

There may be cases in which a carrier legitimately engaged in serving some territory is compelled by some new and aggressive competition to reduce normal and reasonable rates, to retain business on its line, and where corresponding reductions at points not affected, or less affected, by such competition, might be unreasonable. But when a carrier voluntarily enters a field of competition where, by reason of a disadvantageous route, or the rigor of the competitive conditions, remunerative rates cannot be charged, and its service to a portion of its patrons is unprofitable, it accepts the legal obligation that its service shall be impartial to all who sustain similar relations to the traffic, and for whom the service itself is not substantially dissimilar; Manufacturers & Jobbers' Union of Mankato v. R. Co., 3 I. C. Rep. 115. Where there has been a consolidation of competing lines that have formerly served the same territory in competitive traffic to the same market, the consolidated lines cannot deprive the public of fair competition, nor give oppressive discrimination with a view to its own interest; Rice, Robinson & Witherop v. R. Co., 3 I. C. Rep. 162.

In fixing reasonable rates on such articles as food products, the operating expenses, bonded debt, fixed charges, dividends on the stock and other necessary expenses are all to be considered, but the claim that any particular rate is to be measured by these as a fixed standard, below which the rate cannot lawfully be reduced, is subject to some qualifications, one of which is that these obligations must be actual and in good faith; Kentucky & I. Bridge Co. v. R. Co., 37 Fed. 567, 2 L. R. A. 289; nor, on the other hand, can these rates be so limited that the shipper may, in all cases, realize actual cost of production; In re Alleged Excessive Freight Rates & Charges on Food Products, 3 I. C. Rep. 93; id., 4 I. C. C. R. 48; in the carriage of great staples which supply an enormous business, and which in market value and actual cost of transportation are among the cheapest articles of commerce, rates yielding only moderate profit to the carrier are both necessary and justifiable; id.

The fact that one company controls parallel lines affords no warrant for giving superior advantages to the patrons of one line and denying similar advantages to those of the other line; Boards of Trade Union v. R. Co., 1 I. C. Rep. 608.

A carrier cannot give a railroad company a lower rate on the same commodity than it gives to others; Interstate Commerce Commission v. R. Co., 225 U. S. 326, 32 Sup. Ct. 742, 56 L. Ed. 1107, Ann. Cas. 1914A, 504.

Ordinarily no adequate reason exists for a difference in rates for a solid carload of one kind of freight from one consignor and same destination consisting of freight from more than one consignor to one consignee, etc., and such difference is not justified by the difference in the cost of handling; Thurber v. R. Co., 2 I. C. Rep. 742.

The carrier cannot look beyond the transportation to the ownership of the shipment as the basis for determining the applicability of its rates, and the rules of the official classifications, providing that carriers should collect a greater compensation for carload shipments when made by forwarding agents of different shippers, were unjustly discriminatory and unreasonable; Interstate Commerce Commission v. R. Co., 220 U. S. 235, 31 Sup. Ct. 392, 55 L. Ed. 448.

The expense of carrying fruit, etc., from Jersey City, the railroad terminal, to New York, may be added to the rate charged to the latter place; Truck Farmers' Ass'n v. R. Co., 6 I. C. Rep. 295. As to the effect of free cartage at terminals, see Interstate Commerce Commission v. R. Co., 167 U. S. 633, 17 Sup. Ct. 986, 42 L. Ed. 306.

Party-rate tickets are not commutation tickets, and when party rates are lower than the fare for single passengers they are illegal; Pittsburgh, C. & St. L. R. Co. v. R. Co., 2 I. C. Rep. 729. A sale of mileage tickets to commercial travellers, and a refusal to sell to other passengers except at a higher rate, is unjust discrimination within the act; and the fact that the former release the carrier from liability, or that they may influence business in favor of the road, does not justify such discrimination; Larrison v. R. Co., 1 I. C. Rep. 369. The placing of passenger tickets in the hands of ticket brokers to be disposed of at reduced rates, under the pretence of paying a commission, is a violation of the act; In re Passenger Tariffs & Rate Wars, 2 I. C. Rep. 340. A passenger rate war in which rates are repeatedly reduced by carriers without filing tariffs or reducing intermediate rates, is unlawful; id.; granting free transportation to city officials is unjust discrimination within the act; Harvey v. R. Co., 3 I. C. Rep. 793.

Where the established rate for single passengers is three cents a mile, it is not unlawful to issue what are termed "party-rate tickets" for not less than ten persons, at two cents a mile, which is less than the established rate for single passengers, where such tickets are offered to the public generally; Interstate Commerce Commission v. R. Co., 145 U. S. 263, 12 Sup. Ct. 844, 36 L. Ed. 699. See In re Passenger Tariffs, 2 I. C. Rep. 445, where the Commission held that party rates and passenger carload rates lower than for single passengers are illegal.

The provision that nothing in the act shall apply "to the issuance of mileage passenger tickets" applies only to the issuing of such tickets; the terms upon which they are isa like carload from the same point to the sued must be in accordance with the general provisions of the act; Larrison v. R. Co., 1 I. C. Rep. 369.

If a reduction in passenger rates be made between competing points, the rates must also be reduced between intermediate points; In re Passenger Tariffs & Rate Wars, 2 I. C. Rep. 340.

The possibility of competition arising at a particular point does not render freight rates to that point, though higher than those to a longer haul to a point where competition prevails, obnoxious to the act, against a greater charge for a shorter than for longer haul under substantially similar circumstances; Int. Com. Com. v. R. Co., 190 U. S. 273, 23 Sup. Ct. 687, 47 L. Ed. 1047.

Section 4, as amended June 18, 1910, makes it unlawful to charge any greater compensation for a shorter than for a longer distance over the same line or route in the same direction, the shorter being included within the longer distance, but in special instances on application to the Commission the same may be allowed.

The fact that a railroad company makes an unreasonably low rate does not authorize a rival, extending between the same points, to make greater charges for the shorter haul to intermediate points than it does to the terminal; In re Chicago, St. P. & K. C. R. Co., 2 I. C. Rep. 137.

Where a road makes the same charge to one point that it does to another which is only from a third to two-thirds of the same distance, the charge to the shorter point is presumptively illegal; In re Chicago, St. P. & K. C. R. Co., 2 I. C. Rep. 137. Actual water competition of controlling force relating to traffic important in amount, may justify a lower charge for a longer distance than for a shorter distance included therein; Lehmann, Higginson & Co. v. R. Co., 3 I. C. Rep. 80; but disturbance of rates, secret or open, will not; In re Alleged Violations of the Fourth Section, 7 I. C. Rep. 61; nor will competition between markets or between carriers subject to the act; Brewer & Hanleiter v. R. Co., 7 I. C. Rep. 224; nor possible water competition; San Bernardino Board of Trade v. R. Co., 3 I. C. Rep. 138. competition must be such that the freight would go to its destination by water, if the lower rate were not given; James & Mayer Buggy Co. v. R. Co., 3 I. C. Rep. 682; id., 4 I. C. C. R. 744.

When rail rates are advanced with the disappearance of water competition, no inference adverse to the railroad can be drawn, but when the old rates had been maintained for several years after such disappearance, there is a presumption, if the rates are raised, that the advance is made for other reasons; Int. Com. Com. v. R. Co., 227 U. S. 88, 33 Sup. Ct. 185, 57 L. Ed. 431.

On the ground that "through failure of crops" the people of long distance localities were without necessary food for themselves and animals, a temporary order was made in In re Application of Fremont, E. & M. V. R. Co., 6 I. C. Rep. 293, authorizing a carrier to charge less for a longer distance than they were authorized to charge for a shorter distance. And the need of additional facilities for passengers travelling to Chicago during the World's Fair was considered a ground for the same relief; In re Petition of Cincinnati, H. & D. R. Co., 6 I. C. Rep. 323.

Under section 4, as amended June 18, 1910, the Commission has power to make an order (such as the one there involved) permitting a lower rate for the longer haul, but only on terms stated in the order, establishing zones for the intermediate points and relative percentages upon which proportionate zones should be based; Intermountain Rate Cases, 234 U. S. 476, 34 Sup. Ct. 986, 58 L.

An intermediate local rate should never exceed the through rate plus the local rate back to the intermediate place; Martin v. R. Co., 2 I. C. Rep. 1.

The classification of freight is expressly recognized by the act; Thurber v. R. Co., 2 I. C. Rep. 742. But in classifying freights the carrier must respect the interests of the shipper on the basis of relative equality and justice; Thurber v. R. Co., 2 I. C. Rep. 742. Common carriers should be held responsible for the correctness of the weight and classification of freight received. The publication of a commodity rate takes the commodity upon which such rate applies out of the classification, so that all shipments of that commodity moving from and to points between which such commodity rate is in effect must be charged for on the basis of the commodity rate and carload minimum. allowing carload rates, the carrier may properly stipulate for a minimum carload, the more approved method being to charge a given rate per 100 pounds for any excess, rather than to allow the shipper to load as much as he chooses in the car at a stated rate per car; Leonard v. R. Co., 3 I. C. C.

A carload rate and minimum weight specified in a lawful tariff hold out a definite offer to the shipping public to move merchandise on those terms and Commissioner Harlan stated, in Kaye & Carter Lumber Co. v. R. Co., 17 I. C. C. 209, 211, that there should be a rule in all tariffs to the effect that when a carrier, for its own convenience, supplies a larger car than the one ordered, it will do so on the basis of the published rate and minimum weight applicable to the length of car so ordered by the shipper, in all cases where the shipment actually moved could have been loaded into the car ordered. In one case, the Commission held that, even though the shipper had not ordered a car of a particular size, the carrier could collect 63 Me. 269, 18 Am. Rep. 208; Common freight only on the actual weight, t furnished being larger than required : shipment tendered; Peerless Agencies R. Co., 17 I. C. C. 218.

Lower rates on carload lots than quantities are not unlawful; but if t ference be so wide as to destroy co tion between large and small deale pecially upon articles that are of gener necessary use, and that furnish a lar ume of business, the act is violated; T v. R. Co., 2 I. C. Rep. 742.

When an article moves in sufficient ume and the demands of commerce better served, it is reasonable to give a classification for carloads than that applies to less than carload quantities the difference in such classification not be so wide as to be destructive t petition between large and small d Brownell v. R. Co., 4 I. C. Rep. 285.

It is the duty of a carrier to equip it with suitable cars for its traffic and nish them alike to all who have occas their use; Rice, Robinson & Witheron Co., 3 I. C. Rep. 162. The public m justly and equally served in furnishing if in a time of special pressure, sor must wait, regular customers of the ro not entitled to preference; Riddle, I Co. v. R. Co., 1 I. C. Rep. 787.

As a general rule, in the movement sengers and freight, passengers get a ence, then live stock, perishable good common freight receive preference order named. This rule is of no a time of an emergency.

Railroad companies are not requi furnish competing connecting carrier equal facilities, for the interchange of fic, when this involves the use of its by such carriers; it may permit such one carrier to the exclusion of other tle Rock & M. R. Co. v. R. Co., 59 Fee nor is the clause violated by receiving forwarding without prepayment of or car mileage, cars of other companie taining goods coming from one locali under like circumstances, refusing from a different locality; Oregon Sho & U. N. R. Co. v. R. Co., 61 Fed. 158, A. 409.

A state constitution prohibiting d ination in charges and facilities does quire a company to make provision fo business with a new line crossing it, to those already made with a rival another near point; Atchison, T. & S Co. v. R. Co., 110 U. S. 667, 4 Sup. C 28 L. Ed. 291; but railroad companie be required to furnish facilities, an vented from abandoning, stations alretablished; State v. R. Co., 37 Conn. 153 Haven & N. R. Co. v. Hamersley, 104 1 26 L. Ed. 629; R. R. Commissioners v. v. R. Co., 103 Mass. 254, 4 Am. Rep. 555; State v. R. Co., 19 Neb. 476, 27 N. W. 434.

The power of the Commission to regulate accessorial facilities is held to be confined to mere regulation, and cannot be used to invade rights of property by entering the domain of deprivation, construction, and reconstruction of properties to carry out the proposed regulations; Detroit, G. H. & M. R. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 74 Fed. 803, 21 C. C. A. 103.

A carrier is not justified in refusing less desirable freights because more money can be made by using its cars in carrying another kind; Riddle, Dean & Co. v. R. Co., 1 I. C. Rep. 787.

In an action for unjust discrimination in freight charges, under sec. 2, it is sufficient to set out the rates charged plaintiff and another shipper, and the circumstances and conditions under which plaintiff's shipment was made, with an allegation that the smaller charges made the other shipper were for like services, under substantially the same circumstances and conditions, without setting out such circumstances and conditions; Kinnavey v. R. Ass'n, 81 Fed. 802.

It is the duty of a carrier of live stock to provide proper facilities for receiving and discharging live stock free from all charges except the regular transportation charges; and it cannot receive and discharge such live stock at a depot, access to which must be purchased; Keith v. R. Co., 1 I. C. Rep. 601.

Carriers may properly refuse refrigeration on less than carload shipments or may require twenty-four hours' advance notice by shippers of the need of refrigerator cars; they may also charge for refrigeration on cars iced by them and not loaded by the shipper; Asparagus Growers' Ass'n v. R. Co., 17 I. C. C. 423.

In enacting the Hepburn act, amending 20 of the act to regulate commerce, Congress recognized the essential distinctions between property accounts and operating accounts, and between capital and earnings and while prior to that time the practice of different carriers varied, uniformity in regard to the keeping of accounts was essential in the future for proper supervision and regulation; Kansas City Ry. Co. v. U. S., 231 U. S. 423, 34 Sup. Ct. 125, 58 L. Ed. —

The Hepburn act, requiring pipe line companies to become common carriers and subject to the act is not unconstitutional; Pipe Line Cases, 234 U. S. 548, 34 Sup. Ct. 956, 58 L. Ed. —.

The Act of 1887, and its amendment (Act of 1906), do not apply to street railway companies operating lines between cities in different states; Omaha & C. B. St. R. Co. v. Commission, 179 Fed. 243, affirmed Omaha & C. B. St. R. Co. v. Interst. Com. Com'n, 230 U. S. 324, 33 Sup. Ct. 890, 57 L. Ed. 1501, 46 L. R. A. (N. S.) 385.

Demurrage. A carrier has the right to establish and maintain demurrage regulations under which a reasonable charge will accrue for detention of cars beyond a reasonable period. One of the primary reasons for demurrage is to release equipment and again place it in the transportation service, and also to enable all of its patrons to use its tracks and terminals; Peale, Peacock & Kerr v. R. Co., 18 I. C. C. 25, 35.

Under the statute shippers are not to be put in a position of subserviency to common carriers, and are not required to ask for rates, but are entitled to equal and open rates at all times; In re Tariffs of the Transcontinental Lines, 2 I. C. Rep. 203; but a tariff of rates of which schedules have been filed by a carrier with the Commission and also with its freight agents is in force and operative although the copies thereof may not have been posted at the carrier's depot as required by the act; Texas & P. R. Co. v. Oil Mill, 204 U. S. 449, 27 Sup. Ct. 358, 51 L. Ed. 562.

Complaints, though brought by an individual, may challenge the entire schedule of rates to competing points; Daniels v. R. Co., 6 I. C. Rep. 458.

The Commission can rehear a particular case and amend its original order therein, although the federal court may have refused to enforce such original order; Page v. R. Co., 6 I. C. Rep. 548.

In proceedings before the Commission, all offending carriers need not be made parties defendant, but the case may proceed only against the carrier whose lines the complainant uses; Page v. R. Co., 6 I. C. Rep. 548.

The right asserted by a petitioner in the federal court under the act arises and is claimed under a law of the United States which relates to a subject over which congress has exclusive control; and this is sufficient to sustain the jurisdiction; Kentucky & I. Bridge Co. v. R. Co., 37 Fed. 567, 2 L. R. A. 289. A state court has no jurisdiction; Copp v. R. Co., 43 La. Ann. 511, 9 South. 441, 12 L. R. A. 725, 26 Am. St. Rep. 198.

It is not necessary that a person making a complaint before the Commission should have a pecuniary interest in the violation of the statute complained of; it is sufficient if a responsible party complains of a matter which amounts to a public grievance; Boston & A. R. R. Co. v. R. Co., 1 I. C. Rep. 571; Milk Producers' Protective Ass'n v. R. Co., 7 I. C. Rep. 92.

It is not proper for railroad companies to withhold the larger part of their evidence from the Commission, and first adduce it in the federal court in proceedings by the Commission to enforce its order; the purposes of the act call for a full inquiry by the Commission in the first instance; Cincinnati, New Orleans & T. P. R. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 5 I. C. Rep. 391; id..

162 U. S. 184, 16 Sup. Ct. 700, 40 L. Ed. 935. of the decision in Counselman v. Hitchc It is not necessary to file with a petition for the enforcement of an order of the Commission the transcript of the evidence taken before it, under the provision of the statute making the findings of the fact of the Commission prima facie evidence of the matter stated, but either party may use as evidence any competent testimony taken before the Commission; Interstate Commerce Commission v. R. Co., 5 I. C. Rep. 131; id., 64 Fed. Where the Commission applies for an injunction to restrain a railroad company from disobeying an order of the Commission, a preliminary injunction will not be granted when the company's answer denies the facts upon which the order was based; Interstate Commerce Commission v. R. Co., 49 Fed. 177. A preliminary injunction will not be granted where the question involved is a new one; or where the injury to the defendant is likely to be greater than the benefit to the plaintiff; Shinkle, Wilson & Kreis Co. v. R. Co., 62 Fed. 690; id., 5 I. C. Rep. 287. An action against the carrier for a violation of the act in making unlawful discriminations may be maintained in the name of the United States by the district attorney; U.S. v. R. Co., 5 I. C. Rep. 106 (U. S. C. C., D. of Kans.). which the railroad company is a stockhol

Under the 5th amendment to the constitution of the United States, which declares that "no person . . . shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself," a person under examination by a grand jury, in an investigation into certain alleged violations of the act and its amendments, is not obliged to answer questions where he states that his answers might tend to criminate him; although section 860 of the Revised Statutes provides that no evidence given by him shall in any manner be used against him in any court of the United States in any criminal proceedings. The object of this constitutional provision is to insure that a person shall not be compelled, when acting as a witness in any investigation, to give testimony which may tend to show that he himself has committed a crime; Counselman v. Hitchcock, 142 U. S. 547, 12 Sup. Ct. 195, 35 L. Ed. 1110.

The provision in the act of February 11, 1893, "that no person shall be excused from attending and testifying or from producing books, etc., before the" Commission, on the ground that the testimony may tend to criminate him or subject him to a penalty or forfeiture; but that no such person shall be prosecuted or subjected to any penalty or forfeiture on account of any matter concerning which he may testify or produce such evidence, affords absolute immunity against prosecution and deprives the witness of his constitutional right to refuse to answer; Brown v. Walker, 161 U. S. 591, 16 Sup. Ct. 644, 40 L. Ed. 819; id., 5 I. C. Rep. 369. This act is said to have been passed in view supra; see Brown v. Walker, supra.

By the act of June 30, 1906, supra, munity shall extend only to a natural per testifying or producing documentary

See Incrimination; Production of Bo GRAND JURY.

(1906.) The Commodities Clause. clause, as construed in U.S. v. Delawar Hudson Co., 213 U. S. 366, 29 Sup. Ct. 53 L. Ed. 836, prohibits an interstate car from transporting in such commerce arti or commodities under the following circ stances and conditions: 1. Where the c modity has been manufactured, mined produced by a carrier under its author and, at the time of transportation, the rier has not in good faith before the ac transportation dissociated itself from s article or commodity; 2. Where the car owns the article or commodity to be tra ported in whole or in part; 3. Where carrier has, at the time of transportation interest, direct or indirect, in a legal or e table sense, in the commodity, not include commodities manufactured, mined, produ or owned, etc., by a bona fide corporation

As a result of this decision the coal i road companies have organized coal con nies to take over their coal lands. See C MODITIES CLAUSE; HOLDING COMPANIES.

The act of February 4, 1887, is not inc sistent with the act of July 2, 1890. "To tect trade and commerce against unlay restraints and monopolies;" U. S. v. Frei Ass'n, 166 U.S. 290, 17 Sup. Ct. 540, 41 Ed. 1007.

So far as congress adopted the langu of the English Traffic Act, it is to be sumed that it had in mind the construc given by the English courts to the ador language; and intended to incorporate it to the statute; Interstate Commerce C mission v. R. Co., 145 U. S. 263, 12 Sup. 844, 36 L. Ed. 699.

By act of March 1, 1913, the Commiss is directed to make an inventory and praisement of all the property of comcarriers.

See Constitution of United States; C MON CARRIERS; TAXATION; SAFETY API ANCE ACT; COMMERCE; JURISDICTION.

INTERSTATE RENDITION. See Fu TIVE FROM JUSTICE.

INTERVENING DAMAGES. Damages: fered by an appellee from delay caused the appeal. Peasely v. Buckminster, 1 T;

(Vt.) 267.

INTERVENOR. One not originally a p ty who, by leave of the court, interposes i suit and becomes a party thereto to proa right or interest in the subject-matter.

A person who intervenes in a suit, eit public. See Intervention.

INTERVENTION (Lat. intervenio, to come between or among). The admission, by leave of the court, of a person not an original party to pending legal proceedings, by which such person becomes a party thereto for the protection of some right or interest alleged by him to be affected by such proceedings.

Persons who are not parties to a suit cannot in general file a petition therein for a stay of proceedings or any other cause; the remedy is by original bill. Exceptions are: where the pleadings contain scandal against a stranger, or where a stranger purchases the subject of litigation pending the suit, and the like; creditors are allowed to prove debts and persons belonging to a class on whose behalf the suit is brought are regarded as quasi parties and, of course, may have a standing in court; per Bradley, J., in Anderson v. R. Co., 2 Woods 628, Fed. Cas. No. Third persons may be driven to intervene for their rights in equity if those rights are to be affected, and if at the hearing the court would be compelled to notice their absence and order the case to stand over until they were brought in; Carter v. City of New Orleans, 19 Fed. 659. See 1 Dan. Ch. Pr. 287; Story, Eq. Pl. § 220. It is not necessary to the right of intervention, in order to participate in a trust fund in the custody of the law, that the intervenor should first obtain judgment at law or should have any lien upon the fund. Intervention will be granted, after a foreclosure decree against a railroad company, to unsecured noteholders who pray to have their debts established as equitable liens upon the property and funds of the company paramount to the lien of the mortgage; Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. v. R. Co., 21 Fed. 264. A holder of railroad bonds secured by a mortgage under foreclosure has an interest in the amount of the trustee's compensation, which entitles him to intervene and to contest it and to appeal from an adverse decision; Williams v. Morgan, 111 U. S. 684, 4 Sup. Ct. 638, 28 L. Ed. 559. Where a part of a canal was sold and the fund brought into court, it was held that the contractor who built the canal could intervene for the protection of his rights either upon the fund or against the purchaser; French v. Gapen, 105 U.S. 509, 26 L. Ed. 951. Bondholders in a foreclosure suit brought by the trustee of the mortgage are quasi parties and may be heard for the protection of their interests; Fidelity Trust & Safety-Vault Co. v. R. Co., 53 Fed. 850.

If one who is a necessary party to a case in a state court is wrongfully excluded and denied leave to file a proper cross bill and answer and to present a motion for removal to the federal court, he will be treated by the latter court as if a party; Hack v. R. | varies considerably in different cases. The on his own behalf or on the behalf of the Co., 23 Fed. 356. The case of Iowa Homestead Co. v. R. Co., 8 Fed. 97, was based on special facts.

> Where a suit in equity was properly instituted against a railroad company by a stockholder, a bondholder, and the trustees for the bondholders named in the land grant mortgages of the company, and the bill charged that the officers of the company were squandering its property, and the purpose of the suit was the preservation and administration of the assets of the company, and a decree pro confesso had been entered and a receiver appointed, individual stockholders were not permitted to intervene and file a cross bill on a general charge of fraud and collusion on the part of the receiver and erroneous judgment on the part of the court in making the order referred to. In such a suit, it is not the proper practice to allow individual stockholders to intervene to set aside the proceedings or to interpose obstacles to the progress of the suit. Such stockholders may come in to take the benefit of the proceedings and decree, but not to oppose and nullify them. Rival creditors by proceedings before the master may fix the priority of their respective liens, and creditors or stockholders may contest the validity of the claims of other creditors and stockholders, but all in subordination to the general object of the suit, to obtain an administration of the company's assets and property. Persons will not be allowed to intervene as general defendants unless they show that they have an interest in the results as stockholders, and are also able to show fraud and collusion between the plaintiff in the suit and the officers of the company; per Bradley, J., in Forbes v. R. Co., 2 Wood, 323, Fed. Cas. No. 4,926. In Skiddy v. R. Co., 3 Hughes, 320. Fed. Cas. No. 12,922, the Amsterdam Bondholders' Committee, representing a very large number of bonds, filed a petition setting out the grounds for disapproving their trustees' management of the foreclosure suit, and praying intervention, but leave to intervene was denied; Clyde v. R. Co., 55 Fed. 448.

> Where the holder of a large amount of bonds, on which foreclosure proceedings were pending, asked leave to intervene, and it appeared that the mortgage trustee was already a party and there was no allegation that it was not acting properly for the interests of all bondholders, leave to intervene was refused (even for the mere purpose of requiring notice to such bondholder of successive steps in the proceedings), on the ground of excessive inconvenience in the administration of the cause; Dallas, J., in the Reading Railroad foreclosure, U. S. C. C., E. D. of Pa.

> The practice in respect of intervention in ordinary railroad foreclosure cases probably differs somewhat in different circuits, and question of the right to intervene by members of a class already represented on the record appears to be rather a matter of discretion, in view of what is deemed best for the due conduct of the cause. Probably the right to be heard will not ordinarily be refused in any case.

INTERVENTION

There would seem to be a distinction between the intervention of parties for the purpose of sharing in a fund and the intervention of parties in the course of the administration of a railroad property, during receivership. In the latter class of cases, it would appear, from the authorities, that unless good cause be shown for the intervention of new members of a class already represented on the record, they will not be allowed to come in, upon the ground stated by Dallas, C. J., in the Reading foreclosure, the excessive inconvenience in the administration of the cause.

i

In a suit to foreclose a railroad mortgage, certain persons prayed leave to intervene, alleging that the defendant company made up by an illegal consolidation of three other companies, of one of which they were stockholders, that they never consented to the consolidation and were not bound by it nor by the mortgage, that the original company had no officers to defend for them, and that the consolidated company declined to set up the defence which they desired to make; leave to intervene was refused as there was no charge of fraud or collusion, and the proper remedy was by an independent suit; Central Trust Co. v. R. Co., 48 Fed. 14.

A purchaser at a foreclosure sale may be admitted as a party to the record and allowed to appeal; Blossom v. R. Co., 1 Wall. (U. S.) 655, 17 L. Ed. 673; upon failure to ask leave to come in, the court should compel him to become a party of record; Fitzgerald v. Evans, 49 Fed. 426, 1 C. C. A. 307. The purchaser at a foreclosure sale under a junior mortgage who takes subject to a prior mortgage, will be made a party to proceedings to foreclose such prior mortgage; Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. v. R. Co., 44 Fed. 115. Parties given leave to intervene in an equity suit after a decree pro confesso, have a right of appeal from a decree affecting their rights, and the supreme court will enforce this right by a mandamus; Ex parte Jordan, 94 U. S. 248, 24 L. Ed. 123. See Williams v. Morgan, 111 U. S. 684, 4 Sup. Ct. 638, 28 L. Ed. 559.

When a creditor's bill in equity is properly removed from a state court to a federal court on the ground of diverse citizenship, the jurisdiction of the latter is not ousted by admitting in the circuit court as co-plaintiffs other creditors who are citizens of the same state as the defendants; Stewart v. Dunham, 115 U. S. 61, 5 Sup. Ct. 1163, 29 L. Ed. 329.

A court of the United States sitting court of law, has an equitable power its own process to prevent abuse, oppr and injustice; which power may be in by a stranger to the litigation as in to the jurisdiction already vested, and out regard to his own citizenship; G v. Pitkin, 124 U.S. 131, 8 Sup. Ct. 3 L. Ed. 374.

When property in the possession third person claiming ownership, is a ed on mesne process issuing out of the ed States circuit court, as the property defendant and citizen of the same sta the person claiming it, such person may redress in the circuit court by ancillar ceedings; as, for instance, if the or proceeding is in equity, by a petitio interesse suo, or by ancillary bill, or by mary motion, according to circumsta or, if it is at common law, by a sun motion or by a proceeding in the natu an interpleader; or, if proceedings a ized by statutes of the state afford an quate remedy, by adopting them as pa the practice of the court; Krippendo Hyde, 110 U. S. 276, 4 Sup. Ct. 27, 28 1 145. Where, in equity, an execution is and a levy and sale made of certain a third party claiming to be the real cannot intervene for the purpose of m to set aside the execution when there privity of estate between him and th fendant in the execution; Ex parte Me 55 Fed. 17. On a creditors' bill, judgment cre who choose to intervene may share re with complainants in the proceeds of of the property, even if some do not vene until after the decree of sale; G v. Ry. Co., 44 Fed. 117. The practi permitting judgment creditors to con and make themselves parties to a cred bill is well settled; Myers v. Fenn, 5 (U. S.) 205, 18 L. Ed. 604.

Stockholders of a corporation who been allowed to put in answers in the of the corporation cannot be regarded a swering for the corporation itself. In cial case, however, where there is an a tion that the directors fraudulently re to attend to the interests of the corpor equity may allow a stockholder to beco party defendant for the protection of own interest and that of such other stock ers as may join him in the defence; son v. R. Co., 2 Wall. (U. S.) 283, 17 l 725. Where any fraud has been perpet by the directors of a company by which interests of the stockholders are aff the stockholders have a right to come parties to a suit against the company ask that their property shall be re from the effect of such fraud; Bayliss Co., 8 Biss. 193, Fed. Cas. No. 1,140.

The state can intervene in proceeding is entitled as a bond or lien holder to share in the proceeds of a sale, or where public interests are at stake which are seriously threatened by the proposed disposition of the property. An intervening petition filed by a state in railroad foreclosure proceedings alleging that bonds and the mortgage securing them were void, and that the railroad company, by collusion and neglect to defend, was about to allow judgment to go against it by default, that the company in consideration of large land grants from the state had agreed to maintain low rates of transportation, which, by foreclosure, would be increased, gives no right of intervention, especially where neither the charter of the company nor any subsquent legislation showed any such contract as the one alleged; State v. Trust Co., 81 Tex. 530, 17 S. W. 60. Permission will not be granted to a state to intervene for the stay of the sale of a railroad under foreclosure proceedings; Anderson v. R. Co., 2 Woods 628, Fed. Cas. No. 358.

In a controversy between two states in relation to the boundary line between them, the attorney-general of the United States may appear on behalf of the United States and adduce evidence, though he does not thereby become a party in the technical sense of the word, and no judgment will be entered for or against the United States; Florida v. Georgia, 17 How. (U. S.) 478, 15 L. Ed. 181.

A petition to intervene need not be as formal as a bill of complaint, yet it should exhibit all the material facts relied on, embodying so much of the record in the original suit as is essential, and proceedings taken therein which would fortify the right of the intervener should be incorporated in the petition by amendment, and if this is not done, such proceedings cannot be noticed on a demurrer to the petition; Empire Distilling Co. v. McNulta, 77 Fed. 700, 23 C. C. A. 415.

In bills brought on behalf of a class, an intervening member of the class will ordinarily be joined as a plaintiff and this will not generally deprive the court of jurisdiction; Stewart v. Dunham, 115 U. S. 61, 5 Sup. Ct. 1163, 29 L. Ed. 329. If there should be any danger that it would, he may be joined as a defendant or, if he intends to act in hostility to the original complainant, the court may make him a defendant; 1 Fost. Fed. Prac. § 201; Brown v. Steamship Co., 5 Blatchf. 525, Fed. Cas. No. 2,025; Forbes v. R. Co., 2 Woods 323, Fed. Cas. No. 4,926.

A person claiming a right to share in a fund or claiming a right to property in the hands of a receiver is generally allowed to intervene pro interesse suo; 1 Fost. Fed. Pr.

One who, in an action at law, has been deforeclose a railroad mortgage only where it | status, cannot afterwards maintain a bill in equity in the same court to enjoin the proceedings and to be permitted to intervene; McDonald v. Seligman, 81 Fed. 753. But where leave to intervene in an equity case is asked and refused, it is not a determination of the merits, but the petitioner is at full liberty to assert his rights in any other appropriate form of proceedings; Credits Commutation Co. v. U. S., 177 U. S. 311, 20 Sup. Ct. 636, 44 L. Ed. 782,

In a treaty relating to the administration by consuls of estates of foreigners dying in a state, "intervene in the possession and administration of the deceased" means that the consul may "temporarily possess the estate for the purpose of protecting it before it comes under the jurisdiction of the laws of the country, or protect the interest of his national in an administration instituted otherwise than by him"; Rocca v. Thompson, 223 U. S. 317, 32 Sup. Ct. 207, 56 L. Ed. 453.

Under Codes. There are provisions in the codes of several of the states, which appear to have been originally adopted from Louisiana, permitting any person who has an interest in any matter in litigation to intervene by rule of court. This interest must be of such a direct and important character that the intervenor will either gain or lose by the direct effect of the judgment; the interest must be that created by a claim in suit or a lien upon the property, or some part thereof, in suit, or a claim to or lien upon the property or some part thereof which is the subject of litigation; Horn v. Water Co., 13 Cal. 62, 73 Am. Dec. 569, per Field, J. See Smith v. Gale, 144 U. S. 518, 12 Sup. Ct. 674, 36 L. Ed. 521.

In Patent Law. Where a third party asked to be made a party defendant, alleging that it was the manufacturer of machines claimed to infringe; that the defendant was its vendee; that it desired to settle the question as to whether or not the machines did infringe, both the complainant and the third party being non-residents, the petitioner was allowed to become a party defendant; Curran v. Car Co., 32 Fed. 835. So of the owner of cars, in a patent suit brought against the user; Standard Oil Co. v. Southern Pac. Co., 54 Fed. 521, 4 C. C. A. 491.

In Admiralty. Any person may intervene in a suit in rem for his interest and he may do so notwithstanding the res has been delivered to a claimant on a stipulation in a certain sum to abide by and perform the decree, the stipulation as far as it goes standing for the res; The Oregon, 45 Fed. An administrator may intervene in a suit in rem to recover the damages allowed by a law of the state for the death of his intestate, caused by the wrongful act or omission of the person in charge of the res; The S. S. Oregon, 42 Fed. 78. When a vessel libelled by a material man has been taken nied the right to intervene, because of his possession of by the court, other material men may intervene by libel praying warrants; of arrest in order to retain the property in case security be given for its release; The Julia, 57 Fed. 233. See Admiralty Rule 43.

In International Law. Intervention is the interference of one state in the affairs of another state or states, without the consent of the foreign state. It is essentially a violation of the right belonging to every nation to be sovereign within its own borders and to be independent of foreign control in the administration of its home affairs and in the conduct of its foreign policy. There are, however, certain circumstances which are recognized in international law as justifying intervention. The two forms of intervention best recognized in international law are intervention in the interest of self-protection and intervention in the interest of the balance of power. The fundamental right of a state to preserve its own existence has often been alleged in justification of the violation of the territory of a foreign state, whether for the sake of anticipating an attack on the part of that state or for the sake of preventing such state from being made the basis of operations by a third party. The necessity of maintaining a balance of power between the great powers, and even between the lesser ones, has frequently been alleged in justification of an attack by one or more states upon a third state which, by its aggressive policy and its military preparations, threatens the existence or independence of other Intervention has sometimes been exercised in the interests of humanity, when the subjects of a foreign state were being subjected to such treatment as to call forth a protest from the civilized world. Such an intervention took place in 1827 when Great Britain, France and Russia intervened in the war between Greece and Turkey, because of the general horror created by the cruelties committed in the war. Moreover, intervention would be justified in punishment of a state which had deliberately violated the recognized rules of international law.

The United States, being outside the circle of the great European powers, has felt that it could maintain a position of isolation with regard to the questions of European diplomacy. Under the Monroe Doctrine (q. v.) the United States has rather taken an attitude of preventing intervention on the part of the European powers in the affairs of the Central and South American states, than felt called upon itself to intervene. As early as 1782 John Adams expressed his conviction that it should be the rule of the colonies not to meddle in the affairs of Europe. In his Farewell Address of 1796, Washington stated clearly the policy of the new republic. must be unwise in us," he said, "to implicate ourselves by artificial ties in the ordinary vicissitudes of her [Europe's] politics, or the ordinary combinations and collisions of her friendships or enmities. Our detached and course to the ordinary tribunals of the distant situation invites and enables pursue a different course." The same ciples were enunciated by Jefferson, son, Monroe, J. Q. Adams, and succe Presidents and Secretaries of State. acts of the United States have been i cordance with her avowed policy. E were made in 1793 by French agen force the United States to take sides France against Great Britain, but Was ton steadily refused to be influence them. In the wars between Spain an American colonies, the United States tained an attitude of neutrality and intervention. Again in 1822-27, when e were made to have the United States vene between Greece and Turkey, the go ment refused to take action. Similar e were made by Hungarian patriots in but were alike without success.

The most striking instance of dire tervention on the part of the United S is in connection with the island of For many years conditions upon that boring island had been a source of gree noyance to the United States, both be of the general horror created by the acter of the more or less continuous wa between the island and Spain, as we because of the obligation imposed upo United States of preventing its ter from being made the starting point of h expeditions against the Spanish govern of that island. The joint resolution of 20, 1898, which was accepted by Spa practically amounting to a declaration war, states that in view of the "abho conditions which have existed for more three years in the island of Cuba" the ed States felt that it was its duty to de that Spain relinquish its authority over island of Cuba. The President was in sequence authorized to use the land naval forces of the United States to out the resolution. At the same tim United States distinctly disclaimed an position or intention to exercise sovere over the island. For further cases of cal intervention see Monroe Doctrine.

Intervention is said to be non-politic character when a government does not bly interfere in the affairs of another but merely enters into diplomatic ne tions with the government of that stat the purpose of making it reverse its co in the treatment of subjects of the first which happened to be transiently or p nently resident in the second state. form of intervention is resorted to to tect citizens of the state against wron injustice in a foreign state, whether result of the positive action of the fo government or of its omission to extend protection to the alien. The general rethat a government will not intervene i vor of its citizens until they have ha eign country and have been refused justice. For intervention by a state to collect debts owed to its citizens by a foreign state, see CALVO DOCTRINE: DRAGO DOCTRINE. A nation ordinarily will not intervene in matters of business between its citizens and a foreign country. It will, however, interpose its good offices for the alleviation of the punishment of its citizens who are convicted of political offences in a foreign country. Likewise it will endeavor to secure full protection for its citizens who go as foreign missionaries to pagan countries. This does not mean that the United States would assume a protectorship of Christian communities in such countries. On several occasions resolutions have been offered in the United States congress protesting against the cruel treatment of Jews in certain foreign countries. See Moore, VI, §§ 897-926.

The doctrine has been thus spoken of by a distinguished writer, "Historicus": "Its essence is illegality and its justification is its success."

in Civil Law. The act by which a third party becomes a party in a suit pending between other persons.

The intervention is made either to be joined to the plaintiff, and to claim the same thing he does, or some other thing connected with it; or to join the defendant, and with him to oppose the claim of the plaintiff, which it is his interest to defeat. Pothier, Proc. Civ. 1ère part, ch. 2, s. 6, § 3.

In English Ecclesiastical Law. The proceeding of a third person, who, not being originally a party to the suit or proceeding, but claiming an interest in the subject-matter in dispute, in order the better to protect such interest, interposes his claim. 2 Chitty, Pr. 492; 2 Hagg. Cons. 137; 3 Phill. Eccl. 586; Dunlop, Adm. Pr. 74. The intervenor may come in at any stage of the cause, and even after judgment, if an appeal can be allowed on such judgment; 2 Hagg. Cons. 137.

Intervention is allowed in certain cases, especially in suits for divorce and nullity of marriage, by 23 & 24 Vict. c. 144, and 36 & 37 Vict. c. 31, where it is usual for the queen's proctor to intervene, where collusion is suspected.

Intervention in the possession and administration of the property of an alien dying in the United States, as used in a treaty, is defined in Rocca v. Thompson, 223 U. S. 317, 32 Sup. Ct. 207, 56 L. Ed. 453, quoting from this title at length.

See Amicus Curlæ; Executors and Administrators.

INTESTABILIS. A witness incompetent to testify. Calv. Lex.

INTESTABLE. One who cannot lawfully make a testament.

An infant, an insane person, or one civilly dead, cannot make a will, for want of capacity or understanding; a married woman cannot make such a will without some special authority, because she is under the power of her husband. They are all intestable.

INTESTACY. The state or condition of dying without a will.

See Gross, Mediæval Law of Intestacy, 3 Sel. Essays in Anglo-Amer. L. H. 723 (18 Harv. L. Rev. 120).

INTESTATE. Without a will. A person who dies, having made no will, or one which is defective in form. In that case, he is said to die intestate, and his estate descends to his heirs at law or next of kin. See Kohny v. Dunbar, 21 Idaho 258, 121 Pac. 544, 39 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1107, Ann. Cas. 1913D, 492.

This term comes from the Latin intestatus. Formerly, it was used in France indiscriminately with de-confesse; that is, without confession. It was regarded as a crime, on account of the omission of the deceased person to give something to the church, and was punished by privation of burial in consecrated ground. This omission, according to Fournel, Hist. des Avocats, vol. 1, p. 116, could be repaired by making an ampliative testament in the name of the deceased. See Vely, tom. 6, page 145; Henrion de Pansey, Autorité judiciaire 129, and note. See Descent and Distribution; Will.

The Roman horror of intestacy was equalled or surpassed among early Englishmen, the reason being the danger to the intestate's soul if he died without having assigned a fitting part of his estate to plous uses. Pollock's note to Maine's Anc. L. 230.

INTESTATE SUCCESSION. A succession is called intestate when the deceased has left no will, or when his will has been revoked, or annulled as irregular. Therefore the heirs to whom a succession has fallen by the effects of the law only are called "heirs ab intestato." Civil Code La. art. 1096.

INTESTATO. In the Civil Law. Intestate; without a will. Calv. Lex.

INTESTATUS. In the Civil and Oid English Law. An intestate. One who dies without a will. Dig. 50, 17, 7.

INTIMACY. As generally applied to persons, it is understood to mean a proper, friendly relation of the parties, but it is frequently used to convey the idea of an improper relation; an intimacy at least disreputable and degrading. Collins v. Pub. Co., 152 Pa. 187, 25 Atl. 546, 34 Am. St. Rep. 636. See McCarty v. Coffin, 157 Mass. 478, 32 N. E. 649.

INTIMATION. In Civil Law. The name of any judicial act by which a notice of a legal proceeding is given to some one; but it is more usually understood to mean the notice or summons which an appellant causes to be given to the opposite party, that the sentence will be reviewed by the superior judge.

INTIMATION

INTIMIDATION. The act of intimidating or making fearful; the state of being intimidated.

in Old English Law. By the stat. 38 and 39 Vict. c. 86, 7, every person commits a misdemeanor, who wrongfully uses violence to, or intimidates, any other person, or his wife or children, with a view to compel him to abstain from doing, or to do, any act which he has a legal right to do or abstain from See Dubess. doing.

INTIMIDATION OF VOTERS. Statutes have been enacted in some states to punish the intimidation of voters. Under an early Pennsylvania act, it was held that to constitute the offence of intimidation of voters, there must be a preconceived intention for the purpose of intimidating the officers or interrupting the election; Respublica v. Gibbs, 3 Yeates (Pa.) 429.

INTOL AND UTTOL. Toll or custom paid for things imported, or exported, or brought in and sold out. Tom.; Calv. Lex.

INTOXICATING DRINKS. See LIQUOR LAWS.

INTOXICATION. See DRUNKENNESS.

INTRASTATE COMMERCE. See Com-MERCE; INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION.

INTRA VIRES. An act is said to be intra vires ("within the power") of a person or corporation when it is within the scope of his or its powers or authority. It is the opposite of ultra vires (q. v.).

INTRINSECUM SERVITIUM. Common and ordinary duties with the lord's court. Kenn. Glos. See Forinsec.

INTRINSIC. The intrinsic value of a thing is its true, inherent, and essential value, not depending upon accident, place, or person, but the same everywhere and to every one. Bank of State of North Carolina v. Ford, 27 N. C. 698.

INTRODUCTION. That part of a writing in which are detailed those facts which elucidate the subject.

INTROMISSION. Dealing with stocks, goods, or cash of a principal coming into the hands of his agent, to be accounted for by the agent to his principal. 29 Eng. Law & Eq. 391. See Agent.

INTRONISATION. In French Ecclesiastical Law. The installation of a bishop in his episcopal see. Clef des Lois Rom.; André.

INTRUDER. One who, on the death of the ancestor, enters on the land, unlawfully, before the heir can enter.

INTRUSION. The entry of a stranger after the determination of a particular estate of freehold, before the entry of him in reversion or remainder.

This entry and interposition of the ger differs from an abatement in this, an abatement is always to the prejudi an heir or immediate devisee; an intr is always to the prejudice of him i mainder or reversion. 3 Bla. Com. Fitzh. N. B. 203; Archb. Civ. Pl. 12; 1 Abr. Index; 3 Steph. Com. 443.

The name of a writ brought by the er of a fee simple, etc., against an intr New Nat. Brev. 453. Abolished by 3 Will. IV. c. 57.

INUNDATION. The overflow of w by coming out of their bed.

Inundations may arise from three ca from public necessity, as in defence place it may be necessary to dam the rent of a stream, which will cause an dation to the upper lands; they may be sioned by an invincible force, as by the dental fall of a rock in the stream, or natural flood or freshet; or they may from the erection of works on the st In the first case, the injury caused b inundation is to be compensated as oth juries done in war; in the second, as was no fault of any one, the loss is borne by the unfortunate owner of the tate; in the last, when the riparian pr tor is injured by such works as alte level of the water where it enters or it leaves the property on which the erected, the person injured may recover ages for the injury thus caused to his erty by the inundation; 9 Co. 59; 1 Ald. 258; Sumner v. Tileston, 7 Pick. (1 198; Bailey v. City of New York, 3 (N. Y.) 531, 38 Am. Dec. 669; Tillots Smith, 32 N. H. 90, 64 Am. Dec. 355; ritt v. Parker, 1 N. J. L. 460; Willia Gale, 3 H. & J. (Md.) 231; Ohio & M. I

INURE. To take effect; to result. ENURE.

v. Nuetzel, 43 Ill. App. 108. See

BACKWATER; IRRIGATION; WATERS; V

COURSE.

INUREMENT. Use; user; service t use or benefit of a person; Dickerson v grove, 100 U. S. 583, 25 L. Ed. 618.

invadiane. To mortgage lands.

INVADIATIO (L. Lat.). A pledge or gage.

INVADIATUS. One who is under pl one who has had sureties or pledges for him. Spel. Glos.

INVADING A JUDGE. Assaulti judge. Patterson.

INVALID. Not valid; of no binding

INVASION. The entry of a country public enemy, making war. See Inst TION.

INVASIONES. The inquisition of ser ties and knights' fees. Cowell; Calv. INVECTA ET ILLATA (Lat.). In Civil Law. Things carried and brought in. Things brought into a building hired (ædes), or into a hired estate in the city (prædium urbanum), which are held by a tacit mortgage for the rent. Voc. Jur. Utr.; Domat, Civ. Law.

INVENTIO. In the Civil Law. Finding; one of the modes of acquiring title to property by occupancy. Heinecc. lib. 2, tit. 1, 350.

in Old English Law. A thing found; as goods, or treasure-trove. Cowell. The plural, "inventiones," is also used.

INVENTION. See PATENT.

INVENTIONES. A word used in some ancient English charters to signify treasure-trove.

INVENTOR. One who contrives or produces a thing which did not before exist. One who makes an invention. The word is generally used to denote the author of such contrivances as are by law patentable. See PATENT.

INVENTORY. A list, schedule, or enumeration in writing, containing, article by article, the goods and chattels, rights and credits, and, in some cases, the land and tenements, of a person or persons. A conservatory act, which is made to ascertain the situation of an intestate's estate, the estate of an insolvent, and the like, for the purpose of securing it to those entitled to it.

When the inventory is made of goods and estates assigned or conveyed in trust, it must include all the property conveyed. It is prima facie evidence of the value as against the administrator; In re Childs, 5 Misc. 560, 26 N. Y. Supp. 721; In re Mullon, 74 Hun 358, 26 N. Y. Supp. 683.

In case of intestate estates, it is required to contain only the personal property, or that to which the administrator is entitled. The claims due to the estate ought to be separated; those which are desperate or bad ought to be so returned. The articles ought to be set down separately, as already mentioned, and separately valued. It is not the duty of an administrator to inventory property which was conveyed by his intestate in fraud of creditors; Gardner v. Gardner, 17 R. I. 751, 24 Atl. 785. The duty of having an appraisal and inventory made of a testator's estate, rests on the executor and not on the adult legatees; In re Curry's Will, 19 N. Y. Supp. 728. An item inserted in the inventory by mistake may be stricken out after it is sworn to; In re Payne, 78 Hun 292, 28 N. Y. Supp. 911.

The inventory is to be made in the presence of at least two of the creditors of the deceased, or legatees, or next of kin, or of two honest persons. The appraisers must sign it, and make oath or affirmation that Tel.

the appraisement is just to the best of their knowledge. See, generally, 14 Vin. Abr. 465; Bac. Abr. Executors, etc. (E 11); Ayl. Par. 305; Com. Dig. Administration (B 7); 2 Add. Eccl. 319; Shoul. Ex. & Ad. 230; 2 Bla. Com. 514; Com. v. Bryan, 8 S. & R. (Pa.) 128.

INVEST (Lat. investire, to clothe). To put in possession of a field upon taking the oath of fealty or fidelity to the prince or superior lord. Also, to lay out capital in some permanent form so as to produce an income.

The term would hardly apply to an active capital employed in banking; People v. Ins. Co., 15 Johns. (N. Y.) 358, 8 Am. Dec. 243. It would cover the loaning of money; Shoemaker v. Smith, 37 Ind. 122. Whenever a sum is represented by anything but money, it is invested; People v. Commissioners of Taxes, 23 N. Y. 242.

INVESTITURE. The act of giving possession of lands by actual seisin. The ceremonial introduction to some office of dignity.

When livery of seisin was made to a person by the common law, he was invested with the whole fee; this the foreign feudists, and sometimes our own law-writers, call investiture; but generally speaking, it is termed by the common-law writers the seisin of the fee. 2 Bla. Com. 209, 313; Fearne, Rem. 223, n. (z).

By the canon law, investiture was made per baculum et annulum, by the ring and crosier, which were regarded as symbols of the episcopal jurisdiction. Ecclesiastical and secular flefs were governed by the same rule in this respect,—that previously to investiture neither a bishop, abbot, nor lay lord could take possession of a flef conferred upon him by the prince.

Pope Gregory VI. first disputed the right of sovereigns to give investiture of ecclesiastical fiefs, A. D. 1045; but Pope Gregory VII. carried on the dispute with much more vigor, A. D. 1073. He excommunicated the emperor Henry IV. The popes Victor III., Urban II., and Paul II. continued the contest. This dispute, it is said, cost Christendom sixty-three battles, and the lives of many millions of men. De Pradt.

INVESTIVE FACT. The fact by means of which a right comes into existence;  $c.\ g.$  a grant of a monopoly, the death of one's ancestor. Holland, Jur. 151.

INVESTMENT. A sum of money left for safekeeping, subject to order, and payable not in the specific money deposited, but in an equal sum; it may or may not bear interest, according to the agreement. In re Law's Estate, 144 Pa. 499, 22 Atl. 831, 14 L. R. A. 103; State v. McFetridge, 84 Wis. 473, 54 N. W. 11, 998, 20 L. R. A. 223.

As to investment of trust funds, see Trus-

Bouv.-106

INVIOLABILITY. That which is not to meaning than slavery; Bailey v. Alal be violated. The persons of ambassadors are inviolable. See Ambassador; Telegram.

INVITO. Against, or without the assent or consent; unwilling.

INVITO DEBITORE. Against the will of the debtor.

INVITO DOMINO (Lat.). In Criminal Law. Without the consent of the owner. In order to constitute larceny, the property stolen must be taken invito domino; this is the very essence of the crime. Cases of considerable difficulty arise when the owner has, for the purpose of detecting thieves, by himself or his agents, delivered the property taken, as to whether they are larcenies or not: the distinction seems to be this, that when the owner procures the property to be taken, it is not larceny; and when he merely leaves it in the power of the defendant to execute his original purpose of taking it, in the latter case it will be considered as taken invito domino; 2 Russ. Cr. 66, 105; 2 East, Pl. Cr. 666; Bac. Abr. Felony (C); 2 B. & P. 508. See LARCENY.

INVOICE. An account of goods or merchandise sent by merchants to their correspondents at home or abroad, in which the marks of each package, with other particulars, are set forth. Marsh. Ins. 408; Dane, Abr. Index. An invoice ought to contain a detailed statement, which should indicate the nature, quantity, quality, and prices of the things sold, deposited, etc.; 1 Pard. n. 248. See Graham v. Ins. Co., 2 Wash. C. C. 113, Fed. Cas. No. 5,674; Field v. Moulson, 2 Wash. C. C. 155, Fed. Cas. No. 4,770. Invoice carries no necessary implication of ownership, but accompanies goods consigned to a factor for sale, as well as in the case of a purchaser; Rolker v. Ins. Co., 4 Abb. App. Dec. (N. Y.) 76. See BILL of LADING. Invoice Price. The prime cost, or invoice of the cost. Le Roy v. Ins. Co., 7 Johns. (N. Y.) 343.

An invoice is not evidence of a sale; it is a mere statement of the nature, quantity and cost or price of the things invoiced and is as appropriate to a bailment as to a sale; Dows v. Bank, 91 U. S. 618, 23 L. Ed. 214; In re Smith & Nixon Piano Co., 149 Fed. 113, 79 C. C. A. 53.

INVOLUNTARY. An involuntary act is that which is performed with constraint (q. v.), or with repugnance, or without the will to do it. An action is involuntary which is performed under duress. Wolfflus, Inst. § 5.

INVOLUNTARY MANSLAUGHTER. MANSLAUGHTER; HOMICIDE.

INVOLUNTARY SERVITUDE. These words, used in the 13th amendment of the United States constitution, have a larger ity should except to it previously to the 219 U. S. 219, 31 Sup. Ct. 145, 55 L. Ed See SLAVERY; PEONAGE; 11 Col. L. 363.

1. 0. U. See at beginning of letter I.

10WA (an Indian word denoting place or final resting place"). The nat one of the states of the United States, the sixteenth admitted to the Union.

This state was admitted to the Union by an congress approved December 28, 1846.

IPSISSIMIS VERBIS (Lat.). In the words: opposed to substant Townsend v. Jemison, 7 How. (U. S.) 7: L. Ed. 880; Summons v. State, 5 Ohi

IP$0 FACTO (Lat.). By the fact i By the mere fact. A proceeding ipso void is one which has not prima facie ity, but is void ab initio.

IPSO JURE (Lat.). By the operation law. By mere law.

IPSWICH, DOMESDAY OF. The ea extant record of any borough court elective officers sitting regularly and a istering a customary law of the sea. Book of Admiralty, Vol. II. It was ab ed by 5 & 6 Will. IV. c. 76. Its twelve ital portmen" were elected from the mo wealthy and discreet of the judges.

IRADE. A decree of the Sultan.

IRELAND. See UNITED KINGDOL GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND.

IRON SAFE CLAUSE. See INSURANCE

IRRECUSABLE. A term used to inc a certain class of contractual obliga recognized by the law which are im upon a person without his consent and out regard to any act of his own. The distinguished from recusable obliga which are the result of a voluntary a the part of a person on whom they ar posed by law. A clear example of an cusable obligation is the obligation im on every man not to strike another wi some lawful excuse. A recusable oblig is based upon some act of a person b which is a condition precedent to the ge of the obligation. These terms were suggested by Prof. Wigmore in 8 Harv. Rev. 200. See Harr. Contr. 6, where classification is very fully discussed. CONTRACTUAL OBLIGATION.

IRREGULARITY. The doing or not that in the conduct of a suit at law, w conformably with the practice of the ought or ought not to be done. Doe v. ter, 2 Ind. 252. The term is usually ap to such informality as does not rende valid the act done; thus an irregular tress for rent due is not illegal ab init A party entitled to complain of irreg any step by him in the cause; Lofft 323, 333; because the taking of any such step is a waiver of any irregularity; 1 B. & P. 342. See ABATEMENT.

The court will, on motion, set aside proceedings for irregularity. On setting aside a judgment and execution for irregularity, they have power to impose terms on the defendant, and will restrain him from bringing an action of trespass, unless a strong case of damage appears. 1 Chitty, Bail. 133, n. And see Baldw. 246.

IRRELEVANCY. The quality or state of being inapplicable or impertinent to a fact or argument.

Irrelevancy, in an answer, consists in statements which are not material to the decision of the case; such as do not form or tender any material issue. People v. McCumber, 18 N. Y. 315, 321, 72 Am. Dec. 515.

IRRELEVANT EVIDENCE. That which does not support the issue, and which, of course, must be excluded. See EVIDENCE.

IRREMOVABILITY. The status of a pauper in England, who cannot be legally removed from the parish or union in which he is receiving relief, notwithstanding that he has not acquired a settlement there. Thus a pauper who has resided in a parish during the whole of the preceding year is irremovable. Stat. 28 and 29 Vict. c. 79, § 8.

IRREPARABLE INJURY. As a ground for injunction, it is that which cannot be repaired, retrieved, put back again, atoned for. Indian River Steamboat Co. v. Trans. Co., 28 Fla. 387, 10 South. 480, 29 Am. St. Rep. 258; it does not necessarily mean that the injury is beyond the possibility of compensation in damages, nor that it must be very great; Newell v. Sass, 142 Ill. 104, 31 N. E. 176. See Injunction.

IRREPLEVIABLE. That cannot be replevied or delivered on sureties. Spelled, also, irreplevisable. Co. Litt. 145; 13 Edw. I. c. 2.

IRRESISTIBLE FORCE. A term applied to such an interposition of human agency as is, from its nature and power, absolutely uncontrollable; as, the inroads of a hostile army. Story, Bailm. § 25; Lois des Batim. pt. 2, c. 2, § 1. See INEVITABLE ACCIDENT.

IRRESISTIBLE IMPULSE. See INSANTY.

IRREVOCABLE. Which cannot be revoked or recalled. A power of attorney in which the attorney has an interest granted for consideration is irrevocable. See WILL; POWER OF ATTORNEY.

IRRIGATION. The operation of watering lands or causing water to flow over lands by artificial means for agricultural purposes.

"The word irrigation, in its primary sense, means a sprinkling or watering; but the best lexicographers give it an agricultural or special signification, thus: "The watering of lands by drains or channels' (Worcester); The operation of causing water to flow over lands for nourishing plants' (Webster). The term irrigation as used in Colorado, in the constitution and statutes and judicial opinions, in view of the climate and soil, is in its special sense, to wit: "The application of water to lands for the raising of agricultural crops and other products of the soil." Platte Water Co. v. Irrigation Co., 12 Colo. 529, 21 Pac. 711.

At common law the right of the riparian proprietor to divert the water of a stream for the purposes of irrigation was well recognized, and it was described as an artificial use of the water and not a natural use like taking the water for drinking, domestic purposes, and watering cattle, which would allow the use of all the water in the stream. A riparian owner could use for domestic purposes and watering cattle as much of the water of the stream as he chose, and if he found it necessary, take all the water in the stream, but in using the water for irrigation he was allowed to take only a reasonable amount of it and could not diminish the flow of the stream, so as to cause loss to other riparian owners; Gould, Waters 217; Kinney, Irrig. § 66; Tolle v. Correth, 31 Tex. 362, 98 Am. Dec. 543 and note; Fleming v. Davis, 37 Tex. 173; Tyler v. Wilkinson, 4 Mas. 400, Fed. Cas. No. 14,312; Ingraham v. Hutchinson, 2 Conn. 584.

This doctrine of the common law was sufficient for any irrigation that had been found necessary in England or in the United States east of the Mississippi River. But in what was once known as the Great American Desert and is now called the Arid Region west of the Mississippi, "there has grown up or evolved out of the necessities of the people and the exigencies of the communities interested, a great body of law, custom, regulation, and judicial interpretation. statutes in general form the principle of prior appropriation as wrought out by the earlier miners, and embodied in federal law, and then by the states and territories, being steadily sustained by the courts, with a few exceptions, as the common law of an arid region such as ours. The development of the beneficial use of water has of course modified the practice of prior appropriations to a first or prior pro nata share of the natural waters, when taken from bed or source for industrial purposes;" Senate Report on Irrigation, 1890.

After the discovery of gold in California had brought great numbers of people to that region, the miners developed a sort of code of their own, called the Mining Customs, which in 1851 were recognized by the legislature of California and made a part of the law of the state. By these customs a new principle in water rights was developed, called the Law of Priority of Appropriation, by which the person who first uses the water of a stream is by virtue of priority of occupation entitled to hold the same, and may use all the water in the stream for the purpose of carrying on his mining operations; Kinney, Irrig. § 104; Geertson v. Barrack, 3 Idaho, 344, 29 Pac. 42. This doctrine beginning in the Mining Customs and sanctioned by the legislature of California and the supreme court of that state, was afterwards approved by the supreme court of the United States, and congress not only passed acts which sanctioned the doctrine as regarded mines, but extended it to all other beneficial uses or purposes for which water may be essential, as irrigation for the purposes of argiculture and horticulture and to milling, manufacturing, and municipal purposes, in the Arid Region.

The rights of a riparian owner to the use of the water flowing by his land are not the same in the arid states of the west as they are in the eastern states. These rights have been altered by many of the western states by their conditions and laws because of the totally different circumstances in which their inhabitants are placed; Clark v. Nash, 198 U. S. 361, 25 Sup. Ct. 676, 49 L. Ed. 1085, 4 Ann. Cas. 1171.

In order to make an appropriation of water valid under the Arid Region doctrine. there must be a bona fide intention to use the water for some beneficial purpose; Davis v. Gale, 32 Cal. 33, 91 Am. Dec. 554; Woolman v. Garringer, 1 Mont. 543; Dick v. Caldwell, 14 Nev. 167; Munroe v. Ivie, 2 Utah 535; Ft. Morgan Land & Canal Co. v. Ditch Co., 18 Colo. 1, 30 Pac. 1032, 36 Am. St. Rep. 259. The intention to appropriate must be shown by the work and labor usual in such enterprises to accomplish the end. If there is no actual intention to appropriate the water for a beneficial purpose, or if there is unnecessary delay in the completion of the works for the appropriation of the water, a subsequent appropriator who diverts and applies the water for a beneficial purpose has the superior right; Ball v. Kehl, 87 Cal. 505, 25 Pac. 679; Feliz v. Los Angeles, 58 Cal. 80; Basey v. Gallagher, 20 Wall. (U. S.) 682, 22 L. Ed. 452; Jennison v. Kirk, 98 U. S. 453, 25 L. Ed. 240. A ditch or canal company may appropriate or divert water and then sell it to other persons, provided the water is all applied to beneficial purposes by the persons to whom it is sold; Combs v. Ditch Co., 17 Colo. 146, 28 Pac. 966, 31 Am. St. Rep. 275. It is also necessary to the validity of an appropriation that the water be used continuously. If allowed to run to waste for any length of time it will be treated as abandoned and open for a fresh appropriation. But water once lawfully appropriated is not lost by a change in its use; | A. 414.

Hill v. Smith, 27 Cal. 476; Sims v. S Cal. 148, 68 Am. Dec. 233.

All persons in the Arid Region con to hold lands have also the right to priate water; Lobdell v. Hall, 3 Ne Quigley v. Birdseye, 11 Mont. 439, 2741. But under the Arid Region doct appropriator need not necessarily be rian owner of land. The right to priate is not an incident of the soil, simply a possessory right acquired by appropriation; Strickler v. City of Caprings, 16 Colo. 61, 26 Pac. 13, 25 Arep. 245; Bloom v. West, 3 Colo. All 32 Pac. 846; Barnes v. Sabron, 10 Ne Basey v. Gallagher, 20 Wall. (U. S.)

L. Ed. 452; Broder v. Min. Co., 101

276, 25 L. Ed. 790; Titcomb v. Kirk,

288; Kinney, Irrig. § 156.

A provision that no land shall be in an irrigation district, except such a be benefited by the system of irrigation in that district, means that the lambe such that it may be substantially ed. It is not sufficient that such irrigates an opportunity thereafter to land for a new kind of crop, while n stantially benefiting it for the cultivathe old kind, which it has produced sonable quantities, and with ordinatainty, without the aid of irrigation brook Irrigation Dist. v. Bradley, 164

112, 17 Sup. Ct. 56, 41 L. Ed. 369.

In order to make an appropriation there must be sufficient notice to the of the intention to appropriate; an notice may be in any form which the name of the appropriator and a cition of the stream and of the purpowhich the water is to be taken; Osmin. Co., 56 Cal. 571.

In Krall v. U. S., 79 Fed. 241, 24 Cl 543, it was held that the previous estment of a government reservation bel point of appropriation does not afferight, except so far as the waters stream have been previously approfor the use of such reservation. But C. J., dissented on the authority of SI Beck, 133 U. S. 541, 10 Sup. Ct. 350 Ed. 761, which held that a homestead man on land over which the water creek flowed had the right to the right of the water as against a subseque propriation.

The rights of an appropriator of for irrigating purposes are not into with by a subsequent appropriation for ing purposes at a point further a stream, unless the use for the latter primpairs the value of the water for the pose of irrigation; Wyatt v. Irr. Co., App. 480, 29 Pac. 906; but the mine liable to the lower user for injury land by debris discharged from the Montana Co. v. Gehring, 75 Fed. 384, 2A. 414.

The liability of an irrigation company for failing to supply a certain volume of water to the holders of water rights, according to contract, cannot be determined on the theory that the company is a common carrier; Wyatt v. Irrigation Co., 1 Colo. App. 480, 29 Pac. 906.

Although in the Arid Region the doctrine of appropriation generally prevails, the old common-law doctrine of the reasonable use of water by a riparian owner for irrigation is not entirely abolished in all the jurisdictions. In some states the common-law doctrine has been entirely abolished, but in others it exists side by side with the doctrine of appropriation, and is applied usually in the case of riparian owners who, making no claim to an appropriation, wish to use some of the waters of a stream for irrigation; Kinney, Irrig. 273.

By statute in many of the arid and semiarid states the construction of reservoirs is directly encouraged, and the federal government has constructed numerous reservoirs. Early customs required merely the taking of the water and its application to a beneficial use. Early legislation required the posting of an official notice at the point of reversion and the recording of the same with the county clerk. Now a state engineer has general supervision over the waters of the state. No appropriation can be made except under a permit issued by him, and the applicant must file a map. The states are divided into irrigation divisions embracing the entire branch of a given stream. Each division is divided into districts for administrative pur-They generally embrace some particular tributary of the main stream. The states in the exercise of their police power have assumed the entire control of the distribution. The amount of water to which an appropriator is entitled, and the order in which he shall be served are governed by the courts and the boards. The measurement of water is one of the most complicated subjects, since modern science has not yet satisfactorily solved the problem. From the nature of the business of transporting water many ditch companies have been formed; they rarely have competition, and in order that their rates may not be confiscatory, it is generally provided that they shall be fixed by some governing board to insure reasonableness.

The magnitude of many irrigation enterprises places them beyond the ability of individuals as well as of the average corporation, and this led to the adoption in California in 1887 of what is known as the Wright Act, which has been followed in several of the other states. Its purpose is the organization of irrigation districts; as such it is a public corporation organized for the purpose of constructing and operating improvements that are for the public welfare; its officers water.

are public officials; Fallbrook Irr. Dist. v. Bradley, 164 U. S. 112, 17 Sup. Ct. 56, 41 L. Ed. 369. By the United States Reclamation Act of June 17, 1902, irrigation was greatly aided; it provided that all money received from the sale of public land in the arid and semi-arid states, except Texas, should be used in the construction of irrigation works.

In developing irrigation projects in connection with which there is a considerable proportion of land in private ownership, it has been found necessary to provide some means of dealing with the private owners as a body; the secretary of the interior has therefore required that the settlers who will ultimately receive water from the projected system shall form an incorporated association. Hence laws have been passed in several of the states providing for the incorporation of water users' associations; Col. Sessions 1905; Kansas v. Colorado, 206 U. S. 46, 27 Sup. Ct. 655, 51 L. Ed. 956.

For the rights of priority to take water from natural streams, see Colorado Acts, 1881, and Wyoming Acts, 1891, which have furnished the basis of the two systems generally followed.

See Mills, Irrigation Manual.

On a bill filed by Kansas to restrain Colorado and certain corporations organized under its laws from diverting the waters of the Arkansas river for the irrigation of lands in Colorado, thereby preventing the customary flow of its waters into and through Kansas (to which a demurrer was filed), it was held that it would not be unreasonable to enforce against Colorado its own local rule as to the use of flowing water for irrigation, yet as it did not appear that the detriment to Kansas, while substantial, was so great as to make the appropriation by Colorado an inequitable apportionment between the two states, the bill was dismissed, without prejudice to the right of Kansas to begin new proceedings whenever it shall appear that the substantial interests of Kansas are being injured to the extent of destroying the equitable apportionment of benefits between the two states; Kansas v. Colorado, 206 U. S. 46, 27 Sup. Ct. 655, 51 L. Ed. 956.

See, generally, Black's Pomeroy on Waters; Hall; Kinney, Irrig.; 5 Special Consular Reports, 1891; Gould, Waters § 217; Lux v. Haggin, 69 Cal. 255, 4 Pac. 919, 10 Pac. 674; Senate Report on Irrigation, 1890, where all the acts in the irrigation states are set forth, together with a digest of reported cases; Mills, Constitutional Annotations § 510, where the cases and constitutional provisions are collected; WATERS.

IRROTULATIO (Law Lat.). An inrolling; a record. 2 Rymer, Foed. 673; Du Cange; Law Fr. & Lat. Dict.; Bracton, fol. 293; Fleta, lib. 2, c. 65, § 11.

ISLAND. A piece of land surrounded by water.

When new islands arise in the open sea, they belong to the first occupant; but when they are newly formed so near the shore as to be within the boundary of some state, they belong to that state.

ISLAND

Islands which arise in rivers when in the middle of the stream belong in equal parts to the riparian proprietors. When they arise mostly on one side, they belong to the riparian owners up to the middle of the stream.

The owner in fee of the bed of a river or other submerged land is the owner of any bar, island, or dry land which may be subsequently formed thereon; St. Louis v. Rutz, 138 U. S. 226, 11 Sup. Ct. 337, 34 L. Ed. 941.

Where an island springs up in a navigable river, and by accretion to the shores of the island and the mainland, they are united, the owner of the mainland is not entitled to the island, but only to such accretion as formed on his land; Cooley v. Golden, 117 Mo. 33, 23 S. W. 100, 21 L. R. A. 300.

If an island springs up in a navigable stream it belongs to the sovereign, and not to the owner of the land on either of the banks of the stream; Glassell v. Hansen, 135 Cal. 547, 67 Pac. 964; if there be an accretion to plaintiff's land which gradually extends to the island, the owner of the land would acquire the island with the accretions: id. A mussel bed over which the water flows at every tide is not an island, but should be denominated flats; King v. Young, 76 Me. 76, 49 Am. Rep. 596. In many states lands totally or partially submerged are made the subject of grant by the sovereign in order that they may be reclaimed for useful purposes.

An island that arises in the bed of a stream usually first presents itself as a sand bar; Cox v. Arnold, 129 Mo. 337, 31 S. W. 592, 50 Am. St. Rep. 450; Glassell v. Hansen, 135 Cal. 547, 67 Pac. 964; Holman v. Hodges, 112 Ia. 714, 84 N. W. 950, 58 L. R. A. 673, 84 Am. St. Rep. 367; a bar, before it will support vegetation of any kind, may become valuable for fishing, hunting, as a shooting park, for the harvest of ice, for pumping sand, etc. If further deposits of alluvion upon it would make it more valuable, the law of accretion should still apply; Fowler v. Wood, 73 Kan. 511, 85 Pac. 763, 6 L. R. A. (N. S.) 162, 117 Am. St. Rep. 534.

See Accession; Accretion; Boundary.

ISSINT (Norm. Fr. thus, so). A term formerly used to introduce a statement that special matter already pleaded amounts to a denial.

In actions founded on deeds, the defendant may, instead of pleading non est factum in the common form, allege any special matter which admits the execution of the writing in question, but which, nevertheless. shows that it is not in law his deed, and may conclude with, "and so it is not his deed;" as, that the writing was delivered to A B as an escrow, to be delivered over on certain the parties.

conditions, which have not been co with, "and so it is not his act," or the time of making the writing the ant was a feme covert, "and so it is i act;" Bac. Abr. Pleas (H 3), (I 2); Got § 64.

An example of this form of plea, is sometimes called the special genera occurs in Bauer v. Roth, 4 Rawle (Pa.)

ISSUABLE. In Practice. Lead tending to an issue. An issuable plea upon which the plaintiff can take iss proceed to trial.

ISSUABLE TERMS. Hilary and '

Terms were so called from the making the issues, during those terms, for sizes, that they might be tried by the es, who generally went on circuit to tr issues after these two terms. But fo causes all four terms were issuable. Com. 350; 1 Tidd, Pr. 121. Since th cature Acts of 1873 and 1875 this dist has become obsolete.

ISSUE. in Realty Law. Desce All persons who have descended from mon ancestor. 3 Ves. Ch. 257; 19 id. Roper, Leg. 90.

In a will it may be held to have restricted meaning, to carry out the tor's intention; 7 Ves. Ch. 522; 1 Leg. 90. 2 Wills. Exec. 386, n.; but been held that a devise to "issue" prima facie legitimate issue, and an tion to include illegitimates must from the will itself without resort to sic evidence; Flora v. Anderson, 67 Fe See Bac. Abr. Curtesy (D), Legatee.

If the term be used in the sense of that is, as comprehending a class to t inheritance, it is to be interpreted as of limitation, and brings the case with Rule in Shelley's case; and this is terpretation that prima facie will be it; Robins v. Quinliven, 79 Pa. 33 means, prima facie, "heirs of the Stayman v. Paxson, 221 Pa. 446, 70 A but if the context indicate a different tion, it will be sustained as a word chase; 2 Wms. R. P. 603. In a deed i ways taken as a word of purchase; v. Taylor, 63 Pa. 483, 3 Am. Rep. Term R. 299; 2 Ves. Sr. 681; 2 Wms

In Pleading. A single, certain, as terial point, deduced by the pleadings parties, which is affirmed on the or and denied on the other.

The entry of the pleadings. 1 Chi

Several connected matters of fact i to make up the point in issue.

An actual issue is one formed in an brought in the regular manner, for the pose of trying a question of right b matter not directly in the line of the pleadings; as, for example, upon the identity of one who pleads diversity in bar of execution. 4 Bla. Com. 396.

A common issue is that which is formed upon the plea of non est factum to an action of covenant broken.

This is so called because it denies the deed only, and not the breach, and does not put the whole declaration in issue, and because there is no general issue this form of action. 1 Chitty, Pl. 482, Gould, Pl. c. 6, pt. 1, § 7.

An issue in fact is one in which the truth of some fact is affirmed or denied.

In general, it consists of a direct affirmative allegation on one side and a direct negative on the other. Co. Litt. 126 a; Bac. Abr. Pleas (G 1); 2 W. Bla. 1312; Simonton v. Winter, 5 Pet. (U. S.) 149, 8 L. Ed. 75. But an affirmative allegation which completely excludes the truth of the preceding may be sufficient; 1 Wils. 6. Thus, the general issue in a writ of right (called the mise) is formed by two affirmatives; the demandant claiming a greater right than the tenant, and the tenant a greater than the demandant. Bla. Com. 195, 305. And in an action of dower the count merely demands the third part of [ ] acres of land, etc., as the dower of the demandant of the endowment of A B, heretofore the husband, etc., and the general issue is that A B was not selsed of such estate, etc., and that he could not endow the demandant thereof, etc.; which mode of denial, being argumentative, would not, in general, be allowed. ·2 Saund. 329.

A feigned issue is one formed in a fictitious action, under direction of the court, for the purpose of trying before a jury some question of fact.

Such issues are generally ordered by a court of equity, to ascertain the truth of a disputed fact. They are also frequently used in courts of law, by the consent of the parties, to determine some disputed rights without the formality of pleading; and by this practice much time and expense are saved in the decision of a cause; 3 Bla. Com. 452. Suppose, for example, it is desirable to settle a question of the validity of a will in a court of equity.

For this purpose an action is brought, in which the plaintiff by a fiction declares that he laid a wager for a sum of money with the defendant, for example, that a certain paper is the last will and testament of A, then avers it is his will, and therefore demands the money; the defendant admits the wager, but avers that it is not the will of A: and thereupon that issue is joined, which is directed out of chancery, to be tried; and thus the verdict of the jurors at law determines the fact in the court of equity. A feigned issue is also formed for trial by a

A collateral issue is one framed upon some in proceedings to test the title to goods levied upon by the sheriff and claimed by a third party.

> The name is a misnomer, inasmuch as the issue itself is upon a real, material point in question between the parties, and the circumstances only are fictitious. It is a contempt of the court in which the action is brought to bring such an action, except under the direction of some court; 4 Term 402.

> A formal issue is one which is framed according to the rules required by law, in an artificial and proper manner.

> A general issue is one which denies in direct terms the whole declaration: as, for example, where the defendant pleads nil debet (that he owes the plaintiff nothing), or nul disseisin (no disseisin committed). 3 Greenl. Ev. § 9; Steph. Pl. 220; 3 Bla. Com. 305. See GENERAL ISSUE.

> An immaterial issue is one formed on some immaterial matter, which, though found by the verdict, will not determine the merits of the cause, and will leave the court at a loss how to give judgment. 2 Wms. Saund. 319, n. 6. See Immaterial Issue.

An informal issue is one which arises when a material allegation is traversed in an improper or inartificial manner. Bac. Abr. Pleas (G 2), (N 5); 2 Wms. Saund. 319 a, n. The defect is cured by verdict, by the statute 32 Hen. VIII. c. 30.

A material issue is one properly formed on some material point which will, when decided, settle the question between the parties.

A special issue is one formed by the defendant's selecting any one substantial point and resting the weight of his cause upon that. It is contrasted with the general issue. Comyns, Dig. Pleader (R 1, 2).

ISSUE ROLL. In English Law. The name of a record which contained an entry of issue as soon as it was found. It was abolished by the rules of Hilary Term, 1834. Moz. & W. Dict.

ISSUES. In English Law. The goods and profits of the lands of a defendant against whom a writ of distringas or distress infinite has been issued, taken by virtue of such writ, are called issues. 3 Bla. Com. 280; 1 Chitty, Crim. Law 351.

ON SHERIFFS. amercements inflicted on sheriffs for neglects and defaults, levied out of the issues and profits of their lands. Toml.

ISTIMBAR. Continuance; perpetuity; especially a farm or lease granted in perpetuity by government or a zemindar (q. v.). Wilson's Gloss. Ind.

ISTIMRARDAR. The holder of a perpetual lease. Moz. & W.

ITA EST (Lat.). So it is.

Among the civilians, when a notary dies, leaving his register, an officer who is aujury in certain interpleader proceedings; as thorized to make official copies of his notarial acts writes, instead of the deceased notary's name, which is required when he is living, ita est.

ITA QUOD (Lat.). The name or condition in a submission, which is usually introduced by these words, "so as the award be made of and upon the premises," which, from the first words, is called the ita quod.

When the submission is with an ita quod, the arbitrator must make an award of all matters submitted to him of which he had notice, or the award will be entirely void; Cro. Jac. 200; 2 Vern. Ch. 109; Rolle, Abr. Arbitrament (L, 9).

ITALY. A constitutional monarchy of Europe in which the executive power belongs exclusively to the sovereign. He is irresponsible. He appoints his ministers, who are responsible. The signature of one of them is necessary to the validity of royal decrees. The king shares the legislative power with the parliament, which consists of two chambers, the senate and the chamber of deputies. The senate consists of princes of the blood and an unlimited number of senators over forty years of age who are qualified under twenty-one different categories, for instance, having held high office, attained celebrity in science, literature, etc., and are nominated by the king for life. Their number now exceeds three hundred. It is the highest court of justice in the trial of political offences and the impeachment of The chamber of deputies consists of five hundred and eight members, who are elected for five years in single-member constituencies by manhood suffrage with certain educational and property tests.

The judiciary system is modeled on that of France (see Courts of France) with Courts of Cassation in five principal cities, twenty appeal court districts, and one hundred and sixty tribunal districts etc. In thirteen principal towns there are Pretóri having exclusive penal jurisdiction. Encycl.

ITEM (Lat.). Also; likewise; in like ner; again; a second time. These a various meanings of this Latin adver

It is used to introduce a new para or chapter, or division; also to denote ticular in an account. It is used wh article or clause is added to a former there were here a new beginning. Du Hence the rule that a clause in a wil duced by item shall not influence or fluenced by what precedes or follows. sensible, taken independently; 1 Sall or if there is no plain intent that it be taken in connection, in which cases be construed conjunctively, in the se and, or also, in such a manner as to e sentences. If, therefore, a testator be a legacy to Peter, payable out of a par fund or charged upon a particular item a legacy to James, James's leg well as Peter's will be a charge up same property; 1 Bro. C. C. 482; Cr 368.

iter (Lat.). In Civil Law. A right of way belonging as a servitude estate in the country (prædium rus. The right of way was of three kir iter, a right to walk, or ride on horsel in a litter; 2, actus, a right to drive or vehicle; 3, via, a full right of way prising right to walk or ride, or drive or carriage. Heineccius, Elem. Jur. 408. Or, as some think, they were guished by the width of the objects could be rightfully carried over the e. g. via, 8 feet; actus, 4 feet, etc. dey, Civ. Law § 290; Bracton 232; H. L. 390.

in Old English Law. A journey, est a circuit made by a justice in eyre, or ant justice, to try causes according own mission. Du Cange; Bracton, li 11; Britton, c. 2; Cowell. See EYRE

ITINERANT. Wandering; trav

1689

JACENS. In abeyance. Toml.

JACENS HÆREDITAS. See HÆBEDITAS JACENS.

JACET IN ORE. It lies in the mouth. Fleta, lib. 5, c. 5, § 49.

JACOBUS. A gold coin an inch and threeeighths in diameter, in value about twentyfive shillings, so called from James I., in whose reign it was first coined.

It was also called broad, laurel, and broad-piece. Its value is sometimes put at twenty-four shillings, but Macaulay speaks of a salary of eight thousand Jacobuses as equivalent to ten thousand pounds sterling. Hist. Eng. ch. xv. A cut of this coin showing both sides will be found in the Century Dictionary, sub v. broad.

JACTITATION. Boasting of something which is challenged by another. Moz. & W.

The word is used principally with reference to jactitation of marriage, which title see. In Louisiana, it is the name used as an action for slander of title to land.

Jactitation of right to a seat in a church appears to be the boasting by a man that he has a right or title to a pew or sitting in a church to which he has legally no title.

Jactitation of tithes is the boasting by a man that he is entitled to certain tithes, to which he has legally no title. See Rog. Ecc. L 482

JACTITATION OF MARRIAGE. In English Ecclesiastical Law. The untruthful boasting by an individual that he or she has married another, from which it may happen that they will acquire the reputation of being married to each other. 3 Bla. Com. 93. It was held that the boasting must be malicious as well as false; 2 Hagg. 220, 280.

The ecclesiastical courts formerly might in such cases entertain a libel by the party injured, and on proof of the facts enjoin the wrong-doer to perpetual silence, and, as a punishment, make him pay the costs; 3 Bla. Com. 93; 2 Hagg. Cons. 423, 285; 2 Chitty, Pr. 459.

The jurisdiction of such a suit would now be in the Probate, Divorce, and Matrimonial Division, but the remedy is now rarely resorted to, as, in general, since Lord Hardwicke's act (1766), there is sufficient certainty in the forms of legal marriage in England to prevent any one being in ignorance whether he or she is really married or not-a reproach which, however, was often made against the law of Scotland. The Scotch suit of a declarator of putting to silence, which is equivalent to jactitation of marriage, is often resorted to, a notorious in-

JACTURA (Lat. jaceo, to throw). A jettison (q. v.).

JACTUS (Lat.). A throwing goods overboard to lighten or save the vessel, in which case the goods so sacrificed are a proper subject for general average. Dig. 14. 2, de lege Rhodia de jactu; 1 Pardessus, Collec. des Lois marit. 104; Kuricke, Inst. Marit. Hanscat. tit. 8; 1 Par. Mar. Law 288.

JACTUS LAPILLI (Lat. the throwing down of a stone). In Civil Law. A method of preventing the acquisition of title by prescription by interrupting the possession. The real owner of land on which another was building, and thereby acquiring title by usucapion (q. v.), could challenge the intrusion and interrupt the prescription by throwing down a stone from the building before witnesses called upon to note the transaction.

JAIL. See GAOL; PRISON.

JAMMUNDLING, JAMUNDILINGI. Freemen who delivered themselves and property to the protection of a more powerful person, in order to avoid military service and other burdens. Spelman, Gloss. Also, a species of serfs among the Germans. Du Cange. The same as commendati.

JANITOR. A person employed to take charge of rooms or buildings, to see that they are kept clean and in order, to lock and unlock them, and generally to care for them. Fagan v. City of New York, 84 N. Y. 352. See FLAT.

Formerly, a door-keeper, Fleta, lib. 2, c. 24.

JAPAN. An empire of Asia, consisting of four islands lying in the Pacific Ocean east of China, Korea, and Siberia. The government is a monarchy administered by an emperor, and what may be termed a cabinet and privy council. The constitution was promulgated in 1889. There is an imperial parliament consisting of two houses.

The house of peers consists of princes and marquises (hereditary); counts, viscounts and barons elected by their respective orders in the maximum ratio of one to every five; men of education or distinguished service nominated by the emperor; and representatives of the highest tax payers, elected one for each election district by their own The lower house is elected by the people, partly by incorporated cities, and partly by the forty-three election districts. A general election for the upper house occurs every seven years, and for the lower house every four years. The great council or cabinet consists of ten members, the nine ministers who are heads of departments and stance of its use being that in the Yelverton the minister president of state who presides marriage case; 1 Sc. Sess. Cas. 3d ser. 161. over them. These constitute the cabinet.

Cr. L. § 981. At one time it was n

Between them and the crown is a small body of men known as the "Elder Statesmen," survivors of those who raised Japan to her present high position among nations. There is also a council of a variable number of distinguished men, who debate and advise upon matters referred to them by the crown.

JAP AN

For an extended review of the "Administration of Justice in Japan," see a series of articles by Professor John H. Wigmore, 36 Am. L. Reg. N. S. 437, 491, 571, 628.

JEOFAILE (L. Fr.). I have failed; I am in error.

Certain statutes are called statutes of amendments and jeofailes, because, where a pleader perceives any slip in the form of his proceedings, and acknowledges the error (jeofaile), he is at liberty, by those statutes, to amend it. The amendment, however, is seldom made; but the benefit is attained by the court's overlooking the exception; 3 Bla. Com. 407; 1 Saund. 228, n. 1; Doct. Pl. 297; Dane, Abr. These statutes do not apply to indictments.

JEOPARDY. The situation of a prisoner when a trial jury is sworn and impanelled to try his case upon a valid indictment, and such jury has been charged with his deliverance. State v. McKee, 1 Bail. (S. C.) 655, 21 Am. Dec. 499; Weinzorpflin v. State, 7 Blackf. (Ind.) 191; McFadden v. Com., 23 Pa. 12, 62 Am. Dec. 308.

It is the peril in which a prisoner is put when he is regularly charged with a crime before a tribunal properly organized and competent to try him. Com. v. Fitzpatrick, 121 Pa. 109, 15 Atl. 466, 1 L. R. A. 451, 6 Am. St. Rep. 757.

This is the sense in which the term is used in the United States constitution: "no person . . . shall be subject for the same offence to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb," U. S. Const. art. V. Amend., and in the statutes or constitutions of most if not all of the states.

As commonly used it must be distinguished from former acquittal and former conviction. Obviously it includes the rules governed by those two terms, but there may be a former jeopardy without a previous acquittal or conviction, and this was intended by the court in Com. v. Fitzpatrick, 121 Pa. 109, 15 Atl. 466, 1 L. R. A. 451, 6 Am. St. Rep. 757, where it was said: "The plea of former jeopardy stands on narrower, more technical, and less substantial grounds. It alleges only that there might have been a conviction or acquittal if the judge trying the case had not make a mistake of law, which prevented a verdict." It might be said that former jeopardy is the genus. See 10 Va. L. Reg. 410.

This provision in the constitution of the United States binds only the United States; Fox v. Ohio, 5 How. (U. S.) 410, 12 L. Ed. 213; State v. Shirer, 20 S. C. 392; 1 Bish. N. | City Prison, 202 N. Y. 138, 95 N. E. 729

formly so considered, and it was he tra, Com. v. Purchase, 2 Pick. (Mass 13 Am. Dec. 452; People v. Goodv Johns. (N. Y.) 187, 9 Am. Dec. 203; $ Moor, Walker (Miss.) 134, 12 Am. De This was the same fluctuation of j opinion as to the effect of the early tutional amendments which affected questions. See EMINENT DOMAIN. country this rule depends in most ca constitutional provisions. In Englan said to be one of the universal maxims common law; 4 Bla. Com. 335; and S in repeating the expression adds in that although Blackstone uses the "jeopardy of his life," it is not confi capital offences, and extends to misd ors; 4 Steph. Com. 384; 3 B. & C. 502 leading case where the question was ered whether the rule applied when had been discharged for want of agr it was held that the court had author its discretion to discharge the jury in case, and that such action did not as an acquittal. This is also the pre opinion in this country. See infra. English case referred to, it was said by burn, C. J., that in considering the q of the right to discharge a jury in such they were not dealing with one of thos ciples which lie at the foundation of t but with a matter of practice, whi fluctuated at various times, and "even present day may perhaps be consider not finally settled;" L. R. 1 Q. B. 289 would seem to be a more reasonab struction of the language of Lord burn than that sometimes put upon i 1 Bish. N. Cr. L. § 982. That wh characterized as a mere matter of p was not the existence of the doctr jeopardy, but whether it was applicable

The constitutional provision, which to "life or limb," properly interprete tends only to treason and felonies, has usually been extended to misd ors; 1 Bish. Cr. L. § 990; McCauley v. 26 Ala. 135; but not to proceedings recovery of penalties, nor to application sureties of the peace; 1 Bish. Cr. L.

A person is in legal jeopardy when put upon trial, before a court of con jurisdiction, upon indictment or infor which is sufficient in form and substa sustain a conviction, and a jury ha charged with his deliverance; Cooley, Lim., 4th ed. 404; approved in O'B Com., 9 Bush (Ky.) 333, 15 Am. Rej Ex parte Fenton, 77 Cal. 183, 19 Pac.

The discharge of a competent jury rendering verdict without defendant sent, express or implied, or without su cause, operates as an acquittal; Ex Ulrich, 42 Fed. 587; People v. War v. Hart, 149 Mass. 7, 20 N. E. 310; Com. v. Fitzpatrick, 121 Pa. 109, 15 Atl. 466, 1 L. R. A. 451, 6 Am. St. Rep. 757; State v. Kinghorn, 56 Wash. 131, 105 Pac. 234, 27 L. R. A. (N. S.) 136; People v. Taylor, 117 Mich. 583, 76 N. W. 158; Jones v. State, 97 Ala. 77, 12 South. 274, 38 Am. St. Rep. 150; State v. Frisble, 8 Okl. Cr. 406, 127 Pac. 1091.

The serious illness or insanity of the defendant, the illness, insanity, or death of the judge or a juror, engaged in the trial, the death of a juror's mother, misconduct of a juror, and upon judicial inquiry a finding that a juror is prejudiced, have been held to create a sufficient cause for the withdrawal of a juror and a postponement; State v. Richardson, 47 S. C. 166, 25 S. E. 220, 35 L. R. A. 238; Fails v. State, 60 Fla. 8, 53 South. 612, Ann. Cas. 1912B, 1146; State v. Hansford, 76 Kan. 678, 92 Pac. 551, 14 L. R. A. (N. S.) 548; People v. Sharp, 163 Mich. 79, 127 N. W. 758; Hedger v. State, 144 Wis. 279, 128 N. W. 80.

The absence of a witness for the state is not sufficient, unless by consent of the accused, and his consent is not established by the mere fact that, being without counsel, he does not object to a postponement; State v. Richardson, 47 S. C. 166, 25 S. E. 220, 35 L. R. A. 238; nor does a prisoner's failure to object to the discharge of the jury operate as a consent to it; Ex parte Glenn, 111 Fed. 257; but where no express consent was given and the accused allowed a new trial and made no objection to the discharge until after verdict therein, he will be considered as consenting and plea of former jeopardy is bad; Morgan v. State, 3 Sneed (Tenn.) 475. A jury may be discharged from rendering a verdict whenever the court is of the opinion that there is a manifest necessity for the act, or that the needs of public justice would otherwise be defeated, or is satisfied that the jurors are unable to reach an agreement, and the same will be no bar to a second trial; Dreyer v. Illinois, 187 U. S. 71, 23 Sup. Ct. 28, 47 L. Ed. 79; State v. Whitson, 111 N. C. 695, 16 S. E. 332; Com. v. Cody, 165 Mass. 133, 42 N. E. 575; State v. Barnes, 54 Wash, 493, 103 Pac, 792, 23 L. R. A. (N. 8.) 932; People v. Horn, 70 Cal. 17, 11 Pac. 470; there are statutory provisions to the same effect: N. Y. Code Cr. Pr. § 430; Ala. Acts 1907, § 7314; Kan. Cr. Code § 208; Ohio R. S. § 7313; and Idaho R. S. § 7905.

Trial of the accused with his consent by a jury of more or less members than is legally required amounts to a nullity and on a new trial the plea of former jeopardy is bad; Cancemi v. People, 18 N. Y. 129; State v. Hudkins, 35 W. Va. 250, 13 S. E. 367.

Where, by statute, the state, with the permission of the presiding judge, is allowed an appeal it may take the same after a verdict of acquittal, upon the ground that it is a matter of procedure and that jeopardy has not yet attached; State v. Lee, 65 Conn. 265, 30 Atl. 1110, 27 L. R. A. 498, 48 Am. St. Rep. 202.

The discharge of a competent jury without defendant's consent, express or implied, without sufficient cause, operates as an acquittal; People v. Gardner, 62 Mich. 307, 29 N. W. 19; People v. Curtis, 76 Cal. 57, 17 Pac. 941; Gunter v. State, 83 Ala. 96, 3 South. 600.

But where the indictment was good and the judgment erroneously arrested, the verdict was held to be a bar; State v. Norvell, 2 Yerg. (Tenn.) 24, 24 Am. Dec. 458.

After a jury has been impanelled and sworn in a criminal case, the trial cannot stop short of a verdict without the defendant's consent except for imperative reasons, such as the illness of a juror, the judge, or the defendant, the absence of a juror, or a disagreement. The absence of a witness for the state is not sufficient unless by consent of the accused, and his consent is not established by the mere fact that, being without counsel, he does not object to a postponement; State v. Richardson, 47 S. C. 166, 25 S. E. 220, 35 L. R. A. 238. The discharge of a jury on the last day of the term after they have for five days failed to agree upon a verdict, made against the objection of the defendant, bars another trial for the same offence; Com. v. Fitzpatrick, 121 Pa. 109, 15 Atl. 466, 1 L. R. A. 451, 6 Am. St. Rep. 757; contra, State v. Whitson, 111 N. C. 695, 16 S. E. 332; Ex parte Brown, 102 Ala. 179, 15 South, 602,

Where one of the jurors is discharged because of the death of his mother, and the court declared a mistrial, a plea of former jeopardy is not good; Stocks v. State, 91 Ga. 831, 18 S. E. 847.

An order of an examining magistrate, either committing or discharging the accused, is not a bar to a second hearing on the same charge; Ex parte Robinson, 108 Ala. 161, 18 South. 729.

Where a jury in a criminal case is discharged during the trial and the defendant subsequently put on trial before another jury, he is not twice put in jeopardy within the meaning of the fifth amendment to the United States Constitution; Simmons v. U. S., 142 U. S. 148, 12 Sup. Ct. 171, 35 L. Ed. 968; and in a later case it is said that a jury may be discharged from giving any verdict, whenever the court is of opinion that there is a manifest necessity for the act, or that the ends of public justice would otherwise be defeated, and may also order a trial before another jury, and a defendant is not thereby twice put in jeopardy; Thompson v. U. S., 155 U. S. 271, 15 Sup. Ct. 73, 39 L. Ed. 146. This case is quite in accord with an English decision made upon much consideration; L. R. 1 Q. B. 289; and Bishop, as the result of a very extended examination and citation of authorities, concludes: "But in England and Ireland, at present, and in most of our states, when a reasonable time for discussion and reflection has been given the jury, and they have in open court declared themselves unable to agree, and the judge is satisfied of the truth of the declaration, they may be discharged and the prisoner held to be tried anew. And this doctrine is applied as well in felony as in misdemeanor." Bish. Cr. L § 1033. See Jury.

It has been held that the accused was not in jeopardy, and may be again put upon trial, if the court had no jurisdiction of the cause; People v. Tyler, 7 Mich. 161, 74 Am. Dec. 703; or one of its members is related to the prisoner and under a statute the conviction is void; People v. Connor, 142 N. Y. 130, 36 N. E. 807; or if the indictment was so defective that no valid judgment could be rendered upon it; Black v. State, 36 Ga. 447, 91 Am. Dec. 772; Shoener v. Pennsylvania, 207 U. S. 188, 28 Sup. Ct. 110, 52 L. Ed. 163, affirming Com. v. Shoener, 216 Pa. 71, 64 Atl. 890; Com. v. Bakeman, 105 Mass. 53; or if by any overruling necessity the jury are discharged without a verdict; U. S. v. Perez, 9 Wheat. (U. S.) 579, 6 L. Ed. 165; State v. Hansford, 76 Kan. 678, 92 Pac. 551, 14 L. R. A. (N. S.) 548; State v. Wiseman, 68 N. C. 203; or if the term of the court comes to an end before the trial is finished; Wright v. State, 5 Ind. 290, 61 Am. Dec. 90; or the jury are discharged with the consent of the defendant, express or implied; Com. v. Stowell, 9 Metc. (Mass.) 572; or where the jury has been discharged, upon ascertainment that a prejudice exists within that body; In re Ascher, 130 Mich. 540, 90 N. W. 418, 57 L. R. A. 806; Com. v. McCormick, 130 Mass. 61, 39 Am. Dec. 423; or if after verdict against the accused it has been set aside on his motion for a new trial or on writ of error, or the judgment thereon has been arrested; People v. Casborus, 13 Johns. (N. Y.) 351; State v. McCord, 8 Kan. 232, 12 Am. Rep. 469, n.; Territory v. Hart, 7 Mont. 489, 17 Pac. 718; Gannon v. People, 127 Ill. 507, 21 N. E. 525, 11 Am. St. Rep. 147; State v. Brecht, 41 Minn. 50, 42 N. W. 602; State v. Whitson, 111 N. C. 695, 16 S. E. 332; People v. Schmidt, 64 Cal. 260, 30 Pac. 814; Lovett v. State, 33 Fla. 389, 14 South, 837, n.; or where there is any irregularity of verdict which will compel a reversal upon the application of the accused; Gunter v. State, 83 Ala. 96, 3 South. 600; People v. Carty, 77 Cal. 213, 19 Pac. 490; or where there was a variance and the verdict was set aside; Leath v. Com., 32 Gratt. (Va.) 876. See Cooley, Const. Lim., 4th ed. 404; Von Holst, Const. L. 260; Story, Const. § 1787.

Where a prisoner during his trial fled the jurisdiction, and the jury was discharged, he was never in jeopardy; People v. Higgins, 59 Cal. 357.

If the judgment of conviction be non the prisoner's own appeal, it is not U. S. v. Ball, 163 U. S. 662, 16 Sup. 6 1192, 41 L. Ed. 300. The constitution vision was never intended to, and pronstrued does not, cover the case of ment which has been annulled at the of the accused; Trono v. U. S., 199 U. 26 Sup. Ct. 121, 50 L. Ed. 292, 4 Apr. 773; In re Somers, 31 Nev. 531, 1 1073, 24 L. R. A. (N. S.) 504, 135 Am. 700; Waller v. State, 104 Ga. 505, 3 835; State v. Billings, 140 Mo. 205, 4 778; Com. v. Murphy, 174 Mass. 365

835; State v. Billings, 140 Mo. 205, 4 778; Com. v. Murphy, 174 Mass. 369 E. 860, 48 L. R. A. 393, 75 Am. St. Rep The constitutional guaranty is again trials for the same offence, and the d as to what constitutes identity of fences are not uniform. They are c in 1 N. Cr. L. § 1048, by Bishop, w down the following rules as sustained principle: "They are not the same w the two indictments are so diverse as clude the same evidence from main both; or when (2) the evidence to t and that to the second relate to d transactions, whatever be the words respective allegations; or when (3) dictment sets out an offence differing its elements from that in the other, both relate to one transaction,—a tion of which the exact limits are dif define; or when (4) some technical v precludes a conviction on the first indi but does not appear on the second. other side, (5) the offences are th whenever evidence adequate to the dictment will equally sustain the Moreover, (6) if the two indictments like offences and relate to one tran yet if one contain more of criminal than the other, but upon it there c a conviction for what was embraced other, the offences, though of d names, are, within our constitutions anty, the same." The author consid test to be, "whether if what is set ou second indictment had been proved ur first, there could have been a con when there could, the second cannot b id. § 1052.

Where the accused kept a gambling for a continuous period of time and dictments were found against him, of different periods of that time, it withat a conviction on one indictment bar to a prosecution on the other; Carom, 110 Ky. 273, 61 S. W. 275; contriv. Connors, 116 Mass. 35; People v. 131 N. Y. 571, 30 N. E. 47.

tained; when there could not, it ca

Where the greater offence includes er one, a verdict on an indictment lesser offence only is a bar to a tria indictment for the greater offence, a same principle applies if the jury in the first case when the second is called; Com. v. Arner, 149 Pa. 35, 24 Atl. 83.

There is some difference of opinion, however, in the application of this rule in homicide cases. If a prisoner is put on trial for murder and convicted of manslaughter and that verdict is set aside on defendant's application for a new trial or on his appeal, he cannot again be tried for murder; State v. Tweedy, 11 Ia. 350; Barnett v. People, 54 fli. 325; State v. Dunn, 41 La. Ann. 610, 6 South. 176; Huntington v. Superior Court, 5 Cal. App. 288, 90 Pac. 141. On this principle it has been held that if a prisoner has been indicted for murder, convicted of murder in the second degree, and afterwards granted a new trial on his own motion, he cannot, on the second trial, be convicted of a higher crime than murder in the second degree; State v. Belden, 33 Wis. 121, 14 Am. Rep. 748, n.; State v. Kattlemann, 35 Mo. 105; State v. Helm, 92 Ia. 540, 61 N. W. 246; Golding v. State, 31 Fla. 262, 12 South. 525; Sylvester v. State, 72 Ala. 201 (see People v. Gordon, 99 Cal. 227, 33 Pac. 901); contra, State v. Behimer, 20 Ohio St. 572; State v. McCord, 8 Kan. 232, 12 Am. Rep. 469, n; Trono v. U. S., 199 U. S. 521, 26 Sup. Ct. 121, 50 L. Ed. 292, 4 Ann. Cas. 773.

But when a conviction for the lesser crime is reversed upon the voluntary appeal of the accused, he thereby waives the acquittal upon the higher charge and, upon the conviction being set aside, is placed in the same position as if no trial had been had; Trono v. U. S., 199 U. S. 521, 26 Sup. Ct. 121, 50 L Ed. 292, 4 Ann. Cas. 773; State v. Ash, 68 Wash. 194, 122 Pac. 995, 39 L. R. A. (N. S.) 611; Com. v. Arnold, 83 Ky. 1, 4 Am. St. Rep. 114; State v. Kessler, 15 Utah 142, 49 Pac. 293, 62 Am. St. Rep. 911; Bohanan v. State, 18 Neb. 57, 24 N. W. 390, 53 Am. Rep. 791; State v. Behimer, 20 Ohio St. 572; State v. Bradley, 67 Vt. 465, 32 Atl. 238; State v. Gillis, 73 S. C. 318, 53 S. E. 487, 5 L. R. A. (N. S.) 571, 114 Am. St. Rep. 95, 6 Ann. Cas. 993; State v. Matthews, 142 N. C. 621, 55 S. E. 342; In re Somers, 31 Nev. 531, 103 Pac. 1073, 24 L. R. A. (N. S.) 504, 135 Am. St. Rep. 700. In a number of states there are constitutional or statutory provisions to the same effect: N. Y. Code Cr. Pr. sec. 464; Okla. Stat., 1893; Va. Acts, 1877-8; Kan. Cr. Code, secs. 273, 274; Ga. Civil Code, 1895; Ind. 2 R. S., 1876; Mo. Const., 1875, and possibly others.

The contrary line of decisions is based on the theory that the accused's request for a correction of the verdict is only for so much of it as convicts him of guilt and not for that which acquits him, the waiver being construed to extend to the precise portion as to which relief is sought; Com. v. Deitrick, 221 Pa. 7, 70 Atl. 275; West v. State, 55 Fla. 200. 46 South. 93; Texas, Code of Crim. Pr. 1895.

A conviction of felonious assault at a time when the victim is still alive is no bar to a subsequent prosecution for murder in case he dies; Com. v. Ramunno, 219 Pa. 204, 68 Atl. 184, 14 L. R. A. (N. S.) 209, 123 Am. St. Rep. 653, 12 Ann. Cas. 818; so in case of assault and battery with intent to kill; Com. v. Ramunno, 219 Pa. 204, 68 Atl. 184, 14 L. R. A. (N. S.) 209, 123 Am. St. Rep. 653, 12 Ann. Cas. 818; Diaz v. U. S., 223 U. S. 442, 32 Sup. Ct. 250, 56 L. Ed. 500, Ann. Cas. 1913C, 1138; Com. v. Roby, 12 Pick. (Mass.) 496.

A distinction has been made in some cases based upon the theory that the two lower grades of homicide do not bear the same relation to the offence charged. Manslaughter is clearly a different crime from that charged, and a conviction of that offence is therefore an acquittal of the graver one. But it has been said that the division of murder into two degrees does not make two offences and the same rule should not apply; People v. Keefer, 65 Cal. 232, 3 Pac. 818; State v. Bradley, 67 Vt. 465, 32 Atl. 238. Indeed the whole theory is that, when the defendant obtains a reversal, the conviction of the lesser crime is an acquittal of the graver one, so that another trial would be within the prohibition against putting the accused twice in jeopardy; State v. Behimer, 20 Ohio St. 572; State v. McCord, 8 Kan. 232, 12 Am. Rep. 469; Veatch v. State, 60 Ind. 291; Com. v. Arnold, 83 Ky. 1, 4 Am. St. Rep. 114; State v. Kring, 11 Mo. App. 92. But it is said that "the weight of authority is that securing a new trial only operates to set aside conviction and not the verdict so far as it operates as an acquittal;" 1 McClain, Cr. L. § 390; State v. Martin, 30 Wis. 216, 11 Am. Rep. 567; Jones v. State, 13 Tex. 168, 62 Am. Dec. 550. If it is an acquittal pro tanto nothing less than constitutional amendment can remove the effect of the general provision as to jeopardy; Kring v. Missouri, 107 U. S. 221, 2 Sup. Ct. 443, 27 L. Ed. 506. In some state constitutions, as those of Arkansas, Colorado, Georgia, and Missouri, the usual declaration securing a person from being put twice in jeopardy is modified by a further provision that if the jury disagree, or if the judgment be arrested after verdict or reversed for error in law, the accused shall not be deemed to have been in jeopardy.

Statutes which provide for a severer punishment when a criminal is convicted of a second or third offence are not in violation of the constitutional provision that no one shall be twice put in jeopardy for the same offence. The doctrine is that the subsequent punishment is not imposed for the first offence, but for persistence in crime; In re Ross, 2 Pick. (Mass.) 165; Sturtevant v. Com., 158 Mass. 598, 33 N. E. 648; Kelly v. People, 115 Ill. 583, 4 N. E. 644, 56 Am.

Rep. 184; Ingalls v. State, 48 Wis. 647, 4 N. W. 785; People v. Stanley, 47 Cal. 113, 17 Am. Rep. 401; Moore v. Missouri, 159 U. S. 673, 16 Sup. Ct. 179, 40 L. Ed. 301, affirming State v. Moore, 121 Mo. 514, 26 S. W. 345, 42 Am. St. Rep. 542; McDonald v. Massachusetts, 180 U. S. 311, 21 Sup. Ct. 389, 45 L. Ed. 542; People v. Coleman, 145 Cal. 609, 79 Pac. 283; so as to habitual criminals; State v. Le Pitre, 54 Wash. 166, 103 Pac. 27, 18 Ann. Cas. 922. See Habitual Criminal.

The question of former jeopardy cannot be passed upon by the supreme court on habeas corpus proceedings, but is a proper plea in bar, to be tried by the lower court; Steiner v. Nerton, 6 Wash. 23, 32 Pac. 1063.

Whether an offence is one against the laws of the state or against the United States, and whether the same act may be an offence against both, punishable by each, without infringing upon the constitutional guaranty against being twice put in jeopardy for the same offence, are questions which a state court of original jurisdiction is competent to decide in the first instance, and the proper time to invoke the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court of the United States is after the highest state court has passed upon the question adversely to the accused; New York v. Eno, 155 U. S. 89, 15 Sup. Ct. 30, 39 L. Ed. 80.

One acquitted by a military court of competent jurisdiction of the crime of homicide as defined by the penal code of the Philippine Islands cannot be tried a second time in a civil court of those islands for the same offence; Grafton v. U. S., 206 U. S. 333, 27 Sup. Ct. 749, 51 L. Ed. 1084, 11 Ann. Cas. 640.

Where two distinct offences grew out of the same transaction, a person is not twice in jeopardy by a sentence of an army court-martial imposing both fine and imprisonment, even if the penalty is fine or imprisonment in the alternative; Carter v. McClaughry, 183 U. S. 365, 22 Sup. Ct. 181, 46 L. Ed. 236.

See Non Bis in Idem; Autrefois Acquit; Jury.

The word is used in the act establishing and regulating the post office department (3 Story Laws 1992) in the sense of peril, danger; see U. S. v. Wilson, Baldwin 93, Fed. Cas. No. 16,730.

JERGUER. In English Law. An officer of the custom-house, who oversees the waiters. Techn. Dict.

JET. In French Law. Jettison (q. v.).

JETTISON, JETSAM. The casting out of a vessel, from necessity, a part of the lading. The thing so cast out.

It differs from flotsam in this, that in the latter the goods float, while in the former they sink, and remain under water. It differs also from ligan.

The jettison must be made for strause, and not for groundless timidity er v. Campania Navigacion La Fle Fed. 776, 14 C. C. A. 88; The Hugo, 403. It must be made in a case of ety, when the ship is in danger of peby the fury of a storm, or is laborizocks or shallows, or is closely pure pirates or enemies.

If the residue of the cargo be sa such sacrifice, the property saved is b pay a proportion of the loss. In ascer such average loss, the goods lost and are both to be valued at the price the have brought at the place of delivery ship's arrival there, freight, duties, a er charges being deducted; Marsh. In 3 Kent 185; Park. Ins. 123; Pothier, partie, n. 108; Boulay-Paty, Dr. Com. Pardessus, Dr. Com. n. 734; The Ni Ware 9, Fed. Cas. No. 10,267. The of a cargo jettisoned has a mariting on the vessel for the contributory shar the vessel on an adjustment of the a which may be enforced by a procee venue in the admiralty; Dupont de N & Co. v. Vance, 19 How. (U. S.) 162 Ed. 584; 2 Pars. Marit. Law, 373. bott; Kay, Shipping; Average; Adjus DEBELICT.

JEU DE BOURSE. In French L kind of gambling or speculation, whi sists of sales and purchases which bither of the parties to deliver the which are the object of the sale, and are settled by paying the difference value of the things sold between t of the sale and that appointed for of such things. 1 Pardessus, Droit 612.

JEWEL. A precious stone; a gemsonal ornament, consisting more or precious stones. An ornament interbe worn on the person.

The precise meaning of the word w cussed by Shaw, C. J., in Com. v. St 14 Pick. (Mass.) 370. He said: "Th tion is whether plain gold earrings and without any precious stone, pearl, o gem set in them, constitute jewelry." elry is not found in any English dict and is probably an Americanism. It fined in Webster to be jewels in gener defines 'jewel' to be 'an ornament w ladies,' 'a pendant in the ear.' It is fest, however, that these are put t of instances, and not intended as stri nitions. The term 'bijou,' which seem nearly analogous to it in the French guage, is defined to be 'a little work of ment, valuable (precieux) for its wo ship or by its material. Cette femme beaux bijoux.' Dict, de l'Acad. The on both sides cited passages of Scrip show, on the one side, that the tran of the common version included ornan

gold under the name of jewels, and on the which his apprentice worked with on jewelother, to show that by a distinct enumeration they excluded them. These instances do little more than show that, though the argument founded on them is at first view plausible, it would be entirely unsafe to rely upon it as a ground of legal construction. Nor can much more reliance be placed upon lexicographers; they are necessarily confined, in a considerable degree, to generalities, and cannot ordinarily go into minute and very accurate distinctions. On the best consideration we have been able to give the subject, we are satisfied that the legislature, in the use of the word 'jewelry,' intended to employ it as a generic term, of the largest import, including all articles under the Without attempting to define the term used in the statute, we are all of opinion that earrings and ear-knobs are included under the term jewelry, as it was used in the statute."

The meaning of the word is most frequently drawn into question in cases involving the construction of statutes limiting the liability of innkeepers for money, jewelry, or valuables not deposited in the safe. In such a case it was said, "The watch, and pen and pencil case are certainly valuables, and perhaps might be called jewels, but I think should be considered a part of the traveller's personal clothing or apparel. Gile v. Libby, 36 Barb. (N. Y.) 70; Ramaley v. Leland, 43 N. Y. 539, 3 Am. Rep. 728; Bernstein v. Sweeny, 33 N. Y. Super. Ct. 271; but under a similar statute specifying money, jewelry, and articles of gold and silver manufacture, a gold watch was held to be included as an article of gold manufacture; Stewart v. Parsons, 24 Wis. 241.

The meaning of the word is also frequently involved in cases arising under the tariff laws, which usually contain also the term "imitation jewelry." In such a case Lacombe, J., said: "The word jewelry is generally used as including articles of personal adornment, and the word further imports that the articles are of value in the community where they are used. . . . articles of value used for personal adornment in our civilization are, and for centuries have been, the precious metals gold and silver, to which, I think, platina is now generally added, and what are known as the precious stones, the diamond, sapphire, ruby, etc." "There is such a thing as imitation jewelry. . . If by a pleasing combination of appropriate materials, by an attractive arrangement of parts, an article is produced bearing a general resemblance to real jewelry ornaments, and suitable for similar uses, it may fairly be called imitation jewel-Robbins v. Robertson, 33 Fed. 709.

Where a jeweller claimed an exemption as tools of a debtor, of those which he himself ry, and it being found by the jury that the principal business was that of jeweller, both were held to be exempt. The court said that the circumstance that he was also engaged in the business of repairing watches did not make him a watchmaker in distinction to a jeweller; . . . "this is rather part of the employment of a jeweller, as exercised in this country, than a distinct and separate occupation by himself." Howard v. Williams, 2 Pick. (Mass.) 80.

Family jewels constitute one of the kinds of personal property for the unlawful detention of which the remedy at law is considered inadequate and equitable relief is sustained; Ad. Eq., 8th ed. 91.

They are also included in paraphernalia, and "even the jewels of a peeress have been held such;" 2 Bla. Com. 436.

Jewels of the wife, though given by her husband's will to her for life, were decreed to her absolutely, as her paraphernalia (q. v.), as against creditors who sought to have them sold to pay debts charged on real estate in aid of the testator's personal estate; 1 Bro. C. C. *576.

JEWS. The name given to the descendants of the patriarch Abraham.

The Jews were exceedingly oppressed during the middle ages throughout Christendom. In France, a Jew was a serf, and his person and goods belonged to the baron on whose demesnes he lived. could not change his domicile without permission of the baron, who could pursue him as a fugitive even on the domains of the king. Like an article of commerce, he might be lent or hired for a time, or mortgaged. If he became a Christian, his conversion was considered a larceny of the lord, and his property and goods were confiscated. They were allowed to utter their prayers only in a low voice and without chanting. They were not allowed to not allowed to appear in public without some badge or mark of Christians were forbidden to employ distinction. Jews of either sex as domestics, physicians, or sur-Admission to the bar was forbidden to geons. Jews. They were obliged to appear in court in person when they demanded justice for a wrong done them; and it was deemed disgraceful to an advocate to undertake the cause of a Jew. Jew appeared in court against a Christian, he was obliged to swear by the ten names of God and invoke a thousand imprecations against himself if he spoke not the truth. Sexual intercourse between a Christian man and a Jewess was deemed a crime against nature, and was punishable with death by burning. Quia est rem habere cum cane, rem habere a Christiano cum Judæa quæ CANIB reputatur; sic comburi debet; 1 Fournel, Hist. des Avocats, 108, 110. See Merlin, Répert. Juifs. Under the Roman law the Jews were the subject of severe restrictive laws and were classed in the enactments of the Christian emperors with apostates, heretics, and heathens; Mack. Rom. L. § 152. Marriage with them was forbidden; id. § 555; and a Jew could not be the tutor of a Christian; id. § 616.

In the fifth book of the Decretals it is provided that if a Jew have a servant that desireth to be a Christian, the Jew shall be compelled to sell him to a Christian for twelve-pence; that it shall not be lawful for them to take any Christian to be their servant; that they may repair their old synagogues, but not build new; that it shall not be lawful for them to open their doors or windows on Good Friworked with on watches as well as of those day; that their wives shall neither have Christian nurses, nor themselves be nurses to Christian women; that they wear different apparel from the Chistians, whereby they may be known, etc. See Ridley's View of the Civ. and Eccl. Law, part 1, chap. 5, sect. 7; Madox, Hist. of Exch.

In England, the Jew could have nothing that was his own, for whatever he acquired he acquired not for himself but for the king; Bract. f. 386 b. For about a century and a half they were important elements in English history, as their greatest privilege was to be allowed to do things that were for-bidden to Christians, notably, to take interest on money. This money-lending business required some governmental regulation, the king having a deep interest in it, for what was potentially owed to the Jew was owed to the king, and this matter could hardly be left to the English tribunals as they would do but scant justice to the Jew, and therefore but scant justice to the king who stood behind the Jew. In 1194, an edict was issued about the Jewish loans. In every town in which the Jews lived an office was established for the registration of their deeds. All loans and payments of loans were to be made under the eye of certain officers, some of them Christians, some of them Jews, and a copy or part of every deed was to be deposited in an ark or chest under official custody. A few years later a department of the royal exchequer—the exchequer of the Jews—was organized for the supervision of this business. At its head were a few "Justices of the Jews." This exchequer was, like the great exchequer, both a financial bureau and a judicial tribunal. It managed all the king's transactions-and there were many-with the Jews, saw to the exaction of tallages, reliefs, escheats, and forfeitures, and also acted judicially, not merely as between king and Jew, but also as between king and gentile, when, as often happened, the king had for some cause or another seized into his hand the debts due to one of his Jews by Christian debtors. Also it heard and determined all manner of disputes between Jew and Christian. 1 Pol. & M. 451.

This system could not work well; it oppressed both Jew and Englishman, and from the middle of the thirteenth century the king was compelled to rob them of their privileges, to forbid them to hold lands, and some efforts were made to induce them to give up their profession of usury, as was also done in France and elsewhere during the same period, but the fact is, that they were so heavily taxed by the sovereigns or governments of Christendom, and at the same time debarred from almost every other trade or occupation—partly by special decrees, partly by the vulgar prejudice—that they could not afford to prosecute ordinary vocations. In 1253 the Jews—no longer able to withstand the constant hardships to which they were subjected in person and property—begged of their own accord to be allowed to leave the country. Richard of Cornwall, however, persuaded them to stay. Ultimately, in 1290 A. D., they were driven from the shores of England, pursued by the execrations of the infuriated rabble, and leaving in the hands of the king all their property, debts, obligations, and mortgages, they emigrated for the most part to France and Germany.

Practically, the only disabilities to which Jews are now subject in England are, incompetence to fill certain high offices in the state (e, g), that of lord chancellor, lord chancellor of Ireland, lord lieutenant of Ireland, any office in the ecclesiastical court, or any position at the universities, colleges or schools), and inability to present to an ecclesiastical benefice attached to an office in her majesty's gift. 3 Steph. Com. 83. The present Chief Justice of England is a Jew.

be done. In this sense it is employed in the Y.) 245; Whitney v. Fairbanks, 54 For Civil Code of Louisiana, art. 2727: "To Nor can a cause of action in tort build by plot, or to work by the job," says contract be joined; Hannahs v. Han that article, "is to undertake a building for 19 N. Y. Supp. 883; nor a tort with a a certain stipulated price." See Dr du Contr. de Louage, liv. 3, t. 8, nn. 2 Pothier, Contr. de Louage, nn. 392, 33 DEVIATION.

JOBBER. In Commercial Law. Obuys and sells articles in bulk and them to dealers. Stock-jobbers are who buy and sell stocks for others term is also applied to those who spin stocks on their own account.

JOCALIA (Lat.). Jewels (q. v.) term was formerly more properly ap those ornaments which women, a married, call their own. When these are not suitable to her degree, they sets for the payment of debts; 1 Rol 911.

JOCKEY CLUB. An association sons for the purpose of regulating sters connected with horse racing.

ters connected with horse racing. Such a club is a private and not a public corporation, and may refuse t certain persons to enter horses for its Corrigan v. Jockey Club, 2 Misc. 512 Y. Supp. 394. A grant by the s such a corporation to make and bets and sell pools on the result races is not a grant of state aid, merely a removal of the statutory ition against the exercise of a right of at common law; id.

JOHN DOE. A fictitious name fre used to indicate a person for the pur argument or illustration, or in the co enforcing a fiction in the law. See MIDDLESEX; RICHARD ROE.

JOINDER. In Pleading. Union; rence.

Of Actions. In Civil Cases. The of two or more causes of action in the declaration.

At common law, to allow a joind form of actions must be such that the plea may be pleaded and the same ju given on all the counts of the declarate the counts being of the same natur the same judgment may be given on Saund. 177 c; Com. Dig. Actions (G) v. Sturgis, 16 N. Y. 548; Lamphier Co., 33 N. H. 495. And all the causes tion must have accrued to the plain against the defendant; Coussy v. 12 La. Ann. 44; in the same right, it may have been by different titles. a plaintiff cannot join a demand in 1 right to one as representative of person, or against the defendant hin one against him in a representative ty; 2 Viner, Abr. 62; Bacon, Abr. Ac General (C); Lucas v. R. Co., 21 Ba Y.) 245; Whitney v. Fairbanks, 54 Fe Nor can a cause of action in tort for money had and received; Teem v. Town; one party denies the fact pleaded by his of Ellijay, 89 Ga. 154, 15 S. E. 33.

In real actions there can be but one count. In mixed actions joinder occurs, though but infrequently; 8 Co. 876; Cro. Eliz. 290. In personal actions joinder is frequent.

By statutes, in many of the states, joinder of actions is allowed and required to a greater extent than at common law.

IN CRIMINAL CASES. Different offences of the same general nature may be joined in the same indictment; Johnson v. State, 29 Ala. 62, 65 Am. Dec. 383; Sarah v. State, 28 Miss. 267, 61 Am. Dec. 544; Bailey v. State, 4 Ohio St. 440; U. S. v. O'Callahan, 6 Mc-Lean 596, Fed. Cas. No. 15,910; People v. Hulbut, 4 Denio (N. Y.) 133, 47 Am. Dec. 244; Baker v. State, 4 Ark. 56; Benson v. Com., 158 Mass. 164, 33 N. E. 384; Burrell State, 25 Neb. 581, 41 N. W. 399; and it is no cause of arrest of judgment that they have been so joined; 29 E. L. & Eq. 536; State v. Fowler, 28 N. H. 184; Stephen v. State, 11 Ga. 225; U. S. v. Stetson, 3 W. & M. 164, Fed. Cas. No. 16,390; but not in the same count; Kenney v. State, 5 R. I. 385; State v. Bridges, 24 Mo. 353; Greenlow v State, 4 Humphr. (Tenn.) 25; see 9 L. R. A. 182, note; and an indictment may be quashed, in the discretion of the court, where the counts are joined in such manner as will confound the evidence; State v. Jackson, 17 Mo. 544, 59 Am. Dec. 281.

No court, it is said, will, however, permit a prisoner to be tried upon one indictment for two distinct and separate crimes; Steph. Cr. Proc. 154; State v. Fowler, 28 N. H. 184. See Withers v. Com., 5 S. & R. (Pa.) 59; Com. v. Hills, 10 Cush. (Mass.) 530.

Where, out of precaution to meet every aspect of a single offence, an indictment charges distinct crimes, and no attempt is made to convict accused of disconnected offences, the state will not be compelled to elect on which he shall be tried; Butler v. State, 91 Ala. 87, 9 South. 191. Three separate offences, but not more, against the provisions of U.S. R.S. § 5480, prohibiting the use of the mails with intent to defraud, when committed within the same six calendar months, may be joined, and when so joined there is to be a single sentence for all, but this does not prevent other indictments for other offences under the same statute committed within the same six calendar months; In re Henry, 123 U. S. 372, 8 Sup. Ct. 142, 31 L. Ed. 174.

In Demurrer. The answer made to a demurrer. Co. Litt. 71 b. The act of making such answer is merely a matter of form, but must be made within a reasonable time; Thompson v. Goudelock, 10 Rich. (S. C.) 49.

Of issue. The act by which the parties to a cause arrive at that stage of it in their pleadings, that one asserts a fact to be so, antagonist, who has tendered the issue thus. "And this he prays may be inquired of by the country," or, "and of this he puts himself upon the country," the party denying the fact may immediately subjoin, "And the said A B does the like;" when the issue is said to be joined.

Of Parties. In Civil Cases. In Equity. All parties materially interested in the subject of a suit in equity should be made parties, however numerous; Mitf. Eq. Plead. 144; Mechanics' Bank v. Seton, 1 Pet. (U. S.) 299, 7 L. Ed. 152; Northern Indiana R. Co. v. R. Co., 5 McLean 444, Fed. Cas. No. 10,321; Hussey v. Dole, 24 Me. 20; Crocker v. Higgins, 7 Conn. 342; Oliver v. Palmer, 11 Gill & J. (Md) 428; Vanhorn v. Duckworth. 42 N. C. 261; either as plaintiffs or defendants, so that there may be a complete decree which shall bind them all; Christian v. R. Co., 133 U. S. 233, 10 Sup. Ct. 260, 33 L. Ed. 589; Gregory v. Stetson, 133 U. S. 579, 10 Sup. Ct. 422, 33 L. Ed. 792. But, where the parties are very numerous, and sue in the same right, a portion may in some cases appear for all in the same situation; 16 Ves. 321; New-London Bank v. Lee, 11 Conn. 112, 27 Am. Dec. 713; Dennis v. Kennedy, 19 Barb. (N. Y.) 517. See Hills v. Putnam, 152 Mass. 123, 25 N. E. 40.

Mere possible or contingent interest does not render its possessor a necessary party; Kerr v. Watts, 6 Wheat. (U. S.) 550, 5 L. Ed. 328; Townsend v. Auger, 3 Conn. 354; Reid v. Vanderheyden, 5 Cow. (N. Y.) 719. Contingent remaindermen are not necessary parties to a suit to set aside the deed creating the remainder; Temple v. Scott, 143 Ill. 290, 32 N. E. 366; nor a residuary legatee to a bill filed by a legatee or creditor to assert a claim against the estate of a testator; Melick v. Melick, 17 N. J. Eq. 156.

There need be no connection but community of interest; Brooks v. Harrison, 2 Ala. 209. It is not indispensable that all the parties to a suit should have an interest in all the matters contained in the suit, but it will be sufficient if each party has an interest in same material matters in the suit, and they are connected with the others; Brown v. Safe Deposit Co., 128 U. S. 403, 9 Sup. Ct. 127, 32 L. Ed. 468.

A court of equity, even after final hearing on the merits and on appeal to the court of last resort, will compel the joinder of necessary parties; O'Fallon v. Clopton, 89 Mo. 284, 1 S. W. 302.

PLAINTIFFS. All persons having a unity of interest in the subject-matter; Alston v. Jones, 3 Barb. Ch. (N. Y.) 397; Brooks v. Harrison, 2 Ala. 209; and in the object to be attained; Gartside v. Gartside, 113 Mo. 348, 20 S. W. 669; Bosher v. Land Co., 89 Va. 455, 16 S. E. 360, 37 Am. St. Rep. 879; who and the other denies it. For example, when are entitled to relief; Wilkins v. Judge, 14

Bouv .- 107

Ala. 135; may join as plaintiffs. The rights; be joined in suits brought for the par claimed must not arise under different contracts; Yeaton v. Lenox, 8 Pet. (U. S.) 123, 8 L. Ed. 889; Finley v. Harrison, 5 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 154; or be vested in the same person in different capacities; May v. Smith, 45 N. C. 196, 59 Am. Dec. 594. And see Edmeston v. Lyde, 1 Paige (N. Y.) 637, 19 Am. Dec. 454; Ingraham v. Dunnell, 5 Metc. (Mass.) 118. Persons representing antagonistic interests cannot be joined as complainants; Smith v. Smith, 102 Ala. 516, 14 South.

Assignor and assignee. The assignor of a contract for the sale of lands should be joined in a suit by the assignee for specific performance; Voorhees v. De Myer, 3 Sandf. Ch. (N. Y.) 614; and the assignor of part of his interest in a patent in a suit by assignee for violation; Morgan v. Tipton, 3 McLean 350, Fed. Cas. No. 9,809.

But he should not be joined where he has parted with all his legal and beneficial interest; Miller v. Whittier, 32 Me. 203; Moor v. Veazie, 32 Me. 343, 52 Am. Dec. 655; Leacock v. Hall, 13 B. Monr. (Ky.) 210. The assignee of a mere chose in action may sue in his own name, in equity; Barribeau v. Brant, 17 How. (U. S.) 43, 15 L. Ed. 34; Cottrell v. Giltner, 5 Wis. 270.

Corporations. Two or more may join if their interest is joint; 8 Ves. 706. A corporation may join with its individual members to establish an exemption on their behalf; 3 Anstr. 738. Corporations themselves are indispensable parties to a bill which affects their corporate rights or liabilities; Swan Land & Cattle Co. v. Frank, 148 U. S. 603, 13 Sup. Ct. 691, 37 L. Ed. 577.

Husband and wife must join where the husband asserts an interest in behalf of his wife; Schuyler v. Hoyle, 5 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 196; as, for a legacy; Schuyler v. Hoyle, 5 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 196; or for property devised or descended to her during coverture; Griffith v. Coleman, 5 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 600; or where he applies for an injunction to restrain a suit at law against both, affecting her interest; Green v. Hicks, 1 Barb. Ch. (N. Y.) 313. Where a widow sues to set aside a deed executed by herself and husband on the ground that it was procured by fraud, the administrator of the husband is not a necessary party; Keenan v. Keenan, 58 Hun 605, 12 N. Y. Supp. 747.

Under modern statutes for the enlargement of the rights and remedies of married women, it is in many cases unnecessary to join the husband in suits to which he was See MARRIED formerly a necessary party. WOMAN.

Idiots and lunatics may be joined or not in bills by their committees, at the election of the committee, to set aside acts done by them whilst under imbecility; Ortley v. Messere, 7 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 139. They must of real estate; Gorham v. Gorham, 3 Ch. (N. Y.) 24. In England it seems the custom to join; 2 Vern. 678. See Eq. Pl. § 64; Story, Eq. Jur. § 1336.

Infants. Several may join in the bill for an account of the rents and I of their estate; Townshend v. Dunc Bland. (Md.) 68.

Trustee and cestui que trust should, held, join in a bill to recover the trust Jennings' Ex'rs v. Davis, 5 Dana (Ky.) but need not to foreclose a mortgage; of Pugh v. Currie, 5 Ala. 447; nor to re one made by the trustee; Boyden v. ridge, 2 Gray (Mass.) 190. And see Sc v. Ellingwood, 3 Edw. Ch. (N. Y.) Hitchcock's Heirs v. Bank, 7 Ala. 386

An appeal may be prosecuted by one to the record, as against another, w joining other parties who are in no interested in the controversy; Postal graph Cable Co. v. Vane, 80 Fed. 961, C. A. 342.

DEFENDANTS. In general, all perso terested in the subject-matter of a sui cannot be made plaintiffs should be defendants. They may claim under ent rights if they possess an interes tering in the point in issue; Fellows v lows, 4 Cow. (N. Y.) 682, 15 Am. Dec in order to obtain the rescission of a tract of sale, all of the parties interes the property involved must be brought the court; Constant v. Lehman, 52 Kar 34 Pac. 745.

Bills for discovery need not conta the parties interested as defendants; cot v. Smyth, 1 McCord, Ch. (S. C.) and a person may be joined merely fendant in such bill; Bank of Mob Huggins, 3 Ala. 214. A person should be joined as a party to such bill who be called as a witness on trial; Ya Monroe, 13 Ill. 212.

Assignor and assignee. An assignor retains even the slightest interest i subject-matter must be made a party; v. Crane, 2 N. J. Eq. 347; Ward v Bokkelen, 2 Paige (N. Y.) 289; Monta Lobdell, 11 Cush. (Mass.) 111; as a cov tee in a suit by a remote assignee; Wiv. Clay, 1 Dana (Ky.) 585; or an as in insolvency, who must be made a p Movan v. Hays, 1 Johns. Ch. (N. Y. or the original plaintiff in a creditor by the assignee of a judgment; Coo Gunn, 4 B. Monr. (Ky.) 594.

A fraudulent assignee need not be in a bill by a creditor to obtain satisf out of a fund so transferred; Edmes Lyde, 1 Paige (N. Y.) 637, 19 Am. De The assignee of a judgment must be a in a suit to stay proceedings; Mumfe Sprague, 11 Paige (N. Y.) 438.

Corporations and associations. A co

tion charged with a duty should be joined | with the trustees it has appointed, in a suit for a breach; Tibballs v. Bidwell, 1 Gray (Mass.) 399; Lawyer v. Cipperly, 7 Paige (N. Y.) 281. Where the legal title is in part of the members of an association, no others need be joined; Martin v. Dryden, 1 Gilm. (Ill.) 187. The directors of a corporation may be included as parties defendant in a bill against the corporation for infringement of a trade-mark; Armstrong v. Soap Works, 53 Fed. 124. But see Infringement. When discovery is sought, the officer from whom the information is to be obtained should be made a co-defendant with the corporation; Virginia & A. Min. & Mfg. Co. v. Hale & Co., 93 Ala. 542, 9 South. 256.

Officers and agents may be made parties merely for discovery; Many v. Iron Co., 9 Paige (N. Y.) 188.

Creditors who have repudiated an assignment and pursued their remedy at law are properly made parties to a bill brought by the others against the trustee for an account and the enforcement of the trust; Geisse v. Beall, 3 Wis. 367. So, when judgments are impeached and sought to be set aside for fraud, the plaintiffs therein are indispensable parties to the bill; May v. Barnard, 20 Ala. 200. To a bill brought against an assignee by a creditor claiming the final balance, the preferred creditors need not be made parties; Page v. Olcott, 28 Vt. 465. See, also, Secombe v. Steele, 20 How. (U. S.) 94, 15 L Ed. 833; Stevenson v. Austin, 3 Metc. (Mass.) 474; Smith v. Wyckoff, 11 Paige (N. Y.) 49.

Debtors must in some cases be joined with the executor in a suit by a creditor; though not ordinarily; Story, Eq. Pl. § 227; Long v. Majestre, 1 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 305. Where there are several debtors, all must be joined; Trescot v. Smyth, 1 McCord, Ch. (S. C.) 301; unless utterly irresponsible; Williams v. Hubbard, 1 Mich. 446. Judgment debtors must in some cases be joined in suits between the creditor and assignees or mortgagees; Scudder v. Voorhis, 5 Sandf. (N. Y.) 271. In an action by judgment creditors for the appointment of a receiver, to take charge of property belonging to their debtor, the payees of unpaid purchase-money notes given for such property are necessary parties; Wheeler v. Biggs (Miss.) 12 South. 596.

Executors and administrators should be made parties to a bill to dissolve a partnership; Burchard v. Boyce, 21 Ga. 6; to a bill against heirs to discover assets; Harrow v. Farrow's Heirs, 7 B. Monr. (Ky.) 127, 45 Am. Dec. 60; to a bill by creditors to subject lands fraudulently conveyed by the testator, their debtor, to the satisfaction of their debt; Coates v. Day, 9 Mo. 304. See, also, Drummond v. Hardaway, 21 Ga. 433; Mayo v. Tomkies, 6 Munf. (Va.) 520.

Foreclosure suits. All persons having an interest, legal or equitable, existing at the need not if without the jurisdiction; Lind.

commencement of a suit to foreclose mortgaged premises, must be made parties, or they will not be bound; Tiedem. Eq. Jur. § 441; Ensworth v. Lambert, 4 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 605; Huggins v. Hall, 10 Ala. 283; Matcalm v. Smith, 6 McLean, 416, Fed. Cas. No. 9,272; Hall v. Hall, 11 Tex. 526; including the mortgagor within a year after the sale of his interest by the sheriff; Hallock v. Smith, 4 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 649; and his heirs and personal representative after his death; Worthington v. Lee, 2 Bland (Md.) 684. But bond-holders for whose benefit a mortgage has been made by a corporation to a trustee need not be made parties; Shaw v. R. Co., 5 Gray (Mass.) 162; Jones, Corp. Bonds & Mortg. § 398. A person claiming adversely to mortgagor and mortgagee cannot be made a defendant to such suit; Banks v. Walker, 3 Barb. Ch. (N. Y.) 438.

Heirs, distributees, and devisees. All the heirs should be made parties to a bill respecting the real estate of the testator; Mersereau v. Ryerss, 3 N. Y. 261; Kennedy's Heirs & Ex'rs v. Kennedy's Heirs, 2 Ala. 571; Duncan v. Wickliffe, 4 Scam. (Ill.) 452; although the testator was one of several mortgagees of the vendee, and the bill be brought to enforce the vendor's lien; Thornton v. Knox's Ex'r, 6 B. Monr. (Ky.) 74; but need not to a bill affecting personalty; Galphin v. McKinney, 1 McCord, Ch. (S. C.) Where, in a suit to set aside a deed for fraud, one of the heirs did not join as plaintiff, he may be made a party defendant, even if he should elect to affirm the deed; Billings v. Mann, 156 Mass. 203, 30 N. E. 1136. All the devisees are necessary parties to a bill to set aside the will; Vancleave v. Beam, 2 Dana (Ky.) 155; or to enjoin executors from selling lands belonging to the testator's estate; Lee v. Marshall's Devisees, 2 T. B. Monr. (Ky.) 30. All the distributees are necessary parties to a bill for distribution; Hawkins' Adm'r v. Craig, 1 B. Monr. (Ky.) 27; to a bill by the widow of the intestate against the administrator to recover her share of the estate; Chinn v. Caldwell, 4 Bibb (Ky.) 543; and to a bill against an administrator to charge the estate with an annual payment to preserve the residue; Cabeen v. Gordon, 1 Hill, Ch. (S. C.) 51. See, also, Smith v. Wyckoff, 11 Paige (N. Y.) 49; Slaughter v. Froman, 2 T. B. Monr. (Ky.) 95. A bill cannot be filed against the heirs and devisees jointly for satisfaction of a debt of the deceased; Schermerhorn v. Barhydt, 9 Paige (N. Y.) 28.

Idiots and lunatics should be joined with their committees when their interests conflict and must be settled in the suit; Brasher's Ex'rs v. Van Cortlandt, 2 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 242; Teal v. Woodworth, 3 Paige (N. Y.) 470.

Partners must, in general, be all joined in a bill for dissolution of the partnership, but Part. 460; Wickliffe v. Eve, 17 How. (U. S.) 468, 15 L. Ed. 163; Towle v. Pierce, 12 Metc. (Mass.) 329, 46 Am. Dec. 679.

Assignees of insolvent partners must be joined; Pearce v. Norton, 10 Me. 255.

Dormant partners need not be joined when not known in the transaction on which the bill is founded; Goble v. Gale, 7 Blackf. (Ind.) 218, 41 Am. Dec. 219.

Principal and agent should be joined if there be a charge of fraud in which the agent participated; Veazie v. Williams, 3 Sto. 611, Fed. Cas. No. 16,907; and the agent should be joined where he binds himself individually; McAlexander v. Lee, 3 A. K. Marsh. (Ky.) 484.

Trustee and cestui que trust. If a trustee has parted with the trust fund, the cestui que trust may proceed against the trustee alone to compel satisfaction, or the fraudulent assignee may be joined with him at the election of the complainant; Bailey v. Inglee, 2 Paige (N. Y.) 278. Where a claimant against the estate of a deceased person seeks to follow the assets into the hands of a trustee, it is not necessary to make the beneficiaries parties; 45 Ch. Div. 444.

On a proceeding in equity for the appointment of trustees under a mortgage, where two of the three trustees have died, and there is no provision in the mortgage for filling the vacancies, the mortgagor and the surviving trustee are necessary parties; In re Inhabitants of Anson, 85 Me. 79, 26 Atl. 996.

The trustees under a settlement of real estate, against whom a trust or power given to them to sell the estate is to be enforced, are necessary parties to a suit for that purpose; 39 E. L. & Eq. 76. See, Phipps v. Tarpley, 24 Miss. 597; McRea v. Bank, 19 How. (U. S.) 376, 15 L. Ed. 688; Jamison v. Chesnut, 8 Md. 34.

AT Law. In actions ex contractu. All who have a joint legal interest or are jointly entitled must join in an action on a contract, even though it be in terms several, or be entered into by one in behalf of all; 1 Saund. 153; Archb. Civ. Pl. 58; Sweigart v. Berk, 8 S. & R. (Pa.) 308; Allen v. Dunn, 15 Me. 295, 33 Am. Dec. 614; Loomis v. Brown, 16 Barb. (N. Y.) 325; as, where the consideration moves from several jointly; 2 Wms. Saund. 116 a; 4 M. & W. 295; or was taken from a joint fund; Ludlow v. Hurd, 19 Johns. (N. Y.) 218.

Some contracts may be considered as either joint or several, and in such case all may join, or each may sue separately; but part cannot join leaving the others to sue separately.

In an action for a breach of a joint contract made by several, all the contracting parties should be made defendants; 1 Saund. 158, n.; even though one or more be bankrupt or insolvent; 2 Maule & S. 33; but see 1 Wils. 89; or an infant; but not if the contract be utterly void as to him; 3 T 307; Hartness v. Thompson, 5 Johns Y.) 160, Jackson v. Woods, id. 280; Ward v. Newhall, 1 Pick. (Mass.) 500.

On a joint and several contract, each be sued separately, or all together; Iv. Bank, 1 Pet. (U. S.) 73, 7 L. Ed. 47; Tine v. Crane, 1 Wend. (N. Y.) 524.

A corporation is a necessary party suit brought by its stockholders to er its rights; Porter v. Sabin, 149 U. S. 4' Sup. Ct. 1008, 37 L. Ed. 815.

Executors and administrators must their actions in the joint names of Crosw. Ex. & Adm. § 636; 5 Scott, N. R. 1 Saund. 291 g; Cole v. Smalley, 25 N. 374; even though some are infants; B Part. 104.

All the executors who have proved will are to be joined as defendants action on the testator's contract; 1 C&R. 74. But an executor de son tort to be joined with the rightful executor, the executors are not to be joined with persons who were joint contractors wit deceased; Colson v. Thompson, 2 Wheat S.) 344, 4 L. Ed. 253; Hench v. Mett S. & R. (Pa.) 272; Humphreys v. Cracal. 173.

Administrators are to be joined, like ecutors; Com. Dig. Administrators (E Foreign executors and administrators not recognized as such, in general; E shire v. Dubose, 55 N. C. 276; Kirkpi v. Taylor, 10 Rich. (S. C.) 393; Slau Chenowith, 7 Ind. 211.

Husband and wife must join to re rent due the wife before coverture of lease while sole; Co. Litt. 55 b; Cro. 700; on the lease by both of lands in she has a life estate, where the cov runs to both; Jacques v. Short, 20 Barl Y.) 269; but on a covenant general both, the husband may sue alone; 1 B. 443; in all actions in implied promis the wife acting in autre droit; Com. Baron & F. (V); 9 M. & W. 694; Mi v. Wright, 4 Tex. 283; as to suit on a to both, see Steward v. Chance, 3 N. 827; on a contract running with las which they are joint assignees; Cro. 503; in general, to recover any of the choses in action where the cause of a would survive to her; 1 Chitty, Pl. 17; & S. 180; Morse v. Earl, 13 Wend. (A 271; Newell v. Newton, 10 Pick. (M 270; Fuller v. R. Co., 21 Conn. 557; Bo v. Ebbing, 24 Miss. 245.

They may join at the husband's elin suit on a covenant to repair, when become joint grantees of a reversion; Jac. 399; to recover the value of the choses in action; Edwards v. Sherids Conn. 165; 2 M. & S. 396, n.; in ca joinder the action survives to her; 6 W. 426; in case of an express promise wife, or to both where she is the meritorious ! cause of action; Cro. Jac. 77, 205; Smith v. Johnson, 5 Harring. (Del.) 57; Milton v. Haden, 32 Ala. 30, 70 Am. Dec. 523.

They must, in general, be joined in actions on contracts entered into by the wife dum sola; 2 Term. 480; Angel v. Felton, 8 Johns. (N. Y.) 149; Williams v. Coward, 1 Grant, Cas. (Pa.) 21; Smith v. Johnson, 5 Harring. (Del.) 57; where the cause of action accrues against the wife in autre droit; Cro. Car. They may be joined when the husband promises anew to pay the debt of the wife contracted dum sola; 7 Term 349; for rent or breaches of covenant on a joint lease to both for the wife's benefit; Broom, Part. 178. In an action on a contract against a husband and wife, a contract signed by the husband alone is insufficient to support a judgment against the wife; Murdock v. Wasson, 158 Pa. 295, 27 Atl. 944.

Joint tenants must join in debt or an avowry for rent; Broom, Part. 24; but one of several may make a separate demise, thus severing the tenancy; Bacon, Abr. Joint Ten. (H 2); 3 Campb. 190; and one may maintain ejectment against his cotenants; Woodf. Landl. & T: 789.

Partners must all join in suing third parties on partnership transactions; 2 Campb. 302; De Groot v. Darby, 7 Rich. (S. C.) 118; including only those who were such at the time the cause of action accrued; Broom, Part. 65; although one or more may have become insolvent; 2 Cr. & M. 318; but not joining the personal representative of a deceased partner; 9 B. & C. 538. See Campbell v. Pence, 118 Ind. 313; with a limitation to the actual parties to the instrument in case of specialties; 6 M. & S. 75; and including dormant partners or not, at the election of the ostensible partners; 4 B. & Ald. 437. See Clark v. Miller, 4 Wend. (N. Y.) 628; Smith v. Ayrault, 71 Mich. 475, 39 N. W. 724, 1 L. R. A. 311. A partner who has sold his interest to another partner is not a necessary party to an action for an accounting of the partnership affairs; Kilbourm v. Sunderland, 130 U. S. 505, 9 Sup. Ct. 594, 32 L. Ed. 1005. Where one partner contracts in his name for the firm, he may sue alone, or all may join; 4 B. & Ad. 815; but alone if he was evidently dealt with as the sole party in interest; 1 M. & S. 249. Partners cannot sue or be sued in their copartnership name, but the individual names of its members must be set out; Lewis v. Cline (Miss.) 5 South. 112; Dunham v. Schindler, 17 Or. 256, 20 Pac. 326.

The surviving partners; 1 B. & Ald. 29. 522; Voorhis v. Baxter, 18 Barb. (N. Y.) 592; must all be joined as defendants in suits on partnership contracts; 1 East 30. And third parties are not bound to know selves; 4 M. & S. 482; 8 M. & W. 703, 710. A partner need not be joined if he was not known as such at the time of making the contract and there was no indication of his being a partner; Lind. Part. 281; Hurlbut v. Post, 1 Bosw. (N. Y.) 28; Hicks v. Maness, 19 Ark. 701. And see PARTNERSHIP.

Tenants in common should join in an action on any joint contract; Comyns, Dig. Abatement (E 10).

Trustees must all join in bringing an action; Brinckerhoff v. Wemple, 1 Wend. (N. Y.) 470.

In actions ex delicto. Joint owners must, in general, join in an action for a tortious injury to their property; 1 Saund. 291 g; Pickering v. Pickering, 11 N. H. 141; in trover, for its conversion; 5 East 407; in replevin, to get possession; Smoot v. Wathen, 8 Mo. 522; McArthur v. Lane, 15 Me. 245; or in detinue, for its detention, or for injury to land; 3 Bingh. 455; Van Deusen v. Young, 29 Barb. (N. Y.) 9.

The grantor and grantee of land cannot join in a counter-claim for continuing trespasses on the land sold, since their rights of action are not joint; Steinke v. Bentley. 6 Ind. App. 663, 34 N. E. 97.

For injury to the person, plaintiffs cannot, in general, join; 2 Wms. Saund. 117 a; Cro. Car. 512; Cro. Eliz. 472.

Partners may join for slanders; Lind. Part. 278; 8 C. & P. 708; for false representations; Patten v. Gurney, 17 Mass. 182, 9 Am. Dec. 141; injuring the partnership. The joinder or non-joinder of a dormant partner constitutes no objection to the maintenance of a suit in any manner whatever; Smith v. Ayrault, 71 Mich. 475, 39 N. W. 724, 1 L. R. A. 311.

In a suit against joint contractors, one of whom is dead, the survivors only should be made parties, the administrator of the deceased partner not being necessary; Stevens v. Catlin, 44 Ill. App. 114.

An action for the infringement of letters patent may be brought jointly by all the parties who at the time of the infringement were the holders of the title; Whittemore v. Cutter, 1 Gall. 429, Fed. Cas. No. 17,600; Stein v. Goddard, 1 McAll. 82, Fed. Cas. No. 13,353.

In cases where several join in the commission of a tort, they may be joined in an action as defendants; 6 Taunt. 29; Hyslop v. Clarke, 14 Johns. (N. Y.) 462; as, in trover; 1 M. & S. 588; in trespass; 2 Wms. 117 a; for libel; Broom, Part. 249,-not for slander; Cro. Jac. 647; in trespass; 1 C. & M. 96.

Husband and wife must join in action for direct damages resulting from personal injury to the wife; Schoul. Husb. & W. 167; 3 Bla. Com. 140; Wright v. Leclaire, 4 G. Greene (Ia.) 420; see Fournet v. S. S. Co., 43 the arrangements of partners amongst them- | La. Ann. 1202, 11 South. 541; in detinue, for the property which was the wife's before for a joint injury in relation to the marriage; Armstrong v. Simonton's Adm'r, 6 N. C. 351; Robinson v. Woodford, 37 W. Va. 377, 16 S. E. 602; for injury to the wife's property before marriage; Hair v. Melvin, 47 N. C. 59; where the right of action accrues to the wife in autre droit; Com. Dig. Baron & F. (V); 2 B. & P. 407; and, generally, in all cases where the cause of action by law survives to the wife; 4 B. & Ald. 523; Newell v. Newton, 10 Pick. (Mass.) 470; Starbird v. Inhabitants of Frankfort, 35 Me. 89.

They may join for slander of the wife, if the words spoken are actionable per se, for the direct injury; 4 M. & W. 5; Williams v. Holdredge, 22 Barb. (N. Y.) 396; Johnson v. Dicken, 25 Mo. 580; Harper v. Pinkston, 112 N. C. 293, 17 S. E. 161 (but she may maintain an action in her own name; Pavlovski v. Thornton, 89 Ga. 829, 15 S. E. 822) and in ejectment for lands of the wife they may join; Broom, Part. 235; 1 Bulstr. 21. An action for permanent injury to community property must be brought by husband and wife jointly; Parke v. City of Seattle, 8 Wash. 78, 35 Pac. 594.

They must be joined as defendants for torts committed by the wife before marriage; Co. Litt. 351 b; Hawk v. Harman, 5 Binn. (Pa.) 43; or during coverture; Wagener v. Bill, 19 Barb. (N. Y.) 321; Henderson v. Wendler, 39 S. C. 555, 17 S. E. 851; or for libel or slander uttered by her; 5 C. & P. 484; and in an action for waste by the wife, before marriage, as administratrix; 2 Wms. Ex. 1441.

They may be joined in trespass for their joint act; 3 B. & Ald. 687; Roadcap v. Sipe, 6 Gratt. (Va.) 213.

Joint tenants and parceners, during the continuance of the joint estate, must join in all actions ex delicto relative thereto, as in trespass to their land, and in trover or replevin for their goods; 2 Bla. Com. 182, 188; Bacon, Abr. Joint Ten. (K); Shaver v. Brainard, 29 Barb. (N. Y.) 29. Joint tenants may join in an action for slander of the title to their estate; 3 Bingh. 455. They should be sued jointly, in trespass, trover, or case, for anything respecting the land held in common; Com. Dig. Abatement (F 6); 1 Wms. Saund. 291 e. Joint tenants should join in an avowry or cognizance for rent; 3 Salk. 207; or for taking cattle damage feasant; Bacon, Abr. Joint Ten. (K); or one joint tenant should avow in his own right, and as bailiff to the other; 3 Salk. 207. But a tenant in common cannot avow the taking of the cattle of a stranger upon the land damage feasant, without making himself bailiff or servant to his co-tenant; 2 H. Bla. 388; Bacon, Abr. Replevin (K).

Master and servant, where co-trespassers, should be joined though they be not equally culpable; 5 B. & C. 559. Partners may join plies that though each person subject property; 3 C. & P. 196. They may ed as defendants where property is by one of the firm for its benefit; 1 93; and where the firm makes fra representations as to the credit of person, whereby the firm gets benefi ten v. Gurney, 17 Mass. 182, 9 Am. D In an action against a corporation for the corporation and its servants by act the injury was done may be join defendants; Hussey v. R. Co., 98 N.

3 S. E. 923, 2 Am. St. Rep. 312.

Tenants in common must join for pass upon the lands held in common; ton § 315; Sherman v. Ballow, 8 Co Y.) 304; Rangely v. Spring, 28 Me. for taking away their common pr Cro. Eliz. 143; or for detaining it; I v. Wise, 1 Hill (N. Y.) 234, 37 Ar 309; or for a nuisance to their estat lins v. Ferris, 14 Johns. (N. Y.) 246 IN CRIMINAL CASES. Two or more who have committed a crime may be indicted therefor; In re Curran, 7 (Va.) 619; U. S. v. O'Callahan, 6 1 596, Fed. Cas. No. 15,910. Bloom

State, 8 Blackf. (Ind.) 205; only wh offence is such that it may be con by two jointly; State v. Roulstone, 3

(Tenn.) 107; and not where there a tinct and different offences; State v

97 N. C. 474, 1 S. E. 683. A princip accessory may be joined in one indicated

Com. v. Devine, 155 Mass. 224, 29 N. State v. Lang, 65 N. H. 284, 23 Atl. 43 They may have a separate trial, he in the discretion of the court; Ma People, 15 Ill. 536; People v. Stock Park. Cr. (N. Y.) 424; In re Cu: Gratt. (Va.) 619; Com. v. Hills, 10 (Mass.) 530; State v. McLendon, 5 (S. C.) 85; Hawkins v. State, 9 A 44 Am. Dec. 431; and in some state matter of right; People v. McIntyre,

Cr. (N. Y.) 371. See Dicey, Parties; Steph. Pl.; P. JOINT TORT FEASORS.

As to the effect of Misjoinder an joinder, and how and when advantage be taken of either, see those titles.

JOINT. Joined together; united; by two or more. The term is used press a common property interest of or a common liability incurred by more persons; as applied to real estat volves the idea of survivorship. See TENANTS: ESTATE IN COMMON.

With respect to the ownership of ch action, the term implies that the inter right of action are united so that owners must be joined in a suit to the obligation jointly held. See Jon SEVERAL.

A joint liability on choses in acti is liable for the whole, they are all treated | in law as together constituting one legal entity and must be sued together or a release to one will operate in favor of all. One who pays the debt is entitled to contribution (q. v.).

JOINT ACTION. An action brought by two or more as plaintiffs or against two or more as defendants. See Joint and Sev-ERAL; ACTIONS; JOINDER.

JOINT ADMINISTRATORS. See ADMIN-ISTRATOR.

JOINT AND SEVERAL. A liability is said to be joint and several when the creditor may sue one or more of the parties to such liability separately, or all of them together at his option. Dicey, Parties 230. Where one is compelled to pay the whole debt or more than his proper share, he is entitled to contribution (q. v.). In case of the death of one his liability remains against his estate; Wms. Pers. Prop. 363. As a general rule all the contracts of partners are said to be joint and several. See PARTNER-SHIP.

As to joint and several debtors, Lord Mansfield said in Rice v. Shute, 5 Burr. 2611, that "all contracts with partners were joint and several, and every partner was liable to pay the whole." But it was remarked by Spencer, C. J., that "it would be straining Lord Mansfield's opinion unreasonably to say, that he meant technically that all contracts with partners were joint and several, for, then, the non-joinder of any of the partners never could be pleaded in abatement, which all the court expressly decided. equity they are joint and several; and so they were as regarded that suit, the defendant having neglected to avail himself of the objection in a legal manner. Surely it cannot be said that in a legal sense, when there are a plurality of debtors, that their contract is joint and several, when they have engaged jointly to pay the debt. Each debtor is bound for the whole, until the debt is paid; but as regards the remedy to coerce payment, there is a material and settled distinction. If they have undertaken severally to pay, separate suits may be brought against each; but when their undertaking is joint, unless they waive the advantage, by not interposing a plea in abatement, they must be sued jointly, if in full life, and neither has been discharged by operation of a bankrupt or insolvent law, or is not liable on the ground of infancy." Robertson v. Smith, 18 Johns. (N. Y.) 459, 9 Am. Dec. 227.

A defendant has no right to say that an action shall be several which a plaintiff elects to make joint; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Ide, 114 U. S. 52, 5 Sup. Ct. 735, 29 L. Ed. 63. A separate defence may defeat a joint recovery, but it cannot deprive a plaintiff of determination in his own way; Alabama G. S. R. Co. v. Thompson, 200 U. S. 206, 26 Sup. Ct. 161, 50 L. Ed. 441, 4 Ann. Cas. 1147.

Where several parties enter into a conspiracy to win the money of a third person by gambling or betting, each member of the conspiracy is jointly and severally liable to the person losing the money, under statutes allowing the recovery of money lost by gambling; Lear v. McMillen, 17 Ohio St. 464; McGrew v. Produce Exchange, 85 Tenn. 572, 4 S. W. 38, 4 Am. St. Rep. 771; Preston v. Hutchinson, 29 Vt. 144; although a partnership cannot, strictly speaking, exist for the conduct of an illegal business; Berns v. Shaw, 65 W. Va. 667, 64 S. E. 930, 23 L. R. A. (N. S.) 522, n. See Joint Tortfeasors.

JOINT AND SEVERAL BOND. A bond of two or more obligors, who bind themselves jointly and severally to the obligees, who can sue all the obligors jointly, or any one of them separately, for the whole amount, but cannot bring a joint action against part,that is, treat it as joint as to some and several as to others.

JOINT BOND. The bond of two or more obligors, the action to enforce which must be joint against them all.

JOINT COMMITTEE. A committee composed of members of both houses of a legislature. See May, Parl. Pr.

JOINT CONTRACT. One in which the contractors are jointly bound to perform the promise or obligation therein contained, or entitled to receive the benefit of such promise or obligation.

It is a general rule that a joint contract survives, whatever may be the beneficial interests of the parties under it. partner, covenantor, or other person entitled, having a joint interest in a contract not running with the land, dies, the right to sue survives in the other partner, etc.; Morris' Lessee v. Vanderen, 1 Dall. (Pa.) 65, 1 L. Ed. 38; Wallace v. Fitzsimmons, 1 Dall. (Pa.) 248, 1 L. Ed. 122; Add. Contr. 9th ed. 239. And when the obligation or promise is to perform something jointly by the obligors or promisors, and one dies, the action must be brought against the survivor; Hamm. Partn. 156.

When all the parties interested in a joint contract die, the action must be brought by the executors or administrators of the last surviving obligee against the executors or administrators of the last surviving obligor; Add. Contr. 239. See Contracts; Parties; CO-OBLIGOR.

JOINT DEBTORS. Two or more persons jointly liable for the same debt.

To sustain a suit against joint debtors, a joint and subsisting indebtedness must be shown; Robertson v. Smith, 18 Johns. (N. Y.) 459, 9 Am. Dec. 227; and by proceeding his right to prosecute his own suit to final to Judgment against one or more of joint debtors the debt is merged in the judgment as to all; id.

Payment by one joint debtor who has been discharged in bankruptcy of a sum, less than is due on the joint debt, which the creditor accepts in satisfaction of the whole debt, is held to operate as such in favor of the other debtor; Ex parte Zeigler, 83 S. C. 78, 64 S. E. 513, 916, 21 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1005.

JOINT DEBTORS' ACTS. Statutes enacted in many of the states, which provide that judgment may be given for or against one or more of several plaintiffs, and for or against one or more of several defendants, and that, "in an action against several defendants, the court may, in its discretion, render judgment against one or more of them, leaving the action to proceed against the others, whenever a several judgment is proper." The name is also given to statutes providing that where an action is instituted against two or more defendants upon an alleged joint liability, and some of them are served with process, but jurisdiction is not obtained over the others, the plaintiff may still proceed to trial against those who are before the court, and, if he recovers, may have judgment against all of the defendants whom he shows to be jointly liable. 1 Black, Judg. §§ 208, 235.

JOINT EXECUTORS. Those who are joined in the execution of a will. See EXECUTOR.

JOINT FIAT. A flat which was formerly issued against two or more trading partners.

JOINT FINE. The fine which might be levied upon a whole vill.

JOINT HEIRS. Co-heirs.

JOINT INDICTMENT. One indictment brought against two or more offenders, charging the defendants jointly. It may be where there is a joint criminal act, without any regard to any particular personal default or defect of either of the defendants: thus, there may be a joint indictment against the joint keepers of a gaming-house; 1 Ventr. 302; 2 Hawk. Pl. Cr. 240.

JOINT LIVES. An expression used to designate the duration of an estate or right, limited or granted to two or more persons, to be enjoyed during the lives of both or all of them.

An annuity to two for their lives is payable until the death of one. Where the survivor is to be benefited, the conveyance or devise is usually expressed to be "to hold their joint lives and the life of the survivor."

JOINT OWNERSHIP. See JOINT.

JOINT RESOLUTION. A resolution adopted by both houses of congress or a legislature. When such a resolution has been approved by the president or passed with his approval, it has the effect of a law. 6 Op. Atty. Gen. 680.

The distinction between a joint retion and a concurrent resolution of congist hat the former requires the approvement the president while the latter does not. Sen. Jud. Com. Jan. 1897.

JOINT STOCK BANKS. In English A species of quasi corporations, or compregulated by deeds of settlement. See STOCK COMPANY.

JOINT STOCK COMPANY. An asstion of individuals for purposes of possessing a common capital contribute the members composing it, such capital ing commonly divided into shares of veach member possesses one or more, which are transferable by the owner. St. Co. 1.

A quasi partnership, invested by sta in England and many of the states some of the privileges of a corporation. Pennsylvania v. Mining Co., 10 Wall. (U 556, 19 L. Ed. 998; L. R. 4 Eq. 695.

A partnership whereof the capital i

A partnership whereof the capital i vided, or agreed to be divided, into si so as to be transferable without the exconsent of the co-partners. Pars. Pa 435.

Such associations are not pure par ships, for their members are recognize an aggregate body; nor are they pure porations, for their members are mor less liable to contribute to the debts of collective whole. Incorporated compare intermediate between corpora known to the common law and ordi corporations and partake of the natural both. 1 Lindl. Partn., 1st ed. 6.

They are to be distinguished from lin partnerships chiefly in that there is, joint stock company, no dilectus persona that is, no choice about admitting part the shares are transferable without invo a dissolution of the association, the assof shares becomes a partner by virtu the transfer, and the rights and duties o members are determined by articles of sociation, or in England by a deed of sment; 1 Pars. Contr., 8th ed. 144.

Joint stock companies may be for without regard to the statutes, and the moters may choose to proceed solely their common-law rights and responsibility People v. Coleman, 133 N. Y. 279, 31 N. I. 16 L. R. A. 183; Spotswood v. Morri Idaho 360, 85 Pac. 1094, 6 L. R. A. (N. 665. They are not illegal; Howe v. M. 174 Mass. 491, 55 N. E. 213.

The relation of the stockholders to company is settled by the articles of a ment. They contribute the capital, s the trustees and are entitled to a dist tive share of the profits. They have no er to use the name of the company to i fere with its business, or to bind it in manner. This power they have volunt surrendered to the trustees; In re Oliver's Estate, 186 Pa. 43, 20 Atl. 527, 9 L. R. A. (N. S.) 421, 20 Am. St. Rep. 894; Spotswood v. Morris, 12 Idaho 360, 85 Pac. 1094, 6 L. R. A. (N. S.) 665; 2 H. L. Cas. 520.

Generally the number of shares is fixed by the charter, but it is sometimes provided that there shall not be less than a certain number nor more than a certain number. In such cases it is left for the company to determine the number within the limits prescribed; Somerset & K. R. Co. v. Cushing, 45 Me. 524; but where the charter fixes the amount of the capital stock, and provides that it may be increased from time to time at the pleasure of the corporation, the directors have no power to increase the amount of the stock, although the charter provides that all the corporate powers shall be vested in, and exercised by a board of directors, and such officers and agents as such board shall appoint; Chicago City R. Co. v. Allerton, 18 Wall. (U. S.) 233, 21 L. Ed. 902.

In New York joint stock companies have all the attributes of a corporation except the right to have and use a common seal, and an action is properly brought for or against the president as such, and the judgment and execution against him bind the joint property of the association, but do not bind his own property; National Bank of Schuylerville v. Van Derwerker, 74 N. Y. 234; People v. Coleman, 5 N. Y. Supp. 394, 970, affirmed 133 N. Y. 279, 31 N. E. 96, 16 L. R. A. 183; but it has been held that the provisions in the New York statutes are merely local in their operation, and that the members may be sued in other states as partners; Boston & A. R. v. Pearson, 128 Mass. 445: Frost v. Walker, 60 Me. 468.

They may be served with summons in another state in the same manner that corporations are served; Adams Exp. Co. v. State, 55 Ohio St. 69, 44 N. E. 506; and on an issue as to whether an association was a joint stock company or a corporation, its classification by the statutes of New York, where it was created, has been held not conclusive; State v. Exp. Co., 1 Ohio, N. P. 238, 2 Ohio S. & C. P. Dec. 239. A joint stock company having some of the characteristics of a corporation and some of a partnership, including the right to a common seal, ownership of the property by the association, and the right to sue and be sued in the corporate name, was held to be a citizen of the state which created it, and when sued in another state to be entitled to a removal to the federal court irrespective of the citizenship of its individual members; Bushnell v. Park Bros. & Co., 46 Fed. 209; Maltz v. Express Co., 1 Flip. 611, Fed. Cas. No. 9,002; Fargo v. Ry. Co., 6 Fed. 787, 10 Biss. 273.

A limited partnership association created under statute, although it may be called a to be a citizen of the state, is not, like a corporation created under the laws of the state, to be deemed a citizen of that state within the meaning of the clause of the federal constitution which extends the judicial power of the United States to controversies between citizens of different states; Great Southern Fire Proof Hotel Co. v. Jones, 177 U. S. 449, 20 Sup. Ct. 690, 44 L. Ed. 842, reversing Jones v. Hotel Co., 86 Fed. 370, 30 Ca. A.

The effect of the clause of the constitution of Peracylvania that the term corporastock companies or associations having any of the powers or privileges of corporations, but possessed by individuals or partnerships" was declared to be only to place joint stock companies under the restrictions imposed by that article upon corporations, and not to invest them with corporation attributes; Great Southern Fire Proof Hotel Co. v. Jones, 177 U. S. 449, 20 Sup. Ct. 690, 44 L. Ed. 842. They are properly classified with corporations in a tax measure, such as the federal corporation tax; Flint v. Stone Tracy Co., 220 U. S. 107, 31 Sup. Ct. 342, 55 L. Ed. 389, Ann. Cas. 1912B, 1312; Spreckels Sugar Refining Co. v. McClain, 192 U. S. 397, 24 Sup. Ct. 376, 48 L. Ed. 496.

Such companies, formed to deal in real estate, do not create interests within the rule against perpetuities and do not put illegal restraints upon alienation; Howe v. Morse, 174 Mass. 491, 55 N. E. 213; see 13 Harv. L. R. 516.

At common law they are held not corporations but are to be sued as partners; B. & A. R. Co. v. Pearson, 128 Mass. 445; Lewis v. Tilton, 64 Ia. 220, 19 N. W. 911, 52 Am. Rep. 436. But in states where there are statutory provisions concerning them the indebtedness of joint stock companies will be charged pro rata to the solvent members; Cameron v. Bank (Tex.) 34 S. W. 178. An English joint stock company (in this case a fire insurance company) endowed by its deed of settlement with the following powers and faculties, 1. A distinctive artificial name by which it can make contracts. 2. A statutory authority to sue and be sued in the name of its officers as representing the association. 3. A statutory recognition of it as an entity distinct from its members by allowing them to sue it or be sued by it. 4. A provision for its perpetuity by transfer of its shares so as to secure succession of membership, was held to be a corporation in this country; Liverpool & L. Life & F. Ins. Co. v. Massachusetts, 10 Wall. (U. S.) 566, 19 L. Ed. 1029; Oliver v. R. Co., 100 Mass. 531; notwithstanding the acts of parliament declaring it should not be so considered, and the court held that such corporations, whether organized under the laws of a state of the Union or a foreign quasi corporation, and is declared by statute government, may be taxed by another state for the privilege of conducting their corporate business therein.

When such a company is not organized under the statutes a suit brought by or against it should be in the name of all the partners or of one or more for the use of all; Pipe v. Bateman, 1 Ia. 369; McGreary v. Chandler, 58 Me. 537; and a defective certificate of organization will render all the partners; Vanhorn v. Corcoran, 127 Pa. 255, 18 Atl. 16, 4 L. R. A. 386. A mere subscription for shares in an unincorporate joint stock company will not make the a scribers liable as partners to third persons dealing with the company; they must have intended to become members and share in the profits of the business, but an unexplained subscription is evidence of that fact; Hunnewell v. Canning Co., 53 Mo. App. 245.

It is an incumbent duty on the part of a joint stock company not to permit a transfer of stock until fully satisfied of the shareholder's authority to transfer; L. R. 9 Eq. 181; Iasigi v. R. Co., 129 Mass. 46; and as to the nature of shares in such an association see Shares.

An authority conferred on the directors to make contracts and bargains, and to transact all matters requisite for the affairs of the company will not in general authorize the directors to draw bills; 19 L. J. Ex. 34; 20 L. J. Q. B. 160; but if the directors have authority to bind the company by bills, and they regularly accept, in the name of the company, a bill drawn on the company, every member is liable as a joint acceptor to any holder who is not also a member of the company; 19 L. J. Ex. 34; 5 E. & B. 1; so the acceptance of a bill by an agent who is also a member of the company binds him personally; 9 Exch. 154.

To a suit for a dissolution or winding up of the affairs of a joint stock company, all the shareholders, however numerous, must be parties; 1 Keen 24; and any member of the company may institute an action for its dissolution; Snyder v. Lindsey, 92 Hun 432, 36 N. Y. Supp. 1037. The fact that such a company has conducted business for twenty-three years without making dividends for its stockholders, is good ground for its dissolution at suit of one of them; Willis v. Chapman, 68 Vt. 459, 35 Atl. 459. A society that cannot be incorporated because organized to resist the enforcement of laws cannot sue in the society name for the collection of a debt; Schuetzen Bund v. Agitations Verein, 44 Mich. 313, 6 N. W. 675, 38 Am. Rep. 270. See Corporation; DIRECTOR; STOCKHOLDER; PARTNERS; PARTNERSHIP.

JOINT TENANCY. Joint tenancy exists where there has been a limitation of the same estate, by deed, will or parol, to two or more persons without words of severance. Jenks, Modern Land Law 170. Joint tenants are said to have four unities, time, terest and possession; Bassler v. linski, 130 Wis. 26, 109 N. W. 1032, A. (N. S.) 701. The estate of boarise under the same limitation; but the statute of uses the necessity titles of all the joint tenants shou mence at the same time is avoided.

Every kind of property, real and may be so held; Freeman, Co-Ten. § 16.

If one convey his whole interestranger it works a severance; be convey a less interest, it probably of the marriage of a female joint to not a severance; nor is a subseque for years by the husband and the joint tenant, reserving rent jointly 1 Ch. 134. Neither a devise by o tenant nor an encumbrance created joint tenant defeats the full right survivor.

If one of two joint tenants dies, vivor becomes solely entitled to the Co. Litt. 181 a; but not as against a inter vivos of one of the joint tena against a judgment debt on which e had been levied in the life time debtor.

Survivorship has been abolished as to trust estates, in many state Demb. Land Titles 27; it has never in Ohio, Kansas, Nebraska or Idaho; nor in Connecticut; Washb. R. P.

The presumption is that all tenant in the presumption is the presumption in the presumption in the presumption is the presumption in the presumption in the presumption in the presumption is the presumption in the presumpt

ing jointly hold as tenants in comm less a clear intention to the cont shown; Webster v. Vandeventer, (Mass.) 428; Parsons v. Boyd, 20 A Miles v. Fisher, 10 Ohio 1, 36 Am.; Bambaugh v. Bambaugh, 11 S. & F 191; Purdy v. Purdy, 3 Md. Ch. D Allen v. Logan, 96 Mo. 591, 10 S. Hershy v. Clark, 35 Ark. 17, 37 Am. Rowland v. Rowland, 93 N. C. 2 some states this is by statute.

In some, words that would have c joint tenancy now create a tenancy mon.

Where there is a devise to two by name without a clear intention it in the survivor, it vests severally stein v. Hammell, 236 Pa. 305, 84 April 1997 tenants at common law to the stein v.

Joint tenants at common law is right to compulsory partition; C 187 a. They convey to each other lease, in which words of inheritance necessary; id. 273 b. They must plus impleaded jointly; id. 180 b., 195 b [1880] 16 Ch. D. 63, it was held the might sue alone for cutting timoer land.

See Jus Accrescendi; Survivor.

JOINT TORTFEASORS. Wron

When several persons join in an or injury, they may generally be sued jointly, or any number less than the whole may be sued, or each one may be sued separately; Williams v. Sheldon, 10 Wend. (N. Y.) 654. Each is liable for himself, because the entire damages sustained were occasioned by each, each sanctioning the acts of the others, so that by suing one alone, he is not charged beyond his just proportion. Any number less than the whole may be sued, because each is answerable for his companion's acts. Thus a joint action may be brought against several for an assault and battery, or for composing and publishing a libel; 2 Saund. 117 a; Bacon, Abr. Actions in General (C); Harris v. Huntington, 2 Tyl. (Vt.) 129, 4 Am. Dec. 728.

But to this rule that for a joint injury a joint action may be brought, there is an exception, namely, that no joint action can be maintained for a joint slander; this exception seems to proceed upon the ground that each man's slander is his own, and it cannot by any means be considered that of Although this exception appears to be fully established, yet it is difficult to see the reason of it; when one of several trespassers gives the blow, he is considered as acting for the others, and, if they acted jointly, they may be jointly sued; why not consider the speaker, when acting in concert with others, as the actor for the whole in uttering the words? The blow is no more that of the person who did not give it than the words are the words of him who only united with the other in an agreement that they should be spoken. In either case, upon principle, the maxim, qui facit per alium facit per se, ought to have its force. Such however, is not the law.

Where a person is injured by a joint tort and accepts satisfaction from one of the wrongdoers, he cannot sue the other; Spurr v. R. Co., 56 N. J. L. 346, 28 Atl. 582.

A railroad company may be sued jointly with the servant whose negligence caused the injury, although it was not independently at fault; Illinois Central Ry. Co. v. Houchins, 121 Ky. 526, 89 S. W. 530, 1 L. R. A. (N. S.) 375, 123 Am. St. Rep. 205.

A covenant not to sue one of two joint tortfeasors does not operate as a release of the other from liability; [1892] 2 Q. B. 511; nor does the dismissal of an action against one, with the execution, for a valuable consideration, of an agreement not to sue him, release the other; City of Chicago v. Babcock, 143 Ill. 358, 32 N. E. 271; nor does the fact that where property is jointly converted by two persons, and one of those converting accounts to the owner, who accepts part of the proceeds, remove the other's liability; Horseley v. Moss, 5 Tex. Civ. App. 341, 23 S. W. 1115.

Where two or more parties act, each for himself and independently of each other, in statute of uses.

a manner which may be injurious to another, they cannot be held jointly liable for the acts of each other; Livesay v. Nat. Bank, 36 Colo. 526, 86 Pac. 102, 6 L. R. A. (N. S.) 598, 118 Am. St. Rep. 120; Blaisdell v. Stephens, 14 Nev. 17, 33 Am. Rep. 523; Forbes v. Marsh, 15 Conn. 384; Larkins v. Eckwurzel, 42 Ala. 322, 94 Am. Dec. 651; Miller v. Ditch Co., 87 Cal. 433, 25 Pac. 550, 22 Am. St. Rep. 254.

Where unlawful attachments water shultaneously sued out by different creditors acting throu e same attorney and levied by the sa cer on the same property at the same time, but so that one constituted a prior lien on the personalty, and the other a prior lien on the realty attached, the creditors were held not joint wrongdoers, since neither was interested in the success of the other, and their actions, though simultaneous, were not for a common purpose; Miller v. Beck, 108 Ia. 575, 79 N. W. 344. But it has been held that where several creditors sue out at different times separate writs of attachment against a common debtor and cause them to be simultaneously levied by the same officer, they will be regarded, the levy being wrongful, as joint wrongdoers, though they may have acted separately without concert; Sparkman v. Swift, 81 Ala. 231, 8 South. 160; Vose v. Woods, 26 Hun (N. Y.) 486. In Ellis v. Howard, 17 Vt. 330, it was held that where the attachments are levied at the same time, by the same officer, and upon the same property, there is prima facie a joint trespass.

If the plaintiff allege that the concurrent negligence of both defendants caused his injury, he may join them in one action. It depends on the averments of his complaint, and if the state court so decides, he may join them even though the liability of one is statutory and the other rests on the common law; Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. v. Dowell, 229 U. Ş. 102, 33 Sup. Ct. 684, 57 L. Ed. 1090.

JOINT TRESPASSERS. Two or more who unite in committing a trespass. See JOINT TORTFEASORS, JOINT TRUSTEES. Two or more persons who are intrusted with property for the benefit of one or more others. See TRUSTEE.

JOINTRESS, JOINTURESS. A woman, who has an estate settled on her by her husband, to hold during her life, if she survive him. Co. Litt. 46.

JOINTURE. A competent livelihood of freehold for the wife, of lands and tenements, to take effect, in profit or possession, presently after the death of the husband, for the life of the wife at least.

Jointures are regulated by the statute of 27 Hen. VIII. c. 10, commonly called the statute of uses.

To make a good jointure, the following waste-book are separated every month, circumstances must concur, namely: It entered on the debtor and creditor side must take effect, in possession or profit, immediately from the death of the husband. It must be for the wife's life, or for some greater estate. It must be limited to the wife herself, and not to any other person in trust for her. It must be made in satisfaction for the wife's whole dower, and not of of it only. The estate limited to the n of her whole dower. It must satisi be made before marriage. Garrison, 27 Ohio St. 60, va it is said that it may also be made after marriage. A jointure attended with all these circumstances is binding on the widow, and is a complete bar to the claim of her dower; or, rather, it prevents its ever arising. See 4 Kent 55.

JOINTURE

But there are other modes of limiting an estate to a wife, which, Lord Coke says, are good jointures within the statute, provided that the wife accepts them after the death of the husband. She may, however, reject them, and claim her dower; Cruise, Dig. tit. 7; 2 Bla. Com. 137. See Dower. It is held that a jointure cannot be affected by a postnuptial agreement; McCaulley's Ex'rs v. McCaulley, 7 Houst. (Del.) 102, 30 Atl. 735.

Any reasonable provision which an adult person agrees to accept in lieu of dower, it is said, will amount to an equitable jointure, and although it may be wanting in the requisites of a legal jointure, in equity it will bar dower; Rieger v. Schaible, 81 Neb. 33, 115 N. W. 560, 17 L. R. A. (N. S.) 866, 16 Ann. Cas. 700; Stilley v. Folger, 14 Ohio 610.

A widow may, by provisions of an antenuptial contract, waive her right to an allowance when the rights of minor children are not involved; Kroell v. Kroell, 219 Ill. 105, 76 N. E. 63, 4 Ann. Cas. 801. If such a contract was intended by the parties to operate as an equitable jointure, it will be upheld as such; Mintier v. Mintier, 28 Ohio St. 307.

In its more enlarged sense, a jointure signifies a joint estate limited to both husband and wife. 2 Bla. Com. 137. See 14 Viner, Abr. 540; Washb. R. P.

See Marriage Settlement.

JOUR (Fr.). Day. It is used in our old law-books: as, tout jours, forever. It is ·also frequently employed in the composition of words: as, journal, a day-book; journeyman, a man who works by the day; journeys account.

JOURNAL. in Maritime Law. The book kept on board of a ship or other vessel which contains an account of the ship's course, with a short history of every occurrence during the voyage. Another name for logbook. Chitty, Law of Nat. 199.

in Commercial Law. A book used among merchants, in which the contents of the where they do not expressly show wh more convenient posting in the ledger. In Legislation. An account of the pro ings of a legislative body.

In England, there is no written contion to control the action of parliament its act cannot, therefore, be questioned, so the parliament roll is sufficient to p the authenticity of an act; 1 Strange The journals of parliament are not reand cannot weaken or control a sta which is a record and to be tried only i self; Hob. 110.

The constitution of the United States 1, s. 5, directs that "each house shall ke journal of its proceedings, and from tin time publish the same, excepting such as may in their judgment require sec See 2 Sto. Const., 5th ed. § 839.

The constitutions of the several states

tain similar provisions. On a reference to the journal of the eral house of representatives to asce whether a duly authenticated law was ed, the court is bound to assume that journal speaks the truth, and cannot re oral evidence to impeach its correctness S. v. Ballin, 144 U. S. 1, 12 Sup. Ct. 50 L. Ed. 321; but the debates in congress not be resorted to for the purpose of di ering the meaning of a statute; U. Freight Ass'n, 166 U.S. 290, 17 Sup. Ct. 41 L. Ed. 1007.

The journal of either house is eviden the action of that house upon all matter fore it; Root v. King, 7 Cow. (N. Y.) Cowp. 17. It is a public record of which courts may take judicial notice; 1 Gi Ev. § 482; Osburn v. Staley, 5 W. Va. 8 Am. Rep. 640; Moody v. State, 48 Ala. 17 Am. Rep. 28; South Ottawa v. Perkir U. S. 260, 24 L. Ed. 154; Koehler v. Hi Ia. 549, 14 N. W. 738, 15 N. W. 609; v. Bigger, 79 Va. 280; Brown v. Na Wyo. 85. Cooley, Const. Lim. 135; co Gnob v. Cushman, 45 Ill. 119; Boar Commissioners of Madison County v. ford, 93 Ind. 383. If it should appear t from that any act did not receive the uisite vote, or that the act was not con tionally adopted, the courts may adjudg act void; Cooley, Const. Lim. 164. Fa to comply with certain constitutional r sions in the passage of an act can be si only by the journals; Fullington v. Will 98 Ga. 807, 27 S. E. 183; and if the jor sufficiently shows on its face a substa compliance with constitutional requirem a mere clerical omission in the journa either house will not vitlate an act; Pr City of Moundsville, 43 W. Va. 523, 27 218, 64 Am. St. Rep. 878. Where they silent as to the observance of any con tional requirement, it will not be pres that such requirement was disregarded the act was constitutionally passed it will be held valid unless there is an omission of some matter expressly required by the constitution to be entered therein; Ritchie v. Richards, 14 Utah 345, 47 Pac. 670.

Mere failure to record the passage of an act, in the absence of any affirmative record that it did not secure the concurrence of both houses, is not sufficient to show that the act was not passed, where the certificate of the presiding officer of each house shows that it was regularly passed; Territory v. O'Connor, 5 Dak. 397, 41 N. W. 746, 3 L. R. A. 355.

Where the constitution requires that the yeas and nays be entered on the journals, they are conclusive as against not only a printed statute published by law, but a duly enrolled act; Union Bank of Richmond v. Commissioners of Town of Oxford, 119 N. C. 214, 25 S. E. 966, 34 L. R. A. 487.

In determining whether an act was passed in accordance with a constitutional provision requiring the assent of two-thirds of the members, recourse may be had to the journals, if the certificate of the presiding officer fails to show by what vote the bill was passed; New York & L. I. Bridge Co. v. Smith, 148 N. Y. 540, 42 N. E. 1088.

The journals need not show that a bill was read by sections on its final passage, as required by the constitution, the presumption being that it was read. And where they affirmatively show non-compliance with an essential requirement to the enactment of a bill, or fail to show any essential step in the enactment which the constitution requires them to show, the enrolled bill as evidence of the law is overcome; State v. Hocker, 36 Fla. 358, 18 South. 767.

Where a bill, as approved, contains important clauses which the journals show were stricken out by the amendment in the houses, it is invalid; State v. Wendler, 94 Wis. 369, 68 N. W. 759.

The journals cannot be resorted to by the court for the purpose of inquiring into the motive which actuated the legislature or any member of it in enacting a law; Blaine County v. Heard, 5 Idaho 6, 45 Pac. 890.

The journals are inadmissible to show that parts of the bill, as passed by the houses, were omitted from the enrolled bill as signed by the presiding officers of the two houses and the governor, where all bills are required to be signed by the governor after having passed the legislative assembly; Harwood v. Wentworth, 4 Ariz. 378, 42 Pac. 1025.

An enrolled bill, on file in the office of the secretary of state, must be accepted without question by the courts as having been regularly enacted by the legislature, and is conclusive evidence of its existence and contents; State v. Jones, 6 Wash. 452, 34 Pac.

J. L. 29; Weeks v. Smith, 81 Me. 538, 18 Atl. 325; Hunt v. Wright, 70 Miss. 298, 11 South. 608; State v. Glenn, 18 Nev. 34, 1 Pac. 186; People v. Commissioners of Highways of Marlborough, 54 N. Y. 276, 13 Am. Rep. 581.

Every reasonable presumption is made in favor of the action of a legislative body; it will not be presumed from the mere silence of the journals that either house disregarded a constitutional requirement in the passage of an act, unless in cases where the constitution has required the journals to show the action that has been taken; McCulloch v. State, 11 Ind. 424; Miller v. State, 3 Ohio St. 475; and the presumption that a properly authenticated bill was passed is not overcome by the failure of the journals to show any fact which is not specifically required by the constitution to be entered therein; Miesen v. Canfield, 64 Minn. 513, 67 N. W.

Such a bill properly enrolled, signed, and approved cannot be impeached by reference to the journals of either house, to show that it was enacted in conformity to constitutional requirements; Lafferty v. Huffman, 99 Ky. 80, 35 S. W. 123, 32 L. R. A. 203; Com. v. Hardin County Court, 99 Ky. 188, 35 S. W. 275. But other courts have considered it part of their duties to ascertain whether the legislature has complied with the constitutional provisions and hence have introduced the journals to see if those prerequisites, required by the constitution have been performed; State v. Wray, 109 Mo. 594, 19 S. W. 86; Hunt v. State, 22 Tex. App. 396, 3 S. W. 233; Callaghan v. Chipman, 59 Mich. 610, 26 N. W. 806; State v. Brown, 20 Fla. 407; even if proof is adduced that they were: State v. Green, 36 Fla. 154, 18 South.

As to the conclusiveness of an enrolled bill, see Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. State, 28 Okl. 94, 113 Pac. 921, 40 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1. See Interpretation.

JOURNEY. Originally a day's travel. It is now applied to travel from place to place. without restriction of time. But when thus applied, it is employed to designate a travel which is without the ordinary habits, business, or duties of the person, to a distance from his home, and beyond the circle of his friends or acquaintances. Gholson v. State, 53 Ala. 521, 25 Am. Rep. 652.

JOURNEYS ACCOUNT. In English Practice. A new writ which the plaintiff was permitted to sue out within a reasonable time after the abatement, without his fault, of the first writ. This time was computed with reference to the number of days which the plaintiff must spend in journeying to reach the court: hence the name of journeys account, that is, journeys accomptes or counted. This writ was quasi a continuance of 201, 23 L. R. A. 340; State v. Young, 32 N. the first writ, and so related back to it as to oust the defendant or tenant of his voucher, plea of non-tenure, joint tenancy fully administered, or any other plea arising upon matter happening after date of the first writ; Co. Litt. fol. 9 b.

This mode of proceeding has fallen into disuse, the practice now being to permit that writ to be quashed, and to sue out another. See Termes de la Ley; Bacon, Abr. Abatement (1); 14 Viner, Abr. 558; 4 Com. Dig. 714; G. 762; Richards v. Ins. Co., 8 Cra. 84, 3 L. Ed. 496.

JOUST. See JUST.

JUBILACION. In Spanish Learning the right of a public officer to retire from office, retaining his title and his salary, either in whole or in part, after he has attained the age of fifty years and been in public service at least twenty years, whenever his infirmities prevent him from discharging the duties of his office.

rites of the Jews. Du Cange. A quarter set apart for residence of Jews. Du Cange. A usurious rate of interest. 1 Mon. Angl. 839; 2 id. 10, 665. An income anciently accruing to the king from the Jews. Blount.

JUDEX (Lat.). In Old English Law. A juror. Spelman, Gloss. A judge, in modern sense, especially—as opposed to justiciarius, i. e. a common-law judge—to denote an ecclesiastical judge. Bracton, fol. 401, 402.

In Roman Law. One who, either in his own right or by appointment of the magistrate for the special case, judged causes.

Thus, the prætor was formerly called judex. But, generally, prætors and magistrates who judge of their own right were distinguished from judices, who were private persons, appointed by the prætor, on application of the plaintiff, to try the cause, as soon as issue was joined, and furnished by him with instructions as to the legal principles involved. They were variously called judices delegati, or pedanei, or speciales. It has been said that they resembled in many respects jurors: thus, both are private persons, brought in at a certain stage of the proceedings, viz., issue joined, to try the cause, under instructions from the judge as to the law of the case. But civilians are not clear whether the judices had to decide the fact alone, or the law and fact. The judex resembles in many respects the arbitrator, or arbiter, the chief differences being, first, that the latter is appointed in cases of trust and confidence, the former in cases where the rela-tions of the parties are governed by strict law (in pactionibus strictis); second, the latter has the whole control of cases, and decides according to whole control of cases, and the former by strict formulæ; third, that the latter may be a magistrate, the former must be a private person; fourth, that the award of the arbiter derives its force from the agreement of submission, while the decree of the judex has its sanction in the command of the prætor to try the cause; Calvinus, Lex.; 1 Spence, Eq. Jur. 210, note; Mackeldey, Civ. Law, Kaufmann ed. § 193, note.

It has been said that there was generally one judex, sometimes three,—in which case the decision of two, in the absence of the third, had no effect; Calvinus, Lex. But another careful writer says that "although there could never be more than one judex, there were sometimes several arbitri, but the arbiter was chosen from the same class as the judex." Sand. Inst. Just. Introd. lxiii.

Down to the time of handing over the the judez, that is, till issue joined, the prowers before the protor, and were said jure; after that before the judez, and were be in judicio. In all this we see the gen Anglo-Saxon system of judicature; 1 Spe Jur. 67.

A judge who conducted the tria beginning to end; magistratus. The tice of calling in judices was disused Justinian's time: therefore, in the Institutes, and Novels, judex means in its modern sense. Heineccius, Ele Civ. § 1327.

The term judex is used with very differ nifications at different periods of Roman ladistinctive features of the position of the belong to the earlier history of the Roman A recent writer defines very clearly the f of the judex at that period as distinguish those of the magistrate: "In the earlier hicivil procedure in Rome, we find two sha fined divisions,—the proceedings which were be in jure, and those which were in judic former took place before the magistrate, we resented officially the judicial power of the This magistrate in this capacity decided, first instance, whether the claim of the comparty was cognizable at all,—whether thereform of procedure by which it could be elf it was controverted, and there seemed to action that would fit the case, the litis corwas formed, by a solemn appeal addressed party to his witnesses, and the controversy we referred to the judecs. The judices were not trates, and did not represent the power State. They were, it would seem, more in like referees. They took up the issue whoen stated by the magistrate, heard the tes and pronounced the sententia, and this find afterwards enforced by the magistrate."

This relates to the period during whi sharply defined distinction between proceed fure and those in judicio was strictly observ for example, the dispute concerned property assigned temporarily to the possession of or ty, who gave security for its restoration if ed, and the judex simply decided which was right; Morey, R. L. 18, 389. The growth proceeding by formula during the next peri doubtless largely due to its convenience as a od of conveying to the fudex the instructi the magistrate with respect to the case refe him. The new proceeding tended very m increase the flexibility of the law in its appl to particular cases, as it has been said there tradition to fetter the formula of the præt the old litis contestatio the issue was formul narrowly prescribed terms; in the new forms terms used were informal and freely chosen magistrate. "The formula was thus well a as a means for directly submitting to the de of a fudex in fudicio any question, or comquestions, which the prætor deemed actionable prætor himself was now in a position, whi mulating the legal issue, to give the judex same time direct instructions in reference decision of such issue. For whether the judg demned or acquitted depended now solely of manner in which the prætor formulated the tion in dispute." Sohm, Inst. Rom. L. 177. now for the first time that the judex beca tion in dispute." effect an official, he ceased to be an indep private person bound only by the positive lav his action was dominated by the limitations prætor's edict. Thus the latter became a dominated by the limitations ing force in legal procedure, and the judex in sense a subordinate official, and the resul "that the formulary procedure obliterated by recovery the clear sharp line which had his severed jus and judicium." This naturally re from the fact that by the formula the fudex was converted into an organ or instrument not only of the civil, but also of the prætor, made law, and the proceedings in judicio and those in jure were controlled by the same authority; 4d. 178, 220. In the last period of Roman procedure during the later empire the prætor lost his former power of directing the administration of the law; and when the edict came to be fixed by the will of the emperor the protor and the proses were bound by it equally with the judex and in the same way that the latter had before been limited by their own edict. Its publication by the prætor was merely formal, and he became a mere instrument for applying the law, and his duties became more and more ministerial in proportion as, on the one hand, scientific jurisprudence developed and defined the contents of the existing law and, on the other hand, the imperial power, superseding all other agencies, appropriated to itself the function of developing the law. Thus the judex gradually became an official whose duty it was to assist the prætor, and, in the same way, the prætor became in reality an official whose duty it was to assist the emperor; 4d. 220.

For a long period senators alone were qualified to

For a long period senators alone were qualified to act as judges, and during that time any member of the senate could act, if justified, by mutual consent of the parties, or if they could not agree by law. There were also pleblan judges called centumvirielected by the comitia constituting a collegium divided into sections and having special jurisdiction of citizenship and successions; their jurisdiction was exclusive where it existed. As to the duties of the judge see also Inst. 4. 17. 1-7; Sand. Introd. xii., xxi., lxi., lxxiv.; Sohm, Inst. Rom. L. $\frac{5}{2}$ 34-77; PRETOR; RECUPERATORES; JUDICIUM; IN JURE.

Judex Ordinarius (Lat.). In Civil Law. A judge who had jurisdiction by his own right, not by another's appointment. Calvinus, Lex.; Vicat, Voc. Jur. Blackstone says that judices ordinarii decided only questions of fact, while questions of law were referred to the centumviri; but this would seem to be rather the definition of judices selecti; and not all questions of law were referred to the centumviri, but particular actions: e. g. querela inofficiosi testamenti. See 2 Bla. Com. 315; Vicat, Voc. Jur. Utr. Centumviri.

Judex Pedaneus. Inferior judges; deputy judges; "petit judges that try only trifling cases (so-called because they had only a low seat and no tribunal)." Harper's Lat. Dict.; Dig. 3. 1. 1. 6.

The name was given to the fudex who was delegated to hear the whole cause. Their appointment is said to have been due, in the first instance, to the great increase in the volume of judicial business, which led the emperor Diocletian to authorize the provincial governors to refer cases of minor importance to them. They "were not fudices in the old sense of the word, but, according to the opinion of Ortolan, permanent magistrates entrusted with the special duty of conducting such cases as the governor might see fit to refer to them. No other view of the character of these officers seems consistent with the autocratic spirit which permeated the whole imperial system;" Morey, Rom. L. 142. "About the end of the third century, the præsides

"About the end of the third century, the præsides provinciarum were in the habit of proceeding extra ordinem in civil actions, i. e. they were in the habit of either giving judgment themselves or of delegating the whole cause to a deputy judge, a judex pedaneus. This deputy judge (who is also called judex datus or judex delegatus) is now in form as well as in substance an official who acts in lieu of the magistrate; he is not merely entrusted, like the old judex privatus, with the conduct of the proceedings in fudicio, but is deputed—and this is the reason why no formula is used—to hear and determine the whole cause, including the proceedings in jure. Like the proceedings before the præses himself, the proceedings before this subordinate judge are extra ordinem;" Sohm, Inst. Rom. L. 222. It has been said with respect to these judges that the prætors and other great magistrates did not themselves decide the actions which arose between private individuals: these were submitted to judges chosen by the parties, and these judges were called judices pedanei. In choosing them, the plaintiff had the right to nominate, and the defendant to accapt or reject those nominated; Heineccius, Antiq. 2b. 4, tit. b. n. 40; 7 rouillier, n. 353. As to jucces pedanei, generally, see Zimmern, Ges. Rom. Friv. § 18.

Judex Quastionis. A magistrate who decided the law of a criminal case, when the prætor himself did not sit as a magistrate. Morey, Rom. L. 88.

The director of the criminal court under the presidency of the prator. Harper's Lat. Dict.; Cic. Brut. 76, 264.

Judex Selectus. A select or selected judew or judge.

The judges in criminal suits selected by the prætor. Harper's Lat. Dict.; Cic. Verr. 2, 2, 13, § 32.

These fudices selecti were used in criminal causes, and between them and modern furors many points of resemblance have been noticed; 3 Bla. Com. 366. They were first returned by the prator, then drawn by lot, subject to challenge; they were sworn and talesmen were struck. So many points of resemblance were thought to exist between them and the discorai of the Greeks and our juries that the English institution has been thought to be derived from the former ones; id. note (n). But the root idea of both systems is sufficiently natural and logical to have been indigenous in both countries. See Jury.

JUDGE. A public officer lawfully appointed to decide litigated questions according to law.

An officer so named in his commission, who presides in some court.

In its most extensive sense the term includes all officers appointed to decide litigated questions while acting in that capacity, including justices of the peace, and even jurors, it is said, who are judges of the facts. Com. v. Dallas, 4 Dall. (U. S.) 229, 1 L. Ed. 812; Respublica v. Dallas, 3 Yeates (Pa.) 300. In ordinary legal use, however, the term is limited to the sense of the second of the definitions here given; People v. Wilson, 15 Ill. 388; unless it may be that the case of a justice or commissioner acting judicially is to be considered an extension of this meaning. See 3 Cush. (Mass.) 584.

It is not an unusual use of language in statutes to put the judge for the court, and to make provisions for him to execute that which can only be executed in court. In re United States, 194 U. S. 197, 24 Sup. Ct. 629, 48 L. Ed. 931.

By the common law every court, while engaged in the exercise of its lawful functions, has the authority to preserve order, decency, and silence in its presence, and may apprehend and punish the offender without examination or proof; but if the offence be committed out of court the party is entitled to for murder was pending, could not be notice and a hearing in his defence; People as a contempt; Ex parte Hickey, 4 Sm. v. Turner, 1 Cal. 152; Redman v. State, 28 Ind. 205. A judge must be in court during a trial; see 10 Am. L. Rev. 50. See Contempt. An assault on a judge sitting in court is not only punishable as a contempt, but indictable, as a crime against public justice, and more aggravated than an ordinary assault, or even than an assault committed upon another person in a court; 2 Bish. N. Cr. L. $250; this principle comes from the common law and was, as early as 25 Edw. 3, embodied in a statute, under which such an offence was punishable by the loss of the right hand, forfeiture of lands and goods, and perpetual imprisonment. In Neagle's Case, 135 U. S. 1, 10 Sup. Ct. 658, 34 L. Ed. 55, it was held that "an assault upon a judge of a court of the United States, while in discharge of his official duties, is a breach of the peace of the United States, as distinguished from the peace of the State in which the assault takes place." In this case the petitioner was a United States deputy marshal, appointed for the express purpose of guarding Mr. Justice Field against a threatened attack, which took place, and a killing by the deputy in such defence was held by the court to have been caused by a just apprehension that an attack would result in the death of the justice, and was justifiable and a judgment of the circuit court, discharging him from the custody of the sheriff, by whom he was held under process of the state court, was affirmed.

(Miss.) 751. In the federal courts, a

So any insult, disrespect, or insolence to a judge is punishable; 2 Bish. N. Cr. L. § 250. On this subject, it was said by Holroyd, J.: "In the case of an insult to (the judge) himself, it is not on his own account that he commits; for that is a consideration which should never enter his mind. It is his duty to support the dignity of his station, and uphold the law, so that in his presence at least, it shall not be infringed." 4 B. & Ald. 329, 339.

Within this principle it was held to be a contempt to write a letter to a judge, libelling or abusing him in regard to one of his decisions; In re Pryor, 18 Kan. 72, 26 Am. Rep. 747; or when a judge of an inferior tribunal refuses obedience to process from a superior one; Patchin v. City of Brooklyn, 13 Wend. (N. Y.) 664; 1 Eng. L. & Eq. 516; Gorham v. Luckett, 6 B. Monr. (Ky.) 638; State v. Noel, T. U. P. Charlt. (Ga.) 43; Ex parte Carnochan, id. 315.

It has been held that abusing a judge out of court, with reference to expressions made by him on a trial, was a contempt; Com. v. Dandridge, 2 Va. Cas. 408; but in another case it was held that newspaper articles in regard to the conduct of a judge during a trial, and charging him with being an abettor of a person against whom an indictment Baldwin, 19 Conn. 585; Howell v. Buc many states, the subject is regulated by ute; U. S. R. S. § 725; U. S. v. R. C Fed. 853; Ex parte Robinson, 19 Wal S.) 505, 22 L. Ed. 205; People v. Wilse Ill. 195, 16 Am. Rep. 528; In re Oldha N. C. 23, 45 Am. Rep. 673; Foster v. C W. & S. (Pa.) 77; Cheadle v. State, 110 301, 11 N. E. 426, 59 Am. Rep. 199. The tion whether a contempt can be come otherwise than in court cannot be said settled, but Bishop is of the opinion the English and better American doctrines

nize such contempts, yet, under limit easily defined; 2 Bish. N. Cr. L. § 258.

such cases the offence is against the

not the judge; id. § 269; Haight v. Luc

Wis. 355; Whittem v. State, 36 Ind. 19

Bribery or attempting to bribe a judge at common law, a very grave offence deed the earlier definitions of bribery to confine the offence to judicial office Bla. Com. 139; 3 Inst. 145; and they criticised for being too narrow. See 1 183; 4 Burr. 2494; 2 Bish. N. Cr. L. n. 1.

Upon the same ground are condemne ister approaches, with intent to infl judges indirectly, though not amounti bribery; id.; and on this subject it wa by Lord Cottenham: "Every private munication to a judge, for the purpose fluencing his decision upon a matter pu before him, always is, and ought to t probated; it is a course calculated, if to ed, to divert the course of justice, and i sidered, and ought, more frequently th is, to be treated, as what it really is, contempt of court." 1 Macn. & G. 116, Judges are appointed or elected in a ety of ways in the United States. Fo federal courts they are appointed by the ident, by and with the consent of the se in some of the states they are appoint the governor, the governor and senate, the legislature. The judges of the fe courts and of the courts of some of the hold their offices during good behavio others, during good behavior, or until shall attain a certain age; and of other a limited term of years. The federal j must have the tenure of office during go havior conferred upon them before the be invested with any portion of the ju

Fed. 567, 2 L. R. A. 289. Impartiality is the first duty of a if he has any (the slightest) interest i cause, he is disqualified from sitting judge; aliquis non debet esse judex in pria causa; 8 Co. 118; Hill v. Wells, 6 (Mass.) 109; Gregory v. R. Co., 4 Oh 675; Knight v. Hardeman, 17 Ga. 253; born v. Fellows, 22 N. H. 473; Haw power; Kentucky & I. Bridge Co. v. R. (

Cal. 342, 27 Pac. 747; Chase v. Weston, 75 Ia. 159, 39 N. W. 246; such as his relationship to the parties; People v. Connor, 142 N. Y. 130, 36 N. E. 807; even where such party is administrator only; Dennard v. Jordan, 14 Tex. Civ. App. 398, 37 S. W. 876 (but relationship to plaintiff's attorney will not disqualify him; Patton v. Collier, 13 Tex. Civ. App. 544, 38 S. W. 53). Either party may make the objection that the judge is of kin to one of them; Kelly v. Hocket, 10 Ind. 299; and it is for the judge to determine, in the exercise of sound judicial discretion, whether by reason of kinship, etc., it would be improper for him to hear a particular case; he cannot be compelled to vacate the bench by the affidavit of the litigant; Byram's Ex'rs v. Holliday, 84 Ky. 18. A pecuniary interest in the case on trial will incapacitate him from sitting in the cause, both by the common law and the statutes; Ochus v. Sheldon, 12 Fla. 138; Buckingham v. Davis, 9 Md. 324; Pearce v. Atwood, 13 Mass. 340; as where he is interested as a stockholder in a railroad corporation making an application for a commission to appraise land, his interest is such as to invalidate the report of the commissioners; Gregory v. R. Co., 4 Ohio St. 675; or was a member of a mutual benefit society; Texas-Sovereign Camp v. Hale, 56 Tex. Civ. App. 447, 120 S. W. 539; or where the judge's wife was a stockholder in a corporation which was a party; First Nat. Bank v. McGuire, 12 S. D. 226, 80 N. W. 1074, 47 L. R. A. 413, 76 Am. St. Rep. 598. Where a statute disqualified a judge by reason of relationship with either litigant within the sixth degree, this did not disqualify a judge because he and the plaintiff's attorney had married sisters; Zambetti v. Garton, 113 N. Y. Supp. 804; where the lord chancellor, who was a shareholder in a company in whose favor the vice-chancellor had made a decree, affirmed this decree, it was reversed on that ground; 3 H. L. Cas. 759; but it has been held that where the interest of the judge is merely that of a corporator in a municipal corporation, the legislature may provide that this shall constitute no disqualification when the corporation is a party, apparently on the ground that the interest is insignificant; Commonwealth v. Reed, 1 Gray (Mass.) 475. But it is doubtful whether even the legislature can go beyond this class of cases and abolish the rule stated in the maxim; Cooley, Const. Lim.

Active political partisanship will not disqualify a judge to try a contested election case; Fulton v. Longshore, 156 Ala. 611, 46 South. 989, 19 L. R. A. (N. S.) 602.

If one of the judges is disqualified on this ground, a judgment rendered will be void, even though the proper number may have risdictions; January v. State, 36 Tex. Cr. R. 488, 38 S. W. 179; Lee v. Mortgage Co., 51 Tex. Civ. App. 272, 115 S. W. 320; and see infra. The objection may be raised for the first time in the appellate court; Richardson v. Welcome, 6 Cush. (Mass.) 332; 2 H. L. Cas. 387; but in Iowa it was held that an objection to a judge of the court of original jurisdiction on the ground of interest must be made in that court; Ellsworth v. Moore, 5 Ia. 486.

In a suit on a collector's bond by the chosen freeholders of a county, one who'was an inhabitant, a freeholder, and a taxpayer in the same county was incompetent to sit as judge; Peck v. Freeholders of Essex County, 21 N. J. L. 656. A judge is not disqualified to try a case because he has tried an action in trespass concerning the same property; Martyn v. Curtis, 68 Vt. 397, 35 Atl. 333.

The interest which disqualifies a judge of the supreme court so that a judge of the circuit court may sit in his stead must be immediate, certain, and dependent on the result of the case, and not remote, uncertain, or speculative; Trustees Internal Imp. Fund v. Bailey, 10 Fla. 213.

A bias which disqualifies a judge must be such as might cause him to act corruptly or with such oppression as to be equivalent to corruption, such as to make it improper that a man of integrity should hear the case; but the mere fact that a judge is unfriendly to personal injury suits does not disqualify him in such a case; McDonald's Adm'r v. Coal & Coke Co., 135 Ky. 624, 117 S. W. 349.

By statute a judge of the United States Court of Appeals is disqualified if he acted in the cause in the court below.

The general rule that it is irregular and improper for a judge to try any cause in which he has such an interest as would disqualify as a witness does not apply to orders purely formal in their character, and it is doubtful whether it would extend to a case in which no other judge could try and determine the cause. If the judge is deprived of authority to act, by statutory inhibition, the proceedings are void, otherwise voidable only, and therefore valid until avoided; Heydenfeldt v. Towns, 27 Ala. 423.

It is said to be discretionary with him whether he will sit in a cause in which he has been of counsel; Owings v. Gibson, 2 A. K. Marsh. (Ky.) 517; Denn v. Tatem, 1 N. J. L. 164. See Bank of North America v. Fitzsimons, 2 Binn. (Pa.) 454; Murphy v. Barlow, 5 Ind. 230; Cullen v. Drane, 82 Tex. 484, 18 S. W. 590. But the practice is to refuse to sit in such case. And in Reams v. Kearns, 5 Coldw. (Tenn.) 217, it was held that where the judge who rendered the judgment in the case had been counsel in it, the judgment was a nullity; Tampa Street R. & Power Co. v. concurred in the result, which includes the R. Co., 30 Fla. 595, 11 South. 562, 17 L. R. A. interested judge; 6 Q. B. 753; or though the 681. Such relation disqualifies; Stepp v. parties agree to waive objections to the ju- State, 53 Tex. Cr. R. 159, 109 S. W. 1093; but it is held that it may be waived; Kerr v. Burns, 42 Colo. 285, 93 Pac. 1120; acquiescence gives consent; id. The question arose in Delaware at the time of the appointment of Bates, Chancellor, in 1865, whether he was legally disqualified from sitting in such cases, so as to bring them within the constitutional provision, giving jurisdiction to the chief justice in all cases in which the chancellor was interested. In view of the desire of the chancellor not to sit in cases in which he had been of counsel, the question was considered by him and Gilpin, C. J., and the conclusion reached that there was not a legal disqualifi-This conclusion was communicated by the chancellor to the legislature with a suggestion that provision should be made for the appointment of a chancellor ad litem in such cases; MS. notes of Bates, Chancellor. Merely to have been counsel for one of the parties does not disqualify; Keller v. Riverton Water Co., 34 Pa. Super. Ct. 301.

While acting within the bounds of

risdiction, the judge is not respons

JUDGE

A magistrate authorized to sign writs cannot sign them in his own case; Doolittle v. Clark, 47 Conn. 316.

Where there is no other tribunal that can act, the judge may hear the case; Freem. Judg. § 146; 5 H. L. C. 88; Stuart v. Mechanics' Bank, 19 Johns. (N. Y.) 501; contra, Washington Ins. Co. of City of New York v. Price, Hopk. Ch. (N. Y.) 2; Hall v. Thayer, 105 Mass. 221, 7 Am. Rep. 513. See Cooley, Const. Lim., 2d ed. 207, 506, 509; People v. Gies, 25 Mich. 83.

It is said that a judge who has a personal interest in a cause may hear it if counsel waive the objection. Parke, B., heard a case under such circumstances; Reedie v. L. & N. W. R. Co., 4 Ex. 244. It is said to be settled in England that he must sit if the case cannot be heard otherwise. Pollock, First Book of Jurispr. 265, citing Thellusson v. Rendlesham, 7 H. L. C. 429. Lord Coke heard the case of Sutton's Hospital, 10 Rep. *1a, though he was at the time one of its governors, and decided it in its favor.

It was held that the absence of a judge from the court-room for a considerable time during the arguments to the jury without the consent of the parties was reversible error; Waller v. People, 209 Ill. 284, 70 N. E. 682.

A judge is not competent as a witness in a cause trying before him, for this among other reasons, that he can hardly be deemed capable of impartially deciding on the admissibility of his own testimony, or of weighing it against that of another; 1 Greenl. Ev. § 364; Ross v. Buhler, 2 Mart. La. (N. S.) 312; Julian v. Gallen, 2 Cal. 358. See Com. Dig. Courts (B 4), (C 2), (E 1), (P 16), Justices (I 1, 2, 3); Bacon Abr. Courts (B); 1 Kent 291; CHARGE.

In the House of Lords Lord Chancellor Westbury abstained from taking part in the decision because he had been concerned in the case; Di Sora v. Phillipps, 10 H. L. C. 624.

any error of judgment or mistake 12 Co. 23; Ross v. Rittenhouse, 2 Dal 160, 1 L. Ed. 331; Reid v. Hood, 2 N. (S. C.) 168, 10 Am. Dec. 582; Yates ing, 5 Johns. (N. Y.) 282; Ely v. Th 3 A. K. Marsh. (Ky.) 76; Evans v. 1 N. H. 374; Stone v. Graves, 8 Mo. Am. Dec. 131; Morrison v. McDonald 550; Hamilton v. Williams, 26 Al unless, possibly, a mistake was indi gross carelessness or ignorance part a criminal quality; 12 Mod. 493. At will not lie against a judge of a c record for any act done by him in h cial capacity; 6 B. & C. 611. An ac a judge, to be criminally or even civi nizable, must be wilful and corrupt Bla. 19; Dawning v. Herrick, 47 M Hamilton v. Williams, 26 Ala. 527; Lansing, 9 Johns. (N. Y.) 395; L

Grant, 8 Mo. 254. It is a rule sometimes asserted to solute and sometimes only prima faa judicial officer has no protection the consequences of an act not wit jurisdiction; Piper v. Pearson, 2 (Mass.) 120, 61 Am. Dec. 438; Cl May, 2 Gray (Mass.) 410, 61 Am. De Sullivan v. Jones, 2 Gray (Mass.) 570 ley v. Fisher, 13 Wall. (U. S.) 335, 20 646. But a distinction has sometim suggested between acts in excess of j tion and those outside of it. For th it has been said that a judge of a c superior jurisdiction is not liable; I Grey, C. J., in 2 W. Bla. 1141. Of the it is said by a writer cited infra, w sents from the doctrine: "It is true the is a mere dictum, and also that the has been since overruled; but this has sometimes been referred to with al in subsequent cases;" 15 Am. L. R And Field, J., in Randall v. Brigham, (U. S.) 523, 19 L. Ed. 285, said the a judge is not liable when he acts in of his jurisdiction, except for malice expression, like that of Lord De Gro obiter, inasmuch as the case sustain jurisdiction which had been question Lange v. Benedict, 73 N. Y. 12, 29 A 80, this point was so decided, but th drew a distinction between the case the judge had acquired no jurisdic all, and the case where the act was in excess of jurisdiction after juris had been acquired. There the judge circuit court had imposed a re-sente on a prisoner, and he was accordin prisoned; the supreme court held the sentence illegal, and discharged the pa These cases and the doctrine asset them have been doubted and critici

Arthur Biddle in 15 Am. L. Rev. 4

note, where the authorities cited and Inction has been discussed by Bishop, ites the doctrine of distinction beexcess and absence of jurisdiction proval, and even goes further, conthat where the jurisdiction is a e and it is decided by the judge or ate carefully and earnestly in favor urisdiction, "in reason and not quite support from authority," he should fer, though another or even a higher eld the contrary"; 1 Bish. N. Cr. L. ish. Non-Contr. § 783.

nat is, in chambers; 3 Moore, P. C. e Moffett v. Boydstun, 4 Kan. App. Pac. 24. ge cannot be held liable for delay in a cause; but if it be wilful and coris ground for impeachment; and us will lie to compel him to perform ; Wyatt v. Arnot, 7 Cal. App. 221, 86.

dge of a court not of record is not is no distinction between a judge

n court and acting judicially out of r any injury sustained which is the f an honest error of judgment in a wherein the court has jurisdiction, en the act done is not of a purely ial nature." The rule is thus stated m. L. Rev. 444. See further an ar-Ir. L. T. and Sol. J., Nov. 13, 1880; ec. 303; Lange v. Benedict, 29 Am. note; Stewart v. Cooley, 23 Am., note. See Coram non Judice. ubject of the liability of a judge to n is fully considered in Taaffe v. 3 Moore, P. C. 41, and Yates v. 5 Johns. (N. Y.) 283, both cited in rcuit judge has no power to review ise the action of another circuit Warren v. Simon, 16 S. C. 362; nor dge when without the state, power to n injunction; Price v. Bayless, 131 31 N. E. 88.

v. Brigham, 7 Wall. (U. S.) 523, cts of a judge de facto are not open eral attack; Ball v. U. S., 140 U. S. Sup. Ct. 761, 35 L. Ed. 377.

ge who acts corruptly may be im-Yates v. Lansing, 5 Johns. (N. Y.) m. v. Addison, 4 Dall. (U. S.) 225, 1 10.

ge is not bound, unless by statute, memorandum of his decision, and, if is not a part of the record unless he so; Phœnix Ins. Co. v. Carey, 80 6, 68 Atl. 993.

a lawyer becomes a judge, his right an attorney is temporarily suspendry v. Bush, 46 Fla. 242, 35 South. may appear for himself; Hegeman on, 35 Barb. (N. Y.) 202. In some rcuit judges are permitted to praccritically examined. More recently O'Hare v. R. Co., 139 Ill. 151, 28 N. E. 923; Morton v. R. Co., 81 Mich. 423, 46 N. W. 111. A court cannot itself decide as to its power to act or to exist as a court; Hill v. Tarver, 130 Ala. 595, 30 South. 499; contra, Swan v. Talbot, 152 Cal. 142, 94 Pac. 238, 17 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1066; State v. Banta, 122 La. 235, 47 South. 538.

An appellate court will not open a decree in a patent case for the introduction of newly discovered evidence because it had failed to "discover the notation of the mortgage in the abstract contained in the file wrapper and did not thereupon reverse the decree," it not having been called to the attention of the court by counsel; Moneyweight Scale Co. v. Scale Co., 199 Fed. 905, 118 C. C. A. 235. It has been observed that a judge's function is to give a good legal reason for the conclusions of common sense. Lord Esher, quoted in 16 L. Q. R. 3, n.

Under the Act of Settlement in England (1701) it was provided that the judges should hold office during good behavior, subject to removal upon the addresses of both houses of parliament, and that their salaries should be ascertained and established.

See, generally, Judicial Power; Judge-MADE LAW; FALSE IMPRISONMENT; OPEN COURT; GOOD BEHAVIOR; INCOMPETENCY.

For a list of judges of the United States supreme court, see Supreme Court; also for a list of lord chancellors, see CHANCEL-LOR; and for a list of English judges, see L. R. 12 App. Cas.

Under the Roman law a judge, by whose act or default in deciding or conducting a lawsuit, a party to the suit was injured, was liable to an action for damages, the amount of which was left to the discretion of the judge. Such action was regarded as quasi-delictual, because it was available, not only in cases of deliberately unfair decisions, but also in cases of less serious errors committed by the judge, as overlooking the day fixed for trial or disregarding the rules of law concerning adjournment and the like (imprudentia judicis). In such a case he was termed judex qui litem suam fecit (who makes the suit his own). The action in question, however, could not be taken on the ground that the judgment was unjust in substance; Sohm, Inst. Rom. L. 330; Mack. Rom. L. § 506; Morey, Rom. L. 383. See JUDEX.

JUDGE ADVOCATE. An officer of a court-martial who is to discharge certain duties at the trial of offenders. His duties are to prosecute in the name of the United States; but he shall so far consider himself as counsel for the prisoner, after the prisoner shall have made his plea, as to object to leading questions to any of the witnesses or any question to the prisoner the answer to which might tend to criminate himself. ircuit courts other than their own; He is, further, to swear the members of the confirm this. Judge-made law has over court before they proceed upon any trial, and may also administer oaths for purposes of military justice and other purposes of military administration; U. S. R. S. 2 Supp. 524.

JUDGE-ADVOCATE-GENERAL'S DE-PARTMENT. It consists in the army of one judge advocate with the rank of brigadier general; two judge advocates with the rank of colonel; three with the rank of major, and for each geographical department or division of troops not provided with such, one acting judge advocate with the rank, etc., of captain, mounted. Act of Congress, February 2, 1901.

A similar officer was provided for the navy under the act of June 8, 1880, with the title of judge-advocate-general of the navy. He has the rank and pay of a captain in the navy, or colonel of the marine corps, as the case may be. His duties are to receive, revise, and have recorded the proceedings of all courts-martial, courts of inquiry, and boards for examination of officers, for retirement and promotion, in the naval service, and such other duties as were theretofore performed by naval judge-advocates-general; U. S. R. S. 1 Supp. § 290; 2 id. § 500. The judge-advocate-general's department is now under the chief of staff. Act of February 14, 1903.

JUDGE-MADE LAW. A phrase used to indicate judicial decisions which construe away the meaning of statutes, or find meanings in them which the legislature never intended. It is sometimes used as meaning, simply, the law established by judicial precedent. Cooley, Const. Lim., 4th ed. 70, n. See Austin, Prov. of Jur. where the necessity of judicial legislation and its uses are discussed in extenso.

The expression judge-made law is undoubtedly more frequently used in the former sense, and as expressing a certain degree of opprobrium. It is, however, unavoidable that in the distribution of powers which is now recognized as a necessary element of civilized government, there should be found at times some uncertainty as to the line of demarcation between the legislative and judicial powers as well as between each of The necessity of them and the executive. what is called judge-made law in the proper sense, and the possibility of its existence in the other sense, arises from the power of construction which necessarily exists, and though salutary when properly exercised, is susceptible of abuse, and in such case, difflcult, if not impossible, to remedy. Of this power of construction it has been said that it "is a mighty one, and, unrestrained by settled rules, would tend to throw a painful uncertainty over the effect that might be given to the most plainly worded statutes, and render courts, in reality, the legislative power of the state. Instances are not wanting to the legislative department. It was the of Chief Justice Pemberton, one of the ju of the despot Charles II., and not the even of those times, that he had entirely done the parliament in making law." cer v. State, 5 Ind. 41, 46. A writer characterizes that kind of judicial leg tion which is necessary and proper u such a system as the common law: though it is considered necessary in all states to keep the legislative, executive judicial powers for the most part sepa and all our American constitutions pr for this, yet it cannot be completely The judges, it is well known, actually a great deal of law, and this judicial lation cannot be avoided, and indeed mu the best work that we get in this li done by them. But this they do as dele of the sovereign people, as much as con or the state legislatures;" Terry, A American Law 11.

Mr. Bishop earnestly contends that is no judge-made law; he says that preceded writing, and no writing ca made comprehensive enough to includ law, and no blundering of the judge monstrous as denial of right to a suitor is simply unable to find his case laid in the statute law or in a previous decis His view is that more errors are comm by failure to administer justice accor to "the general principles of our juri dence and the collective conscience of kind," for want of statute or precedent, in all other ways. The common-law sy was built up when there were few sta and the judges derived "principles for decisions from the known usages of the try and from what they found writte God in the breasts of men." Such, he siders, should be the action of judges and he assumes that they will always principles on which to adjudicate any m unprovided for by statutes or previou cisions. He argues that in view of ceaseless variety of changes in human fairs," while precedents are properly lowed, yet, now, as in the earlier per they have not covered the entire ground it is absurd that questions of right or reshould depend, not upon the abstract or the convenience or propriety of a dec either way, but "solely on the acci whether it arose in early times, rec then an adjudication, and the adjudic found a reporter." 1 Bish. N. Cr. L.

In a case for which he could find no edent, Jessel, M. R., said: "I am a that, whatever I may call my decisio will, in effect, be making law, which I rhave any desire to do; but I cannot that the point is covered by any decided or even appears to have been discusse any decided case. The only satisfacti will in all probability be carried to a higher court, and it will be for that court to make the law, or, as we say, declare the law, and not for me." L. R. 13 Ch. Div. 798, 805.

JUDGE-MADE LAW

It has been said that the phrase judicial legislation carries on its face the notion of judicial usurpation, and is habitually used by the courts as a term of reproach; but it is contended by the writer who admits this current use of the phrase, that, properly used, it means the growth of the law at the hand of the judges, and in that sense, so far from being an evil, "it is a desirable, and indeed a necessary, feature of our sys-5 Harv. L. Rev. 172. In the discussion of the subject the writer last cited considers that with respect to much that has been written on the subject of judicial legislation, the meaning cannot be fully understood without taking into consideration the different theories as to the nature of law. Those writers who accept the theory of Austin and Bentham are naturally found to use the terms judge-made law and judicial legislation as terms meriting contempt, and indeed Bentham so characterizes the whole On the other hand, those common law. writers who take the opposite view and maintain that the origin of law is not command but custom, not only eliminate from consideration the idea of judicial legislation, but go so far as to limit the function of the legislature itself in the effort "to assist society in getting rid of its old customs and forming new ones." Supporters of this view are James C. Carter, Rep. Am. Bar Ass'n, 1890, and Prof. Hammond, 1 Bla. Com., Hammond's ed. § 2. See James C. Carter's The Law, etc. The writer in the Harvard Law Review already cited discusses these conflicting views, giving preference to a third theory, intermediate between these two extremes, developed by Lawrence, Essay, Int. L, 2d ed. ch. i. The result is that, in what has been written on the subject of judicial legislation by the advocates of these various theories, there is less difference than is apparent on the surface, and that the process itself is recognized by all, though under different names. The importance of the subject is greatly enhanced in English law by the binding authority which is attributed to former decisions, and the reverence which is accorded to precedent. The conclusion reached is that judicial legislation is a necessary element in the development of the common law, but no precise rules can be laid down either as to the extent to which it should properly go, or how far a judge, in carrying on the process, may undertake to discard old doctrines and substitute new ones.

Lord Esher, M. R., has attempted to distinguish between "fundamental propositions of law" which might be changed only by parliament, and the "evidence of the exist-have in deciding the point is this, that it | ence of such a proposition," which was within the disposition of the court; 25 Q. B. Div. 57; but as it is very properly remarked, there is no test suggested to enable a court to make this discrimination.

> 'In substance the growth of the law is legislative, and this in a deeper sense than that what the courts declare to have been the law is in fact new. It is legislative in its The very considerations which grounds. judges most rarely mention, and always with an apology, are the secret root from which the law draws all the juices of life. I mean, of course, considerations of what is expedient for the community concerned. Every important principle which is developed by litigation is in fact and at the bottom the result of more or less definitely understood views of public policy; most generally, to be sure, under our practice and traditions, the unconscious result of instinctive preferences and inarticulate convictions, but none the less traceable to views of public policy in the last analysis." O. W. Holmes, Jr., The Common Law 35.

> "I cannot understand how any person who has considered the subject can suppose that society could have possibly gone on if the judges had not legislated, or that there is any danger whatever in allowing them that power which they have in fact exercised, to make up for the negligence or the incapacity of the avowed legislator. That part of the law of every country which was made by the judges has been far better made than that part which consists of statutes enacted by the legislature." Austin, note to Lect. V.

> "No intelligent lawyer would at this day pretend that the decisions of the courts do not add to and alter the law. The courts themselves, in the course of the reasons given for those decisions, constantly and freely use language admitting that they do. But English judges are bound to give their decisions in conformity with the settled general principles of English law, with any express legislation applicable to the matter in hand, and with the authority of their predecessors and their own former decisions. At the same time they are bound to find a decision for every case, however novel it may be; and that decision will be authority for other like cases, in future; therefore it is part of their duty to lay down new rules if required." Pollock's Notes to Maine's Anc. Law 46. See also Pollock, Expans. of C. L. 49: 20 L. Q. R. 406.

> In the appendix to Lewis' Law of Perpetuity, in the Report of the Real Property Commissioners (1832), Lord Campbell, Chairman, it is said: "At an early period (18 Edw. I) an act, commonly called the statute de donis conditionalibus, created a direct perpetuity, by enabling parties to establish a perpetual and unalienable entail; and this continued until the ingenuity and good sense of judges, without the aid of the legislature, | by the court of justice or other com and in opposition to a positive act of parliament, enabled tenants in tail to unfetter their estates, in favor of the free circulation of property.'

JUDGE-MADE LAW

"Judge-made law is subject to certain limitations. It cannot openly declare a new principle of law; it must always take the form of a deduction of some legal principle whereof the validity is admitted, or of some application or interpretation of some statutory enactment." Dicey, Law and Opinion in England 486.

See paper by A. H. F. Lefroy, 22 L. Q. Rev. 293, 416.

See Judicial Power; Dictum; Judicial DECISIONS; PRECEDENTS; LAW; FICTIONS.

JUDGE'S CERTIFICATE. l n English Practice. The written statement of the judge who tried the cause that one of the parties is entitled to costs in the action. It is very important in some cases that these certificates should be obtained at the trial. Tidd, Pr. 879; 3 Chitty, Pr. 458, 486; 3 Campb. 316; 5 B. & Ald. 796. A statement of the opinion of the court, signed by the judges, upon a question of law submitted to them by the chancellor for their decision.

JUDGE'S NOTES or MINUTES. statements noted by a judge on the trial of a cause, of what transpires in the course of the trial.

They usually contain a statement of the testimony of witnesses, of documents offered or admitted in evidence, of offers of evidence, and whether it has been received or rejected, and the like matters.

In general, judge's notes are not evidence of what transpired at a former trial, nor can they be read to prove what a deceased witness swore to on such former trial; for they are no part of the record, and he is not officially bound to make them. But in chancery, when a new trial is ordered of an issue sent out of chancery to a court of law, and it is suggested that some of the witnesses in the former trial are of an advanced age, an order may be made that, in the event of death or inability to attend, their testimony may be read from the judge's notes; 1 Greenl. Ev. § 166.

The employment of court stenographers has practically rendered it unnecessary for trial judges to take notes, at least with a view to a bill of exceptions.

JUDGMENT. in Practice. The conclusion of law upon facts found, or admitted by the parties, or upon their default in the course of the suit. Tidd, Pr. 930; Truett v. Legg, 32 Md. 147; Siddall v. Jansen, 143 Ill. 537, 32 N. E. 384. It may be on the main question, or on all of the questions, if there are several; Tipton v. Tipton's Adm'r, 49 Ohio St. 364, 30 N. E. 826.

tribunal, as the result of proceeding stituted therein for the redress of an ry. 3 Bla. Com. 395; Ætna Ins. Co. v. 12 Minn. 437 (Gil. 326). It is said to end of the law; Blystone v. Blystone, 373. It affects only parties and privies loney v. Finnegan, 40 Minn. 281, 41 979; Caperton v. Hall, 83 Ala. 171, 3

234; Savage v. McCorkle, 17 Or. 42, 2:

444; Johnson v. Powers, 139 U. S. 1

Sup. Ct. 525, 35 L. Ed. 112. The language of judgments, therefore not that "it is decreed," or "resolved the court; but "it is considered" (con atum est per curiam) that the plaint cover his debt, damages, or possession the case may require, or that the defe do go without day. This implies the judgment is not so much the decision court, as the sentence of the law prono tion and inquiry. Litigious contests present to the facts to appreciate, agreements to be strued, and points of law to be res The judgment is the result of the fu amination of all these.

and decreed by the court, after due del

In Tudor times and later judgmen used of things we call legislative, as as of things judicial; Oxf. Dict. s. v. ment; Exodus, xxi, 1.

DEFINITIONS. The various forms of ment are designated by the following t Judgment of assets in futuro, is against an executor or heir, who hol the time no property on which it can ate. See Quando Acciderint.

Judgment of cassetur breve or billa the writ or bill be quashed) is a jud; rendered in favor of a party pleadi abatement to a writ or action. Stepl Andr. ed. § 97.

Judgment by confession is a judgme tered for the plaintiff in case the defer instead of entering a plea, confesses the tion, or at any time before trial con the action and withdraws his plea and er allegations.

Contradictory judgment is a judg which has been given after the parties been heard; either in support of their of or in their defence. Cox's Ex'rs v. Th 11 La. 366. It is used in Louisiana t tinguish such judgments from those re ed by default.

Judgment de melioribus damnis is a ment entered at the election of the pla for the highest amount where damages been differently assessed against sever fendants. See De Melioribus Damnis.

Judgment by default is a judgment dered in consequence of the non-appea of the defendant. The term is also a to judgments entered under statutes or The decision or sentence of the law, given of court, for want of affidavit of de take some required step in the cause.

Judgment in error is a judgment rendered by a court of error on a record sent up from an inferior court.

Final judgment is one which puts an end to a suit.

As to judgment in rem, inter partes, or in personam, see those titles.

Interlocutory judgment is one given in the progress of a cause upon some plea, proceeding, or default which is only intermediate and does not finally determine or complete the suit. 3 Bla. Com. 396.

Judgment on the merits is one rendered after argument and investigation, and when it is determined which party is in the right, as distinguished from a judgment rendered upon some preliminary or merely technical point, or by default, and without trial.

Judgment of nil capiat per breve or per billam is a judgment in favor of the defendant upon an issue raised upon a declaration or peremptory plea.

Judgment by nil dicit is one rendered against a defendant for want of a plea.

Judgment of nolle prosequi is a judgment entered against the plaintiff where after appearance and before judgment he says "he will not further prosecute his suit." Steph. Pl., Andr. ed. § 97.

Judgment of non obstante veredicto is a judgment rendered in favor of one party without regard to the verdict obtained by the other party.

Judgment of non pros. (non prosequitur) is one given against the plaintiff for a neglect to take any of those steps which it is incumbent on him to take in due time. See Non Pros.

Judgment of non suit, a judgment rendered against the plaintiff when he, on trial by jury, on being called or demanded, at the instance of the defendant, to be present while the jury give their verdict, fails to make an appearance. See Non-Suit.

Judgment by non sum informatus is one which is rendered when, instead of entering a plea, the defendant's attorney says he is not informed of any answer to be given to the action. Steph. Pl., Andr. ed. § 97.

Judgment nunc pro tunc, is one entered on a day subsequent to the time at which it should have been entered, as of the latter date. See Nunc Pro Tunc.

Judgment pro retorno habendo is a judgment that the party have a return of the Judgment quando acciderint, is such a judgment against an executor or heir as binds only future assets. See QUANDO Ac-CIDERINT.

Judgment quod computet is a judgment in an action of account-render that the defendant do account.

Judgment quod partitio flat is the inter-plea, answer, and the like, or for failure to | locutory judgment in a writ of partition that partition be made.

> Judgment quod partes replacitent is a judgment for repleader. See REPLEADER.

> Judgment quod recuperet is a judgment in favor of the plaintiff (that he do recover) rendered when he has prevailed upon an issue in fact or an issue in law other than one arising on a dilatory plea. Steph. Pl., Andr. ed. § 97.

> Judgment of respondent ouster is a judgment given against the defendant after he has failed to establish a dilatory plea upon which an issue in law has been raised.

> Judgment of retraxit is one given against the plaintiff where, after appearance and before judgment, the plaintiff enters upon the record that he "withdraws his suit."

> See these several titles where they are separately treated.

> CLASSIFICATION. Judgments in civil causes, considered with respect to the method of obtaining them, may be thus classified.

> 1. When the result is obtained by the trial of an issue of fact. In this case the trial may involve questions both of law and fact, but the law is applied incidentally to the trial of the disputed facts, as in the admission or rejection of evidence, the conduct of the trial, and the instruction of the jury or, it may be, in the determination of the question whether the evidence is sufficient either in quality or quantity to be submitted to the jury. In these cases the law is admitted or applied to facts found by a jury or the court.

Judgments upon facts found are the fol-

- (1) Judgment of nul tiel record (q. v.) occurs when some pleading denies the existence of a record, and issue is joined thereon; the record being produced is compared by the court with the statement in the pleading which alleges it; and if they correspond, the party asserting its existence obtains judgment; if they do not correspond, the other party obtains judgment of nul tiel
- (2) Judgment upon verdict (q. v.) is the most usual of the judgments upon facts found, and is for the party obtaining the
- (3) Judgment non obstante veredicto is a judgment rendered in favor of the plaintiff notwithstanding the verdict for the defendant; this judgment is given upon motion (which can only be made by the plaintiff) when, upon an examination of the whole proceedings, it appears to the court that the defendant has shown himself to be in the wrong, and that the issue, though decided in his favor by the jury, is on a point which does not at all better his case; Smith, Act. 161. This is sometimes called a judgment upon confession, because it occurs after a pleading by defendant in confession and avoidance and issue joined thereon, and verdict found for defendant, and then it appears that the pleading was bad in law and might have been demurred to on that ground. The plea being substantially bad in law, of course the verdict which merely shows it to be true in point of fact, cannot avail to entitle the defendant to judgment; while, on the other hand, the plea being in confession and avoidance involves a confession of the plaintiff's declaration, and shows that he was entitled to maintain his action. Sometimes it may be expedient for the plaintiff to move for judgment non obstante veredicto, even though the verdict be in his favor; for, in a case like that described above, if he takes judgment as upon the verdict it seems that such judgment would be erroneous, and that the only safe course is to take it as upon confession; Cro. Eliz. 778; 2 Rolle, Abr. 99. See, also, Cro. Eliz. 214; Rastell, Ent. 622; Pemberton v. Van Rensselaer, 1 Wend. (N. Y.) 307. See Non Obstante Veredicto.

- (4) A judgment of repleader is given when issue is joined on an immaterial point, or one on which the court cannot give a judgment which will determine the right. the award of a repleader, the parties must recommence their pleadings at the point where the immaterial issue originated. REPLEADER. This judgment is interlocutory, quod partes replacitent. See Bacon, Abr. Pleas, 4 (M); Coleson v. Blanton, 3 Hayw. (Tenn.) 159.
- 2. When the facts are admitted by the parties, leaving only issues of law to be determined, which are as follows:
- (1) Judgment upon a demurrer against the party demurring concludes him, because by demurring, a party admits the facts alleged in the pleadings of his adversary, and relies on their insufficiency in law. DEMURRER.
- (2) It sometimes happens that though the adverse parties are agreed as to the facts, and only differ as to the law arising out of them, still these facts do not so clearly appear on the pleadings as to enable them to obtain the opinion of the court by way of demurrer; for on demurrer the court can look at nothing whatever except the plead-In such circumstances the statute 3 & 4 Will. IV. c. 42, § 25, which has been imitated in most of the states, allows them after issue joined, and on obtaining the consent of a single judge, to state the facts in a special case for the opinion of the court, and agree that a judgment shall be entered for the plaintiff or defendant by confession or nolle prosequi immediately after the decision of the case; and judgment is entered accordingly, called judgment on a stated.
- (3) Sometimes at the trial the parties find that they agree on the facts, and the only question is one of law. In such case ney named by the creditor, empowering a verdict pro forma is taken, which species of admission by the parties, general, where the jury find for the p generally, but subject to the opinion court on a special case, or special, they state the facts as they find ther cluding that the opinion of the cour decide in whose favor the verdict sh and that they assess the damages acco ly. The judgments in these cases are respectively, judgment on a general RESERVED; VERDICT. 3. Besides these, a judgment may be upon the admissions or confessions only of the parties.

subject to a special case, and judgm

a special verdict. See CASE STATED;

- (a) Such judgments when for def upon the admissions of the plaintiff a
- (1) Judgment of nolle prosequi, after appearance and before judgmen plaintiff says he "will not further pro his suit."
- (2) Judgment of retraxit is one after appearance and before judgmen plaintiff enters upon the record th "withdraws his suit," whereupon jud is rendered against him. The differen tween these is that a retraxit is a any future action for the same cause; a nolle prosequi is not, unless made judgment; 7 Bingh. 716; 1 Wms. 207, n.
- (3) A plaintiff sometimes, when he he has misconceived his action, obtains from the court to discontinue, on there is a judgment against him a has to pay costs; but he may commo new action for the same cause.
- (4) A stet processus is entered when agreed by leave of the court that all f proceedings shall be stayed: though in a judgment for the defendant, it is go ly, like discontinuance, in point of fa the benefit of the plaintiff, and enter his application, as, for instance, who defendant has become insolvent, it do carry costs; Smith, Act. 162.
- (b) Judgments for the plaintiff upon admitted by the defendant are:
- (1) Judgment by cognovit actionen novit or confession, where, instead of ing a plea, the defendant chooses to ac edge the rightfulness of the plaintif tion.
- (2) Judgment by confession relicta floatione, where, after pleading and trial, he both confesses the plaintiff's of action to be just and true and with or abandons his plea or other alleg Upon this, judgment is entered against without proceeding to trial.

Analogous to this is the judgmen fessed by warrant of attorney: this authority given by the debtor to an tionem, nil dicit, or non sum informatus. This differs from a cognovit in that an action must be commenced before a cognovit can be given; 3 Dowl. 278, per Parke, B.; but not before the execution of a warrant of attorney. Judgments by nil dicit and non sum informatus, though they are in fact founded upon a tacit acknowledgment on the part of the defendant that he has no defence to the plaintiff's action, yet as they are commonly reckoned among the judgments by default, will be explained under that head.

4. A judgment is rendered on the default of a party, on two grounds: it is considered that the failure of the party to proceed is an admission that he, if plaintiff, has no just cause of action, or, if defendant, has no good defence; and it is intended as a penalty for his neglect; for which reason, when such judgment is set aside or opened at the instance of the defaulting party, the court generally require him to pay costs.

(a) Such judgments against the defendant are:

(1) Judgment by default is against the defendant when he has failed to appear after being served with the writ; to plead, after being ruled so to do, or, in Pennsylvania and some other states, to file an affidavit of defence within the prescribed time; or, generally, to take any step in the cause incumbent on him. The practice of permitting judgment to be entered by default for want of a sufficient affidavit of defence, when the cause of action is a record, or is sworn to, has become practically universal. Under it courts usually refuse a judgment in cases in which motion on the affidavits raises a doubtful question. When such decisions can be reviewed, an order refusing judgment will rarely be reversed; Ensign v. Kindred, 163 Pa. 638, 30 Atl. 274.

(2) Judgment by non sum informatus is a species of judgment by default, where, instead of entering a plea, the defendant's attorney says he is "not informed" of any answer to be given to the action.

(3) Judgment by nil dicit is rendered against the defendant where, after being ruled to plead, he neglects to do so within the time specified.

(b) Such judgments against the plaintiff are:

(1) Judgment of non pros. (from non prosequitur) is one given against the plaintiff for a neglect to take any of those steps which it is incumbent on him to take in due

A judgment by default is just as conclusive between the parties of whatever is essential to support it as one rendered after answer and contest; Last Chance Min. Co. v. Mining Co., 157 U. S. 683, 15 Sup. Ct. 733, 39 L Ed. 859.

(2) Judgment of non suit (from non seqwiter, or ne suit pas) is where the plaintiff, for instance, interest upon a bill of exchange to confess judgment either by cognovis ac-|after giving in his evidence, finds that it will not sustain his case, and therefore voluntarily makes default by absenting himself when he is called on to hear the verdict. The court give judgment against him for this default; but the proceeding is really for his benefit, because after a nonsuit he can institute another action for the same cause, which is not the case—except in ejectment, in some states after a verdict and judgment against him. Judgments are further classified with reference to the stage of the cause at the time they are rendered.

1. Interlocutory judgments are such as are given in the middle of a cause upon some plea, proceeding, or default which is only intermediate, and does not finally determine or complete the suit. Any judgment leaving something to be done by the court, before the rights of the parties are determined, and not putting an end to the action in which it is entered, is interlocutory; Freem. Judg. § 12; 3 Bla. Com. 396. A judgment which is not final is called "interlocutory"; that is, an interlocutory judgment is one which determines some preliminary or subordinate point or plea, or settles some step, question, or default arising in the progress of the cause, but does not adjudicate the ultimate rights of the parties, or finally put the case out of court. Thus, a judgment or order passed upon any provisional or accessory claim or contention is, in general, merely interlocutory, although it may finally dispose of that particular matter; 1 Black, Judgm. 21.

Such is a judgment for the plaintiff upon a plea in abatement, which merely decides that the cause must proceed and the defendant put in a better plea. But, in the ordinary sense, interlocutory judgments are those incomplete judgments whereby the right of the plaintiff is indeed established, but the quantum of damages sustained by him is not ascertained. This can only be the case where the plaintiff recovers; for judgment for the defendant is always complete as well as final. The interlocutory judgments of most common occurrence are where a demurrer has been determined for the plaintiff, or the defendant has made default, or has by cognovit actionem acknowledged the plaintiff's demand to be just. After interlocutory judgment in such case, the plaintiff must ordinarily take out a writ of inquiry, which is addressed to the sheriff, commanding him to summon a jury and assess the damages, and upon the return of the writ of inquiry final judgment may be entered for the amount ascertained by the jury. It is not always necessary to have a writ of inquiry upon interlocutory judgment; for it is said that "this is a mere inquest of office to inform the conscience of the court, who, if they please, may themselves assess the damages;" 3 Wils. 62, per Wilmot, C. J.; and accordingly, if the damages are matter of mere computation, as, or promissory note, it is usual for the court to refer it to the master or prothonotary, to ascertain what is due for principal, interest, and costs, whose report supersedes the necessity of a writ of inquiry; 1 H. Bla. 541; 4 Price 134. But in actions where a specific thing is sued for, as in actions of debt for a sum certain, the judgment upon demurrer, default, or confession is not interlocutory, but is absolutely complete and final in the first instance.

2. Final judgments are such as at once put an end to the action by determining the right and fixing the amount in dispute. Such are a judgment for defendant at any stage of the suit, a judgment for plaintiff after verdict, a judgment for a specific amount confessed upon warrant of attorney, and a judgment signed upon the return of a writ of inquiry, or upon the assessment of damages by the master or prothonotary. Judgment for plaintiff is final also in an action brought for a specific sum, as debt for a sum certain, although entered upon a demurrer or default, because here, the amount being ascertained at the outset, the only question at issue is that respecting the right, and when that is determined nothing remains to be done. The question what is a final judgment becomes material in many cases where there is a right of review on error or appeal as to final, but not as to The term final interlocutory, judgments. judgment has been variously defined. A judgment which puts an end to the action by declaring that the plaintiff has either entitled himself, or has not, to recover the remedy he sues for. 3 Bla. Com. 398. A judgment which determines a particular cause and terminates all litigation on the same right. Kent 316. A judgment which cannot be appealed from, but is perfectly conclusive as to the matter adjudicated upon; Snell v. Manufacturing Co., 24 Pick. (Mass.) 300; Foster v. Neilson, 2 Pet. (U. S.) 294, 7 L. Ed. 415; Forgay v. Conrad, 6 How. (U. S.) 201, 12 L. Ed. A judgment is final which completely settles the rights of the parties. Brown v. Vancleave, 86 Ky. 381, 6 S. W. 25.

When by any direction of a supreme court of a state, an entire cause is determined, the decision, when reduced to form and entered in the records of the court, constitutes a final judgment, whatever may be its technical designation, and is subject to review in the supreme court of the United States; Board of Com'rs of Tippecanoe County v. Lucas, 93 U. S. 108, 23 L. Ed. 822; but when the state court remands a cause for further proceedings in the lower court it is not a final judgment; McComb v. Knox County, 91 U. S. 1, 23 L. Ed. 185; Smith v. Adams, 130 U. S. 167; 9 Sup. Ct. 566, 32 L. Ed. 895; Rice v. Sanger, 144 U. S. 197, 12 Sup. Ct. 664, 36 L. Ed. 403; Chicago & N. W. Ry. Co. v. Osborne, 146 U. S. 354, 13 Sup. Ct. 281, 36 L. Ed. 1002. DECREE.

3. When an issue in fact, or an issue in tract, nor can it be considered in the law arising on a peremptory plea, is determined for the plaintiff, the judgment the plaintiff do recover," etc., which a judgment quod recuperet; Steph. Com. Dig. Abatement (I 14, I 15); Pr. 3. When the issue in law arises atory plea, and is determined for th tiff, the judgment is only that the de "do answer over," called a judgmen spondeat ouster. In an action of judgment for the plaintiff is that the ant "do account," quod computet. ( the last two, quod computet and spondeat ouster, are interlocutory of first, quod recuperet, is either final locutory, according as the quantum ages is or is not ascertained at the r of the judgment. Judgment in error is either in af of the former judgment; in recall error in fact; in reversal of it for law; that the plaintiff be barred of of error, where a plea of release of e of the statute of limitations is found defendant; or that there be a venir de novo, which is an award of a ne Smith, Act. 196. A venire facias de n always be awarded when the plaint laration contains a good cause of act judgment in his favor is reversed court of error; Little Schuylkill Na Coal Co. v. Norton, 24 Pa. 470, 64 A 672. Frequently, however, when judg reversed, the court of error not merturns the decision of the court below, give such a judgment as the cour ought to have given; Smith, Act. 1 see Non Obstante Veredicto. NATURE OF THE OBLIGATION.

The whether a judgment is a contract is one very much discussed, and in son it was held to be such, chiefly upon thority of Blackstone, who rested his as to the propriety of this classificati the doctrine of the social compact. I tions of a judgment to the idea of a or a quasi-contract have received muc tion, in connection with the more ca vestigation and accurate understan that class of obligations known as qu tracts. Blackstone said, "Upon show judgment, once obtained, still in fu and yet unsatisfied, the law immedia plies that, by the original contract of the defendant hath contracted a de is bound to pay it;" 3 Bla. Com. : this expression it has been said, certainly a very remarkable stateme involves large assumptions in regard original contract of society' and its s binding force upon a judgment debto nineteenth century;" Howe, Stud. 188. This early theory of an "origi tract of society" has been long sine doned, and after the time of Blac Commentaries Lord Mansfield, in a c considered case, said, "A judgment is tract, nor can it be considered in the great vigor in a later case; O'Brien v. Young, 95 id. 428; this is also the prevailing doctrine in other states; Larrabee v. Baldwin, 35 Cal. 155; Masterson v. Gibson, 56 Ala. 56; McDonald v. Dickson, 87 N. C. 404; Tyler's Ex'rs v. Winslow, 15 Ohio St. 364; Sprott v. Reid, 3 G. Greene (Ia.) 489, 56 Am. Dec. 549; Rae v. Hulbert, 17 Ill. 572; some cases are contra; Morse v. Toppan, 3 Gray (Mass.) 411; Sawyer v. Vilas, 19 Vt. 43; Taylor v. Root, 43 N. Y. 335. The last case alone was relied on as the authority for the proposition that a judgment is a contract by Harlan, J., dissenting, in Louisiana v. Mayor, supra, but the case so relied upon is in a collection omitted from the regular reports and is in direct contradiction to cases cited supra, in which the opposing doctrine is emphatically stated by the same court, one decided four and the other sixteen years later. See also Burnes v. Simpson, 9 Kan. 658. The later text books concur in supporting the statement already made as to the weight of authority. In one a judgment is said to be not under any circumstances a contract (1 Black, Judgt. § 10), and in another it is said that though a judgment is not a contract, it may be treated in some cases as a contract or as included in that term in certain statutes; 1 Freem. Judgt. § 4. Cases in which the contrary has been held will usually be found within this classification.

3 Burr. 1545. The same view of the question was taken by the United States supreme court, which held that a judgment was not a "contract within the meaning of the constitutional prohibition against impairing the obligation of a contract;" Chase v. Curtis, 113 U. S. 452, 5 Sup. Ct. 554, 28 L. Ed. 1038. That court has, in two other important cases, discussed the question of the nature of a judgment and the obligation which is created by it, and in both cases it strongly dissents from the view of Blackstone and the earlier textwriters. In Lewis v. Shreveport, 108 U. S. 285, 2 Sup. Ct. 634, 27 L. Ed. 728, the court said: "A judgment for damages, estimated in money, is sometimes called, by text-writers, a specialty or contract of record, because it establishes a legal obligation to pay the amount recovered, and, by a fiction of law, a promise to pay is implied where such legal obligation exists. It is on this principle that an action ex contractu will lie upon a judgment. But this fiction cannot convert a transaction, wanting the assent of the parties, into one which necessarily implies it. Judgments for torts are usually the result of violent contests, and, as observed by the court below, are imposed on the losing party, by a higher authority, against his will and protest. The prohibition of the federal constitution was intended to secure the observance of good faith, in the stipulation of parties, against state action. Where a transaction is not based upon any assent of parties, it cannot be said that any faith is pledged with respect to it, and no case arises for the operation of the prohibition." In this case it was held that the conversion of a statutory right to demand compensation for damages caused by a mob into a judgment does not make it a contract within the constitutional prohibition against impairing the obligation of a contract. In the more recent case of Hilton v. Guyot, 159 U. S. 113, 16 Sup. Ct. 139, 40 L. Ed. 95, in referring to the doctrine of Blackstone, with reference to a foreign judgment, the court held that the idea that such judgment imposed or created an obligation or duty was a remnant of an ancient fiction, and "while the theory in question would serve to explain rules of pleading which originated while the fiction was believed in, it is hardly a suffident guide at the present day in dealing with questions of international law; and it might be safer to adopt the maxim applied to foreign judgments by Chief Justice Weston, speaking for the supreme judicial court of Maine, judicium redditur in invitum, or as given by Lord Coke, in præsumptione legis judicium redditur in invitum; Jordan v. Robinson, 15 Me. 167; Co. Lit. 248 b." In New York it is held that a judgment is in no sense a contract or agreement; Wyman v. Mitchell, 1 Cow. (N. Y.) 316; even a judgment founded upon a contract; McCoun v. R. Co., 50 N. Y.

Leake (Contracts, 1911 Ed. 105) classifies a judgment as a contract of record.

The civil law conception of the judgment is said to be correctly represented by the Louisiana case of Gustine v. Bank, 10 Rob. La. 412, in which it was held that "a judgment does not create, add to, nor detract from, the indebtedness of a party; it only declares it to exist, fixes its amount, and secures to the suitor the means of enforcing payment, and it is therefore necessary to look to the obligation upon which the judgment is based and ascertain whether it has arisen from contract or quasi-contract, from a delict or quasi-delict, or merely from the operation of law; the obligation is simply enforced and increased or diminished by the decree of the court. "It is declared to exist: it is interpreted; it is applied; it is put in the way of enforcement by the judicial power of the state;" Howe, Stud. Civ. L. 190.

In an interesting criticism upon the terminology adopted by Prof. Keener, in his work on quasi-contracts, a writer in the Harvard Law Review objects very seriously to the use of the term quasi-contract as an expression of the obligation of a judgment, which he says is "founded upon the mandate of the court, and depends for its validity upon the right of a court to adjudicate between contending parties;" 10 Harv. L. Rev. 213.

a contract or agreement; Wyman v. Mitchell, 1 Cow. (N. Y.) 316; even a judgment founded upon a contract; McCoun v. R. Co., 50 N. Y. tent judge or court, at a time and place appointed by law, and in the form it requires.

instituting another suit for the same

A judgment would be null if the judge had nevertheless do not debar the plaint not jurisdiction of the matter, or, having such jurisdiction, he exercised it when there was no court held, or out of his district, or if he rendered a judgment before the cause was prepared for a hearing.

The judgment must confine itself to the question raised before the court, and cannot extend beyond it. For example, where the plaintiff sues for an injury committed on his lands by animals owned and kept carelessly by defendant, the judgment may be for damages, but it cannot command the defendant for the future to keep his cattle out of the plaintiff's land. That would be to usurp the power of the legislature. A judgment declares the rights which belong to the citizen, the law alone rules future actions. The law commands all men, it is the same for all because it is general; judgments are particular decisions, which apply only to particular persons, and bind no others; they vary like the circumstances on which they are founded.

"The validity of a judgment is to be determined by the laws in force when it is rendered, and is not affected by subsequent changes therein;" Anderson v. Hotel Co., 92 Va. 687, 24 S. E. 269. "A judgment is not void merely because it is not dated;" Reed v. Lane, 93 Ia. 83, 65 N. W. 380. Courts should not render judgments which cannot be enforced by any process known to the law; Johnson v. Malloy, 74 Cal. 430, 16 Pac. 228. "In an action at law the court cannot render a conditional judgment;" Coh v. Bright, 2 Mo. App. Rep'r 1191.

The jurisdiction of a foreign court over the person or the subject-matter embraced in the judgment or decree of such court is always open to inquiry, and in this respect a court of another state is to be regarded as a foreign court; Grover & B. Sewing Mach. Co. v. Radcliffe, 137 U.S. 287, 11 Sup. Ct. 92, 34 L. Ed. 670; and a judgment in a state court having jurisdiction of the subject-matter and the parties, is binding upon the parties thereto in a suit in another state between the same parties, where the subject-matter and the issues are the same as in the former suit; Carpenter v. Strange, 141 U. S. 87, 11 Sup. Ct. 960, 35 L. Ed. 640.

OPERATION AND EFFECTS. The judgment of a court of general jurisdiction is presumed to have been rendered in the due exercise of that jurisdiction over person and subjectmatter, unless the contrary be shown; Calhoun v. Ross, 60 Ill. App. 309; and after twenty years the presumption of due notice to the parties becomes conclusive; Nickrans v. Wilk, 161 Ill. 76, 43 N. E. 741.

Final judgments are commonly said to conclude the parties; and this is true in general, but does not apply to judgments for defendant on non suit, as in case of non suit, by nolle prosequi, and the like, which are final judgments in one sense, because they put an end to all proceedings in the suit, but which being attacked directly by writ of e

With this qualification, the rule as effect of a judgment is as follows: The ment of a court of concurrent jurisdic rectly upon the point is, as a plea, a as evidence, conclusive, between th parties upon the same matter dire question in another court. The judge a court of exclusive jurisdiction dire on the point is in like manner conclus on the same matter, between the same ties, coming incidentally in question other court for a different purpose neither the judgment of a concurrent clusive jurisdiction is evidence of a ter which came collaterally in q though within their jurisdiction, nor matter incidentally cognizable, nor matter to be inferred by argument fi judgment. Duchess of Kingston's C Howell, St. Tr. 538; 2 Smith, L. C. 424 Cont. 295. The rule above given relates to the rule holds a fortiori. Moreover, all who are represented by the parties, an under them or in privity with the equally concluded by the proceeding privies whatever in estate, in blood law, are, therefore, estopped from li that which is conclusive upon him wit they are in privity; 1 Greenl. Ev. §§ 5 A decree or judgment on a matter ou the issue raised by the pleading is a Jones v. Davenport, 45 N. J. Eq. 77, 570; and so is the judgment of a cour is without jurisdiction; In re Sawyer a judgment upon proceedings in court; if the court is the same, of cou

S. 200, 8 Sup. Ct. 482, 31 L. Ed. 402. A further rule as to the conclusive judgments is sometimes stated thu judgment of a court of competent j tion cannot be impeached or set a any collateral proceeding except ground of fraud." See, generally, 1 Ev. pt. 3, ch. 5; Derr v. Wilson, 84 Robertson v. Winchester, 85 Tenn. 1 W. 781; Hilton v. Bachman, 24 Neb. N. W. 419; Sachse v. Clingingsmith, 406, 11 S. W. 69; Huling v. Impro Co., 130 U. S. 565, 9 Sup. Ct. 603, 32 1045. A judgment of a court havin diction both of the subject-matter a parties, however erroneous it may l valid, binding, and conclusive judgn to the matter in controversy, upon t ties thereto and those claiming under Adams v. Franklin, 82 Ga. 168, 8 S. Cheatham v. Whitman, 86 Ky. 614, 595; Bateman v. Miller, 118 Ind. 34

This does not prevent a judgmen

E. 292; Allan v. Hoffman, 83 Va. 129,

602; McCoy v. McCoy, 29 W. Va. 79

E. 809; Dowell v. Applegate, 152 U.

14 Sup. Ct. 611, 38 L. Ed. 463.

proceeding in the nature of an apand its validity may be impeached ner direct proceedings, as by motion n or set it aside, and in contests becreditors in regard to the validity of respective judgments; in this latter of cases the court will sometimes a feigned issue to try questions of ffecting the validity of the judgment. he record of a judgment show that it endered without service of process or rance of the defendant, or if that fact shown without contradicting the reof the record, it will be treated as void other state; Com. v. Blood, 97 Mass. Hoffman v. Hoffman, 46 N. Y. 30, 7 Rep. 299; McCauley v. Hargroves, 48 , 15 Am. Rep. 660. But this fact canshown in contradiction of the recitals record; Newcomb v. Peck, 17 Vt. 302, a. Dec. 340; Westervelt v. Lewis, 2 n, 511, Fed. Cas. No. 17,446; Wetherill lman, 65 Pa. 105; contra, Norwood v. 24 Tex. 551; Thompson v. Whitman, all. (U. S.) 457, 21 L. Ed. 897. See , Const. Lim., 2d ed. 27. Nor will it sumed to be void because of the abof the return of service on the sum-Ferguson's Adm'r v. Teel, 82 Va. 690. gment is not less conclusive because red by default; Harshman v. Knox v, 122 U. S. 306, 7 Sup. Ct. 1171, 30 L. 152; but a default judgment is void service has been had according to law; on v. Clark, 7 Mont. 100, 14 Pac. 663; on v. Marshall, 7 Mont. 288, 16 Pac. Furgeson v. Jones, 17 Or. 204, 20 Pac. L. R. A. 620, 11 Am. St. Rep. 808; ay Co. v. Ryan, 31 W. Va. 364, 6 S. E. 3 Am. St. Rep. 865; and a money judgagainst a non-resident defendant who personally served within the jurisdicnd who does not voluntarily appear, is Scott v. Streepy, 73 Tex. 547, 11 S. W. Needham v. Thayer, 147 Mass. 536, 18 429. In the leading case of Pennoyer T, it was held that a personal judgis without any validity, if it be rendera state court in an action upon a monmand against a non-resident of the who was served by a publication of ons, but upon whom no personal servprocess within the state was made and lid not appear; no title to property by a sale under an execution issued such a judgment; Pennoyer v. Neff, 95 714, 24 L. Ed. 565.

ters of defence arising since the judgmay be taken advantage of by a writ dita querela, or, which is more usual, ourt may afford summary relief on monough a judgment is vitiated by fraud not thereby rendered absolutely void; valid as between the parties to the and can be avoided only by a person Fed. 649, 84 C. C. A. 361.

injured by it; Webster v. Reid, Morr. (Ia.) 467; as where one holding a judgment against a railroad brought a suit to have another judgment, and a lease of the road to secure it, declared void for fraud, and obtained a decree accordingly, it was held, that the decree did not affect the validity of the judgment and the lease as between the parties thereto; Graham v. R. Co., 3 Wall. (U. S.) 704, 18 L. Ed. 247.

All the judgments, decrees, or other orders of courts, however conclusive in their character, are under the control of the court which pronounced them during the term at which they are rendered or entered of record, and may then be set aside, vacated, or modified by the court; Harris v. State, 24 Neb. 803, 40 N. W. 317; Henderson v. Coal & Coke Co., 140 U. S. 25, 11 Sup. Ct. 691, 35 L. Ed. 332; but after the term has ended, unless proceedings to correct the errors alleged have been taken before its close, they can only be corrected by writ of error or appeal, as may be allowed in a court which by law can reverse the decision; Brooks v. R. Co., 102 U. S. 107, 26 L. Ed. 91; St. Louis Public Schools v. Walker, 9 Wall. (U. S.) 603, 19 L. Ed. 650. To this rule there is an exception founded on the common-law writ of coram nobis, which brought before the court where the error was committed certain mistakes of fact not put in issue or passed upon by the court, such as the death of one of the parties when the judgment was rendered, coverture if a female party, infancy and failure to appoint a guardian, error in the process, or mistake of the clerk. But if the error was in the judgment itself, the writ did not lie. What was formerly done by this writ is now attained by motion and affidavits when necessary; Pickett v. Legerwood, 7 Pet. (U. S.) 147, 8 L. Ed. 638. See Fielden v. People, 128 Ill. 595, 21 N. E. 584; Seiler v. Bank, 86 Ky. 128, 5 S. W. 536. A judge has the power to amend a record at any time, so as to make it speak the truth; Brooks v. Stephens, 100 N. C. 297, 6 S. E. 81; Ex parte Henderson, 84 Ala. 36, 4 South. 284.

The general rule is that after the expiration of the term all final judgments, etc., pass beyond the control of the court unless steps be taken during the term to set aside, modify or correct them; Kingman v. Mfg. Co., 170 U. S. 675, 18 Sup. Ct. 786, 42 L. Ed. 1192; Tubman v. R. Co., 190 U. S. 38, 23 Sup. Ct. 777, 47 L. Ed. 946. But a judgment may always be reformed for the purpose of correcting computations in it after the term has ended; A. J. Woodruff & Co. v. U. S., 154 Fed. 861. A court may amend its record of a judgment at a subsequent term to prevent injustice through a mistake of the judge, or counsel, or the clerk, as by correcting the wording of an order of dismissal which did not conform to the motion on which it was based; Bernard v. Abel, 156 A court which has once rendered a judgment in favor of a defendant, dismissing the cause and discharging him from further attendance, cannot, after the end of the term, without notice to the defendant, set that judgment aside and render a new judgment against the defendant; such judgment is void and not entitled to credit in another state; Wetmore v. Karrick, 205 U. S. 141, 27 Sup. Ct. 434, 51 L. Ed. 745.

Equity will enjoin the enforcement of a judgment secured by perjury where the judgment debtor used diligence, but failed to discover the perjury in time to be available at the trial; Boring v. Ott, 138 Wis. 260, 119 N. W. 865, 19 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1080.

A joint judgment which is void as to one of the parties is void as to all; 6 Mackey 548. A judgment against several persons, one of whom dies before its rendition, is voidable as to all; Claffin v. Dunne, 129 Ill. 241, 21 N. E. 834, 16 Am. St. Rep. 263.

MERGER. The question how far the cause of action is merged in a judgment sometimes becomes very material, as affecting the right to sue on the former in another jurisdiction. "The judgment of a court of competent jurisdiction discharges the obligation which the action is brought to enforce. The judgment may operate either to merge the original obligation, in so far as judgment is rendered for the plaintiff; or to estop the plaintiff from subsequently setting up his original claim, in so far as judgment is rendered for the defendant." Harriman, Contr. 295.

The effect of the merger of the cause of action is often very serious; one having a right of action against two or more persons may, by recovering judgment against one of them, lose his remedy against the As where the plaintiff, in an action upon a joint contract obligation elected to enter judgment against one defendant, in default of plea or answer, the judgment was held a bar to a subsequent action against the other, the debt being merged in the judgment; Davison v. Harmon, 65 Minn. 402, 67 N. W. 1015; O'Hanlon v. Scott, 89 Hun 44, 35 N. Y. Supp. 31; but the cause of action does not merge in a void judgment; McCadden v. Slauson, 96 Tenn. 586, 36 S. W. 378

Where the cause of action has arisen in a foreign country, the plaintiff has the option to sue on a judgment obtained there, or ignoring the judgment to proceed upon the original cause of action, in both cases subject to certain exceptions, as where the judgment is to enforce a penalty or for a tort on which there is no action here; Lyman v. Brown, 2 Curt. C. C. 559, Fed. Cas. No. 8,627. This choice of remedy does not exist in the case of judgments in sister states; a cause of action in such case is merged and the remedy is confined to an action on the judgment; Freeman, Jud § 241; Henderson v. Staniford, 105 504, 7 Am. Rep. 551; Barnes & Dr Gibbs, 31 N. J. L. 317, 86 Am. Dec. 210 ley v. Linah, 16 Pa. 241, 55 Am. Decontra, Beall's Adm'r v. Taylor's Ad Gratt. (Va.) 532, 44 Am. Dec. 398. Tas stated is subject to the exception there is no merger of the cause of in the judgment unless the latter is governed the action was held not to abate death of a party, because the judgmening been entered, the action thereaft the attributes of a contract; Carr v. F. 119 N. Y. 117, 23 N. E. 296.

It has been held that in an action the tort merges in the judgment, so allow an attachment as on the co Johnson v. Butler, 2 Ia. 535; althour tort cannot be set up as a counter-cla judgment upon it may, as constituting tract; Taylor v. Root, *43 N. Y. 335 was held that a judgment so far extied the original debt that a set-off avin the suit on the debt by reason of a against an assignor of said debt was ger available after judgment; Ault v. ing, 38 Ind. 429.

The doctrine of the merger of the of action is not carried to such extr to defeat the equities or just rights defendant or plaintiff. Thus it has be with some frequency that it can be against a judgment that the same v tained upon a debt which was pragainst defendant in proceedings in vency, and being so provable was barthe discharge in insolvency, and as the discharge in insolvency, and as the charge barred the debt, it barred the ment resting on the debt; Clark v. R. 3 N. Y. 216, 53 Am. Dec. 290.

Where the defendant was sued in chusetts, in debt on a judgment, he r a discharge under the New York inso law, and it was held that the court look behind the judgment and see w under the facts giving rise to it, it discharged; Betts v. Bagley, 12 Pick. ( 572; and, on the other hand, a judgme parently discharged by insolvency p ings, but found to be based on notes ex before the passage of the insolvent la held not affected by the latter, and e able; Wyman v. Mitchell, 1 Cow. ( 316; so it was held that a judgment de prevent a creditor from taking an ment as a non-resident creditor; Ow Bowie, 2 Md. 457.

Though a judgment is to some purp merger of the original contract, an stitutes a new debt, yet when the esrights of the parties are influenced nature of the original contract, the coulook into the judgment for the purp ascertaining what the original contract principle of the cases last cited has frequently enunciated. In Clark v. ng, 3 N. Y. 216, 53 Am. Dec. 290, Hurl-,, said that "a judgment, instead of begarded strictly as a new debt, is someheld to be merely the old debt, in a orm, so as to prevent a technical mergm working injustice." In Betts v. 7, 12 Pick. (Mass.) 572, Shaw, C. J., "Although a judgment, to some puris considered as a merger of the fornd as constituting a new cause of acet when the essential rights of pare influenced by the nature of the origontract, the court will look into the ent for the purpose of ascertaining he nature of such original cause of acas. Any other decision would carry chnical doctrine of merger to an incont extent and cause it to work injus-

 The form of the judgment varies ing to the nature of the action and cumstances, such as default, verdict, nder which it is obtained. Anciently particularity was required in the ennade upon the judgment roll; but now, n the English practice, the drawing up dgment roll is generally neglected, exn cases where it is absolutely necesis where it is desirable to give the progs in evidence on some future occa-Smith, Act. 169. In this country the rarely if ever drawn up, the simple on the trial list and docket, "judgment aintiff," or "judgment for defendant," all that is generally considered necesand though the formal entries are in still required to constitute a complete , yet if such record should subsequenteeded for any purpose, it may be made er any length of time from the skeleton upon the docket and trial list. See s v. Anderson, 11 Pa. 399. When the is thus drawn up in full, the ancient ities must be observed, at least in a re.

GMENT ON VERDICT. A judgment on lict virtually overrules all demurrers declaration; Fleming Oil & Gas Co. v. ., 37 W. Va. 645, 17 S. E. 203. The of such verdicts varies according to tion and frequently also with the charin which a party sues or is sued.

eccount, judgment for the plaintiff is cutory in the first instance, that the ant do account, quod computet; Kitch-Strawbridge, 4 Wash. C. C. 84, Fed. io. 7,854.

ssumpsit, judgment for the plaintiff is e recover the damages assessed by the and full costs of suit; 1 Chitty, Pl. 100. ent for the defendant is that he recovcosts. For the form, see Tidd, Pr. 165.

ase, trover, and trespass, the judgment slightly in form from that of assumpsit; 1 Chitty, Pl. 100, 147.

A judgment in trover passes title to the goods in question; Mitchell v. Shaw, 53 Mo. App. 652; Griel v. Pollak, 105 Ala. 249, 16 South. 704; but only where the value of the thing converted is included in the judgment; 5 H. & N. 288; and it is held that an unsatisfied judgment does not pass the property; L. R. 6 C. P. 584; Lovejoy v. Murray, 3 Wall. (U. S.) 1, 16, 18 L. Ed. 129; Pryor v. Cattle Co., 6 N. M. 44, 27 Pac. 327. In a somewhat analogous case it was held that a judgment for the value of horses lost to the owner by negligence of the defendant, of itself passes title to the horses to the defendant becoming liable for their value; St. Louis, A. & T. Ry. Co. v. McKinsey, 78 Tex. 298, 14 S. W. 645, 22 Am. St. Rep. 54. See Floyd v. Browne, 1 Rawle (Pa.) 121, 18 Am. Dec. 602. Where personal property had been sold and partly paid for, title being retained by the vendor, and he recovered in trover both the property and instalments due, on appeal it was directed that the judgment be discharged on payment within a time limited of purchase money, interest, and cost, otherwise the original judgment below to stand of full force; Morton v. Frick Co., 87 Ga. 230, 13 S. E. 463.

In covenant, judgment for the plaintiff is that he recover the amount of his damages as found which he has sustained by reason of the breach or breaches of the defendant's covenant, together with costs of suit; 1 Chitty, Pl. 116. Judgment for defendant is for costs.

In debt, judgment for the plaintiff is that he recover his debt, and in general nominal damages for the detention thereof; and in cases under the 8th & 9th Will. III. c. 11, for successive breaches of a bond conditioned for the performance of a covenant, it is also awarded that he have execution for such damages, and likewise full costs of suit; 1 Chitty, Pl. 108. But in some penal and other actions the plaintiff does not always recover costs; Esp. Pen. Act. 154; Hull, Costs 200; Bull. N. P. 333; Clark v. Dewey, 5 Johns. (N. Y.) 251. Judgment for defendant is generally for costs; but in certain penal actions neither party can recover costs; Clark v. Dewey, 5 Johns. (N. Y.) 251. See Tidd, Pr. Forms 176.

In detinue, judgment for the plaintiff is in the alternative that he recover the goods or the value thereof if he cannot have the goods themselves, with damages for the detention, and costs; 1 Chitty, Pl. 121, 122; Thompson v. Musser, 1 Dall. (Pa.) 458, 1 L. Ed. 222. See Tidd, Pr. Forms 187.

If judgment in any of the above personal actions is against the defendant in the character of executor, it confines the liability of the defendant for the debt or damages to the amount of assets of the testator in same in substance, and differs but his hands, but leaves him personally liable for costs. See the form, Tidd, Pr. Forms 168. If the executor defendant has pleaded plene administravit, judgment against him confines his liability to such amount of the assets as shall hereafter come to his hands. See the form, Tidd, Pr. Forms 174. A general judgment for costs against an administrator plaintiff is against the estate only.

A judgment against an executor or heir where the plea is false, to the defendant's own knowledge, may be a general judgment as if the recovery was for his own debt, but in other cases a judgment against an executor is generally special, to be levied of the goods or land of his testator; 7 Taunt 580.

A judgment on a covenant of a married woman against her separate estate may be entered as a personal judgment against her; Williamson v. Cline, 40 W. Va. 194, 20 S. E. 917; such judgment must be entered in a special form; 14 Ch. D. 837; but the record need show no special fact fixing her liability; Jester v. Hunter, 2 Pa. Dist. R. 690.

In dower, judgment for demandant is interlocutory in the first instance with the award of a writ of habere facias seisinam, and inquiry of damages, on the return of which final judgment is rendered for the value of the land detained, as ascertained by the jury, from the death of the husband to the suing out of the inquisition, and costs of suit. See the form, 3 Chitty, Pl. 583.

In ejectment, judgment for plaintiff is final in the first instance, that he recover the term, together with the damages assessed by the jury, and the costs of suit, with award of the writ of habere facias possessionem, directing the sheriff to put him in possession. See the form, 3 Bla. Com. App. xii.; Tidd, Pr. Forms 188. A judgment in ejectment is conclusive as to title between the parties thereto, unless the jury find for the plaintiff less than the fee; McDowell v. Sutline, 78 Ga. 142, 2 S. E. 937. A consent verdict in ejectment is conclusive on the parties and their privies; id.

In partition, judgment for plaintiff is also interlocutory in the first instance; quod partitio flat with award of the writ de partitione facienda, on the return of which final judgment is rendered,— "therefore it is considered that the partition aforesaid be held firm and effectual forever," quod partitio facta firma et stabilis in perpetuam teneatur; Co. Litt. 169. See the form, 2 Sell. Pr. 319, 2d ed. 222.

In replevin. If the replevin is in the detinet, i. e. where the plaintiff declares that the chattels "were detained until replevied by the sheriff," judgment for plaintiff is that he recover the damages assessed by the jury for the taking and unjust detention, or for the detention only where the taking was justifiable, and also his costs; Easton v. Worthington, 5 S. & R. (Pa.) 130; Hamm.

N. P. 488. If the replevin is in the detinet, that the said A B do recover against said C D his said debt, and also — his damages which he has sustained, as on occasion of detaining the said debt a his costs and charges by him about his in this behalf expended, by the court here adjudged to the said A B, and his assent. And the said C D in mercy, In actions founded on torts accompany.

i. c. where the plaintiff declares that chattels taken are "yet detained," the in giving a verdict for plaintiff find, in tion to the above, the value of the cheach separately; for the defendant perhaps restore some, in which case plaintiff is to recover the value of the mainder; Hamm. N. P. 489; Fitzh. 159 b; Easton v. Worthington, 5 S. (Pa.) 130.

If the replevin be abated, the judg is that the writ or plaint abate, and the defendant, having avowed, have a r of the chattels.

If the plaintiff is nonsuited, the judg for defendant, at common law, is tha chattels be restored to him, and that out his first assigning the object of the ing, because by abandoning his suit the tiff admits that he had no right to d sess the defendant by prosecuting th plevin. The form of this judgment is s "to have a return," pro retorno had without adding the words "to hold irrep able;" Hamm. N. P. 490. For the for judgments of nonsuit under the statut Hen. VIII. c. 19, and 17 Car. II. c. Hamm. N. P. 490; 2 Chitty, Pl. 16 Wentw. Pl. 116; 5 S. & R. 132; 1 S 195, n. 3; 2 id. 286, n. 5. In these case defendant has the option of taking his ment pro retorno habendo at common Easton v. Worthington, 5 S. & R. (Pa.) supra; 3 Term 349.

When the avowant succeeds upon merits, the common-law judgment is the "have return irreplevisable;" for it is parent that he is by law entitled to possession of the goods; Wallace v. It is S. & R. (Pa.) 145; Hamm. N. P. 49 Chitty, Pl. 162. For the form of judgin such case under the statutes last mered, see Hamm. N. P. 494.

AFTER VERDICT, the general form of ment for plaintiff in actions on cont sounding in damages, and in actions for ed on torts unaccompanied with violen this: "Therefore it is considered tha said A B do recover against the said his damages aforesaid, and also his said costs and charges, by the court here adjudged of increase to the said with his assent; which said damages, and charges in the whole amount to And the said C D in mercy, etc." Ιn for a sum certain, the general form is that the said A B do recover against said C D his said debt, and also his damages which he has sustained, as on occasion of detaining the said debt a his costs and charges by him about his in this behalf expended, by the court here adjudged to the said A B, and off is, "—— that the said A B do reagainst the said C D his damages aid, and also —— for his said costs harges by the court now here adjudged rease to the said A B, and with his t; which said damages, costs, and so in the whole amount to ——. And said C D be taken, etc."

I judgment for the defendant is in words: "Therefore it is considered he said A B take nothing by his writ at he be in mercy, etc. (or that he is pledges to prosecute be in mercy, and that the said C D do go thereof it day, etc. And it is further consid—"." Then follows the award of costs of execution therefor. See Tidd, Pr. 189.

is the general form of judgment for ant, whether it arise upon interlocuroceedings or upon verdict, and whate the form of action. This is somecalled judgment of nil capiat per brove billam; Steph. Pl., Andr. ed. § 97. words "and the said --- in mercy, r, as expressed in Latin, quod sit in cordia pro falso clamore suo, were ly an operative part of the judgment, g an invariable rule of the common at the party who lost his cause was ed by amercement for having unjusterted or resisted the claim. And on count pledges of prosecution were reof the plaintiff before the return of iginal, who were real and responsible s and liable for these amercements. fterwards the amercements ceased to icted,—perhaps because the payment s took their place,—and, this portion judgment becoming mere matter of he pledges returned were the fictitious John Doe and Richard Roe. Bacon, ines, etc. (C 1); 1 Ld. Raym. 273.

words "and let the said — be in Latin, capiatur pro fine, which above in the form of judgment in acfounded on torts accompanied with the were operative at common law, beformerly a defendant adjudged to committed a civil injury with actual the was obliged to pay a fine to the or the breach of the peace implied in the transplant of the fine was paid. This was need by stat. 5 W. & M. c. 12; but the was still retained in entering judggainst defendant in such actions. See Pl. § 38, 82; Bacon, Abr. Fines, etc. 1 Ld. Raym. 273; Style 346.

e are called, respectively, judgments ericordia and of capiatur.

EMENTS IN OTHER CASES. On a pleasement, either party may demur to the ag of his adversary or they may join

On demurrer, judgment for the plaintiff is that the defendant have another day to plead in chief, or, as it is commonly expressed, that he answer over; quod respondeat ouster; and judgment for defendant is that the writ be quashed; quod cassetur billa or breve. But if issue be joined, judgment for plaintiff is quod recuperet, that he recover his debt or damages, and not quod respondeat; judgment for defendant is the same as in the case of demurrer, that the writ be quashed. But the plaintiff may admit the validity of the plea in abatement, and may himself pray that his bill or writ may be quashed, quod cassetur billa or breve, in order that he may afterwards sue or exhibit a better one; Steph. Pl., Andr. ed. § 97; Lawes, Civ. Pl. See the form, Tidd, Pr. Forms 195. Judgment on demurrer in other cases, when for the plaintiff, is interlocutory in assumpsit and actions sounding in damages, and recites that the pleading to which exception was taken by defendant appears sufficient in law, and that the plaintiff ought, therefore, to recover; but the amount of damages being unknown, a court of inquiry is awarded to ascertain them. See the form, Tidd, Pr. Forms 181. In debt it is final in the first instance. See the form, id. p. 181. Judgment on demurrer when for the defendant is always final in the first instance, and is for costs only. See the form, id. 195.

Judgment by default, whether by nil dicit or non sum informatus, is in these words, in assumpsit or other actions for damages, after stating the default: "wherefore the said A B ought to recover against the said C D his damages on occasion of the premises; but because it is unknown to the court, etc., now hear what damages the said A B hath sustained by means of the premises, the sheriff is commanded, etc." Then follows the award of the writ of inquiry, on the return of which final judgment is signed. See the forms, Tidd, Pr. Forms 165. In debt for a sum certain, as on a bond for the payment of a sum of money, the judgment on default is final in the first instance, no writ of inquiry being necessary. See the form, id. 169.

Plaintiff cannot take a default where there is no declaration on file; Woodruff v. Matheney, 55 Ill. App. 350; and a default cannot be entered after defendant has interposed a plea in bar; Green v. Jones, 102 Ala. 303, 14 South. 630; but the mere filing of an answer will not prevent a judgment by default, there must also be a subsequent appearance by defendant to protect his rights; Lytle v. Custead, 4 Tex. Civ. App. 490, 23 S. W. 451.

It is error to enter judgment by default while a plea to part and a demurrer to the rest of the declaration are on file; Race v. Hall Ass'n, 50 Ill. App. 131; but the rendition of a judgment by default, where the petition states the facts sufficient to maintain the cause of action, is within the discretion of the trial judge; In re Downs, 3 Ohio Dec. 'that the parties have agreed to a di 56; and so is the opening of a judgment by and nothing more. default; St. Mary's Hospital v. Ben. Co., 60 Minn. 61, 61 N. W. 824; Jackson v. Bru- dia concludendi and it cannot be impe nor, 17 Misc. 339, 39 N. Y. Supp. 1080; where ther in or out of the state by showi an answer failed to reach the court in time it was based on a mistake of law; through the fault of the postmaster, it was leroy v. Lum, 210 U. S. 230, 28 Sup. held that a default should be set aside; Wal- 52 L. Ed. 1039; but when the matter rad v. Walrad, 55 Ill. App. 668.

udgment by cognovit actionem is for the the judgment; Munday v. Vail, 34 l amount admitted to be due, with costs, as on 418, followed in Reynolds v. Stockt a verdict. In Pennsylvania by statute, the plaintiff may take judgment for an amount admitted to be due and proceed to trial for the remainder of his claim.

Judgment of non pros. or non suit is final, and is for defendant's costs only, which is also the case with judgment on a discontinuance or nolle prosequi.

A court has inherent power to enter a judgment on the pleadings; Stratton's Independence v. Dines, 126 Fed. 968.

A judgment by default is just as conclusive an adjudication between the parties of whatever is essential to support the judgment as one rendered after answer and con-U. S. 692, 15 Sup. Ct. 733, 39 L. Ed. 859; 1 ment is to notify all interested pers test; Last Chance Min. Co. v. Min. Co., 157 Freem. Judgt. § 330; Big. Esto. 77. So of a judgment on demurrer; Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Slaght, 205 U. S. 122, 27 Sup. Ct. 442, 51 L. Ed. 738.

Some courts refuse to give effect to a judgment by consent as a judgment in invitum, and admit the judgment record only as evidence of the agreement reached by the parties; Jenkins v. Robertson, L. R. 1 H. L. 117, that no matter upon which the court has not is for this purpose conclusive evidence The position is based on the theory exercised its judicial mind by determining the respective rights of the litigants and pronouncing judgment accordingly can be considered res judicata. As a matter of definition, this proposition is scarcely open to question. But the parties have caused the court to place their deliberate agreement upon the record as a formal judgment; and except in case of mistake or fraud, it would seem that they should be estopped from later denying it, even though the strict principles Life Ins. Co. v. Hesser, 77 Ia. 381, 42 of res judicata are not applicable; Kelly v. Town of Milan, 21 Fed. 842, 863. In fact the majority of jurisdictions disregard the argument of definition and hold the judgment binding upon the parties according to its terms; Nashville, C. & St. L. Ry. Co. v. U. S., 113 U. S. 261, 5 Sup. Ct. 460, 28 L. Ed. sidered merged in the judgment, and to a before signing judgment, in order to g later suit between the same parties on the defeated party an opportunity to appl same subject-matter a plea of res judicata is new trial, or to move in arrest of judicata a complete defense. Where, however, the aci if he is so disposed. This interval, it tion is simply dismissed by the consent of land, is four days; Smith, Actions 1 the parties, there is not the same ground for this country it is generally short; but the argument of estoppel; Lindsay v. Allen, regulated either by statute or by r 112 Tenn. 637, 82 S. W. 171. It states only court, it of course may vary in the d judgment. By the stat. 4 & 5 W. & 1

A judgment is conclusive as to all is not embraced within the issue, it U. S. 268, 11 Sup. Ct. 773, 35 L. Ed. MATTERS OF PRACTICE. Of docket

all final judgments are required to ularly docketed: that is, an abstract judgment is to be entered in a bool the judgment-docket; 3 Bla. Com. 39 in these states the same regulation p See Rockwood v. Davenport, 37 Minn. N. W. 377, 5 Am. St. Rep. 872. Besid an index is required to be kept in Eng judgments confessed upon warrant o ney, and of certain other sorts of judg 3 Sharsw. Bla. Com. 396, n. In most states this index is required to incl judgments. The effect of docketing th cluding purchasers or incumbrancers upon which the judgment is a lien, a sequent judgment creditors, of the ex and amount of the judgment. Freen § 343. Judgments only become lier the time they are rendered, or notice of is filed in the register's office of the where the property is situated; I Blair, 133 U. S. 534, 10 Sup. Ct. 338, 33 721. In Pennsylvania, the judgmen amount of a judgment in favor of a p er of the land bound thereby, but not him: if the amount indexed is less the actual amount, the purchaser is not b go beyond the index; but if the amo dexed is too large, he may resort to th ment-docket to correct the mistake; of Hance, 1 Pa. 408. A failure to inabstract of a judgment is fatal to th Nye v. Moody, 70 Tex. 434, 8 S. W. 60 v. Gribble, 70 Tex. 458, 8 S. W. 608; 325, 4 L. R. A. 122, 14 Am. St. Rep. 2

Now, in England, judgments, in o affect purchasers, mortgagees, and cr must be registered in the High Cou renewed every five years. See 2 & 3 11. 8. 5.

Of the time of entering the judgmen The original cause of action is con- er verdict a brief interval is allowed to , and even in different courts of the between parties, where the direct object is state.

gments are in their nature equal till are reversed, in what court soever they btained; a judgment in a court of recy grant, is equal to a judgment in a of record by prescription; and a judgin a court of pie poudre is equal to a ent in any of the superior courts. El-L. C., in 3 Swanst. 575.

against a defendant who died after e or appearance and before trial is or merely voidable, the authorities are ncilably in conflict; Moehlenpah v. ew, 138 Wis. 564, 119 N. W. 826, citing n 49 L. R. A. 153.

ARREST OF JUDGMENT; ASSUMPSIT; AT-IENT; CONFLICT OF LAWS; COVENANT; DECISION; DETINUE; EJECTMENT; CASE; e; Foreign Judgment; Lien; Man-REPLEVIN; TRESPASS; TROVER; RES JUa; Estoppel; Cautionaby Judgment.

GMENT BOOK. A book which is re-I to be kept by a clerk among the recf the court, for the entry of judgments. N. Y. 🕻 279.

GMENT CREDITOR. See CREDITOR, ŒNT.

GMENT DEBT. See Debt.

GMENT IN PERSONAM. See JUDG-INTER PARTES; IN PERSONAM.

GMENT IN REM. An adjudication unced upon the status of some particubject-matter by a tribunal having comauthority for that purpose. 3 Sm. L. 9th Am. ed. 2015.

adjudication against some person or or upon the status of some subject-matwhich, wherever and whenever binding any person, is equally binding upon all ns. Bartero v. Bank, 10 Mo. App. 78.

universal effect of a judgment in rem ds upon the principle that it is a solleclaration, proceeding from an accredquarter, concerning the status of the adjudicated upon; which very declaraperates accordingly upon the status of ting adjudicated upon, and ipso facto, rs it such as it is thereby declared to Sm. L. Cas., 9th Am. ed. 2015-16, 2032, most frequent cases of such judgment ound in the courts exercising jurisdicof cases in admiralty. So also a forourt in a case of divorce which is recogas establishing the status of a person udgment in rem.

Pennoyer v. Neff, the court said: "It is that, in a strict sense, a proceeding in s one taken directly against property, as for its object the disposition of propwithout reference to the title of individaimants; but, in a larger and more gen-to reach and dispose of property owned by them, or of some interest therein. Such are cases commenced by attachment against the property of debtors, or instituted to partition real estate, foreclose a mortgage, or enforce a lien. So far as they affect property in this state, they are substantially proceedings in rem in the broader sense which we have mentioned." 95 U. S. 734, 24 L. Ed. 565. A to whether a judgment rendered in judgment against a railway company in favor of an assignee of claims for labor performed for a subcontractor, which forecloses a statutory lien on the property of the company for debt, and orders a sale of the property, cannot be construed as a judgment in personam; Austin & N. W. R. Co. v. Rucker, 59 Tex. 587. See In Rem.

> JUDGMENT INTER PARTES OF IN PER-SONAM. One which operates only upon those who have been duly made parties to the record and their privies, being against a person merely, and not settling the status of any person or thing. See 3 Sm. L. Cas., 9th Am. ed. 2016; JUDGMENT; JUDGMENT IN REM.

> JUDGMENT NISI. A judgment entered on the return of the nisi prius record with the postea indorsed, which will become absolute according to the terms of the "postea" unless the court out of which the nisi prius record proceeded shall, within the first four days of the following term, otherwise order.

> Under the compulsory arbitration law of Pennsylvania, on filing the award of the arbitrators, judgment nisi is to be entered, which judgment is to be valid as if it had been rendered on a verdict of a jury, unless an appeal is entered within the time required by law.

> JUDGMENT NOTE. A promissory note given in the usual form, and containing, in addition, a power of attorney to appear and confess judgment for the sum therein named. On this account it is not negotiable; Sweeney v. Thickstun, 77 Pa. 131; but see Osborn v. Hawley, 19 Ohio 130.

> It is negotiable by the Uniform Neg. Instr. Act. For a list of states in which that act is in force, see Negotiable Instruments.

> It usually contains a number of stipulations as to the time of confessing the judgment; Sherman v. Baddely, 11 Ill. 623; against appeal and other remedies for setting the judgment aside; see Frasier v. Frasier, 9 Johns. (N. Y.) 80; 2 Cowp. 465; Lake v. Cook, 15 Ill. 356; an attorney's commission for collection, waiver of exemption, and other conditions.

It does not authorize the confession of a judgment in favor of the original payee of the note after he had ceased to be the owner, even though he may have the note in his possession, and such judgment may be attacked collaterally without violating the full faith and credit clause of the federal conense, the terms are applied to actions stitution in an action in another state; Na tional Exchange Bank v. Wiley, 195 U. S. 257, diciary. This term is also used to signi 25 Sup. Ct. 70, 49 L. Ed. 184. tribunal; and sometimes it is employed JUDGMENT PAPER. In English Practice. An incipitur of the pleadings, written on plain paper, upon which the master will sign judgment. 1 Archb. Pr. 229, 306, 343.

JUDGMENT RECORD. In English Practice. A parchment roll on which are transcribed the whole proceedings in the cause, deposited and filed of record in the treasury of the court, after signing of judgment. 3 Steph. Com., 11th ed. 601. See JUDGMENT ROLL. In American practice, the record is signed, filed, and docketed by the clerk, all of which is necessary to suing out execution; Graham, Pr. 341.

JUDGMENT RECOVERED. A plea by a defendant that the plaintiff has already recovered that which he seeks to obtain by his action. This was formerly a species of sham plea, often put in for the purpose of delaying a plaintiff's action. M. & W.

JUDGMENT ROLL. In English Law. A record made of the issue roll (which see), which, after final judgment has been given in the cause, assumes this name. Steph. Pl., Andr. ed. § 97; 3 Chitty, Stat. 514; Freem. Judg. § 75. The Judicature Act of 1875 requires every judgment to be entered in a book by the proper officer. It has been abolished, as such, in New Jersey; Jennings v. Philadelphia & R. Co., 23 Fed. 571.

There is said to be hopeless confusion in the cases as to what constitutes the judgment roll. All the cases agree that the complaint, the summons and, most of them, the return on the summons, the affidavit for publication in case of constructive service, and papers of that sort; Terry v. Gibson, 23 Colo. App. 273, 128 Pac. 1129, citing many cases, and also 1 Gr. Evid. 511, and Freem. Judg. § 78.

JUDICARE. To judge; to decide or determine judicially; to give judgment or sentence tenants in Chester, who were bound by their tenures to perform judicial functions. In case of an erroneous judgment being given by them, the party aggrieved might obtain a writ of error out of Chancery, directing them to reform it. They then had a month to consider of the matter. If they declined to reform their judgment, the matter came on writ of error before the king's bench; and if the court of king's bench held the judgment to be erroneous they forfeited £100 to the king by the custom. Jenk. Cent. (ii. 34), p. 71.

JUDICATIO. In Civil Law. Judging; the pronouncing of sentence, after hearing a cause. Halifax, Civil Law b. 3, c. 8, no. 7.

d in the administration of justice; and in this sense it is nearly synonymous with justice person against whom the injunction is so diciary. This term is also used to signitribunal; and sometimes it is employes show the extent of jurisdiction: as, the dicature is upon writs of error, etc. Con Dig. Parliament (L 1). And see Comyn, Courts (A).

JUDICATURE ACTS. The English under which the present system of cowas organized and is continued.

The statutes of 36 & 37 Vict. c. 66, and 38 Vict. c. 77, which went into force Nov. 1, 1875, amendments in 1877, 40 & 41 Vict. c. 9, 1879, 42 Vict. c. 78, and 1881, 44 & 45 Vict. c. 68, made important changes in the organization of, and nods of procedure in, the superior courts of Eng See Courts of England.

These acts provide for a concurrent admini

tion of legal and equitable remedies, according seven rules, which substantially provide that one of the courts, included in the acts shall the same equitable relief to any plaintiff or de ant claiming it as would formerly have been gray by chancery; equitable relief will be gragainst third persons, not parties, who shall brought in by notice; all equitable estates, trights, duties, and liabilities will be taken notice as in chancery; no proceeding shall be restricted by injunction, but every matter of equity on wan injunction might formerly have been obtained in any in any cause direct a stay of proceed Subject to these and certain other provisions oat, effect shall be given to all legal claims any mands, and all estates, titles, rights, duties, obtions, and liabilities, existing by the common custom, or statute, as before the acts; the courts shall grant, either absolutely or on term such legal or equitable remedies as the parties appear entitled to; so that all matters may be pletely and finally determined, and multiplicit

Eleven new rules of law are established, w

legal proceedings avoided.

will be found in the act of 1873, c. 66, § 25, ame by the act of 1875, c. 77, $ 10, of the following ture; 1. In the administration of insolvent est the same rules shall prevail as may be in force der the law of bankruptcy; 2. No claim of a c que trust against his trustee, for property hel an express trust, shall be barred by any statu limitations; 3. A tenant for life shall have no to commit equitable waste, unless such right is pressly conferred by the instrument creating estate; 4. There shall be no merger by operation law only, of any estate, the beneficial intere which would not be deemed merged in equity; mortgagor entitled for the time being to the po sion of the profits of land, as to which the r gagee shall have given no notice of his intentitake possession, may sue for such possession for the recovery of such profits, or to prevent o cover damages in respect of any trespass, or wrong relative thereto, in his own name only, u the cause of action arises upon a lease or other tract made jointly with any other person; 6. absolute assignment of a chose in action, of v express notice in writing shall have been give the debtor, shall pass the legal right thereto the date of notice, and all remedies for the s and the power to give a good discharge: prov that if the debtor, etc., shall have had notice of conflicting claims to such debt, he shall be ent to call upon such claimants to interplead; 7. S lations as to time or otherwise, which would have been deemed of the essence of the contra equity, shall receive the same construction as merly in equity; 8. A mandamus or an injun may be granted, or a receiver appointed by an terlocutory order, which may be made either conditionally or on terms; and an injunction be granted to prevent threatened waste or tres whether the estates be legal or equitable, or who not in possession under any claim of title, or does not claim a right to do the act o be restrained under color of title; 9. In ngs arising from collisions at sea, where ps are in fault, the rules hitherto in force court of admiralty shall prevail; 10. In s relating to the custody of infants, the equity shall prevail; 11. Generally, in all in which there is any conflict between the common law and the rules of equity, the all prevail.

act of 1891, c. 53, to settle doubts said to the subject, it was enacted that the high ould be a prize court within the meaning aval Prize Act of 1864, and the jurisdiction gned to the probate, divorce, and admiralty of the court. An appeal was given only to in in council. By the same act the house was authorized to call in the aid of asn admiralty cases.

t of 1894, c. 16, was directed mainly to the ng the right of appeal.

vision of the legal year into terms is abol-far as relates to the administration of juswhere they are used as a measure for de-g the time at or within which any act is to be done, they may continue to be re-Numerous other regulations are estabr the arrangement of business and course of e under the new system for which referit be had to the acts. We will merely note hing is to affect the law relating to jury nd the existing forms of procedure are to as far as consistent with these acts. ided that nothing should affect the practice dure in-1. Criminal proceedings; on the crown side of the queen's bench 3. Proceedings on the revenue side of the r division; 4. Proceedings for divorce and nial causes. The Chancery Procedure Acts Common Law Procedure Acts remain in except so far as impliedly or expressly by the Judicature Acts. Many sections of er Acts are repealed by subsequent legislawhich may be found in Chitty's English where the acts are published together as et of 40 & 41 Vict. c. 57, which went into ture in Ireland, under which acts and subones a system essentially similar in its conto that in England is in force. See COURTS LND.

URTS OF ENGLAND.

CATURE ACTS (IRELAND).

ÇES. Judges. See Judex.

CIAL ACT. See ACT.

CIAL ADMISSIONS. Admissions of ty which appear of record in the pros of the court. See Admissions.

CIAL COMMITTEE OF THE PRIVY IL. In English Law. A tribunal ed of members of the privy council, hed in 1833. It consists of the Lord llor, the six Lords of Appeal, if Privy lors, and such other members of the council as have held any high judicial the United Kingdom, India, or the . It is the court of final appeal from lesiastical courts, from the courts of the colonies, the Channel Islands and of Man. It is the ultimate court of for 350 millions of persons, adminall the different systems of law of ntries under its appellate jurisdiction, tenor and course of law in some of those jurisdictions, especially Indian law.

As to Australia, no appeal thereto lies from the supreme court in cases affecting the limits of the constitutional power of the Australian states, unless by special allowance of the supreme court. The South African constitution forbids an appeal except on special leave of the king in council.

See an article in 44 Am. L. Rev. 160; COURTS OF ENGLAND.

JUDICIAL CONVENTIONS. Agreements entered into in consequence of an order of court; as, for example, entering into a bond on taking out a writ of sequestration. Penniman v. Barrymore, 6 Mart. La. (N. S.) 494.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS. The opinions or determinations of the judges in causes before them. Hale, Hist. Cr. Law 68; 5 M. & 8. 185. See DICTUM; JUDGE-MADE LAW; PRECEDENTS.

JUDICIAL DISCRETION. See Discre-TION.

JUDICIAL DOCUMENTS. The papers and proceedings which constitute or become part of the record of a litigation. They include the writs, pleadings, documentary proofs, verdicts, inquisitions, judgment, and decrees incident to a cause or judicial proceeding.

Inquisitions, examinations, depositions, affidavits, and other written papers, when they have become proofs of its proceedings and are found remaining on the files of a judicial court, are judicial documents. deposition after being received and filed as such is a judicial document and can only be proved as such, and is not admissible as a written statement or confession of deponent. It cannot be received in part and excluded in part; Hammatt v. Emerson, 27 Me. 308, 46 Am. Dec. 598.

Judicial documents are thus classified by Starkie: 1. Judgments, decrees, and verdicts. 2. Depositions, examinations, and inquisitions, taken in the course of a legal process. 3. Writs, warrants, pleadings, bills, and answers, etc., which are incident to judicial proceedings.

As to the admissibility and effect of such documents. see, generally. Stark. Sharsw. ed. [316].

JUDICIAL DUTY. Within the meaning of a constitution, such a duty as legitimately pertains to an officer in a department designated by the constitution as judicial. State v. Hathaway, 115 Mo. 36, 21 S. W. 1081.

JUDICIAL FUNCTION. The exercise of the judicial faculty or office.

The capacity to act in the specific way which appertains to the judicial power, as one of the powers of government.

The term is used to describe generally those ercising a notable influence on the modes of action which appertain to the judiciary as a department of organized government, and through and by means of which it accomplishes its purposes and exercises its peculiar powers. | 13's Adm'r, 20 Ind. 82; Jones v. U. S., S. 214, II Sup. Ct. 80, 34 L. Ed. 691; v. Hawkins, 28 Tex. 452; People v. Ma 13 Mich. 481; Inhabitants of Belmont

JUDICIAL LEGISLATION. See JUDGE-MADE LAW.

JUDICIAL LIABILITY. See JUDGE.

JUDICIAL MORTGAGE. In Louisiana. The lien resulting from judgments, whether these be rendered on contested cases, or by default, whether they be final or provisional, in favor of the person obtaining them.

JUDICIAL NOTICE. A term used to express the doctrine of the acceptance by a court for the purposes of the case, of the truth of certain notorious facts without requiring proof.

It is the process whereby proof by parol evidence is dispensed with, where the court is justified by general considerations in assuming the truth of a proposition without requiring evidence from the party setting it up. See Wigm. Ev. § 2565. This power is to be exercised with caution. Care must be taken that the requisite notoriety exists. Every reasonable doubt should be resolved promptly in the negative; Brown v. Piper, 91 U. S. 37, 41, 23 L. Ed. 200.

The classes of facts of which judicial notice will be taken are judicial, legislative, political, historical, geographical, commercial, scientific, and artistic, in addition to a wide range of matters arising in the ordinary course of nature or the general current of human affairs which rest entirely upon acknowledged notoriety for their claims to judicial recognition; Wade, Notice 1403.

If unacquainted with such fact, the court may refer to any person or any document or book of reference for its satisfaction in relation thereto; or may refuse to take judicial notice thereof unless and until the party calling upon it to take such notice produces any such document or book of reference; Steph. Ev. art. 59. It may inform itself from such sources as it deems best; Brown v. Piper, 91 U. S. 37, 23 L. Ed. 200.

Judicial notice is not conclusive. That a matter is judicially noticed means merely that it is taken as true without the offering of evidence by the party upon whom the burden of proof ordinarily rests. But the opponent is not prevented from disputing the matter by evidence, if he believes it disputable; Wigm. Ev. § 2567. Judicial notice must be requested, as it is a dispensation from producing evidence; Wigm. Ev. § 2568. A court will not take judicial notice of a fact merely because it knows it; Lenahan v. People, 5 Thomp. & C. (N. Y.) 268.

Judicial notice will be taken of the following:

Laws, Domestic Statutes and Ordinances. S., 137 U. S. 224, 11 Sup. Ct. 80, 34 I Public acts within the state or territory in 691; but not of regulations of the law which the court is held; Parent v. Walms- fice; U. S. v. Bedgood, 49 Fed. 54. The 13 Mich. 481; Inhabitants of Belmont habitants of Morrill, 69 Me. 314; Mcl v. State, 80 Wis. 407, 50 N. W. 185; a law regulating within certain distric right of fishing; Burnham v. Webs Mass. 266; the right of navigation; mond's Lessee v. Inloes, 4 Md. 138; th ber trade; Pierce v. Kimball, 9 Green 54, 23 Am. Dec. 537; or the sale of Levy v. State, 6 Ind. 281; State v. C 101 N. C. 688, 8 S. E. 134; of the cor existence and names of the counties state; Trammell v. Chambers Coun Ala. 388, 9 South. 815; of a private ac expressly recognized and amended by lic act; Lavalle v. People, 6 Ill. App. 1 a long prevailing construction of a stat executive officers; Bloxham v. R. Co., 519, 18 South. 444, 29 L. R. A. 507, 8 St. Rep. 44; of acts incorporating r companies by general provisions; Hea R. Co., 16 Ind. 275, 79 Am. Dec. 430 ( not by general charter; Perry v. R. Ala. 413, 28 Am. Rep. 740; Atchison, 7 F. R. Co. v. Blackshire, 10 Kan. 477; Wright v. Hawkins, 28 Tex. 452); of th lic statutes of the several states (by a i court); Merchants' Exch. Bank v. Me 59 Fed. 972, 8 C. C. A. 420, 15 U. S. Ap of the statutes under which city in ments are made; Conlin v. Board of visors, 99 Cal. 17, 33 Pac. 753, 21 L. 474, 37 Am. St. Rep. 17; but not of nances and regulations of local board councils; Case v. Mayor of Mobile, 3 538; Moore v. Town of Jonesboro, 19 704, 33 S. E. 435; Garvin v. Wells, 8 Is Watt v. Jones, 60 Kan. 201, 56 Pac. 16; v. Malster, 88 Md. 691, 41 Atl. 1087; ( Winona v. Burke, 23 Minn. 254; Por Waring, 69 N. Y. 250; Stittgen v. Run-Wis. 78, 74 N. W. 536; that a city is incorporated; Pennsylvania Co. v. H 132 Ind. 189, 31 N. E. 45. A court takes judicial notice of it action in the same cause; State v. Ulric States settling the law of the same Alexander v. Gish (Ky.) 17 S. W. 28

A court takes judicial notice of it action in the same cause; State v. Ulrid Mo. 350, 19 S. W. 656; or a state court decision of the supreme court of the States settling the law of the same Alexander v. Gish (Ky.) 17 S. W. 28 acts of congress; Dickenson v. Breed Ill. 279; Papin v. Ryan, 32 Mo. 21; V. Hawkins, 28 Tex. 452; Mims v. S 37 Tex. 13; of the rules and regulation the principal departments of the governuder express authority of an act of coin which the public are interested; C. U. S., 152 U. S. 211, 14 Sup. Ct. 513, 38 415; of acts of the executive in relat declaring a guano island to be within trisdiction of the United States; Jones S., 137 U. S. 224, 11 Sup. Ct. 80, 34 1 691; but not of regulations of the landice; U. S. v. Bedgood, 49 Fed. 54. The rts of the United States and the sucourt, on appeal from their decisions, udicial notice of the constitution and laws of each of the states; Lamar v. 112 U. S. 452, 5 Sup. Ct. 221, 28 L. Ed. Mills v. Green, 159 U. S. 657, 16 Sup. 40 L. Ed. 293; of the laws of Pennia existing prior to the constitution; v. Abner, 57 Fed. 159, 6 C. C. A. 302, 6 1pp. 649.

sout special enactment, the law mergoverning the transfer of commerper by indorsement, will be noticed by urts, where such law has not been ted by statute; Reed v. Wilson, 41 N. '9; 12 Cl. & F. 787; as will the genage and customs of merchants; Brown er, 91 U. S. 37, 23 L. Ed. 200 (if they telligible without extrinsic proof; 23 370); military orders of a general ter within the district in which the are held, when such orders affect juproceedings, and are issued by officers gnized authority, will be noticed; New s Canal & Banking Co. v. Templeton, Ann. 141. 96 Am. Dec. 385.

Ann. 141, 96 Am. Dec. 385. cial notice will be taken of the laws United States by the state courts, as by the federal courts; Morris v. Da-49 Ga. 361; Mims v. Swartz, 37 Tex. nd of the state laws by the federal in cases arising under the laws of rious states; Liverpool & G. W. S. v. ., 129 U. S. 397, 445, 9 Sup. Ct. 469, 32 788; Loree v. Abner, 57 Fed. 159, 6 C. 02; Barry v. Snowden, 106 Fed. 571; (as to local laws of the Indian Terri-Wilson v. Owens, 86 Fed. 571, 30 C. 257 (though, on a writ of error to a upreme court, a federal court declines ce the law of another state, as it canice what the state court could not no-Ianley v. Donoghue, 116 U.S. 1, 6 Sup. , 29 L. Ed. 535); of the laws of anstate by a state court, where an apnay be made to a federal court on ns of federal law, such as the effect of ment in another state court; Shotwell rison, 22 Mich. 410; Trowbridge v. ng, 23 Wash. 48, 62 Pac. 125, 54 L. R. 83 Am. St. Rep. 806; Jarvis v. Rob-21 Wis. 523, 94 Am. Dec. 560; of the laws of another sovereignty when ave to any extent become the law of um, by subdivision or amalgamation; printed statute book of Virginia junoticed as of a jurisdiction originaluding Indiana; Henthorn v. Doe, 1 (Ind.) 157; or the laws of Mexico, the cession in 1848; U.S. v. Chaves, S. 452, 16 Sup. Ct. 57, 40 L. Ed. 215; laws of the colony of Pennsylvania; v. Abner, 57 Fed. 159, 6 C. C. A. 302; laws of England before the American tion; Liverpool & G. W. S. Co. v. Ins.

9 U. S. 397, 9 Sup. Ct. 469, 32 L. Ed.

In states where the common law has been adopted, it will be presumed that the same law prevails in a foreign state, unless otherwise proved; Anderson v. Anderson, 23 Tex. 639; Robards v. Marley, 80 Ind. 185; Mobile & O. R. Co. v. Whitney, 39 Ala. 468; but courts will in general refuse to notice a common-law rule different from their own; Houghtaling v. Ball, 19 Mo. 84, 59 Am. Dec. 331.

Judicial notice will be taken of the laws of the sea when common to all maritime nations, so far as, in effect, international and common to all; Sears v. The Scotia, 14 Wall. (U. S.) 170, 20 L. Ed. 822; a Canadian statute regulating the navigation of Canadian waters; The New York, 175 U. S. 187, 20 Sup. Ct. 67, 44 L. Ed. 126; contra, The Pawashick, 2 Lowell 142, Fed. Cas. No. 10,851 (semble); that the civil law is the foundation of French jurisprudence; Barrielle v. Bettman, 199 Fed. 838.

But judicial notice will not be taken of the laws of other nations, as of Holland; 1 P. Wm. 429; of Turkey (they must be pleaded); Dainese v. Hale, 91 U. S. 13, 23 L. Ed. 190 (but the Spanish law will be noticed in so far as it affects our insular possessions; Ponce v. Roman Catholic Church, 210 U. S. 296, 28 Sup. Ct. 737, 52 L. Ed. 1068); or by the courts of one state of the laws of another; 2 Freem. Judg. § 571.

Political Facts, International Affairs, Seals of State, etc. Judicial notice will be taken of the existence and titles of all the sovereign powers in the civilized world which are recognized by the government of the United States, of their respective flags and seals of state; The Santissima Trinidad, 7 Wheat. (U. S.) 335, 5 L. Ed. 454; L. R. 2 Ch. App. 585; the status of sovereigns; [1894] 1 Q. B. 149; of the law of nations; Sears v. The Scotia, 14 Wall. (U.S.) 170, 188, 20 L. Ed. 822; of foreign admiralty and maritime courts; Croudson v. Leonard, 4 Cra. (U. S.) 434, 2 L. Ed. 670; and their notaries public; Nicholls v. Webb, 8 Wheat. (U. S.) 326, 333, 5 L. Ed. 628; of a treaty with a foreign government; Richter v. Reynolds, 59 Fed. 577, 8 C. C. A. 220, 17 U. S. App. 427; or with Indian tribes; Montgomery v. Deeley, 3 Wis. 709; of the date of the consummation of such treaties; Carson v. Smith, 5 Minn. 78 (Gil. 58), 77 Am. Dec. 539; of the laws and regulations of Mexico prior to the cession under the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo; U. S. v. Chaves, 159 U. S. 452, 16 Sup. Ct. 57, 40 L. Ed. 215.

A foreign state will or will not be recognized by the court according as it is or is not recognized by the executive department; In re Baiz, 135 U. S. 403, 10 Sup. Ct. 854, 34 L. Ed. 222. Judicial notice will be taken of the existence of war between Great Britain and a foreign state; 3 M. & S. 67. That the existence of war is a matter of judicial determination, see [1902] A. C. 109; Dicey, Const. 509; 18 L. Q. R. 156.

JUDICIAL NOTICE

Domestic Political Organization, Boundaries, Capitals, etc. Judicial notice will be taken of the boundaries of the several states and judicial districts; Brown v. Piper, 91 U. S. 37, 23 L. Ed. 200; of the territorial extent and sovereignty exercised de facto by their own government; Jones v. U. S., 137 U. S. 214, 11 Sup. Ct. 80, 34 L. Ed. 691; that the districts into which the United States are divided for revenue purposes have defined geographical boundaries; U. S. v. Jackson, 104 U.S. 41, 26 L. Ed. 651; by a state court of the local political divisions of its own state into counties, cities and the like; Winnipiseogee Lake Co. v. Young, 40 N. H. 420; Goodwin v. Appleton, 22 Me. 453; of their relative positions, but not of their boundaries, further than as described in public statutes; Indianapolis & C. R. R. Co. v. Stephens, 28 Ind. 429; Gilbert v. Power & Mfg. Co., 19 Ia. 319.

Domestic Officials, Their Identity and Authority, and Genuineness of Official Documents. Judicial notice will be taken of the accession of the chief executive of the nation, and of their own state or territory, his powers and privileges; Lindsey v. Attorney General, 33 Miss. 508; State v. Williams, 5 Wis. 308, 68 Am. Dec. 65; State v. Boyd, 34 Neb. 435, 51 N. W. 969; and the genuineness of his signature; Jones v. Gale's Curatrix, 4 Mart. O. S. (La.) 635; the heads of departments and principal officers of state; Brown v. Piper, 91 U. S. 37, 23 L. Ed. 200; and the public seal; Den v. Vreelandt, 7 N. J. L. 352, 11 Am. Dec. 551; Delafield v. Hand, 3 Johns. (N. Y.) 310; the election and resignation of a senator of the United States, or the appointment of a cabinet or foreign minister; Brown v. Piper, 91 U. S. 37, 23 L. Ed. 200; marshals and sheriffs; Ingram v. State, 27 Ala. 17; Martin v. C. Aultman & Co., 80 Wis. 150, 49 N. W. 749; and the genuineness of their signatures; Wood v. Fitz, 10 Mart. O. S. (La.) 196; of the law regulating an officer's fee; Benson v. Christian, 129 Ind. 535, 29 N. E. 26 (but not their deputies; State Bank v. Curran, 10 Ark. 142); number of members of the legislature; State v. Mason, 155 Mo. 486, 55 S. W. 636; of the incumbency of the acting commissioner of patents; York & M. R. Co. v. Winans, 17 How. (U. S.) 31, 15 L. Ed. 27.

Official Acts, Elections, Census, Legislative Proceedings, etc. The supreme court, on appeal from the circuit court, takes judicial notice of the days of general public elections of members of the legislature, and of members of the constitutional convention of a state, as well as of the time of the commencement of its sitting, and the date when its acts take effect; Mills v. Green, 159 U. S. 651, 16 Sup. Ct. 132, 40 L. Ed. 293. Courts take judicial notice that primary elections evidence, for reasons of convenience, are an essential part of our political s State v. Hirsch, 125 Ind. 207, 24 N. E 9 L. R. A. 170; of public proclamat war and peace and special days of fa thanksgiving; Sasscer v. Bank, 4 Mc Wells v. R. Co., 110 Mo. 286, 19 S. V 15 L. R. A. 847; see Cœur d'Alene & Min. Co. v. Miners' Union of Wards Fed. 260, 19 L. R. A. 382; of the publi lamations of pardon and amnesty; J v. Collard, 145 U. S. 546, 12 Sup. Ct. L. Ed. 812; of the sittings of congre also of their own state and territoria latures and their established and course of proceeding, and the privile the members, but not the transactions journals; Armstrong v. U. S., 13 Wa S.) 154, 20 L. Ed. 614; Gnob v. Cushn Ill. 119; Auditor v. Haycraft, 14 Bush 284; contra (as to the journals); Mo State, 48 Ala. 115, 17 Am. Rep. 28; Pe Mahaney, 13 Mich. 481; Worcester Nat v. Cheney, 94 Ill. 430; State v. Cunnii 81 Wis. 440, 51 N. W. 724, 15 L. R. and of the length of time ordinarily re to complete an enumeration of the itants of a state; People v. Rice, 135 473, 31 N. E. 921, 16 L. R. A. 836; the census; Sprague Cigar Co. & Wing Co. v. Cigar Co., 155 O. G. 1041 (U. ent Office). The English courts have a to take notice of journals of the ho commons; Hob. 109; but they take of the privileges of the house; 9 Ad 107; 3 P. & D. 330; and of its stand ders; L. R. 2 Eq. 864.

Judicial Proceedings, Officers and R Courts. Of courts of general jurisc their judges; Gilliland v. Adm'r of S 2 Ohio St. 223; Cincinnati, I., St. L Ry. Co. v. Grames, 8 Ind. App. 112, 34 613, 37 N. E. 421; their seals, regular rules, and maxims in the administration justice and course of proceeding; Ne Newton, 10 Pick. (Mass.) 470; Lind Williams, 17 Ala. 229; the resignation circuit judge; Ex parte Peterson, 3 74 (but not of attorneys of a district not members of the supreme court bar; v. Morrison, 5 Ariz. 349, 52 Pac. 985 not as to whether a party is a citizen United States; State v. Ins. Co., 70 590, 40 Atl. 465, 66 Am. St. Rep. 138) a person appearing as an attorney is larly licensed, noticed; Ferris v. Ban Ill. 237, 41 N. E. 1118; that it is not quent in divorce proceedings for part agree on details of alimony; White Elevator & Warehouse Co., 183 Fed. 6 C. C. A. 28.

Records of Proceedings. A court bound to take notice of any legal pr ings other than those then before i courts often take notice of some part judicial proceeding without requiring i in a former case between the same ious Miscellaneous Facts, Geography. roe, Industry, History, Natural Scic. Courts will take judicial notice of neral geographical features of their untry, or state, and of their judicial , as to the existence and location of cipal mountains, rivers, and cities; v. State, 133 Ind. 178, 32 N. E. 836, 33 19, 18 L. R. A. 567; People v. Wood, Y. 617, 30 N. E. 243; Linck v. City ifield, 141 Ill. 469, 31 N. E. 123; Mutu-Life Ins. Co. v. Robison, 58 Fed. 723, A. 444, 22 L. R. A. 325; Com. v. King, ss. 221, 22 N. E. 905, 5 L. R. A. 536; ffolk county is a county of Massachu-Com. v. Desmond, 103 Mass. 445; that ate is mined in some parts of Florida an article of transportation; State v. rd Air Line Ry., 48 Fla. 114, 37 South. nat not all of the St. Clair river is in an; Cummings v. Stone, 13 Mich. 70; road between two towns would be a certain county; Steinmetz v. Turno., 57 Ind. 457; that the great grain f this country lie west of the Hudson Soper v. Tyler, 77 Conn. 104, 58 Atl. nat contracts were made generally, at in period, with reference to Confederrency; Buford v. Tucker, 44 Ala. 89; of the depreciation of the currency the war; Modawell v. Holmes, 40 Ala. out, contra, that Confederate notes arrency in the South during the war, ney were but little depreciated at a time, and were never made legal tenthe Confederacy : Simmons v. Trumbo, a. 358; that marine insurance risks ember are greater than those in June; v. Ins. Co., 62 Mich. 424, 29 N. W. 31; matter of public history, affecting the people, and also public matters affectgovernment of the nation, or of their rticular state or district: Brown v. 91 U. S. 37, 23 L. Ed. 200; but see v. Hawkins, 28 Tex. 452; of the gencts of natural history; Lyon v. Mar-Fed. 964, 5 C. C. A. 359; of Fremont's acts in California in 1846 and 1847; s v. U. S., 13 Ct. Cl. 117; of the abolislavery; Morgan v. Nelson, 43 Ala. I the art of mensuration, as applied to d embankments; Scanlan v. Ry. Co. 55 Pac. 694; of legal weights and es; 4 Term R. 314; and coin; U. S. is, 5 McLean 23, Fed. Cas. No. 14,691; character of the general circulating a, and the public language in referit; Lampton v. Haggard, 37 B. Monr. 19; but not of the depreciation of curduring the civil war; Modawell v. , 40 Ala. 391; of the sea rules, if gen-

ersy is unlikely; see Wigm. Ev. $ | the federal courts especially take judicial not will take judicial notice of its own tice of the ports and waters of the United States, in which the tide ebbs and flows; Brown v. Piper, 91 U. S. 37, 23 L. Ed. 200; that the Connecticut river at a certain place was not a navigable water under federal jurisdiction; Com. v. King, 150 Mass. 221, 22 N. E. 905, 5 L. R. A. 536; but not that certain lake navigation would be closed on April 1; Haines v. Gibson, 115 Mich. 131, 73 N. W. 126; that the ingenuity of man has failed to construct a locomotive engine which can be operated successfully and not permit the escape of sparks at times; Lake Erie & W. R. Co. v. Gossard, 14 Ind. App. 244, 42 N. E. 818; White v. R. Co., 90 App. Div. 356, 85 N. Y. Supp. 497; that railroad passenger trains are operated to carry passengers for hire; Cordran's Adm'x v. R. Co., 67 Fed. 522, 14 C. C. A. 506, 32 U. S. App. 182; that two railroads touching the same points are parallel and competing lines; Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. State, 72 Tex. 404, 10 S. W. 81, 1 L. R. A. 849, 13 Am. St. Rep. 815; that telegraph lines are necessary to the operation of railroads; State v. R. Co., 133 Ind. 69, 32 N. E. 817, 18 L. R. A. 502; of the relation between the conductor and brakeman of a freight train; Mason v. R. Co., 111 N. C. 482, 16 S. E. 698, 18 L. R. A. 845, 32 Am. St. Rep. 814; of the authority of Pullman porters to assist passengers entering or leaving a train; Gannon v. R. Co., 141 Ia. 37, 117 N. W. 966; that passenger conductors must enter and leave their trains while in motion; Dailey v. Accident Ass'n, 102 Mich. 289, 57 N. W. 184, 26 L. R. A. 171; but not that fifty or fifty-five miles an hour is a dangerous rate of speed; Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Langham (Tex.) 95 S. W. 686; that a box freight car in a state of rest at a highway crossing is not per se a frightful object to horses of ordinary gentleness; Gilbert v. Ry. Co., 51 Mich. 488, 16 N. W. 868, 47 Am. Rep. 592; of what a mileage book is; Southern Ry. Co. v. Rosenheim & Sons, 1 Ga. App. 770, 58 S. E. 81; that the attendants of a church are not limited to its members; McAlister v. Burgess, 161 Mass. 269, 37 N. E, 173, 24 L. R. A. 158; that many unincorporated church societies have been in existence; Alden v. St. Peter's Parish, 158 III. 631, 639, 42 N. E. 392, 30 L. R. A. 232; of the contents of the Bible and the general doctrines maintained by different religious sects; State v. District Board, 76 Wis. 177, 44 N. W. 967, 7 L. R. A. 330, 20 Am. St. Rep. 41; but see Sarahass v. Armstrong, 16 Kan. 192; Youngs v. Ransom, 31 Barb. (N. Y.) 49; that carrying on the business of a barber on Sunday is not necessary; State v. Frederick, 45 Ark. 347, 55 Am. Rep. 555; that it is more dangerous to be on the running board of a street car than on a seat or the platform; Bridges v. Power Co., 86 Miss. 584, 38 South. 788, 4 Ann. Cas. 662; that coal oil is inflammable; State v. Hayes, 78 Mo. 307: id notorious; L. R. 3 P. C. 44; and and that it is a custom in Oklahoma to use it 🗀 for kindling fires; Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. Deselms, 212 U.S. 159, 29 Sup. Ct. 270, 53 L. Ed. 453 (but not that kerosene is a refined coal oil, or a refined earth oil; Bennett v. Ins. Co., 8 Daly [N. Y.] 471; nor that kerosene is a "burning fluid" or "chemical oil." as such words are used in a policy of insurance forbidding the use of such oil on the insured premises; Mark v. Ins. Co., 24 Hun [N. Y.] 565; nor that gin and turpentine are "inflammable liquids," within the meaning of the term as used in an insurance policy; Mosley v. Ins. Co., 55 Vt. 142); that leaks in gas pipes require immediate repair; City of Indianapolis v. Gas Trust Co., 140 Ind. 107, 39 N. E. 433, 27 L. R. A. 514, 49 Am. St. Rep. 183; that it is dangerous to smoke a pipe in a barn filled with straw; Lillibridge v. McCann, 117 Mich. 84, 75 N. W. 288, 41 L. R. A. 381, 72 Am. St. Rep. 553; that tobacco in cigarette form is deleterious for smoking, being "inherently bad and bad only"; Austin v. State, 101 Tenn. 563, 48 S. W. 305, 50 L. R. A. 478, 70 Am. St. Rep. 703; that its use in any form is uncleanly and its excessive use is injurious, and that any use by the young is so, and especially snuff; State v. Olson (N. D.) 144 N. W. 661; that tobacco and cigars sold by a tobacconist are not drugs and medicines (and testimony that they are may be excluded); Com. v. Marzynski, 149 Mass. 68, 21 N.

That an undertaker's establishment in a residential district is objectionable; Rowland v. Miller, 139 N. Y. 93, 34 N. E. 765, 22 L. R. A. 182; that Texas cattle have some contagious or infectious disease communicable to other cattle; Grimes v. Eddy, 126 Mo. 168, 28 S. W. 756, 26 L. R. A. 638, 47 Am. St. Rep. of the construction of an ordinary street car; Kleffmann v. R. Co., 104 App. Div. 416, 93 N. Y. Supp. 741; of the principle of operation of an ice-cream freezer; Brown v. Piper, 91 U. S. 43, 23 L. Ed. 200; that lithographing is an art requiring a high degree of skill and expense; Beck & Pauli Lithographing Co. v. Brewing Co., 25 Ind. App. 662, 665, 58 N. E. 859; that "peachyellows" is a tree disease, of a baneful and contaglous nature; State v. Main, 69 Conn. 123, 37 Atl. 80, 36 L. R. A. 623, 61 Am. St. Rep. 30; that potatoes, sugar-beets, and turnips are not the spontaneous product of the soil; Meyers v. Menter, 63 Neb. 427, 88 N. W. 662; (but not of the natural appearance of oleomargarine; People v. Meyer, 44 App. Div. 1, 60 N. Y. Supp. 415; nor of the color of natural butter; People v. Hillman, 58 App. Div. 571, 69 N. Y. Supp. 66); that exposure to cold is likely to cause inflammatory rheumatism; Rosted v. Ry. Co., 76 Minn. 123, 127, 78 N. W. 971; that certain lowlands were overflowed by freshets; Kerns v. Perry (Tenn.) 48 S. W. 729; of the facts of natural history, that hair usually exists on parts of a sheep fleece; Lyon v. Marine, 55 Fed. 964, 5 C. C. A. 359; that labels of cham- | Chicago under long term leases; Dene pagne, as ordinarily served from a cool liable to disappear before the bottle is to the customer; Von Mumm v. Witte 85 Fed. 966; that there are always ta maining unpaid; Mullen v. Sackett, 14 100, 44 Pac. 136; that a patented artic known and in general use long before suance of the patent: Terhune v. Phill U. S. 592, 25 L. Ed. 293; that telephone become an ordinary medium of comm tion; Globe Printing Co. v. Stahl, 23 Mc 451; that a brick wall, built three feet inches from certain windows and at le teen inches above them, is a detriment struction of light and air; Ware v. Ch N. J. Eq. 493, 11 Atl. 746; that a fracture skull pressing upon the brain is a dan wound, which may cause death, but does not necessarily and in all cases McDaniel v. State, 76 Ala. 1; that a of unchastity will cause a virtuous of good name anguish and humiliation; er v. Heiney, 111 Wis. 313, 87 N. W that one-tenth of a grain of morphine, every four hours, could not have a poi effect; Laturen v. Drug Co., 93 N. Y. 1035; that electricity is dangerous, a generally recognized; Warren v. Ry. C Mich. 298, 104 N. W. 613; but not of t rious methods of generating and transp or using it; City of Crawfordsville v. en, 130 Ind. 149, 28 N. E. 849, 14 L. R. A 30 Am. St. Rep. 214; that a glass of w sold for ten cents, contains less than gallons; State v. Blands, 101 Mo. Ap 74 S. W. 3; that vaccination is believed a safe and valuable means of preventi spread of small pox, and that this be supported by high medical authority; son v. Massachusetts, 197 U.S. 11, 2 Ct. 358, 49 L. Ed. 643, 3 Ann. Cas. 765 the manufacture of wearing apparel sanitary apartments is likely to sprea ease; State v. Hyman, 98 Md. 596, 5 6, 64 L. R. A. 637, 1 Ann. Cas. 742; woman's physical structure and the pe ance of maternal functions place her at advantage; Muller v. Oregon, 208 U. 28 Sup. Ct. 324, 52 L. Ed. 551, 13 Ann 957; of a usage of universal preva Munn v. Burch, 25 Ill. 35; Merchants Ins. Co. v. Wilson, 2 Md. 217; of the in ed cost of living; McCaddin v. McC 116 Md. 567, 82 Atl. 554; but not of loc toms or usages; Hitesman v. state, 4 473; Turner v. Fish, 28 Miss. 306; Le McClure, 8 Or. 274; of the peculiar nat lotteries and the mode in which the generally carried on; Salomon v. Sta Ala. 83; but not that playing "policy" is ing a game of chance; State v. Russ Mo. App. 16; that mere pasturage up inclosed Western lands is very slight ev of possession; Whitney v. U. S., 167 529, 547, 17 Sup. Ct. 857, 42 L. Ed. 263 many buildings have been lately erect in a city where the court presides is a highway; Wheeler v. City of Detroit, ich. 329, 86 N. W. 822; that swamps agnant waters are the cause of malaver; Leovy v. U. S., 177 U. S. 636, 20 Ct. 797, 44 L. Ed. 914; Manigault v. rs, 199 U. S. 473, 26 Sup. Ct. 127, 50 L.

es and Distances. Of the geographisition and distances of foreign countries far as the same may be fairly presumbe within the knowledge of most perf ordinary intelligence and education the state or district in which the is held; Brown v. Piper, 91 U. S. 37, Ed. 200; of the calendar; State v. s, 121 Mo. 445, 26 S. W. 558; of the coace of days of the week with those of onth; Brennan v. Vogt, 97 Ala. 647, 11 893; First Nat. Bank v. Kingsley, 84 1, 24 Atl. 794; of the ordinary limitaa human life as to age; Kansas City B. R. Co. v. Phillips, 98 Ala. 159, 13 65; of the Carlisle Tables in estimate probable length of life; Lincoln v. , 151 U. S. 436, 441, 14 Sup. Ct. 387, 38 224; of the course of time of the heavodies; People v. Cheekee, 61 Cal. 404; ower v. State, 55 Md. 11, 39 Am. Rep. of the time of moon-rising; People v. , 113 Cal. 618, 45 Pac. 860; of things must happen according to the laws of ; Brown v. Piper, 91 U. S. 37, 23 L. 0; that a crop of cotton named in a age dated in January could not have planted or been in existence at that Tomlinson v. Greenfield, 31 Ark. 557; average height of a man, and that his height could not be four feet seven ; Hunter v. R. Co., 116 N. Y. 615, 23 9, 6 L. R. A. 246; of the distance betwo towns; Blumenthal v. Meat Co. sh. 331, 41 Pac. 47; that the distance Dubuque, Ia., to Asheville, N. C., ex-100 miles; Mutual Benefit Life Ins. Co. ison, 58 Fed. 723, 7 C. C. A. 444, 22 L. 325; that two towns in the state were ted only by a river, and were mutually ble across the ice; Siegbert v. Stiles, s. 533; that a few hours will take a iger from Terre Haute to Evansville; v. Colyhan, 30 Ind. 395; that Calais is the jurisdiction of the court; Brown er, 91 U. S. 37, 23 L. Ed. 200.

ning of Words—Intoxicating Liquors. meaning of words in the vernacular ge, but not of catchwords, technical, or slang expressions; Sinnott v. Co., 107 Cal. 187, 40 Pac. 329, 28 L. R. A. lthough formerly the local use of lanwas noticed; Rolle, Abr. Court, c. 6, 7; 3. 624); of such ordinary abbreviations common use may be regarded as uniy understood; as abbreviations of ian names, and the like; Brown v. 91 U. S. 37, 23 L. Ed. 200; Moseley's 514.

er, 114 Ill. App. 234; that a designated | Adm'r v. Mastin, 37 Ala. 216; Weaver v. Mc-Elhenon, 13 Mo. 89; Power v. Bowdle, 3 N. D. 107, 54 N. W. 404, 21 L. R. A. 328, 44 Am. St. Rep. 511; but not of those which are in any degree doubtful or difficult of interpretation; Ellis v. Park, 8 Tex. 205; of the well known application in a libellous sense of the "fable of the Frozen Snake"; Brown v. Piper, 91 U. S. 37, 23 L. Ed. 200; of the meaning of "kindergarten"; Sinnott v. Colombet, 107 Cal. 187, 40 Pac. 329, 28 L. R. A. 594 (but not of the orthography or pronunciation of Polish names; State v. Johnson, 26 Minn. 316, 3 N. W. 982; nor of technical meanings; Martin v. Development Co., 41 Or. 448, 69 Pac. 216); of the meaning of "C. O. D."; U. S. Exp. Co. v. Keefer, 59 Ind. 263; State v. Intoxicating Liquors, 73 Me. 278; and of "f. o. b."; Vogt v. Schienebeck, 122 Wis. 491, 100 N. W. 820, 67 L. R. A. 756, 106 Am. St. Rep. 989, 2 Ann. Cas. 814; of what is meant by a "gift enterprise," upon the trial of one indicted for advertising such; Lohman v. State, 81 Ind. 15; that the words "drawing" and "Kentucky drawing" designate a game of chance; State v. Russell, 17 Mo. App. 16; of the public significance of "pool room"; State v. Maloney, 115 La. 498, 39 South. 539; that alcohol is, as a matter of law, an intoxicant, and such fact need not be proven in a prosecution for selling intoxicating liquors; Snider v. State, 81 Ga. 753, 7 S. E. 631, 12 Am. St. Rep. 350; that beer is a fermented liquor; State v. Effinger, 44 Mo. App. 81; Maier v. State, 2 Tex. Civ. App. 296, 21 S. W. 974; that lager beer is a malt liquor; Adler v. State, 55 Ala. 16; that beer is intoxicating; Peterson v. State, 63 Neb. 251, 88 N. W. 549 (contra, State v. Beswick, 13 R. I. 211, 43 Am. Rep. 26; except as defined by statute; Kerkow v. Bauer, 15 Neb. 150, 18 N. W. 27); that the following are intoxicating drinks: whisky; Schlicht v. State, 56 Ind. 173; Peterson v. State, 63 Neb. 251, 88 N. W. 549; a Manhattan cocktail; State v. Pigg, 78 Kan. 618, 97 Pac. 859, 19 L. R. A. (N. S.) 848, 130 Am. St. Rep. 387; a whisky cocktail and whisky; U. S. v. Ash, 75 Fed. 651; brandy; Fenton v. State, 100 Ind. 598; Rau v. People, 63 N. Y. 277; porter; Blatz v. Rohrbach, 116 N. Y. 450, 22 N. E. 1049, 6 L. R. A. 669; gin; Com. v. Peckham, 2 Gray (Mass.) 514; California brandy; State v. Tisdale, 54 Minn. 105, 55 N. W. 903; apple brandy; Thomas v. Com., 90 Va. 92, 17 S. E. 788; wine; Caldwell v. State, 43 Fla. 545, 30 South. 814; Hatfield v. Com., 120 Pa. 395, 14 Atl. 151; Italian "sour wine"; Starace v. Rossi, 69 Vt. 303, 37 Atl. 1109; gin and beer; Com. v. Peckham, 2 Gray (Mass.) 514; Hoagland v. Canfield, 160 Fed. 146 (but not home made blackberry wine; Loid v. State, 104 Ga. 726, 30 S. E. 949; nor rice beer; Bell v. State, 91 Ga. 227, 18 S. E. 288); that some men can drink more than others without becoming intoxicated; Com. v. Peckham, 2 Gray (Mass.)

It has been said that the courts should exercise this power with caution. Care must be taken that the requisite notoriety exists. Every reasonable doubt upon the subject should be solved promptly in the negative; per Swayne, J., in Brown v. Piper, 91 U. S. 43, 23 L. Ed. 200. In that case the court took judicial notice, in a patent case, of the principle of operation of an ice-cream freezer, and the subject of judicial notice was fully discussed.

JUDICIAL OFFICE. A term used in 34 & 35 Vict. c. 91, to define qualifications of additional members of the judicial committee of the Privy Council.

JUDICIAL POWER. The authority vested in the judges.

The authority exercised by that department of government which is charged with the declaration of what the law is and its construction so far as it is written law.

The power to construe and expound the law as distinguished from the legislative and executive functions.

The use of the term judicial power in sec. 2, Art. III. of the Constitution of the United States furnished an occasion to Mr. Justice Miller for a comment upon the difficulty of defining the term; he says, "It will not do to answer that it is the power exercised by the courts, because one of the very things to be determined is what power they may exercise. It is, indeed, very difficult to find any exact definition made to hand. It is not to be found in any of the old treatises, or any of the old English authorities or judicial decisions, for a very obvious reason. While in a general way it may be true that they had this division between legislative and judicial power, yet their legislature was, nevertheless, in the habit of exercising a very large part of the latter. The house of lords was often the court of appeals; and parliament was in the habit of passing bills of attainder as well as enacting convictions for treason and other crimes.

"Judicial power is, perhaps, better defined in some of the reports of our own courts than in any other place, and especially so in the Supreme Court of the United States, because it has more often been the subject of comment there, and its consideration more frequently necessary to the determination of questions arising in that court than anywhere else. It is the power of a court to decide and pronounce a judgment and carry it into effect between persons and parties who bring a case before it for decision." Miller, Const. U. S. 314.

"But it has now long been settled in England that the interpretation of statute law belongs to the judiciary alone, and in this country they have claimed and obtained an equal control over the construction of constitutional provisions." Sedg. Const. L. 18.

"The power conferred upon courts is strict sense of that term; courts that pose one of the great departments of government; and not power in its junature, or quasi judicial, invested from to time in individuals, separately or citively, for a particular purpose and litime." Charge to Grand Jury, 1 B 635, Fed. Cas. No. 18,261; Gilbert v. F 65 Barb. (N. Y.) 444, 448.

There can be no delegation of ju power; Zonker v. Cowan, 84 Ind. 395; a judicial duty; McCoy v. Able, 131 417, 30 N. E. 528, 31 N. E. 453; Sou Oil Co. v. Wilson, 22 Tex. Civ. App. 53 S. W. 429.

"Judicial power is never exercised the purpose of giving effect to the with judge; always for the purpose of effect to the will of the legislature; other words, to the will of the law." O v. Bank, 9 Wheat. (U. S.) 738, 6 L. Ed.

Nevertheless, leaving out of question greater necessity of real definition and ration of the legislative and judicial in American constitutional law there distinction between judicial power and ical power which was fully recognizenglish law, continues to be so in Amelaw, and is entirely independent of the growing out of the constitutional delition and separation of the three power government.

"The courts have made a distinction tween political and judicial questions uniformly decline to assume jurisdicti cases which involve only the former political question is one over which courts decline to take cognizance, in vithe line of demarkation between the ju branch of the government on the one and the executive and legislative bra on the other. Such questions most gene arise when there is an attempt made to vent the incumbents of either the legis or executive departments of the govern from the performance of some act such incumbent claims the right to per by virtue of his office, or to compel h perform some act which he declines of fuses to perform; Parker v. State, 133 178, 32 N. E. 836, 33 N. E. 119, 18 L. 567."

Courts have no authority to review acts of co-ordinate departments of the government within their respective spibut they have jurisdiction to dete whether any department has acted with constitutional sphere; McCully v. State Tenn. 509, 53 S. W. 134, 46 L. R. A. and they may control the actions of o and official boards, if they have been out any foundation in the facts before and are capricious and arbitrary; 4 2186; State v. Matthews, 77 S. C. 35 S. E. 1099; Ex parte Virginia, 100 U. S.

Ed. 676; City of Atlanta v. Wright, 119 decision of facts by an executive officer with-07, 45 S. E. 994; St. Louis v. Mfg. Co., fo. 560, 41 S. W. 244, 61 Am. St. Rep. but the power will be exercised with circumspection and only in clear casd the courts must take care not to sube their own discretion for that of the s or board whose refusal to act is unonsideration, and to interfere by mans only when the facts so clearly show uty of the board or officer to act that is really no room for the exercise of sonable discretion against the doing e act, the performance of which the is asked to require; State v. Matthews, C. 414, 62 S. E. 695, 22 L. R. A. (N. 35, 128 Am. St. Rep. 919, 16 Ann. Cas. See 22 L. R. A. (N. S.) 735, note. rule is recognized definitely by the d States supreme court that the discreof an executive officer will not be ined with either by mandamus or injunc-U. S. v. Schurz, 102 U. S. 378, 26 L. Ed. Brown v. Hitchcock, 173 U. S. 473, 19 Ct. 485, 43 L. Ed. 772; National Life Co. v. Ins. Co., 209 U. S. 317, 28 Sup. 11, 52 L. Ed. 808, citing Bates & G. Co. yne, 194 U. S. 106, 24 Sup. Ct. 595, 48 . 894, and Moyer v. Peabody, 212 U. S. Sup. Ct. 235, 53 L. Ed. 410, where it ield that the existence of insurrection vers the governor to suppress it by the nal guard and to seize and imprison resisting, and that he is the final judge necessity of such action; in such case danger warrants the substitution of tive for judicial process and the ordirights of individuals must yield to the executive deems the necessity of ical moment. But courts must prevent ration of property by unlawful action e executive department, though reluctinterfere with it; Ballinger v. U. S., . S. 240, 30 Sup. Ct. 338, 54 L. Ed. 464. executive officer may be compelled by overnor to issue a commission was re-As to the power to issue mandamus ecutive officers, see Executive Power. hen a decision of questions of fact is itted by Congress to the judgment and tion of the head of a department, his on thereon is conclusive;" and "even mixed questions of law and fact, or of lone, his action will carry with it a presumption of its correctness, and ourts will not ordinarily review it, h they may have the power and will onally exercise the right of so doing;" & G. Co. v. Payne, 194 U. S. 106, 24 Ct. 595, 48 L. Ed. 894. And the courts ently sustain statutes which make the of a citizen wholly dependent on the 715.

amus to perform a ministerial duty but he has discretion it cannot be com-; Hawkins v. Governor, 1 Ark. 570, 33

Dec. 346, where a mandamus to compel out appeal; U.S. v. Ju Toy, 198 U.S. 253, 25 Sup. Ct. 644, 49 L. Ed. 1040. The supreme court of Massachusetts has also gone very far in sustaining the action of executive officers or boards exercising quasi judicial authority. The cases will be found collected with a number of federal cases in an article by Edmund M. Parker, on "Executive Judgments and Executive Legislation" in 20 Harv. L. Rev. 116.

The distinction between judicial and political questions was fully considered in Penn v. Lord Baltimore, 1 Ves. Sen. 444, and it was held by Lord Hardwicke, L. C., that while the dispute as to original boundaries between provinces was a political question to be determined by the king and council, yet where the case arose under an agreement between the parties it was a judicial question.

In The Nabob of Carnatic v. East India Co. (1 Ves. Jr. 371) a plea that the defendant was invested with sovereign powers, and therefore not answerable with respect to the exercise of them in a court of justice, was overruled; but after the case came to hearing the bill was dismissed upon the ground that the case involved a treaty between persons acting as independent states, and the circumstance that the defendants were subjects merely with relation to England had nothing to do with the matter which was not a subject of private municipal jurisdiction; 2 id. 56.

The Cherokee nation was held to be a state but not a foreign state in the sense of the constitution, and therefore could not maintain an action against the state of Georgia in the courts of the United States; Cherokee Nation v. Georgia, 5 Pet. (U. S.) 1, 8 L. Ed. 25. In this case Chief Justice Marshall said that the propriety of interposition by the court to control the state legislature "savors too much of the exercise of political power to be within the province of the judicial department." Mr. Justice Thompson in a dissenting opinion which upheld the jurisdiction was careful to say, "I do not claim for this court the exercise of jurisdiction upon any matter properly falling under the denomination of political power.' And again: "I do not claim as belonging to the judiciary the exercise of political power. That belongs to another branch of the government. The protection and enforcement of many rights secured by treaties most certainly do not belong to the judiciary. It is only where the rights of persons or property are involved, and when such rights can be presented under some judicial form of proceedings, that courts of justice can interpose relief." Cherokee Nation v. Georgia, 5 Pet. (U. S.) 51, 75, 8 L. Ed. 25. See also New York v. Connecticut, 4 Dall. (U. S.) 4, 1 L. Ed.

Among the questions which have been to be judicial questions and within the ers of the courts to decide are: Whetl amendment to the constitution has bee stitutionally adopted; Kadderly v. Por 44 Or. 118, 74 Pac. 710, 75 Pac. 222; though a contrary declaration had been by the political department of the staternment; Gabbert v. Ry. Co., 171 Mo.

S. W. 891; whether an apportionme

It was very earnestly discussed in one of the early cases concerning the boundary between two states, whether the jurisdiction in such cases, now so well established, was included in the judicial power as understood by the constitution of the United States, and it was held that although the constitution did not in terms extend the judicial power to all controversies between two or more states, yet it in terms excluded none, whatever might be their nature or object; Rhode Island v. Massachusetts, 12 Pet. (U. S.) 657, 9 L. Ed. 1233. In this case the court recognized the distinction between political and civil controversies and held that the case in question was the latter because it depended first upon a fact, and second upon the question whether an agreement between the states was void or valid, both of these presenting not a political but a judicial controversy. And it was said that where there was submission by sovereigns or states of a controversy between them, from that moment the question ceased to be a political one but comes immediately within the judicial power for determination by a court.

In Marbury v. Madison, 1 Cra. (U. S.) 137, 2 L. Ed. 60, the question whether the commission of a public officer was improperly withheld from him was held to be a judicial and not a political question, but a mandamus to the secretary of state to deliver it was refused because the court had not original jurisdiction to issue it. But in Mississippi v. Johnson, 4 Wall. (U. S.) 475, 18 L. Ed. 437, an injunction to restrain the president from executing the reconstruction acts was refused on the ground that the bill presented a political and not a judicial question.

In Georgia v. Stanton, 6 Wall. (U. S.) 50, 71, 18 L. Ed. 721, it was said that the distinction between judicial and political power is so generally acknowledged in the jurisprudence both of England and of this country that we need do no more than refer to some of the authorities on the subject. The suit invoked the power of the court to restrain the secretary of war and his subordinates from executing acts of congress which, it was alleged, would annul and abolish an existing state government. In refusing the injunction the court said that it could hardly be denied that the case called for the judgment of the court upon political questions and upon rights, not of persons or property, but of a political character. "For the rights for the protection of which our authority is invoked, are the rights of sovereignty, of political jurisdiction, of government, of corporate existence as a state, with all its constitutional powers and privileges. No case of private rights or private property infringed, or in danger of actual or threatened infringement, is presented by the bill, in judicial form, for the judgment of the court."

senators and representatives involve abuse of legislative discretion by a de of the constitutional limitations the Brooks v. State, 162 Ind. 568, 70 N. E whether license fees are a reasonable in tion under the police power; Margo Atlantic City, 67 N. J. L. 82, 50 Atlantic whether legislation ostensibly under the lice power is really such when the cor tionality of the act is assailed; Hal Nebraska, 205 U.S. 34, 27 Sup. Ct. 4 L. Ed. 696, 10 Ann. Cas. 525, affirmi Neb. 757, 105 N. W. 298, 7 L. R. A. (1 1079, 121 Am. St. Rep. 754; the valid a plea of privilege set up by a member legislature in bar to an action for sl uttered on the floor of the House; Co Coffin, 4 Mass. 1, 3 Am. Dec. 189; wl the use authorized by the legislature reservoir in connection with the water ply is or is not a public use; Miller v. burg, 180 Mass. 32, 61 N. E. 277; where right has vested; Rice v. State, 7 Ind the power of laying out or altering s vested in the mayor and aldermen; Pa Boston, 8 Pick. (Mass.) 218, 19 Am. 322; the power to hear and decide pr ings for the summary disposition of te and a writ of prohibition was granted strain the recorder from proceeding in case after his judicial powers had transferred to the city judge; People v sel, 19 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 136; People v. sel, 29 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 176; whethe tain corporations shall be accepted as security; In re American Banking & Co., 17 Pa. Co. Ct. R. 274; whether a invalidated by failure of assessors to ply with the law; Plumer v. Board of S 46 Wis. 163, 50 N. W. 416 (but an act m tax bills prima facie evidence of the va of the charge against the property wa an invasion of the judicial power; Ci St. Joseph v. Farrell, 106 Mo. 437, 17 What occupations are the proper su of the police power is a judicial ques Price v. People, 193 Ill. 114, 61 N. E. 8 L. R. A. 588, 86 Am. St. Rep. 306; an legislative determination as to what i

Digitized by Google

proper exercise of that power is not but is subject to the supervision of courts; Moeschen v. Tenement House

partment of City of New York, 203 U. S 27 Sup. Ct. 781, 51 L. Ed. 328, affin

Tenement House Department of City of

v. Moeschen, 179 N. Y. 325, 72 N. E. D. L. R. A. 704, 103 Am. St. Rep. 910, 1 Cas. 439 (the tenement house case); less the court can see that a given pogulation has no just relation to the oblich it purports to carry out or to the tion of the public health, safety, common morals, the decision of the legislature its necessity or reasonableness is content; Odd Fellows' Cemetery Ass'n v. f San Francisco, 140 Cal. 226, 73 Pac.

the other hand, among the cases which een held to be within the exclusive juion of the political branches of the ment and not reviewable by the courts What property shall be embraced withax district, and whether it shall be for municipal purposes; Kettle v. City llas, 35 Tex. Civ. App. 632, 80 S. W. whether property is benefited by the uction of a sewer (in the absence of ; Prior v. Const. Co., 170 Mo. 439, 71 205; the reasonableness of a municiense tax upon the privilege of conductbusiness; Woodall v. City of Lynch-100 Va. 318, 40 S. E. 915; the reasonss of a particular regulation of a usesiness; Ex parte Whitwell, 98 Cal. 73, e. 870, 19 L. R. A. 727, 35 Am. St. Rep. the amount and necessity of taxation; v. City of Columbus, 75 Miss. 822, 23 773; the repeal of a charter which spressly subject to repeal, unless in a here the legislature should exercise its in such a manner as to violate clearly inciples of natural justice; Lothrop dman, 42 Conn. 583, 13 Blatchf. 134, Cas. No. 8,519; the adjustment of a etween a new county and the old one which it had been carved out: Riverounty v. San Bernardino County, 134 17, 66 Pac. 788; the disposal of prop-Honging to the state; State v. Bryan, . 293, 39 South. 929; whether an apation shall or shall not be made; Carr e, 127 Ind. 204, 26 N. E. 778, 11 L. R. 22 Am. St. Rep. 624; whether a sysclassification adopted by the legislagood or vicious; State v. Kolsem, 130 34, 29 N. E. 595, 14 L. R. A. 566; the ibility of a general law to a particular nd the necessity or propriety of a spew; Weston v. Ryan, 70 Neb. 211, 97 347, 6 Ann. Cas. 922; Smith v. Grayunty, 18 Tex. Civ. App. 153, 44 S. W.

within the province of the political ment of the government to define the lof securing imperfect rights of propeded to the United States after war, he courts have no jurisdiction to enhem except as authorized by congress; Sandoval, 167 U. S. 278, 17 Sup. Ct. 2 L. Ed. 168; nor is it within the lapower to make any declaration upon the question of the length of time required for the pacification of Cuba and when the United States troops shall be withdrawn; Neely v. Henkel, 180 U. S. 109, 21 Sup. Ct. 302, 45 L. Ed. 448; id. 180 U. S. 126, 21 Sup. Ct. 308, 45 L. Ed. 447; so in ascertaining the tribal and other relations of Indians, the courts generally follow the political departments; Farrell v. U. S., 110 Fed. 942, 49 C. C. A. 183.

If a statute is constitutional there is no power in the courts to consider whether it is in accordance with a reasonable or wise public policy; McGuire v. Ry. Co., 131 Ia. 340, 108 N. W. 902, 33 L. R. A. (N. S.) 706; Prison Association v. Ashby, 93 Va. 667, 25 S. E. 893; Rice v. Ionia Probate Judge, 141 Mich. 692, 105 N. W. 17; nor can the motives of the legislature be considered in a judicial proceeding; State v. R. Co., 166 Ind. 580, 77 N. E. 1077; nor the motives of the executive in issuing a warrant for the rendition of a prisoner; In re Moyer, 12 Idaho 250, 85 Pac. 897, 12 L. R. A. (N. S.) 227, 118 Am. St. Rep. 214.

"If a contract is entered into in behalf of the government, and a contest should arise about the meaning of the contract, it belongs to the judiciary to decide what that contract was, and if the legislature decide that question, they invade the province of the judiciary;" Commonwealth v. Beaumarchais, 3 Call (Va.) 169, quoted in Bedford v. Shilling, 4 S. & R. (Pa.) 401, 8 Am. Dec. 719.

The determination of county boundaries in a suit by a county for taxes or by one county against another is not a question for judicial inquiry but a political one; Norfolk Southern Ry. Co. v. Washington County, 154 N. C. 333, 70 S. E. 634; Guadalupe County v. Wilson County, 58 Tex. 228; but under a statute passed subsequently to this case, the court exercised jurisdiction; Cameron's Heirs v. State, 95 Tex. 545, 68 S. W. 508; but would not do so as to surveys made before the enactment of the law; Rockwell County v. Kaufman County, 69 Tex. 172, 6 S. W. 431. In another state a question of boundaries between counties was held to be one not for commissions of either county, but for a court of chancery under a taxpayer's bill; Union Pacific R. Co. v. Carr, 1 Wyo. 96. If there is a statute, the method prescribed by it must be resorted to before recourse can be had to the courts; Parish of Caddo v. Parish of De Soto, 114 La. 366, 38 South. 273.

The separation of the three departments among which, in modern systems, the sovereign powers of government are distributed, and to some extent the difficulty involved in the effort to distribute those powers, are discussed in the title Executive Power, which, with the title Legislative Power, should be read and referred to in connection with the present title.

Separation of powers, though generally adopted, does not always rest upon a constitutional basis. Whether it does or does not do so affects very ma terially the judicial power with respect to its stability and independence. In England, not only the supreme legislative authority, but the power of deciding upon the constitutionality of its acts, is vested in parliament, there being no fundamental law in the nature of a written constitution to which that body must conform. The phrase English constitution is one of constant use, and there is, undoubtedly, a body of fundamental principles which are recognized as having been finally accepted as inviolable and which are grouped under that name. A recent writer says that it "is made up of certain views which have been read out of or read into English history and embodied in certain govern-mental acts,"—"it is in a large part a matter of theory and opinion," and "the substance of it may be summed up in one sentence: All the powers of government are in the hands of parliament." Macy, Eng. Const. 14, 16.

Practically modern opinion is undivided as to this omnipotence of parliament, and under no form of law can its action be restrained or reviewed. Such restraint as is imposed upon it is a moral one which exists only in the potency of certain principles which, in the United States, have been crystallized into constitutional safeguards, while in England they remain, as it were, in solution, affecting, however, and giving form and tone to the government and the body politic. The highest judicial power in England is subordinate to the legislative power, and bound to obey any law that parliament may pass, although it may, in the opinion of the court, be in conflict with the principles of Magna Carta, or the Petition of Rights. Taney, C. J., in Gordon v. U. S., 117 U. S. 699, appendix.

It is doubtiess true that the parliament could, as a matter of law, abolish all courts and assume to itself the administration of justice, but even in that case there would still exist the judicial power now administered by courts, and it would be equally 'distinct as now from the legislative function, even if both were exercised by the same agency of government.

The French constitution of Sept. 3, 1791 (the first written constitution in Europe), recited that the judicial power cannot in any case be exercised by the legislative body or by the king, and that tribunals cannot interfere with the exercise of the legislative power nor suspend the execution of the laws, nor encroach upon administrative functions, nor cite any administrators to appear before them on ac-count of their functions. This comprehensive limi-tation is attributed by a thoughtful writer on this subject to the French historical associations, which were hostile to any judicial competency to criticise legislation for unconstitutionalty. It is to this in-fluence that the writer referred to attributes the different views on this subject which are found in the French constitution referred to and that of the United States. Coxe, Jud. Pow. 78. From a historical review on the subject the author last cited concludes that in France long before 1787 the French judicial power had been used to declare legislation to be void because contrary to the views of right entertained by the court; and that, by the further contrast to American views, the judicial power in question existed under an unwritten constitution and was expressly prohibited under a subsequent written constitution.

Under the Swiss constitution the federal government is organized to some extent upon the idea of the separation of powers; but as it has been observed, "the separation of powers is not very strictly observed between the federal assembly and the federal council, nor indeed... between the judicial authority and the political federal authorities;" Adams and Cunningham on the Swiss Confederation 48. The Swiss federal tribunal is bound by all laws passed by the federal assembly without qualification; which is not competent to decide whether the federal law be constitutional or unconstitutional; this is declared not to be a judicial question, nor is it such a question whether a constitution alaw of a canton contains anything contrary to constitution of the confederation, such a questie extra-judicial and is decided by the federal sembly; Vincent, Swiss Government 34, 142. Other writer says that the Swiss federal court though instituted in imitation of the Ameridifiers from it in an essential point, while in United States judicial power alone extends to claring a law unconstitutional, under the Swiss stitution some points of cantonal law are rese and the federal legislature is made the sole judgits own powers and the authorized interpreter of constitution; 1 Bryce, Am. Com. 254.

In Germany it is said that the law of a state yield in case of conflict between it and constitutilaw of the empire, and that the judicial trib must decide between them, but that it was untain whether such tribunal can decide upon a ction of the constitutionality of a law of the employee, Jud. Pow. 96.

In Canada it is said that the supreme court the privy council in England have concurred recognizing the rights of provincial courts to upon the constitutionality of the laws enacted the provincial legislatures and the Dominion part of the Double Const. of Canada, preface.

For an extended historical commentary on vious systems of law, with respect to the limits of judicial power in passing upon the validity effect of legislation, see Coxe, Jud. Pow. pt. 1.

The English doctrine of the absolute violability of a legislative act never did quire a footing in this country. It repudiated by James Otis nearly a qua of a century before the framing of the Ar ican constitution. He contended before superior court of judicature for the prov of Massachusetts, that the validity of utes must be determined by courts of jus This doctrine afterwards became the pri ple of American constitutional law. Be 1787, the colonial courts refused to g writs of assistance, on the ground that eral writs of assistance were unconstitut al; Quincy (Mass.) 504; and see Bown v. Middleton, 1 Bay (S. C.) 252, where act passed by the colonial legislature declared void; Den v. Singleton, Mart. C.) 49. Judicial questions of a nation character were, under the confederation, termined by a court; Articles of Confed tion, Art. 9; and the framers of the con tution ordained and established a judic as a necessary department, and used in the phrase judicial power as one well un stood and not needing definition in the strument itself; Federalist, Nos. 22, 28, 81; 3 Elliott's Deb. 142, 143.

It is the settled law in this country the judicial power extends to and incluthe determination of the constitutions and validity of legislative acts, although propriety of this conclusion is still so times challenged. For a discussion of subject, its history, and the authorities, Constitutional.

But a court has no power to declare constitutional a duly enacted statute sin because it may seem to the court that s legislation does not conform to the gen 1745 upon which the government is foundeves v. Corning, 51 Fed. 774.

JUDICIAL POWER

onstitution declares that "the judicial of the United States shall be vested supreme court, and in such inferior as the congress may from time to dain and establish." Art. 3, s. 1. s been remarked that the essential er of its judiciary is a distinct recogy the constitution of the nationality federal government; Pom. Const. L.

ne constitutions of the several states, icial power is vested in such courts enumerated in each respectively.

vision in a state constitution that the of government shall be divided into istinct departments, each confided to e persons, operates to forbid the exy a court or judge of a power not ju-Appeal of Norwalk St. Ry. Co., 69 76, 37 Atl. 1080, 38 Atl. 708, 39 L. R.

And a constitutional grant of judithority is power to administer remer remedial rights; to render judicial is, so called, in actions or special pros to enforce the same; State v. Chit-127 Wis. 468, 107 N. W. 500.

e a state constitution expressly prothat judges of the supreme court not exercise non-judicial powers or of appointment, the maxim expressio st exclusio alterius was applied, and ver of appointment of local officers by of other courts was held valid, the of such power having been accordthe usage of the state; Com. v. Col-3 Pa. 138, 62 Atl. 567, 5 Ann. Cas. 92. is nothing in the constitution of the States to forbid or prevent the legisof a state from exercising judicial ns; Prentis v. Atlantic Coast Line Co., S. 210, 29 Sup. Ct. 67, 53 L. Ed from conferring judicial power on icial bodies; Consolidated Rendering Vermont, 207 U. S. 541, 28 Sup. Ct. L. Ed. 327, 12 Ann. Cas. 658; but the absence of special limitations state constitutions, legislatures canercise powers in their nature essenjudicial; Wynehamer v. People, 13 391. The different classes of power een apportioned to different departand as all derive their authority from ne instrument, there is an implied exof each department from exercising actions conferred upon the others; Const. Lim. 106. The legislative powot from its nature be assimilated to icial; the law is made by the one, and by the other; Merrill v. Sherburne, 1 204, 8 Am. Dec. 52; Greenough v. ugh, 11 Pa. 494, 51 Am. Dec. 567; Cin-W. & Z. R. Co. v. Com'rs of Clinton, 1 Ohio St. 81; Wynehamer v. Peo-

ouv.-110

N. J. L. 288, 23 Atl. 674. In the oft-repeated phrase of Chief Justice Marshall, "the legislature makes, the executive executes, and the judiciary construes, the law." Wayman v. Southard, 10 Wheat. (U. S.) 1, 46, 6 L. Ed. 253.

Two capital distinctions have been noted between the judicial power in England and in the United States,—the first grows out of the existence in the latter country of a written constitution restricting the power of the legislature, from which springs the duty of the courts to declare invalid any act which is expressly prohibited by or which is not authorized by the constitution, either expressly or by implication. The other results from the power of construction imposed upon the American judge by the brevity of the constitution. Continuing the last thought, it is said:

"The words of that instrument are general, lay-ing down a few large principles. The cases which will arise as to the construction of these general words cannot be foreseen until they arise. When they do arise the generality of the words leaves open to the interpreting judges a far wider field than is afforded by ordinary statutes, which, since they treat of one particular children in the statutes. they treat of one particular subject, contain enactments comparatively minute and precise. Hence, although the duty of a court is only to interpret, the considerations affecting interpretations are more numerous than in the case of ordinary statutes, more delicate, larger in their reach and scope. They sometimes need the exercise not merely of legal acumen and judicial fairness but of a comprehension of the nature and methods of government which one does not demand from the European judge who walks in the narrow path traced for him by ordinary statutes. It is therefore hardly an exaggeration to say that the American constitution, as it now stands, with the mass of fringing decisions which explain it, is a far more complete and finished instrument than it was when it came fire-new from the hands of the Convention. It is not merely their work but the work of the judges, and most of all one man, the great Chief Justice Marshall." Bryce, Am. Com. 248.

The American system of leaving constitutional questions to be settled by the courts is considered by the author last quoted to secure very great advantages over the theory which was advanced at the time of the formation of the federal government of subjecting the acts of the state legislature to the veto of congress. The result is, as he puts it, that "the court does not go to meet the question; it waits for the question to come to it. When the court acts, it acts at the instance of a party—sometimes the plaintiff or the defendant may be the national government or a state government, but far more frequently both are private persons, seeking to enforce or defend their private rights. He illustrates this by the fact that the doctrine of Fletcher v. Peck, 6 Cranch (U. S.) 87, 3 L. Ed. 162, that a repeal of a grant by the state to an individual impairs the obligation of the contract, was determined in an action between individuals, the result being that the decision upon the validity of the action of the state is relieved from those opinions which N. Y. 391; In re Ridgefield Park, 54 might affect its determination, if the state itself were a party; 1 Bryce, Am. Com. 252. A more far-reaching case which might be used as an illustration is the Dartmouth College Case, 4 Wheat. (U. S.) 518, 4 L. Ed. 629, in which an action between an individual and a private corporation, resulted in placing upon the states a limitation of power second to few if any contained in their constitutions.

Under the American constitutional system, there is to be found no force more potent, effective, and far-reaching than this power of constitutional construction which is now unquestionably vested in the courts. Through it the judicial power, in a way, approaches much more nearly to the absolute ultimate authority of the English parliament than does the legislative power. It has also been said: "We proceed upon the theory that our constitution is written: and in our written constitutions, state and national, we have provided courts for the purpose of passing upon the laws enacted by the legislatures and determining their constitutionality. We do not know, therefore, whether a governmental act is valid or not until a court of competent jurisdiction has passed upon it. We depend · upon our courts to tell us what our constitution means. Our real constitutions are thus found not wholly in the written documents bearing the name, but in the decisions of the supreme court of the United States and in those of the highest courts in the various The study of the American constitution is in large part, from beginning to end, a study of judicial decisions." Macy, Eng. Const. 89.

Mr. Bryce considers it a weak point in the federal constitution that a decision of the supreme court may be obtained in reversal of a former one by the appointment of judges to fill vacancies favorable to such reversal, or in case there be no vacancy, by the joint action of congress and the executive in increasing the number of judges. Of the former method, he instances the Legal Tender Cases, 1 Am. Const. 264, 269, 297. This reference served to put in a very definite form the somewhat widespread impression that appointments of judges were made for the purpose of reversing the previous decision of the court. The possibility of such action in any case by the executive is so serious a contingency that this particular charge has been recently made the subject of critical examination by Senator Hoar, whose brother was then attorney general of the United States. His pamphlet is a valuable historical document, and shows by the dates that the appointments in question were made prior to the decision, and from the testimony of members of the cabinet, that they had been agreed upon long before, neither the president nor any member of the cabinet having any knowledge as to the probable decision; see 5 Am.

The fact that the suggestion of any motive in the appointment of judges has so rarely that the danger alluded to is not a one. But even if it were, it is a dan essarily incident to all human instructions. No system of checks and balances been devised, and probably none e be, so perfect as to dispense with the integrity and good faith in the additional datasets.

tion of government.

It may be noted here, as alread under Constitutional, that Chief Gibson (in a dissenting opinion), in Raub, 12 S. & R. (Pa.) 345 (1825), a tended, after the decision in Marbury ison, 1 Cra. (U. S.) 176, 2 L. Ed. 60 state court is bound to execute an pugnant to the constitution of a p state, but not one repugnant to the constitution; though in Norris v. C Pa. 281, he said to counsel that he hied his opinion on this subject.

It was said by another eminent ju

It was said by another eminent juit is doubtful whether an act of the ture can be deemed absolutely volvather to be treated as voidable and jection can only be raised by one affit and not by a stranger; Shaw, C. re Wellington, 16 Pick. (Mass.) 96, Dec. 631, quoted with approval in Const. Lim. (7th Ed.) 232.

A state legislature cannot annul to ments nor determine the jurisdiction courts of the United States; U. S. v. 5 Cra. (U. S.) 115, 3 L. Ed. 53; nor tatively declare what the law is or libut what it shall be; Ogden v. Black Cra. (U. S.) 272, 2 L. Ed. 276.

Congress cannot interfere with or state courts except in so far as the courts have appellate jurisdiction.

Congress cannot without the co the state constrain the state courts tain or act upon applications for na tion; Rushworth v. Judges of Inferio 58 N. J. L. 97, 32 Atl. 743, 30 L. R The judicial powers of the United first under the constitution as o adopted, extended to cases "between and citizens of another state," but early case of Chisholm v. Georgia, (U. S.) 419, 1 L. Ed. 440, in which the tiff as executor brought an action of sit against the state, which was sust the court, resulted in the adoption of amendment. As a consequence it that cases past or present in which was a party were removed from the tion of the court; Hollingsworth v. 3 Dall. (U. S.) 378, 1 L. Ed. 644; but fact that a state may be interested oust the jurisdiction; Osborn v. Wheat. (U. S.) 738, 6 L. Ed. 204; in paratively late case the soundness opinion in the case of Chisholm v. was doubted, the suggestion being clause of the constitution giving jur in such cases was properly limited able in the courts of a state or suits by e against citizens of another state; v. Louisiana, 134 U. S. 1, 10 Sup. Ct. 3 L. Ed. 842. The grant of judicial in all cases in law and equity, etc., eld not to authorize a writ of error in cuit court of the District of Columbia iminal case; U. S. v. More, 3 Cra. (U. ), 2 L. Ed. 397; but this provision is enerally to include criminal as well as roceedings, and the power so vested in deral courts is independent of the jury of the states; Tennessee v. Davis, 100 157, 25 L. Ed. 648.

S. v. Smith, 4 N. J. L. 37, the action recover a penalty under the provisions act of congress. The question was raisplea whether under the act jurisdiction properly be given to a state court. A rer to the plea was overruled, and in enting opinion Southard, J., discusses the the question: What is the judicial of the United States?

distinctive features which characterthree great departments of governare in the main easily recognized. is little difficulty in determining whethower is judicial or executive, and the ons arising with respect to those disas result not so much from inherent ty in the subject as from a tendency dern constitutions and legislation to e the functions of the two departments classes of cases of which illustrations een already cited. So it may be said rdinarily there ought to be little diffin distinguishing legislative and judiwers. Properly understood, the two ns are entirely different, and yet there ints of contact from which spring diseases, such, for example, as the regulaprocedure, the application of rules of e, the attempt to regulate judicial dis-, and many others. This may involve, one hand, an unconstitutional delegalegislative power, or, on the other, sumption by the legislature of some of the authority which belongs to the The cases in which it is a question

The cases in which it is a question or a certain power is legislative or juare mainly considered under the title dislative Power, to which reference be made. As a reason why there is ally found much debatable ground bethe judiciary and the legislature, it en suggested that:

most countries the courts have grown most countries the courts have grown the legislature; or rather, the sovbody, which, like parliament, was origboth a law and a legislature, has deover most of its judicial duties to persons, while retaining some few to be exercised by itself." 1 Bryce, Amer. 235. The author just quoted enumerate points in which America has folthe English practice. There are no te administrative tribunals, but officials are sued or indicted in the regular courts; judges are secure in their tenure; judicial proceedings are recognized in law and not set aside by a statute within the competence of the legislature. He considers that America has improved on England in forbidding the legislature to exercise the powers of a criminal court, by acts of attainder, etc., and stands behind England in continuing to use a legislative body as a court of impeachment, the trial of disputed election cases by committees, and the disposition of public franchises, or the appropriation of private property, by legislative rather than judicial methods. Thus three pieces of ground debatable between the legislature and the judiciary, which all originally belonged to the legislature, and in America still do, have been in England made the subject of judicial power and method; id. 235. The judicial power extends to and includes only such acts as are in their nature judicial.

From its earliest history the United States supreme court has consistently declined to exercise any powers other than those which are strictly judicial; Muskrat v. U. S., 219 U. S. 346, 31 Sup. Ct. 250, 55 L. Ed. 246, citing Gordon v. U. S., 117 U. S. 697, appendix, where the subject was examined in the opinion by Taney, C. J.

An act of congress of 1792 devolved upon the circuit courts the duty of examining pension claims and certifying them to the secretary of war. In Hayburn's Case, 2 Dall. (U. S.) 409, 1 L. Ed. 436, the attorney general moved for a mandamus to compel the judges to proceed to hear the cases under the act, but the case was not decided, as the act was repealed. The reasons given by the circuit judges for refusing to perform the duties imposed upon them by the act are set forth in 2 Dall. 410, n. Under an act of 1793 the nature of the duties assigned to the judges were somewhat changed. This act came before the supreme court in U.S. v. Yale Todd. Both of these decisions are set forth in a note of Taney, C. J., in U. S. v. Ferreira, 13 How. (U. S.) 52, 14 L. Ed. 42, where it is said that the result of the opinions in these two cases is that the power thus conferred was not a judicial power, and therefore could not be exercised by the courts, and that as the act intended to confer the power on the court as a judicial function, it could not authorize the judges to exercise it out of court as commissioners, and this decision has ever since been regarded as constitutional law.

It is a settled principle of constitutional law that judges cannot be required to perform any other than judicial duties; Exparte Griffiths, 118 Ind. 83, 20 N. E. 513, 3 L. R. A. 398, 10 Am. St. Rep. 107, where the doctrine is stated emphatically in the language of Cooley, Const. Law 53, and many other cases are cited.

The general principle upon which is based the want of power in the legislature to confer upon the judges any other than judicial duties "is that under the constitutional system of the United States and of the states, there is a clear and explicit separation of the duties of the government in the three departments which, it has been well said, are not merely equal, they are exclusive, in respect to the duties assigned to each. They are absolutely independent of each other." Wright v. Defrees, 8 Ind. 298.

It is held that the constitutional powers of the judges are defined by the provisions conferring upon them the judicial power, eo nomine, and as was said by Mr. Justice Field, in the supreme court of California: "In its own sphere of duties this court cannot be trammelled by any legislative restrictions. Its constitutional duty is discharged by rendition of decisions;" Houston v. Williams, 13 Cal. 24, 73 Am. Dec. 565; and the supreme court of Arkansas said of the constitutional right of the court, "The legislative department is incompetent to touch it;" Vaughn v. Harp, 49 Ark. 160, 4 S. W. 751.

Congress cannot require the judiciary to exercise powers that are not judicial; Exparte Riebeling, 70 Fed. 310 (to pass upon the value of the services of an informer in the case of seizure of smuggled goods); the opinion considered the matter historically and at length. It was followed by Judge Mc-Pherson in U. S. v. Queen, 105 Fed. 269.

Acts held valid as not conferring non-judicial powers are: Conferring on the court the power to establish towns; Morton v. Woodford, 99 Ky. 367, 35 S. W. 1112; to determine whether conditions prescribed by general law for the creation or enlargement of municipal bodies have been complied with; Forsythe v. City of Hammond, 68 Fed. 774; to inquire whether water rates fixed by municipalities and corporations operate to deprive the owner of appropriated water of his property without just compensation; Diego Land & T. Co. v. City, 74 Fed. 79; authorizing a court on appeal from county commissioners to fix the salary of a county attorney; Rockwell v. County of Fillmore, 47 Minn. 219, 49 N. W. 690.

It is not a judicial function to exercise merely ministerial powers in relation to committing inebriates; Foreman v. Board, 64 Minn. 373, 67 N. W. 207; nor to entertain appeals from county commissioners upon the propriety of annexing territory to a city; Forsyth v. City of Hammond, 71 Fed. 443; to exercise over the business intercourse of common carriers control which ought to belong to themselves; State v. R. Co., 46 Neb. 682, 65 N. W. 766, 31 L. R. A. 47; to prevent the submission to the people of a constitutional amendment by injunction against the secretary of state; State v. Thorson, 9 S. D. 149, 68 N. W. 202, 33 L. R. A. 582; to require the court to make appointments to fill Wall. (U. S.) 107, 22 L. Ed. 72; H political offices unconnected with the as members of a municipal board of re 27 W. L. Bul. 334; or health commission Am. L. Rec. 651 (in both of which last cases the court refused to appoint); lector of taxes; McLean County Prec Bank, 81 Ky. 254; supervisors of ele Case of Supervisors of Election, 114 247, 19 Am. Rep. 341; a bridge comr State v. George, 22 Or. 142, 29 Pac. 3 L. R. A. 737, 29 Am. St. Rep. 586; jur missioners; State v. Mounts, 36 W. V. 14 S. E. 407, 15 L. R. A. 243 (where considered that jury commissioners we public officers but officers of the court tices of the peace; Ex parte Bassitt, 679, 19 S. E. 453; park commissioners v. Board of Chosen Freeholders, 69 N 291, 55 Atl. 310 (which decision revers supreme court and is severely critici not justified by the state constitution Am. L. Rev. 620). But it has been held that judges ma stitutionally be vested with power to a city commissioners, though that duty ministrative and not judicial; City of Haute v. R. Co., 149 Ind. 174, 46 N. E. L. R. A. 189, where a long list is gi powers conferred upon judges not a of a judicial character. And in a state it is held that the power to e non-judicial functions does not make unconstitutional, as, though not comp there is no valid objection to its due tion, if the court or judge chooses form the duty, since third persons complain on the ground that the perform could not have been enforced; State cinnati, 52 Ohio St. 419, 451, 40 N. 27 L. R. A. 737. So, though the court have refused to perform a duty impo statute of levying a tax on lawyers, ye ing done so and not claiming their pri the party assessed cannot raise this tion; State v. Gazlay, 5 Ohio 14. The lature cannot constitute the court a bo try contested elections, that power no essentially judicial; Miller v. Whee Neb. 765, 51 N. W. 137; nor can a co charged with the duty of purchasin for the use of the county and execu mortgage for the purchase money; Bu v. Board, 5 Cal. 9; nor with the po incorporating towns; People v. Town vada, 6 Cal. 143; or assessment of Hardenburgh v. Kidd, 10 Cal. 402; valuation of property for taxation; of State v. R. Co., 6 Kan. 500, 7 An 575; City of Baltimore v. Bonaparte, 156, 48 Atl. 735; or fixing the salar court reporters; Smith v. Strother, 6 194, 8 Pac. 852; or authorizing the m to levy and collect a municipal tax of mandamus against a city has failed to payment; Rees v. City of Waterton Commissioners, 19 Wall. (U. S.) 655, Ed. 223; or the adjustment of state ay bonds by deciding which of two secof an act shall take effect and be law; v. Young, 29 Minn. 474, 9 N. W. 737; assing upon the constitutionality of a ative act or municipal ordinance as an act question; Shephard v. Wheeling, 30 a. 479, 4 S. E. 635.

the La Abra Mining Company case it held that the question whether and by an international commission and appire under a convention between the d States and Mexico was obtained by was one in its nature susceptible of al determination; La Abra Mining Co. S., 175 U. S. 423, 20 Sup. Ct. 168, 44 I. 223, where a demurrer had been insed upon the main ground that the questinvolved were of a diplomatic or politicature.

e court has jurisdiction to determine onstitutionality of an act apportioning tate into legislative districts; Denney ate, 144 Ind. 503, 42 N. E. 929, 31 L. R.

t while the courts are not permitted to non-judicial duties imposed upon them, a the other hand, are the other departs of the government forbidden to invade surp the judicial power. And this is to extend to and include everything sarily or even properly incident to the ise of their jurisdiction.

power to punish contempts is strictly al and cannot be abridged by the legise; Hale v. State, 55 Ohio St. 210, 45 N. 9, 36 L. R. A. 254, 60 Am. St. Rep. 691; t v. People, 17 Col. 252, 29 Pac. 961; v. State, 90 Ind. 338, 46 Am. Rep. 224; e v. Territory, 2 Okl. 499, 37 Pac. 829; easonable regulations by the legislature ing the exercise of this power are bindid.; but the power cannot be conferred an executive board; Langenberg v. er, 131 Ind. 471, 31 N. E. 190, 16 L. R. 8; and an order directing a sheriff to it a person to jail until he answers ions propounded to him by commissionppointed to take his examination before is erroneous as an attempted delegation dicial power in allowing the sheriff to mine what is compliance with the or-Fertilizer Co. v. Taylor, 112 N. C. 141, E. 69.

e purpose of a judicial inquiry is to ce the laws as they are at present. lation looks to the future and changes ing conditions by making new laws to plicable hereafter; Ross v. Oregon, 227 150, 33 Sup. Ct. 220, 57 L. Ed. 458. province of the courts is to decide the law is or has been, and to deterits application to particular facts in lecision of causes; the province of the ature is to declare what the law shall be in the future; and neither of these departments can lawfully invade the province of the other;" Ratcliffe v. Anderson, 31 Gratt. (Va.) 105, 107, 31 Am. Rep. 716, quoted in Shephard v. Wheeling, 30 W. Va. 479, 4 S. E. 635, where it was held that the abstract question of the constitutionality of an act or ordinance cannot be decided by a court.

When the state constitution confers the whole judicial power on specified courts and officers, no portion of it can be conferred on any officer not elective and not so specified; Chandler v. Nash, 5 Mich. 409; Shoultz v. McPheeters, 79 Ind. 373.

Legislation is not an interference with judicial functions, which regulates the rules of pleading; Whiting v. Townsend, 57 Cal. 515; or procedure; In re Probate Blanks, 71 N. H. 621, 52 Atl. 861; or affects the powers of individual judges as distinguished from the court itself; State v. Taylor, 68 N. J. L. 276, 53 Atl. 392; but the court may make reasonable rules as to the hearing of causes and they will prevail against a statute: Herndon v. Ins. Co., 111 N. C. 384, 16 S. E. 465, 18 L. R. A. 547; though it cannot make a rule which deprives one of a right secured by law; Main v. Lynch, 54 Md. 658. As to the power of the courts to make rules, see In re Du Pont, 8 Del. Ch. 442, 68 Atl. 399. The court may change its own calendar and fix dates of trial; Merchants' National Bank v. Greenhood, 16 Mont. 395, 41 Pac. 250, 851; and a statute providing that the court must designate a day for hearing preferred causes was held unconstitutional as depriving the court of the right to hear such causes according to the circumstances of each particular case; Riglander v. Star Co., 98 App. Div. 101, 90 N. Y. Supp. 772; Jones v. Spear, 21 Vt. 426; so the power to appoint or remove a janitor of a court room belongs to the court; In re Janitor of Supreme Court, 85 Wis. 410.

The legislature cannot require judges to file opinions in writing; Houston v. Williams, 13 Cal. 24, 73 Am. Dec. 565; Vaughn v. Harp, 49 Ark. 160, 4 S. W. 751; Ex parte Griffiths, 118 Ind. 83, 20 N. E. 513, 3 L. R. A. 398, 10 Am. St. Rep. 107; Matter of Head Notes, 43 Mich. 641, 8 N. W. 552.

A statute prescribing causes for which a judgment may be set aside does not restrict the power of the court to set aside judgments for other causes than those mentioned; Nealis v. Dicks, 72 Ind. 374. Among the inherent powers of courts independent of legislative exactment is the power to prevent the enforcement against an accused person of a judgment obtained by duress; Maynard v. Mier, 85 Ind. 318.

the law is or has been, and to deterits application to particular facts in decision of causes; the province of the law shall state v. R. Co., 71 Conn. 43, 40 Atl. 925;

Martin v. Land Co., 94 Va. 28, 26 S. E. 591; declaring what shall be conclusive evidence; People v. Rose, 207 Ill. 352, 69 N. E. 762; prescribing the manner in which courts shall discharge their judicial duties; Parkison v. Thompson, 164 Ind. 609, 73 N. E. 109, 3 Ann. Cas. 677; abridging or taking away the inherent power of courts to enforce their decrees and command respect for their processes; Anderson v. Forging Co., 34 Ind. App. 100, 72 N. E. 277; making a specification of weights in bills of lading conclusive evidence of correctness; Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Simonson, 64 Kan. 802, 68 Pac. 653, 57 L. R. A. 765, 91 Am. St. Rep. 248; declaring a tax deed or the recitals therein to be conclusive evidence of a compliance with those matters which are essential to the exercise of the taxing power, etc.; Wilson v. Wood, 10 Okl. 279, 61 Pac. 1045; depriving a state Supreme Court of its revisory jurisdiction over all other state tribunals; Brown v. Kalamazoo Circuit Judge, 75 Mich. 274, 42 N. W. 827, 5 L. R. A. 226, 13 Am. St. Rep. 438; validating the levy of a tax which had been finally adjudicated to be invalid; Chicago & E. I. R. Co. v. People, 219 Ill. 408, 76 N. E. 571; authorizing the courts to set aside judgments and grant new trials after the term; Peerce v. Kitzmiller, 19 W. Va. 504; White v. Crump, id. 583; abridging the right of a court of chancery to pass upon questions of fact without a jury; Detroit Nat. Bank v. Blodgett, 115 Mich. 160, 73 N. W. 120, 885.

The following acts have been held to be constitutional: A federal act empowering the comptroller to appoint receivers for insolvent national banks (as not vesting in him a judicial power); Bushnell v. Leland, 164 U. S. 684, 17 Sup. Ct. 209, 41 L. Ed. 598; an act establishing rules of evidence which are not in conflict with the constitution; Banks v. State, 124 Ga. 15, 52 S. E. 74, 2 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1007; prescribing rules of procedure or pleading; Parkison v. Thompson, 164 Ind. 609, 73 N. E. 109, 3 Ann. Cas. 677; regulating the procedure in contempt cases; Mahoney v. State, 33 Ind. App. 655, 72 N. E. 151, 104 Am. St. Rep. 276; regulating the exercise of the powers of a court for the punishment of constructive contempts; Drady v. Dist. Court, 126 Ia. 345, 102 N. W. 115; constituting facts which, according to the ordinary rules of human experience, tend to prove another fact, conclusive evidence of it; County Seat of Linn County, 15 Kan. 500; imposing indeterminate sentences; State v. Stephenson, 69 Kan. 405, 76 Pac. 905, 105 Am. St. Rep. 171, 2 Ann. Cas. 841; declaring the oath and examination of the mother of a bastard child to be presumptive evidence against the person accused of its paternity; State v. Rogers, 119 N. C. 793, 26 S. E. 142; discharging a motion for a new trial, if not acted upon by the court at the term; James v. Appel, 192 U. S. 129, 24 Sup. Ct. 222, 48 L. Ed. 377.

Where an act provided for filling cies in municipal offices by a person ed by the council to serve until "the city election," it was held that a quent act providing that the words should be construed to mean the e at which the voters would have elect successor without respect to the va was an invasion of judicial power as ing to compel the courts to constru previous act in a way contrary to its and spirit; Com. v. Warwick, 172 P. 33 Atl. 373. In this case, however, M J., filed an able dissenting opinion in he maintained that the judgment w "unprecedented and unwarranted in by the judiciary of the legislative auth that expository acts had been in use in sylvania from colonial days, and tha were "a legislative formula never here questioned." See also Titusville Iron v. Oil Co., 122 Pa. 627, 15 Atl. 917, 1 A. 361; where they are held to be a co form of legislative expression to whi ture effect must be given. In Lamber Hogan, 2 Pa. 22, it was held that "ex tory acts must be construed as operat future cases alone, except where the designed to explain a doubtful statute Wherever a power is given to ex

Wherever a power is given to exhear, and punish, it is a judicial power they in whom it is reposed act as j Holt, C. J., 1 Salk. 200. In this ca censors of the College of Physicians their charter fined and imprisoned a cian for administering unwholesome and noxious medicines, and it was hel certiorari would lie.

certiorari would lie.

The phrase judicial power, as adop American constitutional law, includes a termination of questions of fact in cases. The term must be construed a ing such power as the courts under the lish and American system of jurisperal ways exercised in that class of a and it is not competent for the legis to withdraw from the courts invested constitution with judicial power, as the ters in equity, the determination of tions in fact, as one of the established ments of that power; Callanan v. Ju Wis. 343, 349.

It frequently happens that the cour concluded by the result of an inquiry, judicial in its character, which under very general definitions, such as that of Holt, supra, might be referred to the cial power, but is required in this part case and by the legislature or executive guide to their own action.

In cases where the existence of casts is necessary to be ascertained as a for determining whether it is wise to a statute, the ascertainment of the fit he legislature will be considered concand its decision will not be reviewed courts in a collateral proceeding. As ct that the county had a population exig fifty thousand, the court refused to on the action of the legislature, alh it appeared by the United States s that the population of the county was han the required amount; Ex parte ow, 112 Mo. 591, 20 S. W. 682; and the legislature prohibited parents procuring or consenting to the ement of a female child under the age urteen years as a dancer, the court not review its decision that such legon was necessary to protect the health norals of children on the ground that w infringed the rights of parents in particular cases; People v. Ewer, 19 Supp. 933.

ere a reapportionment of representabased upon relative changes of popu-, was made by act of congress to take two years later, it was held to be a cal and not a judicial question, and the s could not give redress for any ine resulting therefrom; State v. Boyd, b. 181, 54 N. W. 252, 19 L. R. A. 227; respect to apportionment of the state gislative purposes, where the act of the ture was in violation of the constituf the state, the question of the validity statute is not a political one, but a juquestion; Parker v. State, 133 Ind. 178, E. 836, 33 N. E. 119, 18 L. R. A. 567; v. Cunningham, 83 Wis. 90, 53 N. W. L. R. A. 145, 35 Am. St. Rep. 27.

e decision of congress recognizing a as an equitable obligation of the govent and appropriating money for its ent can rarely be the subject of review e courts; U. S. v. Realty Co., 163 U. S. 6 Sup. Ct. 1120, 41 L. Ed. 215.

ourt or judge cannot be authorized to rm legislative duties; Smith v. Strother, l. 194, 8 Pac. 852.

act of the legislature provided that e any railway company should conits roads in the streets of a city, the authorities, or the superior court, or ge thereof, on appeal, should approve lan of construction. It was held that ower which the superior court or a thereof was required to exercise was ative and not judicial, and therefore not be exercised by them; Appeal of alk St. Ry. Co., 69 Conn. 576, 37 Atl. 38 Atl. 708, 39 L. R. A. 794. The case sses the question fully.

act authorizing the court or judge alg a mandamus to direct the manner rving it is not a delegation of legislaowers; State v. Express Co., 66 Minn. 8 N. W. 1085, 38 L. R. A. 225.

e act of July 25, 1882, authorizing s and clerks of United States courts sue subpænas upon the application of ommissioner of pensions for the examstablishment of a court depended upon ination of witnesses concerning pension claims, is constitutional and under it the courts can compel witnesses to appear and testify on that subject; In re Gross, 78 Fed. 107. A statute authorizing judges to fix salaries of deputies or assistants employed by county officers is not unconstitutional as a delegation of legislative power to a judicial tribunal; Stone v. Wilson, 39 S. W. 49, 19 Ky. L. Rep. 126, overruling Com. v. Addams, 95 Ky. 588, 26 S. W. 581, 16 Ky. L. Rep. 135.

Questions frequently arise as to the validity of legislative acts requiring of executive officers duties quasi-judicial in their character, the propriety of which is challenged upon the ground that they impose judicial functions upon executive officers. Such are provisions of law authorizing the removal of subordinate officers, the constitution of boards for taxation, assessment, and the like. It is a well-settled principle that "judicial functions or duties can be conferred only upon courts and judicial officers;" State v. Noble, 118 Ind. 361, 21 N. E. 244, 4 L. R. A. 101, 10 Am. St. Rep. 143; Van Slyke v. Fire Ins. Co., 39 Wis. 390, 20 Am. Rep. 50; People v. Hayne, 83 Cal. 111, 23 Pac. 1, 7 L. R. A. 348, 17 Am. St. Rep. 211. But it has been held that there is no invasion of the judicial power in making state executive officers ex officio of a state board of taxation; Cleveland, C., C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Backus, 133 Ind. 513, 33 N. E. 421, 18 L. R. A. 729; Indianapolis & V. R. Co. v. Backus, 133 Ind. 609, 33 N. E. 443; or charging them with the duty of assessing property or serving on a board of equalization; Sawyer v. Dooley, 21 Nev. 390, 32 Pac. 437.

Power to summon and examine witnesses under oath conferred on an administrative officer is not a distinctive judicial power; Matter of Fenton, 58 Misc. 303, 109 N. Y.

So it was held that the act, authorizing the establishment of a public park in the District of Columbia, and providing that in case of disagreement between the land owner and the park commissioners the appraisement should be submitted to the president, for his approval did not impose a judicial function upon the president whose duty was merely to decide whether the United States would have the land at the appraised value, and not to decide whether such value was reasonable as respects the property owner; Shoemaker v. U. S., 147 U. S. 282, 13 Sup. Ct. 361, 37 L. Ed. 170; such an act merely makes the president the agent of congress to decide whether the proceedings shall be completed or abandoned; U. S. v. Cooper, 20 D. C. 104.

A constitutional provision prohibiting the legislature from creating other courts than those mentioned in the constitution does not prevent it from authorizing appeals to a court from the decision of a license board; Thompson v. Koch, 98 Ky. 400, 33 S. W. 96; and where the judicial power was vested by the constitution in certain named courts, it was still competent for the legislature to provide for the removal of administrative officers in cities by the board of aldermen "sitting as a court," such power being held not strictly judicial; Gibbs v. Board, 99 Ky. 490, 36 S. W. 524.

The fact that the law confers on jury commissioners judicial powers in the selection of citizens for jury services does not involve a conflict with the fourteenth amendment of the constitution; Murray v. Louisiana, 163 U. S. 101, 16 Sup. Ct. 990, 41 L. Ed. 87.

Judicial powers were not conferred on the governor by authorizing him to investigate charges of official misconduct of state officers with a view to their removal; McMaster v. Herald, 56 Kan. 231, 42 Pac. 697; or by an act authorizing him to remove any officer appointed by him; Cameron v. Parker, 2 Okl. 277, 38 Pac. 14; and the action of a governor in removing an officer under such act will not be reviewed by the courts; id; State v. Rost, 47 La. Ann. 53, 16 South. 776.

The power to remove city officers for cause is administrative, not judicial, and may therefore be conferred on a non-judicial body; State v. Common Council, 90 Wis. 612, 64 N. W. 304.

Questions of power between the judiciary and the executive have generally arisen upon applications for a mandamus to compel or an injunction to prevent action of an executive officer.

The question of power to issue a mandamus in such cases is discussed under the title EXECUTIVE POWER, and the authorities are there collected. A discussion of the subject, not strictly in a suit at law, but as the result of one, the participants in which were a judge and a quasi-judicial officer, may be referred to here.

In Gilcrist v. Collector of Charleston it was held that the circuit court has no power to issue a mandamus to a collector, commanding him to grant a clearance, and that all instructions from the executive which are not supported by law are illegal, and no inferior officer is bound to obey them; 1 Hall. Am., L. J. 429, Fed. Cas. No. 5,420, This decision was the subject of a letter from Cæsar A. Rodney, attorney general, to the president criticising the action of the court and challenging its jurisdiction; 1 Hall, Am. L. J. 433, Fed. Cas. No. 5,420. In reply to this letter Mr. Justice Johnson, who presided at the trial, made some remarks, in the course of which he says: "Jurisdiction in a case is one thing; the mode of exercising that jurisdiction is quite another;" the jurisdiction of the court must be derived from the constitution, and he expressly disclaims "any other origin of our jurisdiction, pecially the unpopular grounds of preroga and analogy to the king's bench."

In asserting the necessity of the reco tion of the right of the courts to coerce executive officer by a judicial order, he sists that such authority is necessarily volved in the use of the term power in "The term judicial po constitution: conveys the idea both of exercising faculty of judging and of applying phys force to give effect to a decision. The to power could with no propriety be appl nor could the judiciary be denominated department of government, without means of enforcing its decrees. In a cour where laws govern, courts of justice ne sarily are the medium of action and reac between the government and the govern The basis of individual security and the b of union between the ruler and the cit must ever be found in a judiciary sufficier independent to disregard the will of pov and sufficiently energetic to secure to citizen the full enjoyment of his rights. establish such a one was evidently the ject of the constitution." He contends t the establishment of a judiciary with power to enforce its decrees would have b to no purpose, and that where a jurisdic is conferred and no forms prescribed for exercise, there is an inherent power in court to adopt a mode of proceeding adap to the exigency of each case; 1 Hall, L. J. 446, Fed. Cas. No. 5,420.

It has been a subject of controversy l far the decisions of the court of claims trol the executive departments of the ernment of the United States in their ac on similar cases. It was said by Richa son, C. J., that the decisions of the co of claims in general, not appealed from, guides to the executive officers of the ernment, and furnish precedents for the ecutive departments in all like cases; M v. U. S., 13' Wash. L. Rep. 122. This deciwas thus criticised by Comptroller Lawren The court of claims undoubtedly had right (1) to lay down law for itself, bu has no authority to lay down law (2) the executive officers of the governm yet the opinion referred to assumes to so. This is the necessary effect of the wo employed by it, and whether so intended not, it is their logical effect. For if the co of claims can prescribe not only its own ties and the rules and principles of law a erning its own action, but also the same accounting officers in the executive admi tration of the executive business of the ernment, it may for like reasons do the se for heads of executive departments and e the president himself; 6 Dec. First Co

The federal courts will not interfere we the pension officers in the exercise of the

etion; Gaines v. Thompson, 7 Wall. (U. 47, 19 L. Ed. 62; Carrick v. Lamar, 116 423, 6 Sup. Ct. 424, 29 L. Ed. 677.

estions purely political or arising out ternational relations the courts do not ne to determine, but leave them to what term the political departments of the nment and follow the decisions of the tive. Such a question is the recogniof independence or celligerency which scussed at length under the title of UTIVE POWER.

e power of the courts to enjoin execofficers rests upon the same principles lose applicable to a mandamus. It is general rule that the official action of xecutive department of the government! the state cannot be controlled by a of injunction; Fleming v. Guthrie, 32 a. 1, 9 S. E. 23, 3 L. R. A. 53, 25 Am. ep. 792; Bates v. Taylor, 87 Tenn. 319, W. 266, 3 L. R. A. 316; Smith v. Myers, and. 1, 9 N. E. 692, 58 Am. Rep. 375. The tion of orders of the president for regintruders from government land will e interfered with by injunction; Guth-Hall, 1 Okl. 454, 34 Pac. 880.

injunction may be obtained to proa de facto officer whose title is disi as well as that of one de jure, but it t an appropriate means of determining e to an office; In re Sawyer, 124 U. S.
Sup. Ct. 482, 31 L. Ed. 402. In neither lesse cases, however, is there involved question of conflict between the execuand judicial power, inasmuch as the latlegitimately extends to and includes proing for the trial of title to office by quo anto, which title see.

e power of staying the execution of a sentence pending an appeal conferred w on a court is not the granting of a eve within the meaning of a constitution of a constitution of executive power, but is a fail power included in the separation of mment into three independent departs; Parker v. State, 135 Ind. 534, 35 N. 9, 23 L. R. A. 859. See Butler v. State, ad. 373.

State v. Doyle, 40 Wis. 175, 22 Am. Rep. which was an application for a mandaagainst the state officer seeking to rehim to revoke the license of an insurcompany, return was made pleading an ction of the circuit court of the United s to restrain the Secretary of State revoking the license, and it was held "where a suit is prosecuted in a fedcourt by a private party against a state r who has no personal interest or liain the action, but is sued in his official ity only, to affect a right of the state the state is the real defendant, within prohibition of the 11th amendment to ederal constitution. A circuit court of tion of a suit by a foreign corporation to restrain a state officer from revoking (as required by the law of the state) a license granted the plaintiff corporation to do business in the state."

So also the power to exclude or to expel aliens, being a power affecting international relations, is vested in the political departments of the government and is to be regulated by treaty or by act of congress and to be executed by the executive authority according to the regulations so established, except so far as the judicial department has been authorized by treaty or by statute or is required by the paramount law of the constitution to intervene; Fong Yue Ting v. U. S., 149 U. S. 698, 13 Sup. Ct. 1016, 37 L. Ed. 905. See Alien; Chinese.

Of all the instances of what appears to an American legal mind the confusion of powers under the English system, none is more striking than the commingling of executive and judicial duties found in the office of the lord chancellor.

In commenting upon the alteration in his customary position by the powers of an administrative character conferred upon him by the Judicature Acts, a recent writer says, "It would appear, to the independent observer, that the tenure, the power of appointments, and the administrative duties of the chancellor, though necessarily pertinent to his high office, are inconsistent with his position as chief judge, co-equal and co-ordinate with the others, and that if the intention of the statute was to confer that position upon him, it was contrary to English usage, if not unconstitutional." Inderwick, King's Peace 232.

There has been much discussion as to whether the courts, in decisions dealing with labor strikes and public commotion arising out of them, have extended their jurisdiction beyond recognized principles. In this discussion the phrase "government by injunction" has been constantly used. The cases are cited under the titles: Injunction; Contempt; Labor Union; Conspiracy; Combination; Boycott; Strikes; and do not require further discussion here. See also, 13 Law Quart. Rev. 347; 31 Am. L. Reg. N. S. 1, 782; 34 id. 576; 37 id. 1; 3 Va. L. Reg. 625; Rep. Am. Bar. Assn. 1894, p. 299; 29 Am. L. Rev. 282.

In impeachment proceedings, the legislature acts judicially; it was so held in sustaining the impeachment proceedings against Governor Sulzer at a special session, although they were not specified by the governor in his call.

See Delegation; Executive Power; Legislative Power; Constitutional; Judg-Made Law; Jubisdiction; Juby; Judge.

prohibition of the 11th amendment to dederal constitution. A circuit court of which takes place in or under the authority of a court of justice, or which relates in some way to the administration of justice, or which legally ascertains any right or liability. Hereford v. People, 197 Ill. 222, 64 N. E. 310.

Conclusive presumptions are made in favor of judicial proceedings. Thus, it is an undoubted rule of pleading that nothing shall be intended to be out of the jurisdiction of a superior court but that which is so expressly alleged; 1 Saund. 74; 10 Q. B. 411, 455. So also, it is presumed, with respect to such writs as are actually issued by the superior courts at Westminster, that they are duly issued, and in a case in which the courts have jurisdiction, unless the contrary appears on the face of them; and all such writs will of themselves, and without any further allegation, protect all officers and others in their aid acting under them; and this, too, although they are on the face of them irregular, or even void in form; 6 Co. 54 a; 10 Q. B. 411, 455. The rule is well settled that words spoken in the course of judicial proceedings, though they are such as impute crime to another, and therefore if spoken elsewhere would import malice and be actionable in themselves, are not actionable if they are applicable and pertinent to the subject of inquiry. And this extends not merely to regular courts of justice, but to all inquiries before magistrates, referees, municipal, military, and ecclesiastical bodies; and they are only restrained by this rule, viz., that they shall be made in good faith to courts or tribunals having jurisdiction of the subject, and power to hear and decide the matter of complaint or accusation, and that they are not resorted to as a cloak for private malice. The question, therefore, in such cases is, not whether the words spoken are true, not whether they are actionable in themselves, but whether they were spoken in the course of judicial proceedings, and whether they were relevant and pertinent to the cause or subject of in-Newell, Def. Lib. & Sland. 424; Heard, Lib. & S. § 101. The rule that no action will lie for words spoken or written in the course of any judicial proceeding has been acted upon from the earliest times. In 4 Co. 14 b, it was adjudged that if one exhibits articles to justices of the peace, "in this case the parties shall not have, for any matter contained in such articles, any action upon the case, for they had pursued the ordinary course of justice in such cases; and if actions should be permitted in such cases, those who have just cause for complaint would not dare to complain, for fear of infinite vexation." And it has been decided that, though an affidavit made in a judicial proceeding is false, slanderous, and malicious, no action will lie against the party making it; 18 C. B. 126; 4 H. & N. 568.

The general rule is subject to this qualification: that in all cases where the object dress for an alleged wrong, or a proce in a tribunal or before some individu associated body of men, such tribuna dividual, or body must be vested with or occasion of the words or writing thority to render judgment or make cision in the case, or to entertain the ceeding, in order to give them the prote of privileged communications. This of fication of the rule runs through all cases where the question is involved; Lib. & Sl. 188, n.; Heard, Lib. & S. § 1 Statements made extra-judicially magistrate with a view to asking his vice are not a judicial proceeding; 3 C. 24.

Official Records of the States. The company of the states of the states.

tution provides that full faith and shall be given in each state to the public records, and judicial proceedings of other state. This applies as well to the ments and records of the courts of the eral territories; Suesenbach v. Wagne Minn. 108, 42 N. W. 925. Congress mageneral laws prescribe the manner in such acts, records, and proceedings shaproved and the effect thereof. The term ords includes all executive, judicial, lettve, and ministerial acts, constituting public records of the state; Desty, Grew, 16 Tex. 509.

Legislative acts must be authenticate the seal of the state; U. S. v. Johns, 4 (U. S.) 412, 1 L. Ed. 888.

As to the effect of judicial proceeding

Const. 203; White v. Burnley, 20 How

S.) 250, 15 L. Ed. 886; Watrous' Heirs v

der this provision, see Foreign Judgm As to records generally, see Records. See generally, Judge; Judge-Made Judicial Documents; Judicial Po Jury.

JUDICIAL SALE. A sale, by author; some competent tribunal, by an office thorized by law for the purpose. The includes sales by sheriffs, marshals, ma commissioners, or by trustees, executor administrators, where the latter sell the decree of a court.

A sale, whether public or private, ma a receiver, pursuant to the direction o thority given by the court; In re Dei 114 N. Y. 621, 21 N. E. 97. It is premature and erroneous to dec sale of property to satisfy incumbr thereon before ascertaining the amount:

priorities of the liens binding such prop Bristol Iron & Steel Co. v. Caldwell, 9 47, 27 S. E. 838.

A decree confirming a master's sale declaring that the title be vested in the chaser "upon the payment of the pur money," vests no title in such purchase til the purchase money is paid; Bla Blair (Tenn.) 41 S. W. 1078.

The officer who makes the sale conve ghts of the defendant, and all other purchaser will not be compelled to take the s legally affected by the proceedings, property sold. Under such a sale there varranty, either express or implied, of ng sold; The Monte Allegre, 9 Wheat. 616, 6 L. Ed. 174; Boorum v. Tucker, J. Eq. 135, 26 Atl. 456; Wright v. Tich-104 Ind. 185, 3 N. E. 853. A sale of tate does not conclude one not a party se proceedings; and whatever title he the property so sold remains unaffectthe sale; United Lines Telegraph Co. st Co., 147 U. S. 431, 13 Sup. Ct. 396, 37 231. Where the property sold under a is correctly represented by a plat, reto in the advertisement and exhibited sale, which discloses an encroachment reet, the purchaser cannot plead ignothereof; Carneal v. Lynch, 91 Va. 114, 2. 959, 50 Am. St. Rep. 819. A purchasjudicial sale, not made under compulrocess, can set up eviction of a part title as a defence in an action for rchase money, but where land is sold ty to pay the debts of an estate, and a ent has to be rendered against the purfor the purchase money, he cannot its collection because of eviction; Lat-. Wharton, 41 S. C. 508, 19 S. E. 855, . St. Rep. 739.

doctrine of caveat emptor applies to under a decree foreclosing a mortand the purchaser cannot rely upon ents made by the officer conducting e that he will get a title free from inance; Norton v. Trust Co., 40 Neb. 3 N. W. 953.

purchaser of a leasehold interest at iff's sale is charged with notice of the and subject to its covenants and con-; Aderhold v. Supply Co., 158 Pa. 401, 22; and a purchaser at such sale of r's interest is bound by notice given sale by decedent's heirs that the inwas subject in the purchaser's hands right, if any, of decedent's estate to the heir's indebtedness against his Donaldson's Estate, 158 Pa. 292, 27 9. Where a conveyance from a life is procured by fraud and the property nder a judgment against a vendee, a ser at that sale with knowledge of the can hold against the devisees in reer; Fields v. Bush, 94 Ga. 664, 21 S. E.

ecree homologating proceedings at a meeting to sell a child's property will a purchaser in good faith; Daute-Shaw, 47 La. Ann. 882, 17 South. 345. will not relieve a purchaser from comwith the terms of sale because of a in the title, rendering the title unable, of which the purchaser was cog-Stewart v. Devries, 81 Md. 525, 32 5. Where land is sold under a condititle although his son signed the condition without apprehending its effect; Recor v. Blackburn, 71 Hun 54, 24 N. Y. Supp. 692. It is well settled that "the title of an innocent purchaser of land at a judicial sale under a mortgage is not affected by the usurious character of such mortgage." Sharpe v. Tatnall, 5 Del. Ch. 302; Elliott v. Wood, 53 Barb. (N. Y.) 285. See as to bona fide purchaser, Riley v. Martinelli, 97 Cal. 575, 32 Pac. 579, 21 L. R. A. 38, 33 Am. St. Rep. 209. When real estate is sold by the sheriff or marshal the sale is subject to the confirmation of the court, or it may be set aside. See McPherson v. Foster, 4 Wash. C. C. 45, Fed. Cas. No. 8,921; Bleeker v. Bond, 4 Wash. C. C. 322, Fed. Cas. No. 1,536.

An officer at a sale on execution conducted by himself cannot act as agent, with full discretionary powers of an absent person in the purchase of property, since the law casts on him the duty of fidelity to the execution debtor, and such purchase by the officer is void, and confers no title on his principal; Caswell v. Jones, 65 Vt. 457, 26 Atl. 529, 20 L. R. A. 503, 36 Am. St. Rep. 879.

Any statements made with a purpose to deter bidding may avoid the sale; Phelps v. Benson, 161 Pa. 418, 29 Atl. 86; Herndon v. Gibson, 38 S. C. 357, 17 S. E. 145, 20 L. R. A. 545, 37 Am. St. Rep. 765; Barnes v. Mays, 88 Ga. 696, 16 S. E. 67.

It is generally said to be a rule that mere inadequacy of price is not of itself sufficient ground for setting aside a judicial sale; Bethlehem Iron Co. v. Ry. Co., 49 N. J. Eq. 356, 23 Atl. 1077; Passmore v. Moore (Ky.) 22 S. W. 325; Dazet v. Landry, 21 Nev. 291, 30 Pac. 1064; Pewabic Min. Co. v. Mason, 145 U. S. 349, 12 Sup. Ct. 887, 36 L. Ed. 732; and that there must be shown in addition to inadequacy some fraud, accident, mistake, or other special circumstance to warrant rescission of the contract; Harman v. Copenhaver, 89 Va. 836, 17 S. E. 482. But the general rule as stated is not sustained without qualifications, since the inadequacy may be so gross as to shock the conscience of the court, as it is frequently expressed, and to be regarded as of itself sufficient ground for setting aside the sale; Connell v. Wilhelm, 36 W. Va. 598, 15 S. E. 245; as where land valued at $8,000, with incumbrances amounting to $2,700 was sold at $2,000; Johnson v. Avery, 56 Minn. 12, 57 N. W. 217; or where the same land brought at a subsequent sale $1,-500; Johnson v. Avery, 60 Minn. 262, 62 N. W. 283, 51 Am. St. Rep. 529. Where the price is grossly inadequate, the court will be quick to seize upon any other circumstance impeaching the fairness of the transaction; Schroeder v. Young, 161 U.S. 334, 16 Sup. Ct. 512, 40 L. Ed. 721; or the least irregularity in the proceeding; Warder-Bushnell-Glesser t authorized by the decree of sale, the | Co. v. Allen, 63 Mo. App. 456. See as to inadequacy, Bean v. Hoffendorfer, 84 Ky. 685, 2 S. W. 556, 3 S. W. 138.

A sale of property as a whole may be confirmed if the decree that it be so sold is not objected to, and there is no offer of a better bid in case the bidding be reopened; Central Trust Co. v. R. Co., 60 Fed. 9. The objection that different parcels of real estate were sold together cannot be made by one who has suffered no injury therefrom; Parker v. Car-Wheel Co., 108 Ala. 140, 18 South. 938.

Combinations to prevent competitive bidding, and any conduct at the sale upon the part of interested parties which is fraudulent will make the sale void, as where there was an agreement between judgment creditors without knowledge of the debtor that one should refrain from bidding, in consideration of a promise to pay his judgment, made by the other, the sale was held void for fraud; Phelps v. Benson, 161 Pa. 418, 29 Atl. 86; and where a mortgagor publicly announced at the sale that she was a widow dependent upon the premises for support, that she intended to bid, and that she requested no one to bid against her, the sale was set aside; Herndon v. Gibson, 38 S. C. 357, 17 S. E. 145, 20 L. R. A. 545, 37 Am. St. Rep. 765. One intending to purchase commits fraud by paying another not to bid against him; Goble v. O'Connor, 43 Neb. 49, 61 N. W. 131; Saxton v. Seiberling, 48 Ohio St. 554, 29 N. E. 179; and on disclosure of the facts after sale, payment of purchase money, and conveyance, an administrator's sale may be set aside; Barnes v. Mays, 88 Ga. 696, 16 S. E. 67; to show such fraud evidence is admissible of the amount intended to be bid by the competitor who was hired not to bid; id.; but where the competitor is induced by an execution creditor under a secret agreement to refrain from bidding, it is incompetent for the creditor to show on a petition for subrogation that the property brought less than its market value; 24 Pittsb. Leg. J. 92. Where during an administrator's sale, one of the bidders arranged with the others for a consideration to stop bidding, and he thereby obtained the property for less than its market value, the sale was void; Ingalls v. Rowell, 149 Ill. 163, 36 N. E. 1016; but where there is an agreement between two persons to prevent bidding, and one of them purchases the land, the sale will not be set aside at the instance of the other on the ground that he was prevented from bidding by reason of inducement offered by the purchaser; Harrell v. Wilson, 108 N. C. 97, 12 S. E. 889. An agreement between five lien holders, any one of whom was financially unable to bid for himself, that one should bid on the property as trustee for them all, was not invalid as a combination to discourage bidding; Gulick v. Webb, 41 Neb. 706, 60 N. W. 13, 43 Am. St.

Upon the refusal of a purchaser at a ju-may be resold and such purchaser held ble for any deficiency in price arising the second sale; Stuart v. Gay, 127 U. S.

8 Sup. Ct. 1279, 32 L. Ed. 191. But it been held that to be held liable he mus served with a rule, awarded after the was reported, to show cause why he sh not complete his purchase, or in default property to be resold; Stout v. Merca

Co., 41 W. Va. 339, 23 S. E. 571, 56 Am Rep. 843. See an elaborate and valuable note or subject of injunctions against judicial: in 30 L. R. A. 98-143; and a similar upon the protection to purchasers and is a bona fide purchaser, in 21 L. R. A. 3

See, generally, Rorer, Judicial Sales;

deman, Sales ch. 17; Franchise; Ex TION; MORTGAGE; SALE; TAX SALE; V And see as to proceedings and conduc sale, Newell v. Meyendorff, 9 Mont. 25-Pac. 333, 8 L. R. A. 440, 18 Am. St. Rep. 75 Am. Dec. 704, note; of franchise, 20 1 A. 737, note; of equity of redemption, 7

JUDICIAL SEPARATION. See SEE TION.

L. J. 257; interest sold, 29 Am. St. Rep.

JUDICIAL WRITS. In English Practical The capias and all other writs subsequen the original writ not issuing out of chan but from the court to which the original returnable. Being grounded on what had passe that court in consequence of the she return, they are called judicial writs, in tradistinction to the writs issued ou chancery, which were called original w

3 Bla. Com. 282.

ciary.

JUDICIARY. The system of court justice in a country. The departmen government charged or concerned with administration of justice. The judges t collectively; as, the liberties of the pe are secured by a wise and independent diciary. The term is in very current us designating the method of selecting ju in a state or country,—as, an elective

As an adjective: Of or pertaining to administration of justice or the courts dicial,-the judiciary act, the judicial amendment, the judiciary question, etc. COURT; JUDGE; 3 Story, Const. 5th ed. §

JUDICIARY ACT. The act of cong of Sept. 24, 1789, establishing the fed courts of the United States.

This act, of which the authorship is tributed to Oliver Ellsworth, long rems in force without substantial change, say the extension of the system as require the growth of the nation. Its provisions embodied in the Revised Statutes.

This act, "considering the complex and hartificial nature of the federal jurisdiction, is dicial sale to fulfil his contract, the property regarded as 'one of the most remarkable inst sagacious, and thoroughly considered legisactments in the history of the law.' " an. 66 Ga. 371, 373.

1757

visdom and forethought with which it was we been the admiration of succeeding gen-And so well was it done that it remains esent day, with a few unimportant changes, dation of our system of judicature, and which confers, governs, controls, and limits court, and which largely regulates the exits powers." U. S. v. Holliday, 3 Wall. 07, 414, 18 L. Ed. 182.

rous amendments have been passed me to time, the most important of were the acts of March 3, 1875, and 3, 1887, amended August 13, 1888. of March 3, 1891, created the circuit f appeals; and the system of federal vas greatly changed by the new Judile, enacted March 3, 1911, and in ef-January 1, 1912. See United States

CIUM. in Roman Law. The probefore a judge or judex (q. v.) to obdecision of the legal issue, presented result of the proceedings in jure. inst. Rom. L. § 34. See In Judicio;

CIUM CAPITALE. In English Law. nt of death; capital judgment. Fle-1, c. 39, § 2. Called also "judicium nissionis," judgment of loss of life. 2, c. 1, 🖁 5.

CIUM DEI (Lat. the judgment or def God). In Old English Law. A term to trials by ordeal; for, in all trials sort, God was thought to interfere in f the innocent, and so decide the Now abolished.

CIUM PARIUM. In English Law. nt of the peers; judgment of one's trial by jury. Magna Carta, c. 29. Y.

. in French Law. Judge. It is ap-strictness only to judges of the inourts. Members of the Cour d'Appel the Cour de Cassation are called ers.

DE PAIX. In French Law. A justhe peace. See Courts of France.

D'INSTRUCTION. In French Law. er subject to the procureur-general, cases of criminal offences receives plaints of the parties injured, and nmons and examines witnesses upon nd after communication with the proeneral draws up the forms of accu-They have also the right, subject to roval of the same superior officer, to he accused to bail. They are usually from among the regular judges. By of December 8, 1897, changes of the dical character were introduced. Unlaw, within twenty-four hours of his an accused person must be conducted diction of communication shall not apply to before the procureur who must require the juge d'instruction to question him immediately. In case of his refusal, absence, or other obstacle, the accused must be examined without delay by the official designated by the public minister. In default of examination within the time prescribed, the public prosecutor must order him to be set at liberty, and any person kept confined for more than twenty-four hours in the place of detention without examination, or without being brought before the public prosecutor shall be considered as arbitrarily detained, and all violations of this law by officials are to be prosecuted as outrages against liberty. At the examination the magistrate having verified the identity of the accused, is required to make known to him the facts charged against him and receive his declaration, first having warned him that he is free not to make any. Mention of this warning must be made in the proces-verbal. If the accusation is sustained, the magistrate shall inform the accused of his right to choose a counsel, and if he makes no choice, shall himself appoint one, if the accused demands Mention of this formality must be made in the proces-verbal. If the accused has been found outside of the arrondissement where the warrant was issued, and at a distance of more than ten myriameters (about 60 miles) from the principal place of the arrondissement, he is conducted before the public prosecutor of the one in which he was found and by him examined. The accused is not removed from this jurisdiction against his consent, and if when the inquiry is made of him, that is refused, information is sent to the officer who signed the warrant, with a statement of facts bearing on the identity of the person. The warning must be given to the accused at this examination that he is free not to make any declarations, and it must be mentioned in the proces-ver-The juge d'instruction charged with bal. the matter decides immediately upon the receipt of this message whether there is reason to order the transfer. In case of flagrant crime the juge d'instruction can proceed to examine him immediately if there is urgency resulting from the condition of a witness in danger of death, or the existence of indications likely to disappear, or even if he is taken away from the place. If the accused remains in custody, he can immediately have the first examination and communicate freely with his counsel. Provisions of the law of July 14, 1865, amending article 613 of the code of criminal instruction are abrogated in all that concerns places of detention subjected to the cell régime. There may be an interdiction of communication ordered by the juge d'instruction for ten days, which may be once only renewed for ten days more. In each case the interthe counsel of the accused. He must make known the name of his counsel, and whether detained or set free, cannot be examined unless with his express consent except in the presence of his counsel. The counsel can only act for him after having been authorized by the magistrate, and in case of refusal, a note should be made of the incident in the proces-verbal. The counsel should be summoned by letter at least twenty-four hours in advance. The counsel is entitled to be informed by the recorder of the inquiries to which the accused is to be subjected and of every order made by the judge. Journal Officiel de la République Française, Dec. 10, 1897.

JUGE D'INSTRUCTION

JUICIO. In Spanish Law. A trial or suit. White, New Recop. b. 3, tit. 4, c. 1.

JUICIO DE APEO. In Spanish Law. The decree of a competent tribunal directing the determining and marking the boundaries of lands or estates.

JUICIO DE CONCURSO DE ACREEDO-RES. In Spanish Law. The decree obtained by a debtor against his creditors, or by the creditors against their debtor, for the payment of the amount due, according to the respective rank of each creditor, when the property of the debtor is insufficient to pay the whole of his liabilities.

JUMPING BAIL. A colloquial expression describing the act of the principal in a bail bond in violating the condition of the obligation by failing to do the thing stipulated, as, not appearing in court on a particular day to abide the event of a suit or the order of court, but instead, withdrawing or fleeing from the jurisdiction. Anderson's L.

JUNIOR. Younger. This has been held to be no part of a man's name, but an addition by use, and a convenient distinction between a father and son of the same name. People v. Collins, 7 Johns. (N. Y.) 549; Com. v. Perkins, 1 Pick. (Mass.) 388.

Any matter that distinguishes persons renders the addition of junior or senior unnecessary; 1 Mod. Ent. 35; Salk. 7. But if the father and son have both the same name, the father shall be prima facie intended, if junior be not added, or some other matter of distinction; Salk. 7; 6 Co. 20; 11 id. 39; Hob. 330. If father and son have the same name and addition, and the former sue the latter, the writ is abatable unless the son have the further addition of junior, or the younger. But if the father be the defendant and the son the plaintiff, there is no need of the further addition of senior, or the elder, to the name of the father; 2 Hawk. Pl. Cr. 187.

JUNIOR BARRISTER. A barrister under the rank of queen's counsel. Moz. & W. Also the junior of two counsel employed on the same side in a case. See BARRISTER.

JUNIPERUS SABINA (Lat.). In Jurisprudence. A plant commonly savin.

It is used for lawful purposes in m but too frequently for the crimina pose of producing abortion, generally gering the life of the woman. It is administered in powder or oil. The oil for lawful purposes, for a grown is from two to four drops. Parr, Med Sabina. Foderé mentions a case w large dose of powdered savin had be ministered to an ignorant girl in the month of her pregnancy, which had n on the fœtus. It, however, nearly to life of the girl. Foderé, tome iv. Given in sufficiently large doses, four grains, in the form of powder, it kills in a few hours; and even its insertia wound has the same effect. 3 Traité des Poisons 42. For a form of ment for administering savin to a quick with child, see 3 Chit. Cr. L. 79

JUNK-SHOP. A place where od ends are purchased and sold. City of Charleston v. Goldsmith, 12 Rich. 470. In this case it was said that perfectly immaterial whether it is or a small shop," and a person was p indicted and convicted for keeping house without license who bought fro er shops, and also from persons brin his shop the articles which make a Where a tax was laid upon " in which the stock never exceeds in $2,000, the term was held to cover kept by a dealer in old iron and other als, old glass, old rope, and old paper Pitts v. City of Vicksburg, 72 Miss.

1 Beck, Med. Jur. 316.

South. 418. Acts prohibiting the keeping of such without license and prescribing a f violation of the act are constitutional met v. State, 45 Ohio St. 63, 12 N. although they impose different license dealers in general merchandise and who sell specified articles; City of N leans v. Kaufman, 29 La. Ann. 283, Rep. 328; but such a tax was held when a municipal ordinance clearly that it was for revenue, an act for revenue not being an exercise of police er; Pitts v. Vicksburg, 72 Miss. 181, 16

See City of Grand Rapids v. Bran Mich. 670, 64 N. W. 29, 32 L. R. A. Am. St. Rep. 472; PAWNBROKERS.

418.

JURA. As to titles based on this see the corresponding titles under Ju

JURA FISCALIA (Lat.). Rights exchequer. 3 Bla. Com. 45.

JURA IN RE (Lat.). in Civi Rights in a thing, as opposed to righ thing (jura ad rem). Rights in a which are not lost upon loss of pos servitus, pignus. Heineccius, Elem. v. § 333. See Jus in Re.

A PERSONARUM (Lat.). In Civil Rights which belong to men in their t characters or relations, as father, tice, citizen, etc. 1 Sharsw. Bla. Com.

A REGALIA (Lat.). Royal rights. Com. 117, 119, 240; 3 id. 45.

AMENTÆ CORPORALES al oaths, q. v.

AMENTUM CALUMNIÆ (Lat. oath mny). In Civil and Canon Law. equired of plaintiff and defendant, r the parties themselves insist on it that they are not influenced in seekeir right by malice, but believe their to be just. It was also required of orneys and procurators of the parties. also, jusjurandum or sacramentum iæ. Calv. Lex.; Vicat, Voc. Jur. Utr.; Pr. tit. 42.

AMENTUM JUDICIALE (Lat.). In aw. An oath which the judge of his cord, defers to either of the parties. of two kinds: first, that which the defers for the decision of the cause, ich is understood by the general name ntum judiciale, and is sometimes callpletory oath, juramentum suppletoricond, that which the judge defers in o fix and determine the amount of the nation which he ought to pronounce, hich is called juramentum in litem. , Obl. p. 4, c. 3, s. 3, art. 3.

AT. In Practice. That part of an afwhere the officer certifies that the as "sworn" before him.

urat is usually in the following form, Sworn and subscribed before me, on — day of —, 1914. J. P., Justice Peace."

me cases it has been held that it was al that the officer should sign the and that it should contain his addind official description; Jackson v. 3 Cai. (N. Y.) 128. But see Chase v. ls, 2 Wend. (N. Y.) 283; Proff. Not; ns v. State, 136 Ind. 630, 36 N. E. 419. being no part of an affidavit, a generirrer to the sufficiency of the affidavit t reach a failure to add to the name person who administered the oath cial designation; Smith v. Walker, 93 2, 18 S. E. 830.

fficer in some English corporations, in certain towns in Kent and Sussex, duties are similar to those of alderothers; stat. 1 Edw. IV.; 2 & 3 Edw. 30; 13 Edw. I. c. 26.

nich give a right to an action in rem | there are twelve, members of the royal court, whoever has the possession. These and elected for life; 1 Steph. Com., 11th ed. are of four kinds: dominium, hare-

JURATA (Lat.). In Old English Law. A jury of twelve men sworn. Especially, a jury of the common law, as distinguished from the assize, or jury established or reestablished by stat. Hen. II.

The assize was a body of jurors summoned to answer certain specific questions in accordance with a positive law that such questions should be answered in that way. But in time the ordinary method of proof came to be the jury to which the parties agreed to submit these preliminary or incidental questions. This new body, so summoned, is the jurata into which the assize is converted; "assisa vertitur in juratam." 1 Holdsw. Hist. E. L. 151.

The jurata, or common-law jury, was a jury called in to try the cause, upon the prayer of the parties themselves, in cases where a jury was not given by statute Hen. II., and as the jury was not given under the statute of Henry II., the writ of attaint provided in that statute would not lie against a jurata for false verdict. It was common for the parties to a cause to request that the cause might be decided by the assiza, sitting as a jurata, in order to save trouble of summoning a new jury, in which case "cadit assiza et vertitur in juratam," and the cause is said to be decided non in modum assize, but in modum juratæ. 1 Reeve, Hist. Eng. Law 335, 336; Glanville, lib. 13, c. 20; Bracton, lib. 3, c. 30. But this distinction has been long obsolete.

Juratæ were divided into: first, jurata dilatoria, which inquires out offenders against the law, and presents their names, together with their offences, to the judge, and which is of two kinds, major and minor, according to the extent of its jurisdiction; second, jurata judicaria, which gives verdict as to the matter of fact in issue, and is of two kinds, civilis, in civil causes, and criminalis, in criminal causes. Du Cange.

A clause in nisi prius records called the jury clause, so named from the word jurata, with which its Latin form begins. entry, jurata ponitur in respectu, is abolished. Com. Law Proc. Act, 1852, § 104; Whart. Law Lex.; 9 Co. 32; 59 Geo. III. c. 46; 4 Bla. Com. 342. Such trials were usually held in churches, in presence of bishops, priests, and secular judges, after three days fasting, confession, communion, etc. Cange.

A certificate placed at the bottom of an affidavit, declaring that the affiant has been sworn or affirmed to the truth of the facts therein alleged. Its usual form is, "Sworn (or affirmed) before me, the -– day of – 19-." A jurat.

JURE DIVINO (Lat.). By divine right. ers in the island of Jersey, of whom Divine Right is the name generally given to the theory of government which holds monarchy to be the only legitimate form of government. The monarch and his legitimate heirs being, by divine right, entitled to the sovereignty, cannot forfeit that right by any misconduct, or any period of dispossession. But where the knowledge of the right heir is lost, the usurper, being in possession by the permission of God, is to be obeyed as the true heir. Sir Robert Filmer, the most distinguished exponent of the theory, died about 1650. See DIVINE RIGHT OF KINGS.

JURE PROPINQUITATIS (Lat.). By right of relationship. Co. Litt. 10 b.

JURE REPRESENTATIONIS (Lat.). By right of representation. See PEB STIRPES. 2 Sharsw. Bla. Com. 219, n. 14, 224.

JURE UXORIS (Lat.). By right of a wife.

JURIDICAL. Relating to administration of justice, or office of a judge. Webster, Dict.

Regular; done in conformity to the laws of the country and the practice which is there observed.

JURIS CONSULTUS (Lat. skilled in the law). In Civil Law. A person who has such knowledge of the laws and customs which prevail in a state as to be able to advise, act, and to secure a person in his dealings. Cicero.

The early jurisconsults gave their opinions gratuitously, and were also employed in drawing up written documents. From Augustus to Adrian, only those allowed by the emperor could be jurisconsults; before and after those emperors, any could be jurisconsults who chose. If their opinion was unanimous, it had the force of law: if not, the prætor could follow which opinion he chose. Vicat, Voc. Jur. Utr.

There were two schools of jurisconsults at Rome, the Proculeians and Labinians. The latter were founded by Labeo, and were in favor of innovation; the former by Capito, and held to the received doctrines. Cushing, Int. Rom. Law. §§ 5, 6.

JURIS ET DE JURE (Lat.). Of right and by law. A presumption is said to be juris et de jure when it is conclusive, i. e. when no evidence will be admitted to rebut it, in contradistinction to a presumption, which is simply juris, i. e. rebuttable by evidence; 1 Greenl. Ev. § 15, note; Wills, Circ. Ev. 29; Best, Pres. 20, § 17; Best, Ev. 43.

JURIS ET SEISINÆ CONJUNCTIO (Lat.). The union of seisin, or possession, and the right of possession, forming a complete title. 2 Bla. Com. 311.

JURISDICTION (Lat. jus, law, dicere, to declare). The authority by which judicial officers take cognizance of and decide causes. State v. Wakefield, 60 Vt. 618, 15 Atl. 181.

The power to hear and determine Parker v. Wallace, 3 Ohio 494; Lessee v. Astor, 2 How. (U. S.) 3 Ed. 283; Dahlgren v. County of Sa 8 Cal. App. 622, 97 Pac. 681, who quoting this definition, the court add necessarily includes the power to incorrectly as well as correctly;" the following from People v. Stur N. Y. 263, 59 Am. Dec. 536: "It do late to the rights of the parties as themselves, but to the power of the In the California case, it was helgross error in the exercise of ju could not be annulled on certiorari.

The test of the jurisdiction of a whether or not it had power to er the inquiry; not whether its conc the course of it was right or wron of Com'rs of Lake County v. Platt 567, 25 C. C. A. 87.

The right of a judge to pronoun tence of the law, on a case or iss him, acquired through due process It includes power to enforce the of what is decreed. In re Ferguson (N. Y.) 239; Hopkins v. Com., (Mass.) 460.

"The right to adjudicate concersubject-matter in the given case. stitute this there are three essentiathe court must have cognizance of of cases to which the one to be adbelongs; second, the proper parties present; and third, the point decimust be, in substance and effect, wissue;" Reynolds v. Stockton, 140 to 268, 11 Sup. Ct. 773, 35 L. Ed. 464.

"Jurisdiction is authority to decide either way." The Fair v. Specialty U. S. 22, 25, 33 Sup. Ct. 410, 57 L.

Ancillary jurisdiction. Where of chancery entertains a bill in aid commenced in another chancery jurisdiction being designed to operate a same subject-matter or property results where the first suit is inadequate complete relief for want of territor diction over the entire subject of the subsequent suits are said to be to the first. A familiar illustration to foreclose a mortgage on a railring through two or more states, ancillary bills are filed in states of that in which the first suit is broug out regard to the citizenship of the Appellate jurisdiction is that give peal or writ of error from the jud another court.

Assistant jurisdiction is that aff a court of chancery in aid of a law: as, for example, by a bill of or or for the perpetuation of testime the like.

Auxiliary jurisdiction is anoth given to this jurisdiction in aid of of law.

diction of the cause is the power over eject-matter given by the laws of the gnty in which the tribunal exists.

jurisdiction is that which exists he subject-matter is not of a criminal errent furisdiction is that which is ed over the same parties or subjectat the same time by two or more e tribunals.

other by giving an opinion on a match the latter has under consideration, art which gives the opinion is said reise a consultative jurisdiction. 4 as. 30.

inal furisdiction is that which exists punishment of crimes.

tribunal sole power to try the cause. It is a sole power to try the cause. It is a sole power to try the cause. It is a sole power to try the cause. It is a sole power to try the cause. It is a sole power of matters. General jurion in law and equity is jurisdiction by kind that a court can possess, of the court can possess, of the court in the disconsistent of its judicial duties. Mussen v. works, 63 Hun 367, 18 N. Y. Supp.

ed jurisdiction (called, also, special erior) is that which extends only to specified causes.

nal jurisdiction is that bestowed upon nal in the first instance.

diction of the person is that obtained appearance of the defendant before unal. Bissell v. Briggs, 9 Mass. 462, 6 ec. 88.

torial jurisdiction is the power of the l considered with reference to the terwithin which it is to be exercised. v. Briggs, 9 Mass. 462, 6 Am. Dec. 88. y speaks of "courts of general jurisby which is meant that their authorends to a great variety of matters, thers are only of special and limited tion," that is, have authority extendy to certain specified cases; Const. 5th ed. 502. The inferior federal though of limited jurisdiction, are huically inferior courts; McCormick vant, 10 Wheat. (U.S.) 192, 6 L. Ed. here are courts which are competent de on their own jurisdiction and to e it to a final judgment without setth in their proceedings the facts and e on which it is rendered, whose recabsolute verity, which can be quesonly in an appellate court; other are so constituted that their judgments looked through for the facts and evwhich are necessary to sustain them." decisions are not evidence of themo show jurisdiction and its lawful ex-Grignon v. Astor, 2 How. (U. S.) 341, d. 283.

The fundamental question of jurisdiction, first of the appellate court, and then of the court from which the record comes, presents itself on every writ of error and appeal and must be answered by the court whether propounded by counsel or not; Defiance Water Co. v. Defiance, 191 U. S. 184, 24 Sup. Ct. 63, 48 L. Ed. 140.

Jurisdiction is given by the law; Clyde & R. Plank Road Co. v. Parker, 22 Barb. (N. Y.) 323; Baker v. Chisholm, 3 Tex. 157; and cannot be conferred by consent of the parties; Gamber v. Holben, 5 Mich. 331; Fields v. Walker, 23 Ala. 155; State v. Bonney, 34 Me. 223; Vose v. Morton, 4 Cush. (Mass.) 27, 50 Am. Dec. 750; Bell v. R. Co., 4 Smedes & M. (Miss.) 549; Huber v. Beck, 6 Ind. App. 47, 32 N. E. 1025; Hager v. Falk, 82 Wis. 644, 52 N. W. 432; Parkhurst v. Machine Co., 65 Hun 489, 20 N. Y. Supp. 395; St. Louis R. Co. v. Ry. Co., 52 Fed. 770; nor can silence or positive consent of parties confer on a federal court jurisdiction denied by statute; State of Indiana v. Tolleston Club, 53 Fed. Where the jurisdiction of a court as to the subject-matter is limited, the consent of parties cannot enlarge it; Fleischman v. Walker, 91 Ill. 319. Where under a contract parties agree that in case of a breach one might be served with a writ in Scotland, the court refused to allow service on the defendant domiciled there; no agreement between individuals can empower a court to do an act which it is, by rules made under a statute, forbidden to do; [1896] 1 Q. B. 35. But a privilege defeating jurisdiction may be waived if the court has jurisdiction over the subject-matter; Raney v. McRae, 14 Ga. 589, 60 Am. Dec. 660; Campbell v. Wilson, 6 Tex. 379; Kenney v. Greer, 13 Ill. 432, 54 Am. Dec. 439; Boyers v. Elliott, 7 Humphr. (Tenn.) 209; Gracie v. Palmer, 8 Wheat. (U. S.) 699, 5 L. Ed. 719; see Bunker v. Langs, 76 Hun 543, 28 N. Y. Supp. 210; and parties may admit facts which show jurisdiction; Pittsburgh, C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Ramsey, 22 Wall. 322, 22 L. Ed. 823, where the files of the record were lost and the court thereupon presumed that they contained all necessary jurisdictional facts.

Jurisdiction given by the law of the sovereignty of the tribunal is held sufficient everywhere, at least as to all property within the sovereignty; The Globe, 2 Blatchf. 427, Fed. Cas. No. 5,483; Johnson v. Holley, 27 Mo. 594; and as to persons on whom process is actually and personally served within the territorial limits of jurisdiction, or who appear and by their pleadings admit jurisdiction; McMullen v. Guest, 6 Tex. 275; Barnes v. Harris, 4 N. Y. 375; Adams v. Lamar, 8 Ga. 83. See Wells v. Patton, 50 Kan. 732, 33 Pac. 15. But the appearance of a person on whom no personal service of process has been made, merely to object to the jurisdiction is not such an admission; Wright v. Boynton,

T

"By matter in dispute is meant

37 N. H. 9, 72 Am. Dec. 319; Bissell v. Briggs, 9 Mass. 462, 6 Am. Dec. 88.

Jurisdiction must be either of the subjectmatter, which is acquired by exercising powers conferred by law over property within the territorial limits of the sovereignty, or of the person, which is acquired by actual service of process or personal appearance of the defendant. The question as to the possession of the former is to be determined according to the law of the sovereignty; Dav.
407; of the latter, as a simple question of fact. See Conflict of Law; Foreign JudgMents.

Jurisdiction in a personal action cannot be

Jurisdiction in a personal action cannot be obtained by service on a defendant outside of the jurisdiction; Pennoyer v. Neff, 95 U. S. 714, 24 L. Ed. 565. The courts of one state have no jurisdiction over persons of other states unless found within their territorial limits; Galpin v. Page, 18 Wall. (U. S.) 367, 21 L. Ed. 959.

Jurisdiction in rem over a non-resident's property can be obtained by proceedings against it, of which notice should be given in order to give a binding effect to the proceedings; such notice may be actual or constructive; Pennoyer v. Neff, 95 U. S. 714, 24 L. Ed. 565; see Stewart v. Anderson, 70 Tex. 588, 8 S. W. 295. Any judgment obtained in such proceedings has no effect beyond the property in question; no other property can be reached under it; nor can any suit be maintained on it, either in the same court or elsewhere; Cooper v. Reynolds, 10 Wall. (U. S.) 317, 19 L. Ed. 931.

Where the jurisdiction of a court is based upon the amount in controversy, some cases hold that the test is in the amount alleged in the pleadings to be due; Lord v. Goldberg, 81 Cal. 599, 22 Pac. 1126, 15 Am. St. Rep. 82; Abbott v. Gatch, 13 Md. 314, 71 Am. Dec. 635; but not if the amount is so alleged in bad faith; Fix v. Sissung, 83 Mich. 561, 47 N. W. 340, 21 Am. St. Rep. 616; it will be determined by the allegations of the complaint and not on ex parte affidavits; Holden v. Machinery Co., 82 Fed. 209. Where, on an appeal from a justice of the peace, it appears by testimony at the trial that the plaintiff's demand exceeded the statutory jurisdiction, there is no jurisdiction; Collins v. Collins, 37 Pa. 387. Where the amount in controversy appeared by the pleadings to be sufficient to give jurisdiction, but the jury found for a sum less than the jurisdictional amount, it was held that the court did not have jurisdiction; Louisville, N. A. & C. R. W. Co. v. Johnson, 67 Ind. 546; Darling v. Conklin, 42 Wis. 478; but it is also held that in such cases the judgment will stand, but without costs; Abbott v. Gatch, 13 Md. 314, 71 Am. Dec. 635. Where a defence is made to a part of a claim and the jury find for less than the full claim, the jurisdiction is not affected; Hardin v. Cass County, 42 Fed. 652.

ject of litigation—the matter for w suit is brought—and upon which issued, and in relation to which jurors ed and witnesses examined;" Lee v. 1 Wall. (U. S.) 339, 17 L. Ed. 557. Ition upon a money demand, where eral issue is pleaded, the matter in is the debt claimed; Gray v. Bland U. S. 565, 24 L. Ed. 1108. In action ing in damages, the damages claimed risdiction; Barry v. Edmunds, 116 I

6 Sup. Ct. 501, 29 L. Ed. 729; in o

peaching the right to an office, the as the salary attached to the office is terion; Smith v Adams, 130 U. S. 17 Ct. 566, 32 L. Ed. 895; in ejectment ue of the land claimed determines risdiction; Vicksburg, S. & P. R. Co. 135 U. S. 195, 10 Sup. Ct. 728, 34 L. and so it is in a bill to set aside a freonveyance as a cloud on the title;

In a tax case it is measured by the the right to be protected and not amount of the tax for a single year man v. Board of Trustees, 222 U. S. Sup. Ct. 147, 56 L. Ed. 225; and in enjoin a threatened or continued cor of certain acts, the amount in contribute the value of the right which plaint to protect; Board of Trade of City et cago v. Cella Commission Co., 145 of 76 C. C. A. 28.

House, 46 Fed. 317.

On the other hand, it has been I in an action involving taxes, only of levy and not future taxes can be con Joint Dists. Nos. 70 and 98 v. Sch No. 11, 9 Kan. App. 883, 57 Pac. only part of the claim is contested thereby reduced below the juris amount, there is no jurisdiction; Savings Bank v. Coffee Co., 91 S. W. Ky. L. Rep. 1200.

In all cases facts on which the jurished the state of the content of the cont of a federal court depends must form appear on the face of the re jurisdiction is limited, and the preis that a cause is without its jurisdi less the contrary affirmatively appea nental L. Ins. Co. v. Rhoads, 119 U. Sup. Ct. 193, 30 L. Ed. 380; until it is way shown by the record that the manded is not the matter in dispute, will govern in all questions of jur but when it is shown that the sum d is not the real matter in suit, the su and not the sum demanded will prev ton v. Dickinson, 108 U. S. 174, 2 424, 27 L. Ed. 688; the amount of laid in the declaration is not conclu on the question of jurisdiction; if t find that the amount of damages : the declaration is colorable for the of creating a case within the jurisd

the circuit court, the jurisdiction is

is the duty of the court to dismiss the dings; this may be shown by evidence ositions taken in the cause; however t should be upon due notice to the parbe affected by the dismissal; Morris v. c, 129 U. S. 326, 9 Sup. Ct. 289, 32 L. 0. If this be made to appear "to the ction of the circuit court at any time suit has been brought," the court must s the suit; Act of March 3, 1875 (18 L. 472). If, from plaintiff's evidence trial, the amount laid in the complaint s to have been beyond reasonable exion of recovery, the action should be sed; Holden v Machinery Co., 82 Fed. Fictitious claims cannot be added to urisdiction; Smith v. Ins. Co., 33 La. 1071. Costs and interest in the appelourts are excluded; Hartsook's Adm'r wford's Adm'r, 85 Va. 413, 7 S. E. 538. ng for personal property, damages for ion cannot be added; Graves v. Thomp-Wash. 282, 77 Pac. 384. The jurisdicamount may appear by affidavit after taken; U. S. v. Freight Ass'n, 166 U. , 17 Sup. Ct. 540, 41 L. Ed. 1007.

ea of set-off will not deprive the court risdiction, though, if established, it reduce the plaintiff's recovery below risdictional amount; Odell v. Culbert, & S. (Pa.) 66, 42 Am. Dec. 317; Lord idberg, 81 Cal. 599, 22 Pac. 1126, 15 t. Rep. 82; and where a defendant sets recoupment, he thereby accepts the juion; Merchants' Heat & Light Co. v. & Sons, 204 U. S. 286, 27 Sup. Ct. 285, Ed. 488, where it is said that "there is difference in the decisions as to when fendant becomes so far an actor as to to the jurisdiction," and the cases ted.

creditor's bill several judgments held Terent creditors cannot be added to up the jurisdictional amount in the court; Hunt v. Bender, 154 U. S. 556, 14 Sup. Ct. 1163, 18 L. Ed. 915. But otherwise where several plaintiffs are sted collectively under a common title, ilidity of which is before the court; Orleans P. Ry. Co. v. Parker, 143 U. S. Sup. Ct. 364, 36 L. Ed. 66. A reasonttorney's fee, stipulated by the parties e of a suit, may be added to the debt te up its jurisdictional amount; Rogers ey, 80 Fed. 759. Where the judgment supreme court of a territory exceeded the supreme court of the United has jurisdiction though the judgment trial court was for a less sum, and nount is reached by adding interest to udgment; Benson Min. & Smelting Co. elting Co., 145 U. S. 428, 12 Sup. Ct. 3 L. Ed. 762. On the appeal it must be that the amount in controversy in the ate court is sufficient; McCoy v. Mcin error must show this fact; Wilson v. Blair, 119 U. S. 387, 7 Sup. Ct. 230, 30 L. Ed. 441.

A court of general jurisdiction is presumed to be acting within its jurisdiction till the contrary is shown; Brown, Jur. § 202; Wright v. Douglass, 10 Barb. (N. Y.) 97; Town of Huntington v. Town of Charlotte, 15 Vt. 46. A court of limited jurisdiction, or a court acting under special powers, has only the jurisdiction expressly delegated; State v. Metzger, 26 Mo. 65; Wight v. Warner, 1 Dougl. (Mich.) 384; and it must appear from the record that its acts are within its jurisdiction; Proctor v. State, 5 Harr. (Del.) 387; Green v. Wheeler, 1 Scam. (Ill.) 554; Bersch v. Schneider, 27 Mo. 101; Clyde & R. P. R. Co. v. Parker, 22 Barb. (N. Y.) 323; Sullivan v. Blackwell, 28 Miss. 737; Barrett v. Crane, 16 Vt. 246; Grignon v. Astor, 2 How. (U. S.) 319, 11 L. Ed. 283; see Metcalf v. Watertown, 128 U. S. 586, 9 Sup. Ct. 173, 32 L. Ed. 543; unless the legislature, by general or special law, remove this necessity; Bush v. Lindsey, 24 Ga. 245, 71 Am. Dec. 117; Small v. Hempstead, 7 Mo. 373; Kemp v. Kennedy, 1 Pet. C. C. 36, Fed. Cas. No. 7,686. See Bac. Abr. Courts (C, D).

The judgment of a court of another state is entitled to the presumption of validity; Gottlieb v. Grain Co., 181 N. Y. 563, 74 N. E. 1117; Dallas County v. Merrill, 77 Mo. 578; State v. Weber, 96 Minn. 422, 105 N. W. 490, 113 Am. St. Rep. 630; and when the record of proceedings in such a case does not show that every step essential to jurisdiction was duly taken, it must be presumed that the court proceeded to judgment only after acquiring jurisdiction; Smith v. Trust Co., 154 N. Y. 333, 48 N. E. 553; and the burden is on the defendant to show the nonexistence of jurisdictional facts; Russell v. Butler (Tex. Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 406; Gilchrist v. Oil Land Co., 21 W. Va. 115, 45 Am. Rep. 555.

Where one of two courts of concurrent jurisdiction has taken cognizance of a cause, the other will not entertain jurisdiction of the same cause; Brown, Jur. § 95; Gamble v. Warner, 16 Ohio 373; Henry v. Tupper, 27 Vt. 518; Conover v. New York, 25 Barb. (N. Y.) 513; Gould v. Hayes, 19 Ala. 438; Sharon v. Terry, 36 Fed. 337, 1 L. R. A. 572; Ober v. Gallagher, 93 U. S. 199, 23 L. Ed. 829; Powers v. City Council of Springfield, 116 Mass. 84.

the supreme court of the United has jurisdiction though the judgment trial court was for a less sum, and count is reached by adding interest to degment; Benson Min. & Smelting Co. elting Co., 145 U. S. 428, 12 Sup. Ct. Ed. 762. On the appeal it must be that the amount in controversy in the atte court is sufficient; McCoy v. Mc3 W. Va. 60, 10 S. E. 19; the plaintiff 199, 23 L. Ed. 829; Taylor v. City of Fort Wayne, 47 Ind. 274; where concurrent jurisdiction may be exercised by the federal and state authorities, the court which first takes jurisdiction can be interfered with by no other court, state or federal. It is a subversion of the judicial power to take a cause from a court having jurisdiction, before its final decision is given; Ex parte Robinson, 6 McLean 355, Fed. Cas. No. 11,935; Mail v. Maxwell, 107 Ill. 554. The supreme court and the common pleas have concurrent jurisdiction in matters of equity; and pending a bill in the common pleas, the supreme court will not entertain jurisdiction for the same cause; Cleveland, P. & A. R. Co. v. Erie, 1 Grant 212.

The jurisdiction of the court thus first exercising jurisdiction extends to the execution of the judgment rendered; Hawes v. Orr, 10 Bush (Ky.) 431. Courts have no power to interfere with the judgments and decrees of other courts of concurrent jurisdiction; Anthony v. Dunlap, 8 Cal. 26; Revalk v. Kraemer, 8 Cal. 66, 68 Am. Dec. 304.

The rule that among courts of concurrent jurisdiction, that one which first obtains jurisdiction of a case has the exclusive right to decide every question arising in the case, is subject to some limitations; and is confined to suits between the same parties or privies, seeking the same relief or remedy, and to such questions or propositions as arise ordinarily and properly in the progress of the suit first brought, and does not extend to all matters which may by possibility become involved with it; Buck v. Colbath, 3 Wall. (U. S.) 334, 18 L. Ed. 257; Putnam v. New Albany, 4 Biss. 368, Fed. Cas. No. 11,481.

When either a federal or state court of competent jurisdiction takes possession of or acquires jurisdiction over property, that property is as effectually withdrawn from the jurisdiction of the other court as though removed to the territory of another sovereignty; Palmer v. Texas, 212 U. S. 118, 29 Sup. Ct. 230, 53 L. Ed. 435; Wabash R. Co. v. Adelbert College, 208 U. S. 38, 28 Sup. Ct. 182, 52 L. Ed. 379.

Where the first court, because of its limited jurisdiction or mode of proceeding, is not capable of determining the whole controversy, another court may take jurisdiction and accomplish it; Gould v. Hayes, 19 Ala. 438.

Where in a divorce case the court awarded the custody of the children to the mother, retaining jurisdiction for further order in that behalf, the court of another state, to which the mother removed and died, had jurisdiction to determine as to the custody of the children as between the father and the guardian appointed by the court of the other state, with whom the children had been left by the mother; Clarke v. Lyon, 82 Neb. 625, 118 N. W. 472, 20 L. R. A. (N. S.) 171.

At common law the rule is well established that the pendency of a prior s personam in a foreign court, between same parties for the same cause of act no sufficient cause for stay or bar of instituted in a local court. This rule of in regard to actions pending in a state; White v. Whitman, 1 Curtis, 49 Cas. No. 17,561; Smith v. Lathrop, 326, 84 Am. Dec. 448; but see Ex parte 3 McLean 221, Fed. Cas. No. 790, wh was held that the pendency of a suit be the same parties and respecting the subject-matter in another state, m pleaded in abatement in the federal but to make such plea effectual it mus that the court where suit is has ju It was held that the provision of the jurisdiction over lands purchased by sent of the state legislature does not the jurisdiction of state courts to tractions of tort, since congress has not vided for them; Madden v. Arnold, 2 Div. 240, 47 N. Y. Supp. 757. The cappeals of that state held that jurisd of such actions unquestionably remains the state in the absence of legislation is gress; Barrett v. Palmer, 135 N. Y. S. N. E. 1017, 17 L. R. A. 720, 31 Am. S. 835; and the United States supreme upheld the judgment on the ground the federal jurisdiction had lapsed und terms of the cession and declined to mine the other question; Palmer v. B.

eral constitution giving to congress exc

162 U. S. 399, 16 Sup. Ct. 837, 40 L. Ed In another class of cases it has bee that a jurisdiction executed by the courts may be entirely ousted by the position of congress by a statute conon the federal courts exclusive jurisd An action against a foreign consul no so brought in the state court; Wilcox co, 118 Cal. 639, 45 Pac. 676, 50 Pac. 1 L. R. A. 579, 62 Am. St. Rep. 305.

Any act of a tribunal beyond its jution is of no effect whatever; Ken Greer, 13 Ill. 432, 54 Am. Dec. 439; Cov. Griffing, 21 Barb. (N. Y.) 9; State v mond, 26 N. H. 232; whether with territorial jurisdiction; Ableman v. 21 How. (U. S.) 506, 16 L. Ed. 169; Cowalker, 15 Ga. 457; or beyond its p Kenney v. Greer, 13 Ill. 432, 54 Am. De Barrett v. Crane, 16 Vt. 246.

When a court has jurisdiction of a judgment or decree may affect the printerest of its owner, though a non-reover whom personal jurisdiction neither nor could be acquired, and, conversed action of a court may operate on proper youd the jurisdiction if the owner has personally subjected to it. Illustration this are numerous. A court of equit the power to control the disposition of situated in another jurisdiction or eforeign country, if the person who has ship or control is before the court; tt v. Nutt, 10 Wall. (U. S.) 464, 475, 19. 976; Watkins v. Holman, 16 Pet. (U. 7, 10 L. Ed. 873; or to order the canion or discharge of a foreign mort-williams v. Fitzhugh, 37 N. Y. 444; in the famous case of Penn v. Lord Bale, 1 Ves. 444, the English court of chandecreed specific performance of a commade in England concerning the bound-of the colonies of Delaware, Maryland Pennsylvania.

rts always refuse to send officers into jurisdictions to abate nuisances or ion land; · Mississippi & M. R. Co. v. , 2 Black (U. S.) 485, 17 L. Ed. 311; r v. Wimer, 82 Va. 890, 5 S. E. 536, 3 St. Rep. 126; the principle being that the suit concerns specific property the ust be present within the jurisdiction, e United States circuit court in Nevada ed an injunction to restrain a defendom wrongfully diverting, in California, s naturally flowing down a river havs source in that state and flowing into arough the state of Nevada, where comnt's lands were situated; Miller & Lux key, 127 Fed. 573, where it was held on to the jurisdiction that it was an acransitory in its nature and the court g jurisdiction of defendant's person had iction to try the same. See a criticism s case in 17 Harv. L. Rev. 572. That bjection above stated as to proceeding n where the suit is in a jurisdiction in the res is not situated applies with force to requiring the defendant to do ct in a foreign jurisdiction; inasmuch e court cannot enforce its decree it l not make it. The general principle s to the federal courts as well as to of a state; Northern Indiana R. Co. v. ., 15 How. (U. S.) 233, 14 L. Ed. 674. es may sometimes be made indirectly ing foreign lands, as by enjoining tresn a foreign jurisdiction; Great Falls Co. v. Worster, 23 N. H. 462; but for ative relief it is in accordance with policy to send a party to a jurisdiction the act must be done; Willey v. Deck-Wyo. 496, 73 Pac. 210, 100 Am. St. 939.

question of the sufficiency of the serva summons may be raised upon motion ash the return supported by affidavits; v. R. Co., 95 Fed. 398, 37 C. C. A. 129; a rule to set aside service of process; Bros. & Co. v. Boiler Works, 204 Pa. 4 Atl. 334.

gality in the service of process by it can be rais plea in abaten 317; and und the want of jurisdiction is denied, by his anong to the merits; such illegality is waivly when, without having insisted upon pleads in the first instance to the merit; id. 109.

its; Harkness v. Hyde, 98 U. S. 476, 25 L. Ed. 237. The filing of a general appearance is not a waiver of defendant's right to move to dismiss for want of jurisdiction, where that was based on diverse citizenship and the action was brought in the wrong district; Crown Cotton Mills v. Turner, 82 Fed. 337. But where the court had jurisdiction of the subject-matter and service was made in the jurisdiction, a defence on the merits after a motion to quash the service of summons had been overruled was held to waive the objection to the jurisdiction; Eddy v. La Fayette, 49 Fed. 807, 1 C. C. A. 441.

In Ex parte Wisner, 203 U. S. 449, 27 Sup. Ct. 150, 51 L. Ed. 264, there is an expression by the court that under the acts of 1875 and 1888 the residences of the parties are jurisdictional and not the subject of waiver, but in Logan & Bryan v. Cable Co., 157 Fed. 570, it was said that this was obiter and that the decisions had never been harmonious as to the effect of that dictum.

While a non-resident defendant corporation may not lose its right of objecting to the jurisdiction of the court on the ground of insufficient service of process by pleading to the merits pursuant to order of the court after objections overruled, it does waive its objection and submits to the jurisdiction if it also sets up a counterclaim even though it be one arising wholly out of the transaction sued upon by plaintiff, and in the nature of recoupment rather than set-off; Merchants' Heat & Light Co. v. Clow & Sons, 204 U. S. 286, 27 Sup. Ct. 285, 51 L. Ed. 488.

It is held that the question must be raised before making any plea to the merits, if at all, when it arises from formal defects in the process, or when the want is of jurisdiction over the person; Smith v. Curtis, 7 Cal. 584; Bohn v. Devlin, 28 Mo. 319; Brown v. Webber, 6 Cush. (Mass.) 560; Whyte v. Gibbes, 20 How. (U. S.) 541, 15 L. Ed. 1016; Perseverance Min. Co. v. Bisaner, 87 Ga. 193, 13 S. E. 461; Callender v. Gates, 45 Ill. App. 374; Bunker v. Langs, 76 Hun 543, 28 N. Y. Supp. 210. But one who invokes the jurisdiction of a court is estopped to deny it on appeal, though this rule does not apply to divorce cases; English v. English, 19 Pa. Super. Ct. 586.

Objection to jurisdiction may be taken by motion to dismiss; Collins v. Collins, 37 Pa. 387; Kinnaman v. Kinnaman, 71 Ind. 417; at common law, by a plea in abatement; Roberts v. Lewis, 144 U. S. 653, 12 Sup. Ct. 781, 36 L. Ed. 579; Waterman v. Tuttle, 18 Ill. 292; Smith v. Elder, 3 Johns. (N. Y.) 105; it can be raised in the federal courts by a plea in abatement; Simon v. House, 46 Fed. 317; and under the codes, by demurrer, if the want of jurisdiction appear in the complaint; Works, Courts and Juris. 106; or if it be in a court of special jurisdiction, by demurrer, answer, or motion in arrest of judgment; id. 109.

Where the subject-matter is not within the jurisdiction, the court may dismiss the proceedings of its own motion; Gormly v. McIntosh, 22 Barb. (N. Y.) 271; Robertson v. State, 109 Ind. 79, 10 N. E. 582, 643; and a remedy may be had by a writ of prohibition; 3 Bla. Com. 12. See Prohibition.

If the objection is only to a defective service, it must be raised in the court below; Pennoyer v. Neff, 95 U. S. 714, 24 L. Ed. 565.

Where the citizenship of the parties appears in the petition, defect of jurisdiction on that ground may be raised by demurrer, in the absence of a general appearance; Meyer v. Herrera, 41 Fed. 65.

It is rarely, if ever, too late to object to the jurisdiction of a court where the want of power to hear and determine appears on the face of the proceedings; per Bronson, J., Delafield v. Illinois, 2 Hill (N. Y.) 159. Thus, an appellant from chancery to the court of errors may avail himself in the latter court of an objection to the chancellor's jurisdiction, though it was not made before him, when the objection, if valid, is of such a kind that it could not have been obviated, had it been started at an earlier stage in the proceedings; id. The objection that the complainant has an adequate remedy at law when made for the first time in an appellate court is looked upon with supreme disfavor; Preteca v. Land Grant Co., 50 Fed. 674, 1 C. C. A. 607, 4 U. S. App. 326. See Foltz v. Ry. Co., 60 Fed. 316, 8 C. C. A. 635. And entering into a stipulation by defendant, for a trial before a master, is a waiver of the right to object to the jurisdiction in equity; Sanders v. Village of Riverside, 118 Fed. 720, 55 C. C. A. 240.

The judgment of a court of another state is always subject to impeachment for the want of jurisdiction, either as to subject-matter or parties.

Courts of general jurisdiction over the parties and the subject-matter of the cause are as a general rule competent to decide questions arising as to their jurisdiction and such decisions are not open to collateral attack; White, C. J., in Ex parte Harding, 219 U. S. 363, 31 Sup. Ct. 324, 55 L. Ed. 252, 37 L. R. A. (N. S.) 392; and generally courts of dernier resort are conclusive judges of their own jurisdiction; People v. Clark, 1 Park Cr. Cas. (N. Y.) 360; State v. Scott, 1 Bail. (8. C.) 294; but the power of a supreme court over inferior courts always exists (both in civil and criminal cases) where an inferior court acts beyond its jurisdiction or refuses to act within it and there is no other remedy; State v. Helms, 136 Wis. 432, 118 N. W. 158.

ousting the courts of jurisdiction over future controversies would be invalid: Chamberlain v. R. Co., 54 Conn. 472, 9 Atl. 244; Mentz v. Ins. Co., 79 Pa. 480, 21 Am. Rep. 80. The reason for this rule does not seem to parent and it has been termed obsolete deed, the New York court of appeals h dicated its disapproval of the rule t bound by it under stare decisis; Delaw H. Canal Co. v. Coal Co., 50 N. Y. 250.

It has been held in New York that a ulation not to appeal to the court of a in an appealable case may be enformed in an appealable case may be enformed in the court of the Townsend v. Stone Dressing Co., 15 587; if clear in its terms and leaving doubt of the intention of the party of himself off from the right; Stedeker v nard, 93 N. Y. 589; and a contract to r from a particular remedy to enforce a isting claim seems not to be against policy which is not concerned with the ownich every man has to sue or forbes sue; Gitler v. Ins. Co., 124 App. Div. 27 N. Y. Supp. 793.

While parties cannot confer jurisd

by consent, if the jurisdictional fact properly alleged and appear of record the parties proceed to trial upon ples which go to the merits, the jurisdic facts are not subsequently put in issue riously denied, the case will not be or rily dismissed for want of jurisdictio less the proofs create a legal certainty the controversy is not within the jui tion; William H. Perry Co. v. Klosters Bolag, 152 Fed. 967, 82 C. C. A. 321. I held that individuals or corporations c create judicial tribunals for the final and clusive settlement of controversies; Bar Samson Lodge, 102 Ind. 269, 1 N. E. 571 any person may covenant that no rig action shall accrue till a third person decided on any difference that may ari tween himself and the other party to th enant; 5 H. L. Cas. 811; 10 App. Cas. but it has been held that a provisio submitting the whole question of liabil arbitrators as a condition precedent right of action is invalid; L. R. 1 Q. 563. But this case is said not to be in mony with the other English author though it follows the doctrine of Cole J., in 8 Exch. 497, a case which wa firmed in 5 H. L. Cas. 811, but upon br grounds. See 11 Harv. L. Rev. 239. In sachusetts, the decisions appear to d guish between agreements to arbitrat disputes and those for the submission of question of damages only, or question that kind which do not go to the root of action; the former are invalid; the valid; see White v. R. Co., 135 Mass. Hutchinson v. Ins. Co., 153 Mass. 143, E. 439, 10 L. R. A. 558. In Maine, po may, by agreement, impose conditions respect to preliminary and collateral ters, such as do not go to the root of th tion, but cannot be compelled, even by own agreements, to refer the whole cau n of an engineer, in case of any dishall be obligatory, is binding; Monon-Nav. Co. v. Fenlon, 4 W. & S. (Pa.) Fox v. R. Co., 3 Wall. Jr. 243, Fed. Cas. 010; contra, Trott v. Ins. Co., 1 Cliff. ed. Cas. No. 14,189. The subject is l in 11 Harv. L. Rev. 234.

ulations made in contracts by persons led in the same state limiting the vena particular county have been held inas against public policy, and tending the courts of their jurisdiction; Nute . Co., 6 Gray (Mass.) 174; Healy v. Ass'n, 17 Pa. Sup. Ct. 385; contra, v. Ins. Co., 81 Hun 28, 30 N. Y. Supp. here the court considered the theory preceding cases as worth little notice is case was followed in Heslin v. Bldg. 28 Misc. 376, 59 N. Y. Supp. 572; but notator on the subject in 17 Yale L. J. inks the former view has the weight hority.

ipulation between persons domiciled in nt states limiting the venue to one vas held void; Reichard v. Ins. Co., 31 8; as were also agreements not to rethe federal courts; Doyle v. Ins. Co., S. 535, 24 L. Ed. 148; Mutual Reserve Life Ass'n v. Woolen Mills, 82 Fed. 508, C. A. 212.

a stipulation, between parties both led in a foreign country, that all disarising on a contract should be referthe courts of that country, although atract was to be performed in the Unittes and Canada was held valid; Mitl v. Mascagni, 183 Mass. 19, 66 N. E. D. L. R. A. 812, 97 Am. St. Rep. 404; provision in a contract between a forpropration and a resident of New York sue on a judgment against the defendany other court than those of Russia eld valid: Gitler v. Russian Co., 124 Nv. 273, 108 N. Y. Supp. 793.

er contracts limiting the right to sue ome of the cases above cited on an excause of action are not invalid as on ound that they oust jurisdiction; Monty v. Ins. Co., 108 Wis. 146, 84 N. W. 175. nay be held so on other grounds of pubicy; Kilborn v. Field, 78 Pa. 194.

ulations in a policy of marine insurhat any dispute in relation to loss shall erred to referees; that no policy-holdll maintain any claim thereon until he have offered to submit to such referand that in case any suit shall be beithout such offer, the claim shall be dis-isdiction; Dugan v. Thomas, 79 Me. bility under it, are void; Stephenson v. Ins. Atl. 354. It is said that the rule that Co., 54 Me. 55, 70. A clause in an insurance ral covenant to submit any differences policy providing for arbitration of any disullity, is too well settled to be ques- pute as to loss, and that no action should be ; Delaware & H. Canal Co. v. Coal maintained till such arbitration was had, N. Y. 250. See Hohl v. Town of West- does not oust the jurisdiction of the courts; 33 Wis. 331. An agreement that the the condition is revocable, though its breach may subject the party to an action for a breach of it; Mentz v. Ins. Co., 79 Pa. 478, 21 Am. Rep. 80.

A by-law of a mutual fire insurance corporation, to which their policies are expressed to be subject, that any suit on a policy shall be brought in the courts where the company is established, is not binding on the assured; Nute v. Ins. Co., 6 Gray (Mass.) 174.

An agreement by a foreign insurance company, in conformity with a state statute, that if sued in a state court, it will not remove the suit to a federal court, is invalid; Home Ins. Co. v. Morse, 20 Wall. (U. S.) 445, 22 L. Ed. 365.

An Iowa statute which requires that every foreign corporation named in it shall, as a condition for obtaining a permit to transact business in Iowa, stipulate that it will not remove into the federal court certain suits which it would by the laws of the United States have a right to remove, is void because it makes the right to a permit dependent upon the surrender by the foreign corporation of a privilege secured to it by the constitution and laws of the United States; Barron v. Burnside, 121 U. S. 186, 200, 7 Sup. Ct. 931, 30 L. Ed. 915; the state might as well pass an act to deprive a citizen of another state of his right of removal. See INSURANCE.

Mutual benefit societies may prescribe regulations as to procedure in enforcing claims, and may require appeals to superior bodies before instituting suit, but they cannot entirely take away the right to invoke the aid of the courts in enforcing claims existing in favor of its members upon contracts; Bauer v. Samson Lodge, 102 Ind. 269, 1 N. E. 571.

An agreement by which the members of an association undertake to confer judicial powers, in respect to the common property, upon its officers, selected out of the association, as a tribunal having general authority to adjudicate upon alleged violations of the rules, and to decree a forfeiture of the rights, to such property, of the parties, is void. The court will not aid in enforcing the judgment of a tribunal sought to be created by private compact, except in case of submission to arbitration of specific matters of controversy; Austin v. Searing, 16 N. Y. 112, 69 Am. Dec. 665.

The powers both of courts of equity and of law over their own process to prevent abuse, oppression, and injustice are inherent and equally extensive and efficient; as is also their power to protect their own jurisand the company exempted from lia- diction and officers in the possession of property that is in the custody of the law; Krippendorf v. Hyde, 110 U. S. 276, 4 Sup. Ct. 27, 28 L. Ed. 145.

If the subject of the bill creates jurisdiction, it cannot be defeated by matter set up in the answer; the plaintiff is master to decide what law he will rely upon; The Fair v. Specialty Co., 228 U. S. 22, 33 Sup. Ct. 410, 57 L. Ed. 716 (except where the bill is based on diversity of citizenship, denied in the answer; id.).

When a prisoner after pleading guilty is allowed to go out of custody without bail, the court has no further jurisdiction over him, and cannot, at a subsequent term, order his rearrest, and pronounce sentence upon him; People v. Allen, 155 Ill. 61, 39 N. E. 568, 41 L. R. A. 473.

Although in criminal cases the jurisdiction is confined to the locus in quo of the crime, there are cases in which, for a single criminal act, the perpetrator is liable to be tried in more than one jurisdiction. Such a case is presented where a continuous unlawful act is set on foot by a single impulse and operated by an unintermittent force, however long time it may occupy; Armour Packing Co. v. U. S., 153 Fed. 1, 82 C. C. A. 135, 14 L. R. A. (N. S.) 400, affirmed 209 U. S. 56, 28 Sup. Ct. 428, 52 L. Ed. 681; and when such an act or series of acts runs through several jurisdictions, the offense is committed and cognizable in each; though complete in the jurisdiction where first committed, it may continue, be committed, and be punished in another jurisdiction; id.

As to the immunity of a sovereign from suit, see Sovereign; STATE.

As to jurisdiction of a justice of the peace, see that title.

See United States Courts; Executors and Administrators; Three Mile Limit; High Seas; Foreign Judgments; Equity; Common Law; Admiralty; Judgments; Judge; Judicial Power; Records.

JURISDICTION CLAUSE. That part of a bill in equity which is intended to give jurisdiction of the suit to the court, by a general averment that the acts complained of are contrary to equity and tend to the injury of the plaintiff, and that he has no remedy, or not a complete remedy, without the assistance of a court of equity, is called the jurisdiction clause. Mitf. Eq. Pl. 43.

This clause is unnecessary; for if the court appear from the bill to have jurisdiction, the bill will be sustained without this clause; and if the court have not jurisdiction, the bill will be dismissed though the clause may be inserted. Story, Eq. Pl. § 34.

JURISPRUDENCE. The science of the law. The practical science of giving a wise interpretation to the laws and making a just application of them to all cases as they arise.

The science of human law. And. Am. L. § 18.

By science, in the first definition, is stood that connection of truths will founded on principles either evident it selves or capable of demonstration, lection of truths of the same kind, ar in methodical order. In the latter it is the habit of judging the same quin the same manner, and by this cojudgments forming precedents. 1 Pand. 3. See Bentham, Austin.

Markby, Heron, Phillimore, Lorime mond, Taylor, Lindley, on Jurisprude Sir F. Pollock divides jurisprudence 1. Positive (which is practical, his comparative or analytical); 2. Final prudence; and 3. International ju dence. General jurisprudence is hardl than the collective result of comp and analytical jurisprudence. Comp jurisprudence deals with the groun and typical conceptions which are c to all legal systems, or to all that hav any considerable way towards comple and analytical jurisprudence with s tions as to such ideas as Duty, Intent ership, Possession, etc. By Final Ju dence he designates the considerat laws as they ought to be-ground wh longs perhaps more to the statesma the lawyer. It assumes the shape of ory of Legislation, with special bi treating of the formal structure of codification, legal procedure, etc. The eral principles of legislation and gover which are put forward as claiming from all men in so far as they are r and social beings, are said to be of a obligation. The sum of them is call law of nature, droit naturel, Natu Jurisprudence).

As to a distinction between jurispr and law, see Holland Jurisprudence Taylor, Jurisprudence 28.

The law which would in itself be bes given nation in given circumstances is times called by a certain school of v positive law. The sort of doctrine embodies it may be called Ethical Ju dence (Oxford Lectures, The Meth

JURIST. One versed in the sciential law. One skilled in the civil law skilled in the law of nations.

JURISTIC PERSON. The usual for a juristic person and the only one of the state) at common law, is a corporation of the state of the sta

It is called also persona ficta, and is ed sometimes as a corporation.

Warner v. Beers, 23 Wend. (N. Y.) 24 Harv. L. Rev. 17; 57 U. P. S. Rev.

ROR (Lat. juro, to swear). is sworn or affirmed to serve on a jury. y person selected and summoned acng to law to serve in that capacity, ner the jury has been actually impanelad sworn or not. State v. McCrystol, 43 nn. 907, 9 South. 922.

RY (Lat. jurata, sworn). A body of who are sworn to declare the facts of e as they are proven from the evidence d before them.

e term "jury," as used in the consti-, means twelve competent men, dissted and impartial, not of kin nor perdependents of either of the parties, g their homes within the jurisdictional of the court, drawn and elected by es free from all bias in favor of or st either party; duly impanelled, and to render a true verdict, according to w and the evidence; State v. McClear, v. 39.

the trial by jury, the right of which is ed by the VIIth Amendment, both the and the jury are essential factors; m v. Ins. Co., 228 U. S. 364, 33 Sup. Ct. 7 L. Ed. 879.

best theory regards the jury system as having erived from Normandy, where, as in the rest ace, it had existed since its establishment unof Carlovingian kings. It made its appearance siand soon after the Norman Conquest. No of it is to be found in Anglo-Saxon times, as it, as is often supposed, established by Charta; 10 Harv. L. Rev. 150, by J. E. R. ns. The same writer finds the idea of unare-established in the time of Edward IV., prity verdict having previously sufficed; in prity verdict having previously sufficed; in ar Books of 28 Edward III. is the first inn of the jury deciding on evidence produced them in addition to their own knowledge. In the reign of Henry IV. evidence was reto be given at the bar of the court, and the practice or method of jury trials had its id. 159.

J. B. Thayer finds the origin of the jury in ankish inquisition; it existed in Normandy ent thence to England in the eleventh cen-5 Harv. L. Rev. 249. The use of a jury both il and criminal cases is mentioned for the me in English statute law in the Constituf Clarendon; id. 156.

origin of trial by jury is said by another to be rather French than English, rather than popular, rather a livery of conquest badge of freedom. Originally juries were in, not to hear, but to give, evidence. They he neighbors of the parties and were preto know when they came into court the facts which they were to testify. They were chosen sheriff to represent the neighborhood. The was the sworn testimony of the country-By slow degrees the jury acquired a new ter. Sometimes when the jurors knew noththe facts, witnesses who did know the facts be called in to supply the requisite informa-They became more and more dependent on idence given in their presence by those witwho were summoned by the parties. In the h century the change had taken place, in yet later days a man who had been sumas a juror and sought to escape on the ground that he already knew something of the facts, might be told that he had given a very good reason for his being placed in the jury box. It may well be said therefore that trial by jury, though it had its roots in the Frankish inquest, grew up on English soil; 1 Social England 255, 290. So also 1 Poll. & Maitl. 117-121.

Another writer finds its foundation in Norman institutions and its establishment by positive legisla-tion in the time of Henry II. Lesser, Hist. of Jury

In an interesting discussion of the "Administra-tion of the Criminal Law," by W. H. Taft, 15 Yale L. J. 1 (1905), it is stated that since 1848 "the trial by jury in criminal cases was adopted in France, in Belgium, in Germany, in Norway and Sweden, in Spain, in Italy, and Russia, except in trials for political offences, and is now in use in those countries." He also considers that, although adopted in Porto Rico, it has been a failure there, and that Porto Rico, it has been a failure there, and that its adoption in the Philippines would be unwise, adding that "it is by no means clear that in our own jurisprudence trial by jury in civil cases is an unmixed good." The inapplicability of the jury system and also of what are usually termed the constitutional guarantees (all of which except trial by jury were extended to them by President Moby jury were extended to them by President Mc-Kinley) to such a country is argued at some length and with vigor.

A common jury is one drawn in the usual and regular manner.

A grand jury is a body organized for certain preliminary purposes.

A jury de medictate linguæ is one composed half of aliens and half of denizens.

Such juries might formerly be claimed, both in civil and criminal cases, where the party claiming the privilege was an alien born, by virtue of 28 Edw. III. c. 13, and by an earlier statute, where one party was a foreign merchant; 27 Edw. III. c. 8. Such a jury was provided in criminal cases by a statute of Edward I. It was abolished by 33 Vict. c. 14. The right has been recognized in this country; Respublica v. Mesca, 1 Dall. (Pa.) 73, 1 L. Ed. 42; People v. McLean, 2 Johns. (N. Y.) 381; Richards v. Com., 11 Leigh (Va.) 690; contra U. 8. v. McMahon, 4 Cra. C. C. 573, Fed. Cas. No. 15,699; State v. Antonio, 11 N. C. 200. It has been generally abolished by statute; Thomp. & Merr. Juries 19; excepting in Kentucky, where it still exists; 4d.

A petit or traverse jury is a jury who try the question in issue and pass finally upon the truth of the facts in dispute. The term jury is ordinarily applied to this body distinctively.

A special jury is one selected by the assistance of the parties.

This is granted in some cases upon motion and cause shown, under various local provisions. The method at common law was for the officer to return the names of forty-eight principal freeholders to the proper officer. The attorneys of the respective parties, being present, strike off each twelve names, and from the remaining twenty-four the jury is selected. A similar course is pursued in these states where such juries are allowed. See 3 Sharsw. Bla. Com. 357. The earliest rule of court on the subject was made in 8 Will. III.; 1 Salk. 405. It formerly was granted only in cases of special consequence or great difficulty; but later, a special jury has usually been granted in ordinary cases. In some states such a jury is of course; in New York, statutes provide for such only in cases of special importance or intricacy, as to which the court must decide.

A struck jury is a special jury. See Cook

inal cases except upon impeachments, and in all suits at common law where the subject-matter of the controversy exceeds twenty dollars in value. The right to such a trial is also provided in many of our state constitutions. It has been held, however, not to be an infringement of this federal constitutional right, where a statute provides that in all criminal prosecutions the party accused, if he shall so elect, may be tried by the court instead of by a jury; Miller, Const. U. S. 494; Coleman v. Edwards, 5 Ohio St. 57; Ward v. People, 30 Mich. 116; State v. Worden, 46 Conn. 349, 33 Am. Rep. 27. It was held that a jury trial may be waived when there is a positive legislative enactment giving the right to do so; Hallinger v. Davis, 146 U. S. 314, 13 Sup. Ct. 105, 36 L. Ed. 986. This clause of the constitution does not apply to state courts; Hare, Am. Const. L. 860; Eilenbecker v. District Court, 134 U. S. 31, 10 Sup. Ct. 424, 33 L. Ed. 801; Edwards v. Elliott, 21 Wall. (U. S.) 557, 22 L. Ed. 487; Cooley, Const. Lim. 410; Williams v. Hert, 110 Fed. 166, where it was also held that when a state was admitted to the Union "on an equal footing with the original states in all respects whatsoever," no right of trial by jury in criminal cases is guaranteed, although it had been secured by the ordinance and acts of congress for the government of the territory out of which the state was cre-The states may, therefore, in their own constitutions, dispense with trial by jury both in civil and criminal cases; Ordron. Const. Leg. 261; and cases supra; or provide that a jury shall consist of less than twelve; Maxwell v. Dow, 176 U. S. 581, 20 Sup. Ct. 448, 494, 44 L. Ed. 597; In re Mc-Kee, 19 Utah, 231, 57 Pac. 23; Walker v. Sauvinet, 92 U. S. 90, 23 L. Ed. 678; Missouri v. Lewis, 101 U. S. 22, 25 L. Ed. 989.

It does not apply to cases in the court of claims; McElrath v. U. S., 102 U. S. 426, 26 L. Ed. 189; nor to proceedings for disbarring an attorney; Re Wall, 107 U. S. 265, 2 Sup. Ct. 569, 27 L. Ed. 552; nor for assessing damages; Raymond v. R. Co., 14 Blatchf. 133, Fed. Cas. No. 11,593; nor to equity cases in the federal courts; Barton v. Barbour, 104 U. S. 126, 26 L. Ed. 672; nor to cases where the right is antecedently and voluntarily relinquished; Bank of Columbia v. Okely, 4 Wheat. (U. S.) 235, 4 L. Ed. 559; nor does a like provision in a state constitution apply to any proceedings in which a jury was not required at common law; e. g., a justice's court; Vaughn v. Scade, 30 Mo. 600; Knight v. Campbell, 62 Barb. (N. Y.) 16; nor to any court which exercised its functions without the aid of a jury prior to the adoption of a constitution; Thomps. & Merr. Juries 11; People v. Justices of Court of Special Sessions, 74 N. Y. 406.

The provisions of the United States constitution relating to trial by jury are as follows:

"The trial of all crimes except in cas impeachment, shall be by jury; and trial shall be held in the state where said crimes shall have been committed when not committed within any state trial shall be at such place or places a Congress may by law have directed." Const. art. 3, sec. 2, par. 3.

"In all criminal prosecutions, the ac shall enjoy the right to a speedy and p trial, by an impartial jury of the state district wherein the crime shall have committed. . . ." Amdt. VI, U. S. (

"In suits at common law, where the in controversy shall exceed twenty do the right of trial by jury shall be prese and no fact tried by a jury shall be cwise re-examined in any court of the U States, than according to the rules o common law." Amdt. VII, U. S. Const.

The first clause of the seventh amend of the United States constitution in rel to trials by jury relates only to the fe courts; the states are left to regulate in their own courts; Edwards v. Ellio Wall. (U. S.) 532, 22 L. Ed. 487. The se clause, prohibiting federal courts from examining any fact tried by a jury othe than according to the common law, as to the facts tried by jury in a cause state court; Justices v. U. S., 9 Wall S.) 274, 19 L. Ed. 658. Article 3, sec. 2, providing for jury trials of all crimes e impeachment does not apply to state co Eilenbecker v. District Court, 134 U. 10 Sup. Ct. 424, 33 L. Ed. 801; nor doe prohibition of the fourteenth amend against abridging the right of trial by in suits at common law; Walker v. Sau 92 U. S. 90, 23 L. Ed. 678; and the sa true of a provision in article 3 for the of all crimes in the state where commi Nashville, C. & St. L. Ry. v. Alabama, 1 S. 96, 9 Sup. Ct. 28, 32 L. Ed. 352.

The seventh amendment declaring the fact tried by a jury shall be otherwis examined in any court of the United S than according to the rules of the cor law. The effect of this prohibits the U States courts from re-examining facts by a jury, except in the granting of a trial by the court which tried the issue, which the record was properly returnab the award of a venire facias de novo l appellate court for an error in law; Li v. Power, 151 U. S. 436, 14 Sup. Ct. 38 L. Ed. 224; Slocum v. Ins. Co., 228 364, 33 Sup. Ct. 523, 57 L. Ed. 879. But action by an appellate state court was to be constitutional and not to infring right to due process of law or trial by Gunn v. R. Co., 27 R. I. 320, 62 Atl. 1 L. R. A. (N. S.) 362; id., 27 R. I. 43

Atl. 239, 2 L. R. A. (N. S.) 883.

The amendment secures unanimity in ing a verdict as an essential feature of ss cannot impart the power to change stitutional rule, and cannot be treated empting to do so; Springville v. Thom-B U. S. 707, 17 Sup. Ct. 717, 41 L. Ed.

provision securing the right to jury applies to the District of Columbia; v. Wilson, 127 U. S. 540, 8 Sup. Ct. 32 L. Ed. 223; and the provisions are able to it in both civil and criminal but the right is not infringed by an larging the jurisdiction of a justice of ace in the District of Columbia to $300 quiring every appellant from his judgto give bond for the payment of final ent on appeal; Capital Traction Co. v. 74 U. S. 1, 19 Sup. Ct. 580, 43 L. Ed. It has also been held to be secured in ries; Black v. Jackson, 177 U. S. 349, o. Ct. 648, 44 L. Ed. 801; but was based the acts of congress relating to them; er v. Reid, 11 How. (U. S.) 437, 13 L. 1; Thompson v. Utah, 170 U. S. 343, p. Ct. 620, 42 L. Ed. 1061. But the of trial by jury was not extended by onstitution by its own force without tion to the Philippines, since they are corporated into the United States by ssional action; Dorr v. U. S., 195 U. 24 Sup. Ct. 808, 49 L. Ed. 128, 1 Ann.

er the fourteenth amendment a jury s guaranteed to municipal offenders ced to infamous punishment and a for the summary infliction of such ment is unconstitutional; Jamison v. sh, 130 Fed. 351; but the exercise of ry jurisdiction over such offences by rates has long been exercised; Green erior Court, 78 Cal. 556, 21 Pac. 307, Byers v. Com., 42 Pa. 89; and was so in a when the amendment was adopted; v. Com'rs of Eatonton, 14 Ga. 354, 58 ec. 559. Accordingly, the decision of deral court above cited has been very criticized as not warranted by the sucourt cases and particularly the conon of the amendment in the Slaughter Cases; 18 H. L. R. 136; as to the to waive a trial by jury in criminal it is thought by a writer in 21 H. L. , that the cases may be reconciled by l analysis and the conclusions reached at if the constitution prohibits a conexcept by verdict, the court alone decide the case; State v. Holt, 90 N. 47 Am. Rep. 544; and a statute allowwaiver would be invalid; State v. Cott-W. Va. 162, 6 S. E. 428; contra, State ggs, 34 W. Va. 78, 11 S. E. 740; and pplies even in cases of minor offences; v. Stewart, 89 N. C. 563. Under conons which provide only that the right ll by jury shall remain inviolate, the y in common law cases, and an act of | held; Edwards v. State, 45 N. J. L. 419; contra, Brimingstool v. People, 1 Mich. N. P. 260; even in felonies; Murphy v. State, 97 Ind. 579; State v. Worden, 46 Conn. 349, 33 Am. Rep. 27; if there be no statute, however, the waiver cannot be allowed; Harris v. People, 128 Ill. 585, 21 N. E. 563, 15 Am. St. Rep. 153; contra, Wren v. State, 70 Ala. A statute providing that the issues of facts shall be tried by jury was construed to prohibit a waiver; In re McQuown, 19 Okl. 347, 91 Pac. 689, 11 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1136.

JURY

A waiver of a jury by the defendant in an action for a penalty in a revenue case does not invalidate the judgment; Schick v. U. S., 195 U. S. 65, 24 Sup. Ct. 826, 49 L. Ed. 99, 1 Ann. Cas. 585, where, however, the dissenting opinion of Harlan, J., should be examined.

A jury trial is not guaranteed by a state constitution providing for "due process of law"; Wynehamer v. People, 13 N. Y. 378; nor even by the provision for it in the fourteenth amendment; Walker v. Sauvinet, 92 U. S. 90, 23 L. Ed. 678; Maxwell v. Dow, 176 U. S. 581, 20 Sup. Ct. 448, 494, 44 L. Ed. 597; nor does it abridge its privileges and immunities; id. "Due process of law" simply requires that there shall be a day in court, and the legislature may take away or change a remedy; People v. Board of Sup'rs, 70 N. Y. 228; but it has been held in some cases that the expression does guarantee a jury trial; Inhabitants of Saco v. Wentworth, 37 Me. 165, 58 Am. Dec. 786; State v. Ray, 63 N. H. 406, 56 Am. Rep. 529; Jones v. Robbins, 8 Gray (Mass.) 329; Hurtado v. People, 110 U. S. 516, 4 Sup. Ct. 111, 292, 28 L. Ed. 232.

An act providing for the trial of a contested election to a public office which deprives the party of a trial of disputed facts by jury is not unconstitutional; Ewing v. Filley, 43 Pa. 384.

In the Delaware constitution of 1897, provision is made for the trial of criminal offences against the election laws, by the court without a jury.

The number of jurors must be twelve; and it is held that the term jury in a constitution imports, ex vi termini, twelve men; People v. Justices, 74 N. Y. 406; Turns v. Com., 6 Metc. (Mass.) 231; Norval v. Rice, 2 Wis. 22; whose verdict is to be unanimous; Cruger v. R. Co., 12 N. Y. 190. See State v. Mc-Clear, 11 Nev. 39, supra.

Where a constitution preserves the right of trial by jury inviolate, the legislature cannot change the number of jurors in either civil or criminal cases; Thomp. & Merr. Juries 10; Henning v. R. Co., 35 Mo. 408; Allen v. State, 51 Ga. 264.

The question whether the common law requirement of twelve jurors may be changed has in recent years received much attention in the courts. There has been a growing tens allowing a waiver are generally up- | dency, at least, towards the serious consideration of changes in the jury system as administered at common law and secured by the state and federal constitutions. See GRAND JURY. The decided weight of authority is that, where the right to trial by jury is secured by the constitution, the legislature cannot authorize a verdict by a less number than twelve; that the constitutional reservation implies a right to the concurrent judgment of that number, and any statute limiting it is unconstitutional and void; Opinion of Justices, 41 N. H. 550; Jacksonville, T. & K. W. R. Co. v. Adams, 33 Fla. 608, 15 South. 257, 24 L. R. A. 272; Bradford v. Territory, 1 Okl. 366, 34 Pac. 66; Bettge v. Territory, 17 Okl. 85, 87 Pac. 897; Cancemi v. People, 18 N. Y. 128; Harris v. State, 128 Ill. 585, 21N. E. 563, 15 Am. St. Rep. 153; Carroll v. Byers, 4 Ariz. 158, 36 Pac. 499; and such, under the sixth amendment, must be the number of jurors, neither more nor less than twelve, that being the rule at common law; Thompson v. Utah, 170 U. S. 343, 18 Sup. Ct. 620, 42 L. Ed. 1061. Such is the meaning of "trial by jury" in the primary and usual sense of the term at common law in the American constitutions; Capital Traction Co. v. Hof, 174 U. S. 1, 19 Sup. Ct. 580, 43 L. Ed. 873, where there is an extended historical discussion of the subject by Gray, J., and it was held further that by the seventh amendment after trial by jury, in either the federal or state court, the facts tried and decided cannot be re-examined in any court of the United States except upon a new trial granted by the federal court or when ordered by the appellate court for error in law. Accordingly one charged with crime cannot waive a jury trial by twelve jurors; Jennings v. State, 134 Wis. 307, 114 N. W. 492, 14 L. R. A. (N. S.) 862.

While a person accused of an infamous crime, though not a felony, may waive the disqualification of jurors, or even their impartiality, such person cannot waive his right to a trial by a jury of twelve by consenting, after a legal jury had been impaneled and two had been excused, to continue the trial and abide by the verdict of the remaining ten; Dickinson v. U. S., 159 Fed. 801, 86 C. C. A. 625; Hill v. People, 16 Mich. 351; per Cooley, C. J.; contra, Com. v. Dailey, 12 Cush. (Mass.) 80, per Shaw, C. J.; a later case being criticized in the case first cited; but there need not be a jury of twelve in civil cases; City of Huron v. Carter, 5 S. D. 4. 57 N. W. 947; Roach v. Blakey, 89 Va. 767, 17 S. E. 228; Kreuchi v. Dehler, 50 Ill. 176.

The constitutional right of a jury trial in criminal cases cannot be waived by one indicted for a felony so as to make valid a trial by eleven jurors; Territory v. Ortiz, 8 N. Mex. 154, 42 Pac. 87. This doctrine has been based upon various grounds. It was said in one case that the duty of the state to its citizens would prohibit a waiver of a full | jury; Copp v. Henniker, 55 N. H. 179, 20 panel; Cancemi v. People, 18 N. Y. Shaw, C. J., suggested that in some case defendant's chance of acquittal migh greater with eleven jurors than with two and Cooley suggests the view that a just less than twelve is a tribunal unknow the law, and would amount to a mere tration, which is not allowable; Const. 1 6th Ed. 391. Some courts held that there be a valid waiver as to misdemeanors; v. Worden, 46 Conn. 349, 33 Am. Rep. State v. Albee, 61 N. H. 423, 60 Am. Rep. State v. Alderton, 50 W. Va. 101, 40 S. E. and others that the right was not see with respect to minor or trivial offer People v. Justices of Court, 74 N. Y. 406 ers v. Com., 42 Pa. 89; or at least th jury may be dispensed with in the firs stance where there is a right of appeal a jury; Jones v. Robbins, 8 Gray (M 329; City of Emporia v. Volmer, 12 Kan. Statutes conferring the right to waive not in conflict with the constitution of United States; Hallinger v. Davis, 146 314, 13 Sup. Ct. 105, 36 L. Ed. 986; or o state; People v. Noll, 20 Cal. 164. It held that in civil cases in Utah a jur twelve was not required; Wolf Co. v. B ing Co., 10 Utah 179, 37 Pac. 262; Ma v. Enzensperger, 11 Utah 154, 39 Pac. but see American Pub. Co. v. Fisher, 16 S. 464, 17 Sup. Ct. 618, 41 L. Ed. 1079, w it was held that litigants in common lay tions in the courts of Utah while a terr had a right to trial by jury which inve unanimity of verdict, and this right could be taken away by territorial legislation. to unanimity of a verdict in a state cour infra. There would seem to be no legal obje to permitting this change by constitut provision, but even that, it has been will not sustain a statute providing the certain contingencies, at the discretion o trial court, a jury may consist of less twelve men; McRae v. R. Co., 93 Mich. 53 N. W. 561, 17 L. R. A. 750. In Califo in civil cases and misdemeanors, the may consist of twelve or any number than twelve upon which the parties agree in open court. And the number jurors may be limited in many states, in in Colorado, Florida, Idaho, Iowa, La ana, Michigan, Missouri, Montana, Nebra New Jersey, North Dakota, Washington, Wyoming. See 36 Cent. L. J. 437. A statute changing the jury to nin civil cases applies to pending cases; I feldt v. Ry. Co., 180 Mo. 554, 79 S. W. where the court said that "no one has a ed right to have his cause tried by any ticular mode of procedure."

Statutes providing for compulsory r ence have been held constitutional in r cases as not infringing the right to tris 194; Edwardson v. Garnhart, 56 Mo. Norton v. Rooker, 1 Pinney (Wis.) 195. d the provision requiring the payment sts before appeal was also held constitu i; McDonald v. Schell, 6 S. & R. (Pa.) Emerick v. Harris, 1 Binney (Pa.) 416. eventh amendment of the United States itution does not apply to the state s; Edwards v. Elliott, 21 Wall. (U. S.) 22 L. Ed. 487; Pearson v. Yewdall, 95 294, 24 L. Ed. 436; with respect to tate constitutions where the right of by jury is secured, it continues inviowith respect to all cases triable by jury the constitution was adopted; Tribou rawbridge, 7 Or. 156; Lee v. Tillotson, end. (N. Y.) 337, 35 Am. Dec. 624; Mead alker, 17 Wis. 190. New York where the action of account efore the constitution triable without a under a colonial statute it has been held long accounts in a counter-claim in an on contract where the plaintiff's claim puted will not justify compulsory refe because the colonial practice only perd set-off with plea of payment, and fore the statute could not have been apole to a counter-claim when the plaincause of action was disputed; Steck v. Co., 142 N. Y. 236, 37 N. E. 1, 25 L. R. and note collecting cases.

animity in giving a verdict was not unil in the early days of the common law; nes eleven sufficed; in some cases a ma-. Probably it was only in the second f the fourteenth century that unanimity ne an established principle; 5 Harv. L. 296, by Prof. J. B. Thayer. "The rule animity of the jury was not fixed bethe 14th century and it was probably laid down in terms that juries must be mous. What was actually decided was the verdict of fewer than 12 men would uffice, and it became a fixed custom to that number on the pettit jury." Pol-Expans. of C. L. 95.

e requirement of unanimity of twelve s arose from the custom which taught to regard it as the proper amount of eve to establish the credibility of a person ed of an offence; Forsyth, Trial by Ju-10. At common law, except as above l, unanimity was essential to a verdict, at it has been held that a conviction by a jurors, even where the accused waived il by twelve jurors, would be set aside; emi v. People, 18 N. Y. 128. "Unanimity ne of the peculiar and essential features al by jury at common law;" American Co. v. Fisher, 166 U. S. 464, 17 Sup. Ct. 11 L. Ed. 1079, supra; but the court exly said that the power of a state to ge the rule as to unanimity was not bethem, and cited Walker v. Sauvinet, 92 90, 23 L. Ed. 678; Hurtado v. Califor-

Ed. 232. Changes in this respect have been made in many states. In civil actions in California, Idaho, Louisiana, Nevada, Texas, and Washington, three-fourths may render a verdict; two-thirds in Montana in civil actions and crimes less than felonies, and fivesixths in Idaho, in all cases of misdemeanor. In Iowa the legislature may authorize a verdict by less than twelve in inferior courts.

Unanimity is still required in England. In a case before the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, where a British subject was convicted of murder in Japan, the court being comprised of a British judge and five jurors, established under a British treaty, it was argued by Sir Frank Lockwood that the British government could not establish such a court with a jury of less than twelve, but the court held that the conviction was lawful. [1897] App. Cas. 719.

A modification of the jury system, much considered and quite generally adopted, is the provision authorizing the parties to waive a jury and elect to have the facts tried by the court. This course in civil cases is authorized in most of the states, as well as in the federal courts. It is provided for in the constitutions of Arkansas, California, Colorado, Florida, Maryland, Michigan, Minnesota, Newada, New York, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, Vermont, Wisconsin, Washington, and West Virginia. By statute a like practice obtains in Illinois, Missouri, New Jersey, and Wyoming, and also by the bill of rights in Arizona and by statute in New Mexico. There can be a waiver in civil cases and in criminal cases not amounting to felony in Idaho, Montana, North Dakota, and California.

The general principle is, however, that in criminal cases, the accused can neither waive his right to a trial by a jury of twelve nor be deprived of it by the legislature; Cancemi v. People, 18 N. Y. 128; Allen v. State, 54 Ind. 461; State v. Carman, 63 Ia. 130, 18 N. W. 691, 50 Am. Rep. 741 (contra, State v. Kaufman, 51 Ia. 578, 2 N. W. 275, 33 Am. Rep. 148); State v. Davis, 66 Mo. 684, 27 Am. Rep. 387; Bell v. State, 44 Ala. 393; Williams v. State, 12 Ohio St. 622; Kleinschmidt v. Dunphy, 1 Mont. 118; Swart v. Kimball, 43 Mich. 443, 5 N. W. 635. Judge Cooley, after stating that less than twelve would not be a common-law jury, or such as the constitution guarantees, adds, "And the necessity of a full panel could not be waived—at least in case of felony-even by consent." Lim., 4th ed. 395. It was held that where one juror was an alien the failure to challenge him was not a waiver of the objection, and on the refusal of the court to set aside the judgment, it would be reversed, on error; Hill v. People, 16 Mich. 356; contra, State v. Quarrel, 2 Bay (S. C.) 150, 1 Am. Dec. 637. One accused of crime cannot waive the ab-110 U. S. 516, 4 Sup. Ct. 111, 292, 28 L. sence of one juror; Jennings v. State, 134

1774

Wis. 307, 114 N. W. 492, 14 L. R. A. (N. S.) 862 and note.

On the trial of a misdemeanor, a full jury may be waived; Com. v. Dailey, 12 Cush. (Mass.) 80, per Shaw, C. J.; Tyra v. Com., 2 Metc. (Ky.) 1; U. S. v. Shaw, 59 Fed. 110; or where the penalty is only a fine; State v. Mansfield, 41 Mo. 470. A jury may be waived in all civil cases, without any statute; Roach v. Blakey, 89 Va. 767, 17 S. E. 228.

The fact that a court of chancery may summon a jury to try an issue of fact is not equivalent to the right of trial by jury under the seventh amendment of the constitution; Cates v. Allen, 149 U. S. 451, 13 Sup. Ct. 883, 977, 37 L. Ed. 804. And the constitutional right does not relate to suits over which equity exercised jurisdiction when the constitution was adopted; Davis v. Settle, 43 W. Va. 17, 26 S. E. 557; but the right cannot be defeated by giving equity jurisdiction over an action in which the right applies; id. It is not impaired by an act giving the appellate court authority to reverse for excessive damages; Smith v. Pub. Co., 178 Pa. 481, 36 Atl. 296, 35 L. R. A. 819. In that case it was held that the act which gives the supreme court "power in all cases to affirm, reverse, amend, or modify a judgment, order, or decree appealed from and to enter such judgment," etc., as it may deem proper and just, does not infringe upon the right of trial by jury and is constitutional; and in a later case, this decision was adhered to, and it was further held that where the supreme court had reversed a judgment, without awarding a new venire, it might subsequently amend the judgment of reversal by adding thereto a formal judgment in favor of defendant; Nugent v. Traction Co., 183 Pa. 142, 38 Atl. 587; Dalmas v. Kemble, 215 Pa. 410, 64 Atl. 559.

A state law authorizing a judgment n. o. v. on the whole record to be entered by an appellate court where a point requesting binding instructions has been reserved or declined is in conflict with the seventh amendment of the federal constitution; Slocum v. Ins. Co., 228 U. S. 364, 33 Sup. Ct. 523, 57 L. Ed. 879, where it was held that the circuit court of appeals in entering such a judgment under the state statute had acted improperly in not merely reversing the judgment with a venire. It is also held that a state statute providing that a new trial shall not be granted on account of the smallness of the damages is, if applicable to federal courts, a violation of the seventh amendment; Hughey v. Sullivan, 80 Fed. 72.

Several state courts have held that a reversal and entry of final judgment by the appellate court under staté statute is not an infringement of trial by jury; Larkins v. R. Ass'n, 221 Ill. 428, 77 N. E. 678; Gunn v. R. Co., 26 R. I. 112, 58 Atl. 452; Houghton Implement Co. v. Vavrosky, 15 N. D. 308, 109 N. W. 1024; nor is the requirement of a remit- Colo. 525, 22 Pac. 820, 10 L. R. A. 790 titur by an appellate court; Burdict Co., 123 Mo. 221, 27 S. W. 453, 26 L. I 384, 45 Am. St. Rep. 528; Texas & N. ( Co. v. Syfan, 91 Tex. 562, 44 S. W. 1064. Qualifications. Jurors must possess qualifications which may be prescribed statute, must be free from any bias ca by relationship to the parties or interes the matter in dispute, and in criminal must not have formed any opinion as to guilt or innocence of the accused.

"1. They are to be good and lawful 2. Of sufficient freeholds, according to provisions of several acts of parliament Not convict of any notorious crime. 4. to be of the kindred or alliance of an the parties. 5. Not to be such as are possessed or prejudiced before they their evidence." Cond. Gen. 297.

At common law there was a freehold q fication, but to no certain amount; Hen. V. it was 40s.; Thomp. & Merr. J. 20; Proffatt, Jury Trial § 115.

An alien may serve as a juror, that foreigner intending to be naturalized; ple v. Scott, 56 Mich. 154, 22 N. W. 274; tra, State v. Primrose, 3 Ala. 546, and Proffatt, Jury Trial § 116. An atheist been held to be disqualified; Shane v. Cla 3 Harr. & McH. (Md.) 101. Women could serve as jurors at common law, except a jury to try an issue under a writ de ve inspiciendo (q. v.); 3 Bla. Com. 362. are now qualified in some states.

Under U. S. R. S. § 5440, an official of United States is disqualified as a juro reason of his relations with the govern although not a salaried officer; Crawfor U. S., 212 U. S. 183, 29 Sup. Ct. 260, 5 Ed. 465, 15 Ann. Cas. 392, where it was upon the ground that bias disqualifies a j and it is implied in the relation bet employer and employee and actual evid thereof is unnecessary (a criminal case federal court).

Under the common law the master, ant, steward, counsellor, or attorney, o ther party is not a competent juror and utory provisions of qualifications not in sistent with this rule do not abrogate id.; Block v. State, 100 Ind. 357.

It has been held that where one of jurors was incompetent, as an alien, his ence vitiated the whole panel and the dict; Shane v. Clarke, 3 Harr. & McH. ( 101; unless waived by failure to challe State v. Pickett, 103 Ia. 714, 73 N. W. 34 L. R. A. 302; 11 Harv. L. R. 545. The discovered after verdict that a juror who not challenged was unable to understand English language was held insufficient gro for granting a new trial; San Antonio P. R. Co. v. Gray (Tex.) 66 S. W. 229; ignorance of English language would no a ground of challenge; In re Allison t. Rep. 224; but the failure to chalhas been held to be a waiver of the 2 Moo. & Sc. 41; St. Louis & S. E. R. Casner, 72 Ill. 384; but where the lification was not known until after rdict, a new trial was granted as a of discretion; Woodward v. Dean, ass. 297; and as a matter of right; v. Clarke, 3 Har. & McH. (Md.) 101. employee of a stockholder of a corpois not disqualified by reason of his ment; Sansouver v. Dye Works, 28 R. 88 Atl. 545; 13 N. Burns. 8. Business ns which disqualify one from acting as r are: Employer and employee; Lou-N. O. & T. R. Co. v. Mask, 64 Miss. South. 360; even if the former is a tion; Burnett v. R. Co., 16 Neb. 332, W. 280; landlord and tenant; Hath-. Helmer, 25 Barb. (N. Y.) 29; contra, v. Fruit Co., 141 Cal. 738, 75 Pac. 326; rs; Stumm v. Hummel, 39 Ia. 478; and servant; State v. Coella, 3 Wash. Pac. 28; attorney and client; 3 Bla. 863; but not a client of the attorney suit; McCorkle v. Mallory, 30 Wash. Pac. 186; business relations with a may disqualify in a particular case, not from the relation generally; Laid-Sage, 2 App. Div. 374, 37 N. Y. Supp. ut not the mere relation of a debtor

7, 13 S. E. 1015.
ther it is contempt of court for a masdischarge a workman because he was to serve as a juror is discussed in icle quoted from the London Law in 36 Am. L. Rev. 596.

editor; Thompson v. Douglass, 35 W.

federal constitution provides that in al trials the jury shall be taken "from te and district where the crime shall been committed." State constitutions confine the selection to the county rict, except where, in some states, a on is made in case jurors cannot contly be found in the county. The right rial by a jury of the vicinage is an al part of trial by jury.

ome states the qualifications of jurors gulated by the constitution; e. g., a requires them to be taken from the red voters. Georgia requires that juall be upright and intelligent persons. to the constitutional provisions as airing the right of trial by jury, the ture has power to define the qualificator jurors. It may dispense with the d qualification required by common kerwin v. People, 96 Ill. 206; Com. v. 103 Mass. 412; but see 20 Am. L. 36; Proffatt, Jury Trial § 115.

ome states conviction for certain high disqualifies; some states require citip; others that jurors shall be selected the qualified voters; others impose of integrity, or intelligence or education of the county. Cond. Gen.

tion. Freehold or property tests are required in some states. That the jurors shall be over twenty-one years of age is probably a universal requirement; while in some states those past a certain age cannot serve; Proffatt, Jury Trial § 117.

In the federal courts the qualifications are the same as those relating to the highest courts of law in the respective states; U. S. R. S. § 800; but this does not require a minute adherence to the state practice; U. S. v. Collins, 1 Woods 499, Fed. Cas. No. 14,837, per Bradley, J. A statute confining the selection of jurors to white citizens is invalid under the fourteenth amendment; the right to serve on a jury is an incident of citizenship; Strauder v. West Virginia, 100 U. S. 303, 25 L. Ed. 664; Neal v. Delaware, 103 U. S. 370, 26 L. Ed. 567.

The intelligence and ability of a juror are matters within the sound discretion of the court, and it is sufficient if he knows the English language and can understand the testimony and the argument of counsel; State v. Casey, 44 La. Ann. 969, 11 South. 583. It rests with each state to prescribe such qualifications as it seems proper for jurymen, taking care only that no discrimination in respect to such service be made against any class of citizens solely because of their race; In re Shibuya Jugiro, 140 U. S. 291, 11 Sup. Ct. 770, 35 L. Ed. 510.

The passage of the Act of July 20, 1840, R. S. § 800, granting peremptory challenges to the government in criminal cases, has not taken away the right to conditional or qualified challenges when permitted in the state and adopted by the federal court by rule or by special order; Sawyer v. U. S., 202 U. S. 150, 26 Sup. Ct. 575, 50 L. Ed. 972, 6 Ann. Cas. 269, where it was held not unreasonable to permit jurors to be required to stand aside at the foot of the panel, it appearing that neither the government nor the defendant had exhausted all their peremptory charges when the jury was empanelled.

The selection of jurors is to be made impartially; and elaborate provisions are made to secure this impartiality. In general, a sufficient number are selected, from among the qualified citizens of the county or district, by the sheriff, or a similar executive officer of the court, and, in case of his disqualification, by the coroner, or, in some cases, by still other designated persons. See ELISOBS. From among these the requisite number is selected at the time of trial, to whom objection may be made by the parties.

Sir Matthew Hale says that the writ to return a jury issues to the sheriff who is entrusted to elect, and return the jury without the nomination of either party. The jurors were to be such persons as for estate and quality were fit to serve on that employment. They were to be of the neighborhood of the fact to be inquired, or at least of the county. Cond. Gen.

1098.

At common law jurors were selected, usually, by the sheriff or coroner. It is done in this country in various ways; by judges of election; by town authorities or by various officials or special boards or commissions. Statutory provisions as to the time and mode of selecting jurors are said to be usually directory only and need not be strictly complied with; Thomp. & Merr. Juries 44; but this is not the case with all such requirements.

In the federal courts the panel of jurors is selected by the clerk of the court and a commissioner appointed by the court, who must be taken from the opposite political party to that to which the clerk belongs; the clerk and the commissioner place names in the jury box alternately without regard to party affiliations. Any judge may order the names to be drawn from the boxes used by the state authorities in selecting jurors in the highest court of the state; no person may serve as a petit juror more than once in a year.

A juror is not disqualified by having formed or expressed an opinion from newspaper accounts where he testified that he could try the case solely on the evidence and would be governed by it; Dimmick v. U. S., 121 Fed. 638, 57 C. C. A. 664; nor is one incompetent merely because he had formed and expressed an opinion as to the guilt or innocence of a person jointly indicted with the defendant; Griggs v. U. S., 158 Fed. 572, 85 C. C. A. 596; Weston v. Com., 111 Pa. 251, 2 Atl. 191; State v. Bill, 15 La. Ann. 114.

Erroneously overruling challenge for cause is harmless error where peremptory challenges are not exhausted; Green v. State, 40 Fla. 191, 23 South. 851; or where the jury did not serve and the jury was not complete without exhausting peremptory challenges; State v. Nicholls, 50 La. Ann. 699, 23 South. 980. See CHALLENGE.

Summoning improper jurors, whether biased or otherwise, is a contempt of court on the part of the officer who does it; Richards v. U. S., 126 Fed. 105, 61 C. C. A. 161; and a challenge to the array will lie in such case; id.; Harjo v. U. S., 1 Okl. Cr. R. 590, 98 Pac. 1021, 20 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1013.

Exemption. Usually public officials are exempt; and persons engaged in various classes of occupations are often exempt; thus in New York, clergymen, physicians, lawyers, professors, and teachers, persons engaged in certain kinds of manufacturing, canal officials, those employed on steam vessels. employes of railroad and telegraph companies, members of the militia and fire department, etc. Exemption is only during actual employment; State v. Willard, 79 N. C. 660; and the right of exemption is a personal privilege and usually not a ground of challenge; Moore v. Cass, 10 Kan. 288; Davison v. People, 90 Ill. 221; or a disqualification; Breeding v. State, 11 Tex State v. Forshner, 43 N. H. 89, 80 An 132.

The members of an association for aid in the prosecution of a particula of offences, and those who are in syr with the association, and contribute for the purposes of its organization, a competent to sit as jurors on the trial indictment for an offence of the clathe prosecution of which the associatormed and the money contributed; S Moore, 48 La. Ann. 380, 19 South. 22 a suit against a beneficial association bership in the order does not disquadiuror, but only membership of the sued; Delaware Lodge No. 1, I. O.

Persons related within the prohibit gree to members of a mutual fire ins company are incompetent to serve as in an action against it; Moore v. Ins. 107 Ga. 199, 33 South. 65. A juror was disqualified at common

v. Allmon, 1 Pennewill (Del.) 160,

A juror was disqualified at common openly declaring his opinion that the was guilty; 2 Hawk. Pl. C. ch. 43, Yet if such declaration was made from knowledge of the case and not out oill-will to the party, it is no cause of lenge; 2 4d. § 28.

Where a statute disqualifies person

Where a statute disqualifies perso lated within certain degrees of affinity serving as jurors on the trial of a ca which their affinities are parties, huwhose wives are second cousins are infinites; Tegarden v. Phillips, 14 Ind 27, 42 N. E. 549.

In Tennessee it has been held that ute disqualifying from service, eith grand or petit juries, persons engage conspiracy against law and order is n constitutional; Jenkins v. State, 99 569, 42 S. W. 263. In this case the stat question was for the suppression of whe known as White Caps, and disqualifying duty all persons who had been of any offence under the statute. So similar disqualification of all persons ing the act for the suppression of polynomials.

was held valid; Clawson v. U. S., 114

477, 5 Sup. Ct. 949, 29 L. Ed. 179.

Swearing the jury. At common appears to have been the practice to each juryman as he is drawn and acc Joy, Conf. 220; State v. Potter, 18 Con The present practice is to swear the jury after the panel is completed. practice is lawful; People v. Reynol Cal. 128. It is not irregular to swear jurors when the court opens, to try sissues that may be brought before Thomp. & Merr. Juries 318; People bany Court of Common Pleas, 6 Wen.

Y.) 548. But this practice has bee approved of in criminal cases on the e salutary effect both on the prisoner he jury of the formality of administern oath in the presence of the prisoner; ey v. People, 22 Ill. 160. It is also coned the better practice in criminal cases we the panel full before the oath is nistered; Thomp. & Merr. Juries 319;

amor v. State, 9 Fla. 215.

impanelling and final acceptance of y by a court is a judicial determination the jurors are competent; and if anytion to the qualifications of a juror is n to a party before such determination, not be raised afterwards, unless on expon to the overruling of a challenge; ev. Scott, 56 Mich. 154, 22 N. W. 274.

after a jury is sworn, a juror becomes appetent, the entire jury should be disted; but if a juror never was competed; but if a juror never was competed; but if a juror may be sworn in his

; State v. Ronk, 91 Minn. 419, 98 N. W.

1 Cox C. C. 150, a juror became ill in idst of the trial, the jury was then disced, a new juror was drawn and the purors were resworn and the evidence itulated; so in De Berry v. State, 99. 207, 42 S. W. 31, as to either a civil or nal trial; to the same effect, State v. 3, 31 W. Va. 390, 7 S. E. 24. If a sworn becomes ill before the panel is made new juror may be selected; State v. la, 39 La. Ann. 868, 2 South. 814. If a becomes insane pending a criminal trice court should declare a mistrial and ed de novo; Dennis v. State, 96 Miss. South. 499, 25 L. R. A. (N. S.) 36.

e parties are entitled to fresh challenges ast the entire new jury; Turner v. Ter7, 15 Okl. 557, 82 Pac. 650; contra, State 83 Pac. 650; State v. Nash, 46 La. Ann. 194, 84 Pac. 607. See note to Dennis v. State, 85 Pac. A. (N. S.) 36.
85 Pac. 650; An attempt to ince a jury corruptly by promises, perons, entreaties, money, entertainments, the like is a misdemeanor at common State v. Brown, 95 N. C. 685; 2 Bish. . 384; Gibbs v. Dewey, 5 Cow. (N. Y.) Arguments of counsel in open court at rial of a cause are a legitimate use of ence and are not within this rule, but it d be a crime to take advantage of the rtunity afforded in order to influence the s corruptly; People v. Myers, 70 Cal. 12 Pac. 719. Where an attempt to ince a jury, amounting to embracery, is , it is immaterial whether they give verdict or not, and if they give a verdict, no defence that it is a true one. This e may be committed by a juror if he iptly attempts to influence other jurors; r. L. 326; or if he by indirect practices himself sworn on the tales to serve on dde; 1 Litt. 578.

Misconduct of jurors. The giving of testimony by a juror to his associates in the jury room is misconduct; Richards v. State, 36 Neb. 17, 53 N. W. 1027; Ellis v. State, 38 Tex. Cr. R. 508, 27 S. W. 135; but in order to obtain a new trial on the ground of misconduct, injury to the party must be shown; Medler v. State, 26 Ind. 171; State v. Cross, 95 Ia. 629, 64 N. W. 614; Com. v. Roby, 12 Pick. (Mass.) 496; a new trial was granted because a juror stated in the jury room that the defendant had hit the prosecutor on the head with an ax-handle on a former occasion; Mann v. State, 47 Tex. Cr. R. 250, 83 S. W. 195; but probably the granting or denial of a motion for a new trial for misconduct of the jury is largely in the discretion of the court; People v. Johnson, 110 N. Y. 134, 17 N. E. 684; Com. v. White, 147 Mass. 76, 16 N. E. 707.

Where each of the jurors set down the term of imprisonment and divided the sum by twelve, but did not agree in advance to be bound by the result, the verdict could not be questioned; McAnally v. State (Tex.) 57 S. W. 832.

As to the effect of improper influence on. or misconduct of, the jury, see New TRIAL. Separation during trial. At common law the jury was kept together until they had agreed upon their verdict. Even the right to adjourn a trial from day to day was doubted; 24 How. St. Tr. 414. At present jurors in civil cases are allowed to separate each day; and so in trials for misdemeanors, at the discretion of the court. In some cases also in trials for felony, even in capital cases. But in an able work the opinion is maintained that in cases of capital felonies the jury should not be allowed to separate, as: they were not at common law; Thomp. & Merr. Juries 367; but absolute isolation is not required; they may be kept under the charge of a sworn officer who shall exercise a reasonable oversight; id. 370. The officer in charge must be sworn; 2 Hale, P. C. 296; although if he be a sheriff or constable and ex officio in charge of the jury, he need not be specially sworn; Meyer v. Foster, 16 Wis.

The presence of a barber admitted to the jury room for the convenience of the jurors is not sufficient cause for setting aside the verdict; Com. v. Lombardi, 221 Pa. 31, 70 Atl. 122.

Where the jury is discharged by the court for having separated after being sworn, the trial is not a bar to a subsequent prosecution; State v. Costello, 11 La. Ann. 283; State v Hall, 9 N. J. L. 256; People v. Reagle, 60 Barb. (N. Y.) 527; Hilbert v. Com., 51 S. W. 817, 21 Ky. L. Rep. 537; Com. v. Roby, 12 Pick. (Mass.) 496; but where the jury, finding one of their number disqualified, dispersed without the knowledge of the court, the defendant was held to have been once in jeopardy and could not again be tried; Maden v. Emmons, 83 Ind. 331.

Affidavits of jurors will not be received to impeach a verdict; Thomp. & Merr. Juries 539, citing numerous cases; Croasdale v. Tantum, 6 Houst. (Del.) 218; People Azoff, 105 Cal. 632, 39 Pac. 59; Allison v. People, 45 Ill. 37. Nor will statements of third parties who derived their information from a member of the jury; Thomp. & Merr. Juries 547; Peterson v. Skjelver, 43 Neb. 663, 62 N. W. 43; State v. Schaefer, 116 Mo. 96, 22 S. W. 447.

The court may question the jury as to the grounds upon which they based their verdict, if there was more than one ground; Spoor v. Spooner, 12 Metc. (Mass.) 281. juryman may be heard to show misconduct on the part of third parties; Ritchie v. Holbrooke, 7 S. & R. (Pa.) 458; and jurymen should report to the court any attempt to influence them; Allison v. People, 45 Ill. 37. But affidavits appear to be admissible to impeach the verdict, in Tennessee; Joyce v. State, 7 Baxt. (Tenn.) 273; and to a certain extent in Iowa; Wright v. Telegraph Co., 20 Ia. 195; and Kansas; Johnson v. Husband, 22 Kan. 277; and to show that a verdict was decided by lot; Fain v. Goodwin, 35 Ark. 109.

Testimony or affidavits of jurors as to what occurred in the jury room are generally excluded; Woodward v. Leavitt, 107 Mass. 453, 9 Am. Rep. 49, and this rule has been followed to the extent of excluding even evidence of improper conduct—as that a juror had made material statements from his own knowledge; St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Ricketts, 96 Tex. 68, 70 S. W. 315; Price's Ex'r v. Warren, 1 Hen. & M. (Va.) 385; Clum v. Smith, 5 Hill (N. Y.) 560; Boetge v. Landa, 22 Tex. 105; contra, State v. Burton, 65 Kan. 704, 70 Pac. 640.

The admission of affidavits of jurymen to the fact that they have not been influenced by newspaper articles is immaterial, if a motion for a new trial is rightly overruled on other grounds; Spreckels v. Brown, 212 U. S. 208, 29 Sup. Ct. 256, 53 L. Ed. 476.

Jurors are competent witnesses, in a proceeding in equity to remedy a mistake made by the foreman in announcing the verdict, to prove that the verdict read out in court was not their verdict, but the result of an oversight; Hamburg-Bremen Fire Ins. Co. v. Mfg. Co., 76 Fed. 479, 22 C. C. A. 283.

Proceedings apart from the jury. There is no settled rule that arguments as to the admissibility of evidence should be conducted apart from the jury in criminal cases; Mose v. State, 36 Ala. 211; contra, White v. State, 10 Tex. App. 381; it is in the discretion of the court, and no exception lies in either case; State v. Wood, 53 N. H. 484; State v. Moore, 104 N. C. 743, 10 S. E. 183; Com. v. Rogers, 181 Mass. 184, 63 N. E. 421; Lewis Jurors would be too apt to rely on

v. State, 85 Miss. 35, 37 South. 497; Po State, 45 Tex. Cr. R. 348, 76 S. W. 565; gers v. State, 38 Fla. 7, 20 South. 758 deciding the question, the court may its reasons in the hearing of the jury; terson v. State, 86 Ga. 70, 12 S. E. 17 was held that in a murder trial the jury be required to retire during the argume such questions; Kraner v. State, 61 158; but in another such case it was error for the court to exclude the jury ing argument on the law by defend counsel; Patterson v. State (Tex.) W. 557.

Where confessions are offered, the pr nary inquiry may be conducted in the ence of the jury or not, in the discret the judge; Lefevre v. State, 50 Ohio S 35 N. E. 52; State v. Kelly, 28 Or. 2 Pac. 217, 52 Am. St. Rep. 777; such in was held to be properly conducted i presence of the jury in Holsenbake v. 45 Ga. 43; Shepherd v. State, 31 Net 47 N. W. 1118; contra, Hall v. State, 6 36; Carter v. State, 37 Tex. 362; and after proper preliminary examination, have been admitted, there is no roo question touching the propriety of co ing the examination in the presence of jury, but it has been held that it mus be in the presence of the jury if the cused so request; Ellis v. State, 65 44, 3 South. 188, 7 Am. St. Rep. 634.

Expert evidence. In respect of que upon which men of ordinary observation experience have some practical know of their own, jurors are not dependent the opinions of experts even though would be assisted by them, since the expected to apply their own observatio experience of the affairs of life to th dence in forming their conclusions; bridge v. McCann, 117 Mich. 84, 75 288, 41 L. R. A. 381, 72 Am. St. Rep McGarrahan v. R. Co., 171 Mass. 211, E. 610; State v. R. Co., 86 Me. 309, 2 1086; Jamieson v. Oil Co., 128 Ind. 5 N. E. 76, 12 L. R. A. 652; Chicago, St. P. R. Co. v. Moore, 166 Fed. 663, C. A. 357, 23 L. R. A. (N. S.) 962, many other cases are collected.

See EXPERTS.

Jurors taking notes. Jurors may no notes of the testimony of witnesses fresh their memories in consultation their fellow jurors; Com. v. Wilson, Dist. Ct. 48, where Wiltbank, J., an e enced trial judge, directed notes so tal be surrendered and sealed and return the jurymen after the trial. The reas this rule is said to be that "the jury s not be allowed to take evidence with to their room except in their memor can make no difference whether the are written by a juror or by some one se turn on a part only of the facts;"

v. State, 35 Ind. 492; Batterson v.

63 Ind. 531; Long v. State, 95 Ind. Where a justice of the peace, at the of the jury after they had retired, hem without the consent of the pareversed on certiorari, and this action firmed by the supreme court; Neil v. 4 Wend. (N. Y.) 185. re a juror on a trial for murder for weeks openly took notes of the testiit was held that it did not as a matter require the setting aside of the ver-Com. v. Tucker, 189 Mass. 457, 76 N. 7 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1056; and in civil ome courts permit counsel to request ry to take notes of a particular fact culation, though they cannot be reto comply; Tift v. Towns, 63 Ga. 237; apolis & St. L. R. Co. v. Miller, 71 Ill. ut generally note-taking by jurors is in a murder trial the verdict will set aside if it does not affirmatively that neither the defendant nor his had knowledge of it, as consent is case presumed from failure to object; v. Robinson, 117 Mo. 649, 23 S. W.

red an improper practice, though it is

l by statute in some states; U.S. v.

103 Fed. 457; Cowles v. Hayes, 71 N. ; Thomas v. State, 90 Ga. 437, 16 S.

ng a view. Where a jury is called assess the value of land, the imprescquired by the jury after a view are ent evidence; Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Farwell, 59 Neb. 544, 81 N. W. 440; v. City of Boston, 15 Pick. (Mass.) city of Springfield v. Dalby, 139 Ill. N. E. 860; Tully v. R. Co., 134 Mass. lough it has been held that the view effectual for the application of evigiven in court; Machader v. Williams, o St. 344, 43 N. E. 324; and it is statt this restriction is imposed where the for any other purpose than the mere on of the land; Wright v. Carpenter, L 607; but this limitation upon the I rule has been considered to be withundation; 13 Harv. L. R. 692.

ome cases, where a jury is authorized rial before a justice of the peace, it en held to be no more than a body erees and not a true jury trial, and re the case could be tried by another the superior court; Capital Traction Hof, 174 U.S. 1, 19 Sup. Ct. 580, 43 873.

province of the jury is to determine th of the facts in dispute in civil cas-I the guilt or innocence of the person d in criminal cases. Thorn. Jur. § 133.

be imperfectly written and thus make ince, their verdict may be set aside; 4 Maule & S. 192; 3 B. & C. 357; 2 Price 282; Ex parte Baily, 2 Cow. (N. Y.) 479; Hall v. Huse. 10 Mass. 39.

The question whether the jury are judges of the law as well as of the fact, or whether it is the function of the court conclusively to s minutes of the trial, the judgment instruct the jury upon the law, particularly in criminal cases, has been very much discussed from the earliest times and was the subject of critical examination by the United States supreme court; Sparf v. U. S., 156 U. S. 51, 15 Sup. Ct. 273, 39 L. Ed. 343. See in-

> Coke says: "As the jury may, as often as they think fit, find a general verdict, I therefore think it unquestionable that they so far may decide upon the law as well as fact, such a verdict naturally involving both. In this I have the authority of Littleton himself, who hereafter writes, 'that if the inquest will take upon themselves the knowledge of the law upon the matter, they may give their verdict generally."

> He further says in substance: "Questions of law generally and more properly belong to the judges. The immediate and direct right of declaring upon questions of law is entrusted to the judges; that in the jury is only incidental." Co. Litt. 156 a, n. (5).

> Though the question had not, until more recently, been the subject of a direct decision of the United States supreme court, it had frequently arisen in England and America. In the former country, in the case of the Dean of St. Asaph, the court alluded to the admission by both parties of an ancient rule of the common law that the law should be determined by the court and the facts by the jury; but they differed as to what was law and what fact, it being contended on one side that the question of guilt in a libel case, after the fact of publication and truth of the innuendoes are found by the jury, was a question of law, and on the other side that the guilt of the defendant was a question of fact. This concurrence of views on the point in question "affords strong proof that, up to the period of our separation from England, the fundamental definition of trials by jury depended on the universal maxim, without an exception, ad quæstionem facti respondent juratores, ad quæstionem juris respondent judices."

The doctrine that a jury may disregard the law as declared by the court finds its principal, original support in Bushell's case, Vaughan 135, where the question was on habeas corpus whether jurors were liable to be fined and imprisoned for nonpayment of fine for having found a general verdict in opposition to the instructions of the court. Vaughan, C. J., held that because a general verdict of necessity resolves "both law and fact complicately and not the fact by itself," it could not be proved that the jurors did HARGE. If they go beyond their prov- not proceed upon their view of the evidence. This line of argument is implicitly relied upon by tne advocates of the extreme right of the jury, but has been rightly characterized as narrow; though conclusive in the case to which it related; U. S. v. Morris, 1 Curt. C. C. 23, Fed. Cas. No. 15,815; Hallam, Const. Hist. c. 13; Com. v. Anthes, 5 Gray (Mass.) The line of argument in the English case, taken together with the criticisms upon it, well illustrate the difficulties of the subject which arise necessarily in every case which is submitted to a jury upon mixed questions of law and fact. However frankly it may be stated that the jury are bound by the views of the law delivered to them by the court, the obligation to accept those views is rather moral than susceptible of rigid practical enforcement. Early English cases supporting the doctrine that the jury are judges of the fact and not of the law are, 1 Plowd. 111; id. 233; 2 id. 493; 2 Stra. 766; Lord Hardwicke said: "The thing that governs greatly in this determination is, that the point of the law is not to be determined by juries; juries have a power by law to determine matters of fact only; and it is of the greatest consequence to the law of England and to the subject, that these powers of the judge and the jury are kept distinct; that the judge determine the law, and the jury the fact; and if ever they come to be confounded, it will prove the confusion and destruction of the law of England." temp. Hardwicke 23. Foster, after stating the rule that the ascertainment of all the facts is the province of the jury, says: "For the construction the law putteth upon facts stated and agreed, or found by a jury is in this, as in all other cases, undoubtedly the proper province of the court." And he adds that in cases of difficulty, a special verdict is usually found, but where the law is clear, the jury, under the direction of the court as to the law, may and, if well advised, always will find a general verdict conformably to such direction; Fost. Cr. L., 3d ed. 255. To the same effect, it has been urged, is the settled current of English authority; Wynne's Eunomus, Dial. III. §§ 53, 523; 1 Steph. Hist. Cr. L. 551; 2 Hawk. P. C. c. 22, § 21; 3 Term 428; 4 Bing. 195; 8 C. & P. 94; contra, Vaughan 135; 4 B. & Ald. 145.

The question arose most frequently in England in connection with prosecutions for libel, and it was contended that Fox's Libel Act changed the common-law rule, but this was not the case. In a leading case arising under that act, it was held that it was for the judge to define the offence and then for the jury to say whether the publication under consideration was within that definition; 6 M. & W. 104 (see as to this case, Sparf v. U. S., 156 U. S. 97, 15 Sup. Ct. 273, 39 L. Ed. 343; U. S. v. Morris, 1 Curt. C. C. 55, Fed. Cas. No. 15,815); 2 Jur. 137. In the House of Lords the unanimous opinion of the judges was given by Tindal, C. J., in answer to a Am. Rep. 787; but this unqualified s question whether, if a fine were reevidence, it ought to be left to the say whether it barred an action of q pedit, that "the judge who tried t should state to the jury whether in law the fine had that effect, or wh effect on the rights of the litigant upon the general and acknowledged ad quæstionem juris non responde tores." 4 Cl. & Fin. 445. In state courts it has been held well-settled principle, lying at the fo of jury trials, admitted and recogni since jury trial had been adopted a tablished and settled mode of proc courts of justice, that it was the pro ince and duty of judges to consider cide all questions of law, and th province and duty of the jury tall questions of fact;" Com. v. A Gray (Mass.) 185; Pierce v. State, 536; Hamilton v. People, 29 Mich. 1 ple v. Anderson, 44 Cal. 65; State v. 65 Vt. 1, 34, 25 Atl. 964, 19 L. R. A Am. St. Rep. 775 (overruling State v. 23 Vt. 14, 54 Am. Dec. 90, and ev which followed it); Montee v. Com Marsh. (Ky.) 132. The citations incl civil and criminal cases. There und exists a power in the jury to ove law as declared by the court and their action effective by an acquit criminal case which cannot be s This thought has received frequen sion from judges and courts of grea ity. "The unquestionable power of find general verdicts, involving both fact, furnishes the foundation for ion that they are judges of the law, s of the facts, and gives some plaus that opinion. They are not, however pelled to decide legal questions, ha right to find special verdicts, gi facts, and leaving the legal con which result from such facts, to t When they find general verdicts, I to their duty to be governed by the ins of the court as to all legal questions in such verdicts. They have the pov otherwise, but the exercise of suc cannot be regarded as rightful, alth law has provided no means, in crimis of reviewing their decisions whether or fact, or of ascertaining the groun

People, 26 N. Y. 588; see also People negan, 1 Park. Cr. Cas. (N. Y.) 147. sylvania there has been, in some case strong expression of the idea that inal cases the juries are judges of th well as of the fact. This was very stated by Sharswood, C. J., who said power of the jury to judge of the criminal case was one of the most securities guaranteed by the bill of Pennsylvania; Kane v. Com., 89 Pa which their verdicts are based;"

of both law and fact; for your veras in civil cases, must pass on law and ogether. If you acquit, you interpose a bar to a second prosecution, no matter entirely your verdict may have been in ition to the views expressed by the It is important for you to this distinction in mind, remembering while you have the physical power, by quittal, to discharge a defendant from er prosecution, you have no moral powdo so against the law laid down by the ... For your part, your duty is eive the law, for the purposes of this from the court. If an error injurious prisoner occurs, it will be rectified by vision of the court in banc. But an ersulting from either a conviction or acl, against the law, can never be recti-In the first case, an unnecessary stigma ked to the character of a man who was nilty of the offence with which he is ed. In the second case, a serious injury cted by the arbitrary and irremediable rge of a guilty man. You will see from considerations the great importance of reservation, in criminal as well as in cases, of the maxim that the law beto the court and the facts to the jury." er expressions substantially to the effect are: "If the evidence on these fail the prisoner, the conclusion of his will be irresistible, and it will be your to draw it;" Gibson, C. J., in Com. v. an, 4 Pa. 269.

e court had an undoubted right to inthe jury as to the law, and to warn as they did against finding contrary to his is very different from telling them they must find the defendant guilty, is what is meant by a binding instrucn criminal cases;" Nicholson v. Com., . 503. In Com. v. McManus, 143 Pa. 64, l. 1018, 22 Atl. 761, 14 L. R. A. 89, it neld "that the statement by the court he best evidence of the law within the of the jury, and that the jury should ided by what the court said as to the and this, Paxson, C. J., speaking for ourt, declared to be in harmony with ise in which is found the expression of wood, C. J., supra.

this case Mr. Justice Mitchell filed a ous concurring opinion in which he "Upon one point I would go further ut an end once for all to a doctrine that ard as unsound in every point of view, ical, logical, or technical. . . . The are not judges of the law in any case, r criminal; neither at common law, nor sustained by the leading cases in that ren growth and arises undoubtedly from a In Com. v. Sherry, reported in Whart. (App.) 481, Rogers, J., said: "You are, right to return a general verdict, especially true, judges in a criminal case, in one in libel cases, which ended in Fox's Bill." He then considers the question historically, and on the authorities, and says that there is not a single respectable English authority for the doctrine, and that, against a "solid phalanx" of American authorities, there is but a single authority in its favor (State v. Croteau, 23 Vt. 14, 54 Am. Dec. 90), which was by a divided bench (and which has been since overruled; State v. Burpee, 65 Vt. 1, 25 Atl. 964, 19 L. R. A. 145, 36 Am. St. Rep. 775, supra). He concludes that "the jury were never judges of the law in any case, civil or criminal, except as involved in the mixed determination of law and fact by a general verdict." In an annotation of the case in State v. Burpee, 65 Vt. 1, 25 Atl. 964, 19 L. R. A. 145, 36 Am. St. Rep. 775, which overruled what is here characterized as practically the only authority in support of the doctrine, it is said: "The ghost of the doctrine that juries in criminal cases are to judge of the law as well as the facts would seem to be effectually laid by the above decision. . . That solitary authority (State v. Croteau, 23 Vt. 14, 54 Am. Dec. 90), which has often been attacked and discredited, is now by the case above reported completely overruled."

In the federal courts, prior to the direct decision of the supreme court already referred to, the question had been frequently examined. The most elaborate discussion of the subject was by Mr. Justice Curtis, whose opinion is very much relied upon by the supreme court. His conclusion was "that when the constitution of the United States was founded, it was a settled rule of the common law that, in criminal as well as in civil cases, the court decided the law, and the jury the facts; and it cannot be doubted that this must have an important effect in determining what is meant by the constitution when it adopts a trial by jury." U. S. v. Morris, 1 Curt. C. C. 23, Fed. Cas. No. 15,815. Mr. Justice Field said (charging a jury) in U. S. v. Greathouse, 4 Sawy. 457, Fed. Cas. No. 15,-254: "There prevails a very general, but an erroneous, opinion that in all criminal cases the jury are the judges as well of the law as of the fact—that is, that they have the right to disregard the law as laid down by the court, and to follow their own notions on the subject. Such is not the right of the jury." "It is their duty to take the law from the court and apply it to the facts of the case. It is the province of the court, and of the court alone, to determine all questions of law arising in the progress of a trial; and it is the province of the jury to pass upon the evidence and determine all contested questions of fact. The responsibility of deciding corthe constitution of Pennsylvania, is the rectly as to the law rests solely with the mination of the law any part of their court, and the responsibility of finding coror their right. The notion is of mod- rectly the facts rests solely with the jury."

To the same effect are U.S. v. Battiste, 2 | Sumn. 240, Fed. Cas. No. 14,545; U. S. v. Riley, 5 Blatchf. 204, Fed. Cas. No. 16,164; Stettinius v. U. S., 5 Cra. C. C. 573, Fed. Cas. No. 13,387; U. S. v. Keller, 19 Fed. 633.

The authorities which have been sometimes relied upon to support the contrary view are Georgia v. Brailsford, 3 Dall. (U. S.) 1, 1 L. Ed. 483; 1 Burr's Trial 470; 2 id. 422; Whart. St. Tr. 48, 84; Chase's Trial App. 44. These authorities received a very critical examination both by Mr. Justice Curtis in U. S. v. Morris, 1 Curt. C. C. 23, Fed. Cas. No. 15,815, and by Mr. Justice Harlan, who delivered the opinion of the court in Sparf v. U. S., 156 U. S. 51, 15 Sup. Ct. 273, 39 L. Ed. 343; and in the dissenting opinion of Mr. Justice Gray (and except by the latter) they were not considered, when properly read, as sustaining the view in support of which they are usually cited. The opinion of Mr. Justice Harlan, last referred to, contains a full discussion of the subject, and in it will be found most of the authorities herein cited. It was held that where there was no evidence upon which the jury could properly find the defendant guilty of an offence included in it less than the one charged, it is not error to instruct them that they cannot return the verdict of any lesser offence. In support of the rule laid down in this decision, see also Cooley, Const. Lim. 323; 1 Greenl. Ev. § 49; Thomp. Tr. § 1016; and the valuable note by Dr. Wharton in 1 Cr. L. Mag. 51. By way of explanation of some of the expressions so much relied upon in support of a contrary view, Mr. Justice Harlan in his opinion referred to, supra, says: "The language of some judges and statesmen in the early history of the country, implying that the jury were entitled to disregard the law as expounded by the court, is, perhaps, to be explained by the fact that 'in many of the states the arbitrary temper of the colonial judges, holding office directly from the crown, had made the independence of the jury in law as well as in fact of much popular importance.' Whart. Cr. Pl. & Pr., 8th ed. 806; Williams v. State, 32 Miss. 389, 396, 66 Am. Dec. 615."

The argument for the right of the jury to decide the law in criminal cases has been most recently fully presented in the dissenting opinion of Mr. Justice Gray, with whom concurred Mr. Justice Shiras, in Sparf v. U. S., supra. In this opinion, from a long and careful examination of the authorities, the conclusion is thus stated: "It is our deep and settled conviction, confirmed by a reexamination of the authorities under the responsibility of taking part in the consideration and decision of the capital case now before the court, that the jury, upon the general issue of guilty or not guilty in a criminal case, have the right, as well as the power, to decide, according to their own judgment and consciences, all questions, whether cases are examined at length and t of law or of fact, involved in that is may be noted that of three cases cite opinion as containing the ablest discr the subject on both sides, and tal same view as that advocated by Mr Gray, two opinions, those of Chancel and Mr. Justice Thomas in favor of t were also dissenting opinions and Judge Hall, of Vermont, on the otl the only one of the three which wa thority, has lately been overruled, a supra. The English authorities are ly discussed, and much attention is cases which are claimed as author favor of the views presented which ready been cited, supra, and of whi who argue against the right of the decide the law, question either the ity or the application. The contentio dissenting opinion is that the resul English authorities is in favor of mate right of the jury to decide the withstanding the instructions of th and that the earlier American author to the same effect. It is admitted that later American cases, "the general of decision in this country has been the right of the jury, as well as in th of the several states, including mar where the right was once established the circuit courts of the United Stat current has been so strong that in M setts, where counsel are admitted to right to argue the law to the jury, it been held that the jury have no rigi cide it, and it has also been held, b jority of the court, that the legislatu not constitutionally confer upon the right to determine, against the inst of the court, questions of law involve general issue in criminal cases; and gia and in Louisiana, a general prothe constitution of the state, declar in criminal cases the jury shall be j the law and fact,' has been held no thorize them to decide the law aga instructions of the court. . . . B the question of the true meaning and the constitution of the United States respect, opinions expressed more tha eration after the adoption of the con have far less weight than the almost mous voice of earlier and nearly co raneous judicial declarations and usage." Sparf v. U. S., 156 U. S. 51 Sup. Ct. 273, 39 L. Ed. 343.

A statute which provided that the should state its opinion to the jury questions of law arising in the tri criminal case and submit to their co tion both the law and fact without rection how to find their verdict did r the jury judges of the law as well a facts, and it was their bounden duty t the law as stated by the court; State non, 75 Conn. 206, 52 Atl. 727, wl n Sparf v. U. S., 156 U. S. 51, 15 Sup. | 25 Atl. 834. Where it is shown by an open 3, 39 L. Ed. 343, supra, are referred to vering the whole range of the contro-The other cases cited in the Conut case in support of this view are Mansfield, in 3 Term 428; Story, J., in v. Battiste, 2 Sumn. 240, Fed. Cas. No. ; Shaw, C. J., in Com. v. Porter, 10 (Mass.) 263; Curtis, J., in U. S. v. Mor-Curtis 23, Fed. Cas. No. 15,815; Selden, Duffy v. People, 26 N. Y. 588; State v. , 6 R. I. 33; Hamilton v. People, 29 173; State v. Burpee, 65 Vt. 1, 25 Atl. 9 L. R. A. 145, 36 Am. St. Rep. 775.

ecting the verdict. The most frequent ssion of the rule is that, where there evidence tending to prove the facts by the party who sustains the burden of, the court is bound, on request, to the jury to return a verdict for the te party; Charles v. Patch, 87 Mo. 462. e other hand, where there is any evitending to prove such facts, the court t so direct the verdict, but must subhe evidence to the jury and leave it m to determine whether it is sufficient t end; Dow v. Chandler, 85 Mo. 247; p. Tr. § 2245.

en the testimony is all in one direcor when all the evidence for the plainas been given, and it has no tendency ver to prove the particular issue relied recover, and there is no question in l to the credibility of the witnesses ave given the evidence, the court may nine the whole case as a question of Boland v. R. Co., 36 Mo. 491; Vinton wab, 32 Vt. 612.

s only where the evidence, with all nd legitimate inferences, and viewed e most favorable light, is insufficient stify a verdict for the plaintiff, that ourt may direct a verdict for the dent; Pullman Palace Car Co. v. Laack, l. 242, 32 N. E. 285, 18 L. R. A. 215; r v. R. Co., 52 Fed. 87; Leiser v. Kieck-95 Wis. 4, 69 N. W. 979. A federal may direct a verdict for either party ever, under the state of the evidence, it be compelled to set aside one returne other way; Monroe v. Ins. Co., 52 777, 3 C. C. A. 280. Where, from the ony before the jury, different minds draw different conclusions, it is error ect a verdict; Eisenlord v. Clum, 67 518, 22 N. Y. Supp. 574; Des Jardins om Co., 95 Mich. 140, 54 N. W. 718. the right of recovery depends on ons of fact, there must be a submisthe jury; Heere v. Bank, 160 Pa. 314, l. 688. A direction to find for the deat was held proper, in an action st a railroad for interference with the iff's business, where no evidence was i showing the injury caused by such statement of counsel for the plaintiff that the contract on which the suit is brought is void, the court may direct the jury to find a verdict for the defendant; Oscanyan v. Arms Co., 103 U. S. 261, 26 L. Ed. 539. There can be no serious doubt but that the court can at any time direct the jury when the facts are undisputed, and that the jury should follow such direction; id.

A court may withdraw a case from a jury and direct a verdict where evidence is undisputed or is so conclusive that the court in the exercise of a sound judicial discretion would be compelled to set aside a verdict returned in opposition to it; Delaware L. & W. R. Co. v. Converse, 139 U. S. 469, 11 Sup. Ct. 569, 35 L. Ed. 213; Anderson County v. Beal, 113 U. S. 227, 5 Sup. Ct. 433, 28 L. Ed. 966; Randall v. R. Co., 109 U. S. 478, 3 Sup. Ct. 322, 27 L. Ed. 1003; though jurors are the recognized triors of the facts and cases are not lightly to be taken from them, particularly the question of negligence, and where the jury had reasonable ground to infer it, the question should be left to them; Marande v. R. Co., 184 U. S. 173, 22 Sup. Ct. 340, 46 L. Ed. 487.

For a clear statement of the doctrine of peremptory instructions, as laid down by Mr. Justice Harlan, see Instructions. See also CHARGE; VERDICT.

Coercion of juries. Any communication of the judge to the jury after they have retired except in open court is improper; Sargent v. Roberts, 1 Pick. (Mass.) 337, 11 Am. Dec. 185; Texas Midland R. Co. v. Byrd, 102 Tex. 263, 115 S. W. 1163, 20 L. R. A. (N. S.) 429, 20 Ann. Cas. 137; so if the judge entered the jury room, it is reversible error; State v. Murphy, 17 N. D. 48, 115 N. W. 84, 17 L. R. A. (N. S.) 609, 16 Ann. Cas. 1133; Abbott v. Hockenberger, 31 Misc. 587, 65 N. Y. Supp. 566; Du Cate v. Brighton, 133 Wis. 628, 114 N. W. 103; or sends additional instructions without the consent of or notice to parties or counsel; Read v. City of Cambridge, 124 Mass. 567, 26 Am. Rep. 690; Quinn v. State, 130 Ind. 340, 30 N. E. 300; Fox v. Peninsular White Lead Works, 84 Mich. 676, 48 N. W. 203; in some cases a new trial was refused because no prejudice resulted, but the practice was disapproved: Galloway v. Corbitt, 52 Mich. 460, 18 N. W. 218; Moseley v. Washburn, 165 Mass. 417, 43 N. E. 182; State v. Olds, 106 Ia. 110, 76 N. W. 644. Some cases hold that no consent will be implied but must be affirmatively shown; Taylor v. Betsford, 13 Johns. (N. Y.) 487; Jones v. Johnson, 61 Ind. 257; in other cases consent has been presumed; Henlow v. Leonard, 7 Johns. (N. Y.) 200. See a note on the subject generally, State v. Murphy, 17 L. R. A. (N. S.) 609.

Where the action of the trial judge and erence; Baird v. R. R., 154 Pa. 463, his remarks to the jury, when from time to time they are brought before him stating their inability to agree, amounts to coercion, the verdict must be set aside; People v. Sheldon, 156 N. Y. 268, 50 N. E. 840, 41 L. R. A. 644, 66 Am. St. Rep. 564, where Parker, C. J., discusses the subject at large.

Where the state court has the rigi

It is within the discretion of the trial judge to recall a jury for inquiry as to their difficulty and for further instructions if deemed advisable, but it is not permissible to inquire in what proportion they are divided, and any instructions in respect to their duty to agree should be carefully guarded, so as not to press that duty unduly upon the minority; Lake Erie & W. R. Co. v. Craig, 80 Fed. 496, 25 C. C. A. 585.

At common law the coercion of juries was both usual and proper; Proff. Jury Trials § 475; and they were kept together practically as prisoners until agreement; Thomp. & Mer. Juries § 310; but that custom no longer obtains; Physioc v. Shea, 75 Ga. 466; and it is settled law that the court may advise the jury to agree but should not threaten long confinement; Phænix Ins. Co. v. Moog, 81 Ala. 335, 1 South. 108; Terre Haute & I. R. Co. v. Jackson, 81 Ind. 19; East Tennessee & W. N. C. R. Co. v. Winters, 85 Tenn. 240, 1 S. W. 790; Slater v. Mead, 53 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 57; State v. Grizzard, 89 N. C. 115; but it is not error for the judge to refer to the length of the term and add that he will give them plenty of time to consider and direct their proper accommodation; Osborne v. Wilkes, 108 N. C. 653, 13 S. E. 285. It is also held that any language used by the bailiff in charge tending to coercion will be a ground for a new trial; Cole v. Swan, 4 G. Greene (Iowa) 32; Obear v. Gray, 68 Ga. 182; but a mere jesting remark of the bailiff will not be sufficient to require a new trial, although taken seriously by some of the jury; Pope v. State, 36 Miss. 121; where it does not appear that any prejudice resulted; Darling v. R. Co., 17 R. I. 708, 24 Atl. 462, 16 L. R. A. 643, and note.

The removal of a case from the consideration of a jury, in criminal cases, can only take place by consent of the prisoner; 6 C. & P. 151; 5 Cox, Cr. Cas. 501; State v. Slack, 6 Ala. 676; or by some necessity; Wright v. State, 5 Ind. 290, 61 Am. Dec. 90; McCauley v. State, 26 Ala. 135; Poage v. State, 3 Ohio St. 239; Williams v. Com., 2 Gratt. (Va.) 570, 44 Am. Dec. 403; Reynolds v. State, 8 Ga. 60; so as to compel the prisoner to be tried again for the same offence; 4 Bla. Com. 360. But where such necessity exists as would make such a course highly conducive to purposes of justice; U.S. v. Coolidge, 2 Gall. 364, Fed. Cas. No. 14,858; Com. v. Cook, 6 S. & R. (Pa.) 586, 9 Am. Dec. 465; 2 D. & B. 166; People v. Goodwin, 18 Johns. (N. Y.) 205, 9 Am. Dec. 203; Com. v. Fells, 9 Leigh (Va.) 620; 13 Q. B. 784; it may take place.

charge a jury for want of agreen result is a mistrial and the accuse on a subsequent trial interpose the once in jeopardy; Keerl v. State of 213 U. S. 135, 29 Sup. Ct. 469, 53 L. where the question was suggested by cided whether the fourteenth amenitself forbids a state from putting of citizens in a second jeopardy.

In a criminal case, the court has withdraw a juror, but this action the sound discretion of the court a be exercised only in very extraording triking circumstances in order to the failure of justice; State v. Lew J. L. 161, 83 Atl. 692.

The question of necessity seems the decision of the court which case; State v. Updike, 4 Harr. (D

Hurley v. State, 6 Ohio 399; People

13 Wend. (N. Y.) 55; U. S. v. Wheat. (U. S.) 579, 6 L. Ed. 165. I Cox, Cr. Cas. 210; 13 Q. B. 734; V. State, 5 Ind. 292, 61 Am. Dec. 90. At tion has been taken in some cases felonies and misdemeanors in this 3 D. & B. 115; U. S. v. Gibert, 2 S Fed. Cas. No. 15,204; State v. H. 74 N. C. 391; but is of doubtful People v. Goodwin, 18 Johns. (N. Y Am. Dec. 203; Com. v. Bowden, 9 M Com. v. Olds, 5 Litt. (Ky.) 137; M v. State, 26 Ala. 135; Campbell v. 6 Gs. 353.

Among cases of necessity which h held sufficient to warrant the discha jury without releasing the prisoner ness of the judge; Nugent v. State, & P. (Ala.) 72, 24 Am. Dec. 746; Farrow, 8 Bax. (Tenn.) 571; or of l State v. Tatman, 59 Ia. 471, 13 N. sickness; Com. v. Clue, 3 Rawle (P 2 Mood. & R. 249; 3 Crawf. & D. Thach. Cr. Cas. 1; Mixon v. State, 129, 28 Am. Rep. 695; State v. Emer 84, 7 Atl. 129; or other incapacity of U. S. v. Morris, 1 Curt. 23, Fed. Cas. 815; People v. Damon, 13 Wend. 351; Stone v. People, 3 Scam. (I Poage v. State, 3 Ohio St. 239; Dil Com., 12 Gratt. (Va.) 689, 65 Am. I but see 8 B. & C. 417; 8 Ad. & E. 83 low v. State, 2 Blackf. (Ind.) 114; Jones, 1 Leigh (Va.) 599; State v. N. J. L. 256; death of a juror's wife ber of Commerce Bldg. Co. v. Kluss Oh. Cir. Ct. 728; sickness of the 1 2 C. & P. 413; State v. Wiseman, 203; Lee v. State, 26 Ark. 260, 7 A 611; or the death or insanity of a juror; People v. Webb, 38 Cal. 467; v. State, 32 Ind. 480; expiration of of court; State v. Moor, Walk. (Mi 12 Am. Dec. 541; Lore v. State, 4 A

State v. M'Lemore, 2 Hill (S. C.)

ability of the jury to agree; People

Johns. Cas. (N. Y.) 275; Com. v. Pur2 Pick. (Mass.) 521, 13 Am. Dec. 452;
y v. State, 6 Ohio 399; U. S. v. Perez, 9
L. (U. S.) 579, 6 L. Ed. 165; Rollins v.
g, 53 Minn. 232, 54 N. W. 1118; Pierce te, 67 Ind. 354; State v. Allen, 47 Conn.
State v. Blackman, 35 La. Ann. 483;
v. Washington, 90 N. C. 664; Kelly v.
27 Fed. 616; contra, Com. v. Cook,
R. 577, 9 Am. Dec. 465 (a leading case, lghman, C. J.); McCauley v. State, 26 35; 3 Crawf. & D. 212; L. R. 1 Q. B.
com. v. Fitzpatrick, 121 Pa. 109, 15 Atl.
L. R. A. 451, 6 Am. St. Rep. 757. But te v. Com., 7 Gratt. (Va.) 662.

com. v. Clue, 3 Rawle (Pa.) 498, Gib. J., held that mere inability to agree sufficient to justify discharge, nor the of two jurymen if it can be relieved mitting them to have refreshments. he states, statutes have provided for a rge upon a disagreement; Lee v. State, t. 260, 7 Am. Rep. 611; Crookham v. 5 W. Va. 510; Ex parte McLaughlin, 211, 10 Am. Rep. 272.

r a jury has been sworn, but before dence has been begun, a juror may be rged and another juror called, this by consent of counsel for the accused; v. State, 52 Neb. 389, 72 N. W. 354. , in a felony case, the greater part of idence had been heard and a juror scharged for illness and another one uted and the evidence was then heard o, it was held no ground for a new State v. Davis, 31 W. Va. 390, 7 S. E. , in a felony case, a juror becomes intated by illness, a mistrial should be ed and the case be tried de novo; . State, 42 Fla. 244, 28 South. 430. fficiency of the evidence to convict;

984; Andrews v. Hammond, 8 Blackf. 540; Klock v. People, 2 Park. Cr. Cas. ) 676; U. S. v. Shoemaker, 2 McLean ed. Cas. No. 16,279; and sickness or incapacity of a witness; 1 Crawf. & 1; 1 Mood. 186; are not sufficient ties to warrant the discharge of a See Com. v. Wade, 17 Pick. (Mass.) J. S. v. Coolidge, 2 Gall. 364, Fed. Cas. 858; 2 Benn. & H. L. Cr. Cas. 337. Is within the discretion of the trial to refuse to discharge the jury until to refuse to discharge the jury until rrive at a verdict; Wilson v. Ry. Co., 127, 20 N. Y. Supp. 852. A jury may harged from giving any verdict, whence court is of the opinion that there anifest necessity for the act, or that is of public justice would otherwise beed, and may even order a trial before r jury, and a defendant is not thereby put in jeopardy; Thompson v. U. S., S. 271, 15 Sup. Ct. 73, 39 L. Ed. 146. In a jury in a criminal case is disd during the trial, and the defendant jury, he is not thereby twice put in jeopardy within the meaning of the fifth amendment to the United States constitution; Simmons v. U. S., 142 U. S. 148, 12 Sup. Ct. 171, 35 L. Ed. 968.

See JEOPARDY; WITHDRAWING A JUROR.

Duties and privileges of. Qualified persons may be compelled to serve as jurors under penalties prescribed by law. They are exempt from arrest in certain cases. See PRIVILEGE. They are liable to punishment for misconduct in some cases.

When improper questions are asked of a witness, by a juryman, and answered, if no objection is made or exception taken, no error is saved, and if inquiries are made by juryman with court's permission, failure of the court to interpose objections is not reversible error; State v. Crawford, 96 Minn. 95, 104 N. W. 768, 822, 1 L. R. A. (N. S.) 839; as a general rule, though the cases are few, questions of witnesses by jurors seem to be permitted; Chicago, M. & St. P. Ry. Co. v. Harper, 128 Ill. 384, 21 N. E. 561; Schaefer v. Ry. Co., 128 Mo. 64, 30 S. W. 331.

A frequent variation from the commonlaw jury system is to permit the jury to impose the punishment (this being formerly considered a matter for judicial discretion), or, as in some states, to divide the responsibility between the judge and jury; and such legislation is held constitutional; Rice v. State, 7 Ind. 332; State v. Hockett, 70 Ia. 442, 30 N. W. 742; 1 Bish. N. Cr. L. § 934.

In criminal cases, in Scotland, a jury consists of fifteen and a majority may convict. In Belgium, criminal and political charges and offences of the press are tried before a Trial by jury has existed in Greece jury. since 1834. In Sweden it exists in cases of offences of the press; and in Italy, in criminal cases, and a majority may convict. In Norway, it was established in 1887, and there also a majority may convict. In Russia, since 1864, all criminal cases involving severe penalties, except political offences, are tried by juries. Hawaii has a jury of twelve, both in civil and criminal cases, of whom nine may render a verdict. In South America, all the states have the jury system. In France, trial by jury exists in cases of felony, and it is provided in Germany, by the imperial code, in all criminal cases except treason, political crimes and offences of the press.

JURY BOX. A place set apart for the jury to sit in during the trial of a cause.

JURY LIST. A paper containing the names of jurors impanelled to try a cause, or it contains the names of all the jurors summoned to attend court.

JURYMAN. A juror; one who is impanelled on a jury. Webster, Dict.

n a jury in a criminal case is disduring the trial, and the defendant uently put on trial before another tores facias, and distringas juratores, or ha-

v. Webster, tried before Lord Denmar

These writs are! beas corpora juratorum. now abolished, and jurors are summoned by precept. 1 Chitty, Archb. 344; Com. Law Proc. Act, 1852, § 104; 3 Chitty, Stat. 519.

JURY OF WOMEN. A jury of women is given in two cases; viz.: on writ de ventre inspiciendo, which was a writ directed to the sheriff, commanding him that, in the presence of twelve men and as many women, he cause examination to be made whether a woman therein named is with child or not, and if with child, then about what time it will be born, and that he certify the same.

The jury has to be one of "discreet women." The practice was to close the doors before the jury was impanelled. See 8 Carr. & P. 265, where a surgeon was sent out with the jury; on his return to the court he was sworn and made his report. The jury then retired and brought in a verdict.

It was granted in a case when a widow, whose husband had lands in fee-simple, marries again soon after her husband's death, and declares herself pregnant by her first husband, and, under that pretext, withholds the lands from the next heir; Cro. Eliz. 506; Fleta, lib. 1, c. 15. In that case, although the jury was made up of men and women, the examination was made by the latter; 1 Madd. Ch. 11; 2 P. Wms. 591. Such a writ was issued in the case of In re Blackburn, 14 L. J. N. S. Ch. 336. In New York it is said that an application was made for such a jury in the Rollwagen will case and denied upon the ground that "as the lady was not going to be hanged and did not herself solicit the investigation, there was no power to compel her to submit to it;" 10 Alb. L. J. 3. In the opinion of the court in Union Pac. Ry. Co. v. Botsford, 141 U. S. 250, 11 Sup. Ct. 1000, 35 L. Ed. 734, the statement is made by Mr. Justice Gray that this writ has never been used in this country. The authorities cited in this title show that this statement is too broad both as to the use of the common-law writ and as to physical examination, which title see further as to that case.

Where pregnancy is pleaded by a condemned woman, in delay of execution, a jury of twelve discreet matrons was called from those in court, who were impanelled to try the fact and report to the court. They chose a fore-matron from their own number. On their returning a verdict of "enceinte," the execution was delayed until the birth, and in some cases the punishment was commuted to perpetual exile. When the criminal was merely privement enceinte, and not quick (see QUICKENING), there was no respite. See 2 Hale, Pl. Cr. 412; Taylor, Med. Jur., Bell's ed. 520; Archb. Cr. Pl. 187. The proceeding has been said to be obsolete. though it has been recognized in America and at a very recent date in England, in Reg. he may do as soon as he is satisfi Old Bailey in London in July, 1879 plea of pregnancy was interposed sentence, and immediately "a jury trons selected from a crowd of female gallery were impanelled" and swor the inquisition was held forthwith the judge. The result was a verdi the prisoner was not quick with ch she was sentenced. The verbatim re the proceedings may be found in 9 ( J. 94. In State v. Arden, 1 Bay (S. the plea was allowed and an inquisition but the prisoner was found not pregna sentenced to death. In Holeman v. S Ark. 105, the plea was overruled in ceny case where a woman was convict penitentiary offence. In the case Bathsheba Spooner, who was tried in chusetts in 1778 for the murder of h band, she being under sentence of petitioned the governor and council respite on account of pregnancy. A ventre inspiciendo was issued by the to the sheriff directing him to summor of two men midwives and twelve and lawful matrons "to ascertain th of her plea." The verdict was that not quick with child," and she w cuted, but a post mortem examination that her assertion was true; 3 Harv. 44; 39 Alb. L. J. 326. "While the cases are very rare, t no evidence (or authority, it might ed) that a jury of women is not a the machinery of the law in those st which the common law prevails." 12 Encyc. of L. 331. Such a jury was i led in a criminal case in Chester coun June 27, 1689; 5 Haz. Pa. Reg. 158; of Upland Court now in the Penns Historical Society. See 48 Am. L. R

It may be safely affirmed that no who pleads pregnancy in delay of ex will in any common-law jurisdiction tenced to death without examinati the truth of the fact pleaded, and absence of other statutory provision difficult to see how she could be dep this common-law right. It is undo true that the proceeding is antiquaill adapted to the purpose, and therei subject is well worthy of legislative tion. Doubtless the rarity of such tion is due to the infrequency of cap als of women. In one state at least tingency is provided for. In New is provided by statute that if there is able ground to believe that a female ant sentenced to death is pregnant, of six physicians shall be impanelled quire into the fact, and if it is fo the inquisition that she is "quick with the execution is to be suspended un governor issues a warrant directing it no longer "quick with child," or he a right to property not in possession, as discommute her punishment to imprisonfor life; N. Y. Code Crim. Proc. § 501e DE VENTRE INSPICIENDO; REPRIEVE.

Y WHEEL. A mechanical contrivance, y a circular box revolving on a crank, ich the names of persons subject to luty are placed, by the officers, and at mes and places prescribed by law, and which the proper number to constitute ry panels for any particular term of are drawn by lot.

(Lat.). Law; right; equity. Story, ur. § 1. In the Roman law the word vo distinct meanings. It was either a of law, as the jus honorarium, or an lual right, as the jus suffragii. See Inst. Rom. L. § 7, where this distincs developed in the course of a discusf fundamental conceptions. See Evans' let on Roman Law According to Livy. d use of the word was in apposition icium, as to which see In Judicio.

is said to have the following meana law court; a bond or tie; power, rity; right to do a thing; law, or a of law; what is right and fair. means either rights, or rules of law, nces, decisions, and so authority. ship, Lexicog.

to the distinction between jus and lex, X.

IN JURE; JUDEX; JUS AD REM.

ABUTENDI (Lat.). The right to By this phrase is understood the to abuse property, or having full doover property. 3 Toullier, n. 86. ight of destruction or consumption, ee disposition. Morey, Rom. L. 283. OMINIUM JUS UTENDI.

ACCRESCENDI (Lat.). The right vivorship. See Survivor.

Roman Law. The right of accretion. xists in two cases: According to the l rule a person could not die partly and partly intestate, and if any part estate was unprovided for, either by ersight of the testator or any of the it was ratably distributed among the Morey, Rom. L. 325; so if the same were left to two or more persons each n equal share; if one of them should fore he had received the legacy, the of the one so dying passed to the reg joint legatee or legatees by this id. 334. It has been suggested that rm of this right is to be found in the tion by necessity; Sohm, Inst. Rom.

ESTATE IN JOINT TENANCY.

ACTUS. In Roman Law. A rural de giving to a person a passage for es, or for cattle.

AD REM (Lat.). In Civil Law.

tinguished from jus in re, which implies the absolute dominion. In English law, this distinction is illustrated by Blackstone, by reference to ecclesiastical promotions, where, although the freehold passes to the person promoted, corporal possession is required to vest the property completely in the new proprietor, who acquires jus ad rem, an inchoate, or imperfect, right of nomination and institution, but not the jus in re, or complete and full right, unless by corporal possession; 2 Bla. Com. 312. The distinction expressed by these terms in the Roman law is analogous to the common-law distinction between the effect of a right of entry and that of actual entry, which in English real property law is expressed in the maxim non jus, sed seisina, facit stipitem; id. Jus ad rem is said to be merely an abridged expression for jus ad rem acquirendam, and it properly denotes the right to the acquisition of a thing. Austin, Jur. Lect. 14.

"On this distinction between claims to things advanced against all men, and those advanced primarily against particular men, is based the division of rights into real and personal expressed by writers of the middle ages, on the analogy of terms found in the writings of the Roman jurists, by the phrases jura in re and jura ad rem. A real right, a jus in re, or, to use the equivalent phrase preferred by some later commentators, jus in rem, is a right to have a thing to the exclusion of all other men. A personal right, jus ad rem, or, to use a much more correct expression, jus in personam, is a right in which there is a person who is the subject of right, as well as a thing as its object, a right which gives its possessor a power to oblige another person to give, or procure, or do, or do not do, something." Sand. Inst. Just. Introd. xlviii.

A right which belongs to a person only mediately and relatively, and has for its foundation an obligation incurred by a particular person.

The jus in re, by the effect of its very nature, is independent and absolute, and is exercised per se ipsum, by applying it to its object; but the jus ad rem is the faculty of demanding and obtaining the performance of some obligation by which another is bound to me ad aliquid dandum vel faciendum, vel præstandum. Thus, if I had the ownership of a horse, the usufruct of a flock of sheep, the right of habitation of a house, a right of way over your land, etc., my right in the horse, in the flock of sheep, in the house, or the land, belongs to me directly, and without any intermediary; it belongs to me absolutely and independently of any particular relation with another person. I am in direct The fus in re, by the effect of its very nature, is to me absolutely and independently of any particular relation with another person. I am in direct and immediate relation with the thing itself which forms the object of my right without reference to any other relation. This constitutes a jus in re. If, on the other hand, the horse is lent to me by you, or if I have a claim against you for a thousand dollars, my right to the horse or to the sum of money exists only relatively, and can only be exercised through you; my relation to the object of the right is mediate, and is the result of the immediate relation of debtor and creditor existing be-AD REM (Lat.). In Civil Law. A mediate relation of debtor and creditor existing beone a thing. It is generally treated as tween you and me. This is a just ad rem. Every jus in re, or real right, may be vindicated by the actio in rem against him who is in possession of the thing, or against any one who contests the right. It has been said that the words, jus in re of the civil law convey the same idea as thing in possession at common law. This is an error, arising from a confusion of ideas as to the distinctive characters of the two classes of rights. Nearly all the common-law writers seem to take it for granted that by the fus in re is understood the title or property in a thing in the possession of the owner; and that by the jus ad rem is meant the title or property in a thing not in the possession of the owner. But it is obvious that possession is not one of the elements constituting the fus in re; although possession is generally, but not always, one of the incidents of this right, yet the loss of possession does not exercise the slightest influence on the character of the right itself, unless it should continue for a sufficient length of time to destroy the right altogether by prescription. In many instances the fus in re is not accompanied by possession at all; the usuary is not entitled to the possession of the thing subject to his use; still, he has a jus in re. So with regard to the right of way, etc. DOMINIUM.

A mortgage is considered by most writers as a fus in re; but it is clear that it is a fus ad rem: it is granted for the sole purpose of securing the payment of a debt or the fulfilment of some other personal obligation. In other words, it is an accessory to a principal obligation and corresponding right: it can have no separate and independent existence. The immovable on which I have a mortgage is not the object of the right, as in the case of the horse of which I am the owner, or the house of which I have the right of habitation, etc.: the true object of my right is the sum of money due to me, the payment of which I may enforce by obtaining a decree for the sale of the property mortgaged. 2 Marcade 350.

The description of legal duties and rights as being in rem or in personam is usually said to be unauthorized by classical Latin usage; Roman lawyers spoke of "actiones," not "jura," as being in rem or in personam. But it should be remembered that in Roman usage "action" included what we now call "a right of action," any determinate claim to some form of legal redress. Action was the right of obtaining by process of law what is due, not the process itself. Hence the modern usage is not so wide apart from the Roman as it appears at first sight to be. Pollock, First Book of Jurispr. 92.

JUS ÆLIANUM. A body of laws upon the same plan as the jus flavianum (q. v.) though more complete. It was published about B. C. 200 by Sextus Ælius and consisted of three parts: (1) The law of the XII. Tables; (2) The interpretation of the same; (3) The description of the legis actiones or forms of procedure. Morey, Rom. L. 85.

JUS ÆSNECIÆ. The right of the eldestborn to inherit; primogeniture.

JUS ALBINATUS. The right of the king by confiscation or escheat to the property of a deceased foreigner unless he had a peculiar exemption. This prerogative was abolished in 1790. 1 Bla. Com. 372; 2 Steph. Com. 409, n. It was the Droit d'Aubaine of the French law, which title see.

JUS ANGARIÆ. See ANGARIA; RIGHT OF.

JUS ANGLORUM. The laws and of the West Saxons, in the time of archy, by which the people were for time governed, and which were prefore all others. Wharton.

JUS ÆQUUM. Equitable law. used by the Romans to express the tion of the law to the circumstance individual case as opposed to fus (q. v.).

JUS AQUÆDUCTUS (Lat.). In of The name of a servitude which give owner of land the right to bring do through or from the land of anoth from its source or from any oth

Its privilege may be limited a time when it may be exercised. If t fails, the servitude ceases, but revi the water returns. If the water ri naturally flows through, the land, prietor cannot by any grant divert to prevent it flowing to the land Rolle, Abr. 140, l. 25; Lois des Bât. 3, s. 1, art. 1. But if it had been into his land by artificial means, it would be strictly his property, it would be in his power to grant if 3. 1. 10; 3 Burge, Confl. Laws & Washb. Easem.; RIVER; WATER-CO

JUS AQUÆ HAUSTUS. In Ros A rural servitude giving to a perso of watering cattle on another's field drawing water from another's well

JUS BELLI. So much of inte law as regulates the relations of n each other with respect to a state of cluding belligerency and neutralit several titles see.

The right of war so far as it con treatment which may be properly to an enemy. Grot. De Bell. et Pac.

JUS BELLUM DICENDI. The making a declaration of war.

JUSCIVILE (Lat.). In Ron The private law, in contradistinctic public law, or jus gentium. 1 Sav Rom. c. 1, § 1.

The local law of the city of Rom
It is said that the twelve tables the starting-point in the developme Roman law so far as it can be hi authenticated, and that its develop vanced steadily in uninterrupted pr until it culminated in the corpus ju of Justinian; Sohm, Inst. Rom. L. is, however, rather more accument that the culmination of the Roman a system, was not reached until it of the development side by side of civile and jus gentium. For an in discussion of the origin and growti n, see Morey, Rom. L. 14, 24. ENTIUM.

CIVITATIS. In Roman Law. The ranchise of citizenship comprising, on ne hand, public rights, including the of holding office and the right of votand on the other hand private rights, ing the right to hold and dispose of rty, according to the forms of the civil and the right of marriage, and all dorelations. Morey, Rom. L. 48.

collection of laws which are to be ed among all the members of a nation. opposed to jus gentium, which is the which regulates the affairs of nations themselves. 2 Lepage, El. du Dr. c. It was very much what is understood dern terminology by municipal law.

CLOACÆ MITTENDÆ. In Civil Law. ame of a servitude which requires the who is subject to it to permit his or to conduct the waters which fall grounds over those of the servient es-

COMMUNE. The common law, aple to all persons alike. The ordinary s opposed to jus singulare (q. v.). e general law, as opposed to exceptiones or privileges applicable only to a Pollock, First Book of Jurispr. 250.

CORONÆ. The right of succession throne of Great Britain.

CURIALITATIS ANGLIÆ. The of curtesy. See Curtesy.

DARE (Lat.). To enact or to make w. Jus dare belongs to the legislajus dicere, to the judge.

DELIBERANDI (Lat.). The right of rating, given to the heir, in those counwhere the heir may have benefit of iny (q. v.), in which to consider whether l accept or renounce the succession. Louisiana he is allowed ten days bee is required to make his election. La. ode art. 1028.

DEVOLUTUM. A phrase formerly n Scotch ecclesiastical law to designate ght which devolved on the presbytery sent a minister to a vacant parish or e, in case the patron should neglect rcise his right within the time limited v, by presenting within six months a ly qualified person. Int. Cyc.

DICERE (Lat.). To declare the law. he province of the court jus dicere, to e what the law is.

DISPONENDI (Lat.). The right to e of a thing.

general sense it means the right of tion, and is frequently applied in the parate estate. In a special or limited is attributed to it by modern writers. it is applied to the reservation by a

See vendor of chattels or the ultimate ownership of goods with the possession of which he has parted. It is said to be often a matter of great nicety to determine upon a contract of sale, whether or not the vendor's purpose or intention was to reserve a jus disponendi. Benj. Sales, Ch. VI. § 382. See SALE.

> The reservation of this right is essential where the property in the thing sold is reserved as a security for deferred payments or purchase-money, and it is permitted in many cases in which it is not permissible at common law. The great increase in the number of transactions in which such reservation is customary, as car trusts, instalment sales, etc., makes the subject one of increased importance and interest.

> JUS DISTRAHENDI. The right of sale of goods pledged in case of non-payment. See Pledge: Distress.

> JUS DIVIDENDI. The right of testamentary disposition of real estate.

> JUS DUPLICATUM (Lat. double right). When a man has the possession as well as the property of anything, he is said to have a double right, jus duplicatum. Bracton, 1. 4, tr. 4, c. 4; 2 Bla. Com. 199.

> JUS EDICERE, JUS EDICENDI. right to issue edicts. It belonged to all the higher magistrates, but special interest is attached to the prætorian edicts in connection with the history of Roman law. See PRÆTOR.

> JUS EX NON SCRIPTO. Law constituted by custom or such usage as indicates the tacit consent of the community.

> The definition of Ulpian was: "Diuturna consuetudo pro jure et lege in his quæ non ex scripto de-scendunt, observari solet;" D. 1, 8, 33. This is well, though freely, translated thus: "Whatever has existed for a long period of time, and is in harmony with the moral judgment of the community is regarded as having the force of law, and the judicial authority is bound to recognize it as such, even though it has never been expressed in a legal enact-ment." Morey, Rom. L. 223. The same author says with respect to such law: "It was also a maxim of the Romans, that not only can laws be established by custom; they can also be abrogated by customthat is, by contrary usage. It is unnecessary to consider here the objections raised by some modern jurists, such as Austin, to this view of customary, or unwritten law. It is enough for our present pur pose to say that this was the conception of the man jurists regarding the origin of a portion of the positive law, and a conception which has been adopted by the majority of modern civilians;" id. Another phrase by which this law was known was jus moribus constitutum. See Law.

JUS FECIALE (Lat.). in Roman Law. Fecial law. It has been termed that branch of international law which had its foundation in the religious belief of different nations: such as the international law which now exists among the Christian people of Europe. Savigny, Dr. Rom. c. 2, § 11. But the earlier writers on the civil law gave to it more of of a married woman with respect to a characterization as international law than

See FECIAL LAW; INTERNATIONAL LAW.

It related to rules and ceremonies or modes of procedure for declarations of war and ratifications of treaties of peace. The subject was entrusted to a college of priests, who were, however, the mere agents of the state. Hershey, Int. L. 43.

JUS FIDUCIARUM (Lat.). In Civil Law. A right to something held in trust. For this there was a remedy in conscience. Com. 328. See Fidel Commissum.

JUS FLAVIANUM. A publication of the legis actiones or a practical manual of the procedure, including a list of dies fasti (q. v.).

Of this publication it is said: "The first step which led to the decline of the legis actiones was due to their publication. As long as the knowledge of legal forms was restricted to the patrician class, the people at large were helpless in their efforts to obtain an impartial administration of justice." ey, Rom. L. 85. The author was Cnseus Flavius, who was a scribe or clerk of Appius Claudius. His publication was B. C. 304. It was followed about a century later by the Jus Ælianum (q. v.). See also Sohm, Inst. Rom. L. § 14, n. 2.

JUS FODIENDI. in Civil Law. The name of a rural servitude which permits digging on the land of another. Inst. 2, 3, 2; Dig. 8, 3, 1, 1. A similar right was recognized in early English law; Bract. 222.

JUS GENTIUM (Lat.). The law of nations. It has been said that although the Romans used these words in the sense we attach to law of nations, yet among them the sense was much more extended. Falck, Encyc. Jur. 102, n. 42. It has been termed a system made up by the early Roman lawyers of the common ingredients in the customs of the old Italian tribes, for the purpose of adjudicating questions arising in Rome between foreigners or natives and foreigners. Maine, Anc. Law 49.

The jus gentium is differently characterized by the later writers on the civil law from the meaning given to the phrase by the earlier writers who treated it, as more identical with the idea of modern international law than it is now considered to have been.

The distinction between the fus gentium and the fus civile is thus admirably expressed: "The fus gentium, on the other hand, came to be regarded as a universal law of all mankind, common to all nations, because resting on the nature of things and the general sense of equity which obtains among all men, the 'jus gentium quod apud omnes gentes peræque custoditur,' a sort of natural law, exacting recognition everywhere in virtue of its inherent reasonableness. It would, however, be erroneous to suppose that the Romans attempted to introduce a code of nature such as the philosophers had devised. The jus gentium was, and never had been anything else but a portion of positive Roman law, which commercial usage of other sources of law, more especially the prætorian edict (q. v.), had clothed in a concrete form. Nor again must it be imagined that the Romans simply transferred a portion of foreign (Hellenic) law bodily into their own system. In the few quite exceptional cases where they did so (as s. g. in the case of hypotheca), they did not fail to impress their institutions with a national Roman character. The antithesis between jus civile and fus gentium was merely the outward expression of the growing consciousness that Roman law, in absorbing the element of greater freedom, was commencing to discard its national peculiarities and right to have and retain the offering transform itself from the special local law into a general law for the civilized world. gentium was that part of the private law which was essentially in accordance with vate law of other nations, more especially of the Greeks, which would naturally prealong the seaboard of the Mediterranean. words, jus gentium was that portion of the law of Rome which appeared to the Roma selves in the light of a 'ratio scripta,' which obtains among all nations and is exall mankind." Sohm, Inst. Rom. L. § 13.

The Romans discovered, or thought they ed, a common groundwork of legal instit the various commonwealths that became a Rome. What remained, after deducting technical peculiarities, was called by them mon law of nations, jus gentium. Polloci Lectures 10.

The origin of the jus gentium was t edly to be found in the adjustment Roman law to the relations existing Roman citizens and foreigners, and foreigners themselves. The growth of ferent system was a not unnatural r the administration of law in cases both parties were not Roman citizens foreign prætors, who were not bound strict rules of the jus civile, but fro about from place to place, and admir a kind of equitable jurisdiction in tlement of disputes, they might not be termed peripatetic or itinerant arb The growth of a system of law admi by them alongside of the jus civile unlike the growth of the equity jurish alongside of the common law. Then, fact that these officers were constagaged in settling disputes, to which one party was a foreigner, naturally their becoming familiar with the pr of other systems of law, and in applyi to the case in hand, so far as they co ed themselves to their sense of justic new system was afterwards extende whole non-citizen class. And while first instance it was treated as an distinct system from the jus civile, ually supplanted the latter, and by a which was originally the absorption of the jus gentium into the jus civile sequently became recognized as a con part of Roman Law, and was gradual ed into a complete system of jurisp The confusion between jus gentium ternational law is said to be entirely For a bibliography of this subj Hershey, Int. L. 54.

See Morey, Rom. L. 59-71; INTERN LAW; JUS CIVILE; JUS NATURALE.

JUS GLADII (Lat. the right of the Supreme jurisdiction. The right to from or condemn a man to death.

JUS HABENDI (Lat.). The right a thing. The right to be put into act session of property to which one is

JUS HABENDI ET RETINEND

k W. HÆREDITATIS. The right of success an heir, or of inheritance. See HEIB. HONORARIUM. In Civil Law. applied to the prætorian edicts and alhe edicts of the curule ædiles, when on n occasions they were published. Inst.

s system of law was simply the usual pment of an expanding and elastic judence, which naturally resulted from crease in Rome of population and powi the greater complication of her civili; Howe, Stud. Civ. L. 10; it was spokas having a distinct place by the side, s the complement, of the jus civile; Introd. Inst. Just. xxi. It was a system ge-made law (q. v.) in the proper sense. orous development was coincident with ormulary procedure, which was well ed to give it scope and effect; Sohm, . Rom. L. 178.

place and function in the Roman judence are thus described: "The prælaw, being a law made by officials, 'jun rium,' was opposed to the jus civile, aw, in the strict and proper sense of rm, the law made by the people, ded by popular enactments and popular s. Thus both the jus civile and the onorarium contained elements of jus m, but in the jus honorarium, the inof the jus gentium predominated. The ian edict was, in the main, the instruby means of which the free principles æquum gained their victory over the ius strictum. Though at first the edict nerely have served the purpose of givller effect to the jus civile, and then of menting the jus civile, nevertheless, in d, borne along by the current of the it boldly assumed the function of reg the civil law." Id. 54.

JUDEX; PRÆTOR.

magistrates of elevated rank possessed wer of legislating, "jus edicendi," with to such matters as fell within their ction, and the body of rules so estabwas termed jus honorarium. But as prætorium forms so important a part the term jus honorarium is often red to the jus prætorium.

In Roman Law. HONORUM. The of holding offices. See Jus Suffragii.

IMAGINIS. in Roman Law. The of displaying the pictures and statues 's ancestors, somewhat as in the Engw of Heraldry, there is a right to the -arms.

IMMUNITATIS. The law of exempom the liability to hold public office.

IN PERSONAM. A personal right. ered by some writers as a more corxpression for jus ad rem, which see.

rofits of a parsonage or rectory. Toml.; According to the Roman law, property could not be transferred by mere agreement. The latter, even though in form a legal contract, had the effect only of expressing the intention of the parties and creating a personal right against the one making the agreement in a real right to the property itself. Morey, Rom. L. 307. See Jus AD REM.

> JUS IN RE (Lat.). A right which belongs to a person, immediately and absolutely, in a thing, and which is the same against the whole world,-idem erga omnes. See Jus AD

> "The objection to using the term jus in re is that the expression occurs in the classical jurists as meaning an interest in a thing short of ownership, as the interest of a mortgagee in the thing pledged, and on this ground the term jus in rem, which in this sense is not found in the classical jurists, but is supported by the analogy of the familiar term actio in rem, seems preferable." Sand. Inst. Just. xlix. See Jus Ad Rem.

> JUS IN RE ALIENA. An easement on servitude, or right in, or arising out of, the property of another.

> JUS IN RE PROPRIA. The right of enjoyment which appertains to full and complete ownership of property. Frequently, by relation, the full ownership or property it-

> JUS INCOGNITUM (Lat.). An unknown law. This term is applied by the civilians to obsolete laws, which, as Bacon truly observes, are unjust; for the law to be just must give warning before it strikes. Bacon. Aph. 8, s. 1; Bowyer, Mod. Civ. Law 33. But until it has become obsolete no custom can prevail against it. See Obsolete.

> JUS ITALICUM. In Roman Law. A right bestowed upon a community by which it acquired "the privileges of a colonia Italica (i. e. an old colony of Roman citizens endowed with full legal rights), that its soil is therefore exempt from the land-tax and capable of quiritary ownership, in other words, is placed on the same footing as the fundas Italicus." Helsterbergk, Name und Begriff des jus Italicum (1885). Sohm, Inst. Rom. L. § 22, n. 2.

> JUS ITINERIS. In Roman Law. A rural servitude giving to a person the right to pass over an adjoining field, on foot or horseback.

> JUS LATII. The right or privilege conferred upon the various communities of Latium.

> This has been termed a "kind of qualified citizenship (civitas sine suffragio), such as Rome had, in early times, granted to the inhabitants of Cære." Morey, Rom. L. 50. These rights originally included the rights of intermarriage and of commercial in-tercourse between Rome and the inhabitants of the Latin towns. The author last cited says: "The possession of these rights formed the essential feature of the early jus Latti, or Latinitas. In later times, however, the right which went under this name and which was bestowed upon the Latin colonies outside of Latium, included the commercium only;" id. Sohm says that from the earliest times the members of the town communities of Latium who were the original Latins had the same private marriage law as the Romans. It was, in fact, their original law, and it was because they were allies governed by the same law that they enjoyed the jus commercii and the jus connubii of the Romans. They did not, of course, possess the public rights of a Roman until the powerful interest attaching to those rights resulted in the granting of Roman citizenship first to the Latin allies then to all the Italian communities; Sohm, Inst. Rom. L. § 22.

There were two forms of the jus latti, latium minus which was the older and usual one, and the latium majus. In communities in the former, only of ficials acquired Roman civitas. In those which had the latter it was extended to the decuriones. See DECURIONES; id. § 22, n. 2. Another authority confines the two forms to magistrates and defines them thus: "The latium majus raising to the dignity of Roman citizens not only the magistrate himself, but also his wife and children; the latium minus raising to that dignity only the magistrate himself." Bro. L. Dict.

JUS LATII

JUS LEGITIMUM (Lat). In Civil Law. A legal right which might have been enforced by due course of law. 2 Bla. Com. 328.

JUS LIBERORUM. In Roman Law. The privilege conferred upon a woman who had three or four children. In order that she should be able to take all the property given her by will, she must have had this privilege conferred upon her. Sohm, Inst. Rom. L. § 86. In the time of Hadrian, a decree was made conferring upon a mother, as such, who, being an ingenua, had the jus trium liberorum, or being a libertina, the jus quatuor liberorum, a civil law right to succeed her intestate children; id. § 98.

Another author defines this privilege as one by which exemption was given from all troublesome offices. Brown, L. Dict.

JUS MERUM (Lat.). A simple or bare right; a right to property in land, without possession, or the right of possession.

JUS MORIBUS CONSTITUTUM. See JUS Ex Non Scripto.

JUS NATURALE. The name given to those rules of conduct which are universally binding upon men and which are sanctioned by the dictates of right reason, as opposed to rules of conduct prescribed and enforced by the sovereign power of the state which are called positive law, known to the Romans as jus civile, and in modern jurisprudence as municipal law.

The jus naturale, or law of nature, is simply the jus gentium, or law of nations, seen in the light of a peculiar theory. Maine, Anc. Law 52. Sir F. Pollock refers to this as "an unhappy term," which seems to be a mere external ornament borrowed from Greek philosophers in excess of zeal to make a show of philosophical culture, and inconsistent with the proper Roman use of jus. Oxford Lectures 7.

much quoted definition of Ulpian was that which nature attaches to animals. Of this it has been said that it was peculiar, and the conception exercised little or no influence upon the judicial thought of Rome. Morey, Rom. L. 111, where also are collected many definitions of the Roman are consected many dennitions of the Roman Sandars considers the passage from Ulpian tunately borrowed by Justinian and there moved from the connection in which it was which was a subsidiary and divergent thought, and had nothing to do with the me ory. Accordingly "in considering what the from the first way to the from the first process." jurists meant by jue naturale this fragm Ulpian may be dismissed almost entirely fr notice."

otice." Sand. Inst. Just. 7.

The conception of the jus naturals came fr Stoics and has been termed "by far the maportant addition to the system of Roman law the jurists introduced from Greek philo Sand. Inst. Just. Introd. xxii. And Maine sa that "the importance of this theory to mank been very much greater than its philosophi ficiencies would lead us to expect." Anc. I

While it is undoubtedly true that the high ception of law is that natural law and posit should be entirely harmonious, it is in the of international law that this conception nearly approaches realization. The fus a was a system largely based upon the fus n and it is due to that fact that the Roman so largely formed the basis upon which commenced to build, the system which has d ed into modern international law. It has be that while he "rejected Ulpian's definition jus naturale, he accepted the idea of naturexpressed in the later jus gentium of the l as a body of principles based upon the It was therefore poss reason of mankind. him to extend the equitable principles aire veloped in the Roman fue gentium to the re resisting between sovereign states. State looked upon as moral persons—subjects of tural law, and as equal to each other in their rights and obligations." Morey, Rom. L. M. JUS GENTIUM; LAW OF NATURE; LAW.

JUS NON SACRUM. in Romai That portion of the jus publicum which ulated the duties of magistrates.

Non-sacred law; that which dealt the duties of civil magistrates, the pretion of public order, and the rights as ties of persons in their relation to the Morey, Rom. L. 223. It was analogo that which would now be called the

JUS NON SCRIPTUM. See JUS E:

JUS ONERIS FERENDI. An urba vitude in the Roman Law, the owner of had the right of supporting and buildi on the house wall of another.

JUS PAPIRIANUM. A collection of regiæ said to have been collected fro early periods of Roman history in th of Romulus, Numa, and other kings.

They were a private compilation descriving ments of a collection," which, "though "fragments of a collection," which, "though showing the religious spirit of the early leyet meagre and unsatisfactory." Morey, E 25. Though a private collection, it is suggest they received the name of royal laws mer cause the regulations which they containe placed under the immediate protection of the They were concerned in the main with sacre ters, i. c. they were essentially of a religio moral character, and bear clear testimony closeness of the original connection between and religion; Sohm, Inst. Rom. L. § 11. Ascribed to Sextus (or Caius) Papirius, wi supposed to have lived in the reign of Tar Superbus; Hunter, Rom. L. 1.

70 -5

PASCENDI. In Roman Law. The servitude giving the right of pasturage other's land.

PATRONATUS (Lat.). In Ecclesiastiw. A commission from the bishop, diusually to his chancellor and others spetent learning, who are required to on a jury, composed of six clergymen x laymen, to inquire into and examno is the rightful patron. 3 Bla. Com.

PERSONARUM (Lat.). The right of s. See Jura Personarum.

PISCANDI. See JUB VENANDI ET PI-

POSSESSIONIS. The simple right of sion which may exist independently of ship.

ession and ownership may, and generally do,
b. But as a person may be the owner of a und not possess it, so a person may be the or of a thing and not be the owner. It is the possessor is not the legal owner that it is important to consider to what rights he is by virtue of his possession." Morey, Rom.
See Jus Possidend; Possession.

POSSIDENDI. The right of possesshich is the legal consequence of own-It is to be distinguished from the sessionis (q. v.), which is a right to which may exist without ownership.

POSTLIMINII (Lat.). The right of year to claim property after its recaprom an enemy. See Postliminy.

PRÆTORIUM. A body of laws ded from the exercise of discretion by setors, as distinguished from the leges live law. See Prætor.

PRECARIUM (Lat.). In Civil Law. at to a thing held for another, for there was no remedy. 2 Bla. Com. 328.

PRESENTATIONIS. The right of tation.

PRIVATUM. The municipal law of parans as distinguished from the justum, which was the law of political constant of crimes (with that of criminal ure). Campbell's Analysis of Austin, relations of power subsisting between perd the world of things, or the equivalents of are the subject-matter of private law. Priw, in other words, has to do with the domin-persons over things. Its pith is, therefore, and in the law of property. The subject-matpublic law are the relations of power which between persons and persons. Here, the is ideal, in the sense that its object is the il of another, 4. e. something invisible and ily intangible. Public law, then, has to do the dominion of persons over persons. The of control with which such private law is end are reducible to a money value; the of control with which public law is concernnent thus reducible. In private law, again, ject of a right appears in his individual cales commanding the world of material things, ic law, on the other hand, the subject of a pipears in his capacity as a member of a four.—113 community which it is his part to serve in order that he may share in the benefits it confers. Finally, as against their object, the rights of private law merely confer a power, the rights of public law, on the other hand, impose, at the same time, a duty on the person to whom the right pertains. The distinction is clearly exemplified in the case of the right of ownership in a thing, on one side, and the right of a sovereign over his people on the other." Sohm, Inst. Rom. L. § 7.

JUS PROJICIEND! (Lat.). In Civil Law. The name of a servitude by which the owner of a building has a right of projecting a part of his building towards the adjoining house, without resting on the latter. It is extended merely over the ground. Dig. 50. 16. 242; 8. 2. 25; 8. 5. 8. 5.

JUS PROPRIETATIS. The right of property, as Blackstone phrases it: "the mere right of property without either possession or even the right of possession. This is frequently spoken of in our books under the name of mere right," jus merum (q. v.); 2 Bla. Com. 197. See RIGHT OF PROPERTY.

JUS PROTEGEND! (Lat.). In Civil Law. The name of a servitude: it is a right by which a part of the roof or tiling of one house is made to extend over the adjoining house. Dig. 50. 16. 243. 1; 8. 2. 25; 8. 5. 8. 5.

JUS PROTIMESEOS. The right of preemption of a landlord in case the tenant wishes to dispose of his rights as a perpetual lessee. Sohm, Inst. Rom. L. § 57. Pactum protimeseos was the right of pre-emption to the seller; i. e. in case the buyer should sell, he must sell to the former seller. Hunter, Rom. L. 503.

JUS PROVINCIARUM. A franchise conferred upon provincials much more limited than that conferred upon the people of Italy.

It has been described as "equivalent to the fusitalicum minus the freedom from land taxation which the latter right involved. In short, the provincials possessed no status as Roman citizens; and even their capacity of ownership in their own land was qualified by their tributary obligations to Rome. The civil incapacity of the provincials had reference, however, merely to their exclusion from the strictly legal rights sanctioned by the fus civile." Morey, Rom. L. 55.

JUS PUBLICUM. See JUS PRIVATUM.

JUS QUÆSITUM (Lat.). A right to ask or recover: for example, in an obligation there is a binding of the obligor, and a jus quxsitum in the obligee. 1 Bell, Com. 323.

JUS QUIRITIUM. Quiritarian ownership, so called under the ancient jus civile, because, strictly speaking, there was recognized but this one form of ownership. It could be acquired only through the technical forms of civil law, and never by a foreigner. The strictness which was observed in this respect was due to the fact that this was the form of private ownership, which, under Roman law, was as developed from the general right of dominion and ownership by the state. To prevent hardships and injustice in the strict application of the rules of law, it was permitted to the prætor to issue possessory in- | Attorney-General v. Antrobus, {19 terdicts to protect the possession of those who had not complied with all the technical conditions of ownership. In this way, legal sanction was given to the right of possession which amounted substantially to a right of property. This affords another illustration of the many points in which the Roman system presents a strict similarity to the English equity jurisprudence as long afterwards developed. Morey, Rom. L. 21, 74, 283; Sand. Inst. Just. Introd. xx.

JUS RECUPERANDI, INTRANDI, Etc. The right of recovering and entering upon JUS RERUM (Lat.). The right of things. Its principal object is to ascertain how far a person can have a permanent dominion over things, and how that dominion is acquired.

JUS SACRUM. in Roman Law. portion of the public law which was concerned with matters relating to public worship and including the regulation of sacrifices and the appointment of priests. There was a general division of the jus publicum into jus sacrum and jus non sacrum (q. v.).

JUS SANGUINIS. The right of blood.

According to Roman and Germanic principles, nationality is based primarily upon descent (jus sanguinis). This is said to prevail in Germany, Austria, Hungary, Sweden and Switzerland; so also in the Napoleonic Code. Hershey, Int. L. 237.

See Jus Soli.

JUS SCRIPTA. Written law. After stating that the Roman law was written and unwritten just as it was among the Greeks, Justinian adds: "The written part consists of laws, plebiscita, scnalus-consulta, enactments of emperors, edicts of magistrates, and answers of jurisprudents." Sand. Inst. Just. 1, 2, 3. See Jus Ex Non Scripta.

JUS SINGULARE. A law which is an exception to the ordinary law. A special rule applicable to an individual case or class of Where it benefits particular classes of persons, it is called privilege, in an objective sense; privilege in a subjective sense is a particular right conferred upon a definite person by leges speciales. See Jus Com-MUNE.

JUS SOLI. The law of the place of one's birth as contrasted with jus sanguinis, the law of the place of one's descent or parentage. It is of feudal origin. Hershey, Int. L. 237.

JUS SPATIANDI. A right of way over land by the public by uses merely for the purposes of recreation and instruction. It is usually limited to the cases of highways, parks, and squares. The public were denied any right in the grounds containing the ancient druidical monuments at Stonehenge; venient.

188. See 19 Harv. L. Rev. 55. See Glossarium, for a definition under spatiare.

JUS STILLICIDII VEL FLUMI CIPIENDI. In Roman Law. An u vitude giving the owner a right to p roof over the land of another or house drain upon it.

JUS STRICTUM (Lat.). A Lati which signifies law interpreted with modification, and in its utmost ri Jus Æouum.

JUS SUFFRAĞII. in Roman La right of voting. This and the jus (q. v.) were the public rights of the citizen.

JUS TERTII. The right of a t son. This is set up by way of d many actions where it is sought to relations of landlord and tenant, and bailee, by a plea of setting u tertii.

JUS TIGNI IMMITTENDI. Law. An urban servitude which right of inserting a beam into the another.

JUS TRIPERTITUM. A threef The term is used by Justinian who the requisites of the Roman testan to have had a triple origin (ut hoc ertitum esse videatur). Sand. Inst 10. 3. "It is out of regard to this derivation from the prætorian edict, civil law, and from the imperial tions, that Justinian speaks of the wills in his own days as jus trig Maine, Anc. L. 207.

JUS UTENDI (Lat.). The righ property without destroying its a It is employed in contradistinction abutendi. 3 Toullier, n. 86.

JUS VENANDI ET PISCANDI. of hunting and fishing.

JUS VITÆ NECISQUE. In Ro The right of life and death. Ori father, or his pater-familias if he self in domestic subjection, could de arbitrarily, but judicially-whether to rear his child; and while this came subject to certain restrictions, the child had grown up, the fathe exercise of his domestic jurisdiction visit his son's misconduct, both in pr public life, with such punishmen thought fit, even banishment, sle death. In the early Empire these came relaxed, and they disappeare Justinian law. Muirhead, Roman

This word is frequently legal phraseology in combination w words, such as reasonable, equite are, as a foundation for an attachan affidavit was required that the ff's claim is just, it is not sufficient if not state positively, but only inferenthat his claim is just, and it does not t to the same thing to say that the ff "ought justly to recover the amount," t "said several sums are justly due;" on v. Burton, 5 Kan. 293. he English Traffic Act, in the phrase and reasonable," it was said to mean, advantage of the customer; 51 L. J.

346, 417. See Patria Potestas.

501.
re conditions of traffic companies are ust and reasonable, the reasonableness uestion of law, not of fact; 18 C. B.

a "just and reasonable" provision in s to disqualify by reason of bankruptotorious insolvency; 10 H. L. Cas. 404. agreement to pay what an individual was a taxing officer of the court of ry) should say was a just and reasonompensation for the services rendered complainant's solicitor in a suit coml in that court, and settled before debliges the party so agreeing to pay the costs regularly taxed by the individual in the agreement; Culley v. Harden-1 Den. (N. Y.) 508. The terms "just asonable," as employed by the legislathe Practice Act, obviously have refto the rules of practice then existing common law, and contemplate no other erent terms than would be just and able, as judged of by that practice; Fire Ins. Co. v. Trust Co., 1 Ill. App.

words "just and fair" within the meanthe New York statute, authorizing the onment of a fraudulent debtor, were onstrued: "Where the debtor has profrom the creditor, at whose suit he is oned, property by fraud, even if he has he proceeds in any way that would be ctionable, if they were his own, and oss or accident he is deprived of them, oceedings are not just and fair, and the debtor has combined or united thers to fraudulently obtain the propthe creditor; at whose suit he is imd, even if such others got the proceeds fraud, and he kept none, his proceede not 'just and fair' within the meanthe statute," authorizing the examinaan imprisoned debtor, in proceedings discharge from imprisonment, if it that his proceedings have not been and fair" towards the creditor under judgment he is imprisoned; In re s, 59 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 136; In re Finck, ne English Companies Act, 1862, it is and equitable" to wind up a company the whole substratum of the business was the object of the company had become strictly impossible; 1 Cox 213; 3 K. & J. 78; 20 Ch. Div. 169.

In the phrase a "just cause" for a court to do anything, the word just "does not add much weight, though it may add a little; it means some substantial reason must be shown;" Jessel, M. R., in 21 Ch. Div. 397.

To be "just and convenient" to appoint a receiver or grant an injunction or mandamus, respect must be given to what is just according to settled principles, as well as to what is convenient; 9 Ch. Div. 89.

"All my just debts" includes all debts; Wms. Ex. 1719; L. R. 4 H. L. 506. A direction to pay debts or just debts included a mortgage debt in exoneration of the property, but 30 and 31 Vict. c. 69, § 1, did away with that reasoning; 9 Ch. Div. 12, per Jessel, M. R. A direction to pay just debts did not include a note of the testator made before he was of age, and therefore voidable; Smith v. Mayo, 9 Mass. 62, 6 Am. Dec. 28. See also Smith v. Porter, 1 Binn. (Pa.) 209; Culley v. Hardenbergh, 1 Den. (N. Y.) 508; Martin v. Gage, 9 N. Y. 398.

JUST BEFORE. "At the time when," was the construction of these words in a plea to justify the killing of a dog; Ir. C. L. 156.

JUST COMPENSATION. See EMINENT DOMAIN.

JUSTICE. The constant and perpetual disposition to render to every man his due. Justinian, Inst. b. 1, tit. 1; Co. 2d Inst. 56. The conformity of our actions and our will to the law. Toullier, Droit Civ. Fr. tit. prél. n. 5.

Commutative justice is that virtue whose object it is to render to every one what belongs to him, as nearly as may be, or that which governs contracts. To render commutative justice, the judge must make an equality between the parties, that no one may be a gainer by another's loss.

Distributive justice is that virtue whose object it is to distribute rewards and punishments to each one according to his merits, observing a just proportion by comparing one person or fact with another, so that neither equal persons have unequal things nor unequal persons things equal. Tr. Eq. 3; and Toullier's learned note, Droit Civ. Fr. tit. prél. n. 7, note.

In the most extensive sense of the word it differs little from virtue; for it includes within itself the whole circle of virtues. Yet the common distinction between them is, that that which considered positively and in itself is called virtue, when considered relatively and with respect to others, has the name of justice. But justice, being in itself a part of virtue, is confined to things simply good or evil, and consists in a man's taking such a proportion of them as he ought.

Toullier exposes the want of utility and exactness in this division of distributive and commutative justice, adopted in the compendium or abridgments of the ancient doctors, and prefers the divisions of internal and external justice,—the first being a conformity of our will, and the latter a conformity of our actions, to the law, their union making perfect justice. Exterior justice is the object of jurisprudence; interior justice is the object of morality. Droit Civ. Fr. tit. prél. n. 6, 7.

According to the Frederician Code, part 1, book 1, tit. 2, s. 27, justice consists simply in letting every one enjoy the rights which he has acquired in virtue of the laws. And, as this definition includes all the other rules of right, there is properly but one single general rule of right, namely: Give every one his own.

Justice, in the language of Webster, "is the greatest interest of man on earth. It is the ligament which holds civilized nations to-Wherever her temple stands, and as long as it is duly honored, there is a foundation for social security, general happiness, and the improvement and the progress of our race. And whoever labors on this edifice with usefulness and distinction, whoever clears its foundations, strengthens its pillars, adorns its entablatures, or contributes to raise its august dome still higher in the skies, connects himself in name, and fame, and character, with that which is, and must be, as durable as the frame of human society."

in Norman French. Amenable to justice. Kelham, Dict.

In Foudal Law. Feudal jurisdiction, divided into high (alta justitia), and low (simplex inferior justitia), the former being a jurisdiction over matters of life and limb, the latter over smaller causes. Leg. Edw. Conf. c. 26; Du Cange. Sometimes high, low, and middle justice or jurisdiction were distinguished.

An assessment; Du Cange; also, a judicial fine. Du Cange.

At Common Law. A title given in England and America to judges of common-law courts, being a translation of justitia, which was anciently applied to common-law judges, while judex was applied to ecclesiastical judges and others; e. g. judex fiscalis. Leges Hen. I. §§ 24, 63; Anc. Laws & Inst. of Eng. Index; Co. Litt. 71 b.

The judges of the federal and state supreme courts are properly styled "justices."

"Justice of the High Court" is the title of judges of the High Court of Justice in the King's Bench and Probate, Divorce and Admiralty Divisions.

The term justice is also applied to the lowest judicial officers: e. g. a trial justice; a justice of the peace.

JUSTICE, DEPARTMENT OF. The act of September 24, 1789 (1 Stat. L. 92), organized the judicial business of the United States, made provision for an attorney-general, and charged him with the duty of prosecuting all suits in the supreme court in which the United States was in anywise interested, and of furnishing advice and opinions upon all questions of law when called upon to do so by the president or the heads of the other executive departments of the government. federal constitution provides that "the executive power shall be vested in the Presi- aminer of claims for the Departs dent of the United States," and alti does not specify any subordinate mi or administrative officers, yet there i ferential recognition of such officers provision that the president may the opinion in writing of the princi cer in each of the executive depa upon any subject relating to the d his department, and in the provision appointment of certain inferior office the heads of departments." The o tion of these departments is by the tion left to the congress, and it the purpose of providing for a dep which should administer the legal by the government that the above act w ed: 6 Op. Att. Gen. 327. The Department of Justice was general is the head of the departmen vision was made for "an officer les the law to assist the attorney-genera performance of his duties, called the or-general." He assists the attorney in the performance of his general and by special provision of law, in of 'a vacancy in the office of attor eral or in his absence, exercises al duties of that officer. Except w attorney-general otherwise directs, t itor-general conducts and argues a in the supreme court and in the claims in which the United States ested; and when he so directs, a case in any court of the United Sta be conducted and argued by the general, and in the same way the general may be sent by the attor eral to attend to the interests of the States in any state court or elsewher vision is also made for three officers in the law called assistant attorneys who assist the attorney-general and a general in the performance of their A fourth was provided by act of . 1890. By the act of March 3, 1891, tional assistant attorney-general was for the purpose of defending the States in suits brought in the court of under that act, for Indian depredation these assistant attorneys-general, charged with the defence of the States in suits brought against the ment in the court of claims under its and general jurisdiction. The solic eral and assistant attorneys-general pointed by the president of the Unite by and with the advice and consent senate, while the assistant attorneys

ized by act of June 22, 1870. The s

The act creating the Department tice also provided for a solicitor of th ury, an assistant solicitor of the t solicitor of internal revenue, a nav itor (abolished June 19, 1878), and pointed by the attorney-general.

commonly called the solicitor of the tment of State. They are appointed by resident by and with the advice and nt of the senate, and exercise their ons under the supervision and control head of the Department of Justice, alh they are assigned to duty in the reve departments for which they are apd. There is also provided an assistant ey-general for the Department of the or and for the Post Office Department, ikewise perform their duties under the al supervision and control of the attoreneral.

opinions of the attorney-general are hed officially and have authority the in kind, if not in degree, with the deciof courts of justice; 6 Op. Att. Gen. but see Precedent.

EXECUTIVE POWER; CABINET.

TICE, FLEEING FROM. In order to within the exception of "fleeing from e" in R. S. 1045, it is sufficient that is a flight with the intention of avoidosecution whether a prosecution has or ot been begun. It is not necessary that should be an intent to avoid the jusf the United States; it is enough that is an intent to avoid the justice of the which has jurisdiction over the same Streep v. U. S., 160 U. S. 128, 16 Sup. Ct. 0 L. Ed. 365. See Fugitive from Jus-EXTRADITION; RENDITION.

TICE OF THE PEACE. A public ofinvested with judicial powers for the se of preventing breaches of the peace ringing to punishment those who have ed the laws.

w class of officials was appointed in Engin 1327 specially entrusted with the conserva-the peace. Later they were allowed to re-indictments and to send those indicted for the justices of gaol delivery. In 1344 they hear and determine felonies and trespasses. they were assigned to every county in Eng-ne lord and three or four of the most worthy county, with some learned in the law, to he peace, to arrest and imprison offenders, rison and take surety of suspected persons hear and determine felonies and trespasses; ere, about this time, styled by their present The number varied. By one act they must most sufficient knights, esquires and gentle-the land; by another, residents in their s. They were appointed by the crown. They he permanent rulers of the county. More y their administrative powers had been giv-elective boards. They were subject to the of the courts of common law by means of erogative writs; by certiorari, their deci-an be questioned, and by mandamus they can ered to hear a case falling within their tion. 1 Holdsw. Hist. E. L. 124. le 18th century they were called fustices of Pollock, King's Peace; Pollock Expan. of

01. They were the king's officers appointed the performance of his office in their ree countles. id.

People ex rel. Burby v. Howland, it eld by the New York appellate diviture could not abolish the office of justice of the peace; 17 App. Div. 165, 45 N. Y. Supp. 347, 55 Alb. L. J. 319. The court said: "The office of justice of the peace is one of the oldest known to the English law. Originally it was merely a peace office, with no civil jurisdiction, but from a time long antedating the constitution (of New York) it was an office with both civil and criminal jurisdiction. Its most important functions are those of conservators of the peace, and administrators of the criminal law. statutes conferring the powers and duties of the office date so far back in the history of English law that they may be said to be common-law powers, adopted by us with the office and inseparable therefrom."

The office has existed in New York for two centuries, and is a constitutional office of great importance; People v. Howland, 155 N. Y. 270, 49 N. E. 775, 41 L. R. A. 838.

At common law justices of the peace have a double power in relation to the arrest of wrong-doers: when a felony or breach of the peace has been committed in their presence, they may personally arrest the offender, or command others to do so, and, in order to prevent the riotous consequences of a tumultuous assembly, they may command others to arrest affrayers when the affray has been committed in their presence. If a magistrate be not present when a crime is committed, before he can take a step to arrest the offender, an oath or affirmation must be made, by some person cognizant of the fact, that the offence has been committed, and that the person charged is the offender, or there is probable cause to believe that he has committed the offence.

Probably the most important function of justices of the peace, in the administration of criminal law, is their power of committing magistrates. This they have always, and in most states they have also jurisdiction, either sole or concurrent, with some criminal court of petty offences.

The constitution of the United States directs that "no warrants shall issue but upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation." Amendm. IV. After his arrest, the person charged is brought before the justice of the peace, and after hearing he is discharged, held to bail to answer to the complaint, or, for want of bail, committed to prison.

In some states it is held that where there are criminal courts of record in the county, justices of the peace have no trial jurisdiction in criminal causes, but can act only as committing magistrates; Jackson v. State, 33 Fla. 620, 15 South. 250; Baldwin & Co. v. Bond, 45 La. Ann. 1012, 13 South, 742,

In some of the United States, justices of the peace have jurisdiction in civil cases, given to them by local regulations. The f the supreme court that the legisla- | jurisdiction is usually confined to actions of contract, express or implied, replevin, and the like, where a small amount is involved. The limit ranges from $100 to $300, and usually torts and actions for unliquidated damages are not included. The local statutes must be consulted, but the statutes regulating the jurisdiction are sufficiently similar to make the citation of a few cases fairly illustrative of the principles generally applied.

Their civil jurisdiction did not exist by the common law, but depends upon the constitutional warrant or statutory enactment; Horton v. Elliott, 90 Ala. 480, 8 South. 103.

Where a justice has no jurisdiction the filing of an answer by defendant after the overruling of a motion to dismiss will not give him jurisdiction; Rogers v. Loop, 51 Ia. 41, 50 N. W. 224. Where the appointment was void the consent of parties cannot give jurisdiction to the justice; Crawford v. Saunders, 9 Tex. Civ. App. 225, 29 S. W. 102.

Where an action would lie in either contract or tort and suit is begun before a justice, in order to sustain the jurisdiction the action will be presumed to have been brought upon the contract; Schulhofer v. R. Co., 118 N. C. 1096, 24 S. E. 709.

Jurisdiction is sufficiently shown if it appears from the entire record of the proceeding; Sappington v. Lenz, 53 Mo. App. 44.

It is no objection to the jurisdiction that plaintiff remitted a part of his claim to bring it within the jurisdiction; Hunton v. Luce, 60 Ark. 146, 29 S. W. 151, 28 L. R. A. 221, 46 Am. St. Rep. 165; McPhail v. Johnson, 115 N. C. 298, 20 S. E. 373; even where unliquidated damages are claimed. lumber was delivered by instalments and the total amount exceeded the jurisdiction, the claim could not be split up into separate actions for the different deliveries in order to bring it within the jurisdictional amount; McPhail v. Johnson, 109 N. C. 571, 13 S. E. 799.

Where a stipulated attorney's fee would increase the amount beyond the jurisdiction, the fee may be considered in estimating the amount in controversy; Waters v. Walker (Tex.) 17 S. W. 1085; even if the stipulation for the fee is void; Warder, Bushnell & Glessner Co. v. Raymond, 7 S. D. 451, 64 N. W. 525.

Justices of the peace have been held to have no jurisdiction in trespass for the negligent killing of an animal; Ripple v. Keast, 16 Pa. Co. Ct. R. 548; or negligently allowing a dangerous animal to go at large; Sisco v. Miller, 2 Lack. Leg. N. (Pa.) 143; or for injuries to a horse by a defective culvert: Freedom Tp. v. Snowden, 5 Pa. Dist. R. 73; or in a suit on a foreign judgment; Baldwin v. Coyle, 7 Houst. (Del.) 327, 32 Atl. 15; in an action on the case for nuisance; Heisey v. Witmer, 4 Pa. Dist. R. 290; or for consequential damages due to negligence; Thilow Me. 530; Garfield v. Douglass, 22 I

v. Traction Co., 4 Pa. Dist. R. 83. jurisdiction was sustained in an act the destruction of fruit in baskets, r and crushed by the wheels of defe wagon, consequential damages not be volved; Conner v. Reardon, 8 Houst. 19, 31 Atl. 878; so also there was j tion of an action for killing a hors railroad company because of a breach tract to maintain cattle guards; Ha R. Co., 38 W. Va. 711, 18 S. E. 926.

The jurisdiction in a garnishment ing does not depend upon the amo garnishee may owe; Surine v. Bank App. 329; in an attachment the juri is determined by the amount in cont not the value of the property at Fly v. Grieb's Adm'r, 62 Ark. 209, 3 214; Gramling v. Dickey, 118 N. C. S. E. 671.

A justice of the peace has no pe vacate a judgment unless it be one fault or non-suit; Langford v. City of phan, 61 Mo. App. 288; nor to settle of exceptions; Vlasek v. Wilson, 44 62 N. W. 245; for the purpose of pre testimony on a hearing of a motion charge the attachment; Donaldson v. 43 Neb. 260, 61 N. W. 609; nor to nonsuit where a case is on trial befo ry; Gunn v. Wood, 99 Ga. 70, 24 S.

The court of a justice of the per been held a court of record; Pre-Turner, 57 Ind. 56; Fox v. Hoyt, 1 491, 31 Am. Dec. 760; for the reas it is bound to keep a record of its ; ings and has power to fine and im Hooker v. State, 7 Blackf. (Ind.) 27 it has also been held contra; Snyder 10 Pa. 157; Searcy v. Hogan, Hem Fed. Cas. No. 12,584a.

Justices of the peace are within the ciple that judicial officers are not lis damages for judicial acts, and only isterial acts in cases of intentional v of law or gross negligence; Gannon v 7 D. C. 264; Curnow v. Kessler, 110 10, 67 N. W. 982. It was held that he liable for rendering a judgment and an order of sale in an action on w had no jurisdiction, unless he know acted outside of it; Anderson v. (Tex.) 35 S. W. 416; or unless he act in good faith; Thompson v. Jack Ia. 376, 61 N. W. 1004, 27 L. R. A. 9

The refusal of a justice to appr appeal is a ministerial act, for wh action will lie against him if he act ruptly or maliciously; Legates v. L Houst. (Del.) 154, 32 Atl. 80.

If the action of a justice of the r strictly judicial and he has jurisdict is not liable to a civil action, how may be as to criminal prosecution, corruption is alleged; Tyler v. Alfe n. Dec. 137; Furr v. Moss, 52 N. C. 525; cuit by Richard Lucy the chief justiciar, by Henry of Essex the constable, and by Thomas Becket the the acts of a justice of the peace from commencement to the close of a suit to be considered judicial, rather than terial, so far as concerns questions of esponsibility; 1 Bish. N. Cr. L. § 463, Wertheimer v. Howard, 30 Mo. 420, n. Dec. 623; see State v. Dunnington, l. 340; but he is liable for exercising rity where he has none; Ely v. Thomp-A. K. Marsh. (Ky.) 70; where he acts inadequate allegation, but has jurish over the subject-matter, he is not; Stewart v. Hawley, 21 Wend. (N.

to the powers of justices of the peace, Ohio, L. J. 671; their jurisdiction; 16 it. Rep. 919, n.; summary jurisdiction; fag. & Rev. (N. S.) 1007; liability; 15 L. Rev. 492; 25 Am. Rep. 698-701, n.; chication of judgment; 5 Am. L. Reg. criminal examinations; 9 Alb. L. J. 17, 11 4d. 36. As to the administration of urisdiction before there were justices a peace, see Justices in Eyre.

ce magistrates were substituted in lelphia by the constitution of 1873.

generally, Burn; Davis; Graydon, e; Bache, Justice of the Peace; Beard, e of the Peace (1904); Com. Dig.; 15 Abr. 3; Bacon, Abr.; AMENDS; COURTS GLAND.

TICE SEAT. See COURT OF JUSTICE

TICES OF THE BENCH. Five just-two clerks and three laymen—all of ing's household, selected by Henry II ordered to hear all-appeals of the om and do justice and not to depart the king's court. They took precedence other judges. J. R. Green, in 1 Sels in Anglo-Amer. L. H. 137.

TICES' COURTS. Inferior tribunals, limited jurisdiction, both civil and sal. There are courts so called in the of Massachusetts and New Hampshire, robably other states.

TICES IN EYRE. Certain judges esned, if not first appointed, A. D. 1176, n. II.

and was divided into certain circuits, and ustices in eyre—or justices itinerant, as they be because the circuit of the kingdom once in years, for the purpose of trying causes, ere afterwards, when the judicial functions of greater importance, directed, by Magna c. 12, to be sent into every county once a The itinerant justices were sometimes more of assize or dower, or of general jail deand the like.

ing of the 12th century it is said that "the on of the counties by itinerant justices has ecoming systematic." The holding of the on circuit was evidently committed to judges it prominence. "From the early years of in (Henry II.) we hear of pleas held on cir-out by Richard Lucy the chief justiciar, by Henry of Essex the constable, and by Thomas Becket the chancellor. . . In 1176, to execute the assize of Northampton, eighteen justices were employed, and the country was divided into six circuits; in 1179, twenty-one justices were employed, and the country was divided into four circuits; indeed from 1176 onwards hardly a year went by without there being a visitation of some part of England. These itinerant justices seem to have been chiefly employed in hearing the pleas of the crown (for which purpose they were equipped with the power of obtaining accusations from the local juries), and in entertaining some or all of the new possessory actions. The court that they held was, as already said, curia regis, but it was not capitalis curia regis, and probably their powers were limited by the words of a temporary commission. They were not necessarily members of the central court, and they might be summoned before it to bear record of their doings; still it was usual that each party of justices should include some few members of the permanent tribunal." 1 Poll. & Maitl. 134.

justices should include some few members of the permanent tribunal." 1 Poll. & Maitl. 134.

These justices in eyre in the reign of Henry III. are thus described: "But we may distinguish the main types of these commissions. What seems treated as the humblest is the commission to deliver a jail. This . . . is done very frequently; generally it is done by some three or four knights of the shire, and thus long before the institution of justices of the peace, the country knights had been accustomed to do high criminal justice. In order to dispose of the possessory assizes of novel disseisin and mort d'ancestor, a vast number of commissions were issued in every year. Early in Henry's reign this work was often entrusted to four knights of the shire; at a later time one of the permanent justices would usually be named and allowed to associate some knights with himself. Apparently a justice of assize had often to visit many towns or even villages in each county; he did not do all his work at the county town. It must have been heavy work, for these actions were extremely popular. In the second year of Edward's reign some two thousand commissions of assize were issued. Just a that time the practice seems to have been to divide England into four circuits and to send two justices of assize round each circuit; but a full history of the circuits would be intricate and wearisome. Above all the other commissions rank the commission for an iter ad omnia placita, or more briefly for an iter, or eyre. An eyre had come to be a long and laborious business. In the first place, if we suppose an eyre in Cambridgeshire announced, this has the effect of stopping all Cambridgeshire business in the bench. Litigants who have been told to appear before the justices at Westminster will now have to appear before the justices in eyre at Cambridgeshire. There is no business before the bench at Westminster if an eyre has been proclaimed in all the counties. Then again the justices are provided with a long list of interrogatories (capitula itineris) which they are to address to local juries. Every hundred, every vill in the county must be rep-resented before them. These interrogatories—their number increases as time goes on—ransack the memories of the jurors, and the local records for all that has happened in the shire since the last eyre took place some seven years ago; every crime, every invasion of royal rights, every neglect of po-lice duties must be presented. The justices must sit in the county town from week to week and even from month to month before they will have got through the tedious task and inflicted the due tale of fines and amercements. Three or four of the permanent judges will be placed in the commis-sion; with them will be associated some of the magnates of the district; bishops and even abbots, magnates of the district; disapps and even about, to the scandal of strict churchmen, have to serve as justices in eyre. Probably it was thought expedient that some of the great freeholders of the country should be commissioned, in order that no man might say that his judges were not his peers.

An eyre was a sore burden; the men of Cornwall fled before the face of the justices; we hear assertions of a binding custom that an eyre shall not take place more than once in seven years. Expedients are being adopted which in course of time will enable the justices of assize to preside in the country over the trial of actions which are pending before the benches; thus without the terrors of an eyre, the trial of civil actions can take place in the counties and jurors need no longer be ever journeying to Westminster from their remote homes. But these expedients belong for the most part to Edward's reign; under his father a jury wearily travelling from Yorkshire or Devonshire towards London must have been no very uncommon sight." I Poll. & Maitl. 179, 180, 181.

The general eyre practically ceased by the reign of Edward III.

JUSTICES IN EYRE

of Edward III.
See 3 Bla. Com. 58; Crabb, Eng. Law 103; Co.
Litt. 293.

JUSTICES OF THE JEWS. See JEWS.

JUSTICES OF THE PAVILION (justiciarii pavilionis). Certain judges of a pyepouder court, of a most transcendent jurisdiction, authorized by the bishop of Winchester, at a fair held at St. Giles Hills near that city, by virtue of letters-patent granted by Edw. IV. Prynne's Animadv. on Coke's appointed by Edward I. during his absence in the Scotch and French wars, about the year 1305. They were so styled, it is said, from trailing or drawing the baston (q. v.), or staff of justice. They were a sort of justices in eyre, with large and summary powers. Their office was to make inquisition, throughout the kingdom, of all officers, and others, touching extortion, bribery, and such like grievances of intruders into other men's lands, barrators, robbers, breakers of the peace, and divers other offenders; Cowell; Toml.; Old. N. B. fol. 52; 12 Co. 25.

JUSTICES OF THE QUORUM. See QUOBUM.

4th Inst. fol. 191.

They are supposed to date from 1276. In Coke's time they had long ceased to exist. They were the connecting link between justices in eyre and justices of oyer and terminer. They enquired as to persons who disturb the peace, who maintain malefactors and who illtreat jurors. 1 Holdsw. H. E. L. 118.

JUSTICIABLE. Such a question or matter as may properly come before a tribunal for decision. A dispute as to the title to real estate is a justiciable question; Minnesota v. Hitchcock, 185 U. S. 373, 22 Sup. Ct. 650, 46 L. Ed. 954; see also Kansas v. Colorado, 206 U. S. 46, 27 Sup. Ct. 655, 51 L. Ed. 956.

JUSTICIAR, JUSTICIER. In Old English Law. A judge or justice. Baker, fol. 118; Mon. Angl. One of several persons learned in the law, who sat in the aula regis, and formed a kind of court of appeal in cases of difficulty.

The chief justiciar (capitalis justiciarius) officer in defending a judge of the totius Angliæ) was a special magistrate, who States, engaged in the discharge of presided over the whole curia reg was the principal minister of state, ond man in the kingdom, and by v his office, guardian of the realm in th absence. 3 Bla. Com. 37; Spelman 330; 2 Hawk. Pl. Cr. 6. The last w this title was Philip Basset, in the Hen. III. After 1234, the office f abeyance; Harcourt, Lord Stewa: The powers of the office went to the justice of the King's Bench and the of the household. Id. 128.

See also 2 Sel. Essays in Anglo-A

H. 213.

JUSTICIARII ITINERANTES

Justices in eyre (q. v.).

JUSTICIARII RESIDENTES (Lat

JUSTICIARII RESIDENTES (Lat tices or judges who usually resided i minster: they were so called to dist them from justices in eyre. Co. Li JUSTICIARY. Another name for a In Latin, he was called justiciarius, French, justicier. Not used. Baco Courts (A).

JUSTICIES (from verb justiciare, do justice to). In English Law. A writ, in the nature of a commissipowering a sheriff to hold plea in his court of a cause which he could not a risdiction of without this writ: e. pass vi et armis for any sum, and sonal actions above forty shillings.

Just. 449. So called from the Latijusticies, used in the writ, which runcipimus tibi quod justicies A B," e command you to do A B right, etc. I
lib. 4, tr. 6, c. 13; Kitch. 74; Fitzh

117; 3 Bla. Com. 3, 6.

is committed with the intention to ki do a grievous bodily injury, under stances which the law holds sufficient culpate the person who commits it. who, in pursuance of his duty, prosentence of death, is not guilty of ho for it is evident that, as the law proceeding the punishment of death for certain of it must protect those who are intrust its execution. A judge, therefore, we nounces sentence of death, in a legal ner, on a legal indictment, legally before him, for a capital offence cor within his jurisdiction, after a lawf no offence; 1 Hale, Pl. Cr. 496.

Magistrates, or other officers in with the preservation of the public are justified in committing homicide, ing orders which lead to it, if the of a riotous assembly cannot be of repressed; 4 Bla. Com. 178, 179. So cide is justifiable, when committed officer in defending a judge of the States, engaged in the discharge of and conviction of the defendant, is g duties; In re Neagle, 135 U.S. 1, 101 t. 658, 34 L. Ed. 55.

officer intrusted with a legal warrant, al or civil, and lawfully commanded competent tribunal to execute it, will stified in committing homicide, if in urse of advancing to discharge his dube brought into such perils that withoing so he cannot either save his life charge the duty which he is commandthe warrant to perform. And when the nt commands him to put a criminal to he is justified in obeying it; Cl. Cr. . See, State v. Rollins, 113 N. C. 722, E. 394. In endeavoring to make an arn officer has the right to use all the that is necessary to overcome all rece, even to the taking of life; State v. erger, 96 Mo. 666, 10 S. W. 168, 9 Am. p. 380.

oldier on duty is justified in commitomicide, in obedience to the command officer, unless the command was some-plainly unlawful.

an may be justified in killing another vent the debauching of his wife; Futch te, 90 Ga. 472, 16 S. E. 102.

rivate individual will, in many cases, stified in committing homicide while in self-defence; Fields v. State, 134 6, 32 N. E. 780; Lovett v. State, 30 42, 11 South. 550, 17 L. R. A. 705; v. State, 97 Ala. 32, 11 South. 914; o v. State, 31 Tex. Cr. R. 56, 20 S. W. If a trespass on the person or property other amounts to a felony, the killing trespasser will be justifiable, if necesin order to prevent it; Crawford v. 90 Ga. 701, 17 S. E. 628, 35 Am. St. 242. It is not true as a general propoe life of the party so assaulting him; v. West, 45 La. Ann. 14, 12 South. 7. ame circumstances that will justify or e the homicide where the assault is upe's self, will also excuse or justify the if the killing is done in defence of his v or servant; Hathaway v. State, 32 66, 13 South. 592. See DEFENCE.

instruction to a jury requiring a justin of homicide to be established beyond sonable doubt is erroneous; People v. 65 Hun 420, 20 N. Y. Supp. 187.

establish a case of justifiable homicide st appear that the assault upon the er was such as would lead a reasonaerson to believe that his life was in Allen v. U. S., 164 U. S. 492, 17 Sup. 4, 41 L. Ed. 528.

ARREST; HOMICIDE; JUSTIFICATION.

TIFICATION. In Pleading. The alon of matter of fact by the defendant, ishing his legal right to do the act ained of by the plaintiff.

as a wrong, but alleges a right to do it on the part of the defendant, thus denying that it is a wrong. Excuse merely shows reasons why the defendant should not make good the injury which the plaintiff has suffered from some wrong done. See AvowRy.

Justification is said to be the law's permission to injure others because of some countervailing benefit to society outweighing the harm done; 26 Harv. L. Rev. 741. The benefit may assume many forms, as prevention of crime, freedom of speech, free competition, or the free beneficial use of property by the owner, etc.; id.

It is said that all justifications will fall into one of two classes: 1. Where the objects sought for are so important that motive must be ignored; 2. Where the objects are not so important but that the presence of ill will may turn the scale; Munster v. Lamb, 11 Q. B. D. 588; McLaughlin v. Cowley, 127 Mass. 316.

Trespasses. A warrant, regular on its face, and issued by a court of competent jurisdiction, is a complete justification to the officer to whom it is directed for obeying its command, whether it be really valid or not. But where the warrant is absolutely void, or apparently irregular in an important respect, or where the act done is one which is beyond the power conferred by the warrant, it is no justification. See Arrest; TRESPASS. So, too, many acts, and even homicide committed in self-defence, or defence of wife, children, or servants, are justifiable; Archb. Cr. P. by Pom. 681, n.; see SELF-DEFENCE; DEFENCE; JUSTIFIABLE HOM-ICIDE; or in preserving the public peace; see ARREST; TRESPASS; or under a license, express or implied; Case v. De Goes, 3 Cai. (N. Y.) 261; Robson v. Jones, 2 Bail. (S. C.) 4; U. S. v. Gear, 3 McLean 571, Fed. Cas. No. a dangerous weapon is justified in tak-2 W. & S. (Pa.) 225, 37 Am. Dec. 508; Richardson v. Anthony, 12 Vt. 273; to ask lodgings at an inn, the entry in such cases being peaceful; to exercise an incorporeal right; Hayward v. Pilgrim Society, 21 Pick. (Mass.) 272; or for public service in case of exigency, as pulling down houses to stop a fire; Year B. 13 Hen. VIII. 16 b; destroying the suburbs of a city in time of war; Year B. 8 Edw. IV. 35 b; entry on land to make fortifications or in preservation of the owner's rights of property; Sterling v. Peet, 14 Conn. 255; 4 D. & B. 110; Fiske v. Small, 25 Me. 453; King v. Kline, 6 Pa. 318; Almy v. Grinnell, 12 Metc. (Mass.) 53, 45 Am. Dec. 238.

Libel and slander may be justified in a civil action, in some cases, by proving the truth of the matter alleged, and generally by showing that the defendant had a right upon the particular occasion either to write and publish the writing or to utter the words: as, when slanderous words are found fication admits the doing of the act charged in a report of a committee of congress, or in an indictment, or words of a slanderous nature are uttered in the course of debate in the legislature by a member, or at the bar by counsel when properly instructed by his client on the subject. Comyns, Dig. Pleader. See SLANDER.

Matter in justification must be specially pleaded, and cannot be given in evidence under the general issue. See License. A plea of justification to an action for slander, oral or written, should state the charge with the same degree of certainty and precision as is required in an indictment. The object of the plea is to give the plaintiff, who is in truth an accused person, the means of knowing what are the matters alleged against him. It must be direct and explicit. It must in every respect correspond with, and be as extensive as the charge in, the declaration.

The justification, however, will be complete if it covers the essence of the libel. But it must extend to every part which could by itself form a substantive ground of action. Where the slander consists in an imputation of crime, the plea of justification must contain the same degree of precision as is requisite in an indictment for the crime, and must be supported by the same proof that is required on the trial of such an indictment. It is a perfectly well-established rule that where the charge is general in its nature, yet the plea of justification must state specific instances of the misconduct imputed to the plaintiff. And, even for the purpose of avoiding prolixity, a plea of justification cannot make a general charge of criminality or misconduct, but must set out the specific facts in which the imputed offence consists, and with such certainty as to afford the plaintiff an opportunity of joining issue precisely upon their existence. Heard, Lib. & Sl. § 240. See LIBEL.

When established by evidence, it furnishes a complete bar to the action.

in Practice. The proceeding by which bail establish their ability to perform the undertaking of the bond or recognizance.

It must take place before an authorized magistrate; Jones v. Badger, 5 Binn. (Pa.) 461; Fenn v. Smith, 6 Johns. (N. Y.) 124; 13 Johns. (N. Y.) 422; and notice must, in general, be given by the party proposing the bail, to the opposite party, of the names of the bail and the intention to justify; Jaques v. Hemphill, 3 Harr. (Del.) 503. See Cade v. Young, 8 N. J. L. 369.

It is a common provision that bail must justify in double the amount of the recognizance if exceptions are taken; Louis v. Mitchell, 2 IIIII (N. Y.) 379; otherwise, a justification in the amount of the recognizance is, in general, sufficient.

It must be made within a specified time, or the persons named cease to be bail; People v. Judges, 1 Cow. (N. Y.) 54. See Stock-have exercised jurisdiction for the ton v. Throgmorton, Baldw. 148, Fe No. 13,463.

JUSTIFICATORS. A kind of cortors, or those who, by oath, justified nocence or oaths of others, as in the wages of law.

JUSTIFYING BAIL. In Practice production of bail in court, who there themselves against the exception plaintiff. See Bail; Justification.

JUSTITIUM. In Civil Law. A sus or intermission of the administration tice in courts; vacation time. Calv.

JUSTS, or JOUSTS. Exercises a martial men and persons of honor spears, on horseback; different from ments, which were military exercitween many men in troops. 24 Hen. 13.

JUVENILE COURTS. Courts have cial jurisdiction, of a paternal nature delinquent and neglected children.

The thought that the child who has to go wrong, who has broken a law o nance, is to be taken in hand by the not as an enemy, but as a protector, the principle which was first fully d in the act under which the juvenile c Chicago was opened July 1, 1899. C soon followed, and since that time legislation has been adopted in o states, as well as in Great Britain a land, Canada and the Australian c Juvenile court legislation has assum aspects: In New York and a few of risdictions, protection is accomplish suspending sentence, or in the case moval from the home, sending the chi school instead of a jail. But in Illin in most jurisdictions, the designated criminal responsibility is advanced fr common law age of 7 to some higher 17 or 18, and under most juvenile cou a child under the designated age is proceeded against criminally only w the judgment of the judge presiding, terest of the state and of the child r this to be done; In re Powell, 6 Okl. (

South. 3.
Objection has been made that this is theless a criminal proceeding and the child is entitled to a trial by jury all the constitutional rights that hedge a criminal. The act, according to Fisher, 213 Pa. 48, 62 Atl. 198, 5 Ann. is but an exercise by the state of its spower over the welfare of its children if the proceedings against the individed in the proceedings against the individed criminal, his constitutional rights in carefully safeguarded. Such penal a strictly construed; State v. Dunn, 53 of 99 Pac. 278, 100 Pac. 258. For over the turies the courts of chancery in Face overgreigned invisibility.

120 Pac. 1022; State v. Reed, 123 La.

of the unfortunate child. The proposithat this court could not act unless the had property is wholly unsupported by principle or authority; [1892] 2 Chan.

[1909] 2 Ch. 260.

uvenile court has jurisdiction of an ofby a child punishable by hard labor; v. Reed, 123 La. 411, 49 South. 3. The liction to hear such cases is generally i in an existing court having equity rs. In some cities, however, special s have been provided. By Colorado Act 09, provision is made for hearings benasters in chancery to be appointed by enile court judge and acting under his ion. The legislature cannot confer on t court commissioners powers with refe to juvenile offenders which require edings within the power of courts of i only; Hunt v. Wayne Circuit Judges, lich. 93, 105 N. W. 531, 3 L. R. A. (N. 34, 7 Ann. Cas. 821.

an article in 23 Harv. L. Rev. 104, by

Mack.

e legislature cannot confer on circuit commissioners powers with reference venile offenders which require proceedwithin the power of courts of record Hunt v. Wayne Circuit Judges, 142 93, 105 N. W. 531, 3 L. R. A. (N. S.) Ann. Cas. 821. A Pennsylvania statute nated the court of quarter sessions as enile court; it was contended that the nai was an unconstitutional body and ut jurisdiction, but it was held that court of quarter sessions is not simply minal court. The constitution recogit, but says nothing as to its jurisdic-

Its existence antedates our colotimes, and by the common law and tes, both here and in England, it has for ations been a court of broad general powers in no way connected with its nal jurisdiction. . . With its jution unrestricted by the constitution, it exercised by it as a general police court, and, instead of creating a distinctly new court, the act of 1903 does nothing more than confer additional powers upon the old court and clearly define them. . . . It is a mere convenient designation of the court of quarter sessions to call it when caring for children a juvenile court, but no such court as an independent tribunal is created. still a court of quarter sessions before which the proceedings are conducted . . . and the records are still those of the court of quarter sessions;" Com. v. Fisher, 213 Pa. 48, 62 Atl. 198, 5 Ann. Cas. 92. An earlier act in that state had been held unconstitutional (1901) as creating a classification which offended against the provision forbidding the passage of any special law regulating practice and jurisdiction in judicial proceedings or granting to any individual any special privilege or immunity; Mansfield's Case, 22 Pa. Super. Ct. 224.

A Missouri act relating to neglected and delinquent children was upheld, though it provided a rule of procedure and punishment for such children which was not applicable to the same class of children in other counties, upon the ground that the conditions which prevail in thickly settled districts reasonably justified the distinction; Ex parte Loving, 178 Mo. 194, 77 S. W. 508.

JUVENILE OFFENDERS. See JUVENILE COURTS.

JUXTA CONVENTIONEM. According to the covenant. Fleta, lib. 4, c. 16, § 6.

JUXTA TENOREM SEQUENTEM. According to the tenor following. 2 Salk. 417. A phrase used in the old books when the very words themselves referred to were set forth. Id.; 1 Ld. Raym. 415.

powers in no way connected with its purification. . . With its jution unrestricted by the constitution, it the legislature to declare what shall be ing a single judge.

K

K. B. King's Bench. See Courts of Eng- | summons from the lord chief-justice in

K. C. King's Counsel. See BARRISTER.

KALENDÆ. Rural chapters or conventions of the rural deans and parochial clergy, formerly held on the calends of every month. Kenn. Paroch. Antiq. 604.

KALENDS. See Ides.

KANSAS. The name of one of the states of the United States of America.

The state was carved out of a portion of the Louisiana purchase, and a small portion of the territory ceded to the United States by Texas.

The territory of Kansas was organized by an act of congress, dated May 30, 1854.

The constitution was adopted at Wyandotte July 29, 1859, and Kansas was admitted into the Union as a state, by an act of the congress, approved, January 20, 1861. An amendment providing for wo-man suffrage was adopted in 1912.

"The body of the laws of England as they existed in the fourth year of the reign of James I. (1607) constitutes the common law of this state." Kansas Pac. Ry. Co. v. Nichols, 9 Kan. 252, 12 Am. Rep. 494.

KEELAGE. The right of demanding money for the bottom of ships resting in a port or harbor. The money so paid is also called keelage.

KEELS. This word is applied, in England, to vessels employed in the carriage of coals. Jacob, Law Dict.

To heed; observe; regard; at-KEEP. tend to.

When it is said that a certain man keeps a woman, the popular inference is, that the relation is one which involves illicit intercourse; Downing v. Wilson, 36 Ala. 717. See Barrett v. R. Co., 3 Allen (Mass.) 101; Cummings v. Riley, 52 N. H. 368. To keep a street in safe condition, means to have it so; to make and remake it so; City of Atlanta v. Buchanan, 76 Ga. 585. To keep premises in repair is to have them at all times in that condition; 1 B. & Ald. 585.

Keep down interest. To pay interest periodically as it becomes due, but the phrase does not extend to the payment of all arrears of interest which may have become due on any security from the time when the instrument was executed. 4 El. & Bl. 211.

To warrant the conviction of one as the keeper of a common gaming house, he need not be the proprietor or lessee; it is sufficient if he has the general superintendence. Stevens v. People, 67 Ill. 587.

KEEPER OF THE FOREST (called, also, the chief warden of the forest). An officer who had the principal government over all officers within the forest, and warned them to appear at the court of justice-seat on a for purposes of traffic, though the out

Manw. For. Law, part 1, p. 156. See F LAW.

KEEPER OF THE GREAT SEAL keeper of the great seal). A judicial who is by virtue of his office a memb the privy council. Through his hands all charters, commissions, and grants crown, to be sealed with the great which is under his keeping. The office consolidated with that of lord chancell 5 Eliz. c. 18. Co. 4th Inst. 87; 1 Hai Cr. 171, 174; 3 Bla. Com. 47.

At times the great seal is "put in co sion"; i. e. is entrusted to one or mor cials who act under a special comm from the crown. Such is the case who lord chancellor is absent from the cou there was an instance in the last centu tween the resignation of the lord char and the appointment of his successor.

See Cancellarius; Chancellor. KEEPER OF THE KING'S CONSCIE The lord high chancellor is the keep the king's conscience. Historically it i to the fact that the king in early tim ferred to such official the duty of redr wrongs. See Chancellor.

KEEPER OF THE PRIVY SEAL. officer through whose hands go all cha pardons, etc., signed by the king befo ing to the great seal, and some which o go there at all. He is of the privy of virtute officii. He was first called cle the privy seal, then guardian, then privy seal, which is his present design 12 Ric. II. c. 12; Rot. Parl. 11 Hen Stat. 34 Hen. VIII. c. 4; 4 Inst. 55; Com. 347. See Privy Seal.

KEEPING. In an insurance pol clause prohibiting the keeping or h benzine in insured premises, was he be intended to prevent the permanen habitual storage of the prohibited ar and that taking it on the premises for purpose of cleaning machinery was not in the prohibition; Mears v. Ins. Co., 15, 37 Am. Rep. 647.

KEEPING BOOKS. Preserving an i gent record of a merchant's or trades affairs with such reasonable accuracy care as may properly be expected fr man in that business. An intentional sion, or repeated omissions, evincing carelessness will vitiate; an accidenta ure to make a proper entry will no Bankr. Reg. 152.

KEEPING OPEN. A statute probi shops to be kept open on Sunday is vi where one allows general access to his (Mass.) 308; Lynch v. People, 16 Mich.

EPING TERM. In English Law. A duformed by students of law, consisting ing a sufficient number of dinners in o make the term count for the purpose ng called to the bar. Moz. & W.

EPING THE PEACE. See SURETY OF EACE.

P-SHORE. The land between high w water mark. Stroud. Jud. Dict. when the conveyance, "with the kelpby the metes and bounds given, maniexcluded the land between high and ater mark, it was held to be excluded, arol proof could not be received of tention to include it; 10 Ir. C. L. 150.

VILWORTH, DICTUM OF. An award by Henry III. and parliament in 1266 e pacification of the kingdom.

INING TO THE TERCE. in Scotoh The ascertainment by a sheriff of the roportion of the husband's lands which s to the widow in virtue of her terce rd. An assignment of dower by sherrskine, Inst. 11. 9. 50; Bell, Dict.

ITLEDGE or KINTLEDGE. The pert ballast of a ship. Ab. Sh. 6.

NTUCKY. The name of one of the l States of America.

state was formerly a part of Virginia, which act of its legislature, passed December 18, nsented that the district of Kentucky within isdiction of the said commonwealth, and acto its actual boundaries at the time of passact aforesaid, should be formed into a new By the act of congress of February, 1791, 1 Laws 168, congress consented that, after the ay of June, 1792, the district of Kentucky be formed into a new state, separate from dependent of the commonwealth of Virginia. the second section it is enacted, that upon resaid first day of June, 1792, the said new by the name and style of the state of Kenshall be received and admitted into this as a new and entire member of the United of America.

resent constitution of this state was adopted ber 28, 1891. An act was passed in 1914 pro-an amendment allowing the employment of labor upon public roads and bridges.

ROSENE. A rock or earth oil. Morse . Co., 30 Wis. 534, 11 Am. Rep. 587.

s, in a commercial sense, a refined coal rth oil, and is embraced within those as used in an insurance policy. Ben-. Ins. Co., 81 N. Y. 273, 37 Am. Rep. 501. not petroleum, but made from the lata process of a distillation and refine-Bennett v. Ins. Co., 81 N. Y. 273, 37 tep. 501.

ourt will not take judicial notice that ne is an "inflammable fluid" within eaning of an insurance policy, it must oved as a fact; Wood v. Ins. Co., 46 N.

es are closed. Com. v. Harrison, 11 | "burning fluid"; Mark v. Ins. Co., 24 Hun (N. Y.) 565. See Morse v. Ins. Co., 30 Wis. 534, 11 Am. Rep. 587.

It is a question for the jury whether kerosene is a burning fluid or chemical oil; Mears v. Ins. Co., 92 Pa. 15, 37 Am. Rep. 647; or a drug; Carrigan v. Ins. Co., 53 Vt. 418, 38 Am. Rep. 687; where the court, after quoting Webster's definition of a drug, as "any mineral substance used in chemical operations," declined to say as matter of law that benzine is not included in that term. See Risks and Perils; Oil; Negli-GENCE; MINES AND MINING; GAS.

An instrument made for closing and opening a lock.

The keys of a house are considered as real estate, and descend to the heir with the inheritance; 11 Co. 50 b; 30 E. L. & Eq. 598; but although they follow the inheritance, they are not fixtures, so far as that the taking of them is not larceny; Hoskins v. Tarrence, 5 Blackf. (Ind.) 417, 35 Am. Dec. 129; 5 Taunt. 518.

When the keys of a warehouse are delivered to a purchaser of goods locked up there, with a view of effecting a delivery of such goods, the delivery is complete. The doctrine of the civil law is the same; Dig. 41. 1. 9. 6; 18. 1. 74; Benj. Sales, 6th Am. ed. § 1043; 3 Term 464. See Donatio Mortis CAUSA; GIFT.

Keys are implements of housebreaking within statute 14 & 15 Vict. c. 19, § 1; for, though commonly used for lawful purposes they are capable of being employed for purposes of housebreaking; and it is a question for the jury whether the person found in possession of them by night had them without lawful excuse, with the intention of using them as implements of housebreaking; 3 C. & K. 250; and the statute was held to include skeleton, or any other kind of key used for purposes of housebreaking; id. Entering by a key left in the door locked on the outside is not housebreaking; 1 Swint. Jus. Cas. 433. See Burglary.

KEYAGE. A toll paid for loading and unloading merchandise at a quay or wharf.

KEYS. The twenty-four chief commoners in the Isle of Man who form the local legislature. 1 Steph. Com., 100.

KIDEL or KIDDLE. An open weir whereby fish are caught. 2 Inst. 38.

"Weirs (kidelli or gurgites) were the means usual in ancient times for appropriating and enjoying several fisheries in tidal waters." Lord Selborne, L. C., in 8 App. Cas. 144.

KIDNAPPING. The forcible abduction or stealing away of a man, woman, or child from their own country and sending them into another. 4 Bla. Com. 219. At common 1; nor that it comes under the words | law it is a misdemeanor; Comb. 10.

There is no wide difference in meaning; was rather to provide against the kid between kidnapping, false imprisonment, and The better view seems to be that kidnapping is a false imprisonment, which it always includes, aggravated by the carrying of the person to some other place; Archb. Cr. P. by Pom. 984; 2 Bish. Cr. L. § 750. See Ex parte Keil, 85 Cal. 309, 24 Pac. 742. It has been held that transportation to a foreign country is not necessary, though this conflicts with Blackstone's definition, supra; State v. Rollins, 8 N. H. 550. See 1 East, P. C. 429. The consent of a mature person of sound mind prevents any act from being kidnapping; otherwise as to a young child; a child of nine years has been held too young to render his consent available as a defence; Cl. Cr. L. 221; State v. Farrar, 41 N. H. 53; Com. v. Nickerson, 5 Allen (Mass.) 518; Gravett v. State, 74 Ga. 191; U. S. v. Ancarola, 17 Blatchf. 423, 1 Fed. 676; but a female fourteen years of age is not kidnapped, if taken away with her consent for the purpose of marriage, and she actually marries; Cochran v. State, 91 Ga. 763, 18 S. E. 16; so, going away by previous arrangement with an unmarried woman who, becoming intoxicated, remained for some days, in illicit intercourse, and was then brought back at her request, was not kidnapping; Eberling v. State, 136 Ind. 117, 35 N. E. 1023. Physical force need not be applied, threats will suffice; Payson v. Macomber, 3 Allen (Mass.) 69; or fraudulently acquiring consent; People v. De Leon, 109 N. Y. 226, 16 N. E. 46, 4 Am. St. Rep. 444. The crime may be effected by means of menaces; Moody v. People, 20 Ill. 315; or by getting a man drunk; Hadden v. People, 25 N. Y. 373. Where the custody of a child is assigned to one of two divorced parents, and the other, or a third person employed for the purpose, carries it off, it is kidnapping; State v. Farrar, 41 N. H. 53; Com. v. Nickerson, 5 Allen (Mass.) 518. It was held that within the meaning of the statute against kidnapping, any place where a child has a right to be is its residence; Wallace v. State, 147 Ind. 621, 47 N. E. 13. In this case two children who were acrobats had been sent away from home for the purpose of giving exhibitions to raise money with which to relieve the necessities of the family. While absent from their parents they were decoyed away by defendant, who was indicted for kidnapping under the Indiana statute. The court held that they had not acquired a permanent residence, but they were at a place they had a right to be-to which they had been sent by their parents, engaged in the business for which they had been sent. "The purpose of the statute here under consideration certainly was not that a child might be kidnapped at its father's house, but not if it were on a visit at a friend's in a near or distant city. The evident purpose Mo. 271. See NEXT OF KIN.

KIDNAPPING

of a person from any place where h right to be, whether that be the place 'temporary sojourn or permanent d A child may be kidnapped, not only domicile or the home of its parents, I wise from a neighbor's house, from or school, or hotel, from a hall of entertainment, or, in fact, from an where it has a right to be; and it is sense that the word 'residence' is her 17 N. Y. L. J. 842.

One who takes his child of tende out of the state, with its consent a the consent of the mother to whom tody has been awarded in divorce ings, to prevent its presence at a trial in which it had been subpæna witness, is not guilty of kidnapping v. State, 6 Wyo. 203, 44 Pac. 51. Ne Illinois, and other states have pass utes on kidnapping. See ABDUCTION; Cr. 962; Click v. State, 3 Tex. 282; Blodgett, 12 Metc. (Mass.) 56; Peop Leon, 47 Hun (N. Y.) 308; Com. v. My Pa. 24, 23 Atl. 164. Where defends cured an adjudication that the perso ed to have been kidnapped was insa without using force, publicly conve to a lunatic asylum, though she was sane at the time, he was not guilt; offence of kidnapping; People v. Ca N. Y. 87, 34 N. E. 755.

The indictment must be found in t ty in which the person was seized in one through which he was carried v. Whaley, 2 Harring. (Del.) 538.

It has been held, however, that th ing away is not essential; State v. 8 N. H. 550. The crime includes a f prisonment; 2 Bish. Cr. Law § 67 ABDUCTION.

It has been held that in order to kidnapped person his friends may u force as will be necessary, and tha there is an attack upon the rescuers ing of the kidnapper in self-defence i able homicide; Delaney v. Com., 2

KILL (Dutch). Originally the b river or creek, and by relation used the stream itself. It is so used in D and New York, but has been said no distinct legal signification. Fr Carhart, 1 N. Y. 96.

KIN. Legal relationship; proper tions by blood, but often including t marriage. It has been held to includ in-law under a statute disqualifying a of the peace, in cases to which his k parties; Hibbard v. Odell, 16 Wis. 6 a second cousin, of a mother under a disqualifying jurors in cases where of kin were parties; State v. Wa k. 213, 10 S. W. 491.

ther kind quoted is not synonymous mother quality quoted; 3 Q. B. D. 341. s case the reference was to seed. As ns of property to be repaid "in kind," KIND; LOAN FOR CONSUMPTION.

DRED. Relations by blood. 2 Jarm. 643; Wetter v. Walker, 62 Ga. 144, g 2 Wms. Ex. 815. It is in some cases, er, used to include relations in law, ldren by adoption in a statute; Power fley, 85 Ky. 671, 4 S. W. 683; but not idson adopted as a son, so as to make ed include the adopting parent; Delano ierton, 148 Mass. 619, 20 N. E. 308, 2 L. 698. It was held that as the word kinin the statute of descents means lawndred, that term did not include the r of a bastard, when the right accrued to the act enabling illegitimate children erit; Hughes v. Decker, 38 Me. 153. umphries v. Davis, 100 Ind. 280, 50 Am. 88; Wunderle v. Wunderle, 144 Ill. 40, E. 195, 19 L. R. A. 84. See BASTARD; NT AND DISTRIBUTION.

kindred of every one are divided into principal classes. 1. His children, and descendants. 2. His father, mother, other ascendants. 3. His collateral ons; which include, in the first place, rothers and sisters, and their deints; and, secondly, his uncles, cousins, ther relations of either sex, who have escended from a brother or sister of All kindred, then, are deeceased. ints, ascendants, or collaterals. A husor wife of the deceased, therefore, is is or her kindred; 14 Ves. 372. See

Inst. 50; Ayliffe, Parerg. 425; Dane, Toullier, Ex. 382, 2 Sharsw. Bla. Com. .; Pothler, Des Successions, c. 1, art. 3. G. The ruler of a kingdom. See REG-

EARS: SOVEREIGN.

G CAN DO NO WRONG. This maxim that the king is not responsible legalaught he may please to do, or for any on. Aust. Jur. sect. VI. It does not that everything done by the governis just and lawful, but that whatever eptionable in the conduct of public atis not to be imputed to the king; 2 Com., 11th. ed. 486.

king could not be sued in his own it was therefore held that he must rough a servant; otherwise, in case of ngful act, the subject would have no y. But the theory that the king can wrong, and therefore cannot authorize ng, and that, if wrong is done, it is the ! his servant (see 2 B. & S. 257), is a refinement; 3 Holdsw. Hist. E. L. 311. s maxim has no place in the system of who is called a queen.

D. The agreement that a collector of | constitutional law of the United States, as was to receive his commission "in applicable either to the government or any means the same kind of funds in of its officers, or of the several states or any the tax is collected; Wilson v. State, of their officers; Langford v. U. S., 101 U. S. 343, 25 L. Ed. 1010. Our government is not liable for the wrongful and unauthorized acts of its officers, however high their place, and though done under a mistaken zeal for the public good; Gibbons v. U. S., 8 Wall. (U. S.) 269, 19 L. Ed. 453. See Poindexter v. Greenhow, 114 U.S. 290, 5 Sup. Ct. 903, 962, 29 L. Ed. 185.

KING OF ARMS. See HERALD.

KING'S BENCH. See Courts of Eng-

KING'S CHAMBER. A term applied to fauces terræ (q. v.). See 1 Phill. Int. Law 239; Halleck, Int. Law 139.

KING'S or QUEEN'S COUNSEL. Barristers or serjeants who have been called within the bar and selected to be the king's counsel. They answer in some measure to the advocati fisci, or advocates of the revenue, among the Romans. They must not be employed against the crown without special leave, which was, however, always granted, at a cost of about nine pounds; 3 Sharsw. Bla. Com. 27, note.

See BARRISTER; SERJEANTS-AT-LAW.

KING'S EVIDENCE. An accomplice in a felony, who, on an implied promise of pardon if he fully and fairly discloses the truth, is admitted as evidence for the crown against his accomplices. 1 Phill. Ev. 81. A jury may, if they please, convict on the unsupported testimony of an accomplice; Tayl. Ev. 830; 4 Steph. Com. 398. On giving a full and fair confession of truth, the accomplice has a strong claim to a recommendation to mercy. He cannot be admitted to testify as king's evidence after judgment against him; 2 Russ. Cr. 956. In the United States, this is known as state's evidence. See Accomplice.

KING'S PEACE. See CONSERVATOR OF THE PEACE; PEACE.

KING'S REMEMBRANCER. See REMEM-BRANCER.

KING'S SERJEANT. See SEBJEANT.

KING'S SILVER. A fine or payment due to the king for leave to agree in order to levy a fine (finalis concordia). 2 Bla. Com. 350; Dy. 320, pl. 19; 1 Leon. 249, 250; 2 id. 56, 179, 233, 234; 5 Co. 39.

KING'S WIDOW. A widow of the king's principal tenant, who was obliged to take oath in chancery not to marry without the king's consent. Whart. Lex.

KINGDOM. A country where an officer called a king exercises the powers of government, whether the same be absolute or limted. Wolff. Inst. Nat. § 94. In some kingdoms, the executive officer may be a woman, KINSBOTE (from kin, and bote, a composition). In Saxon Law. A composition for killing a kinsman. Anc. Laws & Inst. of Eng. App. 287; 1 Bish. N. Cr. L. § 388; a ladex, Bote.

KINSMAN. A man of the same race or family; one related by blood. Webster.

KIRBY'S QUEST. An ancient record remaining with the remembrancer of the English exchequer; so called from being the inquest of John de Kirby, treasurer to Edward I.

KISSING THE BOOK. A ceremony used in taking the corporal oath, the object being, as the canonists say, to denote the assent of the witness to the oath in the form it is imposed. The witness kisses either the whole Bible, or some portion of it; or a cross in some countries. See the ceremony explained in Oughton's Ordo. tit. lxxx.; Consitt. on Courts, part 3, sect. 1, § 3; Junkin, Oath 173, 180; 2 Pothier, Obl., Evans ed. 234. In Pennsylvania, by act of 1895, the witness places his right hand on the Bible, but does not kiss it.

KLEPTOMANIA. Insanity in the form of an irresistible propensity to steal. Wharton. See Looney v. State, 10 Tex. App. 520, 38 Am. Rep. 646. A form of insanity which is said to manifest itself by a propensity to acts of theft. Tayl. Med. Jur., Bell's ed. 766. A weakening of the will power to such an extent as to leave the afflicted one powerless to control his impulse to appropriate the personal property of others. State v. McCullough, 114 Ia. 532, 87 N. W. 503, 55 L. R. A. 378, 89 Am. St. Rep. 382.

It is said to be often shown in cases of women, laboring under their peculiar diseases or of those far advanced in pregnancy. There have been instances of well-educated persons who have taken articles of no value and without apparent motive. If it appears that the accused was incompetent to know that the act was wrong, the facts may establish a plea of insanity; 4d., quoting Tindal, C. J.

A sharp distinction is made between kleptomania and the tendency to steal so commonly observed in the well defined forms of insanity; the former is a defective mental characteristic approaching the confines of insanity on one subject alone, while the individual, on all other subjects, is perfectly sane. It differs from shoplifting in that the shoplifter steals for a purpose, and only those articles which are of value, while the kleptomaniac takes goods of any description, often of no use to herself and with no motive for their possession; 4 Am. Lawy. 533.

In determining the responsibility of such persons for their acts, the principal subjects to be considered are the absence of any real motive, the knowledge of previous acts of a similar character, the history of hereditary taint, and the presence of a neurotic condition; 3 Witth. & Beck. Med. Jur. 279.

Kleptomania is regarded as simil homicidal insanity; Harris v. State, 18 App. 287; 1 Bish. N. Cr. L. § 388; a has been held a valid defence; Har State, 18 Tex. App. 287; but when i rejected as a defence, the court would disturb the verdict; Com. v. Fritch, Co. Ct. Rep. 164.

As to irresistible impulse as a defer criminal cases, see INSANITY.

A charge to a jury to apply the and wrong" test to the particular fact sufficient charge in a kleptomania case, if it is a disease depriving one of the of right and wrong as to theft, it metest, and if it is merely an irresistible pulse to steal, it is no defence; Lo State, 44 Tex. Cr. R. 224, 70 S. W. 206. Taylor (1 Med. Jurispr. 820) points ou in most of the cases there has appeared a perfect consciousness of the act and illegality. 2. The article, though of twalue, has still been of some use to the son (for instances, articles of female up of the son that is the same and the same articles of female up articles of female to conceal the theft. 4. Either a combined when detected, or some evasive excuss adds that "it is now not recognized type of insanity by itself," and given instance of an acquittal of a klepton upon the ground that, though not in there was an absence of felonious interest.

on which money could be raised). 3. has been act and precaution in endea

In an English case, tried in 1875, a comman charged with stealing, had taken when the shopkeeper's back was turne concealed them in his pocket. He adenied taking them, then offered to put them, and then attempted to leave. It is there was medical evidence that he suffered from brain disease, and had quite deranged at times. The opinimedical experts was that the accused do know the nature or quality of the act to committed, at the time he had commit and he was acquitted. Tayl. Med. Jur., ed. 767.

It approaches the confines of insanit while, as physicians, we might claim nity, as jurists, we "can only believe the best interests of society are subserved holding the person responsible"; 3 Will Becker, Med. Jurispr. 253.

KNACKER. One who slaughters upor diseased animals or deals in such. Dict. A regular occupation in Londo other large cities, regulated by act of liament August 18, 1911.

KNAVE. A false, dishonest, or deperson. This signification of the wor arisen by a long perversion of its or meaning, which was merely servant tendant.

To call a man a knave has been held actionable; 1 Rolle, Abr. 52; 1 Freem Harding v. Brooks, 5 Pick. (Mass.) 244

EEL. ut resting on them is to kneel. 36 L. . 10.

IGHT. In English Law. The next perdignity after the nobility.

the administration of royal justice, of the work was formerly done by the ts; as for the more solemn, ancient, ecisive processes. To swear to a quesf possession, free and lawful men were red, but to give the final and conclusive et about a matter of right, knights were sary. In administrative law, therefore, ts were liable to special burdens, but in her respect did he differ from the mere nan; 1 Poll. & Maitl. 394.

knights there are several orders and es. The first in rank are knights of Barter, instituted by Edward III. in next follows, a knight banneret; then knights of the Bath instituted by Hen-., and revived by George I.; and they so called from a custom of bathing the before their creation. The other orare the Thistle, St. Patrick, St. Michael St. George, the Star of India, and the n Empire. The last order are knights lors, who, though the lowest, are yet nost ancient, order of knighthood; for nd that King Alfred conferred this orpon his son Athelstan. 1 Bla. Com. 403. are sometimes called knights of the ber, being such as are made in time ace, and so called because knighted in ting's chamber, and not in the field. d Inst. 666. Knights were called equibecause they always served on horseaurati, from the gilt spurs they wore; nilites, because they formed the royal in virtue of their feudal tenures.

ights have precedence next after baronhe wife of a knight has the legal design of Dame, for which Lady is usually ltuted. Cent. Dict.

BARONET.

IGHT-MARSHAL. See Marshalsea.

IGHT'S FEE was anciently so much of heritance in land as was sufficient to tain a knight; and every man possessed ch an estate was obliged to be knighted, attend the king in his wars, or pay a iary sum in lieu thereof, called escuage. e time of Henry II. the estate was esed at twenty pounds a year; but Lord in his time, states it to be an estate t hundred and eighty acres. Co. Litt. See 1 Poll. & Maitl. 232.

IGHT'S SERVICE. Upon the Norman est, all the lands in England were diinto knight's fees, in number above thousand; and for every knight's fee, ght was bound to attend the king in his forty days in a year, in which space me a campaign was generally finished. man only held half a knight's fee, he (Mass.) 35. Bouv .- 114

To bend the knees in worship | was only bound to attend twenty days; and so in proportion. But this personal service, in process of time, grew into pecuniary commutations, or aids; until at last, with the military part of the feudal system, it was abolished at the restoration, by the statute of 12 Car. II. c. 24. 1 Bla. Com. 410; 2 id. 62; Will. Real. Pr. 144; 1 Poll. & Maitl. 230.

> KNOCKED DOWN. A phrase used with reference to an auction, when the auctioneer by the fall of his hammer, or by any other audible or visible announcement, signifies to the bidder that he is entitled to the property on paying the amount of his bid, according to the terms of the sale. Sherwood v. Reade, 7 Hill (N. Y.) 439.

See Auction.

KNOW. To have knowledge; to possess information, instruction, or wisdom. v. Ransberger, 106 Mo. 135, 17 S. W. 290.

"It may fairly be assumed that one who has reason to believe a fact exists, knows it exists. Certainly if he be a reasonable being." Strong, J., in Shaw v. R. Co., 101 U. S. 557, 25 L. Ed. 892.

KNOW ALL MEN BY THESE PRESENTS. See Presents.

KNOWINGLY. In a statute imposing a penalty upon any one who shall knowingly sell, supply, etc., actual personal knowledge. Verona Cent. Cheese Factory v. Murtaugh, 4 Lans. (N. Y.) 17. In an indictment, a charge that one willfully testified falsely, includes the assertion that he knowingly so testified; State v. Stein, 48 Minn. 466, 51 N. W. 474. The word "knowingly," or "well knowing," will supply the place of a positive averment, in an indictment or declaration, that the defendant knew the facts subsequently stated; if notice or knowledge be unnecessarily stated, the allegation may be rejected as surplusage. See Com. Dig. Indictment (G 6); Com. v. Kirby, 2 Cush. (Mass.) 577; 2 East 452; 1 Chitty, Pl. 367.

KNOWLEDGE. Information as to a fact. The act of knowing; clear perception of the truth; firm belief; information. Knowledge "is not confined to what we have personally observed or to what we have evolved by our own cognitive faculties." State v. Ransberger, 106 Mo. 135, 17 S. W. 290. Where in a charge in a homicide case the court used the expression "knowledge to explain," circumstances proven "tending to show that the defendant was connected with the homicide," it was held to be synonymous with "ability to explain"; Adams v. State, 28 Fla. 511, 10 South. 106.

"Knowledge is information and information knowledge." 1 Heming 1; 5 Esp. 53.

"Absolute knowledge can be had of but few things." Story v. Buffum, 8 Allen tion to take life. It is true that in t mission of all crimes a guilty pur criminal will and motive, are implied

"In a legal sense it may be classified as him, it is murder, though he had no positive and imputed—imputed, when the means of knowledge exist, known and accessible to the party, and capable of communicating positive information. When there is knowledge, notice, as legally and technically understood, becomes immaterial. It is only material when, in the absence of knowledge, it produces the same results. However closely actual notice may, in many instances, approximate knowledge and constructive notice may be its equivalent in effect, there may be actual notice without knowledge; and when constructive notice is made the test to determine priorities of right, it may fall far short of knowledge and be sufficient." Cleveland Woolen Mills v. Sibert, 81 Ala. 140, 1 South. 773.

Many acts are perfectly innocent when the party performing them is not aware of certain circumstances attending them; for example, a man may pass a counterfeit note, and be guiltless, if he did not know it was so; he may receive stolen goods, if he were not aware of the fact that they were stolen. In these and the like cases it is the guilty knowledge which makes the crime.

Such guilty knowledge is made by the statute a constituent part of the offence; and therefore it must be averred and proved as such. But it is in general true, and may be considered as a rule almost necessary to the restraint and punishment of crimes, that when a man does that which by the common law or by statute is unlawful, and in pursuing his criminal purpose does that which constitutes another and different offence, he shall be held responsible for all the legal consequences of such criminal act. When a man, without justifiable cause, intends to the line of descent. People v. Ry wound or maim another, and in doing it kills Hun 175, 19 N. Y. Supp. 977.

in general, such bad motive or crimin and purpose, that disposition of mis heart which is designated by the gene significant term "malice," is implied the criminal act itself. But if a ma an act, which would be otherwise co through mistake or accident, or by f the compulsion of others, in which h will and mind do not instigate him act or concur in it, it is matter of o to be averred and proved on his par does not arise out of the circumsta the case adduced on the part of the cution. Per Shaw, C. J., in Com. v. 2 Metc. (Mass.) 192, 35 Am. Dec. 398. it is not necessary, in an indictment an unmarried man for adultery with ried woman, to aver that he knew, time when the offence was committee

See, as to the proof of guilty kno 1 B. & H. Lead. Cr. Cas. 185-191. TENT; IGNORANCE. As to the doctrine puted knowledge, see Notice.

she was a married woman; nor is it sary to prove such knowledge at the

Com. v. Elwell, 2 Metc. (Mass.) 190,

Dec. 398.

KNOWN HEIRS. In a statute to the sale of property of unknown it has been held to mean those perso are known, and whose right to inh the extent of whose right, to inherit pendent on the non-existence of oth sons nearer or as near as the ance English money the small l is the sign ounds. It is also an abbreviation for (book), law, lord. L. 5. means Long arts of the Year Books.

L

S. See Locus Sigilli.

Pr. •156.

CHAMBRE DES ESTEILLES. The chamber. See Court of Star Chamber. BEL. A slip of ribbon, parchment, or r, attached to a deed or other writing ld the appended seal.

nguished from a trade-mark proper; ne, Trade-Marks 👫 133, 537, 538. The f labels will be protected by a court of y under some circumstances; id. 538. TRADE-MARK; INFRINGEMENT; UNION L LAWS. copy of a writ in the English Exchequer.

BOR. Work requiring exertion or efeither physical or mental; toil.

bor and business are not synonymous; may be business, but it is not necessari-, and business is not always labor.

e labor and skill of one man are fretly used in a partnership, and valued as to the capital of another. e contract labor prohibition in the imation act of February 20, 1907, makes it sdemeanor "In any manner whatsoever, epay the transportation or in any way ssist or encourage the importation or ation of any contract laborer or conlaborers into the United States," unexempted under the provisos of sec. 2 e act; which exceptions are skilled laof any kind which cannot be found unoyed in this country, professional actors, ts, lecturers, singers, ministers of any lous denomination, professors of collegseminaries, or persons belonging to any mized learned profession, or persons emd strictly as personal domestic serv-U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, 503. A ge in the act of 1907 above stated.

sion of a similar character was con-

The twelfth letter of the alphabet, ing employment to aliens are made viola-Roman numeral it stands for 50. In tions of the act, as also is solicitation of immigration by transportation companies, vessel owners, etc. Section 8 provides for the punishment of any person, including masto, which is the designation of one of ters, owners, etc., of vessels, who brings aliens into the country in violation of the act.

LABOR

The act is a constitutional exercise of the power to regulate commerce; U. S. v. Craig, 28 Fed. 795; In re Florio, 43 Fed. 114; it was passed to protect the health, morals, and safety of the people of this country; Warren v. U. S., 58 Fed. 559, 7 C. C. A. 368, the ordinary use of the word, it is a 5 U. S. App. 656. The purpose of the statof paper attached to articles of manu- ute was to stay the influx of cheap unskillre for the purpose of describing them ed labor, and it does not include the case of ecifying their quality, etc., or the name one engaged as a draper, window dresser e maker. The use of a label has been and dry goods clerk; U. S. v. Gay, 95 Fed. 226, 37 C. C. A. 46. It must appear that the alien did in fact emigrate, and that the person who assisted him knew that he was under contract; U. S. v. Borneman, 41 Fed. 751; there must have been a contract made previously to the importation, to perform labor here; Moller v. U. S., 57 Fed. 490, 6 C. C. A. 459, 13 U. S. App. 472. Where an alien writes to a resident proposing to come here and enter the service of the resident and the latter accepts the offer and pays his passage, it is not within the act; U. S. v. Edgar, 48 Fed. 91, 1 C. C. A. 49, 4 U. S. App. 41, affirming 45 Fed. 44.

> A laborer on a dairy farm is not a domestic servant; In re Cummings, 32 Fed. 75; a milliner is not a professional artist; U. S. v. Thompson, 41 Fed. 28; a clergyman brought to this country under contract to take charge of a church as a rector is not within the act; Church of Holy Trinity v. U. S., 143 U. S. 457, 12 Sup. Ct. 511, 36 L. Ed. 226; nor are alien seamen using our ports for their ships; U. S. v. Burke, 99 Fed.

One is not liable to deportation as a laborer who at the time of the passage of the act requiring alien laborers to register, was a merchant and who subsequently performed labor on a fruit farm which he leased; U. S. v. Sing Lee, 71 Fed. 680; nor is a chemist on a sugar plantation, though his expenses are paid; U. S. v. Laws, 163 U. S. 258, 16 Sup. Ct. 998, 41 L. Ed. 151. Expert accountants imported under contract were d in the act of February 26, 1885, but was superseded by the act of March 3, held not members of a recognized learned which was re-enacted with some profession and not entitled to entry; In re | Ellis, 124 Fed. 637. One who came to this e decisions here given, though most, if country upon promise of employment at stipall of them, are under the old statute, ulated wages by one who advanced money doubtless equally applicable to the later for his passage, secured by mortgage, and so entirely similar are their provisions. worked for the person at the stipulated waec. 6 of the act, advertisements promis- ges and designated occupation, repaid the advance out of his wages and continued so employed for a year, was within the act; Ex parte George, 180 Fed. 785.

LABOR

As to new industries, excepted in the act, it has been held that the manufacture of fine lace curtains, which had been carried on in this country for only about three years and was still confined to two or three establishments, was such; U. S. v. Bromiley, 58 Fed. 554; as was also the manufacture of "French silk stockings": U. S. v. McCallum, 44 Fed. 745.

A clause in the constitution of California forbidding the employment by a corporation of any Chinese or Mongolian has been held in conflict with the treaty of the United States with China and void: In re Tiburcio Parrott, 1 Fed. 481; so in New York a statute forbidding a contractor on public work to employ an alien was held a violation of the treaty with Italy and void; People v. Warren, 13 Misc. 615, 34 N. Y. Supp. 942. See ALIEN; CITIZEN.

The provision of the New York Penal Code declaring it to be a misdemeanor to require as a condition of employment that the employé shall not belong to a labor organization violates the state constitution and the fourteenth amendment by infringing the right of contract; People v. Marcus, 110 App. Div. 255, 97 N. Y. Supp. 322; and the court of appeals in that state, reversing the appellate division, held valid a contract providing that only union members should be employed, to which the parties were the employer, his employés and the labor union; Jacobs v. Cohen, 183 N. Y. 207, 76 N. E. 5, 2 L. R. A. (N. S.) 292, 111 Am. St. Rep. 730, 5 Ann. Cas. 280; and see note on this subject; 19 Harv. L. R. 368.

See TRUCK ACTS.

LABOR A JURY. To tamper with a jury; to persuade jurymen not to appear. seems to come from the meaning of labor, to prosecute with energy, to urge: as to labor a point. Dy. 48; Hob. 294; Co. Litt. 157 b; 14 & 20 Hen. VII. 30, 11. The first lawyer that came from England to practice in Boston was sent back for laboring a jury. Washb. Jud. Hist.

LABOR ARBITRATION. The investigation and determination of disputed matters between employers and employes.

The subject of "arbitration and conciliation" with respect to the settlement of labor disputes is at the time of writing one of very present consideration throughout the world. The words quoted are constantly used together, but arbitration strictly applies to cases where the parties agree beforehand to abide by the award, while conciliation is the term used where there is no agreement, but the efforts are made by some indifferent party as a mediator to promote an agreement between the parties.

In Great Britain the subject of the peaceable settlement of trade disputes has progressed much more than in this country and in some of the British colonies the subject has reached a very advanced stage.

It is a curious fact that during the struggle in this country to devise some effective system of labor arbitration, little attention seems to have been paid till recently to very successful efforts in that direction in England which long antedated any American legislation. At a very early period the regulation of wages was controlled by two masters and two journeymen, or, in default of agreement, by a magistrate after hearing both sides, but this was terminated by the separation of the masters and journeymen into two classes, and thereafter wages were fixed either by the employers or the magistrates. The latter system prevailed under the apprenticeship law of Elizabeth, and this continued until early in the eighteenth century, except in the cotton factories, which were not within the law. In this industry, there was satisfactory regulation by a joint committee of laborers and employers, but towards the latter end of the eighteenth century, the latter obtained general control and the apprentice law was repealed. From then until about 1860, this condition remained undisturbed except by frequent petitions to parliament, although in the book printing business the trades unions secured an arrangement for settling price lists by a joint committee of employers and laborers, which was in operation with good success since 1805.

In 1860 the system of arbitration and agreement originated by a manufacturer, Mr. Mundella, successfully dealt with the labor problem in the various branches of trade involved in the stocking weaving and glove industries of the three counties of Nottingham, Leicestershire, and Derbyshire. The system, in brief, provided for a court of arbitration and agreement to decide every question relative to wages. It consisted of nine employers and nine laborers, selected respectively by an assembly of their own class for one year. The court had a regular organization with a standing executive committee by which all disputes were disposed of so far as practicable, the final judgment, however, being entered by the court. The two interests involved the decisions were binding. Under this system, there was no umpire and no provision for the execution of the judgment, the reliance being entirely upon the moral force of the statute, conscience, and the pressure of public opinion. The practical working of these courts was very successful and, quoting Mr. Mundella, July 4, 1868, "during eight years we had not a single strike, and never in the history of our city and our industry did there exist such a hearty good understanding between employers and laborers as now." laborers as now." The rules may be found in detail in chap. 18 of The Relation of Labor to the Law of To-day, by Brentano, translated by Porter Sherman, from which the historical facts here stated are mainly taken.

Another system of courts of arbitration and agreement was that of Rupert Kettle, a judge of the county court of Worcestershire; the statutes drawn by him were adopted by the employers and laborers in the building trades in Wolverhampton. They were in their main features similar to the Mundella courts, but differed from the latter in the fundamental point of providing an impartial umpire, and through legal provisions, the judgments were made binding in law. These provisions, however, were but seldom required in practice, as the presence of an impartial umpire had a tendency to produce an agreement without calling upon him; id. The result of the actual working of these two systems for many years is that they have approached each other, in that those of Kettle have become mere courts of agreement and those of Mundella have in most cases elected an impartial umpire who decides in case of a tie. The relation between the trades unions and the courts of arbitration in many districts has become very intimate, the former making ion in their organization for the labor repreion in the latter, paying the laborer's share expenses of the courts and enforcing the ents by expelling members who do not obey

The courts are similarly supported by so-of employers; id.

work cited sums up the result: "And from industries at Nottingham and Wolverhampnce that time the organization of peace has d from industry to industry and from city to ntil the system has been adopted in a greater s degree in the most important centres of industry. But everywhere, where in an ina court of arbitration according to one or her of the two systems has been established, has been since that time neither a strike nor out."

reat Britain the instrumentality which seems of most importance is found in voluntary boards, which are permanent joint boards enting employés and work people in partic-rades. The organization of such bodies dates back as 1849; the first which attained sucas in 1860; since that time joint committees ards have been formed in various trades and tions until in 1890 the first general district was formed in London through the chamber nmerce, being a result of a committee of tion in the great London dock strike in 1889. the threat of a general railway strike causformation of boards of conciliation for rail-companies and their employés. These joint usually consist of equal numbers representuployers and employed with either an indeit person as chairman, or, as is more frethe chairman being an employer and the nairman a workman or their representatives tively. If the chairman is independent he ast a vote, otherwise there is apt to be an e provided for; and if one cannot be agreed he is selected under the regulations by some neutral body or individual. A common pro-is that there shall be equality of voting bethe two bodies represented without respect actual number of either present.

r to 1896, whatever was done in this direction cluntary, although various attempts had been to promote arbitration and conciliation by tion. The conciliation act of 1896 empowerboard of trade, in case of differences, to take to promote a settlement. Their powers are with much detail, and the proceedings, de-to lead up to a binding agreement, are voland have in the main been reasonably suc-During eleven years the number of cases ich action was taken by the board of trade yearly average of 21, out of which the setits average 15, and of these three-quarters effected by arbitration and one quarter by ation. During the ten years commencing 1897 the number of cases considered by the s standing boards of arbitration and conciliaveraged annually about 1,500, of which one-rere settled and the remainder withdrawn or rise settled. Of the cases settled, about three-rs were by the boards and one-quarter by es. The whole subject in England is still in native state and has not reached the stage of lsory arbitration. The Trades Disputes Act, s to granting civil actions, appears to be the act.

he British colonies, however, the subject is r advanced and in some of them very much n Canada a conciliation act was passed in ind in 1903 another act had special reference settlement of railway disputes. These two saving been consolidated in 1907, there was tion providing for a board to deal with inal disputes on the application of either side ver a strike involving more than ten emis threatened. The provisions of the act e availed of in other industries, the original aving applied to mines and public utilities.

uts are made unlawful as are also strikes on account of a dispute prior to or during a reference of the dispute to the board, but there is no provision as to subsequent strikes or lockouts.

LABOR ARBITRATION

In New Zealand compulsory arbitration is in force and effect under the industrial, conciliation and arbitration act of 1894. Provision is made for the incorporation of associations of employers or workmen, termed industrial unions, and for the creation of joint district conciliation boards with an impartial chairman, elected by the board, to which disputes may be referred to by either party. If either party refuses to accept the decision, it is passed on to a court of arbitration consisting of two representatives of each side and a judge of the supreme court, whose award is enforcible by legal process with financial penalties for default. Strikes and lockouts are equally illegal. It is said that thus far the success of the system has been only partial.

In Australia there had been previous acts in 1901, in New South Wales and in Western Australia in 1901 and 1902, which were somewhat like the New Zealand system with modifications as to details; but in 1904 the commonwealth of Australia passed a compulsory arbitration law based mainly on the previous ones of New Zealand and New South Wales, and it may safely be said that the laws of this island continent on the subject are more stringent than any others in force throughout the

In France a law of conciliation and arbitration was passed in 1892 under which either party to a labor dispute may apply to the juge de paix, who notifies the other party, and, if they concur, a joint committee of conciliation is formed of not more than five on each side who meet in the presence of the juge, who has no vote. In default of agreement the parties are asked to appoint arbitrators and they agree on an umpire if possible, otherwise the president of the civil tribunal appoints In case of a strike and no application, the one. fuge de paix may invite the parties to act. The results of the action of these authorities are placarded by the mayors of the communes affected and the parties are free to accept or reject the action indicated by the law. In ten years beginning with 1897, there were 1809 cases, of which 916 were on application of workmen, 49 of employers, 40 of both, and 804 of neither; and of these 616 were settled, 549 by conciliation and 67 by arbitration.

In Germany they have industrial courts termed gewertegerichten, which may under certain conditions offer their services as mediators in ordinary labor disputes. The principal law was passed in 1890 and amended in 1901. The court intervenes on the application of both parties or may do so on the invitation of one sido or its own initiative in case of strike or lockout. The conciliation board consists, under the amended law, of the president of the court and representatives of equal numbers named by the parties respectively, but not con-cerned in the dispute, or, in default of such appointment by the president. A certain time is allowed for the acceptance of the decision, but there is no power to compel its observance. In five years, commencing with 1902, there were 1139 applications for intervention and 492 agreements, with 107 decisions of the courts, of which 64 were accepted by both sides.

In Switzerland there are laws looking to negotiation, conciliation or arbitration of trade disputes, in Geneva (1900) and in Basel (1897). Both contemplate provisions merely for voluntary conciliation; the first law was, to the end of 1904, applied only to seven cases, and under the second, during four years beginning with 1902, eighteen disputes were submitted and ten settled. Under a similar law in St. Gall (1902), in three years ten disputes were submitted and three settled.

In Sweden under the law of 1907 there are seven district conciliators, named by the crown, whose duty is to promote the settlement of labor disputes and to advise employers and workmen in framing agreements designed to promote good relations and prevent stoppage of work.

In this country there has been legislation on the subject, the first act being that of 1883 in Pennsylvania which proved ineffective. In at least twenty-four states there are constitutional or statutory provisions for mediation in labor disputes and in at least seventeen of these the formation of permanent state boards is contemplated. There are state boards of arbitration in Massachusetts and New York, both founded in 1886. the former the board consists of one employer, one employé, and one independent person mutually chosen; in the latter it consists of two representatives of different political parties and one member of a bona fide trade organization of the state. In both states the boards proceed, with or without application, to investigate labor disputes on the spot and if possible to promote a settlement. Their services may be declined, but the board may issue a report and hold an inquiry on the application from either side and publish its decision, which in Massachusetts is effectual for six months unless sixty days' notice to the contrary is given by one side to the In Massachusetts, during 1906 the state board dealt with 158 disputes of which the board was asked to arbitrate in 95 cases; of 80 cases in which awards were rendered, 12 were withdrawn and 3 were unsettled at the end of the year. In New York a like number of cases were entered. In many states there are provisions not only for state, but also for local, boards.

In some states, as New Hampshire and Georgia, the commissioner of labor is authorized to investigate and institute efforts for the amicable settlement of labor disputes. In Wisconsin there is provision for compulsory investigation by a state industrial commission and publication of results; and as in Canada, there is reliance on public opinion to enforce their findings. The creation of a similar body has been publicly agitated in Massachusetts.

Without attempting to give in detail the state legislation, these instances are referred to as illustrating the trend of public thought on the subject.

The federal legislation necessarily is limited to disputes affecting interstate commerce; an act was passed June 1, 1898 (Erdman act), providing that in case of a dispute resulting in various interruptions of business on railways engaged in interstate commerce the chairman of the interstate commerce commission and the commissioner of labor shall, on application of either party, make an effort to bring about a settlement or induce the parties to consent to arbitration, and while an arbitration is pending strikes and lockouts are made unlawful. By act of March 4, 1911, the president is authorized to designate from time to time any other member of the interstate commerce commission or of the court of commerce to exercise the powers in the Erdman act devolved chairman. Comp. Stat. 1911, 1385.

By the act of March 4, 1913, creat department of labor, it was provided 8 "that the secretary of labor shall power to act as mediator and to appoint missioners of conciliation in labor dwhenever in his judgment the interindustrial peace may require it to be 37 Stat. L. 738.

37 Stat. L. 738. The act of July 15, 1913 (Newland provides that whenever a controvers cerning wages, hours of labor or con of employment shall arise between a c carrier engaged in interstate or foreig merce wholly by railroad or partly b road and partly by water, and its em which is interrupting or threatening terrupt the business of the carrier serious detriment of public interest, t ther party may apply to the board of tion and conciliation created by this a invoke its services for the purpose of ing about an amicable adjustment controversy. If it cannot be settle mediation and conciliation, then the shall induce the parties to submit th troversy to arbitration of a board of or six members to be chosen by the en and employes. The award of the boa the papers and proceedings, including testimony relating thereto, shall be file the clerk of the district court for the c where the arbitration is entered in wherein the controversy arises, and ment shall be entered on the award expiration of ten days from such filin less within that time either party sh exceptions, and then judgment will controversies between railway com and certain classes of their employés. The whole subject is well discusses summarized in the title "Arbitratio Conciliation" in the Encyc. Brit. from much of the foregoing information rived and in which will be found a d discussion and statement of the hist the subject so far as the action of di countries is concerned.

tered when the exceptions have been di of. This act repeals the act of June 1 relating to the mediation and arbitrat

See Peonage; Liberty of Contract

LABOR UNION. A combination of ciation of laborers for the purpose of the rate of their wages and hours of for their mutual benefit and protectio for the purpose of righting grie against their employers.

In England when the rate of wages

In England when the rate of wage fixed by law or by the determination magistrate, and when there was a staprovision against conspiracies and covamong workmen not to make or do work except at a certain rate or provided the statement of the state tion of workmen to refuse to work for such per diem, though the matter about h they conspired might be lawful for of them or for any of them to do had not conspired to do it; the Journeymen ors case, 8 Mod. 11; but in the United es, though this decision was followed e case of the Boot and Shoemakers of delphia; Pamphlet 1806; the Pittsburg wainers; Pamphlet, 1816; and in Peo-7. Fisher, 14 Wend. (N. Y.) 9, 28 Am. 501, and People v. Melvin, 2 Wheel. Cr. (N. Y.) 262; yet they were decided by ior courts, and in the first case before supreme court of Pennsylvania (Com. irlisle) that court held that a combinaof employers to reduce the wages of employés was not unlawful; Bright. In the case of the Master Stevedores v. h, Daly, J., upheld this principle and ed the authority of the English case; er Stevedores' Ass'n v. Walsh, 2 Daly Y.) 1; as did Shaw, J., in Com. v. Hunt, tc. (Mass.) 111, 38 Am. Dec. 346; and cases may be considered as having Itely settled the law in this country that nbination of laborers for a lawful purdoes not amount to a conspiracy.

England, however, the Journeymen rs case, supra, was followed as late as when it was held that a bond signed by een employers to conduct their business rates of wages, time of work, etc., was nbination in restraint of trade and null void at common law; 6 El. & Bl. 47; in 1869 the court was divided as to her a labor union whose by-laws counnced strikes was not thereby rendered il; L. R. 4 Q. B. 602. In 1824 the first vas passed in England which legalized ombination of workmen; 5 Geo. IV. c. out this was repealed the following year, by the repealing act the combination of men was made lawful for the purpose reeing upon the prices which they might nd and the hours during which they d work, but making punishable any apt to enforce the laws of the comg workmen by violence and intimida-6 Geo. IV. c. 129. In 1871 two acts passed for the purpose of consolidatand settling the law; 34 & 35 Vict. c. and these were supplemented by the es Union Amendment Act of 1876; these tes going so far as to declare such comions lawful even when acting (peacein restraint of trade, the statute prog that no agreement or combination of or more to do, or procure to be done, ct in contemplation or furtherance of a dispute between employer and workshall be indictable as a conspiracy, if act would not be criminal if committed ne; 38 & 39 Vict. c. 86. In this country states have enacted an exact copy of law of conspiracy seems to be repealed, and in others it is modified. For legislation on the subject and the course of decisions concerning it, see Stimson, Lab. Law sec. 55.

The right of entering and leaving the service of an employer is one that every man possesses and is one of the corollaries of personal liberty, and it has almost uniformly been held that the same right might be exercised by any number of men jointly, if conducted in a peaceable and orderly manner and attended with no infringement of the rights of others; Bohn Mfg. Co. v. Hollis, 54 Minn. 223, 55 N. W. 1119, 21 L. R. A. 337, 40 Am. St. Rep. 319; contra, State v. Donaldson, 32 N. J. L. 151, 90 Am. Dec. 649. It has been held that such unions have an entire right to seek to compel employers to deal solely with men belonging to their union by all proper means, as by persuasion or even by a properly conducted strike; Jacobs v. Cohen, 183 N. Y. 207, 76 N. E. 5, 2 L. R. A. (N. S.) 292, 111 Am. St. Rep. 730, 5 Ann. Cas. 280; they may by their representative present to a concern against which a strike has been declared an agreement for signature embodying the conditions upon which union men will re-enter its service; Parkinson Co. v. Building Trades Council, 154 Cal. 581, 98 Pac. 1027, 21 L. R. A. (N. S.) 550, 16 Ann. Cas. 1105. They may agree that they will not work for or deal with certain classes of men or work at less than a certain price or without certain conditions; Carew v. Rutherford, 106 Mass. 14, 8 Am. Rep. 287; Rogers v. Evarts, 17 N. Y. Supp. 264; U. S. v. Moore, 129 Fed. 630; Rohlf v. Kasemeier, 140 Ia. 182, 118 N. W. 276, 23 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1284, 132 Am. St. Rep. 261, 17 Ann. Cas. 750; or arrange for a committee and officer of the union to represent them in conference for adjusting differences; Delaware, L. & W. R. Co. v. Switchmen's Union, 158 Fed. 541.

If the means are not unlawful, they have a right to endeavor to persuade those who have been accustomed to deal with an employer to withdraw their trade; Sinsheimer v. Garment Workers, 77 Hun 215, 28 N. Y. Supp. 321; they may agree not to teach their trade to others; Snow v. Wheeler, 113 Mass. 179; and where the combination is peaceable and without intimidation, employes may peacefully assemble to argue and persuade concerning a reduction of wages with the expectation of a strike, and the employes will not be charged with any ioss resulting from their quitting work; Arthur v. Oakes, 63 Fed. 310, 11 C. C. A. 209, 24 U. S. App. 240, 25 L. R. A. 414; and they may lawfully pay the expenses of those who leave their employment and may post in their places of assembly the names of those who have contributed to the fund for the support of the workmen who have left; Rogers v. Evarts, 17 N. Y. Supp. 264; or induce others to English statute; in others the common strike; [1903] 2 K. B. 573.

A combination of employers to resist

fort to increase wages artificially (oth

But other cases have held differently: A labor union may not prevent an employer from employing certain workmen; State v. Stewart, 59 Vt. 273, 9 Atl. 559, 59 Am. Rep. 710; or from obtaining workmen; Blindell v. Hagan, 54 Fed. 40; or prevent workmen from obtaining work; 5 Cox, C. C. 162; People v. Walsh, 110 N. Y. 633, 17 N. E. 871; or threaten a boycott; Barr v. Trades Council, 53 N. J. Eq. 101, 30 Atl. 881; State v. Glidden, 55 Conn. 46, 8 Atl. 890, 3 Am. St. Rep. 23; Casey v. Typographical Union, 45 Fed. 135, 12 L. R. A. 193; or carry out a boycott; Thomas v. Ry. Co., 62 Fed. 803; Sherry v. Perkins, 147 Mass. 212, 17 N. E. 307, 9 Am. St. Rep. 689; or strike with the intention of forcing others to join the union; People v. Smith, 10 N. Y. St. Rep. 730; or picket the premises of an employer during a strike with the usual accompaniments of insulting and threatening words and gestures to those who work for him; 10 Cox, C. C. 592; 84 L. T. n. s. 58; Murdock v. Walker, 152 Pa. 595, 25 Atl. 492, 34 Am. St. Rep. 678; [1896] 1 Ch. 811. They may not coerce others pursuing the same calling as themselves to join their society or to adopt their views or rules; Quinn v. Leathem [1901] A. C. 495; [1902] K. B. 737; [1903] 2 K. B. 620; they may not intimidate an employer by threats, if the threats are sufficient to induce him to discharge an employé whom he desired to retain and would have retained but for such unlawful threats; id.; Perkins v. Pendleton, 90 Me. 166, 38 Atl. 96, 60 Am. St. Rep. 252; Lucke v. Clothing Cutters' & Trimmers' Assembly, 77 Md. 396, 26 Atl. 505, 19 L. R. A. 408, 39 Am. St. Rep. 421.

A labor union conducting a strike to force a particular plant to unionize may be enjoined from paying those having or seeking employment to leave or not to enter its service; Tunstall v. Coal Co., 192 Fed. 808, 113 C. C. A. 132; from combining to compel an employer to permit representatives of a union to adjust differences between employer and men; Reynolds v. Davis, 198 Mass. 294, 84 N. E. 457, 17 L. R. A. (N. S.) 162; from placing the name of a concern on its "unfair" or "we don't patronize" list with the sole intention, and the probable result, of coercing its customers not to deal with it, although the object sought is a benefit to union members and no physical coercion is practiced; American Federation of Labor v. Stove & Range Co., 33 App. D. C. 83, 32 L. R. A. (N. This decision was appealed, but the parties having settled their differences, the appeals were dismissed; Buck's Stove & Range Co. v. Federation of Labor, 219 U. S. 581, 31 Sup. Ct. 472, 55 L. Ed. 345.

A strike to compel employers to unionize their shop will be enjoined where the object is not to secure a direct benefit to the employes, but to enable the union to obtain a monopoly of the labor market; Folsom v. Lewis, 208 Mass. 336, 94 N. E. 316, 35 L. R. A. (N. S.) 787.

than as regulated by supply and dema not an unlawful conspiracy; Cote v. M 159 Pa. 420, 28 Atl. 190, 23 L. R. A. 1 Am. St. Rep. 686; Purvis v. Brotherh Carpenters and Joiners of America, 2 348, 63 Atl. 585, 112 Am. St. Rep. 757, Cas. 275, 12 L. R. A. (N. S.) 642. The note to the last citation on the right of union to forbid its members to hand product of a particular factory, which v method adopted by the labor union, i case, to increase wages. The illegality action and the irreparable nature of jury must be clearly alleged; Reyno Everett, 144 N. Y. 189, 39 N. E. 72; shore Printing Co. v. Howell, 26 Or. 1 Pac. 547, 28 L. R. A. 464, 46 Am. St. Re Leaders of a labor union who receive from an employer for ending a boyce guilty of extortion; People v. Baronde N. Y. 649, 31 N. E. 240; and it has been unlawful for an officer of a labor un order the members thereof not to wo an employer; [1893] 1 Q. B. 715 (but case the officer was supplying the en with goods, and his action was for th pose of forcing his customer to refrain acts which he had a right to do, and tion of the officer was held to be indu malice); or for a delegate (requested by of the members of the union) to indi employer to discharge workmen; [1893 B. 21. If, by threats and intimidat labor union drives away the custom an employer and destroys his trade, it by injures him by an unlawful act liable for damages to him whether the was malicious or not; Payne v. R. ( Lea (Tenn.) 521, 49 Am. Rep. 666; such union compels a non-union man to

An officer of a labor union may be en from ordering the members to carry o of the rules of the union; Toledo, A. A. M. Ry. Co. v. Pennsylvania Co., 54 Fe 19 L. R. A. 387; and equity may con labor union to recall an order to its menda.

Unions cannot legally strike mere his employment and prevents him from curing another situation, it is civilly for damages to him; Lucke v. Clothin

ters' & Trimmers' Assembly, 77 Md. 3

Atl. 505, 19 L. R. A. 408, 39 Am. St

were working on a building on which was being done by nonunion pointers et ed by the owners, as organized labor's of coercion is limited to strikes on p with whom the organization has a tracquite; Pickett v. Walsh, 192 Mass. 5 N. E. 753, 6 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1067, 11 St. Rep. 272, 7 Ann. Cas. 638.

cause the contractors employing union

A district delegate appointed by the bers of a labor union to confer with an vise them in disputes is not the serve n; [1895] 2 Q. B. 21; and the chairman secretary of a labor union will not be e for the action of the district delegate lusing non-union men to be discharged employment, or for threats of calling all union men to strike; id.

the case of Allen v. Flood, [1898] A. C. eversing [1895] 2 Q. B. 21, sub nom. l v. Jackson), a trades-union district delnotified a corporation that if it did not arge certain of its employes, certain employés would strike; the former were upon discharged and sued the district ate. The jury found for the plaintiffs also that the defendant maliciously ind the company to discharge the plain-Judgment thereon was affirmed by court of appeals, but was reversed by nouse of lords, by a majority of six to ; it was held that malice does not conte a cause of action in such a case, unhere is some act of actual unlawfulness; an act lawful in itself is not made unil by a malicious motive.

: Frederick Pollock says of this: "The e of Lords never deserved better of the non law;" 14 L. Q. R. 1. Another Engaw journal says that the decision "is aced by the profession as sound. .

pite of numbers, the weight of judicial on is preponderatingly in favor of the is now stated. The two ablest judges in s of first instance agreed with the four est lawyers in the House of Lords-perwe should say of our generation. This lough. It is curious that politics took -perhaps involuntarily; and it is also us that trades unionism should have to ankful that there is a House of Lords." law Times 143.

e later case of Quinn v. Leathem, [1901] 495, differed from Allen v. Flood in the presented. The defendants, in order to el the plaintiff to discharge some of his threatened to put the plaintiff and his mers and persons lawfully working for to all the inconvenience they could, out violence. It was said that one man, cising the same control over others as defendants had, could have acted as did, and, had he done so, would have uitted an actionable wrong. In Allen ood there was nothing more than peacepersuasion. In Quinn v. Leathem there much more coercion, intimidation, motion and annoyance, without justifica-Lord Lindley, at p. 536. That the use idue influence to compel or bring about ection of one person, to the injury of a person, is the use of illegal means to end, is held in many cases; Thomas v. o., 62 Fed. 818; O'Brien v. People, 216 54, 75 N. E. 108, 108 Am. St. Rep. 219, n. Cas. 966; Nashville, C. & St. L. R. Co. cConnell, 82 Fed. 65; Hopkins v. Stave

t of the officers or of the members of the | Marr, 71 Vt. 1, 42 Atl. 607, 43 L. R. A. 803, 76 Am. St. Rep. 746; Jackson v. Stanfield, 187 Ind. 592, 36 N. E. 345, 37 N. E. 14, 23 L. R. A. 588.

> Under the interstate commerce act and the anti-trust act of 1887 and 1890 respectively a labor union may be guilty of criminal conspiracy or forming a combination in restraint of trade if their actions tend to obstruct interstate or foreign commerce, though they consist in merely quitting the service of an employer or preventing others from working for him; U. S. v. Workingmen's Amalgamated Council, 54 Fed. 994, 26 L. R. A. 158; Waterhouse v. Comer, 55 Fed. 149, 19 L. R. A. 403; U. S. v. Elliott, 62 Fed. 801; U. S. v. Agler, 62 Fed. 824; U. S. v. Elliott, 64 Fed. 27; or in delaying a train carrying the mails; U. S. v. Debs, 65 Fed. 210; U. S. v. Cassidy, 67 Fed. 698; In re Grand Jury, 62 Fed. 840; and equity will interfere to compel striking railroad employés to perform their duties "so long as they remain in the employment of the company;" Southern California R. Co. v. Rutherford, 62 Fed. 796. That a labor union was in its origin lawful was held no ground of defence; U. S. v. Workingmen's Amalgamated Council, 54 Fed. 994, 26 L. R. A. 158. But in the circuit court for the district of Massachusetts, it was held that it is not sufficient for an indictment to allege a purpose to drive certain competitors out of the field; it must show a conspiracy in restraint of trade by engrossing or monopolizing the market; U.S. v. Patterson, 55 Fed. 605; but see U.S. v. Elliott, 62 Fed. 801, where the former case was expressly dis-

> The Sherman act applies to combinations of laborers as well as to capitalists; Loewe v. Lawlor, 208 U. S. 274, 28 Sup. Ct. 301, 52 L. Ed. 488, 13 Ann. Cas. 815; it makes illegal every combination by which competition is ended or suspended, between two or more persons engaged in interstate or foreign trade or commerce; U. S. v. American Tobacco Co., 164 Fed. 700.

Where the action of a labor union becomes a criminal conspiracy, the remedy is by injunction; and the equitable jurisdiction to prevent conspiracies by combinations of organized labor is justified upon the ground that, though equity will not interfere to prevent the commission of a crime, as such, yet where the acts complained of amount to an infringement of a property right, the court may act; 3 De G. F. & J. 232; or to a nuisance; Sherry v. Perkins, 147 Mass. 212, 17 N. E. 307, 9 Am. St. Rep. 689; or to a boycott; Woodruff v. Min. Co., 45 Fed. 130; or to an intimidation; Cœur d'Alene Consol. & Min. Co. v. Miners' Union, 51 Fed. 260, 19 L. R. A. 382. One apprehending injury from such a combination may bring a bill against one or more persons, and 83 Fed. 918, 28 C. C. A. 99; Boutwell v. | obtain at once without waiting for any hearing, or answer by the defendant, a preliminary injunction against not only the defendants named, but all other agents, servants, and subordinates named or unnamed; and, finally, against any person whatever who may have knowledge that such injunction has been granted; Ex parte Lennon, 64 Fed. 820, 12 C. C. A. 134. As to awarding an injunction in a strike, an important element is the character of the dominant element in the union; Goldfield Consol. Mines Co. v. Miners' Union, 159 Fed. 500. A disregard of such an injunction amounts to a contempt and subjects the offender to fine and imprisonment, and such offender is not entitled to a jury trial; Bellows v. Bellows, 58 N. H. 60; Garrigus v. State, 93 Ind. 239; Eilenbecker v. District Court, 134 U.S. 31, 10 Sup. Ct. 424, 33 L. Ed. 801; and from an order in contempt there is no appeal from the court issuing it to a higher court; Verbeck v. Scott, 71 Wis. 64, 36 N. W. 600; although it has been held in some jurisdictions that there may be an appeal where the injunction was issued to protect private interests and not the public; Dodd v. Una, 40 N. J. Eq. 672, 5 Atl. 155; but even this appeal only goes so far as to give the appellate court the right to investigate and see whether the court below had jurisdiction of the subject-matter; In re Wood, 82 Mich. 75, 45 N. W. 1113. The person in contempt may, in some jurisdictions, take the matter up by writ of certiorari; State v. District Court, 13 Mont. 347, 34 Pac. 39; he may not have a writ of habeas corpus; In re Debs, 158 U. S. 564, 15 Sup. Ct. 900, 39 L. Ed. 1092; U. S. v. Debs, 64 Fed. Jurisdiction was expressly conferred upon the United States circuit court by the anti-trust act of 1890.

A receiver appointed to take charge of property is an officer of the court; any interference with his possession is an interference with the possession of the court and is a contempt, so that a strike by a labor union which tends to interfere with the traffic of a railroad in the hands of a receiver is a contempt; In re Doolittle, 23 Fed. 544; U. S. v. Kane, 23 Fed. 748; In re Wabash R. Co., 24 Fed. 217; and it was further held that while the employes of receivers may freely quit their employment, they cannot do it in such a way as intentionally to disable the property, nor can they combine nor conspire to quit without notice, with the object and intent of crippling the property and its operation; Lafauci v. Kinler, 27 Fed. 443, where the object of the strike was to compel recognition of a secret labor organization and the right of its officers to control the operations of a railroad, the officers being not even employés; Pardee, J., said: "This intolerable conduct goes beyond criminal contempt of court into the domain of felonious crimes."

A contract between an employer, a labor union and employes, which provided that Employe; Eight Hour Laws; E be employed and that on the request union the employer should discha others, was sustained in Jacobs v. Col N. Y. 207, 76 N. E. 5, 2 L. R. A. (N. 8 111 Am. St. Rep. 730, 5 Ann. Cas. 28 decision was held to involve the que (1) Whether an employer can make laborers or with a third party, a agreement to limit his expectancy labor market; (2) whether labore engage themselves to destroy the exp of other laborers. See 19 Harv. L. R.

To discharge the members of a la ion or refuse to employ them was h to be an unlawful conspiracy to des

Boyer v. Telegraph Co., 124 Fed. 24 statutes in several states and the congress imposing a penalty upon t ployer for discharging an employee only union members in good standing

ing a member of a labor union hav held unconstitutional as impairing th ty of contract; Adair v. U. S., 208 U. 28 Sup. Ct. 277, 52 L. Ed. 436, 13 Ar 764; People v. Marcus, 185 N. Y. 257 E. 1073, 113 Am. St. Rep. 902, 7 An 118, 7 L. R. A. (N. S.) 282, note, the sion of which is that in all other j tions in which the questions have beed such statutes have been held void cases are; State v. Julow, 129 Mo. 16 W. 781, 29 L. R. A. 257, 50 Am. St. Re Gillespie v. People, 188 III. 176, 58 1007, 52 L. R. A. 283, 80 Am. St. Re State v. Kreutzberg, 114 Wis. 530, 90 1098, 58 L. R. A. 748, 91 Am. St. Re One case in the Ohio common pleas, before the question had been raised i states, held such a statute constitution this case was repudiated in a later of pleas case; State v. Bateman, 10 Ohi P. 68, 7 Ohio N. P. 487. An act ma unlawful to discharge employees for ing to a labor organization and pr for the recovery of damages theref held unconstitutional; Coffeyville V Brick & Tile Co. v. Perry, 69 Kan. Pac. 848, 66 L. R. A. 185, 1 Ann. Ca and in Wallace v. Ry. Co., 94 Ga. 733 E. 579, an analogous statute was held stitutional. The United States supren held that it is not within the power gress to make it a criminal offense aga United States for a carrier engaged in state commerce to discharge an er

764. As to actions against such organi when they are incorporated, see A TIONS. And see articles on the "Close ket, the Union Shop and the Common by William Draper Lewis in 18 Harv 444, in which many cases are collect See BOYCOTT; COMBINATIONS; CONSI simply because of his membership in organization; Adair v. U. S., 208 U.

28 Sup. Ct. 277, 52 L. Ed. 436, 13 An ; INJUNCTION; LABOR; MASTER AND Barb. (N. Y.) 390; a civil engineer; Pennant; RESTRAINT OF TRADE; STRIKE; sylvania & D. R. Co. v. Leuffer, 84 Pa. 168, E UNION.

24 Am. Rep. 189; a contractor; Henderson

BORARIIS. An ancient writ against us who, having not whereof to live, ed to do labor. Cowell. It was also against persons who, having served in winter, refused to continue to do so in ummer; Reg. Orig. 189.

BORER. A servant in husbandry or facture not living intra mænia. Whart. who performs with his own hands the act he made with his employer. Aposf Seiders, 46 Pa. 57.

e who labors in a toilsome occupation; n who does work that requires little as distinguished from an artisan. t. In this sense the word is held to ed in an act giving a lien to laborers; v. R. Co., 27 Ark. 567; and in an act pting the wages of laborers from garent; Epps v. Epps, 17 Ill. App. 196. act giving preference to employes of solvent corporation, it is construed to quivalent to employé; Lehigh Coal & Co. v. R. Co., 29 N. J. Eq. 255; and erm has been held not to embrace any for whom an annual salary is specifinamed and appropriated; State v. Marle, 47 Kan. 147, 27 Pac. 852.

der a mechanic's lien law which exto those who perform labor, an archihas been held to be included; Stryker ssidy, 76 N. Y. 50, 32 Am. Rep. 262; a, Raeder v. Bensberg, 6 Mo. App. 445; ise painter; Martine v. Nelson, 51 Ill. a teamster; Mann v. Burt, 35 Kan. 11, c. 95; a drayman; Watson v. Mfg. Co., J. Eq. 588; Hill v. Newman, 38 Pa. 151, m. Dec. 473; a carriage-maker and a smith; Conlee Lumber Co. v. Mfg. Co., is. 481, 29 N. W. 285; an overseer and an of a body of miners who performs al labor upon the mine; Flagstaff Sillin. Co. v. Cullins, 104 U. S. 176, 26 L. 14; Capron v. Strout, 11 Nev. 304; Conumber Co. v. Lumber & Mfg. Co., 66 481, 29 N. W. 285; an overseer and ast superintendent in the repair of a Willamette Falls Transp. & Mill. Co. mick, 1 Or. 169; a master mechanic or inist; Sleeper v. Goodwin, 67 Wis. 590, W. 335; a plasterer; Parker v. Bell, y (Mass.) 429; contra, Fox v. Rucker, . 525; the manager of a company; Conumber Co. v. Mfg. Co., 66 Wis. 481, 29 285; and the superintendent in charge porers employed by a railway contrac-Warner v. R. Co., 5 How. Pr. (N. Y.) Those who have been held not to be ers entitled to a lien are an engineer; v. Rusk, 55 Wis. 465, 13 N. W. 452; ssistant chief engineer; Brockway v. 39 Mich. 47, 33 Am. Rep. 348; a ceng engineer; Ericsson v. Brown, 38 sylvania & D. R. Co. v. Leuffer, 84 Pa. 168, 24 Am. Rep. 189; a contractor; Henderson v. Nott, 36 Neb. 154, 54 N. W. 87, 38 Am. St. Rep. 720; Vane v. Newcombe, 132 U. S. 220, 10 Sup. Ct. 60, 33 L. Ed. 310; foremen, clerks, and timekeepers in the employ of a contractor; Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. Baker, 14 Kan. 563; the superintendent of a mining company; Dean v. De Wolf, 16 Hun (N. Y.) 186; a farm overseer; Whitaker v. Smith, 81 N. C. 340, 31 Am. Rep. 503; an architect's draughtsman; Leinau v. Albright, 10 Pa. Co. Ct. Rep. 171; a cook; Appeal of Sullivan, 77 Pa. 107; McCormick v. Water Co., 40 Cal. 185; a farmer; 12 W. R. 375; an agent employed at a monthly salary to superintend the erection of buildings; Smallhouse v. Min. Co., 2 Mont. 443. One who furnishes labor and material is held not a laborer; Drew v. Mason, 81 Ill. 498, 25 Am. Rep. 288; and labor of oxen cannot be included in a lien for labor; McCrillis v. Wilson, 34 Me. 286, 56 Am. Dec. 655; contra, Chicago & N. E. R. Co. v. Sturgis, 44 Mich. 538, 7 N. W. 213; Watson v. Mfg. Co., 30 N. J. Eq. 588; nor can one who is employed to pay off laborers; Edgar v. Salisbury, 17 Mo. 271.

Under statutes giving a preference to laborers, servants, and employés against insolvent corporations, the word laborer is defined to include all persons doing labor or service of whatever character for or as employés in the regular employ of such corporation; N. J. Rev. Stat. 188, § 63. A superintendent of a natural gas company is a laborer under an act preferring claims of laborers; Pendergast v. Yandes, 124 Ind. 159, 24 N. E. 724, 8 L. R. A. 849; an assistant bookkeeper; Brown v. Fence Co., 52 Hun 151, 5 N. Y. Supp. 95; a head miller; In re Geo. T. Smith Middlings Purifier Co., 83 Mich. 513, 47 N. W. 342; a drayman and the services of his horses; Watson v. Mfg. Co., 30 N. J. Eq. 588; an attorney; Gurney v. Ry. Co., 58 N. Y. 367; contra, People v. Remington, 109 N. Y. 631, 16 N. E. 680. A bookkeeper of a corporation, who, though occupying a position as one of the directors thereof, and for that purpose having been made a nominal holder of stock, yet has no pecuniary interest in the corporation, has been held to be a laborer and entitled to a lien for services; Consolidated Coal Co. v. Chemical Co., 54 N. J. Eq. 309, 35 Atl. 157.

Those held not within the meaning of such a statute are the president of a corporation; England v. Organ Co., 41 N. J. Eq. 470, 4 Atl. 307; even if he were also its general manager; Seventh Nat. Bank of Phila. v. Iron Co., 35 Fed. 436; the secretary of a corporation; Wells v. R. Co., 1 Fed. 270; a travelling salesman; People v. Remington, 109 N. Y. 631, 16 N. E. 680.

As defined by the Chinese exclusion act of 1892, the word means both skilled and un-| council. After reciting in the pream skilled manual laborers. It includes those many of the operative class had died engaged in mining, fishing, huckstering, peddling, laundrymen, or in taking, drying or otherwise preserving shell or other fish for home consumption or exportation; Tom Hong v. U. S., 193 U. S. 517, 24 Sup. Ct. 517, 48 L. Ed. 772.

Under statutes making stockholders individually liable for debts owing to laborers and servants, a contractor is not included in the term; Aikin v. Wasson, 24 N. Y. 482; Peck v. Miller, 39 Mich. 596; or a secretary; Coffin v. Reynolds, 37 N. Y. 640, overruling Richardson v. Abendroth, 43 Barb. (N. Y.) 163; or a consulting engineer; Ericsson v. Brown, 38 Barb. (N. Y.) 390; or a superintendent: Krauser v. Ruckel, 17 Hun (N. Y.) 463; or an assistant superintendent; Dean v. De Wolf, 82 N. Y. 626; or a general manager; Wakefield v. Fargo, 90 N. Y. 213; or a travelling salesman; Jones v. Avery, 50 Mich. 326, 15 N. W. 494; Hand v. Cole, 88 Tenn. 400, 12 S. W. 922, 7 L. R. A. 96; but one who acted as a foreman, performed manual labor, kept the time of the men, and collected bills was held within the meaning of the statute; Short v. Medberry, 29 Hun (N. Y.) 39. Under acts exempting the wages of laborers from garnishment a superintendent of the erection of a building; Moore v. Heaney, 14 Md. 559; a shipping clerk; Butler v. Clark, 46 Ga. 466; an overseer of a plantation; Caraker v. Mathews, 25 Ga. 571; the forwarding clerk of a railroad company; Claghorn v. Saussy, 51 Ga. 576; a bookkeeper; Lamar v. Chisholm, 77 Ga. 306; a teacher; Hightower & Co. v. Slaton, 54 Ga. 108, 21 Am. Rep. 273 (contra, Seymour v. School Dist., 53 Conn. 502, 3 Atl. 552); a private secretary to the president of a corporation; Abrahams v. Anderson, 80 Ga. 570, 5 S. E. 778, 12 Am. St. Rep. 274; and a telegraph operator; Boyle v. Vanderhoof, 45 Minn. 31, 47 N. W. 396; are held to be included in the term "laborers"; but the "boss" of a department of a factory who directs the operatives and employs and discharges them; Kyle v. Montgomery, 73 Ga. 343; a travelling salesman; Epps v. Epps, 17 Ill. App. 196; Brierre v. Creditors, 43 La. Ann. 423, 9 South. 640; an agent who sells goods by sample; Wildner v. Ferguson, 42 Minn. 112, 43 N. W. 794, 6 L. R. A. 338, 18 Am. St. Rep. 495; and a railroad conductor; Miller v. Dugas, 77 Ga. 386, 4 Am. St. Rep. 90; are not laborers so as to entitle them to an exemption from garnishment.

As to who are laborers under the federal contract importation act, see LABOR.

See Eight Hour Law; Master and Serv-ANT; LABOR UNION; LIBERTY OF CONTRACT; EMPLOYER'S LIABILITY ACT; WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION.

LABORERS, STATUTES OF. The Stat. 23 Edw. III. passed in 1349 by the king in ter of time, but principally a ques plague, and the survivors seeing the sity to which the masters were redu want of servants, refused to work un excessive wages, it was enacted t able-bodied persons (free or bond) un age of three-score years, not exercisi craft, nor having the means of liland of his own, should if required t in a station suiting his condition be to serve for the wages usual in the 20 of the king under penalty of imprise It was also provided that victuals be sold at reasonable rates, and that son should give to a beggar who w to work and preferred to live in idlen der pain of imprisonment. This state partially repealed by stat. 5 Eliz. c. infra; and finally repealed in 1863. 12 Rich. 2, which was passed at Car in 1388, forbidding a servant at the his term to go out of his district wi letter under the king's seal, on pain of put in the stocks. The amount of was regulated and penalties inflicted ters who gave more than the legal a There was also provision for the puni of beggars except religious people s proved hermits, who had testimonial from their ordinaries. 3 Stat. 5 Eli passed 1562, repealing most of the mentioned statutes, and regulating w and apprentices. The justices of the were required to hold special session fixing rates of wages, and a justice ing himself without any lawful excu to be fined £10. For giving more wag the legal amount masters were to be oned for ten days and to forfeit £5 statute was substantially repealed by quent ones; Moz. & W. LAC, or LAKH. One hundred the It is used in India, as-a lac of ru 100,000 rupees, or about £10,000 or $ Wils. Glos. Ind.; Moz. & W.

LACEY ACT. An act of congress, 1 1900, under which the states may game laws against animals, birds, e ported from other states or countrie GAME LAWS.

LACHES (Fr. lacher). Unreasons lay; neglect to do a thing or to seek force a right at a proper time.

The neglect to do that which by man is obliged or in duty bound to d derson v. Northrop, 30 Fla. 612, 12

The neglect to do what in law shou been done, for an unreasonable and plained length of time and under stances permitting diligence. Babb v van, 43 S. C. 436, 21 S. E. 277.

Unlike a limitation, it is not a men

ed; an inequity founded upon some e in the condition or relation of the rty of the parties; Lemoine v. Dunklin y, 51 Fed. 487, 2 C. C. A. 343, 10 U. S. 227; Galliher v. Cadwell, 145 U. S. 368, p. Ct. 873, 36 L. Ed. 738. It has been o involve the idea of negligence; the t or failure to do what ought to have lone under the circumstances to protect ghts of the parties to whom it is imor involving injury to the opposite through such neglect to assert rights a reasonable time; Ripley v. Selig-88 Mich. 177, 50 N. W. 143.

general, laches is neglect to do what l have been done for an unreasonable explained length of time under circums permitting diligence; mere lapse of before bringing suit without change of nstances will not constitute laches; erry v. Wilkinson, 199 Fed. 673, 118 A. 111. Not only must there have been essary delay, but it must appear that, ison of the delay, some change has ocl in the condition or relations of the ty which would make it inequitable orce the claim; London & San Fran-Bank v. Dexter, Horton & Co., 126 Fed. 01, 61 C. C. A. 515; Demuth v. Bank, . 326, 37 Atl. 268, 60 Am. St. Rep. 322; ead v. Grinnan, 152 U. S. 412, 14 Sup. 1, 38 L. Ed. 495.

rts of equity withhold relief from who have delayed the assertion of their for an unreasonable time, and the fact that suit was brought within a hable time does not prevent the appliof the doctrine of laches when there want of diligence in the prosecution; man v. Bates, 5 Cal. App. 391, 38 Pac. Alsop v. Riker, 155 U. S. 449, 15 Sup. 2, 39 L. Ed. 218. The question of lachends not upon the fact that a certain te time has elapsed since the cause of accrued, but upon whether, under all rcumstances, the plaintiff is chargeable want of due diligence in not instituting oceedings sooner; Townsend v. Vanderr, 160 U. S. 171, 16 Sup. Ct. 258, 40 L. 83; McIntire v. Pryor, 173 U. S. 38, o. Ct. 352, 43 L. Ed. 606; it is not measby the statute of limitations; Alsop v. 155 U. S. 449, 15 Sup. Ct. 162, 39 L. 18; but depends upon the circumstancthe particular case; Griswold v. Haz-41 U. S. 260, 11 Sup. Ct. 972, 999, 35 678. Where injustice would be done particular case by granting the relief equity may refuse it and leave the to his remedy at law; Abraham v. 19, 158 U.S. 416, 15 Sup. Ct. 894, 39 1036; or where laches is excessive and equity of permitting the claim to be prosecution of his claim, no period short of the legal statute of limitations will bar an action on an equitable claim; Houck's Adm'r v. Dunham, 92 Va. 211, 23 S. E. 238; and see The Queen, 78 Fed. 155, where it was held that "mere delay, for the full period of four years allowed by a state statute of limitations, in bringing a suit in rem to recover damages to a cargo, is not of itself, and in the absence of exceptional circumstances from which laches would be imputable, sufficient to justify the court in declining to entertain the suit;" but where the complainant has remained silent for a longer time, after the discovery of the material facts than the time limited by the statute of limitations, it is laches; Kinne v. Webb, 54 Fed. 34, 4 C. C. A. 170, 12 U. S. App. 137. Where a statute provides that no claim is barred until the limitation of the statute has accrued, a complainant cannot be denied relief because the action lacks but a few days of being barred by limitation, on the ground of gross laches; Hill v. Nash, 78 Miss. 849, 19 South. 707. Where an equitable right of action is analogous to a legal right of action, and there is a statute of limitations fixing a limit of time for bringing an action at law to enforce such claims, a court of equity will, by analogy, apply the same limit of time to proceedings taken to enforce the equitable right; L. R. 6 H. L. 384. One in possession of land may wait until his title and possession are attacked before setting up equitable demands, without being chargeable with laches; Massenburg v. Denison, 71 Fed. 618, 18 C. C. A. 280; as where an unauthorized franchise in a street is given, adjoining property owners are not required to attack the validity of the franchise until their rights are actually invaded; Hart v. Buckner, 54 Fed. 925, 5 C. C. A. 1, 2 U. S. App. 488. Mere lapse of time not sufficient to bar the corresponding legal remedy will not constitute laches barring a suit, there having been no change in the condition or relation of the property or parties which renders the enforcement of the claim inequitable; First Nat. Bank v. Nelson, 106 Ala. 535, 18 South. 154; Ward v. Sherman, 192 U. S. 168, 24 Sup. Ct. 227, 48 L. Ed. 391.

Laches in seeking to enforce a right will, in many cases in equity, prejudice such right, for equity does not encourage stale claims nor give relief to those who sleep upon their rights; 4 Wait, Act. & Def. 472; Lane & B. Co. v. Locke, 150 U. S. 193, 14 Sup. Ct. 78, 37 L. Ed. 1049; In re Whittemore, 157 Mass. 46, 35 N. E. 93; this doctrine is based upon the grounds of public policy which requires for the peace of society, the discouragement of stale claims; Mackall v. Casilear, 137 U. S. 556, 11 Sup. lained; Halsey v. Cheney, 68 Fed. 763, C. A. 656, 34 U. S. App. 50. In the ce of negligence by the plaintiff, in the not for the jury; Raymond v. Flavel, 27 Or. 219, 40 Pac. 158.

It has been held to be inexcusable for thirty-six years; Fuller v. Montague, 59 Fed. 212, 8 C. C. A. 100, 16 U. S. App. 391; twentyseven years, unexplained; Felix v. Patrick, 145 U. S. 317, 12 Sup. Ct. 862, 36 L. Ed. 719; twenty-three years; Ware v. Galveston City Co., 146 U. S. 102, 13 Sup. Ct. 33, 36 L. Ed. 904; 22 years during which the defendant company spent much labor and money in v. Min. improvements; Gildersleeve 161 U. S. 573, 16 Sup. Ct. 663, 40 L. Ed. 812; twenty-two years after knowledge of the facts; Halstead v. Grinnan, 152 U. S. 412, 14 Sup. Ct. 641, 38 L. Ed. 495; nineteen years, on a bill to establish a trust; Hinchman v. Kelley, 54 Fed, 63, 4 C. C. A. 189, 7 U. S. App. 481; fourteen years, in the assertion of title to lands which meantime had been sold to settlers; St. Paul, S. & T. F. Ry. Co. v. Sage, 49 Fed. 315, 1 C. C. A. 256, 4 U. S. App. 160; ten years, in proceedings to enforce a trust in lands; Abraham v. Ordway, 158 U. S. 416, 15 Sup. Ct. 894, 39 L. Ed. 1036; ten years, after the foreclosure and sale of a railroad in a bill by a stockholder to set aside the sale for collusion and fraud which were patent on the face of the proceedings; Foster v. R. Co., 146 U. S. 88, 13 Sup. Ct. 28, 36 L. Ed. 899; nine years in a suit to have a deed declared a mortgage on the ground that it was obtained by taking advantage of the grantor's destitute condition; De Martin v. Phelan, 51 Fed. 865, 2 C. C. A. 523, 7 U. S. App. 233; nine years to annul a foreclosure where the plaintiff was an ignorant negro whose confidence was abused; McIntire v. Pryor, 173 U. S. 38, 19 Sup. Ct. 352, 43 L. Ed. 606; eight years' acquiescence in a trademark for metallic paint, during which the defendant had built up an extended market for his product; Princes' Metallic Paint Co. v. Mfg. Co., 57 Fed. 938, 6 C. C. A. 647, 17 U. S. App. 145; eight years in proceedings where complainant in consideration of $10,-000 had released certain claims and sought to set the release aside on the ground that it was entitled to a much larger sum than it received; Thorn Wire Hedge Co. v. Mfg. Co., 159 U. S. 423, 16 Sup. Ct. 94, 40 L. Ed. 205; three years, where a person bought property of uncertain value and after three years brought suit to rescind the contract on the ground of fraudulent representation; Sagadahoc Land Co. v. Ewing, 65 Fed. 702, 13 C. C. A. 83, 31 U. S. App. 102. Twelve years' unexplained delay in suing for the infringement of a patent precludes the recovery of profits or damages; Safety Car Heating & Lighting Co. v. Car Heating Co., 174 Fed. 658, 98 C. C. A. 412; five years' delay, after discovery of a fraud, to file a bill to set aside a divorce decree for such fraud, is a bar; Horton v. Stegmyer, 175 Fed. 756, 99 C. C. A. 332, 20 Ann. Cas. 1134,

To constitute laches to bar a su must be knowledge, actual or impu the facts which should have prom tion or, if there were ignorance, it without just excuse; Bausman v. K Minn. 197, 36 N. W. 333, 8 Am. St. I see Hilliard v. Wood Carving Co., 1 34 Atl. 231; Johnston v. Min. Co., 1 360, 13 Sup, Ct. 585, 37 L. Ed. 4 where there is ignorance of the party laches may be excused; 2 Ball & Gross v. Mfg. Co., 48 Fed. 35; Fost Co., 146 U. S. 88, 13 Sup. Ct. 28, 30 899; Dice v. Brown, 98 Ia. 297, 6 Evidence that complainant 253. ranged to dispose of land bequeather is evidence that she knew of the exis a will, and a delay of twenty years i ing an action to set aside its pro laches; Corby v. Trombley, 110 Mich N. W. 139. Defence of laches, on the that plaintiff might by inquiry have the facts relied on, is not available fendant, who was under obligation close such facts without inquiry, de having suffered no harm; Krohn v.

son, 62 Fed. 869. One who seeks to impeach a tra on the ground of fraud must seek promptly; Hilliard v. Wood Carving Pa. 1, 34 Atl. 231; Houston v. Ha Del. Ch. 247; Scheftel v. Hays, 58 I 7 C. C. A. 308. Mere lapse of time w times render a fraudulent transaction peachable; Brown v. Brown, 142 Ill N. E. 500; Day v. Imp. Co., 153 Ill. N. E. 567; but when the fraud is se suit is begun within a reasonable til its discovery, laches is not a defence v. Palms, 68 Fed. 61, 15 C. C. A. 220, App. 61. Laches was held not impu a delay of more than ten years in bill to set aside a fraudulent con Murphy v. Nilles, 62 Ill. App. 193. Kneely v. Terry, 61 Ark. 527, 33 S. It is not so much the duty of a s equity to be diligent in discovering h as to be prompt in asserting them af become known; Wetzel v. Transfer Fed. 23, 12 C. C. A. 490, 27 U. S. A and a delay of eleven months in as the reformation of a mortgage on the of mutual mistakes was held not suc as to bar the right of a subsequent me with knowledge of the mistake; Nat. Bank of Attica v. Judy, 146 Ind N. E. 259. Laches in assailing a fra not be imputed until the discovery fraud by the party affected thereby; Patten, 34 Fla. 149, 15 South. 775; has been held that delay will not de right to relief in case of fraud, un fraud is known or ought by due of to have been known; Mudsill Min Watrous, 61 Fed. 163, 9 C. C. A. 415, App. 12. Ignorance of facts comple tid has been held no excuse for laches the facts were evidenced by public recaccessible to all, unless some affirmact of deception be shown or some misg device intended to prevent inquiry xclude suspicion; Lant v. Manley, 71

hes may also be excused from the oby of the transaction; 2 Sch. & L. 487; hase v. Boughton, 93 Mich. 285, 54 N. ; by the pendency of a suit; 1 Sch. & ; and where the party labors under a lisability, as insanity; Craig v. Leiper, g. (Tenn.) 193, 24 Am. Dec. 479; in-; McMillan v. Rushing, 80 Ala. 402; on v. White, 17 R. I. 519, 23 Atl. 57; verture; Wilson v. McCarty, 55 Md. Black v. Whitall, 9 N. J. Eq. 572, 59 Dec. 423; 19 Ves. 640; poverty is no e for laches; Leggett v. Oil Co., 149 287, 13 Sup. Ct. 902, 37 L. Ed. 737; nor norance and absence from the country; v. Bardon, 51 Fed. 493, 2 C. C. A. 335, S. App. 642; no laches can be imputed public; In re County Com'rs of Hamp-143 Mass. 424, 9 N. E. 756; County of v. Goodell, 97 Ill. 91. Laches on the of its officers cannot be imputed to the ument and no period of delay on the f the sovereign power will serve to bar tht either in a court of law or equity it sees fit to enforce it for the public t; Gaussen v. U. S., 97 U. S. 584, 24 . 1009; U. S. v. R. Co., 67 Fed. 969, 15 A. 117; but though not ordinarily a e to a suit brought by the government, here such suit is brought solely to benerivate individual or where the governsues to enforce a right of its own, ng out of some ordinary commercial action, it may be set up as a defence; v. Beebe, 127 U. S. 338, 8 Sup. Ct. 1083, Ed. 121; Union Pac. R. Co. v. U. S., ed. 975, 15 C. C. A. 123. It is not a f universal application that laches cane set up in defence of a suit to enforce ritable trust; Church of Christ at Indence, Mo., v. Reorganized Church of Christ of Latter-Day Saints, 71 Fed. 7 C. C. A. 397. Laches of a testator e imputed to his executor; Halsey v. y, 68 Fed. 763, 15 C. C. A. 656, 34 U. S.

odefence of laches may be raised by eral demurrer; Meyer v. Saul, 82 Md. Al. 539; Cammack v. Carpenter, 3 D. C. 219; Kerfoot v. Billings, 160 Ill. 3 N. E. 804; or by plea or answer, or need by argument either upon a prenty or final hearing; Woodmanse & tt Mfg. Co. v. Williams, 68 Fed. 489, 15 A. 520, 37 U. S. App. 109. That the ce to laches must be made by answer ot by demurrer, see Sage v. Culver, 147 241, 41 N. E. 513. Even though laches pleaded or the bill demurred to, courts of equity may withhold relief from those who have delayed the assertion of their claims for an unreasonable time; Willard v. Wood, 164 U. S. 502, 17 Sup. Ct. 176, 41 L. Ed. 531. See Injunction.

LACTA. A lack of weight; deficiency in the weight of money. The verb lactare said to have been used in an assize in the sixth year of King John. Spel. Gloss.

LACUS. In Old English Law. An alloy of silver with base metal. Fleta 1. 22, § 6. In Civil Law. A lake, a receptacle for water which is never allowed to get dry. Dig. 43, 14, 1, 3.

LADA. A method of trial by purgation. In vogue among the Saxons by which a person was purged of an accusation, as of an oath or ordeal. Spel. Gloss. In Old English Law. A lade or load. A water course, a trench or canal for draining marshy lands. Spel. Gloss.

A court of justice. A lade or lath. Cowell.

LADEN IN BULK. Having the cargo loose in the hold, and not enclosed in boxes, bales, bags, or casks.

LADY. In England, the proper title of any woman whose husband is higher in rank than baronet or knight, or who is the daughter of a nobleman not lower than an earl, though the title is given by courtesy also to the wives of baronets and knights. Cent. Dict.

See DAME; KNIGHT.

The word lady is derived from hloef dig (loaf day), which being applied to the mistress of a house came to be softened into the familiar term lady. On that day, it was the custom for the mistress of the manor to distribute bread to her poorer neighbors. Townsend, Manual of Dates, title Lady; 1 Chamb. Book of Days 154.

LADY-DAY. The 25th of March, the feast of the Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary. In parts of Ireland, however, they so designate the 15th of August, the festival of the Assumption of the Virgin.

Upon a parol demise, rent to take place from the following Lady day, evidence of the custom of the country is admissible to show that by Lady day the parties meant Old Lady Day; 4 B. & Ald. 588.

LADY'S FRIEND. Previous to the act of 1857, abolishing parliamentary divorces, a functionary in the British house of commons. When the husband sued for a divorce, or asked the passage of an act to divorce him from his wife, he was required to make a provision for her before the passage of the act; it was the duty of the lady's friend to see that such a provision was made. Macq. H. & W. 213.

LÆN (Anglo-Saxon). A loan. See BENE-FICIUM.

241, 41 N. E. 513. Even though laches | LÆNLAND. Land held of a superior pleaded or the bill demurred to, courts | whether much or little. 1 Poll. & Maitl. 38.

Land given to the lessee and to two or three successive heirs of his; synonymous with loan land. This species of tenure seems to have been replaced by that of holding by book or bocland. See Maitl. Doomsday Book and Beyond 318. See FOLCLAND.

LÆSA MAJESTAS (Lat.). Læse-majesty, or injured majesty; high treason. It is a phrase taken from the civil law, and anciently meant any offence against the king's person or dignity, defined by 25 Edw. III. c. 6. See Glanv. lib. 5, c. 2; 4 Bla. Com. 75; Br. 118; CRIMEN LÆSÆ MAJESTATIS.

LÆSIO ENORMIS. The injury sustained by a party to an owner's contract who is overreached by the other to the extent of more than one-half the value of the thing sold. A rescript of Diocletian permitted a rescission of the sale by a vendor unless the purchaser agreed to the additional amount required to make up the value of the thing sold. Sohm, Inst. Rom. L. § 69.

It was sometimes called læsio ultra dimidium. Colq. C. L. § 2094.

LÆSIONE FIDEI, SUITS PRO. Proceedings in the ecclesiastical courts for spiritual offences against conscience, for non-payment of debts, or breaches of civil contracts. This attempt to turn the ecclesiastical courts into courts of equity was checked by the Constitutions of Clarendon, A. D. 1164; 3 Blå. Com. 52.

LAET. In Old English Law. One of a class between the servile and free. 1 Palg. Rise & Prog. 334.

Of this class it is said: "Thus degrees of servility are possible. A class may stand, as it were, halfway between the class of slaves and the class of free men. The Kentish law of the seventh century as it appears in the dooms of Æthelbert, like many of its continental sisters, knows a class of men who perhaps are not free men and yet are not slaves; it knows the last as well as the theow. From what race the Kentish last has sprung, and how, when it comes to details, the law will treat him—these are obscure questions, and the latter of them cannot be answered unless we apply to him what is written about the lasti, liti, and lidi of the continent. He is thus far a person that he has a small wergild, but possibly he is bound to the soil. Only in Æthelbert's dooms do we read of him. From later days, until Domesday Book breaks the silence, we do not obtain any definite evidence of the existence of any class of men who are not slaves but none the less are tied to the land." Maitl. Domesd. 27. The lasts were afterwards term-"ed by the Normans buirt, burs or coliberti; id. 36.
"His services, we are told, vary from place to place; in some districts he works for his lord two days a week and during harvest-time three days a week; he pays gafol in money, barley, sheep, and poultry; also he has ploughing to do besides his week-work; he pays hearth-penny; he and one of his fellows must between them feed a dog. It is usual to provide him with an outfit of two oxen, one cow, six sheep, and seed for seven acres of his yardland, and also to provide him with household stuff; on his death all these chattels go back to his lord. Thus the boor is put before us as a tenant with a house and a yardland or virgate, and two plough oxen. He will therefore play a more important part in the manorial economy than the cottager who has no beasts. But he is a very dependent person; his beasts, even the poor fur his house, his pots and crocks, are provide by his lord. Probably it is this that mark from the ordinary villanus or "townsn brings him near the serf. In a sense he free man." 4d. 37.

In an earlier work of the same author i "Once and only once, in the earliest of ot Saxon text (Æthelb. 26), we find mention the name of last, of the half-free class o called litus and other like names in continuments. To all appearance there had cea any such class before the time of Alfr therefore needless to discuss their conditions in." I Poll. & Maitl. 13.

LAGA. The Law.

LAGAN (Sax. liggan, cubare). Se

LAGEMAN or LAGA MAN. A Cowell. In Old English Law. A ma with or at least qualified for the exjurisdiction, or sac and soc. Co. Li See LAWMAN.

LAGEN or LAGENA. A measur sextarii. Fleta l. 2, c. viii. It was a used as a measure of ale.

LAGHDAY or LAHDY. A day court; a day of the county court. Toml.

LAGHSLITE or LASHLSLIT (S breach of law. Cowell. A mulct offence, viz.: twelve "ores." 1 A & Laws of Eng. 169.

LAGU. See LAGA.

LAHMAN. Anciently a lawyer. Domesd. 189. It seems to be another lage man, which see.

LAICUS (Eccl. Lat.). A layma one not belonging to the priesthood er's Lat. Dic.

LAID OUT. Used in reference to describes all conditions of a way, s way voted to be built, a way being a way built. The context usually de the meaning of the expression. M County Com'rs, 83 Me. 514, 22 Atl.

together, and wite, a fine, etc.). At the offence of adultery and fornicati the lords of some manors had the of imposing on their tenants. Co 206; Fleta, lib. 1, c. 47.

LAIS GENTS (O. Fr.). Secular laymen; a jury.

LAITY. Those persons who do a part of the clergy. They are divided three states: 1. Civil, including altion, except the clergy, the army, and subdivided into the nobility and monalty. 2. Military. 3. Maritime ing of the navy. Whart. Lex. In the States the division of the people in and laity is not authorized by law merely conventional.

LAIZ, LEEZ (O. Fr.). A legate.

477.

(E. A body of water surrounded by or not forming part of the ocean, and ring a depression below the ordinary ge level of the region. Cent. Dict. fact that there is a current from a to a lower level does not make that r which would otherwise be a lake; e fact that a river swells out in broad ike sheets with a current does not that a lake which would otherwise iver; State v. Town of Gilmanton, 14 earlier decisions in this country tend-support the doctrine that no riparian could acquire title to the bed of any owever small; Waterman v. Johnson, ck. (Mass.) 261; Wood v. Kelley, 30 ; but they were based upon the Massats ordinance of 1647 (when the terrif Maine was a part of Massachusetts) provided that all lakes more than eres in extent should be the property state for the benefit of the public. pa Reservoir Co. v. City of Fall River, ass. 548, 18 N. E. 465, 1 L. R. A. 466. state courts followed these decisions, er, and while it is a recognized prinin this country that the title to the clow the waters of a navigable lake is state and not in the owner of the ng soil; Champlain & St. L. R. Co. v. tine, 19 Barb. (N. Y.) 484; Shively v. y, 152 U. S. 13, 14 Sup. Ct. 548, 38 L. 31; Morris v. U. S., 174 U. S. 196, 19 t. 649, 43 L. Ed. 946; Austin v. R. Co., 215; it has been also held that this ple applies to the bed of a non-navigake; Edwards v. Ogle, 76 Ind. 302; v. Collins, 92 Ia. 566, 61 N. W. 250, R. A. 609, 54 Am. St. Rep. 571; but see the last case, Hardin v. Jordan, 140 U. , 11 Sup. Ct. 808, 838, 35 L. Ed. 428, held that the Illinois case did not esh in that state the doctrine that the bed all lakes does not belong to riparian s, there being another ground on which ecision was also based; therefore, alh it is the practice of the federal courts low the decisions of the state courts, refused in this instance so to do, reg Hardin v. Jordan, 16 Fed. 823.

Hardin v. Shedd, 190 U. S. 508, 23 Sup. 5, 47 L. Ed. 1156, it is said that the Illinois has been settled since Hardin dan, 140 U. S. 371, 11 Sup. Ct. 808, 838, Ed. 428, that conveyances of the upio not carry adjoining land below the line, citing Fuller v. Shedd, 161 Ill. 4 N. E. 286, 33 L. R. A. 146, 52 Am. St. 80; Hardin v. Shedd, 177 Ill. 123, 52 N. ); Hammond v. Shepard, 186 Ill. 235, E. 867, 78 Am. St. Rep. 274. Whether entee of the United States to land ed on a non-navigable lake belonging United States takes title to the adg submerged land is determined by the

Bouv.—115

v. Shedd, 190 U.S. 508, 23 Sup. Ct. 685, 47 L. Ed. 1156.

Later decisions in New York also overruled the case of Wheeler v. Spinola, 54 N. Y. 377; and hold that the bed of a non-navigable inland lake belongs to the abutting riparian owner; Gouverneur v. Ice Co., 184 N. Y. 355, 31 N. E. 865, 18 L. R. A. 695, 30 Am. St. Rep. 669, reversing 57 Hun 474, 11 N. Y. Supp. 87; and see in support of this doctrine, Webber v. Boom Co., 62 Mich. 626, 30 N. W. 469; Cobb v. Davenport, 32 N. J. L. 369; Ridgway v. Ludlow, 58 Ind. 248; Olson v. Huntamer, 6 S. D. 364, 61 N. W. 479.

Adjacent owners of land on a lake own the land under water fronting their premises to the "thread of the lake"—which, where there is no outlet, passes through the center point of the lake on its longest diameter; Calkins v. Hart, 64 Misc. 149, 118 N. Y. Supp. 1049.

Where a non-navigable inland lake is the subject of private ownership, neither the public nor an adjacent land owner has a right to boat upon it or to fish in its waters: Lembeck v. Nye, 47 Ohio St. 336, 24 N. E. 686, 8 L. R. A. 578, 21 Am. St. Rep. 828; and such an owner may lease his interest in the bed of the lake for a term of years, reserving to himself the right of fishing therein; Bass Lake Co. v. Hollenbeck, 11 Ohio Cir. Ct. Rep. 508.

It is held that riparian rights do not extend beyond access to navigable water and this is subject to a general right of navigation; Stuart v. Greanyea, 154 Mich. 132, 117 N. W. 655, 25 L. R. A. (N. S.) 257.

In North Carolina it has been held that the bed of a lake may be the subject of private ownership, but if the waters are navigable in their natural state, the public have an easement of navigation in them which cannot be obstructed; State v. Narrows Island Club, 100 N. C. 477, 5 S. E. 411, 6 Am. St. Rep. 618. The riparian proprietor upon a navigable lake has the exclusive right of access to and from the lake in front of his land and of building wharves in aid of navigation not interfering with the public rights; Delaplaine v. Ry. Co., 42 Wis. 214, 24 Am. Rep. 386; Rice v. Ruddiman, 10 Mich. 125. See Austin v. R. Co., 45 Vt. 215. In England, a non-tidal lake is the subject of private ownership; L. R. 3 App. Cas. 641.

Where the ownership of the bed of the lake is in the state, it has no power arbitrarily to destroy the rights of the riparian owner on such lake without his consent and without due process of law, for the sole purpose of benefiting some other riparian owner or for any other merely private purpose; and an act authorizing the drainage of such a lake without the consent of a riparian owner is unconstitutional; Priewe v. Imp. Co., 93 Wis. 534, 67 N. W. 918, 33 L. R. A. 645; nor have a board of supervisors, in the absence of a statute directly conferring it, the state where the land lies; Hardin the right to construct a bridge over such a lake; Snyder v. Foster, 77 Ia. 638, 42 N. W. 506.

The water of a navigable lake cannot be withdrawn below the original low water mark for irrigation purposes, to the injury of a riparian owner who acquired his rights prior to the adoption of the constitutional provision vesting title to the navigable waters in the state; Madson v. Water Co., 40 Wash. 414, 82 Pac. 718, 6 L. R. A. (N. S.) 257.

In the case of a meandered lake the riparian proprietor is held entitled to the middle thereof; Olson v. Huntamer, 6 S. D. 364, 61 N. W. 479; but in Illinois the title to such waters and the land covered by them is held to be in the state in trust for the people; Fuller v. Shedd, 161 Ill. 462, 44 N. E. 286, 33 L. R. A. 146, 52 Am. St. Rep. 380. Meander lines do not cut off land between such lines and the waters of a meandered lake; Stoner v. Rice, 121 Ind. 51, 22 N. E. 968, 6 L. R. A. 387; Boorman v. Sunnuchs, 42 Wis. 233; Pere Marquette Boom Co. v. Adams, 44 Mich. 403, 6 N. W. 857; Hardin v. Jordan, 140 U. S. 371, 11 Sup. Ct. 808, 838, 35 L. Ed. 428; and derelict land left by the receding waters of a meandered lake is held to belong to the riparian owners; Warren v. Chambers, 25 Ark. 120, 97 Am. Dec. 538, 4 Am. Rep. 23; Poynter v. Chipman, 8 Utah 442, 32 Pac. 690; but not where the lake is artificially drained; Noyes v. Collins, 92 Ia. 566, 61 N. W. 250, 26 L. R. A. 609, 54 Am. St. Rep. 571; and in Illinois, gradual recession of the waters of a meandered lake is held to give the riparian proprietors the right to the new land by following the recession of the waters to their edge; but a considerable body of new land suddenly or perceptibly formed by reliction is held to belong to the state; Fuller v. Shedd, 161 Ill. 462, 44 N. E. 286, 33 L. R. A. 146, 52 Am. St. Rep. 380.

Where a non-navigable pond several hundred acres in area gradually dried up, leaving a tract of fertile land, and the riparian owners, who, by the law of the state (Minnesota), owned the beds of such ponds, applied to have their boundary lines determined, it was settled that they each took triangular pieces meeting at the center of the pond; Scheifert v. Briegel, 90 Minn. 125, 96 N. W. 44, 63 L. R. A. 296, 101 Am. St. Rep. 399.

See 18 L. R. A. 695, n.; BOUNDARY; GREAT LAKES; HIGH SEAS; NAVIGABLE WATERS; PONDS; RIPABIAN RIGHTS; WATERS.

LAMANEUR (Fr.). In French Law. harbor or river pilot. Ord. Mar. liv. 4, 3.

LAMB. A sheep, ram, or ewe, under the age of one year. 4 C. & P. 216.

LAMBARD'S ARCHAION. A discourse upon the high court of justice in England, by William Lambard, published in 1635. Marv. Leg. Bibl.

tion of the laws of the Anglo-Saxoliam the Conqueror and Henry I., p in 1568 by William Lambard, keepe records in the tower. Marv. Leg Allibone, Dict. Authors.

LAMBARD'S EIRENARCHA. A William Lambard upon the office an of a justice of the peace. Editio published in Latin in 1579 and 1581 English in 1599. See Marv. Leg. Bil bone, Dict. Authors.

the archbishop of Canterbury. 1 B 381, n. Although he can confer all given by the two universities, the houniversity degrees have many priviles shared by the recipients of his degrees.

ell. It is one of the Scotch quart and is what is called a "conventions Moz. & W.

"This was one of the four grea festivals of Britain, the others bein November, 1st February, and 1st Ma festival of the Gule of August, as called, probably celebrated the re of the first fruits of the earth, a particularly that of the grain-harvest Christianity was introduced, the tinued to be observed as a festival grounds, and, from a loaf being t offering at church, the service, an quently the day, came to be called He subsequently shortened into Lammas This we would call the rational defithe word Lammas. There is anot in our opinion utterly inadmissible tion, pointing to the custom of bri lamb on this day, as an offering to thedral church of York. Without do custom, which was purely local, wo its rise with reference to the term ! after the true original signification word had been forgotten." Chamb.

Days. LAMMAS LANDS. Open, arab meadow land which was kept open many owners in severalty during of the year as was necessary to rec remove the crop of the several owner which they were held and used in not only to the owners, but to inh of the parish, manor, or borough Sept. 2, 1752, such lands are open 12th, under 24 Geo. II. c. 23, § 5; t name was derived from the earlier of keeping them open from Lammas Lady Day. See Elton, Commons 3 These lands were thus defined:

belonging to the owner in fee sim is absolutely the owner in fee sim all intents and purposes for half the other half of the year he the owner in fee simple, subject to

, M. R., in 46 L. J. Ch. 721; 6 Ch. D.

NCASTER. See Courts of the Coun-LATINE.

NCETI. Vassals who were obliged to for their lord one day in the week Michaelmas to Autumn, either with spade, or flail at the lord's option. Glos.

ND. Any ground, soil, or earth whatr: as, meadows, pastures, woods, wamarshes, furzes, and heath. Kingsley lbrook, 45 N. H. 313, 86 Am. Dec. 173. estate of frank tenement at the least. . Touch. 92.

term terra in Latin was used to denote from terendo quia vomere teritur (beit is broken by the plough), and acigly, in fines and recoveries, land, i. e. was formerly held to mean arable Cowp. 346; Co. Litt. 4 a. But see Eliz. 476; 4 Bingh. 90. See also 2 P. 458, n.; 5 Ves. 476; 20 Vin. Abr. 203. common law the term land has a twomeaning. In its more general sense, ludes any ground, soil, or earth whatr, as meadows, pastures, woods, marshrze, etc.; 1 Inst. 4a; 2 Bla. Com. 18. more limited sense, the term land dethe quantity and character of the inor estate which the tenant may hold d. The land is one thing, and the esn land is another thing, for an estate d is a time in land or land for a time. 1. 555. erally, in wills, "land" is used in its est sense; Schoul. Wills § 498; 1 Jarm. 604, n.; 1 Pow. Dev. 186; Pond v. , 10 Paige (N. Y.) 140. A freehold in reversion or remainder will pass the term; 3 P. Wms. 55; Hunter v. er, 17 Barb. (N. Y.) 86; or in a deed; v. Bergh, 10 Paige (N. Y.) 156. But e word has two senses, one general and estricted, if it occur in connection with words which either in whole or in supply the difference between the two s, that is a reason for taking it in its general sense: e. g. in a grant of lands, ows, and pastures, the former word is to mean only arable land. Cro. Eliz. 59; Van Gorden v. Jackson, 5 Johns. '.) 440.

one be seized of some lands in fee, and ssed of other lands for years, all in one n, and he grant all his lands in that n (without naming them), in fee-simple, r life, by this grant shall pass no more the lands he hath in fee-simple; Shepp. st. 92. But if a man have no freehold e, "lands," in a will, will pass his leaseand now, by statute, leasehold will if no contrary intent is shown, and the sturage over the land by other people." | freehold; 1 Vict. c. 26; 2 B. & P. 303; 1 P. Wms. 286; 11 Beav. 237, 250.

> Incorporeal hereditaments will not pass under "lands," if there is any other real estate to satisfy the devise; but if there is no other such real estate they will pass, by statute; Moore 359, pl. 49. See REAL PROP-ERTY; FIXTURES. Incorporeal hereditaments have been held not land; Boreel v. City of New York, 2 Sandf. (N. Y.) 552. See People v. Board, 39 N. Y. 87; contra, People v. Cassity, 46 N. Y. 46; People v. Com'rs of Taxes, 101 N. Y. 322, 4 N. E. 127. The word land does not comprehend rents which are incorporeal, which are not lands, but mere rights or profits issuing out of lands and tenements corporeal; Franciscus v. Reigart, 4 Watts (Pa.) 109; Herrington v. Budd, 5 Denio (N. Y.) 324. In a statute the term has been held to include an easement, if such construction appears to have been in accordance with the intention of the legislature; 15 L. J. Ch. 306. Land has been held to include servitudes, easements, rents, and other incorporeal hereditaments, and all rights thereto and interests therein, equitable as well as legal; Oskaloosa Water Co. v. Board, 84 Ia. 407, 51 N. W. 18, 15 L. R. A. 296; Butler v. Green, 65 Hun 99, 19 N. Y. Supp. 890; and to be synonymous with the terms real estate and real property; Black v. Min. Co., 49 Fed. 549; and to include leases for years, remainders, reversions, rent-charges, tithes, advowsons, and titles of honor; 30 Ch. Div. 136.

> Land has an indefinite extent upward as well as downward; therefore, land legally includes all houses or other buildings standing or built on it, and whatever is in a direct line between the surface and the centre of the earth; 3 Kent 378, n. See Co. Litt. 4 a; Lanpher v. Glenn, 37 Minn. 4, 33 N. W. 10; Wood, Inst. 120; 2 Bla. Com. 18; 1 Cruise, Dig. 58; REAL PROPERTY.

> Where adequate adverse possession of the surface gives title to it, such title will not cover mines in operation underneath; President, etc., of Delaware & H. Canal Co. v. Hughes, 183 Pa. 66, 38 Atl. 568, 38 L. R. A. 826, 63 Am. St. Rep. 743. Ejectment will lie for a telephone wire strung without right over the plaintiff's premises; Butler v. Tel. Co., 109 App. Div. 217, 95 N. Y. Supp. 684.

The right to develop the natural resources of land. All land is held subject to the right, in the state, of taxation and eminent domain. The right to put his land to the most profitable use for his own benefit is one of the landowner's privileges, but how far this right extends has been the subject of much adjudication by the courts. may develop its natural resources by mining, even if by so doing he injure the property of an adjacent landowner; Pennsylvania Coal Co. v. Sanderson, 113 Pa. 126, 6 Atl. 453, 57 Am. Rep. 445 (overruling Sanderson v. iption is applicable even if he have Coal Co., 86 Pa. 401, 27 Am. Rep. 711, where prohibiting the flow of water from Black, C. J., laid down the rule that "the 19 L. R. A. (N. S.) 422, 13 Ann. C. necessities of one man's business cannot be the standard of another's rights in a thing belonging to both"); he may make use of springs on his land, even if he thereby drain a stream in which others have a property right; Wheatley v. Baugh, 25 Pa. 528, 64 Am. Dec. 721; or he may increase the volume of water in such a stream by draining his own swamp land; Kauffman v. Griesemer, 28 Pa. 407, 67 Am. Dec. 437; and if by any of these methods, he injure another, it is a damnum absque injuria.

He may not collect upon his land or suffer to accumulate there anything which, if it escape, may do injury to others, without being liable for all the resulting damage it may do; Rylands v. Fletcher, L. R. 3 H. L. 330 (the leading case on the subject); he may not erect upon his land a manufacturing establishment, which is not intended to develop its natural resources, without being liable for any nuisance it may create to others; Townsend v. Bell, 62 Hun 306, 17 N. Y. Supp. 210; Robb v. Carnegie Bros. & Co., 145 Pa. 324, 22 Atl. 649, 14 L. R. A. 329, 27 Am. St. Rep. 694; and he may be enjoined from maintaining a nuisance on his land, where such nuisance can be avoided, without proof of damage to plaintiff or negligence on the part of defendant. See FIRE. He may not divert the water of a stream to an unusual course, even if the quantity of water is not diminished thereby; Amsterdam Knitting Co. v. Dean, 13 App. Div. 42, 43 N. Y. Supp. 29.

He may not obstruct a passway over his land which has been continuously used by the public for more than 15 years; Gatewood v. Cooper (Ky.) 38 S. W. 690.

He may explode nitro-glycerine for the purpose of increasing the flow of natural gas, although by so doing he draw gas from the land of another; Tyner v. Gas Co., 131 Ind. 408, 31 N. E. 61; but he is held liable in damages where he uses for that purpose an explosive so powerful as to injure the property of an adjoining owner; Morgan v. Bowes, 62 Hun 623, 17 N. Y. Supp. 22; and he may be enjoined from so doing where he can otherwise obtain the same result, although at an increased cost to himself; Hill v. Schneider, 13 App. Div. 299, 43 N. Y. Supp. 1.

In the interest of the public there has been much legislation for the regulation and preservation of the natural resources of land which necessarily has operated as a restraint upon the right of the owner to use it as he pleases. Statutes of this character which have been held valid are: For protecting the water supply of the state, forbidding the cutting or destruction of trees growing on wild and uncultivated lands or the wanton cutting of small trees on such lands; In re Opinions of Justices, 103 Me. 506, 69 Atl. 627, artesian wells except for certain beneficial purposes, as irrigation or d use; Ex parte Elam, 6 Cal. App. 233, 811; contra, Huber v. Merkel, 117 V 94 N. W. 354, 62 L. R. A. 589, 98 Rep. 933; placing restrictions on ow private oyster beds in taking oyste them; Windsor v. State, 103 Md. Atl. 288, 12 L. R. A. (N. S.) 869; m unlawful for any person owning or ing a gas or oil well to permit its: cept under certain restrictions ten prevent waste and depletion of the supply; Ohio Oil Co. v. Indiana, 17 190, 20 Sup. Ct. 576, 44 L. Ed. 729, a 150 Ind. 694, 49 N. E. 1107; or to use gas for illuminating purposes in w known as flambeau lights; Town State, 147 Ind. 624, 47 N. E. 19, 37 294, 62 Am. St. Rep. 477; or to ta water into another state; Hudson Water Co. v. McCarter, 209 U. S. 349, Ct. 529, 52 L. Ed. 828, 14 Ann. Cas. firming 70 N. J. Eq. 695, 65 Atl. 489, A. (N. S.) 197, 118 Am. St. Rep. 754, Cas. 116; preventing the waste of per natural gas and salt water, and p for the plugging of all abandoned Com. v. Trent, 117 Ky. 34, 77 S. W Ann. Cas. 209; forbidding the pumpin ter and gas for sale through wells co with a natural reservoir of minera to the injury of the public by caus waste of an important and valuable product, imperiling the value of amount of property and interfering v reasonable use by all members of ti munity of a common supply of the product; Gagnon v. Hotel Co., 163 I 72 N. E. 849, 68 L. R. A. 175; Willis of Perry, 92 Ia. 297, 60 N. W. 727, 26 124; Katz v. Walkinshaw, 141 Cal. Pac. 663, 74 Pac. 766, 64 L. R. A. Am. St. Rep. 35; Hathorn v. Natur bonic Gas Co., 194 N. Y. 326, 87 N. E. L. R. A. (N. S.) 436, 128 Am. St. R 16 Ann. Cas. 989.

The remedy can be enforced in suc by the suit of taxpayers who ow springs; id.

As to acts by an adjoining owner, by the right of vertical and lateral to one's land by the subjacent or a soil is interfered with, see LATERAL S

As to acts by an adjoining owne fering with light and air, see LIGHTS.

As to what covenants run with the see COVENANTS.

See also REAL PROPERTY; EASE BOUNDARIES: LAKES; WATER С RIVERS; MINES AND MINING; Mı LANDS, PUBLIC; REMAINDERS; REVI

LAND BOOK. See LANDBOO.

ND CEAP, LAND CHEAP (land, and ceapan, to buy). A fine payable in moncattle, upon the alienation of land, n certain manors and liberties. Cowell. thod of land transfer prevailing in Britn the ninth century. The transaction ugh a sale, took the form of a grant. far the practice went back to old Engoots, and to what extent it was the reof Scandinavian influence, it is said to possible to tell. From the fact that the frequently mention a symbolic investiby sod, which has no necessary connecwith the drawing up of a book, it may thered that the delivery of the sod was haracteristic symbol of tradition in the ceap; 20 Harv. L. Rev. 532; See Mait-Domesday Book and Beyond 323.

ND CERTIFICATE. A certificate to a registered proprietor of freehold under the English Land Transfer Act 75. A similar certificate is given to the feree on every subsequent transfer. It ins a description of the land as it apon the register and the name and adof the proprietor, and is prima facie ace of the truth of the matters therein rth.

ND COP. The sale of land which was need in early English law by the transfarod or festuca (q. v.) as a symbol session which was handed by the seller reeve and by the reeve to the purchastic conveyance was made in court, it posed, for securing better evidence of d barring the claims of expectant heirs; Domesd. B. 323.

ND COURT. The name of a court formerly existed in the city of St., state of Missouri, having sole jurisdict St. Louis county in suits respecting and in actions of ejectment, dower, ion. As to the United States courts dedetermination of public land claims, inited States Courts; Land Department See Lands, Public.

ND GABEL. A tax or duty on land.

ABEL. It is said to have been originally my for a house; Spel. Gloss.; and by er authority, in Domesday Book it was t-rent for a house site similar to the m ground rent. Whart. L. Dict. Spellto Land Gable. Moz. & W.

ND GABLE. See Land Gabet.

ND GRANT. A legislative appropriaf a portion of the public domain either haritable or eleemosynary purpose, or he promotion of the construction of a ad or other public work.

hough the public lands of the United s and of the various states have been great extent conveyed by deeds or ts issued in virtue of general laws, specific grants have also been made. and were the usual method of transfer during the colonial period. See 3 Wash. R. P. 181; 4 Kent 450, 494; Johnson v. McIntosh, 8 Wheat. (U. S.) 543, 5 L. Ed. 681.

It is always to be borne in mind in construing a congressional grant that the act by which it is made is a law as well as a conveyance, and that such effect must be given to it as will carry out the intent of congress; and this intent should not be defeated by applying to the grant the common-law rule making grants applicable only to transfers between private parties; Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. R. Co., 97 U. S. 491, 24 L. Ed. 1095. To ascertain that intent courts will look to the condition of the country at the time of making the grants, as well as the purpose of the grants as expressed on their face; Winona & St. P. R. Co. v. Barney, 113 U. S. 618, 5 Sup. Ct. 606, 28 L. Ed. 1109.

All government grants are to be strictly construed against the grantees. Nothing passes but what is conveyed in clear and explicit language, and nothing can be implied; Dubuque & P. R. Co. v. Litchfield, 23 How. (U. S.) 66, 16 L. Ed. 500; Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Ry. Co., 23 N. J. Eq. 441; Leavenworth, L. & G. R. Co. v. U. S., 92 U. S. 733, 23 L. Ed. 634. Technical words of conveyancing are not required; Shaw v. Kellogg, 170 U. S. 341, 18 Sup. Ct. 632, 42 L. Ed. 1050.

The grant of lands to a state in aid of a railroad does not interfere with the settlement of the lands granted, but otherwise of a grant to a railroad; St. Joseph & D. C. R. Co. v. Baldwin, 103 U. S. 426, 26 L. Ed. 578.

The provisions of various acts of congress that the land-grant railroads "shall be and remain a public highway for the use of the government, free from all toll or other charge for transportation of any property or troops of the United States," mean that the government may use the roads, with all fixtures and appurtenances, but not that it may compel the roads to transport property and troops without compensation; Lake Superior & M. R. Co. v. U. S., 12 Ct. Cl. 35. Such a railroad is under a perpetual contract made by the Land Grant Act of May 17, 1856, to carry the mails at such rates as congress may by law direct or the postmaster-general determine; Jacksonville, P. & M. R. Co. v. U. S., 21 Ct. Cl. 155.

Priority of grant settles the title of the railroad where the claims conflict and not the priority in filing maps of definite location; U. S. v. R. Co., 146 U. S. 570, 13 Sup. Ct. 152, 36 L. Ed. 1091; and when grants are made to two railroads, none of the land passes to the second which comes within the prospective rights of the first; U. S. v. Lime Co., 146 U. S. 615, 13 Sup. Ct. 163, 36 L. Ed. 1104.

ts issued in virtue of general laws, Title does not vest until the lands are specific grants have also been made, actually selected and set apart under the direction of the secretary of the interior; U. S. v. Ry. Co., 141 U. S. 358, 12 Sup. Ct. 13, 35 L. Ed. 766; Resser v. Carney, 52 Minn. 397, 54 N. W. 89.

LAND GRANT

In case of conflict between railroad land grants the elder title must prevail. So held, where the Northern Pacific Railroad claimed land in Minnesota under a grant of July 2, 1864, and the St. Paul and Pacific Railroad claimed part of the same lands under acts of congress of March 3, 1865, and March 3, 1871; St. Paul & P. R. Co. v. R. Co., 139 U. S. 1, 11 Sup. Ct. 389, 35 L. Ed. 77.

Where lands are granted by acts of congress of the same date, or by the same act, in aid of two railroads that must necessarily intersect, each grantee takes an undivided moiety of the lands within the conflicting limits; Sioux City & St. P. R. Co. v. U. S., 159 U. S. 349, 16 Sup. Ct. 17, 40 L. Ed. 177; Chicago, M. & St. P. Ry. Co. v. U. S., 159 U. S. 372, 16 Sup. Ct. 26, 40 L. Ed. 185.

Where congress grants the odd-numbered sections of land for a given distance on each side of a railroad, before the road is located, the title does not pass to any particular sections until the line of the road is made certain, which makes certain also the sections granted; Hannibal & St. J. R. Co. v. Smith, 9 Wall. (U. S.) 95, 19 L. Ed. 599.

Where an act of congress makes a grant of land of the odd-numbered sections within a certain distance of a railroad, the title of the corporation to the land vests at once, and can only be thereafter divested by the government for a failure to perform conditions imposed, or upon a proper proceeding instituted to revest the title in the government; Southern Pac. R. Co. v. Orton, 32 Fed. 457.

The revocation of a land grant to a corporation which has become dormant, and the transfer thereof to another corporation by an act of the state legislature, is not an invasion of private rights and does not, unless so expressed or clearly implied, burden the transfer with the debts of the dormant corporation; Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. v. Ry. Co., 163 U. S. 31, 16 Sup. Ct. 917, 41 L. Ed. 60.

Where land is granted to a railroad company before its line is located, the title to the specific land attaches by a location of the road, and takes effect by relation as of the date of the grant, so as to cut off intervening claims of other roads, claiming under other grants, unless the lands are specially reserved in the statute; Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Ry. Co., 97 U. S. 491, 24 L. Ed. 1095.

The grant to the Northern Pacific Railroad of certain public lands was a grant in prasenti. Yet it is in the nature of a float, and the title does not attach to any specific section until capable of identification; but when once identified, the title attaches as of the date of the grant; Amacker v. R. Co. 850, 7 C. C. A. 518, 15 U. S. App. railroad company takes title to the la complying with the act and not Washington & I. R. Co. v. Nav. Co., 981, 9 C. C. A. 303, 15 U. S. App. 35

A grant for a railroad right of weffect from the date of the act and rior to homestead entries made subsebut prior to building the road; Nor Ry. Co. v. Hasse, 197 U. S. 9, 25 Sup. 49 L. Ed. 642.

"Indemnity lands" are those sellieu of parcels lost from the designat by previous disposition or reservationare also called "lieu lands"; Wiscont Co. v. Price County, 133 U. S. 496, 10 341, 33 L. Ed. 687.

In acts making land grants to companies, conditions are usually which must be complied with to n grant operative. Among such condit frequently named such as make the pendent upon the amount of net and accordingly, the phrase has b quently the subject of construction "Net earnings," wit connection. meaning of such a law, are ascerts deducting from gross earnings all expenses of organization and of o the road, and expenditures bona fide improvements, and paid out of earni not by the issue of bonds or stock; deducting interest paid on any of the debt of the company; Union P. R. ( S., 99 U. S. 402, 25 L. Ed. 274. See PUBLIC.

LAND-MARK. A monument set used to ascertain the boundaries between tiguous estates. For removing mark an action lies. 1 Thomas, Co. 1 See MONUMENTS.

LAND OFFICE. A government established in 1812, originally connect the treasury, but since 1849 forming sion of the Department of the Inter

The commissioner of the general fice performs, under direction of th tary of the Interior, all executive d pertaining to the surveying and sale public lands of the United States, o wise respecting such public lands, a such as relate to private grants of h the issuing of patents for all land u authority of the government; R. S. 446-461; he has absolute jurisdic any particular grant of public land; Bishop of Nesqually v. Gibbon, 158 U 15 Sup. Ct. 779, 39 L. Ed. 931; he power to supervise the action of the of a local land office and to annul a lent entry, but his action is not con U. S. v. Steenerson, 50 Fed. 504, 1 552, 4 U. S. App. 332; and the co not concluded by the decision of the partment on a question of law; W

R. Co. v. Forsythe, 159 U. S. 46, 15 Ct. 1020, 40 L. Ed. 71.

LAND OFFICE

general land office has charge of the l of title to the vast area known as the domain, and all business pertaining to irvey, disposition, and patenting of the lands of the United States is transthrough it or under its order and sudon. All questions of fact decided by eneral land office are binding everye, and injunctions and mandamus prongs will not lie against its officers; field v. The Register, 9 Wall. (U. S.) 9 L. Ed. 681; Gaines v. Thompson, 7 (U. S.) 347, 19 L. Ed. 62; The Secrev. McGarrahan, 9 Wall. (U. S.) 298, 19 . 579; but a court of equity, after the has passed from the United States, relieve against mistakes of law in coll proceedings, but it must be clear a mistake of law has been committed; e v. Robbins, 96 U.S. 535, 24 L. Ed. 848; f the alleged mistake be a mixed one of nd fact so that the court cannot sepat so as to see clearly where the mistake w is, the decision is conclusive; Marv. Frisbie, 101 U. S. 476, 25 L. Ed. 800. disions of the land office upon quesof fact within their jurisdiction cane reviewed in a collateral proceeding; road v. Stoneroad, 158 U. S. 240, 15 Ct. 822, 39 L. Ed. 966. Its construction an act of congress and its usage for en years is entitled to considerable it; U. S. v. Ry. Co., 148 U. S. 562, 13 Ct. 724, 37 L. Ed. 560. Its decisions questions of fact are conclusive; Cathsishop of Nesqually v. Gibbon, 158 U.S. 5 Sup. Ct. 779, 39 L. Ed. 931. Its rules egulations have the effect and force of n the due observance of which all citihave the right to rely; Germania Iron U. S., 58 Fed. 334, 7 C. C. A. 256, 19 U. p. 10.

all matters confided by law to their ination and decision the United States officers act judicially, and their des are as final as those of other courts: v. Bachelder, 5 Minn. 223 (Gil. 178), 80 Dec. 410; and although such action is ally conclusive, the land office, up to suing of the patent in their divestiture le, cannot by its subsequent action upon itious claim defeat rights already vest-See LAND PATENT.

a bill which seeks to show that a deof the land department was procured aud, it must be shown that some trick ceit was practised on the officers of the tment. Where such a bill attacks such ision on the ground that the officers of epartment have misconstrued and mised the law, it must set out the evidence vhat the department found the facts to o that the court can separate the desions of law. It is not necessary to give notice of a contest before the land department to the predecessors in title of a claimant; Durango Land & Coal Co. v. Evans, 80 Fed. 425, 25 C. C. A. 523.

LAND OFFICE

LAND PATENT. A muniment of title issued by a government or state for the conveyance of some portion of the public do-

The issue of a land patent is the conveyance of public lands to the person or persons who, by compliance with the law, have become entitled thereto under a land grant (q. v.). It is a conveyance by the government when it has any interest to convey. Wright v. Roseberry, 121 U. S. 488, 7 Sup. Ct. 985, 30 L. Ed. 1039.

A patent issued under the act of congress of March 3, 1851, to settle land titles under the Mexican grant, "is not only the deed of the United States, but it is a solemn record of the government, of its action and judgment with respect to the title of the claimant existing at the date of the ces-By it the sovereign power, which alone could determine the matter, declares that the previous grant was genuine; that the claim under it was valid and entitled to recognition and confirmation by the law of nations and the stipulations of the treaty; and that the grant was located, or might have been located, by the former government, and is correctly located by the new government, so as to embrace the premises as they are surveyed and described. Whilst this declaration remains of record, the government itself cannot question its verity, nor can parties claiming through the government by title subsequent." Field, C. J., in Teschemacher v. Thompson, 18 Cal. 11, 26, 79 Am. Dec. 151.

Nature and effect of patents generally. A grant of land is a public law standing on the statute books of the state, and is notice to every subsequent purchaser under any conflicting sale made afterward; Wineman v. Gastrell, 54 Fed. 819, 4 C. C. A. 596, 2 U. S. App. 581. The final certificate or receipt acknowledging the payment in full by a homesteader or pre-emptor is not in legal effect a conveyance of the land; U.S. v. Steenerson, 50 Fed. 504, 1 C. C. A. 552, 4 U. S. App. 332. It transfers the full equitable title; Texas & P. R. Co. v. Smith, 159 U. S. 66, 15 Sup. Ct. 994, 40 L. Ed. 77. A patent alone passes land from the United States to the grantee; Wilcox v. Jackson, 13 Pet. (U. S.) 498, 10 L. Ed. 264; not only as it was at the time of the survey, but as it is at the date of the patent; Jefferis v. Land Co., 134 U. S. 178, 10 Sup. Ct. 518, 33 L. Ed. 872; and nothing passes a perfect title to public lands but a patent, except where congress grants lands in words of present grant; Wilcox v. Jackson, 13 Pet. (U. S.) 498, 10 nent's finding of facts from its conclu- L. Ed. 264; though its delivery to the paten-

v. Kemp, 104 U. S. 636, 26 L. Ed.

presumption being that it is valid an

the legal title; Minter v. Crommelin, tee is not essential to pass the title; U. S. | 22 L. Ed. 219; St. Louis Smelting & v. Schurz, 102 U. S. 378, 26 L. Ed. 167; and the United States cannot by authority of its own officers invalidate that patent by the issuing of a second one for the same property; Iron Silver Min. Co. v. Campbell, 135 U.S. 286, 10 Sup. Ct. 765, 34 L. Ed. 155; see Morton v. Nebraska, 21 Wall. (U. S.) 660, 22 L. Ed. 639; Doe v. Winn, 11 Wheat. (U. S.) 380, 6 L. Ed. 500; or divest the title by giving a patent to another; Speck v. Riggin, 40 Mo. 406. Its office is to define the land; Owens v. Jackson, 9 Cal. 322; it has been said to be equivalent to a deed; Leese v. Clark, 20 Cal. 387. land has been sold by certificate, the United States holds the legal title until the patent issues, but only in trust for the purchaser; and the officers can only act ministerially and issue it to him, and cannot act judicially and determine that another claimant is entitled to it; Arnold v. Grimes, 2 Ia. 1. patent is conclusive against all whose rights commence subsequently to its date; Hoofnagle v. Anderson, 7 Wheat. (U. S.) 212, 5 L. Ed. 437; it conveys the legal title and leaves the equities open; Brush v. Ware, 15 Pet. (U. S.) 93, 10 L. Ed. 672. It relates back to the date of purchase, and title to real estate, acquired under an execution sale, cannot be defeated by the issuing of a patent to the execution defendant, bearing date subsequent to the sale by the sheriff; Cavender v. Smith's Heirs, 5 Ia. 157. But a patent for public land will not be held to take effect by virtue of the doctrine of relation, as of the date of the initial step taken by the patentee, where it appears that the rights by him acquired under such initial step were lost by his lack of diligence, and third parties' rights had intervened; Evans v. Coal Co., 80 Fed. 433, 25 C. C. A. 531. Where the United States has parted with title by a patent legally issued, and upon surveys legally made by itself and approved by the proper department, the title so granted cannot be impaired by any subsequent survey made by the government for its own purposes; Cage v. Danks, 13 La. Ann. 128. A patent founded on a void entry and survey nevertheless passes the legal title from the government to the patentee, but the commencement of the title is the patent: Stubblefield v. Boggs, 2 Ohio St. 216. It passes to the patentee every thing connected with the soil, forming any portion of its bed, or fixed to its surface; in short, everything connected with the term "land"; Moore v. Smaw, 17 Cal. 199, 79 Am. Dec. 123.

LAND PATENT

A patent for land is the highest evidence of title and is conclusive as against the government, and all claiming under junior patents or titles, until set aside or annulled, unless it is absolutely void on its face; U. S. v. Stone, 2 Wall. (U. S.) 525, 17 L. Ed. 765; Warren v. Van Brunt, 19 Wall. (U. S.) 646, a patent fraudulently obtained by ill

(U. S.) 87, 15 L. Ed. 279. When issu confirmation of a claim or a previous ing title, it is documentary evidence the dignity of a record of the exis that title or of such equities respec claim as justify its recognition and c tion; Wright v. Roseberry, 121 U. 8 Sup. Ct. 985, 30 L. Ed. 1039; it must preted as a whole; its various provi connection with each other, and t deduction drawn therefrom must formable with the document; Brown ger, 21 How! (U. S.) 305, 16 L. Ed. A patent for unimproved lands. of which was in the possession of at the time it was issued, gives a leg and constructive possession of all th within the survey; Peyton v. Stith (U. S.) 485, 8 L. Ed. 200. The ide the land must be ascertained by a ble construction of the patent, but if ed wholly uncertain by inaccurate Government documents are not of titles as against parties claiming isting adverse and paramount title; go v. Maverick, 124 U. S. 261, 8 Sup. 31 L. Ed. 430. A patent issued by the States cannot be avoided or impead fraud in a collateral action; Klein v. Argenbright, 26 Ia. 493; but it collaterally impeached in any acti its operation and conveyance defea showing that the department had n diction to dispose of the lands; W Roseberry, 121 U. S. 488, 7 Sup. Ct. L. Ed. 1039. Where issued by mist advertence, or other cause, to parties titled to it, they will be declared tru of the true owner and decreed to cor title to him; Bernier v. Bernier, 14 242, 13 Sup. Ct. 244, 37 L. Ed. 152. is void at law, if the grantor state title to the premises embraced in i the officer who issued the patent authority to do so; Knight v. Land 142 U. S. 161, 12 Sup. Ct. 258, 35 L.

tion the grant is void; Boardman v.

Pet. (U. S.) 328, 8 L. Ed. 415.

The patent is conclusive eviden the patentee has complied with the congress as concerns improvements land, etc.; Jenkins v. Gibson, 3 L 203; it is prima facie evidence that a requirements have been complied Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Cannon, 252, 4 C. C. A. 303, 7 U. S. App. 5

In cases of ejectment, where the que who has the legal title, the patent government is unassailable: Sanford

ford, 139 U. S. 642, 11 Sup. Ct. 666, 35

ls void; McGill v. McGill, 4 La. Ann. Stoddard v. Chambers, 2 How. (U. S.) 11 L. Ed. 269; Boring's Lessee v. Lem-5 Har. & J. (Md.) 223.

tents for mines. The fee of all public ral lands remains in the United States patent issues therefor: Richardson v. ılty, 24 Cal. 339; Robertson v. Smith, 1 . 410; Copp's Mining Law 37. or possesses only the right to purchase the payment of the purchase money the issuance of a receipt by the regisand receiver of the local land office; ilton v. Min. Co., 33 Fed. 562.

e method of procedure for the applicafor patent is provided for in U.S.R. 2325. It requires that the applicant file under oath in the proper land office pplication showing a compliance with bove-mentioned statute, together with t and field notes made by or under the tion of a United States surveyor genernd shall post a copy of the plat, togethith a notice of the application, on the and then file an affidavit of the posting ich notice and copy in the land office. act also requires that the register of the office shall post said notice in his office ixty days, and shall publish it for the period in a newspaper nearest to the If at the expiration of the said sixty no adverse claim shall have been filed the register and receiver of the local office, the applicant shall be entitled to ent upon the payment of $5.00 per acre lode location, and $2.50 per acre for a r location, and after the expiration of sixty days third persons cannot be l to make objection to the issuance of atent; see Lee v. Stahl, 9 Colo. 208, 11 77; Eureka Consol. Min. Co. v. Min. Sawy. 302, Fed. Cas. No. 4,548; Golden e Gold & Silver Min. Co. v. Min. Co., lev. 320. A non-resident's application be by his agent; Act of Jan. 22, 1880.

e issuance of such a patent is concluas to title of land described therein upcourt of law and in controversies ben individuals; Aurora Hill Consol. Min. Min. Co., 34 Fed. 515. By the act of h 3, 1881, it is provided that if in any n brought pursuant to R. S. § 2326, title e ground in controversy shall not be esshed by either party, the jury shall so and judgment shall be entered accordo verdict. In such case no costs shall lowed, and the claimant shall not proin the land office or be entitled to a it for the land in controversy until he have perfected his title.

nere an application is pending for a it to mineral lands, any adverse claim be filed within the sixty days granted ne statute, and must be under the oath e adverse claimant; R. S. §§ 2325-2326; 410, 21 Pac. 492. If such adverse claim be filed, proceedings upon the patent shall be stayed until the controversy shall have been determined by a court of competent jurisdiction, or the adverse claim is waived; Hamilton v. Min. Co., 33 Fed. 562; Richmond Min. Co. v. Rose, 114 U. S. 576, 5 Sup. Ct. 1055, 29 L. Ed. 273. This procedure in the court must be begun by the adverse claimant within thirty days after filing his adverse claim, or his claim will be deemed to have been waived; U. S. R. S. § 2326; Richmond Min. Co. v. Rose, 114 U. S. 576, 5 Sup. Ct. 1055, 29 L. Ed. 273. The person in whose favor a decision is rendered in such a proceeding is entitled to the patent upon compliance with the provisions of law; U. S. R. S. § 2326; and it is given to the party establishing the better title, the only question before the court being one of the right of possession of the premises; Bay State Silver Min. Co. v. Brown, 21 Fed. 167. It is necessary for an adverse claimant in such a procedure to prove right of possession as against the United States, as well as against the applicant for a patent; Gwillim v. Donnellan, 115 U.S. 45, 5 Sup. Ct. 1110, 29 L. Ed. 348; and where neither party shows title neither can receive a patent; Ray State Silver Min. Co. v. Brown, 21 Fed. 167.

How cancelled and annulled. It is not permissible for courts of law to inquire into the validity of a patent or into any question of fraud in connection with its issuance; Iron Silver Min. Co. v. Sullivan, 16 Fed. 829; see St. Louis Smelting & Ref. Co. v. Kemp, 104 U. S. 636, 26 L. Ed. 875. This, of course, applies only to the cases where the department has jurisdiction to act. If such jurisdiction was wanting or if the patent be void upon its face, it may, of course, be collaterally impeached; St. Louis Smelting & Ref. Co. v. Kemp, 104 U. S. 636, 26 L. Ed. 875. The United States may bring an action to set aside a patent upon allegations of fraud, and such action is triable under the same principles and rules which would obtain between individuals; U. S. v. Minor, 114 U. S. 233, 5 Sup. Ct. 836, 29 L. Ed. 110; U. S. v. Min. Co., 128 U. S. 673, 9 Sup. Ct. 195, 32 L. Ed. 571; s. c. 16 Fed. 810; that is when the question arises as to patenting the land to the wrong person; in which case the government merely becomes the instrument by which the right of the individuals can be established and is merely a formal complainant; but if the patent has been obtained from the government by fraud or covers lands which were not subject to patent, the government sues in its sovereign capacity; U. S. v. Telephone Co. (Berliner Case) 167 U. S. 224, 17 Sup. Ct. 809, 42 L. Ed. 144, where the subject is fully discussed and all the cases cited. See PATENT.

It may proceed by bill in equity for a dehall Silver Min. Co. v. Kirtley, 12 Colo. cree of nullity, and an order of cancellation of a patent issued by the government itself, ignorantly, or in mistake, for lands reserved from sale by law, and a grant of which by a patent was therefore void; U. S. -v. Stone, 2 Wall. (U. S.) 525, 17 L. Ed. 765; or where a patent issued in mistake, and the government has a direct interest or is under an obligation respecting the relief invoked; U. S. v. R. Co., 141 U. S. 358, 12 Sup. Ct. 13, 35 L. Ed. 766; or when the patent was issued by mistake or obtained by fraud; San Pedro & C. Del A. Co. v. U. S., 146 U. S. 120, 13 Sup. Ct. 94, 36 L. Ed. 911; the initiation and control of such a suit lies with the attorneygeneral; U. S. v. Tin Co., 125 U. S. 273, 8 Sup. Ct. 850, 31 L. Ed. 747; U. S. v. Beebe, 127 U. S. 338, 8 Sup. Ct. 1083, 32 L. Ed. 121.

Misrepresentations knowingly made by the applicant for a patent will justify the government in proceeding to set it aside, as it has a right to demand a cancellation of a patent obtained by false and fraudulent representations; U. S. v. Min. Co., 128 U. S. 673, 9 Sup. Ct. 195, 32 L. Ed. 571; see U. S. v. Coking Co., 137 U. S. 161, 11 Sup. Ct. 57, 34 L. Ed. 640; but courts of equity cannot set aside, annul, or correct patents or other evidence of title obtained from the United States by fraud or mistake, unless on specific averments of the mistake or fraud, supported by clear and satisfactory proof; Maxwell Land-Grant Case, 121 U. S. 325, 7 Sup. Ct. 1015, 30 L. Ed. 949. A bill in equity is the proper remedy; U. S. v. Hughes, 11 How. (U. S.) 552, 13 L. Ed. 809; although a patent fraudulently obtained by one knowing at the time that another person has a prior right to the land may be set aside by an information in the nature of a bill in equity filed by the attorney of the United States for the district in which the land lies; id. A court of equity, upon a bill filed for that purpose, will vacate a patent of the United States for a tract of land obtained by mistake from the officers of the land office, in order that a clear title may be transferred to the previous purchaser; Hughes v. U. S., 4 Wall. (U. S.) 232, 18 L. Ed. 303; but a patent for land of the United States will not be declared void merely because the evidence to authorize its issue is deemed insufficient by the court; Milliken v. Starling's Lessee, 16 Ohio 61. A state can impeach the title conveyed by it to a grantee only by a bill in chancery to cancel it, either for fraud on the part of the grantee or mistake of law; and until so cancelled, it cannot issue to any other party a valid patent for the same land; Chandler v. Min. Co., 149 U. S. 79, 13 Sup. Ct. 793, 37 L. Ed. 657.

After the issue of a patent, assignment and transfers of the pre-emption right will not be inquired into; Morgan v. Curtenius, 4 Mc-Lean 366, Fed. Cas. No. 9,799. The issue of a patent of public lands to a person not equitably entitled to it does not preclude the owner of the equitable title from enforcing it in a court of equity; Monroe Cattle Co.

v. Becker, 147 U. S. 47, 13 Sup. Ct. 217, 37 L. Ed. 72; and fraud on the part of a grantee under a patent does not prevent the legal title from passing to a bona fide purchaser; U. S. v. Land Co., 49 Fed. 496, 1 C. C. A. 330, 7 U. S. App. 128; unless the purchaser had sufficient information to put him on inquiry of fraud, in which case he is not a bona fide purchaser; San Pedro & C. Del A. Co. v. U. S., 146 U. S. 120, 13 Sup. Ct. 94, 36 L. Ed. 911. A patent to a deceased person is void; Galloway v. Finley, 12 Pet. (U. S.) 264, 9 L. Ed. 1079; Wood v. Lessee of Ferguson, 7 Ohio St. 288. On the acquisition of the territory from Mexico, the United States acquired the title to lands under tidewater, in trust for future states that might be erected out of the territory; but this doctrine does not apply to lands that had been previously granted to other parties by the former government; Knight v. Land Ass'n, 142 U. S. 161, 12 Sup. Ct. 258, 35 L. Ed. 974. See LANDS, PUBLIC: LAND WARRANT; LAND GBANT.

LAND POOR. A phrase used to indicate the possession of a large quantity of unproductive lands, the payment of taxes and loss of interest on which keeps the owner poor. "A man land-poor may be largely responsible;" Matteson v. Blackmer, 46 Mich. 397, 9 N. W. 445.

LAND REEVE. One whose business it is to overlook parts of an estate. Moz. & W.

LAND REGISTRY. See LAND TITLE AND TRANSFER; REGISTRATION; RECORDING.

LAND REVENUES. An income derived from crown lands in Great Britain. These lands have been so largely granted away to subjects that they are now contracted within very narrow limits. The crown was so much impoverished in this manner by William III. that the stat. 1 Anne, c. 7, § 5, was passed, which, with stat. 34 George III. c. 75, which amends and continues it, makes void all grants or leases from the ground of royal manors or other possessions connected with land for a period exceeding thirty-one years, or three lives. Long prior to this a Scottish stat. 1455, c. 41, had made necessary the consent of parliament in case of the alienation of crown property. It is said that none of these statutes have succeeded in checking the practice. Early at the beginning of the reign of George III. the hereditary crown revenues derived from escheats, manors held in capite, estrays, fines, etc., were surrendered by the king to the general funds, and in the place of them he received a specified sum annually for the civil list.

The supervision of such property as still belongs to the crown is vested in commissioners appointed for the purpose, called the commissioners of woods, forests, and land revenues.

ID STEWARD. An agent who has the imposed in the act, the "personal representagement and control of landed estate beg to an individual or state.

ID TAX. A tax on the beneficial pror of land such as is imposed in many of ates; so far as a tenant is beneficial etor and no farther, does it rest on It was first imposed in 1693, a new tion of the lands in the kingdom having nade in 1692, which has not since been ed. In 1798 it was made perpetual, at of four shillings in a pound of valued Under the provisions of the stat. 16 & ct. c. 74, this tax is now generally reed. See Encyc. Brit. Taxation.

ND TENANT (commonly called terre t, q. v.). He who actually possesses the ND TITLE AND TRANSFER. The exsystem of land transfer is a long and is process involving the observance of formalities and technicalities, a failure serve any one of which may defeat ti-Even where these have been most carecomplied with, and where the title has traced to its source, the purchaser must t his peril, there always being, in spite e utmost care and expenditure, the posy that his title may turn out bad. le, Torrens System 209.

the past 50 years the project of simng land titles and transfer has been ted in England. For the purpose of conng the best method of so doing, a royal dission was appointed in 1854, and its t in 1857 recommended a limited plan gistration of title. In 1862 the Lord bury Act provided for the registration defeasible titles, but they were confined od marketable titles. In 1875 the Lord s Act was passed, which provided for ermissive use of a scheme for the regtion of title, and was a modified form e Torrens system, but, as the friends of system pointed out, the provisions of the vere not stringent enough, and comparalittle use has been made of it.

is act was amended in several particuby the Land Transfer Act, 1897. ion to these changes this amendatory f 1897 makes some very vital changes e real estate law of England; it proas follows: "Where real estate is vestany person without a right in any otherson to take by survivorship, it shall, s death, notwithstanding any testamendisposition, devolve to and become vestn his personal representative or repretives from time to time as if it were a tel real vesting in them or him." This es to any real estate over which the tes-"has a general power of appointment." ate and letters of administration may be ted in respect of real estate only, algh there is no personal estate. Subject

tives hold the real estate as trustee for the persons by law beneficially entitled thereto, and those persons shall have the same power of requiring a transfer of real estate as persons beneficially entitled to personal estate have of requiring a transfer of such personal estate." "All enactments and rules of law relating to the effect of probate or letters of administration as respects chattels real, and as respects the dealing with chattels real before probate or administration, and as respects the payment of costs of administration, etc., of personal estate and the powers, rights, etc., of personal representatives in respect of personal estate, shall apply to real estate so far as the same are applicable, as if that real estate were a chattel real, etc., save that some or one only of such joint personal representatives" cannot sell or transfer the real estate without the authority of court

"In the administration of the assets of a person dying after the commencement of the act, his real estate shall be administered in the same manner, subject to the same liabilities for debts, costs, and expenses, etc., as if it were personal estate, provided that nothing herein contained shall alter or affect the order in which real and personal assets respectively are now applicable in and towards the payment of funeral and testamentary expenses, debts, or legacies, or the liability of real estate to be charged with the payment of legacies." In granting letters of administration the court "shall have regard to the rights and interests of the persons interested in the real estate, and his heir-at-law, if not one of the next of kin, shall be equally entitled to the grant with the next of kin.'

At any time after the death of the owner "his personal representative may assent to any devise contained in his will, or may convey the land to any person entitled thereto as heir, devisee, or otherwise, . . . subject to a charge for the payment of any money which the personal representatives are liable to pay, or without any such charge; and on such assent or conveyance, subject to a charge for all moneys (if any) which the personal representatives are liable to pay, all liabilities of the personal representatives in respect of the land shall cease, except as to any acts done or contracts entered into by them before such assent or conveyance." After the expiration of a year from the owner's death, "if the personal representatives have failed on the request of the person entitled to the land to convey the land to that person, the court may, if it thinks fit, on the application of that person and after notice to the personal representatives, order that the conveyance be made, or in case of registered land, that the person so entitled be registered as proprietor of the land, either solely or jointly, with the personal representatives. me powers, rights, duties, and liabilities The production of an assent by the personal representatives to the registrar is authority to him to register the transfer. The personal representatives, etc., may, in the absence of any express provision to the con-. with the consent of the person entitled to any legacy . . . or to a share in his residuary estate, etc., appropriate any part of the residuary estate in or towards satisfaction of that legacy or share," placing their own valuation on "the whole or any part of the property of the deceased per-' first giving notice to all persons interested in the residuary estate. In case of registered land such appropriation is authority to the registrar to register the person to whom the property is appropriated as proprietor. The act provides that the title to registered land, adverse to or in derogation of the title of the register proper, shall not be acquired by any length of possession. It also repeals the act of 32 Hen. VIII, c. 9, which prohibits sales and other dispositions of land of which the grantor or his predecessor in title had not been in possession for one whole year previously to the dispossession's being made.

It provides that the crown may, by an order in council, as respects any county or part of a county, declare registration of title to be compulsory on sale.

Six months' notice before the order in council is made is required to be given to the council of the county in question, and if within three months after receipt of notice with a draft of the proposed order, two-thirds of the members of the county council notify the Privy Council that, in their opinion, compulsory registration of title would not be desirable, the order in council shall not be made. The first order in council made under this act shall not affect more than one coun-The act reserves to parliament certain rights to disapprove of any order in council by which it shall become void. The act makes provision for an indemnity payable thereunder by setting apart a portion of the receipts from fees taken in the land register. If the indemnity fund is insufficient the deficiency is charged to the consolidated fund of the United Kingdom.

Provision is made for regulations by the lord chancellor, with the advice and assistance of certain officials, for the conduct of official searches, and for enabling the registered proprietor to apply for such searches, etc., by telegraph and to receive reply by telegraph. The act went into effect January 1, 1898.

The system of registration of deeds prevails in Scotland, in Middlesex and Yorkshire, in Ireland, France, Belgium, Italy, Spain, part of Switzerland, and the British colonies, excepting Australasia and most of Canada, and in the South American republics, as well as in the United States. The system of registration of title prevails in Germany. Austria-Hungary, Australasia, setts (1898); Minnesota (1901, and a n part of Switzerland, and the greater p Canada; 9 Jurid. Rev. 155. The Torre tem, so called from its author, Sir Torrens, has been in use in New South and Victoria since 1862; in South Aus 1858; Queensland, 1861; Tasmania, New Zealand and British Columbia, Western Australia, 1874; Ontario, Manitoba, 1883; Duffy & Eggleston, Transfer Act, 1890, 3. See infra.

The essential point of this system official guarantee of title; it is the re

tion of title as distinct from the regis of deeds. The latter ascertains the which must be examined under every fer, while the former renders such ex tion unnecessary; 9 Jurid. Rev. 155. the Torrens system the registrar hol same relation to the landowner that pany or bank holds to the shareholde In Germany the state keeps what r called a ledger account for each pr and pledges itself to keep it correct in such plain fashion that any person dinary intelligence can at once, and v examining any deed of any kind, as who stands as owner of the property means that his title is perfect), and debts or other incumbrances exist. In sia all transfers are made by word of without any deed or conveyance. The plest way is to have both parties to before the registrar, and declare the tract, and the purchaser is then ente owner; 9 Jurid. Rev. 155. For a d account of the system of registration in Central Europe, see 2 Jour. Com. L

In the United States the subject of tration of land titles has been consider many of the states. In New York C accumulation of record books has bec great in the registry of deeds that se of title can no longer be carried on vate persons. In that state an attem made to simplify and classify these r by adopting what is known as a block tem of registration by which deeds as er instruments are classified and index cording to the location of the pr While this is a partial relief, it by no

(June, 1897).

215. See Rep. Am. Bar Assn. (1890) With some modifications, in order viate the constitutional questions might arise under it in this country, th rens system has been adopted in ten and in Hawaii and the Philippines acts were not uniform, and most of have been amended once or more: ( nia (1897); Colorado (1903); Illino act of 1895 was declared unconstitu an act passed in 1897 was held valid;

pulsory act was adopted in 1910); Mas remedies the evils due to a lengt chain of title, where no part is stronge its weakest link; Yeakle, Torrens

205); New York (1908, which was passfter an elaborate study and report by a all commission); North Carolina (1913, feet January 1, 1914); Ohio (1913, int July 1, 1914); Oregon (1901); Washou (1907); Hawaii (1903); Philippines (1903). Hawaii and the Philippines followed Massachusetts act.

ts have been held constitutional in Robı v. Kerrigan, 151 Cal. 40, 90 Pac. 129, Am. St. Rep. 90, 12 Ann. Cas. 829; Peor. Crissman, 41 Colo. 450, 92 Pac. 949; le v. Simon, 176 Ill. 165, 52 N. E. 910, . R. A. 801, 68 Am. St. Rep. 175 (it is that the Illinois act has been before the eme court of that state 61 times); Tyler ndges, 175 Mass. 71, 55 N. E. 812, 51 L. . 433, see also 179 U.S. 405, 21 Sup. Ct. 45 L. Ed. 252 (numerous other Massaetts cases have followed Tyler v. Judges, Minot v. Cotting, 179 Mass. 325, 60 N. 10, down to Cohasset v. Moors, 204 Mass. 90 N. E. 978); State v. Westfall, 85 Minn. 89 N. W. 175, 57 L. R. A. 297, 89 Am. Rep. 571. The first act in Illinois (1895) declared unconstitutional in People v. e, 165 III. 527, 46 N. E. 454, 36 L. R. A. An earlier Ohio act was declared untitutional; State v. Guilbert, 56 Ohio 75, 47 N. E. 551, 38 L. R. A. 519, 60 Am. Rep. 756.

state act requiring persons (including residents) owning land to establish title udicial proceedings before properly conted tribunals is valid under the inherower of the state to legislate as to the to the soil within its confines; AmeriLand Co. v. Zeiss, 219 U. S. 47, 31 Sup. 300, 55 L. Ed. 82 (a California act passfter the San Francisco fire).

e also Ochoa v. Hernandez y Morales, J. S. 139, 33 Sup. Ct. 1033, 57 L. Ed. 1427. e William C. Niblack, An Analysis of forrens System, written as the result of y years' experience in titles under the ens System, but from a standpoint what critical of it.

e first Canadian act was British Colum-(1871), then Ontario (1885), but only part of the province. There are acts il the provinces except Quebec, Prince ard Island, New Brunswick and Newdiand. The Irish System exists under act of 1891. Registration is compulsory ondon, but is voluntary in other parts of and and in Wales. The Report of the Uniform Law Comoners on the Torrens System in Amer. Assoc. Rep. 1913, giving the above sum-state commission fully considered the duction of the system into Pennsylvania reported in favor of it, but as requiring mendment to the constitution.

ND TRANSFER ACT. See Land Title Transfer. LAND WAITER. In English Law. A custom-house officer who superintends the landing of goods, and who examines, measures, tastes, or weighs them and takes account of it. They are also sometimes required to superintend the shipment of goods where drawbacks are allowed, and to certify the shipping of them on the debentures. They are sometimes called Coast Waiters or Landing Waiters.

LAND WARRANT. A transferable government certificate entitling its holder to be put in possession of a designated quantity of public land, under a land grant or other appropriation of land by congress.

The possession of a warrant at the land office is sufficient authority to make locations under it, and letters of attorney are unnecessary; Galt v. Galloway, 4 Pet. (U. S.) 332, 7 L. Ed. 876. The locator of a warrant undertakes himself to find waste and unappropriated land, and his patent issues under his information to the government and at his own risk; he cannot be considered as a purchaser without notice; Taylor v. Brown, 5 Cra. (U. S.) 234, 3 L. Ed. 88. A power of attorney given by the holder of a land warrant from the general court authorities, the attorney to locate the land for his own sole use and benefit, and to sell the same and receive payment therefor, is manifestly designed to transfer the interest of the holder of the warrant in violation of the act of congress in that respect, and is void; Nichols v. Nichols, 3 Chand. (Wis.) 189. Evidence of the payment of the purchase money due the state of Pennsylvania on a land warrant clothes the person paying it with the ownership of the warrant and with the right tomaintain ejectment for the land; Murphy v. Packer, 152 U. S. 398, 14 Sup. Ct. 636, 38 L. Ed. 489. Land warrants are not to be regarded as real estate in a probate settlement; Moody v. Hutchinson, 44 Me. 57. See LANDS, PUBLIC; LAND PATENT.

LANDBOC. A charter or deed whereby lands or tenements were given under early English law. Cowell. See BOCLAND.

Occasionally it is said a bishop or abbot in support of claims of the highest jurisdictional powers "would rely on the vague large words of some Anglo-Saxon land book. But to do this was to make a false move; the king's lawyers were not astute palæographers or diplomatists, but any charter couched in terms sufficiently loose to pass for one moment as belonging to the age before the conquest could be met by the doctrine that the king was not to be deprived of his rights by 'obscure and general words.' 1 Poll. & Maitl. 571. See 3 Holdsw. Hist. E. L. 191.

LANDDAG. A convention of the Dutch in New Amsterdam. See 1 Fiske, Dutch & Quaker Colonies 328.

LANDED. As used in a revenue act levy- | sale. This court was called the Incumbered ing tolls on goods, the clear meaning and purport is "substantially imported," and stones shot from boats to the shore below high-water mark, there to remain until shipped for exportation, were not landed. L. R. 4 Ex. 260.

LANDED

Timber, floated into a salt water creek, where the tide ebbs and flows, leaving the ends resting in mud at low water and prevented from floating away at high water by booms, is landed; Brown v. U. S., 8 Cra. (U. S.) 110, 3 L. Ed. 504.

When merchandise is sent on shore, and afterwards, being in the ship's boat for the purpose of being re-shipped, it is violently seized and detained, either by the orders of a sovereign or by thieves, it is not safely landed, under an insurance on the goods, until the same should be discharged and safely landed; Parsons v. Ins. Co., 6 Mass. 197, 204, 4 Am. Dec. 115.

LANDED ESTATE OR PROPERTY. colloquial or popular phrase to denote real property. Landed estate ordinarily means an interest in and pertaining to lands. Police Jury of Parish of St. Mary v. Harris, 10 La. Ann. 676. In a tax law it "clearly embraces not only the land, but all houses, fixtures, and improvements of every kind thereon, and all machinery, neat cattle, horses, and mules, when attached to and used on a plantation or farm." Id.

A person holding such an estate is termed a landed proprietor, and it is immaterial whether the lands are improved or not; 10 La. Ann. 676. A devise of "all my landed property" carries the fee; Fogg v. Clark, 1 N. H. 163; and so does "my landed estate": Bradstreet v. Clarke, 12 Wend. (N. Y.) 602; but a devise of "all my landed estate," followed by a particular description of tracts devised, does not include a lot not enumerated, which descends to the heir at law, though excluded from all testator's estate with a shilling legacy; Myers v. Myers, 2 McCord, Ch. (S. C.) 214, 264, 16 Am. Dec. 648.

Landed securities are mortgages or other incumbrances affecting land, and this is what must be implied from the direction in a will to lay out a fund in some real security; 3 Atk. 805, 808.

LANDED ESTATES COURT. In English Law. Tribunals established by statute for the purpose of disposing more promptly and easily than could be done through the ordinary judicial machinery, of incumbered real estate. These courts were first established in Ireland by the act of 11 & 12 Vict. c. 48. which being defective was followed by 12 & 13 Vict. c. 77. The purpose of these was to enable the owner, or a lessee for any less than 63 years unexpired, of land subject to incumbrance, to apply to commissioners who constituted a court of record to direct a 44.

Estates Court. A new tribunal called the Landed Estates Court was created by 21 & 22 Vict. c. 72, which abolished the former court and established a permanent tribunal. It is said that these statutes facilitated a great revolution in the tenure of land in Ireland, supplying the means by which a great part of the soil passed rapidly from cottier tenants and an embarrassed and non-resident gentry to capitalist farmers and to landlords who cultivated the soil them-The result was agricultural prosperity, but great hardship to the tenants, upon whom in Ireland rested the burden of permanent improvements which elsewhere The sales would be borne by the landlord. under the Landed Estates Act deprived the tenants of opportunity to make claim for compensation in the adjustment of rent. Demands for increased rent under penalty of eviction compelled small farmers to emigrate, move to the towns, or remain as servants on their old farms. The acts of retaliation for these changes led to the passage of the Irish Land Act of 1870, followed by that of 1881. Under the latter the tenant farmers obtained very unexampled privileges, and a new court was created for fixing rent. See Int. Cyc., tit. Incumbered Estates Court, and authorities there cited.

A similar court was established for West Indian estates by 17 & 18 Vict. c. 117, the sittings of which were held at Westminster.

LANDEFRICUS, LANDAGENDE. lord of the soil; a landlord.

LANDEGANDMAN. An inferior tenant of a manor. Spel. Gloss.

LANDGRAVE. In Germany, in the middle ages a graf or count entrusted with special judicial functions, extending over a large extent of territory; later, the title of sovereign princes of the empire who inherited certain estates called land-gravates, of which they were invested by the emperor. Dict.

LANDHLAFORD. A proprietor of land; lord of the soil. Anc. Inst. Eng. See LAND-EFRICUS.

LANDIMERS. Measures of land. Cowell.

LANDING. A place for loading or unloading boats, but not a harbor for them. Hays v. Briggs, 74 Pa. 373. See WHARF.

LANDING PLACE. A place laid out by a town as a common landing place and used as such, but not designated as for the particular benefit of the town, is a public landing place. It is not, however, a townway and liable to be discontinued as such by the town. If a public landing place is no longer of use the power to discontinue it is in the legislature; Com. v. Tucker, 2 Pick. (Mass.)

ne public use of the land of an indial, adjoining navigable waters, as a ing place, for a period of twenty years, the knowledge of the owner, will not er a right, nor raise a presumption of dication; Pearsall v. Post, 20 Wend. (N. 111; Post v. Pearsall, 22 Wend. (N. Y.) Hewlett v. Pearsall, id. 559. When a way is extended to navigable waters, the rian owner has no exclusive right of ing; Fowler v. Mott, 19 Barb. (N. Y.)

der authority to regulate landings and ring places, commissioners of highways no right to lay out and establish a new ing place; Commissioners of Highways orth Hempstead v. Judges, 17 Wend. (N. ); but when a road has been laid out and as a highway to a public landing place wenty years prior to March 21, 1797, but sufficiently described, they may ascerdescribe, and enter of record such road, was constantly worked and used for ears next preceding; id. The selectmen town have no authority to lay out a ic landing; Bethum v. Turner, 1 Greenl. ) 111, 10 Am. Dec. 36.

NDIRECTA. Rights charged upon Toml. See Trinoda Necessitas.

NDLOCKED. Wholly surrounded by of some other person or persons, as the owner of a close surrounded by own land grants the land and reserves close. L. R. 13 Ch. Div. 798. In that it was held that the implied right to a of necessity operated by way of a ret from the grantor of the land, and limited by the necessity which created it was not a way of necessity for all oses, but only such as the close was for in the condition it happened to be e time of the grant. Semble, the same applies if the grant is of the landlocked with an implied grant of a way of ssity over the surrounding land; id.

NDLORD. The lord or proprietor of who, under the feudal system, retained dominion or ultimate property of the or fee of the land; while his grantee, had only the possession and use of the , was styled the feudatory, or vassal, h was only another name for the tenor holder of it. In the popular meaning e word, however, it is applied to a perwho owns lands or tenements which he out to others.

NDLORD AND TENANT. A term used enote the relation which subsists by virof a contract, express or implied, ben two or more persons, for the possesor occupation of lands or tenements eifor a definite period, from year to year, ife, or at will.

hen this relation is created by an ex-for the purpose is called a lease. See Lease. But it may also arise by necessary implication from the circumstances of the case and the relative position of the parties to each other; for the law will imply its existence in many cases where there is an ownership of land on the one hand and an occupation of it by permission on the other; and in such cases it will be presumed that the occupant intends to compensate the owner for the use of the premises; Carver v. Jackson, 4 Pet. (U. S.) 84, 7 L. Ed. 761; Dunne v. Trustees of Schools, 39 Ill. 578; Larned v. Hudson, 60 N. Y. 102.

In an action for possession of land and damages for holding over after expiration of a term, proof that plaintiff was owner, that defendant paid rent to him, and that he was duly notified to surrender possession, establishes the relation of landlord and tenant; Duffy v. Carman, 3 Ind. App. 207, 29 N. E. 454. A tenancy is created by the occupation or temporary possession of land, the title to which is in another; Ins. Co. of Pennsylvania v. O'Connell, 34 Ill. App. 357.

The intention to create. This relation may be inferred from a variety of circumstances; but the most obvious acknowledgment of its existence is the payment of rent; and this principle applies even after the expiration of a lease for a definite term of years; for if a tenant continues to hold over, after his term has run out, the landlord may, if he chooses, consider him a tenant, and he is, in fact, understood to do so, unless he proceeds to eject him at once. If the landlord suffers him to remain, and receives rent from him, or by any other act acknowledges him still as tenant, a new tenancy springs up, usually from year to year, regulated by the same covenants and stipulations entered into between the parties at the creation of the original term in so far as they are applicable to the altered nature of the tenancy; Abeel v. Radcliff, 15 Johns. (N. Y.) 505; Dorrill v. Stephens, 4 McCord (S. C.) 59; Right v. Darby, 1 T. R. 159; [1893] 1 Q. B. 736; Thiebaud v. Bank, 42 Ind. 212; Hall v. Myers, 43 Md. 446; Stoppelkamp v. Mangeot, 42 Cal. Until some act of recognition by the landlord the holding over tenant is a tenant at will. Emmons v. Scudder, 115 Mass. 367.

It is at the option of the landlord to treat him as a tenant or he "is a wrong-doer and may be treated as such by the owner, his landlord." His tenancy may be continued by consent, either express or implied, but without such new contract, the tenant continues a wrong-doer and is liable to be treated as such. "The mere unbroken silence and inaction of the owner will not improve or enlarge the character of the tenant's possession;" Den v. Adams, 12 N. J. L. 99. Each holding over by a tenant constitutes a new term; Kennedy v. City of New York, 196 N. s contract, the instrument made use of | Y. 19, 89 N. E. 360, 25 L. R. A. (N. S.) 847, and note; Borman v. Sandgren, 37 Ill. App. 1 160 (a monthly letting); Donk Bros. Coal & Coke Co. v. Leavitt, 109 Ill. App. 385; Griffith v. Lewis, 17 Mo. App. 605; contra, Bowen v. Anderson [1894] 1 Q. B. 164 (a weekly letting); Ward v. Hinkleman, 37 Wash. 375, 79 Pac. 956; Hull v. Sherrod, 97 Ill. App.

298; Hett v. Janzen, 22 Ont. Rep. 414. A tenant for a year or more, who holds over, becomes a tenant from year to year, even though the rent is made payable quarterly or monthly; Amsden v. Atwood, 69 Vt. 527, 38 Atl. 263; Belding v. Texas Produce Co., 61 Ark. 377, 33 S. W. 421; Schneider v. Lord, 62 Mich. 141, 28 N. W. 773; Intfen v. Foster, 8 Kan. App. 336, 56 Pac. 1125. But in Kaufman v. Mastin, 66 W. Va. 99, 66 S. E. 92, 25 L. R. A. (N. S.) 855; White v. Sohn, 65 W. Va. 409, 64 S. E. 442, where the lease was for a year and the rent was payable monthly, the renewal was held to be for a month. If the tenant holds over by consent of the landlord, either express or implied, the new term is equal to that previously held; Rothschild v. Williamson, 83 Ind. 387; Ketcham v. Ochs, 74 App. Div. 626, 77 N. Y. Supp. 1130, affirming 34 Misc. 470, 70 N. Y. Supp. 268; Schneider v. Curran, 19 Ohio Cir. Ct. 224; Simmons v. Jarman, 122 N. C. 195, 29 S. E. 332. If the term be for less than a year, the renewal is for another equal term, on the same conditions, even though the rental payments were at intervals less than the original term. It is said that the question may depend upon the use to which the property is put; Kaufman v. Mastin, supra. Since the presumption of a new tenancy from year to year rests upon an implied intention of the parties, if, after or prior to the termination of the lease, the landlord demands greater rent, and the tenant holds over without reply, he is presumed to have assented to pay the advanced rental; Hunt v. Bailey, 39 Mo. 257; Roberts v. Hayward, 3 C. & P. 432; and he will be liable for it until such agreement is modified by some other one; Moore v. Harter, 67 Ohio St. 250, 65 N. E. 883; Thompson v. Sanborn, 52 Mich. 141, 17 N. W. 730; and the same result is reached if the tenant protest that he is only remaining until he secures another place; Brinkley v. Walcott, 10 Heisk. (Tenn.) 22. In such case the original lease has expired and the tenant could not be sued for the breach of any covenant in it; Monck v. Geekle, 9 Ad. & El. 841. The presumption of holding over upon the terms of the original lease is not rebutted by proof of a different intention on the part of the tenant which is not communicated to the landlord and assented to by him; City of Chicago v. Peck, 196 Ill. 260, 63 N. E. 711, affirming 98 Ill. App. 434; nor is the presumption rebutted where the holding over is caused by action of the board of health in the regulation of | C. 27, 16 S. E. 924; and the vendee b persons ill with a contagious disease; Haynes | a tenant on his refusal to pay insta v. Aldrich, 133 N. Y. 287, 31 N. E. 94, 28 Am. as due because of the vendor's inab

St. Rep. 636; Herter v. Mullen, 9 Ar 593, 41 N. Y. Supp. 708. The payment of money, however, a prima facie acknowledgment of istence of a tenancy; for if it does pear to have been paid as rent, but h paid by mistake or stands upon som consideration, it will not be evidence subsisting tenancy; 3 B. & C. 413; G. 143. Neither does a mere participa the profits of land, where the owner excluded from possession, nor the let land upon shares, unless the occupa pressly agrees to pay a certain part crop as rent, in either case amoun tenancy; Hoskins v. Rhodes, 1 Gil (Md.) 266; Fry v. Jones, 2 Rawle (P Warner v. Hoisington, 42 Vt. 94; K v. People, 60 N. Y. 221, 19 Am. Rep. 1 wood v. Ruckman, 21 Ill. 200. The of landlord and tenant did not exist the occupancy was simply by militar

Female Institute v. U. S., 23 Ct. Cl. 1 But the relation of landlord and will not be implied when the acts as duct of the parties are inconsistent v existence, as where a railroad compa tered upon the land of a ferry compa der a contract permitting its use and tion for the purposes of its business gins Ferry Co. v. R. Co., 142 U. S. Sup. Ct. 188, 35 L. Ed. 1055; or wh relation of vendor and purchaser exi the latter remains in possession af agreement fails; White v. Livings Cush. (Mass.) 259; Henry v. Perry, 630, 36 S. E. 87; Brown v. Rando during the war of the rebellion; A

148; Ball v. Cullimore, 2 Cr., M. & Carpenter v. U. S., 17 Wall. (U. S.) L. Ed. 680; Fall v. Hazelrigg, 45 Ind. Am. Rep. 278; even where a note i for an installment of the purchase reciting that it is in part payment for Quertermous v. Hatfield, 54 Ark. 16 W. 1096; but an occupation under ar ment for sale if a title could be made a tenancy; Doe dem. Newby v. Jackso

& R. 514; but if, under an absolute ment for sale, the vendor fails to good title, the vendee, being in possess

Tex. Civ. App. 66, 62 S. W. 981; R:

Yale, 16 Vt. 257; Ayer v. Hawkes, 1

der the contract, is not liable as a Winterbottom v. Ingham, 7 Q. B. 611; v. Jennerson, 20 Kan. 371; Bardsle peal, 4 Sadl. (Pa.) 584, 10 Atl. 39; v. Collins, 116 Ga. 420, 42 S. E. 743. Where the vendee refused to surren title bond and the vendor retained th for the purchase money, proof that t mer had agreed to pay rent was no evidence of abandonment, but that q was for the jury; Taylor v. Taylor, e title; Sievers v. Brown, 36 Or. 218, 56 171; nor is a tenancy implied as ben mortgagor and mortgagee in possesor an assignee of the latter; Way v. nond, 16 Vt. 371; Hobbs v. Ontario & Deb. Co., 18 Can. St. 483 (although at case the mortgage contained a clause lease from the mortgagee to the mortr, the rent to correspond with the inments of purchase money, but the inment was not executed by the morte); Wood v. Felton, 9 Pick. (Mass.) nor where the mortgagee gave notice to tenant to pay the rent to him and the nt remained in possession; Towerson v. son, L. R. 2 Q. B. Div. 484 (C. A.); nor the mortgagor is in possession and es to pay $300 a year for interest and principal which is called rent; Sadler fferson, 143 Ala. 669, 39 South. 380.

nere the statute requires the recording ases, one in possession of real estate unan unrecorded lease has no rights as ast an attaching creditor; Flower v. ce, 45 La. Ann. 853, 13 South. 150.

e who takes a secret lease from a third without the knowledge of his landlord not thereby change his possession; Voss ng, 33 W. Va. 236, 10 S. E. 402.

tenant who rents his half of the premto his co-tenant is his landlord and ent to such rights as pertain to the rela-Grabfelder v. Gazetti (Tex.) 26 S. W.

tenant of a life estate may dispose of vhole or any part of it by deed or parol ; if he conveys it all, it is an assign-; if he grants a term for years, it is a ; King v. Sharp, 6 Humph. (Tenn.) 55; ampbell v. McCampbell, 5 Litt. (Ky.) 5 Am. Dec. 48; but he may contract for ife, reserving an annual rent, without ng with his estate by merely creating a ncy; Sykes v. Benton, 90 Ga. 402, 17 S. 02. At common law upon the death of ife tenant his lease for a term ends; land v. Crum, 113 Ill. 365, 55 Am. Rep. unless he had power so to lease, and erm is not revived by the acceptance of by the remainderman; Doe, dem. Simp-. Butcher, 1 Doug. 50; but the receipt ent, coupled with acts amounting to a nition of a tenancy, may amount to a demise by the remainderman; Lowrey ef, 1 Ind. App. 244, 27 N. E. 626. Rents not apportionable between the adminisr of the tenant for life and the rederman, but the payment of rent is due ther, according to the time at which it led; Noble v. Tyler, 61 Ohio St. 432, 56 . 191, 48 L. R. A. 735.

e relation of landlord and tenant has held to exist, where a ranch was let, by itten covenant for a term of years, for are of the produce, with provision for sale of stock and produce, and division Bouv.—116 of profits; Jones v. Durrer, 96 Cal. 95, 30 Pac. 1027; also under an agreement between the owner of stone quarry and another person that the latter shall work the quarry, sell the stone, and pay one-fifth of the proceeds to the former; Barry v. Smith, 1 Misc. 240, 23 N. Y. Supp. 129; where one had purchased land under a power of sale in a mortgage, which provided that the completion of the sale shall entitle the purchaser to immediate possession of the premises, and any holding of the same thereafter should be as tenant; Brewster v. McNab, 36 S. C. 274, 15 S. E. 233. The relation of landlord and tenant exists, so as to authorize a forcible detainer against a tenant in possession, whose lease was not enforceable because the premises were leased knowingly for immoral purposes; Murat v. Micand (Tex.) 25 S. W. 312. So where mortgagees of a stock of goods in a leased store building took possession of the goods therein, by permission of the mortgagors, and used the building to display and sell the goods; Hatch v. Van Dervoort, 54 N. J. Eq. 511, 34 Atl. 938.

The relation does not exist where a father deeds lands in fee-simple to his son, who is to give the father one-third of his crops until the latter should be in better financial condition, the son meanwhile to go ahead and improve the land as his own; Starkey v. Starkey, 136 Ind. 349, 36 N. E. 287; or where the owner of a farm rented a house for one year for the use of his tenant who farmed on shares, and at the end of his term held over for a few weeks and then rented the farm under a new lease from the grantee, the latter was held not liable for the rent of the tenant-house for the new year; Wilson v. Marshall, 34 Ill. App. 306. Occupation of lands by a person without recognizing the owner as his landlord, or any agreement to hold under and in subordination to him, is merely a trespass and does not create the relation of landlord and tenant; Dixon v. Ahern, 21 Nev. 65, 24 Pac. 337. One in possession and use of premises under an agreement to keep off trespassers is practically a tenant; Shaw v. Hill, 79 Mich. 86, 44 N. W. Where the crop growing on leased premises was sold under execution, the purchaser, who was also assignee of the judgment for rent under which the crop was sold, did not become a tenant of the lessor and could go upon the land to harvest the crop without incurring any liability to the lessor for the use of the land while the crop was ripening; McClellan v. Krall, 43 Kan. 216, 23 Pac. 100. The lessee of a mere occupant (the title being in a third person) could recover possession under proceedings for forcible entry and detainer against the lessor who had entered upon the premises; Thomas v. Black, 8 Houst. (Del.) 507, 18 Atl. 771.

Occupancy, incident to employment does not create tenancy, as superintendence of the Jur. 42. The question of the relation of the occupancy to the service or employment was properly left to the jury; Ofschlager v. Surbeck, 22 Misc. 595, 50 N. Y. Supp. 862; Hughes v. Chatam, 5 Mann. & G. 54; the terms of the contract or the character of the occupation are for the jury, but those being fixed, their legal import is for the court to declare upon consideration of the nature and character of the business; Bowman v. Bradley, 151 Pa. 351, 24 Atl. 1062, 17 L. R. A. 213; Kerrains v. People, 60 N. Y. 221, 19 Am. Rep. 158.

v. Batsche, 106 Mich. 330, 64 N. W. 196, 29

L. R. A. 576; Hart v. O'Brien, 15 L. Can.

A priest holding his place at the will of the bishop and occupying church property which included a dwelling house, was held not to be a tenant, his possession being more like that of a servant; Chatard v. O'Donovan, 80 Ind. 20, 41 Am. Rep. 782.

Rights of the Landlord. The relation begins and the obligations accrue from the time stipulated in the lease, if there be one (see LEASE), or the entry of the tenant into possession under an agreement express or implied to pay rent or the actual payment of it; Kemp v. Derrett, 3 Camp. 510. After the making of a lease the right of possession remains in the landlord until the contract is consummated by the entry of the lessee, when he acquires the right of possession with all its incidents; Herrmann v. Curiel, 3 App. Div. 511, 38 N. Y. Supp. 343. The rights of the landlord in the premises are confined to those derived expressly or impliedly from the lease or essential to the protection of his reversion; Sully v. Schmitt, 147 N. Y. 248, 41 N. E. 514, 49 Am. St. Rep. 659; he usually reserves the right to go upon the premises peaceably to ascertain whether there is waste or injury, but unless it is so reserved. he has no such right; State v. Piper, 89 N. C. 551. He may, however, enter when the tenant has abandoned the land; Maclary v. Turner, 1 Marv. (Del.) 24, 32 Atl. 325; but | it is an eviction if the landlord enter for L. R. A. (N. S.) 1142. Such a landlor

1842 the purpose of rebuilding; Heller Co., 151 Pa. 101, 25 Atl. 83; or repair son v. Edmonson, 5 Harring. (De and if the rent is payable in produce not enter and take it until it is delive the tenant or severed from the farm apart for him; Dockham v. Parker, 9 (Me.) 137, 23 Am. Dec. 547; Woo Adams, 5 Blackf. (Ind.) 317, 35 A 122; or to remove an obstruction way; Proud v. Hollis, 1 B. & C. 8. maintain actions for such injuries a his reversion; Starr v. Jackson, 1 519; Ray v. Ayers, 5 Duer (N. Y but they must be of a permanent ch Little v. Palister, 3 Greenl. (Me.) 6. The landlord's responsibilities in re possession, also, are suspended as soo tenant commences his occupation: Cl v. Hampson, 4 Term 318; City of Ne v. Corlies, 2 Sandf. (N. Y.) 301; Cit Louis v. Kaime, 2 Mo. App. 66. Bu liable to a stranger who is injured son of the defective condition of the p at the time of their demise, or any their construction, or nuisance though created by the tenant's ordin of the premises; Godley v. Hagerty 387, 59 Am. Dec. 731; Whalen v. Glo 4 Hun (N. Y.) 24; or if an injury is by the neglect of the landlord to do which he undertook to do, or if he the lease with a nuisance on the pr King v. Pedley, 1 Ad. & El. 822. He liable for not disclosing a concealed not discoverable by the tenant, but k the landlord or condemned by com perience as dangerous; Cutter v. : 147 Mass. 471, 18 N. E. 397, 1 L. R. And even when there is no express o to repair, where the defect was in walk, the owner was under an impli

St. Rep. 293. The foundations and walls of a b the different floors of which are le different tenants, cannot be regarde the possession of the landlord within that he is liable for injuries to the through defects in portions of the remaining within his possession; I Tracey, 89 S. W. 1128, 28 Ky. L. Rep to inspect and repair which could be by the municipality; Trustees of Vi

Canandaigua v. Foster, 156 N. Y. 35

E. 971, 41 L. R. A. 554, 66 Am. St. F

And the landlord is liable for inju

curred by third persons in parts of th ing of which he retains the possess control, as: An elevator; Burner man & Skinner Co., 127 Ia. 580, 103

802; or opening in the side-walk; J

v. Van Schaick, 108 N. Y. 530, 15 N.

2 Am. St. Rep. 459; or outside step platform for common use of tenants;

v. Platt, 172 Mass. 458, 52 N. E. 526, liable to the tenant of the lower floor for injuries to his stock from water from a closet which overflows because of the tenant's negligent use of it; Lebensburger v. Scofield, 155 Fed. 85, 86 C. C. A. 105, 12 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1025. The landlord of a tenement building is liable to the tenant for the defective condition of the roof, where such tenant was obliged to use it for the purpose of drying clothes; Karlson v. Healy, 38 App. Div. 486, 56 N. Y. Supp. 361; where the main wall of a tenement house fell and injured the property of one of the tenants, it was held that such tenant might not recover in the absence of an express covenant that the landlord will keep the leased premises in repair; Ward v. Fagin, 101 Mo. 669, 14 S. W. 738, 10 L. R. A. 147, 20 Am. St. Rep. 650.

The duty of the owner of an office building to keep in proper condition the common portions retained in his possession does not extend to keeping outer doors unlocked on Sunday to enable tenants to remove large pieces of furniture in case of fire; Whitcomb v. Mason, 102 Md. 275, 62 Atl. 749, 4 L. R. A. (N. S.) 565; tenants occupying offices on the second floor of an office building are entitled to enjoin the tenant on the ground floor from obstructing the entrance to the block by the erection of signs and showcases; Miller v. Dry Goods Co., 62 Neb. 270, 86 N. W. 1078. A landlord is not liable for a hidden defect in a gutter on the property; Shute v. Bills, 191 Mass. 433, 78 N. E. 96, 7 L. R. A. (N. S.) 965, 114 Am. St. Rep. 631. In an action by lessee for breach of a covenant in a lease, to repair, the measure of damages is the diminished rental value by reason of the failure to make the repairs; Biggs v. McCurley, 76 Md. 409, 25 Atl. 466.

The principal obligations on the part of the landlord are: (1) That the tenant shall enjoy quiet possession of the premises, which means that he shall not be evicted by one having a title paramount to the landlord, or the latter shall not render his occupation uncomfortable by causing or maintaining a nuisance on or about the premises. This covenant is implied from the operative words of a lease and is sometimes specially inserted; Mayor, etc., of New York v. Mabie, 13 N. Y. 151, 64 Am. Dec. 538; Crouch v. Fowle, 9 N. H. 219, 32 Am. Dec. 350; Bayes v. Loyd [1895] 2 Q. B. 610; under this covenant the landlord is not liable if the tenant be ousted by a stranger; Moore v. Weber, 71 Pa. 429, 10 Am. Rep. 708; Kimball v. Masters of Grand Lodge of Masons, 131 Mass. 59. But in Mershon v. Williams, 63 N. J. L. 398, 44 Atl. 211, it was held that such an implied covenant will arise only from the words "demise" or "grant" and not from the words "to let" and "to lease" or from the mere relation of landlord and tenant. (2) The payment of all arrears of ground rent or interest on liens, for which the tenant has no liability unless he expressly assumes it; Earle v. Arbogast, 180 Pa. 409, 36 Atl. 923; and the same rule applies to taxes, which are usually chargeable to the landlord; Leache v. Goode, 19 Mo. 501; and as to which special covenants are not uncommon; such covenant was held to cover such taxes as were chargeable on the premises at the time of making the lease; Watson v. Atkins, 3 B. & Ald. 647; but in another case a covenant to pay all rates, taxes, etc., was held to cover an extraordinary assessment for sewers; Waller v. Andrews, 3 M. & W. 312.

There is no implied warranty on the part of the landlord that the premises are safe or reasonably fit for habitation, for the purpose for which they are intended; Roth v. Adams, 185 Mass. 341, 70 N. E. 445; Dutton v. Gerrish, 9 Cush. (Mass.) 89, 55 Am. Dec. 45; Bennett v. Sullivan, 100 Me. 118, 60 Atl. 886; Howell v. Schneider, 24 App. D. C. 532 (it is for the tenant to examine); Carey v. Kreizer, 26 Misc. 755, 57 N. Y. Supp. 79; Doyle v. R. Co., 147 U. S. 413, 13 Sup. Ct. 333, 37 L. Ed. 223 (where it was held that the lessor was not bound to notify the tenant of the danger of snow slides); unless the building constitutes a public nuisance or the lessor conceals defects so as to amount to fraud; Steefel v. Rothschild, 179 N. Y. 273, 72 N. E. 112, 1 Ann. Cas. 676; Wilcox v. Cate, 65 Vt. 478, 26 Atl. 1105; but the landlord may be liable for an injury to a passer-by due to a defect existing when the house was let; Bowen v. Anderson, [1894] 1 Q. B. 164; and see Perrett v. Dupré, 3 Rob. (La.) 52, where it was held that a lessor is bound to keep the premises in a condition fit for the purpose for which they were leased, and if he fail to make the necessary repairs the tenant may make them and charge them. But where a building is let to different tenants the landlord is charged with the duty of keeping the halls and those portions of the building which are for the common use of the tenants in safe condition and properly furnished with light at night; Gleason v. Boehm, 58 N. J. L. 475, 34 Atl. 886, 32 L. R. A. 645; but he was held not required under all circumstances to light the halls; Gorman v. White, 19 App. Div. 324, 46 N. Y. Supp. 1; nor is he under any general duty to do so unless their construction is unusual or peculiar so as to render light necessary; Brugher v. Buchtenkirch, 29 App. Div. 342, 51 N. Y. Supp. 464. So he must guard an elevator shaft if rented to different tenants; Malloy v. Real Estate Ass'n, 13 Misc. 496, 34 N. Y. Supp. 679; or retains control of a portion of the premises; Davis v. Power Co., 107 Cal. 563, 40 Pac. 950, 48 Am. St. Rep. 156. He is liable where the premises were let with a nuisance which caused an injury to a third person; City of Denver v. Soloman, 2 Colo. App. 534, 31 Pac. 507; McGrath v. Walker, 64 Hun 179, 18 N.

1844

Y. Supp. 915; or where one was injured by the falling of a fire wall and cornice in the part under the lessor's control; O'Connor v. Curtis (Tex.) 18 S. W. 953; but he was not liable for injury caused by defective steps to one who had no reasonable excuse for entering the house; Hart v. Cole, 156 Mass. 475, 31 N. E. 644, 16 L. R. A. 557; nor to one who fell into a coal hole neither faulty in construction nor out of repair; Adams v. Fletcher, 17 R. I. 137, 20 Atl. 263, 33 Am. St. Rep. 859; contra, where the defect was not proved to have existed at the beginning of the tenancy; 57 L. J. Q. B. 507; but this decision was questioned; 55 Alb. L. J. 27.

Subject to these exceptions, the occupant and not the owner is liable for injuries for failure to keep the premises in repair; Caldwell v. Slade, 156 Mass. 84, 30 N. E. 87; to third persons rightfully upon the premises; City of Peoria v. Simpson, 110 Ill. 294, 51 Am. Rep. 683; Campbell v. Sugar Co., 62 Me. 552, 16 Am. Rep. 503; whether such third persons be in a hotel kept by the tenant; Fellows v. Gilhuber, 82 Wis. 639, 52 N. W. 307, 17 L. R. A. 577; Hutchinson v. Cummings, 156 Mass. 329, 31 N. E. 127; or persons visiting the tenant socially; Montieth v. Finkbeiner, 66 Hun 633, 21 N. Y. Supp. 288; or servants of the tenant; Johnson v. Tacoma Cedar Lumber Co., 3 Wash. 722, 29 Pac. 451; McCarthy v. Foster, 156 Mass. 511, 31 N. E. 385; but where the landlord is in control of machinery within the leased building and furnishes the power for it, and is negligent in that regard, an employee of the tenant is entitled to recover; Poor v. Sears, 154 Mass. 539, 28 N. E. 1046, 26 Am. St. Rep. 272. See APARTMENT; FLAT.

The landlord, in the absence of any express covenant or agreement, is under no obligation to make any repairs; Weber v. Lieberman, 47 Misc. 593, 94 N. Y. Supp. 460; Turner v. Townsend, 42 Neb. 376, 60 N. W. 587; Huber v. Baum, 152 Pa. 626, 26 Atl. 101; and a promise to repair made by the landlord prior to the execution of the lease is merged in the latter and is not binding; Hall v. Beston, 16 Misc. 528, 38 N. Y. Supp. 979. provision that repairs should be made at the tenant's expense, unless by special agreement the lessor agrees to pay for them binds the latter by a subsequent agreement to make them; Peticolas v. Thomas, 9 Tex. Civ. App. 442, 29 S. W. 166; and where the lessee agrees to do repairs with material to be furnished by the lessor he is bound by his undertaking, and performance is not excused by the lessor's failure to furnish the material; Wood v. Sharpless, 174 Pa. 588, 34 Atl. 319, 321. So a covenant by the lessor to keep the outside of the building in good repair obliges him to put it so; Miller v. Mc-Cardell, 19 R. I. 304, 33 Atl. 445, 30 L. R. A. 682.

In Philadelphia, by custom, certain sub- required to run it without an agree stantial repairs are to be made by the land- do so, express or implied; Cummings

And it is not in the power of a to unless there be a special agreement effect; Powell v. Beckley, 38 Neb. 18 W. 974; Mumford v. Brown, 6 Cow. and a breach of it, the tenant may r repairs and charge the expense to t lord; Hexter v. Knox, 63 N. Y. 561 v. Maury, 23 La. Ann. 59; Ross v well, 19 Ind. App. 86, 49 N. E. 50. mon law, in the absence of an expre nant in the lease, the lessor was no to rebuild structures which had bec fit for use; Felton v. Cincinnati, 336, 37 C. C. A. 88; by reason of des by fire or accident; Jackson v. I La. 230, 33 South. 207; Arbenz v Watkins & Co., 52 W. Va. 476, 44 S. 61 L. R. A. 957; Ducker v. Del G 93 App. Div. 575, 87 N. Y. Supp. 88 if the premises have become uninh by fire, and the landlord, having them, has recovered the insurance the tenant cannot compel him to exp money so recovered in rebuilding, u has expressly engaged to do so; nor in such an event, protect himself f payment of rent during the unexpir of the term; Jack. & G. L. & T. $ 1049 v. Matthews, 52 N. Y. 512; Loft v. E. & E. 474; Leads v. Cheetham, 1 8 It has been held that even where t

It has been held that even where the of a building had recovered of policy the full loss sustained by the of his building caused by the storage ton by his tenants in violation of the he may sue and recover from the less the damage to the building; And Miller, 96 Tenn. 35, 33 S. W. 615, 3 A. 604, 54 Am. St. Rep. 812.

On the part of the tenant, we may that on taking possession he is at vested with all the rights incident to sion, and is entitled to the use of a leges and easements appurtenant premises.

He has the implied right to use purtenances of a building, as an ease a chimney on an adjoining lot; Dyer, 125 Mass. 287; a light and ai Case v. Minot, 158 Mass. 577, 33 N. 22 L. R. A. 536; the use of streets for Edmison v. Lowry, 3 S. D. 77, 52 N. 17 L. R. A. 275, 44 Am. St. Rep. 774; of elevators, but if one is in fact main the building by the landlord, he required to run it without an agreed oso, express or implied; Cummings ry, 169 Mass. 150, 47 N. E. 618, 38 L. R. A. 149.

The tenant may also maintain an action against any person who disturbs his possession or trespasses upon the premises, though it be the landlord himself; Cook v. Transp. Co., 1 Den. (N. Y.) 91; Dickinson v. Goodspeed, 8 Cush. (Mass.) 119; or under the landlord's authority; Crowell v. R. Co., 61 Miss. 631; or a third person against whom, if he is ousted, he may recover the possession and also have an action for damages; Tobias v. Cohn, 36 N. Y. 363; Schmoele v. Betz, 212 Pa. 32, 61 Atl. 525, 108 Am. St. Rep. 845; Stebbins v. Demorest, 138 Mich. 297, 101 N. W. 528. He is entitled to an injunction to restrain a nuisance affecting health and comfort in the use of the premises; State v. King, 46 La. Ann. 78, 14 South. 423 (for a collection of cases as to what are such nuisances, see 1 Taylor L. & T. 9th Ed. 201, note); and may sue for damages to his crops, and the overflow of his lands caused by the wrongful act of another; Bannon v. Mitchell, 6 Ill. App. 17; Baltimore & S. P. R. Co. v. Hackett, 87 Md. 224, 39 Atl. 510; St. Louis, A. & T. R. Co. v. Trigg, 63 Ark. 536, 40 S. W. 579; or the obstruction of a way appurtenant to the premises; Morrison v. R. Co., 117 Ia. 587, 91 N. W. 793.

One who enters upon land by the permission, sufferance, or consent of the tenant, is at once charged by the law with the allegiance due from the tenant to his lessor; Springs v. Schenck, 99 N. C. 551, 6 S. E. 405, 6 Am. St. Rep. 552. So a railroad company lessee is liable for injury to a passenger, though the lease was illegal and void; Feital v. R. Co., 109 Mass. 398, 12 Am. Rep. 720; and in such case the lessee may be considered as operating the road as the agent of the lessor, who, if the lease were void, would continue to be liable; Lee v. R. Co., 116 Cal. 97, 47 Pac. 932, 38 L. R. A. 71, 58 Am. St. Rep. 140. The tenant is also answerable for any neglect to make such repairs as he is chargeable with; supra; and is liable for injuries to third persons, his liability being precisely like that of any other occupant of immovable property; Taylor, L. & T. $ 192; his responsibility springs rather from his actual possession than from his relation as tenant; Feital v. R. Co., 109 Mass. 398, 12 Am. Rep. 720. He is liable for the negligence of his servant or of anyone assisting the servant in performing his duties at the request of the latter; Althorf v. Wolfe, 22 N. Y. 355; Killion v. Power, 51 Pa. 429, 91 Am. Dec. 127; Chicago v. Robbins, 2 Black (U. S.) 418, 17 L. Ed. 298; Randleson v. Murray, 8 Ad. & El. 109; or for maintaining a nuisance upon the premises; Ball v. Nye, 99 Mass. 582, 97 Am. Dec. 56; or for an injury which is occasioned by his negligence in repairing the building without sufficiently Sexton v. Zett, 44 N. Y. 430; Wright v. Saunders, 65 Barb. (N. Y.) 214, affirmed 36 How. Prac. 136, *42 N. Y. 323. He may also be liable for injuries to persons resorting to the premises on his invitation, resulting from faults in the construction of the building of which he has knowledge or reason to apprehend and fails to exercise reasonable care to prevent accident or to give warning; Philadelphia, W. & B. R. Co. v. Kerr, 25 Md. 521; Carleton v. Steel Co., 99 Mass. 216; Nickerson v. Tirrell, 127 Mass. 236; but the visitor must himself exercise due care, and if he fails to do so he cannot recover; Wilkinson v. Fairrie, 1 H. & C. 633.

1

Another obligation which the law imposes upon the tenant, independent of any agreement, is so to use the premises as not to injure them unnecessarily and this implied covenant has been said to be in effect a covenant against voluntary waste and nothing more, and it does not make the tenant answerable for accidental damages; U. S. v. Bostwick, 94 U. S. 53, 24 L. Ed. 65. If the lessee covenants to return the premises in good repair he cannot require the lessor to make any repairs; Hays v. Moody, 2 N. Y. Supp. 385; so also, if there be no stipulation on the subject of repairs, the tenant is bound to keep the premises in ordinary repair; Hitner v. Ege, 23 Pa. 305. Except where the lease contains a special exemption, the tenant is responsible for any waste committed on the premises; Consolidated Coal Co. v. Savitz, 57 Ill. App. 659; such as the removal of stairways, elevators, etc., from the building; Palmer v. Young, 108 Ill. App. 252; or of fences from the land; Brown v. Hord, 15 S. W. 874, 12 Ky. L. Rep. 916; or of a portion of a building; Bass v. R. Co., 82 Fed. 857, 27 C. C. A. 147, 39 L. R. A. 711; the undertaking to deliver up the premises at the end of the term in as good condition as when they were taken is subject to the limitation of such wear and tear as is incident to the use of which the premises is put; Jennings v. Bond, 14 Ind. App. 282, 42 N. E. 957; and the tenant is not obliged under such covenant to replace fixtures which have become useless from ordinary wear and tear; Fox v. Lynch, 71 N. J. Eq. 537, 64 Atl. 439.

his actual possession than from his relation as tenant; Feital v. R. Co., 109 Mass. 398, 12 Am. Rep. 720. He is liable for the negligence of his servant or of anyone assisting the servant in performing his duties at the request of the latter; Althorf v. Wolfe, 22 N. Y. 355; Killion v. Power, 51 Pa. 429, 91 Am. Dec. 127; Chicago v. Robbins, 2 Black (U. S.) 418, 17 L. Ed. 298; Randleson v. Murray, 8 Ad. & El. 109; or for maintaining a nuisance upon the premises; Ball v. Nye, 99 Mass. 582, 97 Am. Dec. 56; or for an injury which is occasioned by his negligence in repairing the building without sufficiently guarding against accidents to passers-by;

to take it; Pridefoot v. Hart, 59 L. J. Q. B.; lord was liable; Lynch v. Ortleib & D. 43; in construing such a covenant the age and general condition of the premises must be considered; Willcock v. Due, 1 F. & F. 337.

Where the tenant had a covenant that the premises were to be kept in a cleanly and healthy condition, he was justified in abandoning them when the landlord rendered them uninhabitable by maintaining a nuisance; Sully v. Schmitt, 147 N. Y. 248, 41 N. E. 514, 49 Am. St. Rep. 659.

But the tenant is not bound to rebuild premises which have accidentally become ruinous during his occupation; nor is he answerable for ordinary wear and tear, nor for an accidental fire, nor to put a new roof on the building, nor to make what are usually called general or substantial repairs: Eagle v. Swayze, 2 Daly (N. Y.) 140; Street v. Brewing Co., 101 App. Div. 3, 91 N. Y. Supp. 547. Neither is he bound to do painting, whitewashing, or papering, except so far as they may be necessary to preserve exposed timber from decay; Wise v. Metcalfe, 10 B. & C. 299. In general he need do nothing which will make the inheritance better than he found it; Torvians v. Young, 6 C. & P. 8; Long v. Fitzimmons, 1 W. & S. (Pa.) 530.

There is no implied contract binding the lessee to restore buildings which have been destroyed by accident; Earle v. Arbogast, 180 Pa. 409, 36 Atl. 923. Under a covenant by the lessee to deliver up the premises in as good condition as when the lease was made, unavoidable (or inevitable) accident excepted, the landlord is not liable for the repairs to a window broken by a storm; Turner v. Townsend, 42 Neb. 376, 60 N. W. 587; or for one broken by a stone kicked by a passing horse; Peck v. Mfg. Co., 43 Ill. App. 360. If there be an express covenant by the tenant to repair, he must do so though the premises be destroyed by fire; Hoy v. Holt, 91 Pa. 88, 36 Am. Rep. 659; Phillips v. Stevens, 16 Mass. 238; contra, if there is no express covenant to repair; U.S. v. Bostwick, 94 U.S. 53, 24 L. Ed. 65. Where the lease required the tenant to "cash any repairs" on the leased premises to a specified amount, the landlord acquires no right to charge the tenant with repairs made by himself; Schrage v. Miller, 44 Neb. 818, 62 N. W. 1091. Under a covenant that the tenant shall "make the necessary repairs," he is liable for the breaking of a plate glass in the building, though without his fault; Cohn v. Hill, 9 Misc. 326, 39 N. Y. Supp. 209. Where an explosion occurred in a leased building, the landlord was not relieved of the burden of showing negligence of the lessee; Easby v. Easby, 180 Pa. 429, 36 Atl. 923.

Where the tenant had covenanted to make the repairs but the landlord authorized his agent to do some repairing in the course of which, by reason of unskilful workmanship, the wall fell upon a tenant's goods, the land- ther fixed by the terms of the lease,

Tex. 590, 30 S. W. 545; id.; 28 S. V.

1846

With respect to farming leases, a is under a similar obligation to repa it differs from the general obligation that it is confined to the dwelling which he occupies,-the burden of re and maintaining the out-buildings an erections on the farm being sustained by the landlord, or the tenant, in the of any express provision in the lease, particular custom of the country in the farm is situated. He is always however, to cultivate the farm in a g husband-like-manner, to keep the fe repair, and to preserve the timber an mental trees in good condition; Sta Cristmas, 10 Q. B. 135; and for an tion of any of these duties he is liab proceeded against by the landlord for whether the act of waste be commi the tenant or, through his negligenc stranger; Co. Litt. 53; Atersoll v. St 1 Taunt. 198; Cook v. Transp. Co., (N. Y.) 104; Aughinbaugh v. Coppe 55 Pa. 347; Walker v. Tucker, 70 I U. S. v. Bostwick, 94 U. S. 53, 24 L. 5 Term 373; to till a farm contrary usual rotation of crops and to the of the country is waste; Wilds v. Le Del. Ch. 226, 12 Am. Dec. 91. As t constitutes waste, see that title, and Taylor, Landlord & Tenant § 346 et The tenant's general obligation to also renders him responsible for any a stranger may sustain by his neg keep the premises in a safe condition by not keeping the covers of his vaul ciently closed, so that a person wal the street falls through, or is injured by. If he repairs or improves the b he must guard against accident to the ers-by in the street, by erecting a barricade, or stationing a person t give notice of the danger; Althorf v. 22 N. Y. 366; L. R. 2 C. P. 311; L. B. 501. For any unreasonable observable he places in the highway adjoin premises, he may be indicted for car public nuisance, as well as rendered l an action for damages, at the suit of dividual injured. Nor may the tenar dangerous animals on the premises; I v. Leonard, 4 Den. (N. Y.) 500; Cogg Baldwin, 15 Vt. 404, 40 Am. Dec. 6 common law, if a fire began in a d house and spread to neighboring bu the tenant of the house where the fire was liable in damages to all whose p But by a statute of was injured. Anne, amended by stat. 14 Geo. III this right of action has been taken The statute is generally re-enacted United States; vide Tayl. L. & T. § 19

The tenant's chief duty, however, payment of rent, the amount of which 1847

the absence of an express agreement, is such | been deprived of his tenancy by the act, omisa reasonable compensation for the occupation of the premises as they are fairly worth. If there has been no particular agreement between the parties, the tenant pays rent only for the time he has had the beneficial enjoyment of the premises; but if he has entered into an express agreement to pay rent during the term, no casualty or injury to the premises by fire or otherwise, nothing, in fact, short of an eviction, will excuse him from such payment; Gates v. Green, 4 Paige (N. Y.) 355, 27 Am. Dec. 68; Barrett v. Boddie, 158 III. 479, 42 N. E. 143, 49 Am. St. Rep. 172; Wagner v. White, 4 Har. & J. (Md.) 564; 10 M. & W. 321; Fowler v. Bott, 6 Mass. 63. The same rule applies when the rent is paid in advance; Diamond v. Harris, 33 Tex. 634; Cross v. Button, 4 Wis. 468; or the lessor has collected insurance money and refuses to rebuild after destruction of the premises; Bussman v. Ganster, 72 Pa. 285; and a guarantor of the lessee is likewise held; Kingsbury v. Westfall, 61 N. Y. 356.

In England the same rule applies where the tenant has only part of a house; Izon v. Gorton, 5 Bing. N. C. 501; and also in Kentucky; Helburn v. Mofford, 7 Bush (Ky.) 169; but it is not the rule generally in this country; Kerr v. Exch. Co., 3 Edw. Ch. (N. Y.) 315; Winton v. Cornish, 5 Ohio 477; Mc-Millan v. Solomon, 42 Ala. 356, 94 Am. Dec. 654; though the rent was paid in advance; Shawmut Nat. Bank v. Boston, 118 Mass. 125; Ainsworth v. Ritt, 38 Cal. 89. In South Carolina the rule as to liability for rent is otherwise; Bayly v. Lawrence, 1 Bay (S. C.) 499; Ripley v. Wightman, 4 McCord (S. C.) 447; and so it is in Louisiana, where also if the premises are destroyed or become untenantable the lease is determined; Coleman v. Haight, 14 La. Ann. 564; Meyers v. Henderson, 49 La. Ann. 1547, 16 South. 729. In New York the same result is effected by statute: Fleischman v. Toplitz, 134 N. Y. 349, 31 N. E. 1089; and in Washington when the building is destroyed by fire; Porter v. Tull, 6 Wash. 408, 33 Pac. 965, 22 L. R. A. 613, 36 Am. St. Rep. 172.

It has been said that an eviction must be by process of law in order to release the tenant from payment of rent; Greenby v. Wilcocks, 2 Johns. (N. Y.) 1, 3 Am. Dec. 379; but this has been characterized as a dictum and it is now generally held otherwise; Greenvault v. Davis, 4 Hill (N. Y.) 643; Edmison v. Lowry, 3 S. D. 77, 52 N. W. 583, 17 L. R. A. 275, 44 Am. St. Rep. 774; Green v. Irving, 54 Miss. 450, 28 Am. Rep. 360. eviction, however actually enforced, constitutes a good excuse from payment; Heinrich v. Mack, 25 Misc. 597, 56 N. Y. Supp. 155; Royce v. Guggenheim, 106 Mass. 201, 8 Am. Rep. 322; Barnes v. Bellamy, 44 U. C. Q. B. 303; but there must be an eviction in good faith and not by collusion; Mattoon v.

sion or agency of the landlord either on the rented or adjoining property, he is discharged from payment of rent; Leopold v. Judson, 75 Ill. 536; Colburn v. Morrill, 117 Mass. 262, 19 Am. Rep. 415; Poston v. Jones, 37 N. C. 350, 38 Am. Dec. 683; Upton v. Townsend, 17 C. B. 30 (a leading case on what amounts to eviction); Conlon v. Mc-Graw, 66 Mich. 194, 33 N. W. 388. So the tenant is discharged from payment of rent by an ouster under a paramount title; Blair v. Claxton, 18 N. Y. 529; University of Vermont v. Joslyn, 21 Vt. 52.

What amounts to eviction is a difficult question to answer generally and must be determined by the facts of each case. Actual force is not necessary; Tallman v. Murphy, 120 N. Y. 345, 24 N. E. 716; but it includes any wrongful act of the lessor which results in an entire or partial interference with the tenant's occupation and enjoyment: Oakford v. Nixon, 177 Pa. 76, 35 Atl. 588, 34 L. R. A. 575. The eviction may be constructive and, if by the bona fide assertion of a paramount title, the lessee may yield without waiting for force and his attornment or purchase without change of possession will be sufficient as an eviction; Moore v. Vail, 17 Ill. 190; Loomis v. Bedel, 11 N. H. 74; Holbrook v. Young, 108 Mass. 83; but an attornment must be shown; Hawes v. Shaw, 100 Mass. 187. If, however, part only of the premises be recovered by paramount title, the rent is apportioned, and the tenant remains liable in proportion to the part from which it has not been evicted; Woodf. L. & T. 1115; 2 East 575; Carter v. Burr, 39 Barb. (N. Y.) 59; Leishman v. White, 1 Allen (Mass.) 489. See RENT. A tenant's liability for rent is not affected by condemnation of part of the demised premises; Stubbings v. Village of Evanston, 136 Ill. 37, 26 N. E. 577, 11 L. R. A. 839, 29 Am. St. Rep. 300; but it ceases where the estate in the entire premises is extinguished; Corrigan v. City of Chicago, 144 Ill. 537, 33 N. E. 746, 21 L. R. A. 212; it amounts to eviction by paramount right; id. Where upper rooms or an apartment are rented and the building is destroyed by fire the tenancy is terminated there being no interest in the soil so as to rebuild; Graves v. Berdan, 26 N. Y. 498; contra, Izen v. Gorton, 5 Bing. N. C. 501. The erection of a building on an adjoining lot causing deprivation of light and ventilation and dampness was not an eviction of the tenant of a room in an office building; Hilliard v. Coal Co., 41 Ohio St. 662, 52 Am. Rep. 99; but the common law rule requiring the tenant, under a covenant to repair, to rebuild in case of fire was held not in force and where the premises were destroyed by a hurricane the rent may be apportioned; Wattles v. Coal Co., 50 Neb. 251, 69 N. W. 785, 36 L. R. A. 424, 61 Am. St. Rep. 554. A lessee of a saloon Munroe, 21 Hun (N. Y.) 74. And if he has must continue to pay rent after the passage ill v. Jalonick, 3 Okl. 223, 41 Pac. 139 v. Trout, 3 Okl. 260, 265, 41 Pac. 39

ton v. Carley, 147 Ill. 269, 35 N. E. 47 nam v. Smith, 15 N. Y. 327; unless surrender to him the possession; Mo

v. Ashby, 98 Cal. 422, 33 Pac. 729; 1

1848 of a prohibition law; O'Byrne v. Henley, 161 | Pac. 111; Elliott v. Smith, 23 Pa. 131 Ala. 620, 50 South. 83, 23 L. R. A. (N. S.) 496. The obligation to pay rent may be apportioned; for, as rent is incident to the reversion, it will become payable to the assignees of the respective portions thereof whenever that reversion is severed by an act of the parties or of the law. Daniels v. Richardson, 22 Pick. (Mass.) 569; Nellis v. Lathrop, 22 Wend. (N. Y.) 121, 34 Am. Dec. 285; Hare v. Proudfoot, 6 U. C. Q. B. O. S. 617. But the tenant's consent is necessary for an apportionment when made by the landlord, unless the proportion of rent chargeable upon each portion of the land has been otherwise determined; Bliss v. Collins, 5 B. & Ald. 876; Roberts v. Snell, 1 M. & G. 577; Farley v. Craig, 11 N. J. L. 262; Ryerson v. Ousckenbush, 28 N. J. L. 236. When the v. Quackenbush, 26 N. J. L. 236. reversion is severed by act of the law there is an apportionment without the consent of tenants; Buffum v. Deane, 4 Gray (Mass.) 385; Crosby v. Loop, 13 Ill. 625; Cole v. Patterson, 25 Wend. (N. Y.) 456; and where lands held under lease were severed by the conveyance of a portion thereof from the lessor to a stranger it was held that the rent was apportioned between the several owners of the reversion; Gribble v. Toms, 70 N. J. L. 522, 57 Atl. 144, affirmed 71 N. J. L. 338, 59 Atl. 117. A tenant, however, cannot get rid of or apportion his rent by transferring the whole or a part of his lease; for if he assigns it, or underlets a portion of it, he still remains liable to his landlord for the whole; Cro. Eliz. 633; Van Rensselaer v. Chadwick, 24 Barb. (N. Y.) 333. Instances of an apportionment by act of law occur where there is a descent of the reversion among a number of heirs, or upon a judicial sale of a portion of the premises; for in such cases the tenant will be bound to pay rent to each of the parties for the portion of the premises belonging to them respectively. So, if a man dies, leaving a widow, she will have a right to receive one-third of the rent, while the remaining two-thirds will be payable to his heirs; so, if a part of the demised premises be taken for public purposes, the tenant is entitled to an apportionment; Co. Litt. 148 a; Cole v. Patterson, 25 Wend. (N. Y.) 456; Crosby v. Loop, 13 Ill. 625; Schuyl-

T. § 389. A tenant is estopped to deny the validity of his landlord's title; Hacket v. Marmet Co., 52 Fed. 268, 3 C. C. A. 76, 8 U. S. App. 149; Dixon v. Stewart, 113 N. C. 410, 18 S. E. 325; Ricketson v. Galligan, 89 Wis. 394, 62 N. W. 87: Knowles v. Murphy, 107 Cal. 107, 40 The rule of estoppel does not apply kill & D. Imp. & R. Co. v. Schmoele, 57 Pa.

271. At common law rent could not be apportioned as to time; 2 Ves. Sr. 672; Bank of Pennsylvania v. Wise, 3 Watts (Pa.) 394.

But various statutes, such as 11 Geo. II. c.

19, both in England and the United States, have mitigated the hardships resulting from an enforcement of this rule. See Tayl. L. &

v. Cook, 32 Mich. 518. Under this r who goes into possession under the g or minor heirs cannot question the Wolf v. Holton, 104 Mich. 107, 62 N. even after the expiration of the lea tenant is bound by the same rule, us surrender possession or give notice will thereafter claim under another a id title; Kiernan v. Terry, 26 Or. Pac. 671; this applies to persons wh entered by the owner's permission, an in possession never denied his title, an assignees are likewise estopped; Mo v. Grant, 8 Wash. 603, 36 Pac. 682. A termination of the lease, the lesse without a surrender of possession, a claim to a superior title; Dodge v. 2 Tex. Civ. App. 441, 21 S. W. 309 tenant in possession under a lease, v erwards obtains an outstanding titl undivided interest in the premises, sue the lessor for partition without f rendering the possession to the lesso low v. Dahm, 97 Ala. 414, 12 South. Am. St. Rep. 192. Where a widow je a lease with heirs, who conveyed tenant, the latter was still estopped the tenancy as to the widow and wa to her for her share of the rents; Son Brewing Co., 6 Misc. 413, 26 N. Y. Su A lessee who takes a lease from an claimant to the title is estopped to d title of the latter when sued for rent ilton v. Pittock, 158 Pa. 457, 27 At The tenant is not estopped from that the title under which he ente expired or been extinguished by or of law; Winn v. Strickland, 34 Fla. South. 606; or that the landlord has with his title; West Shore Mills Co. wards, 24 Or. 475, 33 Pac. 987; althowho enters under a tenant cannot d title of the landlord without surre possession, yet if he enters under lease, he is not estopped from de his possession under it, but the lane estopped in such a case from deny right of the lessee to possession v lease expressly conferring such a Flynn v. Hite, 107 Cal. 455, 40 Pa nor is the lessee estopped to deny the title where the land was public dom the subject of lease without right fi state; Welder v. McComb, 10 Tex. C 85, 30 S. W. 822. The payment of rent by mistake at termination of the tenancy does not c it; Robinson v. Min. Co., 55 Mo. Al

the relation of landlord and tenant has been chase at a tax sale during his term; Weichbrought about by fraud or mistake; Suddarth v. Robertson, 118 Mo. 286, 24 S. W. 151; nor where they combined to evade the homestead laws; McKinnis v. Mortg. Co., 55 Kan. 259, 39 Pac. 1018; nor does it apply to a stranger who brought goods upon the land by permission of the tenant not claiming possession; Padman v. Henman [1893] 2 Q. B. 168.

A tenant "may buy the title of his landlord, or, if the title be assigned or transferred to another during his lease, he may set this up in bar of the landlord's right to recover" possession of the property; Smith v. Mundy, 18 Ala. 182, 52 Am. Dec. 221. He may, if it be done without fraud, purchase the landlord's reversion; Stout v. Merrill, 35 Ia. 47. He may show, in an action for rent, that since the lease he has acquired the title of his landlord, or one superior to it: Van Etten v. Van Etten, 69 Hun 499, 23 N. Y. Supp. 711. He may not controvert his landlord's title at the time he entered, but he may show that it afterwards passed to another person; Ryerss v. Farwell, 9 Barb. (N. Y.) 615; or was subsequently extinguished, or expired during the term; Den v. Ashmore, 22 N. J. L. 261; Sherman v. Fisher, 138 Mich. 391, 101 N. W. 572; Duff v. Wilson, 69 Pa. 316; and he may dispute his landlord's title as against the vendee of the latter; Tewksbury v. Magraff, 33 Cal. 237. So he may show that the landlord's title, and with it his right of action, has terminated without the tenant's fault; Franklin County Grammar School v. Bailey, 62 Vt. 467, 20 Atl. 820, 10 L. R. A. 405. The rule of estoppel does not prevent the tenant from acquiring at or through a judicial sale, during the tenancy, the title which the landlord held at the commencement of the tenancy, or from holding that title in his own right and adversely to the landlord; Elliott v. Smith, 23 Pa. 131; Tilghman v. Little, 13 Ill. 239. But the relation of landlord and tenant is so far one of trust and confidence as to render it inequitable for the tenant to purchase the property at a sale of which the landlord had not notice, under a judgment recovered by the tenant himself against a former owner upon a bond secured by a mortgage on the land; Matthew's Appeal, 104 Pa. 444; or by unfair practices at the sale to secure the property at an inadequate price; Cocks v. Izard, 7 Wall. (U. S.) 559, 19 L. Ed. 275.

The tenant of a dowress will after her death be tenant at sufferance of the reversioners and cannot purchase the lands at a sale for taxes, but will be held to have redeemed the property in favor of the landlord; Lyebrook v. Hall, 73 Miss. 509, 19 South. 348.

A tenant who is under no obligation or selbaum v. Curlett, 20 Kan. 709, 27 Am. Rep. 204; Higgins v. Turner, 61 Mo. 249; such purchase not only extinguishes the landlord's title, but cuts off the lease; Ferguson v. Etter, 21 Ark. 160, 76 Am. Dec. 361; but where the tenant in possession is liable under statute to pay the taxes, he cannot acquire a title as against the owner by purchasing a tax title based on a sale for taxes during the tenancy; Smith v. Specht, 58 N. J. Eq. 47, 42 Atl. 599; and it has been held that, even if the tenant is not under any contractual or statutory duty to pay the taxes, a purchase of land by him under a tax sale operates only as a payment, and confers no title on him as against the landlord, or one claiming under the latter, nor can he acquire title as against the landlord by purchasing the certificate of sale issued to another person as purchaser, and subsequently procuring a deed as assignee; Bailey's Adm'r v. Campbell, 82 Ala. 342, 2 South. 646. A defendant entitled to a homestead in certain lands, sold under execution against him, is not estopped from claiming his homestead, by accepting a lease for the same land from the purchaser at the execution sale; Abbott v. Cromartie, 72 N. C. 293, 21 Am. Rep. 457; but the right to the homestead is no defence to the suit for the land and the tenant must wait until his term expires before asserting his claim to the homestead;

The rights of the landlord and tenant are not confined to the immediate parties to the contract, but attach to all persons who may succeed either of them as assignees. case of sale by the landlord the tenant retains the rights and his assignee in turn assumes his liabilities and is entitled to the same protection from the assignee of the reversion; Van Rensselaer v. Hays, 19 N. Y. 68, 75 Am. Dec. 278; Fennell v. Guffey, 155 Pa. 38, 25 Atl. 785. The original lessee is not, by the transfer, discharged from his obligations under express covenants, if any, even if the lessor assent to the assignment; Shaw v. Partridge, 17 Vt. 626; Ranger v. Bacon, 3 Misc. 95, 22 N. Y. Supp. 551; Dewey v. Dupuy, 2 W. & S. (Pa.) 553; Charless v. Froebel, 47 Mo. App. 45; Auriol v. Wills, 4 Term 94. In case of implied covenants he is discharged if the landlord specially accept the assignee as his tenant; Kimpton v. Walker, 9 Vt. 191; 3 Rep. 22; Spencer's Case, 1 Sm. L. Cas. *176; and the liability of the assignee may be at any time terminated by him, by a transfer of the estate assigned, even if the transfer be made to a pauper with express intent to evade liability; Fagg v. Dosie, 3 Y. & C. 96; Armstrong v. Wheeler, 9 Cow. (N. Y.) 88; Kimpton v. Walker, 9 Vt. 191. A tenant who accepts a lease from and attorns to one who succeeds to the duty to pay taxes on the property may pur- ownership of the land, is estopped, in an action to recover possession, from setting up and require the tenant to remove f any defence under a lease from a former owner, under which he had entered; Vallette v. Billinski, 167 Ill. 564, 47 N. E. 770, affirming 68 Ill. App. 361. And it has been held that a tenant is under a legal obligation to pay rent to one to whom the lease is assigned by the landlord, without any formal act of attornment; Kelly v. Bowerman, 113 Mich. 446, 71 N. W. 836. A lessor who accepts rent from an assignee of the lease that it shall be void if assigned without the lessor's consent; Koehler v. Brady, 78 Hun 443, 29 N. Y. Supp. 388.

The relation of landlord and tenant may be terminated in several ways. If it is a tenancy for life, it will of course terminate upon the decease of him upon whose life the lease depends; McIntyre v. Clark, Misc. 377, 26 N. Y. Supp. 744; but if it be for life, or for a certain number of years, and depend upon some particular event, the happening of that event will determine the tenancy. So if it be for a certain number of years, independent of any contingency, it will expire at the last moment of the last day of the tenancy. See Finkelstein v. Herson, 55 N. J. L. 217, 26 Atl. 688; Buchanan v. Whitman, 76 Hun 67, 27 N. Y. Supp. 604. And in all these cases depending upon the express conditions of the lease, no notice to quit will be necessary in order to dissolve the relation of the parties to each other; Co. Litt. 216; 9 Ad. & E. 879; Jackson v. Parkhurst, 5 Johns. (N. Y.) 128; Ellis v. Paige, 1 Pick. (Mass.) 43; Bedford v. Mc-Elherron, 2 S. & R. (Pa.) 49; Clapp v. Paine, 18 Me. 264; Den v. Adams, 12 N. J. L. 99. A tenant after the expiration of his term becomes a trespasser, though his holding is in good faith under a color and reasonable claim of right; and the landlord without legal process may forcibly enter, therefore, and eject him; Freeman v. Wilson, 16 R. I. 524, 17 Atl. 921; and by holding over after the expiration of the term, a tenant for years does not become a tenant for another year, unless the landlord so elects; Condon v. Brockway, 157 Ill. 90, 41 N. E. 634; if he holds over after a notice of increase of rent. the effect is to make him a tenant for another year upon the terms of the old lease with the single exception of the increased rent; Rand v. Purcell, 58 Ill. App. 228; and a tenant for one year, with the privilege of three, is bound for the latter if he elected to hold over; Curtis v. Sturges, 2 Mo. App. Rep. 1047.

But a tenancy from year to year, or at estate in fee; Co. Litt. 251 b, 252 a; will, can only be terminated on the part of the landlord by a notice to quit. This notice might at common law be by parol; Doe v. Kightley, 7 Term 63; Thamm v. Hamberg, 2 Brewst. (Pa.) 528; but it is frequently regulated by statute; it must be explicit, premises; Steward v. Harding, (Mass.) 335; Dougl. 175; 5 Ad. & it must be served upon the tenant, name of the landlord, and not of hi Jackson v. Baker. 10 Johns. (N. But personal service of the notice tenant is not absolutely essential, a sufficient if the notice be left at the usual residence with his wife or se Term 464; L. R. 5 H. L. 134; W Sharpe, 103 Mass. 154. An estate must be mutual; if one party can te the lease at any time, so can the other an v. Iron Co., 83 Va. 547, 3 S. Such a tenancy is terminated by the tion of the premises, without notice tenant; Seavey v. Cloudman, 90 Me. Atl. 540. Whether a tenant from year is in any event bound to give I determine the tenancy seems doubtf the authorities collected in Cooke v. Bright. Pa. 463. At common law tice was required to be one of half ending with the period of the year a the tenancy commenced; 1 W. Bla. 5 B. 638; and this rule prevails in som while in others a notice required minate the tenancy from year to year and the statutes must be consult respect to any particular state, or ca NOTICE TO QUIT.

In case of such a tenancy, in defautice, the landlord has no right of enthe term granted has terminated notice, and in default of such not tenant may hold over; Thomas v. Houst. (Del.) 507, 18 Atl. 771. The is in general governed by statutory numerous and complicated to se Where a lease provides for the tenant's cework for the landlord and the tenant tarily ceases so to work, no notic termination of the lease to the tenanessary; Hackett v. Marmet Co., 52 I 3 C. C. A. 76, 8 U. S. App. 149.

The relation of landlord and ten also be dissolved when the tenant forfeiture of his lease by the breach covenant or condition therein contain common law a forfeiture was inc the tenant did any act which was in ent with his relation to his landlor he impugned the title of his lessor by ing by matter of record the fee to stranger, claimed a greater estate was entitled to, or undertook to alie estate in fee; Co. Litt. 251 b, 252 a; 444. But these causes of forfeiture, upon strict feudal principles, have b erally abolished in the United Stat a forfeiture of a term of years now curs in consequence of a breach of

as for the commission of waste, nonpayment | Washb. R. P. 354; Charnley v. Hansbury, 13 of rent, or the like; Baxter v. Lansing, 7 Paige Ch. (N. Y.) 350; 5 B. & C. 855; Chapman v. Wright, 20 Ill. 125. In order to work a forfeiture for non-payment of rent, a demand must be made for the rent, though such demand may be in the form of a notice to quit; Haynes v. Inv. Co., 35 Neb. 766, 53 N. W. 979; Henderson v. Coke Co., 140 U. S. 25, 11 Sup. Ct. 691, 35 L. Ed. 332. A delay of a few days in declaring a lease forfelted for non-payment of rent does not constitute a waiver of the right of forfeiture; Williams v. Vanderbilt, 145 Ill. 238, 34 N. E. 476, 21 L. R. A. 489, 36 Am. St. Rep. 486. A provision of a lease that failure of the lessee to make a payment when due should render the lease null and void, and not binding on either party, does not make the lease void, except at the option of the lessor; Cochran v. Pew, 159 Pa. 184, 28 Atl. 219. A forfeiture may be waived by an acceptance of, or distraining for, rent which became due after a breach committed by the tenant, or by giving a notice to quit, or by any other act which acknowledges the continuance of the tenancy; Newman v. Rutter, 8 Watts (Pa.) 51; Coon v. Brickett, 2 N. H. 163; Gomber v. Hackett, 6 Wis. 323, 70 Am. Dec. 467; L. R. 7 Q. B. 344; Garnhart v. Finney, 40 Mo. 449, 93 Am. Dec. 303; Jones v. Durrer, 96 Cal. 95, 30 Pac. 1027; Michel v. O'Brien, 6 Misc. 408, 27 N. Y. Supp. 173; and will be relieved against by the courts in all cases where it happened accidentally, or where the injury is capable of compensation, the damages on equitable principles being a mere matter of computation; 12 Ves. Ch. 475; 2 Price 206; Story, Eq. § 1314; Giles v. Austin, 62 N. Y. 486; Hagar v. Buck, 44 Vt. 285, 8 Am. Rep. 368; and it is always at the election of the lessor to avail himself of his right of re-entry for conditions broken or not as he pleases; 6 B. & C. 519; and vide Davis v. Moss, 38 Pa. 346; Bowman v. Foot, 29 Conn. 331; Dermott v. Wallach, 1 Wall. (U. S.) 64, 17 L. Ed. 680.

Another means of dissolving a tenancy is by an operation of law, termed a merger,which happens where a tenant purchases the fee of the reversion, or the fee descends to him as heir at law, the lease becoming thereby merged in the inheritance, the lesser estate being absorbed in the greater. To produce this result, however, it is necessary that the two estates should meet in the same person and in the same right; for if he who has the reversion in fee marries the tenant for years, or if a tenant makes the landlord his executor, the term of years is in neither case merged, because in either case he holds the fee for his own benefit, while the term of years is taken in one case for his wife's use, and in the other for the benefit of the estate he represents as executor; Pa. 16; Sheldon v. Edwards, 35 N. Y. 279. See Pickett v. Ferguson, 86 Tenn. 642, 8 S. W. 386. But the universal current of opinion now sets against the operation of the doctrine of merger wherever a result will be produced contrary to the intentions of the parties or prejudicial to the interests of third parties; Bascom v. Smith, 34 N. Y. 320; Buffum v. Deane, 4 Gray (Mass.) 385; 4 De G. M. & G. 474.

In addition to the several methods of putting an end to a tenancy already mentioned, we may add that it is, of course, competent for a tenant at any time to surrender his lease to the landlord; Livingston v. Potts, 16 Johns. (N. Y.) 28; Jungerman v. Bovee, 19 Cal. 354; but a mere agreement to surrender a lease is inoperative unless accompanied by the act; National Union Bldg. Ass'r v. Brewer, 41 Ill. App. 223. An express surrender can only be made by deed in England, since the Statute of Frauds, and this provision is in some of the states re-enacted; 8 Taunt. 270; Rowan v. Lytle, 11 Wend. (N. Y.) 616; Farson v. Goodale, 8 Allen (Mass.) 202; Bailey v. Wells, 8 Wis. 141, 76 Am. Dec. 233. But a surrender by operation of law is a case excepted out of the statute; as, for example, where, during the period of the old lease, a new one, inconsistent with it in its terms, is accepted, the old lease is at an end; Jackson v. Gardner, 8 Johns. (N. Y.) 394; Bowen v. Haskell, 53 Minn. 480, 55 N. W. 629; Tayl. L. & T. 512. If the subject-matter of the lease wholly perishes; Graves v. Berdan, 26 N. Y. 498; Shawmut Nat. Bank v. City of Boston, 118 Mass. 125; Russell v. Mallon, 38 Cal. 259; or is required to be taken for public uses; Barclay v. Picker, 38 Mo. 143; Schuylkill & D. Imp. & R. Co. v. Schmoele, 57 Pa. 271; O'Brien v. Ball, 119 Mass. 28; or the tenant disclaims to hold under his landlord, and therefore refuses to pay his rent, asserts the title to be in himself or unlawfully attorns to another, the tenancy is at an end, and the landlord may forthwith resume the possession; Willison v. Watkins, 3 Pet. (U. S.) 43, 7 L. Ed. 596; Jackson v. Vincent, 4 Wend. (N. Y.) 633; Van Winkle v. Hinckle, 21 Cal. 342; Newman v. Rutter, 8 Watts (Pa.) 55; Leonard v. Henderson, 23 Gratt. (Va.) 332.

Where there is no covenant against subletting, the lessee cannot by a surrender to the lessor affect the rights of the undertenant; Mitchell v. Young, 80 Ark. 441, 97 S. W. 454, 7 L. R. A. (N. S.) 221, note, 117 Am. St. Rep. 89, 10 Ann. Cas. 423; Eten v. Luyster, 60 N. Y. 252; Hessel v. Johnson, 129 Pa. 173, 18 Atl. 754, 5 L. R. A. 851, 15 Am. St. Rep. 716; and this is true of a tenant from year to year; Brown v. Butler, 4 Phila. (Pa.) 71; and a surrender will not affect the rights of the purchaser of a build-Woodf. L. & T. 1188; Co. Litt. 288 b; 1 ing on the leased land which the tenant had the right to remove; Adams v. Goddard, 48 Me. 212; or a mortgage; Allen v. Brown, 5 Lans. (N. Y.) 280; or a mechanic's lien; Gaskill v. Trainer, 3 Cal. 334; or the right to remove fixtures; Morrison v. Sohn, 90 Mo. App. 76; on the leased premises. The lessor commits trespass if he enters upon the subtenant after a surrender; Krider v. Ramsay, 79 N. C. 354; Brown v. Butler, supra, where it was also held that the right of the subtenant, was not affected by a covenant against subletting in the original lease; but see Trauerman v. Lippincott, 39 Mo. App. 478.

Where the tenant, by consent of his landlord, continues in possession after the expiration of his term, in the absence of a new agreement, the law will imply a tacit renewal of the former one; Schilling v. Klein, 41 Ill. App. 209; Cavanaugh v. Clinch, 88 Ga. 610, 15 S. E. 673. [1893] 1 Q. B. 736.

After the tenancy has ended, the right of possession reverts to the landlord, who may re-enter upon the premises if he can do so without violence. But if the tenant holds over and the landlord takes possession forcibly, so as to endanger a breach of the peace, he runs the risk of being punished criminally for a forcible entry (see Forci-BLE ENTRY AND DETAINER) as well as of suffering the consequences of an action of trespass; Low v. Elwell, 121 Mass. 309, 23 Am. Rep. 272; Stearns v. Sampson, 59 Me. 568, 8 Am. Rep. 442; 4 Am. Law Rev. 429; 1 M. & G. 644; Overdeer v. Lewis, 1 W. & S. (Pa.) 90, 37 Am. Dec. 440. The landlord should, therefore, in all such cases, call in the law to his assistance, and receive possession at the hands of the sheriff.

The tenant, on his part, is bound quietly to yield up the possession of the entire premises; Poppers v. Meagher, 148 Ill. 192, 35 N. E. 805. And for refusal to perform this duty he will be liable for rent; Schuyler v. Smith, 51 N. Y. 309, 10 Am. Rep. 609; Clapp v. Noble, 84 Ill. 62; Bonney v. Foss, 62 Me. 248; E., B. & E. 326.

If the tenant, after surrendering possession, resumed it under any agreement with his landlord or his agent, though made by the latter without authority, he is not liable for holding over; Frost v. Iron Co., 1 App. Div. 449, 37 N. Y. Supp. 374; and where a tenant vacated a building and delivered up the key, leaving a press on the premises, which was used by his employes, who had entered the building some days after without his knowledge, he did not hold over; Excelsior Steam Power Co. v. Halsted, 5 App. Div. 124, 39 N. Y. Supp. 43. Where the lessee holds over, he may be treated by the landlord at his option as a tenant or a trespasser; Kaier v. Leahy, 15 Pa. Co. Ct. R. 243; Frost v. Iron Co., 12 Misc. 348, 33 N. Y. Supp. 654. The tenant cannot avoid his responsibility for the rent of another term by notice that he is going to quit, and idoing it; Graham v. Dempsey, 169 32 Atl. 408. Where the agent of the failed to make an answer to the proposition to hold over as tenant month, he was not thereby relieved it consequences of holding over; Smith der, 168 Pa. 541, 32 Atl. 64. The bon the tenant to relieve himself from tion for unlawful detainer by show agreement for the renewal of the Jefferson v. Ummelmann, 56 Mo. App. But where a tenant for years ha

ed a crop, after a decree foreclosing

gage on the leased land under wi land was sold before the crop matu the purchaser having notified the ten he would expect rent in money or the latter was held entitled to th Monday v. O'Neil, 44 Neb. 724, 63 N 48 Am. St. Rep. 760. Upon the aban of a farm by a tenant before the en term, the possessory right in whatev erty is on the farm, including h crops, reverts to the lessor; Maclary ner, 9 Houst. (Del.) 281, 32 Atl. 325.

The tenant has a reasonable right of and regress for the purpose of remo goods and chattels; 2 Bla. Com. 14 v. Boyd, 24 Me. 242; L. R. 5 C. P. 3 may, also, in certain cases, take such as are attached to the estate and th ments or annual profits of the land tenancy is ended, as to which his ri largely affected by local customs TOVERS; EMBLEMENTS); Gardner v. 86 Ala. 508, 5 South. 879; Bradley v 56 Conn. 374, 15 Atl. 746, 1 L. R. A Am. St. Rep. 316; but a tenant for not entitled to them; Gossett v. Dry Mo. App. 430; nor where the land enters and takes possession because failure of the tenant to pay rent; Boyd, 69 Hun (N. Y.) 588, 23 N. 918; and, unless restricted by some tion to the contrary, may remove a tures as he has erected during his tion for his comfort and convenien ticularly if for trade purposes. As landlord and tenant, whatever is a the land by the tenant for the pu trade, whether it be made of wood is removable at the end of the term gins Ferry Co. v. Ry. Co., 142 U. S. Sup. Ct. 188, 35 L. Ed. 1055; Frie Myers, 139 N. Y. 432, 34 N. E. 10 FIXTURES.

Advertising. An agreement to perection of a wooden sign on vacanot to touch or be fastened to the the house, is a license; Wilson v. [1901] 1 Ch. 578; but an agreement the use of the roof of a building wolves the erection and maintenan wooden structure upon it, is a lease a license; Pocher v. Hall, 50 Misc.

N. Y. Supp. 754; and so is the hiring of the outer wall for such purpose; Oakford v. Nirdlinger, 196 Pa. 162, 46 Atl. 374; but an agreement by a lessee to permit a third person, for an annual sum, to hang a sign on the outer wall, was held a license; Lowell v. Strahan, 145 Mass. 1, 12, 13, 12 N. E. 401, 1 Am. St. Rep. 422; and it was not a breach of a covenant not to underlet; 4d.

A tenant from month to month cannot lease the wall of the building for advertising purposes; Louisville Gunning System v. Parks, 126 Ky. 532, 104 S. W. 331, 13 L. R. A. (N. S.) 587; or the roof; O. J. Gude Co. v. Farley, 28 Misc. 184, 58 N. Y. Supp. 1036; though he has a right to sublet other portions of the building; id. Where there is a lease of the wall of a building to an advertising company, the tenant could be held liable for holding over because of failure to obliterate the advertisement at the expiration of the specified period of occupancy; Goldman v. Advertising Co., 29 Misc. 133, 60 N. Y. Supp. 275. The advertiser is not liable for injuries caused by the sign board's blowing down; Reynolds v. Van Beuren, 155 N. Y. 120, 123, 49 N. E. 763, 42 L. R. A. 129. See Underhill, Land. & Ten. 288, $ 204.

The ordinary common-law remedy by which a landlord proceeds to recover the possession of his premises is by an action of ejectment, and in these cases it is a general rule that the tenant is never permitted, for reasons of sound public policy, to controvert his landlord's title, or to set up against him a title acquired by himself during his tenancy which is hostile in its character to that which he acknowledged in accepting the demise. The authorities for this rule and the exceptions to it are fully stated supra.

But the slow and measured progress of the action of ejectment in most cases affords a very inadequate remedy to the landlord; and in order, therefore, to obviate the evils arising from its delays, the statutes of the different states provide a summary proceeding, by which a landlord may be speedily reinstated, upon short notice, in cases where a tenant abandons the premises before the end of the term without surrendering the lease, leaving rent in arrear, or continues to hold over after the expiration of his term, or has become unable or unwilling to pay rent for the use of the premises; Stratton v. Lord, 22 Wend. (N. Y.) 611; Tayl. L. & T. § 713. See LEASE; DISTRESS; ADVERSE POSSES-

LANDLORD'S WARRANT. A warrant of distress. A written authority from a landlord to a constable or bailiff authorizing him to make a distress upon the tenant's goods and chattels in order to force the payment of rent or some covenant in a lease. See Distress; Landlord & Tenant.

LANDMARKS. The president may declare historic landmarks and structures, etc. v. Wetherby, 95 U. S. 517, 24 L. Ed. 440.

on government lands, to be national monuments; Act of June, 8, 1906. See Antiquities.

LANDS. See LAND; LANDS, PUBLIC.

ACTS. Important acts, beginning in 1845, and last amended by 32 & 33 Vict. c. 18, the object of which was to provide legislative clauses in a convenient form for incorporation, by reference in future special acts of parliament, for taking lands, with or without the consent of their owners, for the promotion of railways, and other public undertakings. Moz. & W.

These statutes or some designated part thereof are incorporated in all acts of parliament, authorizing public works which require the acquisition of land, and they correspond to the grant of the delegated right of eminent domain in legislative charters in the United States.

LANDS, PUBLIC. Such lands of the United States as are open to sale or other disposition under general laws. Bardon v. R. Co., 145 U. S. 538, 12 Sup. Ct. 856, 36 L. Ed. 806; Newhall v. Sanger, 92 U. S. 763, 23 L. Ed. 769; Heydenfeldt v. Min. Co., 10 Nev. 290. In a statute authorizing location of script, it does not include tidelands; Mann v. Land Co., 153 U. S. 273, 14 Sup. Ct. 820, 38 L. Ed. 714. Nor does the term include lands to which any claims or rights of others have attached; Bardon v. R. Co., 145 U. S. 538, 12 Sup. Ct. 856, 36 L. Ed. 806.

GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP. The public domain embraces lands known in the United States as "public lands," lying in certain states and territories known as "land states and territories," and was acquired by the government of the United States by treaty, conquest, cession by states or other nations, and purchase, and is disposed of under and by authority of the national government, when the Indian title thereto (which is one of possession merely) has been extinguished by treaty stipulations or otherwise.

The fee in unsold lands is either in the federal or state governments. The Indians have only a right of use, which, however, cannot be divested, except by purchase or war; Godfrey v. Beardsley, 2 McLean, 412, Fed. Cas. No. 5,497.

They have the unquestionable right to the lands which they occupy until extinguished by a voluntary cession to the government; Leavenworth, L. & G. R. Co. v. U. S., 92 U. S. 733, 23 L. Ed. 634; while the claim of the government extends to the complete ultimate title, charged with the right of possession by the Indians, and to the exclusive power of acquiring that title of possession; Johnson v. McIntosh, 8 Wheat. (U. S.) 603, 5 L. Ed. 681; Fletcher v. Peck, 6 Cra. (U. S.) 87, 3 L. Ed. 162; Holden v. Joy, 17 Wall. (U. S.) 211, 21 L. Ed. 523; Beecher v. Wetherby, 95 U. S. 517, 24 L. Ed. 440.

The English possessions in America were not claimed by right of conquest, but by right of discovery. The discoveries were made by persons acting under the authority of the government for the benefit of the nation; and the crown, according to the principles of the British constitution, was the proper organ to dispose of the public domain; Martin v. Waddell, 16 Pet. (U. S.) 409, 10 L. Ed. 997. The United States holds the public lands within the new states by force of the deeds of cession and the statutes connected with them and not by any municipal sovereignty which it may be supposed they possess or have reserved by compact with the new states, for that particular purpose; Pollard v. Hagan, 3 How. (U.S.) 224, 11 L. Ed. 565.

The interest of the United States in lands held by it within state boundaries is simply proprietary, the sovereignty residing within the state, and its rights differ from those of any ordinary land-holder in the state, only as provided in the constitution of the United States, and by the terms of the compact between the general and the state government at the time of the admission of 5 Minn. 223 (Gil. 178), 80 Am. Dec. 410. All lands in the territories not appropriated by competent authority before they were acquired are, in the first instance, the exclusive property of the United States, to be disposed of to such persons, at such times and in such modes and by such titles, as the government may deem most advantageous to the public; Irvine v. Marshall, 20 How. (U. S.) 561, 15 L. Ed. 994.

the latter into the Union; State v. Bachelder,

The United States is the sole owner of the soil, and has entire and complete jurisdiction over it. Through congress, it provides the methods of disposition under grants, settlement laws, or sales, public or private; may prevent trespasses, and in all methods retain the entire control over it until sold or otherwise disposed of. gress has the same power over it as over any other property belonging to the United States, and this power is vested in congress without any limitation; U. S. v. Railroad Bridge Co., 6 McLean 517, Fed. Cas. No. 16,-114; Gibson v. Chouteau, 13 Wall. (U. S.) 92, 20 L. Ed. 534; Irvine v. Marshall, 20 How. (U. S.) 558, 15 L. Ed. 994; U. S. v. Gratiot, 14 Pet. (U. S.) 526, 10 L. Ed. 573; and any change of political condition, as in a territory becoming a state, or change of boundary of a territory or state, in no wise affects the absolute and complete proprietary power of the national government over the public domain. It remains until the last acre is disposed of. It cannot be taxed by a state; Jourdan v. Barrett, 4 How. (U. S.) 169, 11 L. Ed. 924; nor can a state exercise any power or control over the public lands which may lie within its limits; Turner v. Missionary Union, 5 McLean 344, Fed. Cas. in the various land districts. The

No. 14,251; U. S. v. Gratiot, 14 Pet. 526, 10 L. Ed. 573; Jourdan v. B. How. (U. S.) 169, 11 L. Ed. 924; Bridge Co., 6 McLean 517, Fed. Cas.

The control of the United Sta its own property is independent ity, and no state or territory can with their control, enjoyment, orof such property; nor are the cont the government with respect to within its constitutional competence or confined in their effect and of strictly to the situs of the subjects they relate; Irvine v. Marshall, 20 I

S.) 558, 15 L. Ed. 994. For the amount of the public la the manner in which it was acqu the national government, see Dor History of the Public Domain, p. 10 Misc. Docs. No. 45, part 4, 2d 86 Cong., vol. 10.

The secretary of the treasury ha to sell lands devised to the United act of March 3, 1903. NATIONAL CONTROL AND DISPOSITIO constitution of the United States (a sec. 3, par. 2) provides that: "The shall have the power to dispose of make all needful rules and regula specting the territory or other proj longing to the United States," the "property" in the above quotation lands; U. S. v. Bridge Co., 6 McL Fed. Cas. No. 16,114. Under the a thus conferred upon it, the congress vided a complete system for the re and disposal of the public domain. early stages of the history of the government the public domain was put within t diction and control of the secretar, treasury, but on March 3, 1849, cong ated the home, now the interior dep and by section 3 of that law provi-"the secretary of the interior shall all the duties in relation to the gene office of supervision and appeal r charged by the secretary of the tr Thereafter the general land office and still continues to be a bureau interior department. The secretary interior is now charged with the sion of the public business relating title 11. See Land Office. Under the supreme control wh been vested in it by the constitut congress has divided the public do to various land districts, and has for the appointment of a surveyor for the states and territories, and or deputy surveyors; U. S. R. S. # 22 It has also provided for the appoin various registers and receivers, and tion of what is known as local lan public lands, including mines and

R. S. chaps, 2

and bounty lands.

enter the public lands under the various land laws, and to hear contests concerning the same, with rights of appeal to the general land office and from thence to the secretary of the interior. See U. S. R. S. §§ 2234-2247. For the various land districts and their creation, see U. S. R. S. § 2248.

KINDS OF LAND AND METHODS OF ACQUIR-ING SAME. The public lands may be divided with respect to their character into, first, agricultural lands, which are acquired under the various laws, such as pre-emption, homestead, etc., at the price of $1.25 per acre when they lie without, and $2.50 per acre when they lie within, the limits of any grant made by congress in aid of the construction of a railroad; U. S. R. S. § 2357; U. S. v. Healey, 160 U. S. 136, 16 Sup. Ct. 247, 40 L. Ed. 369; second, mineral lands, which are sold at $5.00 per acre, under which term we include lands containing placer deposits of minerals, which are sold at $2.50 per acre; third, coal lands, which are sold at $20.00 per acre when situated within 15 miles of any completed railroad, otherwise at $10.00 per acre; fourth, desert lands, which are sold at $1.25 per acre, provided they do not lie within the limits of a railroad grant; U. S. v. Healey, 160 U. S. 136, 16 Sup. Ct. 247, 40 L. Ed. 369; and fifth, saline lands, sold at $1.25 per acre.

Various methods for the sale or other disposition of the public domain have been enacted from time to time, a very interesting history of which may be found in Donaldson's History of the Public Domain 196, 208, 676. The provisions of law which formerly existed relative to the acquisition of public lands by private entry and public sale and through the timber culture laws have been repealed; R. S. 1 Supp. pp. 682, 940. The methods of acquiring the agricultural lands of the United States are now, through the operation of the pre-emption law, superseded by the provisions of the amended homestead law and the desert land act.

Pre-emptions. The provisions of the law formerly existing with relation to the acquisition of title under the pre-emption laws were repealed and superseded by the act of March 3, 1891; Rev. Stat. 1 Supp. pp. 939, 940, especially section 3 of said act, p. 942. The acts of March 3, 1877, 19 Stat. L. 404, May 27, 1878, and June 14, 1878, 20 Stat. L. 63-113, permitting pre-emptioners who have changed to homestead entries to credit their time from original settlement, are superseded as to future permanent operations by the act of March 3, 1891, supra. See also act of March 2, 1889; R. S. 1 Supp. Various other acts contain provisions common to pre-emption and homestead entry, and are by this act superseded as to the former. This act, however, does not af-these officers is to receive applications to prior to its passage. See sec. 4 of said act, and 15 Land Decisions 482.

> Desert Land Act. Desert lands are such as will not, without artificial irrigation, raise an agricultural crop. These lands are confined to what is known as the arid regions which are situated in certain western states and territories. Provision is made for the acquisition of lands of this character by conducting water thereon, and performing certain other requirements, as provided in the act of March 3, 1877; R. S. 1 Supp. p. 137. For sections 4 and 8 added to this act, see act of March 3, 1891, R. S. 1 Supp. pp. 940, 941.

> Saline lands. Provision for the sale of land of this character is made by the act of January 12, 1877; R. S. 1 Supp. 127. Under its provisions a hearing is ordered and witnesses are examined as to the character of the land in question, and the testimony taken at the hearing is transmitted to the general land office for its decision. Should the tract be adjudged agricultural, it will be subject to disposition as such. Should the tract be adjudged to be of saline character it will be offered at public sale to the highest bidder for cash at a price of not less than $1.25 per acre. In case it is not sold, it is subject to private sale at a price not less than $1.25 per acre, in the same manner as other public lands are sold. Quære: Whether this act is repealed by section 9 of the act of March 3, 1891? U. S. R. S. 1 Supp. 943.

> Coal lands. For the provisions relating to the acquisition of lands of this character, see Rev. Stat. U. S. § 2347. See also Donaldson's History of the Public Domain 1277.

> MINERAL LANDS, RESOURCES, AND CLAIMS; location of, under U.S. Laws. The existing provisions and regulations relative to the acquisition of mineral lands, the title of which is in the government, are to be found in U. S. R. S. §§ 2318-2352, and in 1 Supp. R. S. pp. 166-7; 276, 62, 324, 948, 950. For a history of the attempted legislation prior to the passage of the act of 1866 (the first mining law), see Yale on Mining Claims 340 and Weeks on Mineral Lands, Addenda, chap. 1, for the act of 1866.

Requisites of location. All valuable mineral deposits in lands belonging to the United States, whether surveyed or unsurveyed, are "free and open to exploration and purchase by citizens of the United States, or those who have declared their intention to become such" (R. S. § 2319), and citizenship or declared intention is a condition precedent to the right of location; Crossus Mining, M. & S. Co. v. Mineral Co., 19 Fed. 82; Rosenthal v. Ives, 2 Idaho (Hasb.) 265, 12 Pac. 904. A state corporation is a citizen for this purpose, provided the members thereof are citizens and qualified to make the location; Thomas v. Chisholm, 13 Colo. 105, 21 Pac. fect entries made under the pre-emption laws 1019; McKinley v. Wheeler, 130 U. S. 630, ing his intention to become a citizen, an alien may have advantage of work previously done, and of a record previously made; Crœsus Mining, M. & S. Co. v. Mineral Co., 19 Fed. 78; and an alien locator may convey to a citizen so as to give title from date of conveyance, provided no third person acquires rights prior to such conveyance; North Noonday Min. Co. v. Mining Co., 1 Fed. 537. See Osterman v. Baldwin, 6 Wall. (U. S.) 122, 18 L. Ed. 730. A location made jointly by aliens and citizens is a good location by the citizens; North Noonday Min. Co. v. Mining Co., 1 Fed. 537.

A mineral location can only be made on the unsold, unappropriated and unoccupied lands of the United States; Merced Min. Co. v. Boggs, 3 Wall. (U. S.) 304, 18 L. Ed. 245; Taylor v. Middleton, 67 Cal. 656, 8 Pac. 594; Armstrong v. Lower, 6 Colo. 393; but the right to possession is derived solely from a valid location; McKinstry v. Clark, 4 Mont. 370, 1 Pac. 759; Noyes v. Black, 4 Mont. 527, 2 Pac. 769; and cannot be held as "occupied" so as to defeat a subsequent location unless all the laws, including the yearly assessment work, etc., are complied with; Belk v. Meagher, 104 U. S. 284, 26 L. Ed. 735; Sparks v. Pierce, 115 U. S. 408, 6 Sup. Ct. 102, 29 L. Ed. 428; Funk v. Sterrett, 59 Cal. 613; Garfield, M. & M. Co. v. Hammer, 6 Mont. 53, 8 Pac. 153. The act describes mineral lands as "valuable mineral deposits." This means lands which may be profitably mined in the usual manner; Copp's Mining Lands 324. Lands containing minerals, but not in profitable quantities, are not mineral lands; Deffeback v. Hawke, 115 U. S. 392, 6 Sup. Ct. 95, 29 L. Ed. 423; U. S. v. Reed, 28 Fed. 482; Alford v. Barnum, 45 Cal. 482. But non-mineral lands, to the extent of 5 acres, may be located as mill sites, when in connection with a lode location or separately; Rev. Stats. § 2337. Title to mineral lands can only be acquired in the precise manner provided by the laws relating to such lands; and a patent obtained under the provisions of any other law is void; R. S. § 2318; Morton v. Nebraska, 21 Wall. (U. S.) 660, 22 L. Ed. 639; Deffeback v. Hawke, 115 U. S. 392, 6 Sup. Ct. 95, 29 L. Ed. 423; Sparks v. Pierce, 115 U. S. 408, 6 Sup. Ct. 102, 29 L. Ed. 428. If a patent issue for agricultural land on which there is a known lode, title to such lode does not pass; Gold Hill Quartz Min. Co. v. Ish, 5 Or. 104; but contra if subsequently discovered: Copp's Min. Lands 124: Moore v. Smaw, 17 Cal. 199, 79 Am. Dec. 123. The right to locate is initiated by discovery and appropriation, which forms the source of title; development being the requisite of continued possession; Erhardt v. Boaro, 113 U. S. 537, 5 Sup. Ct. 565, 28 L. Ed. 1116; O'Reilly v. Campbell, 116 U. S. 418, 6 Sup. lode is covered by the placer patent Ct. 421, 29 L. Ed. 669; Richards v. Dower, § 2333; Clary v. Hazlitt, 67 Cal. 286

6 Sup. Ct. 638, 32 L. Ed. 1048. Upon declar- | 81 Cal. 44, 22 Pac. 304. A location an actual discovery confers no righ the locator; North Noonday Min. Co. Co., 1 Fed. 530; Jupiter Min. Co. v. 1 11 Fed. 676.

> No specific time is designated by t utes within which the location must pleted; but if one begin a location a depart he cannot return and comp location so as to hold it against o during such absence, has made a location; Newbill v. Thurston, 65 ( 4 Pac. 409. A location is dependent, ly, upon what is found in the d shaft, the discovery of ore elsewher as a rule, unavailing; Van Zandt Co., 8 Fed. 725; but see Harrington bers, 3 Utah 94, 1 Pac. 362; Arms Lower, 6 Colo. 581; Southern Cross Silver Min. Co. v. Min. Co., 15 N where evidence was admitted in p discovery to show the existence of other than at the location point. T leading up to the discovery need n been done by the locator, provided istence of the vein was known to the time of location; Wenner v. 1 7 Mont. 30, 14 Pac. 643.

> It is not priority of discovery, but of compliance with the various requi of the law that gives the right to th Gleeson v. Mining Co., 13 Nev. 455. the proper manner of staking out a as to conform to the lode or vein, se staff Silver Min. Co. v. Tarbet, 98 U 25 L. Ed. 253. See also Armstrong v 6 Colo. 393; Gleeson v. Mining Co., 442. Laws and regulations for the development, and working of mines made by the states and by the mines selves; R. S. §§ 2319-2324.

> As to the extent of ground open tion and the method of staking it R. S. § 2320, and for the provisions to placer locations, see R. S. §§ 232 See U. S. v. Mining Co., 128 U. S Sup. Ct. 195, 32 L. Ed. 571; Copp Lands 52.

The term "placer claim," as use S. § 2329, means "ground between boundaries which contains mineral earth, sand, or gravel; ground that valuable deposits not in place, that fixed in rock, but which are in a loos and may, in most cases, be collected b ing or amalgamation, without millir S. v. Mining Co., 128 U. S. 679, 9 195, 32 L. Ed. 571.

It is incumbent upon one in posse a placer claim whereon is a vein or state that fact in his application for ent, or the patent will not carry such lode. If discovered subsequent to t ance of the patent, however, such 701; Reynolds v. Mining Co., 116 U. S. 687, veloping a lode, the tunnel shall be consid-6 Sup. Ct. 601, 29 L. Ed. 774.

The statutory requirements concerning the description of the location, R. S. §§ 2318, 2324, are: (1) that the location shall be along the vein or lode; (2) that it shall be distinctly marked on the ground so that the boundaries can be readily traced and that such description shall be by reference to some permanent object for the identification of the claim; (3) that all the lines shall be parallel-the last requirement being directory only, the object being to prevent a party from claiming more width of vein outside his surface lines than within them; Doe v. Sanger, 83 Cal. 203, 23 Pac. 365. All other details of location are governed by the rules and regulations of miners and state laws; R. S. § 2324.

Although the federal laws do not require the posting of any notice of location on the claim, but only require the recording of such notice in the mining district, yet the posting of a notice is almost universally required by the miners' regulations, and by state laws; Erhardt v. Boaro, 113 U. S. 537, 5 Sup. Ct. 565, 28 L. Ed. 1116; Johnson v. Parks, 10 Cal. 446; Cheesman v. Shreeve, 40 Fed. 787. See LODE: VEIN.

Re-location. A mining claim is subject to re-location where the owner has failed to comply with the statutory requirements, or has failed to observe local rules; R. S. § 2324; Morgan v. Tillottson, 73 Cal. 520, 15 Pac. 88; Golden Fleece Gold & Silver Min. Co. v. Min. Co., 12 Nev. 312. But the forfeiture must have actually occurred before relocation, otherwise the re-location is invalid and the re-locator a trespasser; Jupiter Mining Co. v. Mining Co., 11 Fed. 680; Lockhart v. Rollins, 2 Idaho (Hasb.) 540, 21 Pac. 413; Belk v. Meagher, 104 U. S. 279, 26 L. Ed. 735. A re-location is made in the same manner and carries the same rights as original location; Armstrong v. Lower, 6 Colo. 393; Wills v. Blain, 5 N. M. 238, 20 Pac. 798.

Annual work. It is provided by federal statute that during each year, after location and until a patent issues, there shall be performed on the claim not less than $100 worth of labor on improvements; R. S. $ 2324; and this provision is applicable alike to placer claims and to lode claims; Carney v. Min. Co., 65 Cal. 40, 2 Pac. 734. The work may be done anywhere upon the surface of the claim within its surface lines or below the surface within the lines extended vertically downward, but it must be done as a necessary means of extracting ore; Mt. Diablo Mill & Min. Co. v. Callison, 5 Sawy. 439, Fed. Cas. No. 9,886; Remmington v. Baudit, 6 Mont. 138, 9 Pac. 819. See also Jackson v. Roby, 109 U. S. 440, 3 Sup. Ct. 301, 27 L. Ed. 990. By act of February 11, 1875, U. S. R. S. 1 Supp. 62, it is provided that where ered as expended on said lode, and that it shall not be required to perform work on the surface of the lode as required in R.'S. § 2324. See Chambers v. Harrington, 111 U. S. 355, 4 Sup. Ct. 428, 28 L. Ed. 452.

This work may be done by any party in interest, whether such party have a legal or equitable claim; Jupiter Min. Co. v. Min. Co., 11 Fed. 680. The amount of work required by the statute cannot be decreased by any state law or miners' regulation; Sweet v. Webber, 7 Colo. 443, 4 Pac. 752; Original Co. of Williams & Kellinger v. Min. Co., 60 Cal. 631; and may be done at any time within the year; Belk v. Meagher, 104 U. S. 279, 26 L. Ed. 735; McGinnis v. Egbert, 8 Colo. 41, 5 Pac. 652.

Failure to perform the work will be excused if brought about by actual existing fear of bodily harm, or prevented by coercion or duress actually and presently existing; Slavonian Min. Co. v. Perasich, 7 Fed. 331; Erhardt v. Boaro, 113 U. S. 527, 5 Sup. Ct. 560, 28 L. Ed. 1113.

Where claims are held in common, this annual work may be done on any one claim; R. S. § 2324; Chambers v. Harrington, 111 U. S. 350, 4 Sup. Ct. 428, 28 L. Ed. 452,

The apex rule. Ordinarily the locator would be confined to the limits of his surface measurements both as to surface possession and beneath it, but by the apex rule the locator is entitled not only to the surface included within the lines of his location, but also to all of the veins, lodes, and ledges throughout their entire depth, the apex of which lies inside of such surface lines extending downward vertically, albeit such veins, lodes, or ledges may depart from a perpendicular course in such wise as to extend outside of the side lines of the location, provided such right shall not extend beyond the entire lines of the location projecting in their own line or until they intersect the veins or ledges; R. S. § 2322; Jupiter Min. Co. v. Min. Co., 11 Fed. 670; Gilpin v. Min. Co., 2 Idaho (Hasb.) 696, 23 Pac. 547, 1014; Montana Co. v. Clark, 42 Fed. 626. But this right does not carry with it power to follow into the lands of an adjoining proprietor holding title to agricultural lands; Amador Medean Gold Min. Co. v. Min. Co., 36 Fed. 668. But see Cheesman v. Hart, 42 Fed. 98. This rule of the apex has been a fruitful source of litigation, the following being a few of the more important cases: Iron Silver Min. Co. v. Smelting Co., 118 U. S. 196, 6 Sup. Ct. 1177, 30 L. Ed. 98; Champion Min. Co. v. Min. Co., 75 Cal. 78, 16 Pac. 513; Iron Silver Min. Co. v. Murphy, 3 Fed. 368; Van Zandt v. Min. Co., 8 Fed. 725; Iron Silver Min. Co. v. Cheesman, 8 Fed. 297; Cheesman v. Hart. 42 Fed. 98: 1 ron Silver Min. Co. v. Murphy, 2 McCrary a tunnel has been run for the purpose of de- 121, 3 Fed. 368; Richmond Min. Co. v. Rose,

Digitized by Google

114 U. S. 576, 5 Sup. Ct. 1055, 29 L. Ed. 273; Flagstaff Silver Min. Co. v. Tarbet, 98 U. S. 463, 25 L. Ed. 253; Cheesman v. Hart, 42 Fed. 98; Iron Silver Min. Co. v. Cheesman, 8 Fed. 297; Tombstone Mill. & Min. Co. v. Mining Co., 1 Ariz. 426, 25 Pac. 794; Mc-Cormick v. Varnes, 2 Utah 355.

PRIVATE ACQUISITION. The rule is well settled, that when public lands have been surveyed and placed in the market, or otherwise opened to private acquisition, a person who complies with all the requisites necessary to entitle him to a patent in a particular tract or lot is to be regarded as the equitable owner thereof, and the land is no longer open to location. Any subsequent grant of the same land to another party is void, unless the first location or entry be vacated and set aside; Wirth v. Branson, 98 U. S. 121, 25 L. Ed. 86; see Wilcox v. Jackson, 13 Pet. (U. S.) 498, 10 L. Ed. 264; and when different grants cover the same premises, the earlier takes the title; St. Paul & P. R. Co. v. R. Co., 139 U. S. 1, 11 Sup. Ct. 389, 35 L. Ed. 77.

The legal title to land acquired from the government passes only on the delivery of a patent, and until it so passes the inquiry as to all equitable rights comes within the cognizance of the land department, and the courts do not interfere with it; accordingly they have refused both mandamus to compel the issuing of a patent; U.S. v. Schurz, 102 U. S. 378, 26 L. Ed. 167; and an injunction to restrain action by the officers of the land department; Brown v. Hitchcock, 173 U. S. 473; 19 Sup. Ct. 485, 43 L. Ed. 772.

Public lands of the United States may be granted by statute or by treaty, as well as by patent; Stockton v. Williams, 1 Doug. (Mich.) 546. As to the latter method, see LAND PATENT.

After public lands have been entered at the land office and a certificate of entry obtained, they are private property, the government agreeing to make a conveyance as soon as it can, and in the meantime holding the naked legal fee in trust for the purchaser, who has the equitable title; Wisconsin C. R. Co. v. Price County, 133 U. S. 496, 10 Sup. Ct. 341, 33 L. Ed. 687; and they cease to be public; Hastings & D. R. Co. v. Whitney, 132 U. S. 357, 10 Sup. Ct. 112, 33 L. Ed. 363.

Courts have power to protect the private rights of a party who has purchased in good faith from the government, against the interference or appropriations of corrective resurveys made by the land department subsequently to such purchase; Cragin v. Powell, 128 U. S. 699, 9 Sup. Ct. 203, 32 L. Ed. 566. The power to make and correct surveys of the public lands belongs to the political department of the government, and while the lands are subject to the supervision of the general land office, its decisions tities of land have also been granted in such cases are unassailable by the courts, states as they were admitted into the except by a direct proceeding; C Powell, 128 U. S. 699, 9 Sup. Ct. 20 Ed. 566; Knight v. Land Ass'n, 142 U 12 Sup. Ct. 258, 35 L. Ed. 974.

The land department has full jur over matters involving the rights of to a patent for public lands selected the act of Congress of June 4, 1897 of lands relinquished in a forest rese Cosmos Exploration Co. v. Oil Co., 1 301, 23 Sup. Ct. 692, 47 L. Ed. 1064. tue of this jurisdiction, the general partment has power to review and a (though not arbitrarily) the decision cal officers relating to those question such officers have power to make the sions in the first instance; id.; G Sav. Bank v. Beadow, 176 U. S. 448, Ct. 425, 44 L. Ed. 540; Hawley v 178 U. S. 476, 20 Sup. Ct. 986, 44 L. 1 Persons entering on lands, wheth cant" or "public land," or land acq the government of the United State a foreign grant, are to be deemed

sers; Boyreau v. Campbell, 1 McA

Fed. Cas. No. 1,760; and an agree sell and transfer their possession provements is an illegal and void ag to continue the trespass, and a no for the purchase money of an impr on vacant lands of the United State an illegal consideration, and no act lie upon it; Merrell v. Legrand, (Miss.) 150; Stafford v. Anders, 8 and a trespasser of land from the ment is entitled to improvements the the time of the purchase, and if the who made them should afterwards them he is liable in an action of t Welborn v. Spears, 32 Miss. 138. T pancy of the public lands of the States constitutes, at least so far passes by a stranger are concerned ancy at will, and not a tenancy from year; Duncan v. Potts, 5 Stew. & P 82, 24 Am. Dec. 766. A person cul public lands to which he has no titl protected by the doctrine of emb and a purchaser from the United S entitled to all crops growing upon t

at the time; Boyer v. Williams, 5

32 Am. Dec. 324; but a person by ent such land acquires no title to tim prior to, and lying upon the land time of his entry; Keeton v. Aud Mo. 362, 61 Am. Dec. 560. In addition to the methods of d of the public domain to actual purch settlers upon it, congress has disp immense quantities of land in various ways. For example, grants made in the construction of railroads, either directly to the road itself or to a sta trustee for the use of the road. Large for educational, charitable, and other purposes. A large amount of the public domain has also been taken up under land bounties for military and naval services prior to 1861 and subsequent, and also by the granting of lands for town sites and county seat purposes. An interesting account of this legislation will be found in Donaldson's History of the Public Domain. See also Barringer & Adams, Mines and Mining; Abandon-Ment; Indians; Irrigation; Mines and Mining; Patent; Land Grant; Land Warbant; Land Office; Land Patent.

LANDS, TENEMENTS, AND HEREDITA-MENTS. A phrase used in early English law to express all sorts of property of the immovable class, as goods and chattels did the movable class. Wms. R. P. 5.

The technical expression for the most comprehensive description of real property.

LANGDELL METHOD OF TEACHING LAW. See CASE SYSTEM.

LANGEMANNI. The lords of manors. 1 Co. Inst. 5.

LANGUAGE. The medium for the communication of perceptions and ideas.

Spoken language is that wherein articulate sounds are used. See Stevenson v. State, 90 Ga. 456, 16 S. E. 95.

Written language is that wherein written characters are used, and especially the system of characters called letters and figures.

At the Conquest, the French-Norman language was substituted in all law proceedings for the ancient Saxon, which, according to Blackstone, 3 Com. 317, was the language of the records, writs, and pleadings until the time of Edward III. Stephen thinks Blackstone has failen into an error, and says the record was, from the earliest period to which that document can be traced, in the Latin language. Plead. Appx. note 14. The history of legal language in England is further stated by Blackstone as follows: By statute (1362) it was enacted that for the future all pleas should be pleaded, shown, defended, answered, debated, and adjudged in the English tongue, but be entered and enrolled in Latin. The Norman or law French, however, being more familiar as applied to the law than any other language, the lawyers continued to employ it in making their notes of the trial of cases, which they afterwards published in that barbarous dialect under the name of Reports.

After the enactment of this statute, on the introduction of paper pleadings, they followed, in the language as well as in other respects, the style of the records, which were drawn up in Latin. This technical language continued in use till the time of Cromwell, when by a statute the records were directed to be in English; but this act was repealed at the restoration by Charles II., the lawyers finding it difficult to express themselves as well and as concisely in the vernacular as in the Latin tongue; and the language of the law continued as before till about the year 1730, when the statute of 4 Geo. II. c. 26, was passed. It provided that both the pleadings and the records should thenceforward be framed in English. The ancient terms and expressions which had been so long known in French and Latin were now literally translated into English. The translations of such terms and phrases were found to be exceedingly ridiculous. Such terms as nisi prius, habeas corpus, fieri facias, mandamus, and the like, are not capable of an English dress with any degree of seriousness. They are equally absurd in the manner they are employed in Latin; but use, and the fact that they are in a foreign language, have made the absurdity less apparent. By statute of 6 Geo. II. c. 14, passed two years after the last-mentioned statute, the use of technical words was allowed to continue in the usual language,-which defeated almost every beneficial purpose of the former statute. In changing from one language to another, many words and technical expressions were retained in the new, which belonged to the more ancient language; and not seldom they partook of both. This, to the unlearned student, has given an air of confusion and disfigured the language of the law. It has rendered essential, also, the study of the Latin and French languages. This, perhaps, is not to be regretted, as they are the keys which open to the ardent student vast stores of knowledge. In the United States, the records, pleadings, and all law proceedings are in the English language, except certain technical terms which retain their ancient French and Latin dress. 3 Bla. Com. 317.

From the Conquest until 1731, says Prof. F. W. Maitland, the solemnest language of the law was Latin, and even in the Anglo-Saxon time, though English was the language in which the laws were published and causes pleaded, Latin was the language in which the kings made grants of land. In 1016 the learned men of both races could write and speak in Latin. French was then little more than a vulgar dialect of Latin, and a language in which the people could not write anything. The Conqueror used both Latin and English in his laws, charters, and rights, but Latin soon got the upper hand and became for a while the one written language of the law. In Chancery there was nothing but Latin, and the judgments of the courts were in that language. This continued until 1731. Meantime in the twelfth or early in the thirteenth century, ordinances and statutes written in French began to appear. Under Edward I. French became the language in which laws were published and law books written and continued to be the language of the statute books until the end of the middle ages. Under Henry VII. English became the speech in which English lawgivers addressed their subjects. As the oral speech of litigants and their advisers, French prevailed from the Conquest onwards, but in the local courts a great deal of English must long have been spoken. The jurisprudence of a French-speaking court became the common law, the measure of all rights and duties, and was carried throughout the land by the journeying justices. In the thirteenth century French was used in pleading and the professional lawyer wrote and thought in French. In 1362 a statute endeavored to make English instead of French the spoken language of the law courts, but law writing was still in French. Gradually in the sixteenth century the lawyers began to write in English, though many French law terms still continued to be used; 1 Soc. Eng. 278; and see 1 Poll. & Maitl. 58.

The effect of the Norman conquest of England is still apparent in the technical, legal words in ordinary use. "At the present day," says a learned writer, "it would hardly be too much to say that all our words having a definite legal import are in a certain sense French words. A German jurist is able to expound the doctrines of Roman law in genuinely German words. On many a theme an English man of letters may by way of exploit write a paragraph or a page and use no word that is not in every sense a genuinely English word; but an English lawyer who attempted a similar puritanical feat would find himself doomed to silence. . . . It is worthy of remark that within the sphere of public law we have some old terms that have come down to us from unconquered England. Earl was not displaced by count, sheriff was not displaced by viscount, our king, our queen, our lords, our knights of the shire are English; our aldermen are English if our mayors are French: but our parliament and its statutes, our privy council and its ordinances, our peers, our barons, the commons of the realm, the sovereign, the state, the nation, the people are French; our citizens are French and our burgesses are more French than English. So too a few of the very common legal transactions of daily life can be described by English verbs. A man may give, sell, buy, let, hire, borrow, bequeath, make a deed, a will, a bond, and even be guilty of manslaughter or of theft, and all this is English. But this is a small ter. . . Let us look elsewhere and observe widely and deeply the French influence has matter. worked. Contract, agreement, covenant, obligation, debt, condition, bill, note, master, servant, partguarantee, tort, trespass, assault, battery, ner. slander, damage, crime, treason, felony, misde-meanor, arson, robbery, burglary, larceny, property, possession, pledge, lien, payment, money, grant, purchase, devise, descent, heir, easement, marriage, guardian, all are French. We enter a court of justice; court, justices, judges, jurors, counsel, attorneys, clerks, parties, plaintiff, defendant, action, suit, claim, demand, indictment, count, declaration, pleadings, evidence, verdict, conviction, judgment, sentence, appeal, every one and every thing, save the witnesses, writs and oaths, have French names. In the province of justice and police with its fines, its gaols, and its prisons, its constables, its arrests, we must, now that outlawry is a thing of the past, go as far as the gallows if we would find an English institution. Right and wrong we have kept, and though we have received tort we have rejected droit but even law probably owes its salvation to its remote cousin the French lei." 1 Poll. & Maitl. 58.

Agreements, contracts, wills, and other instruments may be made in any language, and will be enforced. Bac. Abr. Wills (D 1). An English court, having to construe a contract made in a foreign country and foreign language, must obtain a translation of the instrument and an explanation of the terms of art, if any; 10 H. L. C. 624. And a slander spoken in a foreign language, if understood by those present, or a libel published in such language, will be punished as if spoken or written in the English language; Newell, Def. Sland. & L. 231; Bac. Abr. Slander (D 3); 1 Rolle, Abr. 74; 6 Term 163. See Foreign Languages. For the construction of language, see articles Construction; Interpretation; Jacob, Intr. to the Com. Law Max. 46.

At an early period, the Latin was the diplomatic language in use in Europe. Towards the end of the fifteenth century that of Spain gained the ascendancy, in consequence of the great influence which that country then exercised in Europe. French, since the age of Louis XIV., has become the almost universal diplomatic idiom of the civilized world; though some states use their national language in treaties and diplomatic correspondence. It is usual in these cases to annex to the papers transmitted a translation in the language of the opposite party, wherever it is understood this comity will be reciprocated. This is the usage of the Germanic Confederation, of Spain, and of the Italian courts. When nations using a common language, as the United States and Great Britain, treat with each other, such language is used in their diplomatic intercourse.

It is believed that the first departure from counted, and the six months are the rule that the French language should be as a half-year. 2 Burn, Ec. L. 355.

used in all diplomatic conferences a gresses was in the Berlin conference held between the representatives of ny, Great Britain, and the United with reference to the affairs of San appears by a protocol of the first the proposal was made by the rep tives of the United States, and ass by those of Germany and Great that the proceedings of the conference be conducted in the English language president of the conference, however a German, reserved to himself the use the French language at any tir should find difficulty in expressing satisfactorily in the English, but he find it necessary to avail himself right. Accordingly, the protocols of of these sittings were in French, a that in English.

See, generally, 3 Bla. Com. 323; 1 Cr. L. 415; 2 Rey, Inst. jud. de l'An 211, 212; Kelh. Dict.; Tayl. Law False Latin.

A charter may not be refused to club by a court merely because its in a foreign language; Deutsch-Ar ischer Volksfest-Verein, 200 Pa. 143, 949.

LANGUIDUS (Lat.). In Practioname of a return made by the sher a defendant, whom he has taken be of process, is so dangerously sick the move him would endanger his life of 3 Chit. Pr. 249, 358; T. Chitty, Form

LANIS DE CRESCENTIA WALLI.
DUCENDIS ABSQUE CUSTUMA, ancient writ that lay to the custon port to permit one to pass wool with ing custom, he having paid it be Wales. Reg. Orig. 279.

LANNS MANUS (Old Fr.). A lor manor. Kelham.

LANO NIGER. A sort of base of merly current in England. Cowell.

LANZAS. In Spanish Law. A contribution in money paid by the and other high officers in lieu of the they ought to furnish government in war.

LAPIDATION. The act of stonin son to death. Webster.

LAPSE. In Ecclesiastical Law transfer, by forfeiture, of a right to or collate to a vacant benefice from vested with such right to another i quence of some act of negligence by mer. Ayl. Par. 331.

Upon six months' neglect of the the right lapses to the bishop; u months' neglect of bishop, to arclupon his six months' neglect, to kir day on which the vacancy occurs counted, and the six months are cass a half-year. 2 Burn, Ec. L. 355.

degrees. To slip: to deviate from the proper path. Webster, Dict. See LAPSED DEVISE; LAPSED LEGACY.

LAPSE PATENT. A patent issued to a petitioner for land. A patent for which land to another party has lapsed through neglect of patentee. The lapse patent relates to date of original patent, and makes void allmesne conveyances. Wilcox v. Calloway, 1 Wash. (Va.) 39. See Land Patent.

LAPSED DEVISE. A devise which has lapsed, or does not take effect because of the death of the devisee before that of the testator.

The subject-matter of the lapsed devise will, if no contrary intention appear, be included in the residuary clause (if any) contained in the will. In England, by stat. 1 Vict. c. 26, if the devise be to children or other issue of the devisor, and the issue of the devisee be alive, the devise will not lapse, if no such intention appear in the will. A devise always lapses at common law if the devisee dies before the testator, and such was the general rule in this country; Prowitt v. Rodman, 37 N. Y. 54; Robinson v. Martin, 2 Yeates (Pa.) 525; but in many if not all the states, if made to a son or grandson of the testator, it takes effect, by force of statute, in favor of his heirs, if he die before the testator. In North Carolina, a devise to a child dying before the testator does not lapse, but goes to the issue of such child; Cox v. Ward, 107 N. C. 507, 12 S. E. 379; so in Massachusetts, in the case of a devise to a child or other relative; 3 Washb. R. P. *523; Esty v. Clark, 101 Mass. 38, 3 Am. Rep. 320.

In Maryland, the provision against lapse goes much further, and it is provided that no devise or bequest shall fail by reason of the death of the devisee or legatee before the testator, and it takes effect in like manner as if they had survived him; Craycroft v. Craycroft, 6 Har. & J. (Md.) 54. See 1 Jarm. Wills, 6th Am. ed. *307, n.; 4 Kent 541. In regard to a lapsed devise, where the devisee dies during the life of the testator, the heir of the devisee will not take; Gore v. Stevens, 1 Dana (Ky.) 201, 25 Am. Dec. 141; but the estate will go to the testator's heir, notwithstanding a residuary devisee. But if the devise be void, as where the devisee is dead at the date of the will, or is made upon a condition precedent which never happens, the estate will go to the residuary devisee, if the words are sufficiently comprehensive; 15 Ves. 589; In re Woolmer's Estate, 3 Whart. (Pa.) 477; Ferguson v. Hedges, 1 Harring. (Del.) 524; 4 Kent 541. But some of the courts hold in that case even, that the estate goes to the heir; Greene v. Dennis, 6 Conn. 293, 16 Am. Dec.

To glide; to pass slowly, silently, or by Lessee v. Nutwell, 13 Md. 415, where it was said that there was no solid distinction between a lapsed and a void devise, and that in both cases the heir at law should take, and not the residuary devisee.

When the devise is to the person deceased, with such words as "and his heirs" added, they are generally held to be words of limitation, and not of description. So a devise of the proceeds of land to three persons, one-third to each, and to "their heirs respectively for ever," lapsed on the death of one as to his share, the word heirs designating the estate, not the takers; Estate of Worsley, 36 W. N. C. (Pa.) 247; so where a residuary devise was to two persons, "their heirs and assigns"; Horton v. Earle, 162 Mass. 448, 38 N. E. 1135. The rule that devises lapse by the death of the devisee is not changed by adding to the devise the words "to have and to hold the same to them, their heirs and assigns for ever"; In re Wells, 113 N. Y. 396, 21 N. E. 137, 10 Am. St. Rep. 457. And where land was devised to a daughter for life and then to be "equally divided among the lawful heirs of" another daughter, it was held that the word heirs must be taken in a technical sense, and as the last mentioned daughter was alive at the death of the first, the devise to the heirs lapsed; Clark v. Mosely, 1 Rich. Eq. (S. C.) 396, 44 Am. Dec. 229.

In case of gifts to a class, the rule is that there is no lapse, but they go to the other members of the class; Theobald, Wills 643. It is, however, held that the gift is not to a class if the members of the class are named; 11 Sim. 397; 2 J. & H. 656; nor if to "five daughters of A" or "my nine children"; 9 Ch. D. 117; 15 Ch. D. 84; and where the residue was given to sons named, there being nothing to show that testator intended otherwise, they took as individuals and not as a class, and the share of the son who died before his father's death lapsed, and passed as intestate real estate; Church v. Church, 15 R. I. 138, 23 Atl. 302. See LAPSED LEGACY.

In case of a devise to two as joint tenants, if one die before the testator, where survivorship in a joint tenancy has been abolished, his share has been held to fall in the residue; Wins. Eq. 89. Where land was devised to a son who was also appointed executor, and he died and the testator by codicil appointed another executor, referring to the death of his son, it was held that the devise did not lapse, and should be construed as a devise to the son's heirs; Davis' Heirs v. Taul, 6 Dana (Ky.) 51.

A devise to one for life with a remainder does not lapse by the death of the first taker before that of the remainderman; West v. Williams, 15 Ark. 682. The refusal or incapacity of the first taker of a devise or 58; Lea v. Brown, 56 N. C. 141; Tongue's legacy to several in succession does not cause it to lapse, but it passes to the next; Brown v. Brown, 43 N. H. 17. If one is appointed by will to take in case of the death of the first devisee and on that event, the appointee can take as contemplated by the will, there will be no lapse, although the devisee dies before the testator, but the ulterior gift will take effect immediately on testator's decease as a direct unconditional gift; Armstrong v. Armstrong, 14 B. Mon. (Ky.) 333.

A devise in trust for a son, and "in the event of the son dying childless" then over, lapsed by the death of the son in the lifetime of the testatrix, and the devise over did not take effect; McGreevy v. McGrath, 152 Mass. 24, 25 N. E. 29.

A devise made to a wife for life, with remainder to the daughter, and with power to the wife to sell and invest the proceeds for the benefit of the daughter, does not lapse during the lifetime of the wife, being for the benefit of the latter as well as the former; Cotton v. Burkelman, 142 N. Y. 160, 36 N. E. 890, 40 Am. St. Rep. 584.

With a single important exception, the same principles apply to devises and legacies with respect to lapse, and as to that difference, and also for other cases on the subject, see Lapsed Legacy.

LAPSED LEGACY. A legacy which, on account of the death of the legatee before the period arrives for the payment of the legacy, lapses or deviates from the course prescribed by the testator, and falls into the residuum. 1 Wms. Ex., 7th Am. ed. *1071; Craighead v. Given, 10 S. & R. (Pa.) 351.

A legacy which has never vested or taken effect; one which, originally valid, afterwards fails, because the capacity or willingness of the donee to take has ceased to exist before he obtained a vested interest in the gift. Booth v. Baptist Church of Christ, 126 N. Y. 215, 28 N. E. 238.

A distinction exists between a lapsed devise and a lapsed legacy. A devise which lapses does not fall into the residue unless so provided by the will, but descends to the heir at law; on the contrary, personal property passes by the residuary clause, where it is not otherwise disposed of; 15 Ves. 709; 3 Whart. 477. See Lapsed Devise.

A lapsed legacy passes by a general residuary clause; Kimball v. Chappel, 18 N. Y. Supp. 30; so also did a legacy which lapsed because it was void; Hulin v. Squires, 63 Hun 352, 18 N. Y. Supp. 309. A lapsed or void legacy goes to the residuary legatee unless an intention to the contrary clearly appear; Hamberlin v. Terry, 1 Sm. & M. Ch. (Miss.) 589; King v. Woodhull, 3 Edw. Ch. (N. Y.) 79.

The reason assigned for this difference is that a bequest of personal property refers to the state of the property at the time of the death of the testator, and that a devise testator's life; Richmond v. Vanhood was seised when he made his will; is not to be presumed he intended to by a residuary clause, a contingency he could not have foreseen, nor to in it lands contained in a lapsed Greene v. Dennis, 6 Conn. 293, 16 A 58; Lingan v. Carroll, 3 Harr. & McH 333. "How far the alteration of the those states where after-acquired lar be devised will destroy this distincted difficult to say." 1 Bouv. Inst. 2150.

operates only on land of which the

The Pennsylvania act of June 4, L. 88, made the law respecting the tion of a lapsed devise the same as a lapsed legacy, but it was held the applied only to lapsed specific device the body of the will, and that as to shares of the residue no change tended; Everman v. Everman, 15 W (Pa.) 417. And the same provision except where the will requires a construction, in Virginia, North C West Virginia; but in the last state, is no residuary devisee, it goes to a tlaw.

at law.

The common-law distinction lapsed devises and lapsed legacies werence to falling into the residuum habrogated by statute in New Yol lapsed devises as well as lapsed fall into the residuum; Moffett v. dorf, 152 N. Y. 475, 46 N. E. 845, 57 Rep. 529.

Where a testator gave a share residuary personal estate to his wide took under the will, and another she daughter who died before him without was held that the testator died is as to the share given to the daught that the widow was entitled to one-it under the intestate laws; In re Retate, 82 Pa. 428.

Where the rent of a house was gilife to testator's daughter, and at he to be sold, the proceeds to go to he dren when twenty-one years of age, income meanwhile to be applied to maintenance, it was held that the lefthe children was vested, and on the in the lifetime of the mother there lapse, but the property vested in the tenant in fee as the heir of her chil against the heir at law of the originator; Cropley v. Cooper, 19 Wall. L. Ed. 109, reversing 7 D. C. 226.

If a legacy is payable out of rea in consequence of a deficiency of property, it will go to the heir at case of lapse, and if the personal e sufficient to pay debts and legatees, go to the residuary legatee; King v. 9 Paige (N. Y.) 94. A legacy to one with remainder to another does not is on the death of the first taker dur testator's life; Richmond v. Vanhook

C. 581. If a legacy is payable out of a particular debt due the testator, it does not fail on failure of payment of the debt; Gallagher v. Gallagher, 6 Watts (Pa.) 473.

Unless the legatee survive the testator, as a rule neither he nor his representatives have any claim to the legacy; Comfort v. Mather, 2 W. & S. (Pa.) 450, 37 Am. Dec. 523; Ballard v. Ballard, 18 Pick. (Mass.) 41; Hatcher v. Robertson, 4 Strobh. Eq. (S. C.) 179; Bill v. Payne, 62 Conn. 140, 25 Atl. 354; and the same rule applies where a legacy is given to a man and his executors, etc.; 3 Bro. C. C. 128; Kimball v. Story, 108 Mass. 382; Bolles v. Smith, 39 Conn. 219; though the testator may expressly provide otherwise; L. R. 14 Eq. 343. A declaration that a legacy shall not lapse is not sufficient to prevent it unless the intention is clear that it shall go to the estate of the legatee; 27 Beav. 418; 4 D. M. & G. 633; but gifts to A and his executors and administrators with the direction that it shall not lapse is sufficient; 2 Atk. 572. A direction that a legacy should vest from the date of the will is not sufficient to prevent lapse; 14 Eq. 343. From a devise of the remainder of an estate in distinct parcels there arises an inference that the testator did not intend that lapsed legacies should fall into the residue; Silcox v. Nelson, 24 Ga. 84.

A gift to A, and in case of his death to his executors and administrators, will go to A's executors in the event of his death before the testator; 54 L. J. Ch. 648, aff'g 32 W. R. 516 and overruling 1 Myl. & K. 470.

Where a testator bequeathed his estate to several legatees, and having learned of their death, interlined in his will between the words "as follows" and the list of the legatees the words "or to their heirs," and after the names added words signifying their decease and republished the will, the legacies did not lapse; Gilmor's Estate, 154 Pa. 523, 26 Atl. 614, 35 Am. St. Rep. 855, distinguishing Sloan v. Hanse, 2 Rawle (Pa.) 28, and Appeal of Barnett, 104 Pa. 342. Where a legacy was given to one in trust for his wife, the income for her life, with power of appointment by will, and in default thereof "it shall be equally divided among my children or their legal representatives," the words legal representatives meant executors and administrators, and not next of kin, and the legacy to any child who died without issue in the lifetime of the testator lapsed; Norwood v. Mills, 1 Ohio N. P. 314. A bequest of personal property to one and "heirs and assigns" are words of limitation, and the legacy lapsed on the death of the legatee before that of the testator; Bryson v. Holbrook, 159 Mass. 280, 34 N. E. 270; so also to one and "his heirs"; Kimball v. Chappel, 18 N. Y. Supp. 30.

Where a legacy is given to a class it is generally held that the death of one of the testator's death has ceased to do so, generally held that the death of one of the legacy fails; 29 Ch. Div. 560; [1895] 1 class before the testator does not create a lapse, but simply reduces the number of the class; Stires v. Van Renssalaer, 2 Bradf. (N. Y.) 172; in such a case, when one in whom the right is vested dies before distribution, his interest goes to his representatives; Knight v. Wall, 19 N. C. 125; Hocker v. Gentry, 3 Metc. (Ky.) 463. See LAPSED DEVISE.

Where a residue was devised in trust for four sons, the intention was clear that their enjoyment was to be several and not joint, and the share of one who died before the testator was held not to go to the survivors, but to be disposed of as intestate real estate; Lombard v. Boyden, 5 Allen (Mass.) 249; but where an estate was bequeathed to all the children in a family by name, the tenor of the whole will indicating that they were intended to take as a class, the share of one who died without issue before the testator went to the survivors; Schaffer v. Kettell, 14 Allen (Mass.) 528. It was early provided by statute in Alabama that the death of a devisee or legatee, leaving a descendant, before the testator, should not cause a lapse, but the gift would vest in the descendant; Jones v. Jones' Ex'r, 37 Ala. 646.

Under a Maine statute making an adopted child the same as a lawful child, such child is a lineal descendant of its adopting parents within the meaning of the statute to prevent the lapse of legacies to such descendants; Warren v. Prescott, 84 Me. 483, 24 Atl. 948, 17 L. R. A. 435, 30 Am. St. Rep. 370.

Where there was a legacy to executors in trust for a person for life, afterwards to be divided into four equal parts for four named residuary legatees, the title to the residue vested subject to the trust estate, and the share of a residuary legatee did not lapse on his death before the time of distribution; In re Gardner, 140 N. Y. 122, 35 N. E. 439.

Where separate sums are bequeathed to two named persons who take also the residuary estate, no intention appearing on the will to make them joint tenants, the separate estate and the share of the residue of the one who died before the testator were held to lapse; Stetson v. Eastman, 84 Me. 366, 24 Atl. 868.

Where property is bequeathed to collateral relatives named, shares of those who died during the lifetime of the testator lapse; Bill v. Payne, 62 Conn. 140, 25 Atl. 354.

The doctrine of lapse applies to an appointment by will; L. R. 3 Eq. 658; 47 L. J. Ch. 65; or an appointment under a covenant; 3 Ch. 182; or a gift to a debtor of his debt,—whether the debt be given or forgiven; 1 P. Wms. 83; 3 Ves. 231.

If there is a gift to a charitable society by name and it has existed, but at the time of the testator's death has ceased to do so, the legacy fails: 29 Ch. Div. 560: [1895] 1 Ch. 19. If the charity existed at the death of the testator and expired before administration of the estate, the cy pres doctrine is applied; [1891] 2 Ch. 236. A gift for a clearly defined and particular charitable use will fail if the subject becomes impossible; 1 Myl. & C. 123; 56 L. T. 147; and see as to the limits of the doctrine, L. R. 6 P. C. 96; 35 Ch. 460; 58 L. T. 538. See, generally, as to failure of charitable bequests, Theobald, Wills 304. See Charitable Use.

A residuary bequest operates upon all the personal estate which the testator is possessed of at the time of his death, and will include such as would have gone to pay specific legacies which lapse or are void; 4 Ves. Jr. 708, 732; see James v. James, 4 Paige (N. Y.) 115; Gore v. Stevens, 1 Dana (Ky.) 206, 25 Am. Dec. 141; Reed's Estate, 82 Pa. 428; 1 Jarm. Wills, 6th Am. ed. *716.

See Lapsed Devise; Legacy; Will.

LARBOARD. The left side of a ship or boat when one stands with his face towards the bow. The opposite term is starboard, which is the right-hand side looking forward. The word is now, however, no longer used, the term port having been substituted for it. The change was made by order of the English admiralty, for the very obvious reason that larboard was apt to be confused with the opposite term.

LARCENOUS. Thieving; pertaining to, characterized by, or tainted with, larceny; as a larcenous taking.

Larcenous purpose, an intention to commit larceny. See LARCENY.

LARCENY. The felonious taking of the property of another without his consent and against his will, with the intent to convert it to the use of the taker. 2 Leach 1089.

The felonious taking and carrying away of the personal goods of another. 4 Bla. Com. 299.

The appropriation, either to the use of the taker or to that of any other person, of money or personal property with intent to deprive or defraud the true owner of its use and benefit, or the withholding or secreting of the same. Van Keuren v. Miller, 71 Ilun 72, 24 N. Y. Supp. 580.

The wrongful and fraudulent taking and carrying away by one person of the mere personal goods of another from any place, with a felonious intent to convert them to his, the taker's, use, and make them his property without the consent of the owner. 2 East, Pl. Cr. 553; U. S. v. Clew. 4 Wash. C. C. 700, Fed. Cas. No. 14,819; State v. Gray, 37 Mo. 463.

This definition was criticised by Parke, B., who said: "Perhaps this was the more accurate definition; but it needed some addition; the taking should be not only wrongful and fraudulent, but also 'without any color of right';" 1 Den. C. C. 370; but the words "felonious intent" are considered by an authoritative text writer to exclude any color of right; 2 Russ. Cr., 9th Am. ed. 146.

That this offence is the most technical in tinctions of all the common-law felonies haps, to be found in the fact that inasmucl higher grade of the offence was, until Blac time, punishable capitally, the courts were to find technical reasons to avoid the infli that penalty for mere wrong done with r to the property. By reason of the depreciation money and the consequent appreciation money value of property which took place two centuries and a half after the passag Statute of Westminister I. (A. D. 1275), ch. 15 made grand larceny to consist of the ste property above the value of twelve pence, larceny became capital which would not he such at the time the statute was passed; an fore Lord Coke suggests that the valuation erty in determining whether the offense wa larceny ought to be reasonable; 1 McClair $ 534. Larceny was formerly in England, and $ 534.

Larceny was formerly in England, and perhaps in some states, divided into grand s or petty larceny, according as the value property taken was great or small; $ East, 736; State v. Wilson, $ McCord (S. C.) 18; v. People, $ Hill (N. Y.) 395; State v. Goo C. 463; State v. Murphy, $ Blackf. (Ind.) England this distinction is now abolished, Geo. IV. c. 29, $ 2; and the same is true of the states, although in some a difference similar in theory, between cases where the stolen is more and where it is less than o dred dollars or some fixed sum.

Compound larceny is larceny und cumstances which, in view of the lagravate the crime. The law in relating branch of larceny is to a great statutory.

The property of the owner may be general; 2 Den. Cr. Cas. 449; or a Palmer v. People, 10 Wend. (N. Y.) Am. Dec. 551; Jones v. State, 13 Al 9 C. & P. 44.

There must be an actual removal article; 7 C. & P. 552; Williams v. S Miss. 58; and at least a temporary sion in the taker; State v. Higgins, 354; Madison v. State, 16 Tex. Ap People v. Meyer, 75 Cal. 383, 17 Pa but the having the property under even for a short space of time is su though it is abandoned before being ally appropriated by the wrong-doer v. Gray, 106 N. C. 734, 11 S. E. 422 v. Chambers, 22 W. Va. 779, 46 Ar 550; State v. Higgins, 88 Mo. 354. T ing and carrying away may be cor by setting in motion an agency, inno otherwise, by which the property is a from the possession of the owner to the thief or his accomplice; Com. v. 125 Mass. 390; 11 Q. B. D. 21; 8 Hunt, 45 Ia. 673.

To secure a reward offered for the of any persons stealing goods from a store, a detective, through a confeder duced an employee in the store to watch and bring it to him, wherea at once returned it to its owner; he the detective was guilty of larceny watch, the animus furandi being for the intent to secure and keep the results.

84 Am. St. Rep. 242.

The trespass necessary to constitute larceny is absent where a property owner, upon being informed of a design to steal his property, assists the thief in taking the property by affording him the aid of his agents in carrying out his plan; Topolewski v. State, 130 Wis. 244, 109 N. W. 1037, 7 L. R. A. (N. S.) 756, 118 Am. St. Rep. 1019, 10 Ann. Cas.

A person who is seen to thrust his hand into the pocket of another and withdraw it empty can be convicted of an attempt to commit larceny, even though the pocket is empty; People v. Moran, 123 N. Y. 254, 25 N. E. 412, 10 L. R. A. 109, 20 Am. St. Rep. 732. See ATTEMPT.

The mere unlawful taking and carrying away of the property of another is not larceny unless it is done with criminal intent or animo furandi; Phelps v. People, 55 Ill. 334; State v. Campbell, 108 Mo. 611, 18 S. W. 1109; Waidley v. State, 34 Neb. 250, 51 N. W. 830; Holsey v. State, 24 Tex. App. 35, 5 S. W. 523; People v. Devine, 95 Cal. 227, 30 Pac. 378; but see State v. Davenport, 38 S. C. 348, 17 S. E. 37. The question whether the goods were taken animo furandi is one of fact for the jury; [1895] 2 Q. B. 484. If the taking is under a bona fide claim of right, there can be no larceny; Miller v. People, 4 Col. 182; as where the purpose of taking is to test a right; 2 Doug. 517; or to protect one's own property; 4 B. & S. 189; McPhail v. State, 9 Tex. App. 164. One is not guilty of larceny in selling an article under the belief that it is his own property, though it belong to another; Black v. State, 38 Tex. Cr. R. 58, 41 S. W. 606; or in taking property in the belief that he has a right so to do; Graves v. State, 25 Tex. App. 333, 8 S. W. 471; Causey v. State, 79 Ga. 564, 5 S. E. 121, 11 Am. St. Rep. 447; Mead v. State, 25 Neb. 444, 41 N. W. 277; but the belief of a right must be an honest belief and not a mere impression or pretence; State v. Bond, 8 Ia. 540; State v. Thompson, 95 N. C. 596. See supra. Secrecy is not such an essential accompaniment of larceny that an attempt to conceal the taking must be shown; State v. Hill, 114 N. C. 780, 18 S. E.

An intent to convert to the thief's own use is not necessary; all that is required is the intent to deprive the owner of his property; People v. Juarez, 28 Cal. 380; Dignowitty v. State, 17 Tex. 521, 67 Am. Dec. 670; Hamilton v. State, 35 Miss. 214; Keely v. State, 14 Ind. 36; but see U. S. v. Durkee, 1 McAll. 196, Fed. Cas. No. 15,009, where the accused took and carried away muskets to prevent others from using them against him-

Slaughter v. State, 113 Ga. 284, 38 S. E. 854, the sake of gain; State v. Caddle, 35 W. Va. 73, 12 S. E. 1098.

The property must be of some value, though it be slight; State v. Smart, 4 Rich. (S. C.) 356, 55 Am. Dec. 683; State v. Dobson, 3 Harring. (Del.) 563; Com. v. Rand, 7 Metc. (Mass.) 475, 41 Am. Dec. 455; but the fact that the thief treated the property as of value will amount to proof of such value by inference; State v. Harris, 64 N. C. 127; Houston v. State, 13 Ark. 66. Any intrinsic value whatever is sufficient; Com. v. Riggs, 14 Gray (Mass.) 376, 77 Am. Dec. 333; and it is not necessary that the value should be of some particular coin; Wolverton v. Com., 75 Va. 909.

There must be a taking against the consent of the owner; 8 C. & P. 291; Wright v. Lindsay, 20 Ala. 428; State v. Harmon, 106 Mo. 635, 18 S. W. 128; State v. Verry, 36 Kan. 416, 13 Pac. 838; Wright v. State, 18 Tex. App. 358; and the taking will not be larceny if consent be given, though obtained by fraud; Lewer v. Com., 15 S. & R. (Pa.) 93; 9 C. & P. 741; but see Frazier v. State, 85 Ala. 17, 4 South. 691, 7 Am. St. Rep. 21. But where one retains money paid by mistake, it is larceny, for the consent of the owner in parting with his property was only apparent, not real; State v. Ducker, 8 Or. 394, 34 Am. Rep. 590; Wolfstein v. People, 6 Hun (N. Y.) 121. Where one gave another a sovereign, supposing it to be a shilling, and the receiver kept the money, his conviction was affirmed by an evenly divided court; 16 Q. B. D. 190; a similar conviction was quashed in 16 Q. B. D. 643. To the same effect, 29 Ir. L. Times 323. See 8 Harv. L. Rev. 317. One Leech gave the prisoner a £10 note, both supposing it was at the time a £1 note. A substantial period of time after this, the prisoner discovered the mistake and appropriated it; held that the prisoner was not guilty of larceny, as the taking was with Leech's consent; 29 Ir. L. T. 323, four judges out of nine dissenting.

Whenever the defendant can be regarded in the light of the servant or agent of the owner, he is guilty of larceny; People v. Call, 1 Den. (N. Y.) 120, 43 Am. Dec. 655; Whart. Cr. Law (9th Ed.) § 956; Crocheron v. State, 86 Ala. 64, 5 South. 649, 11 Am. St. Rep. 18; People v. Perini, 94 Cal. 573, 29 Pac. 1027. Where a master paid his servant a £10 note, thinking it was a £1 note. and the servant took it innocently, but afterwards discovered the mistake and made up his mind to appropriate the note, it was held by a divided court that this was not larceny: [1895] 2 I. R. 709.

By Stat. 24 & 25 Vict. c. 96, a bailee who fraudulently converts the property entrusted to him to his own use is guilty of larself and his friends, and it was held larceny. ceny; Cox & Saunders, Cr. L. 26. The pos-It is not an essential element of the crime session of the bailee is the possession of the that the taking should be lucri causa, for owner, and a larceny thereof from the former is a larceny from the owner; State v. Moore, 101 Mo. 316, 14 S. W. 182. When the possession of an article is entrusted to a person, who carries it away and appropriates it, this is no larceny; 4 C. & P. 545; Com. v. James, 1 Pick. (Mass.) 375; Wright v. Lindsay, 20 Ala. 428; Nichols v. People, ceny; Lawrence v. State, 1 Humph. 17 N. Y. 114; see Norton v. State, 4 Mo. 461; State v. Haskell, 33 Me. 127; White v. State, 11 Tex. 769; but when the custody merely is parted with, such misappropriation is a larceny; People v. Call, 1 Den. (N. Y.) 120, 43 Am. Dec. 655; 11 Q. B. 929. One who obtains possession of property by fraud, from one who intends to retain the ownership, and subsequently carries it away, is guilty of larceny, though he would not be if he obtained both possession and ownership by fraud; State v. Will, 49 La. Ann. 1337, 22 South. 378. There is no consent to possession sufficient to prevent a prosecution for larceny where a transportation company permits a thief to take property under the mistaken assumption that he is entitled to it 68 L. R. A. 283, 104 Am. St. Rep. 94 where he has placed the wrong check upon 19 Am. & Eng. Encyc. L. 499. it; Aldrich v. People, 224 Hl. 622, 79 N. E. 964, 7 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1149, 115 Am. St. the criminal is to be tried; 9 C.

Rep. 166, 8 Ann. Cas. 284. The crime of larceny may be committed by a finder of lost money or goods, who, knowing or having reason to know who is the owner of the same, instead of restoring them to him, conceals or fraudulently appropriates them to his own use; Kennedy v. Woodrow, 6 Houst. (Del.) 46; Perrin v. Com., 87 Va. 554, 13 S. E. 76.

Where the finder of a bank check handed it to a person who falsely represented that he expected to see the owner and would give it to him, and thereupon converted it to his own use, it was held larceny; State v. Levine, 79 Conn. 714, 66 Atl. 529, 10 L. R. A. (N. S.) 286. One with whose wife money is left by a finder for his inspection, on her suggestion that it may be his, is guilty of larceny if he wrongfully retains it under the claim that he is the true owner; Williams v. State, 165 Ind. 472, 75 N. E. 875, 2 L. R. A. (N. S.) 248.

Where a dealer in waste paper appropriated a few stamped envelopes found in a crate of waste paper purchased by him, he was held not guilty of larceny; People v. Hoban, 240 Ill. 303, 88 N. E. 806, 22 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1132, 16 Ann. Cas. 226. So where one renting a store found two barber's bottles in some rubbish, which he washed and placed on a shelf and afterwards sold; Siemers v. State (Tex.) 55 S. W. 334; contra, where one bought a trunk not knowing that it contained articles of clothing and appropriated such articles, provided that the criminal intent was formed at the time he discovered them in the trunk; Robinson v. State, 11 Tex. App. 403, 40 Am. Rep. 790. So of money found in a bureau bought at auction; 7 M. & W. 623.

not be the subject of larceny; U. S. v 6 Sawy. 640, Fed. Cas. No. 16,317 v. State, 43 Tex. 650. Lost property, as distinguished for

Abandoned property having no ow

The decisions have not been enti-laid, cannot, it is said, be the subject

228, 34 Am. Dec. 644. See FINDER.

form as to whether the fraudulent of money delivered to be changed is It has been held in England not to b here the contrary view has been take debrand v. People, 56 N. Y. 394, 15 A 435; State v. Anderson, 25 Minn. 66 Rep. 455, n. See 9 C. & P. 741; 11

Cas. 32. Where a livery stable in posse horses had a lien thereon for th and the owner broke and entered th etc., held that it was burglary (sta State v. Nelson, 36 Wash. 126, 78 l

The taking must be in the count

But when the taking has been in th or state, and the thief is caught stolen property in another county ti where the theft was committed, be tried in the county where arres the goods; as, by construction of la is a fresh taking in every county i the thief carries the stolen propert v. Rand, 7 Metc. (Mass.) 475, 41 455; Stinson v. People, 43 Ill. 397; Grant, 76 Mo. 236; and the court latter county has jurisdiction of the Thomas v. Com. (Ky.) 15 S. W. 8 who steals property in a foreign cour brings it into this, is guilty of larce on the ground that as the legal pe remains in the owner when the firs is felonious, every asportation of t

erty is a fresh taking; and on a pro for such an offence the courts will that the laws of the foreign country same as our own, and that the orig ing there was criminal, upon proofs which would make it criminal her v. Morrill, 68 Vt. 60, 33 Atl. 1070, St. Rep. 870. Whether an indictr larceny can be supported where th were proved to have been original in another state, and brought the the state where the indictment wa is a point on which the decisions are dictory. Where property was stoler of the British Provinces and brough

State v. Bartlett. 11 Vt. 650. The property must be personal; t be no larceny of things fixed to the Hale, P. C. 510; but as the taking thief into Massachusetts, it was l larceny there; Com. v. Uprichard, character of the property as realty even if common law there can be no larceny of aniit were such, the important point of this distinction is that if the severance from the realty of anything which is a part thereof, or annexed thereto so as to go with the realty by descent, or in case a severance is made by the wrongdoer himself, so that the taking and carrying away is a continuous act, the offence is not larceny, because the taking and carrying away is not of the personal property of another, that which was severed not having been in his possession as a chattel, but only as the portion of a realty; ore which has not been mined or otherwise severed, so as to convert it into a chattel, is not the subject of larceny; State v. Burt, 64 N. C. 619; State v. Berryman, 8 Nev. 262: nor is water or ice, unless the ice is cut or stored in an ice-house; Ward v. People, 6 Hill (N. Y.) 144; State v. Pottmeyer, 33 Ind. 402, 5 Am. Rep. 224; or the water is pumped into supply pipes; 11 Q. B. D. 21; sea-weed lying ungathered on the shore is part of the realty and not the subject of larceny; 4 Ir. R. C. L. 6 (but see Com. v. Steimling, 156 Pa. 400, 27 Atl. 297, where waste coal was carried upon land by a stream and deposited there and the appropriator was held guilty of larceny). It is not larceny to detach any portion of a building and carry it away; Smith v. Com., 14 Bush (Ky.) 31, 29 Am. Rep. 402; Langston v. State, 96 Ala. 44, 11 South. 834; 3 Taunt. 48; but the courts have expressed their disapproval of a doctrine so technical even while compelled to follow it; People v. Williams, 35 Cal. 671; and in many cases of constructive annexation, have held the taking and carrying away to be larceny, such as window sashes not permanently annexed to the building; 1 Leach 20; chandeliers; Smith v. Com., 14 Bush. (Ky.) 31, 29 Am. Rep. 402; doors taken from their hinges; Ex parte Wilke, 34 Tex. 155; rails in a fence; Harberger v. State, 4 Tex. App. 26, 30 Am. Rep. 157; belts belonging to a mill; Jackson v. State, 11 Ohio St. 104; valves in a portable pump; Langston v. State, 96 Ala. 44, 11 South. 334; the key of a door; Hoskins v. Tarrence, 5 Blackf. (Ind.) 417, 35 Am. Dec. 129; 1 McClain, Cr. L. § 536.

(Mass.) 434, 63 Am. Dec. 762.

Sec

If once severed by the owner, a third person, or the thief himself, as a separate transaction, any part of the realty becomes the subject of larceny; State v. Moore, 33 N. C. 70; Ward v. People, 8 Hill (N. Y.) 395; 7 Taunt. 188.

The common-law rule has been modified from time to time in England, so as to afford protection to things fixed to the freehold. The rule was never satisfactory, and the courts in modern times have been inclined to confine it within the narrowest rying away would necessarily terminate the | State, 4 Tex. App. 26, 30 Am. Rep. 157. At mals, in which there is neither an absolute nor a qualified property, as beasts feræ naturæ; Gillet v. Mason, 7 Johns. (N. Y.) 16; State v. Jenkins, 78 N. C. 481; 1 C. & K. 494; but otherwise of animals reclaimed or confined, as deer, or rabbits in a park, fish in a tank, pheasants, etc., in a mew; State v. House, 65 N. C. 315, 6 Am. Rep. 744; all valuable domestic animals, and all animals domitæ naturæ, which serve for food. But all other animals which do not serve for food, as dogs, unless taxed, are not subjects of larceny. But oysters, when planted for use, are so, as is the flesh of dead animals; 1 Whart. Cr. Law § 864. But under statute in some of the states there may be a larceny of dogs, and actions may be maintained for injury to them; People v. Campbell, 4 Parker, C. C. (N. Y.) 386; Parker v. Mise, 27 Ala. 480, 62 Am. Dec. 776; Harrington v. Miles, 11 Kan. 480, 15 Am. Rep. 355, n; Com. v. Hazelwood, 84 Ky. 681, 2 S. W. 489; a horse is a subject of larceny, although at the time he has been removed or strayed from the premises of his owner: Burger v. State, 83 Ala. 36, 3 South. 319. Statutes exist in many states making the stealing of electric current larceny.

See BREAKING BULK; RING-DROPPING.

The clarified semi-solid oil of LARD. hog's fat. Cent. Dict. The pure fat of healthy swine. State v. Snow, 81 Ia. 642, 47 N. W. 777, 11 L. R. A. 355.

LARDING MONEY. A small yearly rent paid by the tenants in the manor of Bradford in Wilts, for liberty to feed their hogs with the masts (acorns) of the lord's wood. Also a commutation for some customary service in connection with the word larder as carrying salt or meat. Whart, Lex.

LARGE (L. Fr.). Broad; having much size: complete: ample; at large, free from restraint or confinement; at liberty. It was formerly written at his large.

LAS PARTIDAS. The name of a code of Spanish law. It is sometimes called las siete partidas, or the seven parts, from the number of its principal divisions. It is a compilation of the civil law, the customary law of Spain, and the canon law. It was compiled by four Spanish jurisconsults, by the direction of Alfonso X., A. D. 1250, and published in Castile in 1263, but first promulgated as the law by Alfonso XI., A. D. 1348. The maritime law contained in it is given in vol. 6 of Pardess. Col. of Mar. Law. He follows the editions of 1807, at Paris. It has been translated into English. Such of its provisions as are applicable are in force in Florida, Louisiana, and Texas.

See Escriche; Code.

LASCIVIOUS CARRIAGE. A term inlimits; 30 Am. Rep. 159, n.; Harberger v. cluding those wanton acts between persons of different sexes, who are not married to and were not married, was held suf each other, that flow from the exercise of lustful passions, and which are not otherwise punished as crimes against chastity and public decency. 2 Swift, Dig. 343; 2 Swift, Syst. 331. It includes, also, indecent acts by one against the will of another. Fowler v. State, 5 Day (Conn.) 81.

LASCIVIOUS COHABITATION. The act or state of a man and woman, not married, who dwell together in the same house, behaving themselves as man and wife.

In statutes forbidding unlawful cohabitation that term involves the idea of habitual sexual intercourse, or living together in such a way as to hold out the appearance of being husband and wife, and it is the scandal resulting therefrom which constitutes the mischief against which the statutes are directed; Luster v. State, 23 Fla. 339, 2 South. 690; and proof of occasional acts of illicit intercourse is not sufficient; Pruner v. Com., 82 Va. 115; State v. Miller, 42 W. Va. 215, 24 S. E. 882; Brown v. State (Miss.) 8 South. 257; but it has been held that such occasional acts may constitute the offence, unless there was no intention of continuing the intercourse, as desire and opportunity might arise; Wright v. State, 108 Ala. 60, 18 South. 941. To constitute the offence there must be both lewd and lascivious intercourse and living together; Jones v. Com., 80 Va. 20; Pinson v. State, 28 Fla. 735, 9 South. 706; though it is said that there need not be actual assertion of the existence of marriage; Kinard v. State, 57 Miss. 132; Sullivan v. State, 32 Ark. 187; and where the dwelling together is a lawful relation, as that of master and servant, the offence is not established; State v. Osborne, 39 Mo. App. 372. It is not sustained by evidence of acts of secret adultery or mere familiarity; State v. Phillips, 49 Mo. App. 325; nor where a man and woman stopped for one night only at a house and assumed marital relations; Turney v. State, 60 Ark. 259, 29 S. W. 893; Com. v. Calef, 10 Mass. 153; State v. Crowner, 56 Mo. 147; but it is said that it is not necessary that the cohabitation should be notorious; State v. Cagle, 2 Humph. (Tenn.) 414. General reputation in the neighborhood is not admissible to prove the fact of cohabitation; Overstreet v. State, 3 How. (Miss.) 328. Whether the facts proved constituted a living together in such relation is a question for the jury; Pinson v. State, 28 Fla. 735, 9 South. 706.

There must be averment and proof of habitual sexual intercourse which is the gist of the offence; Newman v. State, 69 Miss. 393, 10 South. 580. In Massachusetts, the words "abide and cohabit" are sufficient where the statute used the word "associated"; Com. v. Dill, 159 Mass. 61, 34 N. E. 84. An indictment alleging fornication and adultery, and that the parties lived together it must be averred that the parties we the language of the statute that they "lewdly and lasciviously associate" bei plied; State v. Stubbs, 108 N. C. 774, E. 90. The offence may be proved by sion made out of court, and proved b witnesses; U. S. v. Schow, 6 Utah 3 Pac. 30. Evidence of previous lascivic habitation is sometimes admitted in s of other crimes, as on prosecution for i People v. Skutt, 96 Mich. 449, 56 N. V Burnett v. State, 32 Tex. Cr. R. 86, 22 47. It is not essential in a prose against one to prove that both partie a guilty intent; State v. Cutshall, 1 C. 764, 14 S. E. 107, 26 Am. St. Rer When the charge is of such cohabitat a married man with an unmarried w the marriage must be strictly proved, cannot be established by reputation; v. Coffee, 39 Mo. App. 56. It has been that a man and woman living togetl man and wife, in the belief that the married, cannot be convicted of "open ness"; Com. v. Munson, 127 Mass. 4 Am. Rep. 411; Schoudel v. State, 57 N 209, 30 Atl. 598. See 111 U. C. 725. Under the United States anti-poly act of March 22, 1882, on prosecution cohabitation with two women as wives, of the existence of the marriage relat pertinent, and it may be proved by g reputation; U. S. v. Higgerson, 46 Fed U. S. v. Harris, 5 Utah 436, 17 Pac. 78 evidence of general repute of guilt : sufficient; the facts must be proved, a ferences left to the jury; U.S. v. Lan 2 Idaho (Hasb.) 561, 21 Pac. 409. indictment under the act it is sufficient use the word cohabit and not to set of meaning; U. S. v. Kuntze, 2 Idaho (I 480, 21 Pac. 407; U. S. v. Langford, 2 (Hasb.) 561, 21 Pac. 409; it need not that defendant was a male person; U Cannon, 4 Utah 122, 7 Pac. 369.

LASCIVIOUS LEWDNESS. Lewd lascivious conduct in public, or at least tised with such publicity as to be punis as contra bonos mores.

It is an offence sometimes disting from lascivious cohabitation (q. v.), a described as open and lascivious lewe McClain, Cr. L. § 1135. The specific acterization of the offence is the ope and publicity of the act as distinct for secret act; Com. v. Wardell, 128 Mass. Am. Rep. 357. The offence need not joint one,-one person only may be therein; State v. Caldwell, 8 Baxt. (7 576; and when two are charged so tha must have been guilty if one was, one be convicted and the other acquitted; v. Miller, 81 Ia. 72, 46 N. W. 751.

An indictment should follow the st Com. v. Parker, 4 Allen (Mass.) 313 married to each other and that the offence | was open and public; State v. Moore, 1 Swan (Tenn.) 136. The crime cannot be established by general reputation; Buttram v. State, 4 Coldw. (Tenn.) 171; but it may be by circumstantial evidence; Peak v. State, 10 Humph. (Tenn.) 99; and proof has been admitted of similar acts proved at a previous trial for the same offence; Mynatt v. State, 8 Lea (Tenn.) 47.

LASCIVIOUSNESS. Lascivious desires or conduct; lustfulness; wantonness; lewd-

That form of immorality which has reference to sexual impurity; U. S. v. Males, 51 Fed. 41. See the titles next preceding.

Lasciviousness and lewdness are generally treated as interchangeable if not synonymous terms. both cases the principal use of the two words is now in each case in a secondary or derived meaning. The primary meaning of loscious, from which the first is derived, is sportiveness, and its use in a bad sense is said to be post-Augustine, and never by Cicero; the other is derived from the Anglo-Sexon laewed, lay or unlearned.

LAST. The same as last court (q. v.). Cent. Dict. A burden; and a measure of weight for bulky commodities, such as leather, wool, corn. Whart. L. Lex.

Where the plaintiff added new defendants after answer, the last answer was held to mean the last answer of the original defendants; 13 L. J. Ch. 99; 2 Hare 632.

LAST CLEAR CHANCE. See NEGLIGENCE.

LAST COURT. A court held by the twenty-four jurats in the marshes of Kent and summoned by the bailiffs. It made orders for levying taxes, and imposing penalties for the preservation of marshes. M. & W.; Ency. Lond.

LAST HEIR. He to whom the lands come if they escheat for want of lawful heirs: viz., sometimes the lord of whom the lands are held, sometimes the king. Bract. lib. 5, c. 17.

LAST RESORT. The highest court in any jurisdiction, beyond which there is no appeal, is termed court of last resort.

LAST SICKNESS. That of which a person dies.

The expenses of this sickness are generally entitled to a preference in payment of debts of an insolvent estate.

To prevent impositions, the statute of frauds requires that nuncupative wills can be made only during the testator's last sickness. Roberts, Frauds 556; Prince v. Hazleton, 20 Johns. (N. Y.) 502, 11 Am. Dec. 307.

LAST WILL. A disposition of real estate to take effect after death.

Generally speaking, last will means the one latest in date, though there may be two or more wills, all speaking from the death of the testator; L. R. 1 Eq. 510; 55 Beav. 321. ment" does not, of itself, revoke a former will; 9 Moo. P. C. 131; but may be confirmatory proof of an intention to revoke; 16 Beav. 173; 22 L. J. Ch. 185. Revoking "my last will dated," etc., giving the date of the first will, was held to mean the last will in fact, the date given being rejected as a mistake; 46 L. J. P. D. & A. 30; 2 P. D. 111.

It is strictly distinguishable from testament, which is applied to personal estate; 1 Wms. Exec., 7th Am. ed. *4, n.; but the words are generally used together, "last will and testament," in a will, whether real or personal estate is to be disposed of. See LASTAGE. A custom anciently exacted in some fairs and markets to carry things where one will; also a custom paid for goods sold by the last (a certain weight or measure); the ballast of a ship. Cowell. Stowage room for goods in a vessel. Young, Naut. Dict.

LATA CULPA. Gross neglect. See BAIL-MENT.

"Existing not long ago, but now LATE. departed this life." Pleasant v. State, 17 Ala. 190. See Beckett v. Selover, 7 Cal. 215, 68 Am. Dec. 237; Bordine v. Service, 16 N. J. L. 47.

LATELY. This word has come to have "a very large retrospect," as we say, lately deceased of one dead ten or twenty years; 2 Show. 294.

LATENS (Lat.). Latent (q. v.).

LATENT. Hidden; concealed; not appearing on the surface or face of a thing.

LATENT AMBIGUITY. One which does not appear on the face of the instrument. A latent ambiguity is where words apply equally to two different things or subjectmatters; 15 M. & W. 561; but where the parties may have intended either of the two things in dispute, the term does not apply; Webster v. Paul, 10 Ohio St. 534.

It is settled both in England and in this country that extrinsic evidence is admissible to explain a latent ambiguity, but there has been some difficulty in defining precisely when and under what circumstances such evidence may be introduced to show the intention. Two rules are laid down in 2 Eng. Rul. Cas. 718, 726, as illustrated by two leading English cases. first rule is: "Where a determinate intention appears to be expressed by the written instrument, extrinsic evidence is admissible to show that the description of an object contained in the instrument is applicable with legal certainty to either of two objects; and, a latent ambiguity having been thus disclosed, evidence of the surrounding circumstances is admissible to show which of the objects was meant by the de-The phrase "This is my last will, and testa- scription; and if, on this evidence, one of the objects is indicated with sufficient cer- | two sons by that name; or to a tainty, direct evidence of declarations of intention is not admissible." 5 M. & W. 363. In that case the language of the court was: "If, therefore, by looking at the surrounding facts to be found by the jury, the court can clearly see, with the knowledge which arises from those facts alone, that the testator meant either the lessor of the plaintiff or the defendant, it may so decide, and direct the jury accordingly; but we think that, for this purpose, they cannot receive declarations of the testator of what he intended to do in making his will." A good illustration of the uncertainty as to the person was, "where a testatrix gave a share of her residue to her 'cousin, Harriet Cloak,' and the testatrix had no cousin of that name, but had a married cousin, Harriet Crane, whose maiden name was Cloak, and a cousin T. Cloak, whose wife's name was Harriet; evidence was admitted to show the testatrix's knowledge of an intimacy with the members of the Cloak family. In the event 'cousin' was read in the secondary sense of 'wife of a cousin,' and the claim of Harriet, the wife of T. Cloak, allowed." 34 Ch. D. 255; 56 L. J. Ch. 171. Cited in the American note to the above case as "a good type of the American doctrine," was a devise to "the four boys," where the testator had seven sons, of whom three were shown to be minors living at home; Bradley v. Rees, 113 Ill. 327, 55 Am. Rep. 422. And in the case of Hardy v. Warren reported in Browne, Parol Evidence 461, there was a bequest by a woman to her "husband" when she had obtained a void divorce and was living with another man as his wife. These were held to be cases of latent ambiguity to explain which extrinsic evidence was admissible to determine the persons who were to take.

The other rule laid down by the work referred to is: "Assuming that the intention appears on the face of the instrument to be determinate, if, after exhausting such evidence of the surrounding circumstances as is necessary to place the court at the point of view of the maker of the instrument, there is still an ambiguity as to which of two objects is meant,-the description being sufficient to point with legal certainty to either if there were no other,-the intention as between those objects may be proved by direct evidence outside the instrument." 2 M. & W. 129. It is said that courts of law are very jealous of the admission of extrinsic evidence to explain the intention of the testator, and that it should be permitted only where an ambiguity is introduced by extrinsic circumstances; 4 Dow 65; in this case illustrations are given of ambiguity both as to person and subject-matter, as a devise of an estate caller Blackacre when the testator had two estates so called; or if a devise be given to a son, naming him, and there are McAboy, 107 Pa. 548. When author

"William" where the testator had no of that name. The rule as laid dow American cases has been stated to where the terms describing the the testator's bounty apply indiffer more than one person or thing, may be introduced of any mater relating to the property claimed, circumstances and affairs of the his family, and of the claimant, testator's declarations made before after the making of the will, are ac in this view, but no evidence of m take on the part of the testator draftsman is admissible." Cleverly v ly, 124 Mass. 314; Appeal of Wagne 102; Morgan v. Burrows, 45 Wis. Am. Rep. 717; Doe v. Roe, 1 Wend. 549.

A bequest "to be equally divided the board of foreign and the board missions," may be shown by parol been intended for the Presbyterian thus named, there being similar bos trolled by other religious denomination Gilmer v. Stone, 120 U. S. 586, 7 Sup 30 L. Ed. 734. See also, as to the ac ity of parol evidence to show i LEGACY.

See AMBIGUITY; PATENT AMBIGUIT

LATENT DEED. One kept for years or more in a person's stre See Den v. Wright, 7 N. J. L. 177 Dec. 546.

LATENT DEFECT. A defect or in any article sold, known to the s not apparent to the purchaser, an cannot be discovered by mere obs which, not being discoverable from servation, was concealed from the pr See Hoe v. Sanborn, 21 N. Y. 552 Dec. 163.

LATENT FAULT. Latent defect

LATERAL RAILROAD. A bran One running from some po main line intended as a connecting feeder.

A lateral road is said to be " ceeding from some point on the ma between its termini." Newhall v. R Ill. 273. "The general route of the road must lie at an acute angle main trunk;" id. "A lateral road is name for a branch road;" id. The of such a structure does not depen length or direction, it may be a "dire sion" from the terminus as well as an offshoot of the main road; Appea Aboy, 107 Pa. 548; and it may ru same direction as the main line so in effect an extension; Atlantic & I v. City of St. Louis, 66 Mo. 228; it an elevated road over a wharf: A necessity and the location are in the discretion of the directors; id.; but the lateral railroad cannot be constructed without authority expressly granted or necessarily implied from the charter; Pittsburgh v. R. Co., 48 Pa. 355. When it is authorized, the right to acquire lands by the exercise of the power of eminent domain is implied as on the main line; Newhall v. R. Co., 14 Ill. 273; Toledo, S. & M. R. Co. v. R. Co., 72 Mich. 206, 40 N. W. 436; Lower v. R. Co., 59 Ia. 563, 13 N. W. 718. Where there is a limitation of time for completing the main line, it does not apply to a branch road, certainly not to one for which the land has been acquired within the time limited; Atlantic & P. R. Co. v. City of St. Louis, 66 Mo. 228.

The power is as large as the power granted for construction of the main line; Pittsburgh v. R. Co., 48 Pa. 355; and a power to construct such roads in the discretion of the directors is a continuing one, not to be abridged by a subsequent act giving to the company a time limited for completing the main line with sidings, appurtenances, etc.; Pittsburgh, V. & C. Ry. Co. v. R. Co., 159 Pa. 331, 28 Atl. 155. The word appurtenances does not include branches; id.

The same reasonable rules as to furnishing, and having proper switches, turnouts, etc., apply to lateral roads as to other railroads; Com. v. Corey, 2 Pittsb. (Pa.) 444; so also the same statutory requirements apply as to crossing highways; 1 B. & Ad. 441.

Words permitting the construction of such lines are not obligatory; 2 Macq. H. L. Cas. 514; and impose no duty which will be enforced by mandamus; 1 El. & Bl. 874. A charter power to construct branch or lateral roads includes the right to build one running in the same general direction and connecting the main line with another railroad; Blanton v. R. Co., 86 Va. 618, 10 S. E. 925. When a railroad company has power to construct lateral or branch roads and purchases another road under an act authorizing its use under the charter of the purchaser, the latter may extend the purchased road; Duncan v. R. Co., 94 Pa. 435. The mere fact that the building of a lateral railroad may add to the earnings of the main line will not authorize its construction in the absence of power in the charter; Chicago & E., I. R. Co. v. Wiltse, 116 Ill. 449, 6 N. E. 49; Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. City of Chicago, 138 Ill. 453, 28 N. E. 740.

A power "to construct such roads from the main line to other points or places in the several counties through which said road may pass," is limited to such as begin and end in the same county; Works v. Railroad, 5 McLean 425, Fed. Cas. No. 18,046. A lateral railroad may cross an ordinary railroad to reach a navigable river to which its construction is authorized and the continuity of the lateral road is not thereby destroyed; Hays v. Briggs, 74 Pa. 373. A statute authorizing a railroad company to subscribe to and acquire an interest not exceeding one-fifth, in any lateral or connecting road, confers a distinct privilege or franchise which renders the gross receipts derived from such interest liable to a state tax, notwithstanding an exemption of the principal company from such tax on its own gross receipts; State v. R. Co., 48 Md. 49. Branch railroads, under the Missouri act of March 21, 1868, are practically independent lines and not included in an exemption from taxation in the charter of the main line; Chicago, B. & K. C. R. v. Guffey, 120 U. S. 569, 7 Sup. Ct. 693, 30 L. Ed. 732; State v. R. Co., 99 Mo. 30, 12 S. W. 290, 6 L. R. A. 222. Reduction of the number of trains on a branch road of which the business is lessened by charter of a competing line, will not operate as a forfeiture of the charter of the main line; Com. v. Quinn, 12 Gray (Mass.) 180.

LATERAL SUPPORT. The right of having one's land and the structures erected thereon supported by the land of a neighboring proprietor.

Each of two adjoining land-owners is entitled to the support of the other's land. The right of lateral support exists only with respect to the soil in its natural condition; Northern Transp. Co. v. Chicago, 99 U. S. 635, 25 L. Ed. 336; and it is an incident to the land in that condition; Farrand v. Marshall, 19 Barb. (N. Y.) 383. If any excavation cause damage whilst the soil remains in this condition, an action will lie, but in the absence of negligence in excavating, or prescription, or grant, in favor of the neighbor, no action will lie for injury occasioned to the latter if he has increased the lateral pressure by building on the land; Gilmore v. Driscoll, 122 Mass. 207, 23 Am. Rep. 312; 10 H. L. Cas. 333; Eads v. Gains, 58 Mo. App. 586; Beard v. Murphy, 37 Vt. 99, 86 Am. Dec. 693. A land-owner has a right to assume that the soil will be permitted to remain in its natural state, and for a violation of this right, an action will lie independently of the question of negligence; 2 Rolle, Abr. 565; Richardson v. R. Co., 25 Vt. 465, 60 Am. Dec. 283; McGuire v. Grant, 25 N. J. L. 362, 67 Am. Dec. 49. But see Bonquois v. Monteleone, 47 La. Ann. 814, 17 South. 305, where it was held that an adjoining landowner was liable for weakening his neighbor's wall, by the construction of a building on his own land.

A person's right to the support of the land immediately around his house is not so much an easement, as it has been called, as it is the ordinary right of enjoyment of property. Professor Washburn characterizes the right as "of a nature somewhat akin to the easement of light."

The doctrine of lateral support has been thus stated by this eminent author (2 Real Pr. 380): "This right exists independently of grant or prescription, and is also an absolute right; so that, if his neighbor excavates the adjoining land, and in consequence A's land falls, he may have an action, although A's excavation was not carelessly or unskilfully performed. This natural right does not extend to any buildings A may place upon his land; and therefore, if A builds his house upon the verge of his own land, he does not thereby acquire the right to have it derive its support from the land adjoining it until it shall have stood and had the advantage of such support for twenty years. In the meantime such adjacent owner may excavate his own land for such purposes as he sees fit, provided he does not dig carelessly or recklessly; and if, in so doing, the adjacent earth gives way, and the house falls by reason of the additional weight thereby placed upon the natural soil, the owner of the house is without remedy. It was his own folly to place it there. But if it shall have stood for twenty years with the knowledge of the adjacent proprietor, it acquires the easement of a support in the adjacent soil. . . . But this right of a land-owner to support his land against that of the adjacent owner does not, as before stated, extend to the support of any additional weight or structure that he may place thereon. If, therefore, a man erect a house upon his own land, so near the boundary line thereof as to be injured by the adjacent owner's excavating his land in a proper manner, and so as not to have caused the soil of the adjacent parcel to fall if it had not been loaded with an additional weight, it would be damnum absque injuria,—a loss for which the person so excavating would not be responsible in damages."

"The unquestionable right of a land-owner to remove the earth from his own premises adjacent to another's building is subject to the qualification that he shall use ordinary care to cause no unnecessary damage to his neighbor's property in so doing." Larson v. B. Co., 110 Mo. 234, 19 S. W. 416, 16 L. R. A. 330, 33 Am. St. Rep. 439; Austin v. R. Co., 25 N. Y. 334; Foley v. Wyeth, 2 Allen (Mass.) 131, 79 Am. Dec. 771; City of Quincy v. Jones, 76 Ill. 240, 20 Am. Rep. 243. In exercising his rights over his land, the owner is bound to use ordinary care and skill for the purpose of avoiding injury to his neighbor. Thus, while, as a general rule, he is not bound to continue the support his land gives to a structure upon, or other artificial arrangement of, adjoining land, and is, therefore, not liable for the natural consequences of his withdrawing this support, yet in doing so, he must act with such care and caution that (as nearly as by reasonable exertion it is possible to secure such a result) his neighbor shall suffer no more injury than would have accrued if the struc- action of his neighbor in building ture had been put where it is with having had the support of his land.

The principle underlying this rule

"if a man in the exercise of his ow of property do damage to his neigh is liable if it might have been avo the use of reasonable care;" Cha Rankin, 22 Mo. 573, 66 Am. Dec. 642; worth Lodge v. Byers, 54 Kan. 323,

261. In the absence of a statutory r said that "the care required of a p excavating is that of a man of ordina

dence in the circumstances of the pa situation. . . The particular stances so largely shape and indicate duty that any attempt to reduce the greater certainty would probably impede rather than to promote the a tration of justice;" Larson v. Ry. Mo. 234, 19 S. W. 416, 16 L. R. A. Am. St. Rep. 439. It has been he prior notice to the neighbor whose p may be endangered by the excavation essential part of the ordinary care to; Schultz v. Byers, 53 N. J. L. 442, 514, 13 L. R. A. 569, 26 Am. St. Rep. this case there was so emphatic a that, standing alone, it could have considered sufficient authority for th osition. On this point it is said th who digs away land which affords to an adjoining house ought to g owner reasonable notice of his inter do so, and he must allow the latter sonable facilities for obtaining artific port, including a temporary privi shoring up the house by supports bas the former owner's land;" 2 Shearm. Neg., 4th ed. § 701. A text write "Thus the authorities are agreed the who proposes to excavate, or make o terations or improvements upon h land, which may endanger the land o of his neighbor, is bound to give the reasonable notice of what he prop do, to enable him to take the ne measures for the preservation of b property. But, after giving such no is bound only to reasonable and o care in the prosecution of the wo Thomp. Neg. 276. In many cases it that after notice from the owner w poses to excavate, it is the duty of his bor to shore up his own building: Sh Wilson, 44 Md. 268; Lasala v. Holb Paige (N. Y.) 169, 25 Am. Dec. 524; C. 725. And where a neighbor has n to support by grant or by prescription said that he must shore up his own Shrieve v. Stokes, 8 B. Monr. (Ky.) Am. Dec. 401; but there is no obliga the part of the owner of a building to be removed to shore up the other ings; Goddard, Easem., Bennett's

The owner of land cannot be depri his right to excavate his own land

the boundary line, and if he conduct | operations with due care, and no right rant or prescription has been acquired is neighbor, he is not liable, even though building of the latter be ruined; 3 B. & 871; City of Quincy v. Jones, 76 Ill. 237, am. Rep. 243; Greenleaf v. Francis, 18 . (Mass.) 117; Radeliff's Ex'rs v. Brook-4 N. Y. 201, 53 Am. Dec. 357.

the case of a party wall (q. v.) the joint ers of it have no easement of reciprosupport from each other's buildings, and ne proposes to remove the building, and ry to his neighbor is liable to result from e must notify him of his intention that nay look to his own protection, at the e time using reasonable care and preion to protect the neighbor, and if this is , and still injury results, no action will Clemens v. Speed, 93 Ky. 284, 19 S. W. 19 L. R. A. 240.

ith respect to a right by prescription the support of buildings, there is a rence between the tendency of judicial ion in England and the United States. the former country the tendency, "as e case of all rights affecting real estate, trongly in favor of the recognition of right as acquired by prescription;" L. App. Cas. 740; 19 Ch. Div. 281. See L. Cas. 503. The American doctrine, some fluctuation, is now considered ettled that an easement for the support building cannot be acquired by preotion; Sullivan v. Zeiner, 98 Cal. 346, 33 209, 20 L. R. A. 730; Handlan v. Mcus, 42 Mo. App. 551 (overruling Cassely v. Ames, 13 Mo. App. 575); Mitchell v. e, 49 Ga. 19, 15 Am. Rep. 669; Richart cott, 7 Watts (Pa.) 460, 32 Am. Dec. 779; stall v. Christian, 80 Va. 1, 56 Am. Rep. (overruling Stevenson v. Wallace, 27 t. [Va.] 77); Thurston v. Hancock, 12 s. 230, 7 Am. Dec. 57. See Sullivan v. er, 98 Cal. 346, 33 Pac. 209, 20 L. R. A. and note.

ne action for a wrong is not for the excaon; the land owner does not sustain damuntil there is an actual subsidence of soil; Kansas City N. W. R. Co. v. wake, 70 Kan. 141, 78 Pac. 431, 68 L. R. 73, 3 Ann. Cas. 118; 11 App. Cas. 127, re the question is exhaustively discussed. the same effect Schultz v. Bower, 57 n. 493, 59 N. W. 631, 47 Am. St. Rep. Smith v. City of Seattle, 18 Wash. 484, Pac. 1057, 63 Am. St. Rep. 910.

ne measure of damages in actions for oving the lateral support of another's is the amount required to restore the erty to its former condition with as l means of lateral support, and special ages must be specially pleaded; Stimv. Brown, 7 Houst. (Del.) 219, 30 Atl. by falling, caving, or washing, as the in the Lateran Church at Rome. Bouv .-- 118 natural result of the excavation; McGuire v. Grant, 25 N. J. L. 356, 67 Am. Dec. 49; Schultz v. Bower, 64 Minn. 123, 66 N. W. 139. See Moellering v. Evans, 121 Ind. 195, 22 N. E. 989, 6 L. R. A. 449.

The right of lateral support may be asserted as well against a municipal corporation's making excavations in changing the grade of a street as against private individuals; Stearns v. City of Richmond, 88 Va. 992, 14 S. E. 847, 29 Am. St. Rep. 758. But see Jencks v. Kenny, 19 N. Y. Supp. 243. where a city built a sewer in a public street opposite land, under which and the street was a stratum of silt and quicksand which flowed into the sewer trench so that a building on the land was damaged, the city was held liable; Cabot v. Kingman, 166 Mass. 403, 44 N. E. 344, 33 L. R. A. 45, three judges dissenting on the authority of 4 L. R. Exch. 244, in which it was held that there is no right of recovery for damages occasioned by the sinking in of land, and that this doctrine extended to a quicksand flowing so freely as to be raised by a pump. The damage to an adjoining owner caused by the construction of a sewer below the level of the foundation of his building was held to be damnum absque injuria, if the lot in its natural state would not have settled and where the owner knew there was danger to his building in time to prop and protect it; Johnson v. St. Louis, 172 Fed. 31, 96 C. C. A. 617, 18 Ann. Cas. 949; City of Plattsmouth v. Boeck, 32 Neb. 297, 49 N. W. 167; contra, Ladd v. Philadelphia, 171 Pa. 485, 33 Atl. 62.

No action lies where natural gas was abstracted; Hague v. Wheeler, 157 Pa. 324, 27 Atl. 714, 22 L. R. A. 141, 37 Am. St. Rep. 736; or petroleum; Kelley v. Oil Co., 57 Ohio St. 317, 49 N. E. 399, 39 L. R. A. 765, 63 Am. St. Rep. 721; or where defendant, in pumping brine from his own mine, pumped plaintiff's salt dissolved by water in plaintiff's mine; [1906] 2 K. B. 822; contra, of the withdrawal of pitch; [1899] A. C. 594 (in Trinidad).

Where a house is injured as an indirect effect of the improper working of mines, the right of action arises at the time the mischief is felt, and the statute of limitations runs from that time; 9 H. L. Cas. 503.

For a collection of cases depending on particular facts and illustrating the right of lateral support, see Graves v. Mattison, 67 Vt. 630, 32 Atl. 498.

In California it is made unlawful by statute for a land-owner to remove the lateral support of adjoining land without taking reasonable precautions to support it; Cal. Civ. Code § 832.

See, generally, 13 L. R. A. 569, note: EASEMENT; PRESCRIPTION.

LATERAN COUNCILS. or the diminution of the value of the name given to the numerous councils held

The first of these was convened A. D. 649 to consider the doctrine of the Monothelites. This council held five sessions, during which the writings of the leading advocates of the theory were examined and condemned, and all persons anathematized who did not confess their belief in the existence of both the divine and the human will in the person of Jesus Christ. The second of the councils, held in the years 1105, 1112, 1116, and 1123, settled the controversy between the spope and the emperor as to the investiture of bishops, prescribed the methods of ordinations and elections, by which, although the pope apparently made large concessions to the emperor, he was, in fact, able to practically control the elections, and passed additional decrees to enforce the celibacy of the clergy. The third council, convened in 1139, condemned the antipope and deposed all who received office under him and promulgated thirty canons of discipline among which were several against simony, marriage, and immorality among the clergy. The fourth council (1179) decreed that the election of the popes should be confined to the college of cardinals, two-thirds of the votes of which should be requisite for an election, instead of a majority, as had previously been necessary. It condemned the Albigenses and the Waldenses. The fifth council convened in the year 1215. It is usually called the fourth Lateran and was the most important as marking the summit of the Papal power. It decreed that the doctrine of transubstantiation be one of the articles of faith, required all persons who had reached the age of discretion to confess once a year, arranged for the place of assembly and the time for the next crusade, and anathematized all heretics whose belief was opposed to the faith, decreeing that after their condemnation they should be handed over to the secular authorities, excommunicating all who received, protected, or maintained them, and threatening all bishops with deposition who did not use their ut-most endeavors to clear their dioceses of them. The sixth council (1512-17) abolished the Pragmatic Sanction and substituted a concordat agreed upon by Leo X. and Francis I. in which the liberties of the Church were greatly restricted.

Some authorities recognize five only, omitting the first above stated and numbering the others from one to five.

LATHE, LATH (L. Lat. laestrum or leda. Law Fr. and Eng. Dict.). A division of certain counties in England, intermediate between a county or shire and a hundred. sometimes containing three or four hundreds. as in Kent and Sussex. Cowell. Sussex the word used for this division is rape. 1 Bla. Com. 116. There was formerly a lathe-reeve or bailiff in each lathe. Id. This division into lathes continues to the present day. In Ireland, the lathe was intermediate between the tything and the hundred. Spencer, Ireland. See T. L.

LATHREEVE, LEDGREEVE, or TRITH-IN-GREVE. An officer under the Saxon government who had authority over a lathe. Cowell. .

LATIFUNDIUM (Lat.). in Civil Law. Great or large possessions; a great or large field; a common. Ainsworth. A great estate made up of smaller ones (fundus), which began to be common in the latter times of the empires. Schmidt, Civ. Law, Introd. p. 17.

LATIFUNDUS. A possessor of a large estate made up of smaller ones. Du Cange. ants of a colony founded with the fu LATIN. The language of the anci See LANGUAGE; MAXIMS.

LATIN PHRASES. See MAXIMS.

LATIN UNION. A monetary allis France, Belgium, Switzerland, and It the establishment of a mutual and a monetary policy and the maintenan uniform and interchangeable coinage and silver based on the French Greece and Roumania joined the ass in April, 1867.

The convention was made at Paris, Dece 1865, and provided that certain named gold ver coins and no others should be used state, and that they should be received inte ably when not worn to one-half per cent. o vices effaced. Silver coins were made a lega between individuals of the state which issu to the sum of fifty francs; but the sta should receive them in any amount and th banks of each country to the sum of one The contracting governments agree deem the small coins in gold or five-fran pieces, when presented in sums of not le one hundred francs. It was agreed that coins of two francs and less there should issued more than six francs for each in the amount for each country being specified ing to the estimated population in 1855. I was made for any other nation to join the tion by accepting its obligations and adop monetary system of the union. The treaty ited to remain in force till January 1, 1880. January 30, 1874, a supplementary tremade, further limiting the coinage of 1874, same limitations were made for 1875 and the conference of 1877 the coinage of fi pieces was suspended except nine million for Italy. In 1873 Belgium passed a law to the coinage of silver entirely, and France same in 1876, and the law of Switzerland was same effect. Separate legislation to limit t age was permissible, as the treaty of 1865 on ed the maximum but did not make any obligatory.

In 1878 through a conference in Paris ti nations renewed the monetary treaty as it all that relates to fineness, weight, denon and currency of their gold and silver coin free coinage of gold (excepting five-franc p which the coinage was suspended) was gu each state, and the coinage of silver fi pieces was provisionally suspended to be only by unanimous agreement. This treaty force, by its terms, until January 1, 1886.

In November, 1885, France, Greece, Its Switzerland renewed the convention for fiv absolutely, with the further agreement th January 1, 1891, it should be subject to terr on one year's notice. Belgium after some he gave her assent. Silver coinage was made able and no addition to it permitted.

See, generally, Int. Cyc. tit. Latin Union. Another group of European nations actin joint monetary convention includes Sweden, and Denmark, which have had a known as the Scandinavian Monetary Con dated in 1873, for the mutual regulation coinage. In addition to the countries named longing to the Latin Union, Spain, Austr gary, Finland, Roumania, Servia, Bulgaria, an aco have also coined large amounts of ei both gold and silver into money of weight, and value exactly proportionate to or identic that of the countries included in the Latin

Co. 2 LATINER. An interpreter. 515

LATINI COLONIARII. The free in

LAUNCH

of a country upon which the jus lating ivilege of full Roman citizenship.

LATINI JUNIANI. Such freedmen as ened their liberty tuitione prætoris, and who, der the Lew Junia Norbana, were made ally free, their freedom, however, being y of the kind enjoyed by the latini colonii. They possessed only the jus commercii i not the jus connubii, and even in regard the former they were restricted, in that y had the commercium inter vivos, but the commercium mortis causa. They ld neither make a will nor take anyng under a will, and when a latinus ianus died, his property reverted to his ster as though he had remained a slave his life. The privilege of Roman citizenp conferred upon the latini coloniarii did include the latini juniani. See Sohm, m. L. § 22.

ATINS. See Jus Latil.

.ATITAT (Lat. he lies hid). w. See Bill of Middlesex.

.AUDARE. To advise or persuade; to itrate. Whart.

n Civil Law. To cite or quote; to name; show one's title or authority. Calv. Lex. Laudamentum. The finding or award of ury. 2 Bla. Com. 285.

.AUDATIO. Testimony delivered in court cerning an accused person's good behavior l integrity of life. It resembled the pracwhich prevails in our trials, of calling sons to speak to a prisoner's character. arton.

.AUDATOR. A witness to character. A son to decide some point at issue between ers.

AUDEMEO. In Spanish Law. Taxes d by possessors of land held by quit-rent emphyteusis to the owner of the estate en the tenant alienates his right in the perty. Escriche.

.AUDEMIUM (Lat. a laudando domino). Roman Law. A fiftieth part of the purse-money or (if no sale) of the value of estate paid to the landlord (dominus) a new emphyteuta on his succession to estate, not as heir, but as singular sucsor. Voetius, Com. ad Pand. lib. 6, tit. § 26-35; Mack. R. L. § 328. n Old English Law. The tenant paid a demium or acknowledgment-money to the v landlord on the death of the old. Callalso laudativum. See Blount, Acknowlment-Money.

AUDUM. Award or arbitrament. n Scotch Law. Judgment or sentence; ne or doom. 1 Pitc. Cr. Tr. pt. 2, p. 8.

AUGHE. Frank-pledge. 2 Reeves, Hist. g. L. 17.

LAUNCH. The movement by which a d been conferred. By the constitutio An | ship or boat descends from the shore into wana, Caracalla extended to them the the water when she is first built, or afterwards.

> A'vessel already in the water cannot be launched; Homer v. The Lady of the Ocean, 70 Me. 352.

> A large, long, low, flat-bottomed boat. Mar. Dict. The long boat of a ship. R. H. Dana. A small vessel employed to carry the cargo of a large one to and from the shore. The goods on board of a launch are at the risk of the insurers till landed; Osacar v. Ins. Co., 5 Mart. N. S. (La.) 387. The duties and rights of the master of a launch are the same as those of the master of a

> When the master of a vessel agreed to take cotton on board his vessel from the cottonpress, and employed a steam-lighter for that purpose, and the cotton was lost by an explosion of the steam-boiler of the lighter, it was held that his vessel was liable in rem for the loss; 23 Bost. L. Rep. 277.

> LAUREATE, or LAUREAT. An officer of the English sovereign. His duty formerly consisted only in composing an ode annually, on the sovereign's birthday, and on the New Year; sometimes also, though rarely, on occasions of any remarkable victory. The annual birthday ode has been discontinued since the conclusion of the reign of George III. The title has been said to be derived from the circumstance that in classical times and in the middle ages, the most distinguished poets were solemnly crowned with laurel. Out of this association of ideas sprang the custom of the presentation of a laurel wreath to graduates in rhetoric and versification at the English universities, the king's laureate simply meaning a rhetorician in his service. In allusion to this custom Selden, in his Titles of Honor, speaks of the laurel crown as an ensign of the degree of mastership in poetry. A relic of the old university practice of crowning distinguished students of poetry exists in the term "laureation," which is still used at one of the Scotch universities (St. Andrews), to signify the taking of the degree of Master of Arts.

> LAUREL. An English gold coin worth twenty shillings, or about five dollars, coined in 1619 by James I., so-called because the head of the king was wreathed with laurel, and not crowned as on English coins.

> LAW. That which is laid down; that which is established. A rule or method of action, or order of sequences.

> The rules and methods by which society compels or restrains the action of its mem-

> The aggregate of those rules and principles of conduct which the governing power in a community recognizes as those which it will enforce or sanction, and according to which it will regulate, limit, or protect the tific and in the jural sense." Terry, Anglo-conduct of its members.

1. This author continues that "the former conduct of its members.

LAW

The aggregate of rules set by men as politically superior or sovereign, to men as politically subject. Aust. Jur., Campbell's ed. 86.

A rule of civil conduct prescribed by the supreme power in the state, commanding what is right and prohibiting what is wrong. 1 Bla. Com. 44.

A rule of civil conduct prescribed by the supreme power in a state. 1 Steph. Com. 25.

The general body of rules which are addressed by the rulers of a political community to the members of that society, and which are generally obeyed. Markby, Elements of Law 3.

A general rule of human action, taking cognizance of external acts only, enforced by a definite authority, which authority is human, and among human authorities is that which is paramount in a political society. More briefly, a general rule of external human action enforced by a sovereign political authority. Holland, Jur. 4th ed. 36.

All other rules for the guidance of human action are called laws merely by analogy; and any propositions which are not rules for human action are called laws by metaphor

A rule or enactment promulgated by the legislative authority of a state; a longestablished local custom which has the force of such an enactment. Swift v. Tyson, 16 Pet. (U. S.) 18, 10 L. Ed. 865.

"Law is a statement of the circumstances in which the public force will be brought to bear upon men through the courts." American Banana Co. v. Fruit Co., 213 U. S. 356, 29 Sup. Ct. 511, 53 L. Ed. 826, 16 Ann. Cas. 1047, per Holmes, J.

"On the whole the safest definition of law in the lawyer's sense seems to be a rule of conduct binding on members of a commonwealth as such." Sir F. Pollock in First Book of Jurispr. 29.

Perhaps a few terms whose use requires equal precision serve in so many diverse meanings as the term law. In its root it signifies that which is laid down; that which is established. "In the largest sense," says Montesquieu (Esprit des Lois, b. 1, ch. 1), "laws are the necessary relations which arise from the nature of things; and, in this sense, all beings have their laws, God has his laws, the material universe has its laws, intelligences superior to man have their laws, animals have their laws, man has his laws. In this sense, the idea of a command proceeding from a superior to an inferior is not necessarily involved in the term law. It is frequentby thus used to denote simply a statement of a con-stant relation of phenomena. The laws of science, thus, are but generalized statements of observed facts." "It is a perversion of language," says Palsays Paley, "to assign any law as the efficient operative cause of anything. A law presupposes an agent: this is only the mode according to which an agent

It has been said that "the one idea that is common to all meanings of the word law is that of order or regularity in the happening of events. Starting from this, the meanings divide into two groups statu which may be distinguished as law in the scien-like.

to contain no elements in addition to the one mentioned. A scientific law can be expressed mere formula," but law in the jural sense is the further ideas that the regularity manife the result of an act or omission of a rational produced by an attempt to conform his consome standard or ideal more or less clearl ceived. The result of this process is the ev in any community of individuals of common ciples of action, which as soon as reason tak nizance of them become laws in the most g jural sense of the word. With the advance o ization new elements come into being: (1) T of force is added to that of order and is app compel obedience, or, going one step furt change, modify, or add to these rules of (2) The primitive law becomes differentiate other bodies of rules with which it is at fir founded, so that in the end what is termed the stricter sense may conflict with other rece principles of action which are termed laws more general sense, as the natural or the law: Id.

For additional definitions and discu thereon, see 14 L. Q. R. 253 (Sir F. Pol id. 307; 18 id. 431 (O. W. Holmes, Jr.); 321; 38 Amer. L. Rev. 68; Dillon, Lav Jurisd. 10. As to the meanings of the rious equivalents of law in differen guages, see 15 L. Q. R. 367 (by Sali As to the relation of law to judicial dec see 21 Harv. L. Rev. 121.

In its relation to human affairs th a broad use of the term, in which it d any of those rules and methods by wi society compels or restrains the action members. Here the idea of a comma more generally obvious, and has usually thought an essential element in the of human law.

A distinction is to be observed in th set between the abstract and the co meaning of the word. That which is u intended by the term "laws" is not co sive with that which is intended by the "law." In the broadest sense which it when used in the abstract, law is a se It treats of the theory of governmen relation of states to each other and dividuals, and the rights and obligation states, of individuals, and of artificia sons and local communities among selves and to each other.

An analysis of the science of law presents first, of the rights of persons, distinguishing as natural persons and artificial persons, or politic or corporations. These rights are either absolute, as relating to the enjoym personal security, liberty, and of private pr or, on the other hand, as relative,—that is, out of the relation in which several persons These relations are either (1) public or poviz.: the relation of magistrates and people (2) private, as the relations of master and ant, husband and wife, parent and child, gu and ward, to which might be added relations out of private contracts, such as partnership cipal and agent, and the like. Under the h the rights of persons as arising out of publations may be discussed the constitution and of the state, the distribution of powers amo various departments of the government, the p status of individuals, as aliens, ditisens, as In the second place, the analysis presents the rights of property, which is divided into personal property or chattels, viz., that which is movable, and real property, or that which is immovable, viz., lands, including nearly all degrees of interest therein, as well as such chattels as by a peculiar consection with land may be deemed to have lost their character as legally movable: these rights of property are viewed in respect to the origin of title, the transmission of title, and the protection of the enjoyment thereof.

In the third place, the analysis presents a view of private wrongs, or those injuries to persons for which the law provides a redress for the aggrieved party; and under this head may be considered the tribunals through which the protection of rights or the redress of wrongs may be obtained, and the various modes of procedure to those ends.

Lastly, the analysis presents a view of public wrongs, or crimes and misdemeanors, in which may be considered the theory of crime and punishment, the persons capable of committing crimes, the several degrees of guilt of principals and accessaries, the various crimes of which the law takes cognizance.—as, those against religion, those against persons and property,—with the punishment which the law affixes to each, and also the tribunals and procedure by which crimes threatened may be prevented, and crimes committed may be punished. Bla. Com.

In a stricter sense, but still in the abstract, law denotes the aggregate of those rules and principles of conduct which the governing power in a community recognizes as those which it will enforce or sanction, and according to which it will regulate, limit, or protect the conduct of members of the community.

It is the aggregate of legal rules and principles, as distinguished from any particular rule or principle. No one statute, nor all statutes, constitute the law of the state; the principles laid down by the courts and the regulations of municipal bodies, as well as, to some extent, the universal principles of ethics, go to make up the body of the law. It includes principles, which rest in the common sense of justice and right, as well as positive rules or regulations, which rest in ordinance. It is the aggregate of the rules or principles only which the governing power in the community recognizes, because that power, whether it be deemed as residing in a monarch, an aristocracy, or in the people at large, is the source of the authority and the sanction of those rules and principles. It is the aggregate of those rules and principles which are recognized as the law by that power, rather than those which are actually enforced in all cases; for a statute is none the less a law because the community forbear to enforce it, so long as it is officially recognized by them as that which, in theory at least, should be enforced; nor does a departure from the law by the governing power in itself abrogate the law. It comprises not only those rules and principles which are to be enforced, but also those which are simply permissive; for a very large part even of modern statute-law-which is commonly defined as a rule commanding or prohibiting -in reality neither commands nor prohibits, except in the most distant and indirect sense, but simply authorizes, permits, or sanctions; and this is much more generally true of those principles of the law which rest in custom and the adjudications of the courts. It is only those which relate to the members of the community in question; for laws, as such, have no extra-territorial operation.

The state has in general two, and only two, articulate organs for law-making purposesthe legislature and the tribunals. The first organ makes new law; the second attests and confirms old law, though under cover of doing so it introduces many new principles. "The statute law is the Holland, Jur. 65. fruit of the conscious power of society, while the unwritten and customary law is the product of its unconscious effort. The former is indeed to a certain extent a creative work; but, as we have already seen, the condition of its efficacy is that it must limit itself to the office of aiding and supplementing the unconscious development of the unwritten law." Address of James C. Carter, Rep. (1890) Am. Bar Ass'n. 236.

The earliest notion of law was not an enunciation of a principle but a judgment in a particular case. When pronounced in the early ages, by a king, it was assumed to be the result of direct divine inspiration. Afterwards came the notion of a custom which a judgment affirms or punishes its breach. In the outset, however, the only authoritative statement of right and wrong is a judicial sentence rendered after the fact has occurred. It does not presuppose a law to have been violated, but is enacted for the first time by a higher form into the judge's mind at the moment of adjudication. Maine, Anc. Law (Dwight's ed.) pp. xv, 5. See Prece-DENT. As to Primitive Notions of Law, see 10 Am. L. Rev. 422.

The idea of law has commonly been analyzed as composed of three elements: (1) a command of the lawgiver, which command must prescribe not a single act merely, but a series or class of acts; (2) an obligation imposed thereby on the citizen; (3) a sanction threatened in the event of disobedience; Benth. Frag. on Gov.; Austin, Prov. Jur.; Maine, Anc. Law. Hamilton declared a sanction essential to the idea of law. Federalist, No. 15.

The latter clause of Blackstone's definition, supra, has been much criticised. Mr. Chitty modifies it to "commanding what shall be done or what shall not be done"; 1 Chitty's Bla. Com. 44, note; and Mr. Stephen omits it in his definition. See supra. As to Law and Command, see 1 Law Mag. & Rev. N. S. 189.

These definitions, though more apt in reference to statutes and edicts than to the law in general, seem, even in reference to the former sort of law, to look rather at the usual form than the invariable essence of the thing. The principle of law, that a promise without a consideration is void, neither commands men to provide a consideration for every promise nor forbids them to promise, without consideration, for this is lawful; nor does it forbid them to fulfill such promises. It simply amounts ! to this, that if men choose to break such promises, society will not interfere to enforce them. even many statutes have no form of a command or prohibition; and, moreover, some that are such in form are not in reality. An enactment that no action shall be brought on a simple contract after the lapse of six years from the time the cause of action accrued cannot aptly be said to command men to bring actions within six years, nor even, in fact, to forbid them to bring such actions after that time; for it is still lawful to sue on an outlawed demand, and, if the defendant do not object, the plaintiff may succeed. It may be deemed a com-mand in so far as it is a direction to the court to dismiss such actions; but as a rule of civil conduct it amounts simply to this, that when an obligation has become stale to a certain degree, society will justify the debtor in repudiating it.

A work on legal history disclaims philosophical analysis and definition of law, as belonging neither to the historical nor to the dogmatic science of law, but to the theoretical part of politics. Legal science is said to be "not an ideal or ethical result of political analysis; it is the actual result of facts of human nature and history." Accordingly, "law may be taken for every purpose save that of strictly philosophical inquiry to be the sum of the rules administered by courts of justice." When, therefore, man is acquainted with the rules which the judges of the land will apply to any subject of dispute between citizens or to any act complained of as against the common weal, and is further acquainted with the manner in which the decisions of the common court can be enforced, he must be said to know the law to that extent." It is not necessary that he should "have opinions on the metaphysical analysis of laws or legal duty in general, or the place of the topic in hand in a scientific arrangement of legal ideas." 1 Poll. & Maitl.

The difficulty of defining law is nowhere more clearly shown than in a work on English and American law, in which the leading definitions are enumerated and criticised. It is truly said that the expression "our law," adopted by the author, does not mean moral law, although rules regulating civil conduct may "be imported by the tribunals when necessary for the purposes of the actual decision of causes, from the field of morality," when they become invested with the quality of law to the extent that they are recognized and enforced by the judges. The author referred to agrees with Mr. Justice Markby (Elem. of Law § 12) that no greater service was rendered by Austin than the definition of the boundaries of jurisprudence which separate it from ethics or morality. This separation was too much overlooked by continental jurists, with the result, particularly in Germany, of merging "the scientific treatment of law in the larger region of ethical inquiry." (Amos, Science of Law ch. i., ii., iii.) Nor does the law include the science of politics or government, which falls "within the domain of the statesman or legislator" (see al- unconscious creation of society or a g so Pollock, Hist. Science of Politics law and legislation are not synonymou latter is the usual and effective instr for changing and amending the form making additions to it. Leaving behin what the law is not and pausing befo dertaking to define what it is, the auti marks, "It requires a bolder man tha propound a definition of the law of th which is both comprehensive and acc He criticises the definitions of Black Markby, and Austin (supra) as being fective in that the words "prescribed," mand," "addressed," "set," would requ elasticity not consonant with their gen These definitions a appropriate use. and accurate as describing the order enacted law of a state, but would e a large body of what is, unquestionabl He adopts Holland's as sufficiently ac for his purpose, "although with a con sense of its inadequacy." It answe purpose because "law, as the lawyer deal with it, is concerned only with gal rights . . . coercion by the s the essential quality of the law, disting it from morality or ethics." The sion is, "If you ask me to define law, speaking as a lawyer, do no better t adopt Professor Holland's definition a given. If you ask me to enumerate ultimate sources whence legal right duties originate and how these are evo hide my diminished head and confess ability to satisfactorily formulate a swer." Dillon, Laws and Jur. Lect. I

This emphatic statement gathers force when the thoroughness of the a research, as shown by his notes, is co ed. Among them is found a reference elaborate and learned examination subject by Professor Clark, who devot teen chapters each to "The Definition Origin of Law" and "The Form of Law" his "Practical Jurisprudence: A Comm Austin." See, as to a definition of law Q. R. 228.

This criticism of the most frequently ed definitions leads naturally up to a ence to the clear and forcible views of C. Carter in his address upon The Ide The Actual in the Law (Amer. Bar 1890). Reference has already been m another address of Mr. Carter in the ti ternational Law (q. v.), to which subject of what is here said is particularly a ble. Concluding his discussion of the s of law generally, he thus states the re his argument against the conception of tin: "Law is not a body of commands ed upon society from without, either individual sovereign or superior, or by ereign body constituted by representat society itself. It exists at all times of the elements of society springing d from habit and custom. It is, therefo

For the most part it needs no interpreter or vindicator. The members of society are familiar with its customs and follow them, and in following custom they follow the law. It is only for the exceptional instances that judicial tribunals or legislative enactments are needed. In those cases where the customs are doubtful or conflicting, the expert is needed to ascertain or reconcile them, and hence the origin of the judicial establishment. . . New customs, new modes of dealing, must be contrived to meet new exigencies, and society by the unconscious exercise of its ordinary forces proceeds to furnish itself with them. But this is a gradual and slow process attended with difficulty and loss. Another agency is needed to supplement and assist the work of society, and legislation springs into existence to supply the want." Rep. Am. Bar Ass'n (1890) 217.

Referring to the customs of the community as the sole basis of law, James C. Carter says: "The judge permits no witness to be called to enlighten him as to what custom is (I do not speak of particular customs). He is required to take judicial notice of it; but the word judicial might be omitted; for every one in the ordinary business of life is required to take the same notice at his peril." Law, Its Origin, etc., 79.

It has been very truly said that much of the obscurity involving the origin of law and the mutual relations and proportions of customary, statute, and case law is caused by ambiguous uses of the term source. It is employed (1) to indicate whence we obtain our knowledge of the law; (2) the mode in which or the person through whom have teen formulated rules which have acquired the force of law; (3) the authority which gives them that force. The last two uses are most frequently confused. Recognition by the state is the sole source of laws in the sense of that which impresses upon them their legal character. Their sources, in the sense of the causes to which they owe their existence as rules, are thus classified: (1) usage which becomes law at the moment at which it receives the imprimatur of the state; (2) religion, the influence of which cannot be left out of account in studying the development of any secular system of law; (3) adjudication, whatever theory be accepted as to its nature as a source of law; (4) scientific discussion; (5) equity, as particularly exemplified in the administrations of law by the Roman prætor and the English chancellor; (6) legislation, whether by the supreme power of the state or by subordinate authorities exercising a delegated function. Holland, Jur. ch. 5.

When used in the concrete, the term law usually has reference to statutes or expressions of the legislative will. "The laws of a state," observes Mr. Justice Story, "are more usually understood to mean the rules and enactments promulgated by the legislative authority thereof, or long-established local customs having the force of laws." Swift v. Tyson, 16 Pet. (U. S.) 18, 10 L. Ed. 865. Hence, he argues, "in the ordinary use of language it will hardly be contended that the decisions of courts constitute laws." In the Civil Code of Louisiana they are defined to be "a solemn expression of legislative will. It orders, permits and forbids. It announces rewards and punishments."

The constitution of a state is a law of the state, within the meaning of the United States constitution; Bier v. McGehee, 148 U. S. 137, 13 Sup. Ct. 580, 37 L. Ed. 397; but a municipal ordinance is not; Hamilton Gas Light & Coke Co. v. Hamilton, 146 U. S. 258, 13 Sup. Ct. 90, 36 L. Ed. 963.

But, as has already been said "law" in the abstract involves much more. Thus, a reference in a statute to "the cases provided by law" includes not only those cases provided by former statutes, but also those contemplated by the common or unwritten law; Chamberlain v. Beller, 18 N. Y. 115.

Law is, to a certain extent, a progressive science and must recognize changes in methods of procedure and of the protection of individuals or classes; Holden v. Hardy, 169 U. S. 366, 18 Sup. Ct. 383, 42 L. Ed. 780 (Brown, J.).

"Law should follow business;' it should not divert or anticipate the course of business, except for most urgent reasons." (This remark is said by Mr. Bigelow in his Bills, Notes and Cheques, 2nd Ed. p. 7, to have been made to him by Lord Bowen in a conversation concerning the judgment of the Court of Appeal in Mogul Steamship Co. v. McGregor, 23 Q. B. D. 612, affirmed in [1892] A. C. 25).

"It is one of the distinguished characteristics of the English race, whose political habit has been transmitted to it through the sagacious generation by whom this government was erected, that they have never felt themselves bound by the logic of laws, but only a practical understanding of them based upon slow precedent. For this race, the law under which they live is at any particular time what it is then understood to be, and this understanding of it is compounded of the circumstances of the time. Absolute theories of legal consequence they have never cared to follow out to their conclusions. Their laws have always been used as parts of the practical running machinery of their politics-parts to be fitted from time to time, by interpretation, to existing opinion and social condition." Woodrow Wilson, in The State.

"Generalities, . . . which with reference to so many cases are founded in truth, sometimes come to be taken, by frequent repetition, as axioms, behind which, as a bulwark, we seldom in any case look." McNairy v. Eastland, 10 Yerg. (Tenn.) 310.

"And I am tempted to take this opportunity of observing that a large portion of that legal opinion which has passed current for law falls within the description of 'law taken for granted.' If a statistical table of legal propositions should be drawn out, and the first column headed, 'Law by Statute,' and the second, 'Law by Decision,' a third column, under the heading of 'Law Taken for Granted,' would comprise as much matter as both the others combined. But when, in pursuit of truth, we are obliged to investigate the grounds of the law, it is plain and has often been proved by recent experience that the mere statement and re-statement of a doctrine—the mere repetition of the cautilena of lawyers—cannot make it law, unless it can be traced to some competent authority, and if it be irreconcilable to some clear legal principle." Lord Denman, in 11 Cl. & F. 372.

The law of the land, an expression used in Magna Carta and adopted in most of the earlier constitutions of the original states, means, however, something more than the legislative will; it requires the due and orderly proceeding of justice according to the established methods. See Jones v. Robbins, 8 Gray (Mass.) 329; Due Process of Law.

When the term law is used to denote enactments of the legislative power, it is frequently confined, especially by English writers, to permanent rules of civil conduct, as distinguished from other acts, such as a divorce act, an appropriation bill, an estates act. Report of Eng. Stat. L. Com., March 1856.

In the United States, the organic law of a state is termed the constitution, and the term "laws" generally designates statutes or legislative enactments, in contradistinction to the constitution. See STATUTES.

Law, as distinguished from equity, denotes the doctrines and procedure of the common law of England and America, from which equity is a departure. As to where separate courts of law and equity are maintained, see Equity.

Law is also used in contradistinction to fact. Questions of law are, in general, for the decision of the court; while it is for the jury to pass upon questions of fact. See Jury; Judicial Power.

In respect to the ground of the authority of law, it is divided as natural law or the law of nature or of God, and positive law.

The classification and arrangement of the law is a subject as to which the lack of systematic discussion is in striking contrast to the measureless volume of treatises upon particular legal topics. The extent to which the latter overlap each other, and thus add to the labor of the patient investigator of any given title, has been frequently suggested, but there is to be found in legal literature little more than the merest recognition of the necessity of a remedy.

The familiar analysis based on the rangement of Blackstone's Commentaria mains after the lapse of more than a tury without the recognition of a substantial warrants the omission of its substrom the place heretofore assigned to this title, inadequate as it is.

Like the classification of Blackston much suggestive interest, but inadequal modern purposes, is Sir Matthew Hale' alysis of the Law, a posthumous tracquently bound with the History of the mon Law.

The subject of classification forms a part of the able work on jurispruden-Professor Holland, but it is there dealt in sections, and without any attempt to sent as a whole a comprehensive and The work does fu or classification. most valuable material to be used in m Of value for similar use will be one. Digby's Introduction to the History o Law of Real Property, appendix to Pa with tables; papers by O. W. Holmes 5 Am. L. Rev. 1; 7 id. 46; Hammond's F stone, notes on Book I. Ch. I., and Intr tion to Sandars' Justinian. See also an cle by Sir Frederick Pollock, "Divisio Law," 8 Harv. L. Rev. 188, in which he tends that "it is not possible to make clear-cut division of the subject-matt legal rules." He discusses some of the obvious general divisions of the law, by view as to a complete classification is "Ambitious writers have expressed: times gone to work as if it were possireduce the whole contents of a legal s to a sort of classified catalogue where would be no repetition or cross refere and the classification would explain Ambition on that scale is destined to pointment by the nature of things." subject was brought to the attention of American Bar Association in 1888 by a of Professor Henry T. Terry, which is ed in the annual report of 1889, p. 32 committee was appointed, and made a r in 1891, which discussed with much a the importance of the subject and the culty of its practical accomplishment. conclusion reached was that a classific could only be successfully attempted respect to one legal system, and that it be made in harmony with the spirit of law as it grows and in the light of history. The objects are, first, arrange to enable the mind to comprehend the la a whole; second, the cataloguing of t to the end that authorities may be coll under a well recognized title of each p pal topic of the law. The two method not consistent, one being required for jurist and the scholar and the other fo judge and the lawyer. Both, therefore needed, but the last is of more genera portance. The committee reported a t ving the other for a further report, which s not yet been made. Rept. Am. Bar Ass'n 391) 379-402. In 1896, the subject was ived, and a brief report expressed the bethat it was possible "to determine more initely the sphere of each of the ordinary ics of the law and determine where each ject may be looked for." Rept. Am. Bar 'n (1896) 405.

Irbitrary law. A law or provision of law far removed from consideration of abact justice that it is necessarily founded the mere will of the law-making power, that it is rather a rule established than a nciple declared. The principle that an ancy shall be twenty-one years, not twennor twenty-two, is arbitrary.

he term is also sometimes used to sigy an unreasonable law,-one that is in lation of justice.

rrevocable laws. All laws which have in their nature or in their language some it or termination provided are, in theory, petual: but the perpetuity is liable to be eated by subsequent abrogation. It has netimes been attempted to secure an absoe perpetuity by an express provision fording any abrogation. But it may well be stioned whether one generation has powto bind their posterity by an irrevocable . See this subject discussed by Bentham, rks, vol. 2, 402-407; and see Dwarris, t. 479.

funicipal law is a system of law proper any single state, nation, or community. MUNICIPAL LAW.

penal law is one which inflicts a penalty its violation.

Positive law is the system naturally eslished by a community, in distinction m natural law. See Positive Law.

Private law is a term used to indicate a tute which relates to private matters ich do not concern the public at large.

prospective law or statute is one which olies only to cases arising after its enactnt, and does not affect that which is aldy past.

public law is one which affects the pubeither generally or in some classes.

retrospective law or statute is one that ns backward to alter that which is past to affect men in relation to their conduct ore its enactment. These are also called roactive laws. In general, whenever a reactive statute would take away vested hts or impair the obligation of contracts, s in so far void, because opposed to the stitution of the United States; Calder v. ll, 3 Dall. (U. S.) 391, 1 L. Ed. 648. But s which only vary the remedies, or merecure a defect in proceedings otherwise r, are valid; Underwood v. Lilly, 10 S. & e classification under the first head only, R. (Pa.) 102; Wilkinson v. Leland, 2 Pet. (U. S.) 627, 7 L. Ed. 542; Charles River Bridge v. Warren Bridge, 11 Pet. (U. S.) 420, 9 L. Ed. 773.

> As used in the 5th amendment to the constitution, it embraces all legal and equitable rules defining human rights and duties, and providing for their enforcement; not only as between man and man, but also between the state and its citizens; Jenkins v. Ballantyne, 8 Utah 245, 30 Pac. 760, 16 L. R. A. 689.

There is said to be a theory that the law on any question is always fixed and that it is not changed when a former case is overruled by a later case; Hood v. Society to Protect Children, 221 Pa. 474, 70 Atl. 845; ant shall not be bound by his contract is the reversal of a rule of law does not change arbitrary; but the rule that the limit of the law; the earlier court was mistaken; Ray v. Gas Co., 138 Pa. 590, 20 Atl. 1065, 12 L. R. A. 290, 21 Am. St. Rep. 922.

> The doctrines and procedure of the common law of England and America, as distinguished from those of equity.

> An oath. So used in the old English practice, by which wager of law was allowed. See WAGER OF LAW.

> LAW AGENTS. In Scotch Law. Solicitors whose qualifications are provided for by 36 and 37 Vict. and several acts of sederunt

> LAW AND ORDER SOCIETIES. ties formed for the preservation of the public health and morals and the prosecution of those who offend against them.

> LAW-BURROWS. LAW BORGH. Scotch Law. Security for the peaceful behavior of a party; security to keep the peace. This process was much resorted to by the government of Charles II. for political purposes.

> LAW CHARGES. Costs incurred in court in the prosecution of a suit, to be paid by the party cast. Rousseau v. His Creditors, 17 La. 206; Barkley v. His Creditors, 11 Rob. (La.) 28. See Morse v. Williamson's Syndics, 3 Mart. O. S. (La.) 282.

> LAW COURT OF APPEALS. An appellate tribunal, formerly existing in South Carolina, for hearing appeals from the courts of > LAW DAY. The day fixed in a mortgage or defeasible deed for the payment of the debt secured. Lanier v. Driver, 24 Ala. 149. This does not occur now until foreclosure, and the use of the term is confusing; Kortright v. Cady, 21 N. Y. 343, 78 Am. Dec. 145.

> in Old English Law. A leet or sheriff's tourn. Termes de la Ley. Law day or lage day denoted a day of open court; especially the more solemn courts of a county or hundred. The court-leet, or view of frankpledge.

LAW FRENCH. See LANGUAGE.

1882

LAW LATIN. See LANGUAGE.

LAW LIBRARY. A collection of books, manuscripts, pamphlets, etc., relating to legal subjects. Under a bequest of "Law Library and books of antiquity," Dugdale's Monasticon, Domesday Book, and State Trials were held to pass. 4 L. J. O. S. Ch. 74.

LAW LIST. An annual publication of a quasi-official character in England, comprising various statistics of interest in connection with the legal profession. The current law list is prima facie evidence that the persons therein named as solicitors or certified conveyancers are such. 23 & 24 Vict. c. 127.

LAW LORDS. In English Law. Peers who have held high judicial office, or have been distinguished in the legal profession. Moz. & W.

LAW MARTIAL. See MILITARY LAW.

LAW MERCHANT. The general body of commercial usages in matters relative to Blackstone calls it the custom of merchants, and ranks it under the head of the particular customs of England, which go to make up the great body of the common law. 1 Bla. Com. 75. Since, however, its character is not local, nor its obligation confined to a particular district, it cannot with propriety be considered as a custom in the technical sense; 1 Steph. Com. 54. is a system of law which does not rest exclusively on the positive institutions and local customs of any particular country, but consists of certain principles of equity and usages of trade which general convenience and a common sense of justice have established, to regulate the dealings of merchants and mariners in all the commercial countries of the civilized world. 3 Kent 2.

These usages, being general and extensive, partake of the character of rules and principles of law, not of matters of fact, as do usages which are local or special. They constitute a part of the general law of the land, and, being a part of that law, their existence cannot be proved by witnesses, but the judges are bound to take notice of them ex officio; Winch. 24; and this application is not confined to merchants, but extends to all persons concerned in any mercantile transaction.

In the Middle Ages "the custom of merchants" meant the actual usage of the European commercial world. When it came before the ordinary tribunals, it had to be proved; but in the 18th century the courts took judicial notice of it. The development of the law merchant as part of the common law has continued without ceasing. Evidence of living general usage is still admissible to add new incidents to its contents, provided they do not contradict any rule already received. Pollock, First Book of Jurispr. 282, citing, as to the last statement, L. R. 10 Ex. 337.

Many of the rules of the law merchan have come into the English law throug the Courts of Chancery. Burdick, Law Merchant, in 3 Sel. Essays in Anglo-Amer. I H. 50.

See Beawes, Lex Mercatoria Rediviva Caines, Lex Mercatoria Americana; Comyni Dig. Merchant (D); Chitty, Com. Law; Par dessus, Droit Commercial; Collection de Lois maritimes antérieure au dix-huitièm Siècle, par Dupin; Capmany, Costumbre Maritimas; Il Consolato del Mare; Us e Coutumes de la Mer; Piantandia, Della Giu risprudenze Maritima Commerciale, Antica Moderna; Valin, Commentaire sur l'Ordon nance de la Marine, du mois d'Août, 1681 Boulay-Paty, Droit Comm.; Boucher, Inst. tutions au Droit Maritime; Parsons, Mari Law; Smith, Merc. Law; Law Merchant, b Mitchell; Pollock, Expr. of C. L. 117; Earl History of Law Merchant in England, in 1 L. Q. R. 232; id. 56; also, Burdick, Lav Merchant, in 3 Sel. Essays in Anglo-Amer Leg. Hist. 35; Holdsworth, in 1 id. 289.

LAW OF ARMS. Ordinances which regulated proclamations of war, leagues, treaties etc. Cowell.

LAW OF THE CASE. Propositions of law once decided by an appellate court are not open to reconsideration in that court upon a subsequent appeal or writ of error Brown v. Zinc Co., 179 Fed. 309, 102 C. C. A. 497 (C. C. A. 8th Circ.); Illinois v. R. Co. 184 U. S. 77, 22 Sup. Ct. 300, 46 L. Ed. 440 but this is only where the facts are the sam as before; Barney v. R. Co., 117 U. S. 228 6 Sup. Ct. 654, 29 L. Ed. 858.

A ruling of an appellate court may be modified or overruled in another case, but not in a second appeal in the same case. It becomes the law of the case and is a "fina adjudication," from the consequences of which the court cannot depart or the parties relieve themselves; Dye v. Crary, 13 N. Mex. 439, 85 Pac. 1038, 9 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1136

The determination of a legal question made upon reversing an order granting preliminary injunction, becomes the law of the case; Western Union Telegraph Co. v. City of Toledo, 121 Fed. 734, 58 C. C. A. 1 (C. C. A. 6th Circ.).

Where an erroneous ruling has been at firmed on appeal, the probate court cannot in a subsequent accounting on the same fund, correct the error; the ruling of the appellate court becomes the "law of the case"; In re Lafferty's Estate, 230 Pm. 496 79 Atl. 711; but a probate court may, where there has been no appeal, change its ruling when adjudicating upon a different fund in the same estate; Kellerman's Estate, 2 Pa. Dist. R. 521.

A change by the supreme court of i.s ruling on a question of law and fact will no sustain a bill of review in another case de led before the change was made; Tilghin v. Werk, 39 Fed. 680.

Where there was a reversal on an appeal d a new trial, the trial court erred in folving an intervening decision of the highest art inconsistent with the ruling of the rersing court; District of Columbia v. Brew-(C. C. A. Dist. Col.) 37 Wash. L. Rep. 65. A previous ruling by an appellate court in case is a final adjudication, from the conquences of which the court cannot depart r the parties relieve themselves; Phelan v. n Francisco, 20 Cal. 45; even though the art was of the opinion that the ruling was oneous; Dewey v. Gray, 2 Cal. 377; and en where the ruling was based upon the ling of a statute which the court afterrds held had already been repealed; Board Com'rs of Tipton County v. R. Co., 89 d. 101. The doctrine applies especially to second appeal in the same case, in which se the law applied in the former decision binding on the appellate court; Henning Eldridge, 146 Ill. 305, 33 N. E. 754; Stacy R. Co., 32 Vt. 552.

An actual decision of any question settles a law in respect thereto for further action the case; Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Hill, B U. S. 551, 24 Sup. Ct. 538, 48 L. Ed. 788. The second appeal of a case to the circuit art of appeals, after a reversal of its form decision by the supreme court, the form decision constitutes the law of the case all points which have not been criticised reversed by the supreme court; Mutual le Ins. Co. v. Hill, 118 Fed. 708, 55 C. C. 536.

The phrase, "law of the case," expresses ly the practice of courts generally to rese to re-open what has been decided, and t a limit to their power; Remington v. Co., 198 U. S. 95, 99, 100, 25 Sup. Ct. 577, L. Ed. 959. There is nothing in the contution of the United States to require it; to prevent a state from allowing past acn to be modified while a case remains in irt; San Francisco v. Itsell, 133 U. S. 65, Sup. Ct. 241, 33 L. Ed. 570; Northern Pac. Co. v. Ellis, 144 U. S. 458, 12 Sup. Ct. 724, L. Ed. 504. The doctrine appears to have en somewhat modified in Messinger v. Anrson, 225 U. S. 436, 32 Sup. Ct. 739, 56 L. . 1152, where it was said that the law of e case, as applied to the effect of previous lers on the later action of the court in the ne case, merely expresses the practice of irts generally to refuse to open what has en decided. The court held that, where a cuit court of appeals has before it in the ond trial of the same case a will previsly construed by it, and meanwhile the thest court of the state in which the real ate affected is situated has construed the ll differently, the former court is not bound adhere to its decision; Messinger v. Anrson, 225 U.S. 436, 32 Sup. Ct. 739, 56 L. . 1152.

As to the distinctions between "law of the case," stare decisis and res judicata, see 22 Harv. L. Rev. 438. As to the conclusiveness of prior decisions on subsequent appeals, see an exhaustive note in 34 L. R. A. 321.

See MANDATE.

LAW OF CITATIONS. In the Civil Law. The most important of the laws of citation were those enacted by Valentinian III. A. D. 426, which enacted that the writings of the jurists Papinian, Paulus, Ulpian, Gaius, and Modestinus, as well as of all those who were cited by these writers (the limits of classic literature being thus determined), should possess quasi-statutory force so that their opinions should be binding on the judge. If the opinions differed on the same question, that opinion should prevail which was supported by the largest number of the jurists; if the numbers were equal, Papinian's opinion should prevail, or, if Papinian had expressed no opinion on the subject, the judge was to exercise his discretion. Valentinian the Third's law of citations marks the completion, for the time being, of that development which had commenced with the responsa of the old pontifices and the jus respondendi of Augustus. See Sohn, Inst. Rom. L. 84.

LAW OF MARQUE. See LETTER OF MARQUE AND REPRISAL.

LAW OF NATIONS. See International Law.

LAW OF NATURE. That law which God, the sovereign of the universe, has prescribed to all men, not by any formal promulgation, but by the internal dictate of reason alone. It is discovered by a just consideration of the agreeableness or disagreeableness of human actions to the nature of man; and it comprehends all the duties which we owe either to the Supreme Being, to ourselves, or to our neighbors: as, reverence to God, self-defence, temperance, honor to our parents, benevolence to all, a strict adherence to our engagements, gratitude, and the like. Erskine, Pr. Sc. Law 1. 1. 1. See Ayliffe, Pand. tit. 2, p. 2; Cicero, de Leg. lib. 1.

The divine will, or the dictate of right reason, showing the moral deformity or moral necessity there is in any act, according to its suitableness or unsuitableness to a reasonable nature. Sometimes used of the law of human reason, in contradistinction to the revealed law, and sometimes of both, in contradistinction to positive law.

They are independent of any artificial connections, and differ from mere presumptions of law in this essential respect, that the latter depend on and are a branch of the particular system of jurisprudence to which they belong; but mere natural presumptions are derived wholly by means of the common experience of mankind, without the aid or control of any particular rule of law, but simply from the course of nature and the habits of society. These presumptions fall within the exclusive province of the jury, who are to pass upon the facts. Greenl. Ev., 15th ed. § 44.

The primitive laws of nature may be reduced to six, namely: comparative sagacity, or reason; self-love; the attraction of the sexes to each other; the tenderness of parents towards their children; the religious sentiment; sociability.

When a man is properly organized, he is able to distinguish moral good from moral evil; and the study of man proves that man is not only an intelligent but a free being, and he is, therefore, responsible for his actions. The judgment we form of our good actions produces happiness; on the contrary, the judgment we form of our bad actions produces unhappiness.

Every animated being is impelled by nature to his own preservation, to defend his life and body from injuries, to shun what may be hurtful, and to provide all things requisite to his existence. Hence the duty to watch over his own preservation. Suicide and duelling are, therefore, contrary to this law; and a man cannot mutilate himself, nor renounce his liberty.

The attraction of the sexes has been provided for the preservation of the human race; and this law condemns celibacy. The end of marriage proves that polygamy and polyandry are contrary to the law of nature. Hence it follows that the husband and wife have a mutual and exclusive right over each other.

Man from his birth is wholly unable to provide for the least of his necessities; but the love of his parents supplies for this weakness. This is one of the most powerful laws of nature. The principal duties it imposes on the parents are to bestow on the child all the care its weakness requires, to provide for its necessary food and clothing, to instruct it, to provide for its wants, and to use coercive means for its good, when requisite.

The religious sentiment which leads us naturally towards the Supreme Being is one of the attributes which belong to humanity alone; and its importance gives it the rank of the moral law of nature. From this sentiment arise all the sects and different forms of worship among men.

The need which man feels to live in society is one of the primitive laws of nature whence flow our duties and rights; and the existence of society depends upon the condition that the rights of all shall be respected. On this law are based the assistance, succors, and good offices which men owe to each other, they being unable to provide each every thing for himself.

In the Middle Ages, the law of nature, identified by Gratian with the law of God, was regarded by the canonists and civilians as the reasonable basis of all law. In English law not so much is heard of the law of nature. The work done elsewhere by it was done in England by "reason." 2 Holdsw. Hist. E. L. 512. See Pollock, Journ. of Comp. Legisl. (1900) 418; [1908] 1 Ch. 311. It is the living embodiment of the collective reasoning of civilized mankind and as such is adopted by the common law in substance, though not always by name. Pollock, Expansion of C. L. 128.

See JURISPRUDENCE; JUS NATURALE; INTERNATIONAL LAW.

LAW OF THE FLAG. See FLAG.

LAW OF THE LAND. The general law; a law which hears before it condemns, which proceeds upon inquiry, and renders judgment only after trial. The meaning is that every citizen shall hold his life, liberty and property, and immunities under the protection of the general rules which govern society. Dartmouth College v. Woodward, 4 Wheat. (U. S.) 518, 4 L. Ed. 629; In re Cook, 49 Fed. 833. See Due Process of Law.

LAW OF THE ROAD. See RULE OF THE ROAD; NAVIGATION RULES.

LAW OF THE STAPLE. See LAW MERCHANT.

LAW REPORTS. See REPORTS.

LAW SOCIETY. See Incorporated Law Society.

LAW SPIRITUAL. Ecclesiastical law (q, v).

LAW, STUDY OF. See Education, Lagal: Case System.

LAW TERMS. See TERM.

LAWFUL. Legal. That which is not contrary to law. That which is sanctioned or permitted by law. That which is in accord-The terms "lawful," "unance with law. lawful," and "illegal" are used with reference to that which is in its substance sanctioned or prohibited by the law. The term "legal" is occasionally used with reference to matter of form alone: thus, an oral agreement to convey land, though void by law, is not properly to be said to be unlawful, because there is no violation of law in making or in performing such an agreement; but it is said to be not legal, or not in lawful form, because the law will not enforce it, for want of that written evidence required in such cases.

LAWFUL AGE. Majority. This usually means twenty-one years, but in some of the states, for certain purposes, a woman attains lawful age at eighteen. McKim v. Handy, 4 Md. Ch. 228. See Age.

LAWFUL AUTHORITIES. The expression "lawful authorities," used in our treaty with Spain, refers to persons who exercised the power of making grants by authority of the crown. Mitchel v. U. S., 9 Pet. (U. S.) 711, 9 L. Ed. 283.

LAWFUL CAUSE. Under a statute forbidding a priest to deny the communion with-18.

n and notorious evil liver was held such ause. 45 L. J. P. C. 1; 1 P. D. 80.

AWFUL DISCHARGE. Such a discharge insolvency as exonerates the debtor from debts. Mason v. Haile, 12 Wheat. (U. S.) 6 L. Ed. 680.

AWFUL GOODS. . Whatever is not proited to be exported by the positive law the country, even though it be contraband war, for a neutral has a right to carry h goods at his own risk. Seton v. Low, Johns. Cas. (N. Y.) 1; Skidmore v. sdoity, 2 Johns. Cas. (N. Y.) 77; Juhel v. inelander, 2 Johns. Cas. (N. Y.) 120.

AWFUL HEIR. See HEIB; NEXT OF KIN.

AWFUL ISSUE. in a devise to A for , and on her death to her lawful issue, these words are to be given the same ect as "heirs." 3 Edw. I.; Hancock v. tler, 21 Tex. 804. Under the term lawissue, bastards cannot take a remainder a life estate to the mother; Black v. rtmell, 10 B. Mon. (Ky.) 188. See Issur.

AWFUL MONEY. Money which is a al tender in payment of debts: e. g. gold l silver coined at the mint. 2 Salk. 446; Mod. 7; Prather v. Bank, 3 Ind. 358; ffin v. Thompson, 2 How. (U. S.) 244, 11 L. . 253; Macfarland v. Gwin, 8 How. (U. S.) , 11 L. Ed. 799; Bone v. Torry, 16 Ark. See Cocke v. Kendall, Hempst. 236, Fed. s. No. 2,929b. See Gold; Money; Legal NDER.

AWFUL TRADE. A clause in an insure policy against loss "in lawful trade" s construed to mean during employment the owner in lawful trade; 51 L. J. Q. B.

AWFULLY BEGOTTEN. In a will such imitation creates an entail. 7 Taunt. 85; L. J. Q. B. 472; 9 Q. B. D. 463; 8 App. s. 393.

AWFULLY POSSESSED. In a statute cerning forcible entry and detainer, it is ivalent to peaceably possessed. McCart-'s Adm'rx v. Alderson, 45 Mo. 35.

AWING OF DOGS. Mutilating the foret of mastiffs, to prevent them from rung after deer. 3 Bla. Com. 71. See Ex-ITATION; REGARD.

AWLESS COURT. An ancient local glish court, said to have been held in sex once a year, at cock-crowing, without ight or pen and ink, and conducted in a isper.

AWLESS MAN. An outlaw.

AWMAN. A man authorized to declare law.

Anciently the particular citizen of a Scanavian community, who acted as a popular esman against the king and the court at tenure, as distinguished from the ecclesiastilawful cause, that the person was an public assemblies, etc., and the guardian of the law, president both of the legislative bench and of the law courts. The president of the supreme court of Orkney and Shetland while the islands remained under Norse rule. Cent. Dict.

> LAWND or LOUND. Synonymous with frythe (q. v.).

LAWS OF OLERON. See CODE.

LAWS OF WAR. See MILITARY LAW.

LAWSUIT. An action at law, or litigation. This is, however, only the vernacular expression for a case before the courts in which there is a controversy between two parties. Technically we speak of a suit in admiralty or equity, an action at law, a prosecution in a criminal court, etc. The term lawsuit may include an arbitration. Packard v. Hill, 7 Cow. (N. Y.) 434.

LAWYER. One skilled in the law.

Any person who, for fee or reward, prosecutes or defends causes in courts of record or other judicial tribunals of the United States, or of any of the states, or whose business it is to give legal advice in relation to any cause or matter whatever. See Attor-NEY; BARRISTER; PROCTOR; SOLICITOR.

in English Law. That which relates to persons or things not ecclesiastical. In the United States, the people are not by law divided, as in England, into ecclesiastical and lay. The law makes no distinction between them.

The word is also used in the sense of opposed to professional.

Also applied to a share of the profits of a fishing or whaling voyage, allotted to the officers and seamen, in the nature of wages. Coffin v. Jenkins, 3 Story 108, Fed. Cas. No.

in Pleading. To state or to allege. place from whence a jury are to be summoned is called the venue, and the allegation in the declaration of the place where the jury is to be summoned is, in technical language, said to lay the venue. 3 Steph. Com. 574; 3 Bouvier, Inst. n. 2830.

To lay damages. To state at the conclusion of the declaration the amount of damages which the plaintiff claims. And. Steph. Pl. § 220.

LAY CORPORATION. See CORPORATION.

LAY DAYS. The time allowed to the master of a vessel for loading and unloading the same. In the absence of any custom to the contrary, Sundays are to be computed in the calculation of lay days at the port of discharge; 10 M. & W. 331. See 3 Esp. 121; 3 Kent 202; 2 Steph. Com. 141; Rubens v. Steamship Co., 65 Hun 625, 20 N. Y. Supp. 481. See DEMUBRAGE.

LAY FEE. A fee held by ordinary feudal cal tenure of frankalmoign, by which an ecclesiastical corporation held of the donor. The tenure of frankalmoign is reserved by stat. 12 Car. II., which abolished military tenures. 1 Bla. Com. 101.

LAY IMPROPRIATOR. Lay rector, to whom the greater tithes are reserved, the lesser going to the vicar. 1 Burn, Eccl. Law 75, 76.

LAY INVESTITURE. See INVESTITURE; Annulus et Baculus.

LAY OUT. This term has come to be used technically in highway laws as embracing all the series of acts necessary to the complete establishment of a highway. Cone v. City of Hartford, 28 Conn. 363; Hitchcock v. Aldermen of Springfield, 121 Mass. 382; Mansur v. County Com'rs, 83 Me. 514, 22 Atl. 358. See Small v. Eason, 33 N. C. 94.

LAY PEOPLE. Jurymen. Finch, Law 381.

LAYING THE VENUE. See LAY.

LAYMAN. In Ecclesiastical Law. One who is not an ecclesiastic nor a clergyman. One who is not a member of the legal profession. One who is not a member of any profession.

LAZARET, LAZARETTO. A place, selected by public authority, where vessels coming from infected or unhealthy countries are required to perform quarantine. See HEALTH.

LEA. A pasture. Co. Litt. 4 b. Still in use.

LE ROI (or LA REINE) LE VEUT. (Law French). The king (or the queen) assents. The formula used in Great Britain, and still used, when the crown approves a bill passed by parliament. It was formerly used in France. 1 Toullier, n. 52.

LE ROI (or LA REINE) S'AVISERA. (Law French). The king (or the queen) will consider it. The phrase used by the British crown when dissenting to or vetoing an act passed by the lords and commons. This power was last exercised in 1707, by Queen Anne; May, Parl. L. Ch. 18. The same formula was used by the king of the French for the same purpose. 1 Toullier, n. 52. See Veto.

LE ROI VEUT EN DÉLIBÉRER. The king will deliberate on it. This is the formula which the king of France used when he intended to veto an act of the legislative assembly. 1 Toullier, n. 42.

LEADER. See LEADING COUNSEL.

LEADING A USE. A term applied to a deed executed before a fine is levied, declaring the use of the fine: i. e. specifying to whose use the fine shall enure. If executed after the fine, it is said to declare the use. 2 Bla. Com. 363. See Deed.

LEADING CASE. A case decided, usual by a court of last resort, which decides son particular point in question, and to which reference is constantly or frequently made for the purpose of determining the law similar questions.

Many elements go to the constitution a case as a leading case: among which at the priority of the case, the learning and reutation of the court, the amount of consideration given to the question, the freedom frocollateral matters or questions; sometime also, the eminence of counsel who argued. The term is applied to cases as leading ther in a particular state or at common la A very convenient means of digesting the law upon any subject is found to be the slection of a leading case upon the subject and an arrangement of authorities illustrating the questions decided. It is less in vog now than formerly.

or more counsel employed on the same sign a cause who has the principal management of the cause. Sometimes called the leader. So called as distinguished from the other, who is called the junior counsel.

See King's Counsel; Barrister.

LEADING QUESTION. A question white puts into the witness' mouth the words be echoed back, or plainly suggests the a swer which the party wishes to get from his Selin v. Snyder, 7 S. & R. (Pa.) 171; Peop v. Mather, 4 Wend. (N. Y.) 247, 21 Am. De 122. In that case the examiner is said lead him to the answer.

It is not always easy to determine wh is or is not a leading question.

Such questions cannot, in general, be p to a witness in his examination in chie Sheeler v. Speer, 3 Binn. (Pa.) 130; 1 Star Ev. 123; unless he is a hostile witnes Meixsell v. Feezor, 43 Ill. App. 180; Beck v. Koch, 104 N. Y. 394, 10 N. E. 701, 58 A Rep. 515. But, in an examination in chic questions may be put to lead the mind the witness to the subject of inquiry; as they are allowed when it appears that the witness wishes to conceal the truth or favor the opposite party, or where from the nature of the case the mind of the witne cannot be directed to the subject of inqui without a particular specification of suc subject; 1 Campb. 43; McDonald v. People 49 Ill. App. 357; State v. Keith, 53 Mo. Ap 383. The permitting of such questions within the discretion of the trial cour St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Gotthe 35 Neb. 351, 53 N. W. 137; King v. R. Co 75 Hun 17, 26 N. Y. Supp. 973; Proper State, 85 Wis. 615, 55 N. W. 1035; St. Cla v. U. S., 154 U. S. 134, 14 Sup. Ct. 1002, L. Ed. 936; Carder v. Primm, 52 Mo. Ap 102. Where the answers of a witness have taken by surprise the party calling him, th stions to the witness; St. Clair v. U. S., U. S. 134, 14 Sup. Ct. 1002, 38 L. Ed. 936. ess weight is to be given to the testiny of a friendly witness elicited by leadquestions put by counsel calling him; e Cambusdoon, 30 Fed. 704. This is said be especially true where the witness' wledge of English is imperfect; Mercurio Lunn, 93 Fed. 592, 35 C. C. A. 467; so of master of a vessel who is a witness in a ision case; The Jane Gray, 99 Fed. 582. appellate court, in weighing testimony, ally takes notice of the fact that a wits had been led; 9 Ont. App. 451; Duvall Hambleton & Co., 98 Md. 12, 55 Atl. 431. n cross-examinations, the examiner has erally the right to put leading questions; art. Ev. § 501; but not perhaps when the ness has a bias in his favor; Best, Ev. . See WITNESS.

LEADING QUESTION

is the allowance of leading questions to vitness is largely in the discretion of the il judge, the appellate court will reverse such cause only where it appears that s discretion has been abused; Badder v. efer, 91 Mich. 611, 52 N. W. 60; Weber gon Co. v. Kehl, 139 Ill. 644, 29 N. E. 714. ile it cannot be safely said that in no e can a court of errors take notice of an eption of the trial court in permitting ding questions, such conduct must appear be a plain case of the abuse of discretion; rthern P. R. Co. v. Urlin, 158 U. S. 271, Sup. Ct. 840, 39 L. Ed. 977. A verdict uld not be disturbed on appeal for that son; Woods v. R. Co., 188 Mo. 229, 86 W. 1082.

EAGUE. A measure of length, which sists of three geographical miles. isdiction of the United States extends the sea a marine league. See acts of gress of June 5, 1794. and April 20, 1818; Vait, State Papers 195.

conspiracy to do an unlawful act. The m is but little used.

in agreement or treaty between states. gues between states are of several kinds: st, leagues offensive and defensive, by ich two or more nations agree not only defend each other, but to carry on war inst their common enemies. Second, desive, but not offensive, obliging each to end the other against any foreign inva-Third, leagues of simple amity, by 1. lch one contracts not to invade, injure, offend the other: this usually includes liberty of mutual commerce and trade, the safeguard of merchants and traders each other's domain. Bacon, Abr. Preative (D 4).

ee PEACE; TRUCE; WAR.

EAKAGE. The waste which has taken ce in liquids, by their escaping out of the ert may permit such party to put leading! See Cory v. Ins. Co., 107 Mass. 140, 145, 9 Am. Rep. 14.

> Where in a bill of lading a clause is inserted exempting the owner of the ship from loss caused by "rust, leakage, or breakage," he will be liable if damage from these causes be occasioned by the negligence of himself or his servants in stowing; 2 A. & E. 375; 38 L. J. Adm. 63; 10 Q. B. D. 521. The primary and natural meaning of the stipulation is that the shipowner will not be answerable if the thing comprised in the bill of lading shall itself rust, leak, or break, and therefore it furnishes him no protection against his liability to compensate for consequential damage happening to that thing by reason of some other thing's rusting, leaking, or breaking; 46 L. J. C. P. 402; 2 C. P. D. 432.

> LEAL. Loyal; that which belongs to the law.

LEAP YEAR. See BISSEXTILE.

LEARNING. Doctrine. 1 Leon. 77.

A contract for the possession and profits of lands and tenements on the one side, and a recompense of rent or other income on the other. Bac. Abr. Lease in pr.; or it is a conveyance to a person for life, or years, or at will, in consideration of a return of rent or other recompense. This definition appears in the first edition of this work with the authorities as cited. It is also quoted with reference to Woodfall, L. & T. c. 1, sec. 1, as an accurate definition of the relation of landlord and tenant in Jackson v. Harsen, 7 Cow. 323, 17 Am. Dec. 517, and note.

A species of contract for the possession and profits of lands and tenements either for life or for a certain period of time, or during the pleasure of the parties.

A conveyance by way of demise, always for a less term than the party conveying has in the premises. Tayl. Landl. & Ten. § 16; Craig v. Summers, 47 Minn. 189, 49 N. W. 742, 15 L. R. A. 236.

One of its essential properties is, that its duration must be for a shorter period than the duration of the interest of the lessor in the land; for if he disposes of his entire interest it becomes an assignment, and is not a lease. In other words, the granting of a lease always supposes that the grantor reserves to himself a reversion in the leased premises.

And a distinction is to be noted between a lease and a mere agreement for a lease. The whole question, however, resolves itself into one of construction, and an instrument is to be considered either a lease or an agreement for a lease, according to what appears to be the intention of the parties; Burnett v. Scribner, 16 Barb. (N. Y.) 621; 9 Ad. & E. 644; Rice v. Brown, 81 Me. 56, 16 Atl. 334; Medlin v. Steele, 75 N. C. 154; ks or vessels in which they were kept. Bacon v. Bowdoin, 22 Pick. (Mass.) 401;

Weed v. Crocker, 13 Gray (Mass.) 226; St. 1 Louis Brewing Ass'n v. Niederluecke, 102 Mo. App. 303, 76 S. W. 645; though, generally, if there are apt words of demise followed by possession, the instrument will be held a lease; Averill v. Taylor, 8 N. Y. 44; Kabley v. Gas Light Co., 102 Mass. 392; 4 Ad. & E. 225; otherwise, if a fuller lease is to be prepared and executed before the demise is to take effect and possession to be given; Aiken v. Smith, 21 Vt. 172; People v. Gillis, 24 Wend. (N. Y.) 201; Jenkins v. Eldredge, 3 Stor. 325, Fed. Cas. No. 7,268; Buell v. Cook, 4 Conn. 238; Griffin v. Knisely, 75 III. 411; L. R. 2 Ex. Div. 355. See Con-But an agreement for a lease is sometimes held to constitute the relation of landlord and tenant, though a more formal instrument was in contemplation; Coffee v. Smith, 109 La. 440, 33 So. 554; particularly where it contains all the terms necessary to a valid lease; Marcus v. Const. Co., 27 Misc. 784, 57 N. Y. Supp. 737; but where the agreement concluded with the statement that the subject was to be covered by a regular lease, subject to approval by all parties it is not a binding contract; Boisseau v. Fuller, 96 Va. 45, 30 S. E. 457,

The party who leases is called the lessor, he to whom the lease is made the lessee, and the compensation or consideration of the lease is the rent. The words lease and demise are frequently used to signify the estate or interest conveyed; but they properly apply to the instrument of conveyance. When a lessee parts with the estate granted to him, reserving any portion thereof, however small, he makes an underlease; Tayl. L. & T. § 16; Van Rensselaer's Ex'rs v. Gallup, 5 Den. (N. Y.) 454; Davis v. Morris, 36 N. Y. 569; Collamer v. Kelley, 12 Ia. 319.

The estate created by a lease, when for years, is called a term (terminus), because its duration is limited and determined,—its commencement as well as its termination being ascertained by an express agreement of the parties. And this phrase signifies not only the limitation of time or period granted for the occupation of the premises, but includes also the estate or interest in the land that passes during such period. term, however, is perfected only by the entry of the lessee; for previous to this the estate remains in the lessor, the lessee having a mere right to enter, which right is called an interesse termini; 1 Washb. R. P. 292, 297; 5 Co. 123 b; Co. Litt. 46 b; 1 B. & Ald. 593.

What may be leased. Anything corporeal or incorporeal lying in livery or in grant may be the subject-matter of a lease; Shepp. Touchst. 268; and therefore not only lands and houses, but commons, ways, fisheries, franchises, estovers, annuities, rent charges, and all other incorporeal hereditaments, are included in the common-law rule. Among the rights springing from or connected with Farnsworth, 108 Mass. 357; Alcorn v. Mo estate, which have been held to be the su ject-matter of a tenancy, is the use of public wharf; Board of Com'rs of Pilots Clark, 33 N. Y. 251; the right to flow land Morrill v. Mackman, 24 Mich. 279, 9 A Rep. 124; right of fishing; Com. v. Weather head, 110 Mass. 175; pews in a church; Va Houten v. First Reformed Dutch Church, N. J. Eq. 126; all timber, grass and berri found or grown upon the land for a term years; Freeman v. Underwood, 66 Me. 22 right of taking stone out of a quarry; Brai erd v. Arnold, 27 Conn. 617; and the ma ing of such a lease is a contract that the lessee will work the quarry; Watson O'Hern, 6 Watts (Pa.) 362; but a sealed i strument granting permission to mine on certain lot is a license and not a lease, sin it passes no estate in possession in the lan which would entitle the grantee to mainta ejectment; Boone v. Stover, 66 Mo. 43 Rent cannot properly be said ever to issue out of a chattel; Newton v. Wilson, 3 He & Mun. (Va.) 470; Fay v. Holloran, Barb. (N. Y.) 295; Sutliff v. Atwood, Ohio St. 186; but goods, chattels, or listock upon or about real property may leased with it and a rent contracted for, issue from the whole, upon which an actic for rent in arrear may be maintained as u on such lease; Co. Litt. 57 a; Mickle Miles, 31 Pa. 21; Zule v. Zule, 24 Wend. (1 Y.) 76, 35 Am. Dec. 600; but in such case the chattels so delivered belong to the tena and not to the landlord during the term as they are liable to be sold by the tenant levied on by his creditors for the payment his debts; Carpenter v. Griffin, 9 Paige ( Y.) 310, 37 Am. Dec. 398.

Leases are made either l How made. parol or by deed. The former mode embrac all cases where the parties agree either ora ly or by a writing not under seal. The tec nical words generally made use of in the written instrument are, "demise, grant, as to farm let;" but no particular form of e pression is required in any case to create a immediate demise; Caswell v. Districh, Wend. (N. Y.) 379; Munson v. Wray, Blackf. (Ind.) 403. It was said by Shar wood, J., in Bussman v. Ganster, 72 Pa. 28 "no form of words is necessary to create lease."

An ordinary receipt expressing the natu and terms of the tenancy may be considered a lease; Eastman v. Perkins, 111 Mass. 30 Berrington v. Casey, 78 Ill. 317. It appear therefore, that any permissive holding sufficient, whether contained in a memora dum, receipt, or letters, which establish th intention of one party voluntarily to di possess himself of the premises, for a con sideration, and of the other to assume the possession, for any given period; Shaw 77 Ind. 185; Johnson v. Ins. Co., 46, n. 92; Linsley v. Tibbals, 40 Conn. 522 ere, after a verbal conference relative he renting of land to be used for raising wberries, the lessee wrote to the lessor aquire if he could have the land on the is which he had proposed and he reed the reply, "Set your strawberries," vas considered sufficient, although the t remarked that it "is certainly a brief for a lease," but under the circumces of the case "it obviates any difficulty er the Statute of Frauds." See also casted supra).

lease signed by an agent who had no ten authority to do so, and also exed by the lessee, was held void within statute of frauds; Folsom v. Perrin, 2 603; and such a lease cannot be effecas evidence until the agency is shown vidence of equal dignity; Humphreys v. wne, 19 La. Ann. 158.

written agreement is generally sufficito create a term of years. But in Eng-, by statute, all leases that are required e in writing must also be under seal; 9 Vict. c. 106.

it the English courts seem to have modithe effect of this act by holding that a lease may be good as an agreement for ase; Parker v. Taswell, 2 De G. & J. Ricket v. Green [1910] 1 K. B. 253; and that a party entering into possession paying or agreeing to pay rent under a lease becomes a tenant from year to upon such terms of the void lease as not inconsistent with the yearly tenancy; tin v. Smith, L. R. 9 Exch. 50. But in country it would probably not be held where, in the absence of a statute, that al is necessary to the validity of a lease; cent City Wharf & L. Co. v. Simpson, 77 286, 19 Pac. 426.

letting by parol for a sum certain per th, without anything being said about a , constitutes a lease from month to th, and not a lease from year to year; is v. Burns, 100 Pa. 206, 45 Am. Rep.

A lease is valid and binding on the e, who has signed the same and occuthe premises under it, though it is not ed by the lessor; Evans v. Conklin, 71 536, 24 N. Y. Supp. 1081. The writing is evidence of the lease, though the latter is sometimes used to designate the inment; Mattlage v. McGuire, 59 Misc. 11 N. Y. Supp. 1083.

atute of frauds. By the English statute rauds of 29 Car. II. c. 3, §§ 1, 2, 3, it is ared that "all leases, estates, or terms of s, or any uncertain interest in lands. ted by livery only, or by parol, and not in writing and signed by the party, ald have the force and effect of leases or tes at will only, except leases not ex-Bouv.-119 the rent reserved during the term shall amount to two third parts of the full improved value of the thing demised." "And that no lease or estate, either of freehold or term of years, should be assigned, granted, or surrendered unless in writing." principles of this statute have been adopted, with some modifications, in nearly all the states; Taylor L. & T. §§ 28, 29; to the statutes of which reference must be had for the law in any particular jurisdiction.

The question whether a parol lease to take effect in futuro is within the statute of frauds has been the subject of contradictory decisions. It is held that such leases are not within the statute and are therefore valid; Young v. Dake, 5 N. Y. 463, 55 Am. Dec. 356; Whiting v. Ohlert, 52 Mich. 462, 18 N. W. 219, 50 Am. Rep. 265; Becar v. Flues, 64 N. Y. 518; Sobey v. Brisbee, 20 Ia. 105; Jones v. Marcy, 49 Ia. 188; Fall v. Hazelrigg, 45 Ind. 576, 15 Am. Rep. 278. Such an agreement is held to be void, as being within the statute of frauds, in White v. Holland, 17 Or. 3, 3 Pac. 573; Jellett v. Rhode, 43 Minn. 166, 45 N. W. 13, 7 L. R. A. 671; Wheeler v. Frankenthal, 78 Ill. 124; Bain v. McDonald, 111 Ala. 269, 20 South. 77; Atwood v. Norton, 31 Ga. 507; Briar v. Robertson, 19 Mo. App. 66. The case of Croswell v. Crane, 7 Barb. (N. Y.) 192, is frequently cited as contrary to the rule of the New York cases above cited, but the opinion in Young v. Dake, supra, which was decided two years later, effectually disposes of Croswell v. Crane as an authority on the subject. The Michigan case and the Oregon case, taking opposite views of this question, are the subject of a note by Marshall D. Ewell in 23 Am. L. Reg. N. S. 387, which concludes that "a careful reading of the case of Young v. Dake, 5 N. Y. 463, 55 Am. Dec. 356, will, it is believed, satisfy any unprejudiced mind as to the correctness of the decision both of that case and of" White v. Holland, supra. In Sobey v. Brisbee, supra, Wright, J., seems to state the only sensible rule of construction as being that the statute means the commencement of the term and not the time of performance of the contract, with reference to the date of making or entering into the same; he also pertinently suggests that this construction is in accord with the custom of arranging for rental two or three months in advance of the actual term. It is very properly suggested in Ewell's note (supra) that a difference in decision might very naturally result from the retention or omission in the statute of a state of the words in the English statute, "all leases not exceeding the term of three years [or one year, as in many of the states] from the making thereof"; these words being omitted in the New York statute among others, and retained in the Illinois statute and others. But ing the term of three years, whereupon it may also be observed, when the cases are critically examined in connection with the state statutes, that some of the courts seem to base their decision upon the general provision of the statute with respect to contracts, even where there is a specific provision with regard to leases which might be considered as applying rather than the general rule.

A tenancy from year to year is not a lease or "term" exceeding one year within the meaning of the statute of frauds; Brown v. Kayser, 60 Wis. 1, 18 N. W. 523.

Length of the term. It was the English rule that if one had power to lease for ten years, and leased for twenty, the lease was bad at law, but good in equity, for the ten years; Rowe v. Predeauix, 10 East 158; Taylor v. Horde, 1 Burr. 120; and in our law doubtless there would be applied to a lease the rule of construction of deeds, that if a grant will not convey all that was intended, it shall not therefore be entirely void, but shall be construed to convey all that it was in the power of the grantor to convey; Law v. Hempstead, 10 Conn. 23; and in Martin v. Sterling, 1 Root (Conn.) 210, it was said that "while, under the feudal system, a tenant forfeited his interest by granting a greater estate than he had, by the law of reason and common sense and the laws of this state, a man's deed or grant shall be good and valid for so much as he has right to, and void for the rest." It has been said that, while one cannot grant a lease to continue beyond the period at which his own estate would determine, trustees having a fee may grant a lease valid in law to continue after their estate is determined, but equity may annul such lease if inconsistent or unreasonable; Greason v. Keteltas, 17 N. Y.

Long term leases. Lord Coke states that, originally, a man could not make a lease for more than 40 years, that being the length of an ordinary generation. See Co. Litt. 45 b, 46 a. Blackstone pointed out, however, that such a rule, if it ever existed, was soon antiquated and that leases of 50 and 80 years are found in the reigns of Richard II. and Edward IV., and that leases of 300 or even 1,000 years were in use in the time of Edward III. and probably of Edward I. Their existence is recognized in Shephard's Touchstone. Terms of 199, 999 and 2,000 years appear in the reports of the time of Charles II.

The limit of 99 years would seem to be connected with a somewhat arbitrary estimate of 100 years as the probable extreme duration of the life of man. Leases for years are in their attributes, evolution and history, a sort of middle term between an estate for life and a tenancy at will. For this reason a period little short of the duration of the life of man was devised, so that the lessee might reasonably build or lay out money on the property.

With regard to the 999 year leases the thory is different. Coke says that a "least for 1,000 years is never without suspicion fraud." It is probable that intending less of therefore selected a ferm less by a sing year, to escape the taint suggested by Cob Such terms became widely recognized a eventually their employment became so for quent in some parts of England as to attact the universality of a custom.

At the present day the question of torigin of the selection of the periods of and 999 years respectively is academic; the prima facie propriety of the short term as being that suitable for a buildilease has been expressly recognized in mothan one English statute; 55 Sol. Jour. 4

As to covenants for a perpetual renew see 13 Harv. L. R. 472. "The argument the right to the 'reversion' which is to crue nearly 1,000 years hence amounts something substantial cannot be taken see ously. It rests on a false analogy with a English land law and its elaborate fiction devised for great political ends, but having basis in the nature of things or in sou logic or reason;" Thirteenth and Fifteen Sts. Passenger Rapid Transit Co. v. R. C. 31 Pa. Co. Ct. R. 99, per Sulzberger, J. S. Reversion.

Holding over. A tenant for years, w holds over after his term has ended, if pays no rent, is a wrong-doer and liable an action by the landlord; but if the lan lord so elects he becomes a tenant for a other year; Conway v. Starkweathe, 1 De (N. Y.) 113; and very slight action by landlord is sufficient; Rowan v. Lytle, Wend. (N. Y.) 619. Whether he becomes to ant for another term is entirely for the el tion of the landlord, who may treat him a trespasser or a tenant, but the tenant 1 no election if he remains in possession, h is subject to the will of the landlord in t matter, even though he desired to aband the lease and had secured other premise Schuyler v. Smith, 51 N. Y. 309, 10 Am. R 609; MacGregor v. Rawle, 57 Pa. 184; Bac v. Brown, 9 Conn. 334. Pending the decisi of the question of a new tenancy, one w holds over is a tenant at will and not sufferance; Emmons v. Scudder, 115 Ma 367; and if he holds over after notice fr the landlord, that if he remains it must on certain terms, he is presumed to have cepted them; Griffin v. Knisely, 75 Ill. 4 One who enters under a verbal lease for month and continues in possession payi rent monthly has, in contemplation of la a new letting with each monthly term; B man v. Sandgren, 37 Ill. App. 160. See Ta lor, Landlord and Tenant § 22.

Parties to leases. All persons selzed lands or tenements may grant leases them, unless they happen to be under so legal disability; to determine the capacitation.

parties to a lease the same rules are aped as in the case of other contracts. A se by an infant is not valid, but he may ify it on coming of age by receipt of rent, the like; Smith v. Low, 1 Atk. 489, apved and followed as to boundaries in own v. Caldwell, 10 S. & R. (Pa.) 114, 13 i. Dec. 660; Slator v. Trimble, 14 Ir. C. R. 342; it is not avoided by a lease to a rd person on coming of age, but only by ne notorious act, as ejectments, entry, demand of possession; Slater v. Brady, Ir. C. L. R. 611; infancy of a lessee is no ence to an action of trover for conversion the crops which under the lease were ject to a lien to secure the rent; Baxter Bush, 29 Vt. 465, 70 Am. Dec. 429; but it a defence to an action for use and occupan; Lempriere v. Lange, 12 Ch. D. 675; tra, Blake v. Concannon, Ir. 4 C. L. 323. the lease is only voidable at the election the lessor, the lessee cannot set up the ability of the lessor to defeat the lease to be relieved from its covenants; Field Herrick, 101 Ill. 110. See INFANT.

The common-law disability of a married man would, of course, make a lease by invalid. As to her power to lease her ds under modern statutes, those of the te which apply must be consulted. , however, been held that a lease by a rried woman of her lands for the operaof gas and oil wells is not obnoxious to tatute forbidding her to encumber or conher lands without the joinder of her band; Heal v. Oil Co., 150 Ind. 483, 50 E. 482; and in the same state it was d that a wife's parol lease of her land for term of five years without the husband's currence is enforceable for the collection rent from a lessee holding possession unthe lease; Nash v. Berkmeir, 83 Ind. 536. HUSBAND AND WIFE.

perence to an action for use and occupan on the ground of the mental unsounds of the lessor requires proof, not only unacy, but that the other party knew and k advantage of it; Dane v. Kirkwall, 8 & P. 679. See Insanity. So upon the und that intoxication to an extreme ext results in mental incapacity, a lease may held void when the lessor was induced irink, or any fraud or circumvention was cticed; otherwise equity will not intere; Cooke v. Clayworth, 18 Ves. 12. See UNKENNESS.

t is essential to the validity of a lease t the lessor has, at the time he underes to make the grant, possession of the mises; otherwise, whatever he does will ount to nothing more than the assignment a chose in action; Cro. Car. 109; Shep. less. 269. But possession is always preled to follow the title unless there is a larly marked adverse possession.

nd although a lease may not be sufficient to authorize a lessee to demand possession for the want of a possessory title in his lessor, it will still operate by way of estoppel, and enure to his benefit if the lessor afterwards comes into possession of the land before the expiration of the lease; Bacon, Abr. Leases (I 4); Austin v. Ahearne, 61 N. Y. 6; Webb v. Austin, 7 M. & G. 701; McLennan v. Grant, 8 Wash. 603, 36 Pac. 682.

The power to lease will, of course, depend upon the extent of the lessor's estate in the premises; and if he has but an estate for life, his lease can only be coextensive therewith; when for a term of years, its commencement as well as its termination must be ascertained, for certainty in these respects is of the essence of a term of years. But although this term may not at first appear to be certain, it may be rendered so by reference to some fact or event; id certum est quod certum reddi potest. Thus, if a lease be made to a man for so many years as he has in the manor of Dale, and he happens to have a term of two years in that manor, the lease will be good for that period; Co. Litt. 45 b; Thurber v. Dwyer, 10 R. I.

Renewals. When leases provide for the renewal of the term, it implies an additional term equal to the first and upon the same terms, including the rent, but not the covenant to renew; Kollock v. Scribner, 98 Wis. 104, 73 N. W. 776 (overruling an earlier case); and where a renewal lease was executed, pursuant to the covenant, it was said to be a new grant and its covenants were to be read as if it were the first inception of the relation between the parties; Phelps v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 61 Hun 521, 16 N. Y. Supp. 321; but where there was a new lease executed, expressly declared to be a renewal of the former one, it was held to be a mere continuance of the old term, for the preservation and protection of rights acquired therein; Newhoff v. Mayo, 48 N. J. Eq. 619, 23 Atl. 265, 27 Am. St. Rep. 455. There is a distinction between a stipulation to renew a lease for an additional term and one to extend it, as the former requires a new lease and the latter does not; Tilleny v. Knoblauch, 73 Minn. 108, 75 N. W. 1039; Orton v. Noonan, 27 Wis. 272.

Character of the Term. A lease at a monthly rental for so long as the lessee shall wish to live there creates a tenancy for life, and not one at will, at sufferance, or from month to month; Thompson v. Baxter, 107 Minn. 122, 119 N. W. 797, 21 L. R. A. (N. S.) 575, and note in which many similar cases are collected.

A lease for a term exceeding the period prescribed by the statute against perpetuities is not void on that account, as it does not suspend the power of alienation; Gomez v. Gomez, 81 Hun 566, 31 N. Y. Supp. 206.

The formal parts of a lease by deed are:

First, the date, which will fix the time for should be allowed what it is reasona its commencement, unless some other period worth; Scrantom v. Booth, 29 Barb. (N. 1 is specified in the instrument itself for that purpose; Keyes v. Dearborn, 12 N. H. 52; Styles v. Wardle, 4 B. & C. 908; but if there is no date, or an impossible one, the time will be considered as having commenced from the delivery of the deed; id.; Jackson v. Schoonmaker, 2 Johns. (N. Y.) 230.

Second, the names of the parties, with respect to which the law knows but one Christian name; and therefore the middle letter of the name of either party is immaterial, and a person may always show he is as well known by one name as another; this is the rule as to deeds generally; Games v. Stiles, 14 Pet. (U. S.) 322, 10 L. Ed. 476; Lyon v. Kain, 36 Ill. 362; and it is applied in the case of a lease; Tayl. L. & T. § 149. entire omission of the lessee's name from a lease will render the instrument simply void; Jackson v. Titus, 2 Johns. (N. Y.) 430; Taylor, L. & T. § 149, where many cases are cited, but only showing the rule as to deeds generally which applies also to leases. In West Virginia one whose name is not mentioned in the body of a lease is not a party to it or bound by it as a grantor, although he signs and acknowledges it as his deed; Barnsdall v. Boley, 119 Fed. 191. one partner signed the name of both and the firm entered under the lease, it was held a parol ratification; Holbrook v. Chamberlin, 116 Mass. 155, 17 Am. Rep. 146.

Third, recitals of title or other circumstances of the case (though not usual in practice).

Fourth, some consideration must appear, although it need not be what is technically called rent, or a periodical render of compensation for the use of the premises; Failing v. Schenck, 3 Hill (N. Y.) 344; State v. Page, 1 Speers (S. C.) 408, 40 Am. Dec. 608; but it may be a sum in gross, or the natural affection which one party has for the other. It may also consist of grain, animals, or the personal services of the lessee; Tayl. L. & T. § 152 et seq.; or a promise to pay rent; McFarlane v. Williams, 107 III. 33; and when the lease does not stipulate for the cessation of rent upon the destruction of the building by fire, or that the lessor shall repair, a tenant is not relieved from the payment of rent by a partial destruction of the building; Cook & Co. v. Anderson, 85 Ala. 99, 4 South. 713. See Land-LORD AND TENANT. An agreement that the occupation is to be rent free may be inferred from the circumstances attending its inception; Sherwin v. Lasher, 9 Ill. App. 227; and a written acknowledgment that one holds as tenant raises no presumption of a promise to pay rent; Savings Bank v. Getchell, 59 N. H. 281. Where there is no compensation mentioned to be paid for the use 171.

Fifth, the operative words of a lease usually "demise, grant, lease, and to fa let." The use of the term "demise" in lease imports covenants of good right a title to make the lease and for quiet enj ment; Crouch v. Fowle, 9 N. H. 219, 32 A Dec. 350, with an extended note on impl covenants of title, in which are collec many cases on the covenants for title, plied from the words "demise, concessi, the like," said to have been recognized fr the earliest times; Rawle, Cov. 461.

Sixth, the description of the premises no not specify all the particulars of the subjection matter of the demise, for the accessor will follow the principal thing named: th the garden is parcel of a dwelling-hou and the general description of a farm cludes all the houses and lands appertain to the farm; Bennet v. Bittle, 4 Rawle (I 339; or machinery in a building used for operation; Thropp v. Field, 26 N. J. Eq. Lanpher v. Glenn, 37 Minn. 4, 33 N. W. or which is necessary to its enjoyme Chesebrough v. Pingree, 72 Mich. 438, 40 W. 747, 1 L. R. A. 529; or a lease of la includes the buildings on it; Isham v. M gan, 9 Conn. 374, 23 Am. Dec. 361. 1 whether certain premises are parcel of demise or not is always matter of eviden Smith v. McCallister, 14 Barb. (N. Y.) 4 Trimble's Heirs v. Ward, 14 B. Mon. (K 8; 2 B. & C. 608, where it was queried whe er evidence dehors the lease was admissialthough the question was not necessary be decided.

Seventh, the rights and liabilities of respective parties are regulated by law the absence of any particular agreement respect thereto; but express covenants usually inserted in a lease, for the purp of limiting or otherwise defining their rig and duties in relation to repairs, taxes, surance renewals, residence on the premis modes of cultivation, fixtures, and the li Certain covenants are also implied in l from the use of certain technical terms For example there is an impl covenant that the lessee shall have a rig of entry at the time set by the lease as beginning of the term; Herpolsheimer Christopher, 76 Neb. 352, 107 N. W. 382, N. W. 359, 9 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1127, 14 A The intention of the parties to Cas. 399. lease must be gathered from the instrum taken as a whole. Upper Appomattox Co ty v. Hamilton, 83 Va. 319, 2 S. E. 195.

Termination. Leases are terminated various cases, as to which see, at lar LANDLORD AND TENANT. The death of a l tenant of real estate terminates his subt and occupation of the premises, the landlord ant's right of possession; Edghill v. Mank Neb. 347, 112 N. W. 570, 11 L. R. A. (N. Morris v. De Wolf, 11 Tex. Civ. App. 701, 688.

n every well-drawn lease, provision is de for a forfeiture of the term in case tenant refuses to pay rent, commits ste, or is guilty of a breach of the coveat to repair, insure, reside upon the prems, or the like. This clause enables the sor or his assigns to re-enter in any such nt upon the demised premises and eject tenant, leaving both parties in the same dition as if the lease were a nullity; but the absence of a proviso for re-entry the sor would possess no such power, the re breach of a covenant enabling him to for damages only; Brown v. Kite, 2 erton (Tenn.) 233; Den v. Post, 25 N. J. does so enter and eject the tenant, the The provision for re-entry for condition ken can operate only during the term the right vanishes when that ends;

ns v. Whitley, 3 Wils. 127. he forfeiture will generally be enforced the courts, except where the landlord's can be readily compensated by money; kson v. Brownson, 7 Johns. (N. Y.) 227, am. Dec. 258; Bracebridge v. Buckley, 2 ce 200. One condition essential to the feiture of a lease by the lessor is a dend of the rent; Henderson v. Coke Co., U. S. 25, 11 Sup. Ct. 691, 35 L. Ed. 332; where the forfeiture, if taken advantage works a hardship, and full compensation be made, courts of equity generally eve against it upon the making of such pensation; Hagar v. Buck, 44 Vt. 285, 8 . Rep. 368; Thompson v. Whipple, 5 R. I. But if the performance of the covenant impossible, as where the condition was personal services and the like and the e therefor has passed, equity will not ree; Dunklee v. Adams, 20 Vt. 415, 50 Am. c. 44; a court of equity never lends its aid enforce forfeiture; Warner v. Bennett, 31 nn. 468; and it will not relieve against legal consequences of a breach of a coveit as well in cases which rest in contract where the legal relation between the ties is fully established; it must be a ong case of equity created by a landlord inst himself to control his legal right; lare 683. In case of a forfeiture for the -payment of rent, the proviso is allowed pperate simply as a security for rent, and tenant will be relieved from its effects any time by paying the landlord or bringinto court the amount of all arrears of t, with interest and costs. The right to ninate the lease for the non-payment of t will not give the lessee any right to id the lease or his liability for agreed t; Lehigh Zinc & I. Co. v. Bamford, 150

Morris v. De Wolf, 11 Tex. Civ. App. 701, 33 S. W. 556. Where the lessee has forfeited his rights under the lease and abandoned the same, the lessor may have it cancelled; Reese v. Zinn, 103 Fed. 97. A provision in a lease that the lessee may buy the land "at the option of the parties" means that the lessee may buy at his own option; Mack v. Dailey, 67 Vt. 90, 30 Atl. 686; and where the lease contains such an option if the lessee keeps all its conditions, the acceptance by the landlord of the rent after it is due, without objection, waives a breach of the condition as to the time of its payment; 4d. See Landlord and Tenant.

A lease may be surrendered by any agreement (Tenn.) 233; Den v. Post, 25 N. J. ment between the parties that the term shall be terminated, which is irrevocably acted upon by both; Buffalo County Nat. Bank v. Hanson, 34 Neb. 455, 51 N. W. 1035; but a fruit on the land and planted by him; mere agreement, unless accompanied by the act, is inoperative; National Union Bldg. ken can operate only during the term.

A lease may also be terminated before the prescribed period if the premises are taken for public uses or improvements; O'Brien v. Ball, 119 Mass. 28; Barclay v. Picker, 38 pages are a mere matter of computation; Mo. 143 (and the subsequent reconveyance of the property by the city to the lessor would not revive the lease); or sold under process of law; Clarkson v. Skidmore, 46 N. Y. 297; or the total destruction of the demised building by fire, there being no covenant to repair; Ainsworth v. Ritt, 38 Cal. 89; Winton v. Cornish, 5 Ohio 477; or the use of the premises for immoral purposes, which, if contemplated in the making of the lease, invalidates it, and the court will not aid either party to enforce it; 2 C. & P. 347; Demartini v. Anderson, 127 Cal. 33, 29 Pac. 207 (and the lessor is indictable for such letting; Com. v. Harrington, 3 Pick. [Mass.] 26); or any illegal use, as gambling; Ryan v. Potwin, 62 Ill. App. 134.

A lease of land is not terminated by the death of the lessee, but an action will lie against his administrator for rent during the remainder of the term; Alsun v. Banks, 68 Miss. 664, 9 South. 895, 13 L. R. A. 598, 24 Am. St. Rep. 294. So a lease is terminated by merger in the inheritance or the fee when the tenant acquires it by descent or purchase; Carroll v. Ballance, 26 Ill. 9, 79 Am. Dec. 354; and as to this point see further LANDLORD AND TENANT.

Assignment. It is not unusual for a lease to contain a covenant forbidding the assignment of it by the lessee without the written consent of the lessor. Such covenant does not bind the lessee where he signs the lease, and at the request of the lessor assigns it to a third person, to whom it is never, in fact, delivered; Stetson v. Briggs, 114 Cal. 511, 46 Pac. 603.

the lease or his liability for agreed t; Lehigh Zinc & I. Co. v. Bamford, 150 complete and valid until there is consent S. 665, 14 Sup. Ct. 219, 37 L. Ed. 1215; by the proposed assignee; Beattle v. Copper contained a covenant against assignment by Mass. 53, 46 N. E. 402. the lessee and the latter devised his interest to his executors upon certain trusts in the execution of which they transferred the estate to themselves as trustees, there was no breach of covenant; Squire v. Learned, 196 Mass. 134, 81 N. E. 880, 11 L. R. A. (N. S.) 634, 124 Am. St. Rep. 525, 12 Ann. Cas. 977. Parol evidence. The general rule that a deed cannot be varied by parol applies to leases, and it has been enforced with respect to their date; Henson v. Coope, 3 Scott, N. R. 48; the amount of the rent; Flinn v. Calow, 1 Man. & Gr. 589; the contemporaneous grant of rights and privileges inconsistent with the terms of the lease; Jungerman v. Boyee, 19 Cal. 354; Sientes v. Odier, 17 La. Ann. 153; time of payment of rent; Carpenter v. Shanklin, 7 Blackf. (Ind.) 308; that the lessee agreed to pay taxes; Rich v. Jackson, 6 Ves. Jr. 334, n.; or that the lessor, at the time of the lease, agreed to repair; Post v. Vetter, 2 E. D. Sm. (N. Y.) 248; though a subsequent agreement for a consideration may be proved; Mayor, etc., of City of New York v. Price, 5 Sandf. (N. Y.) 542; Ten Eyck v. Sleeper, 65 Minn. 413, 67 N. W. 1026; but an allegation that the lessee was induced to occupy the premises by the lessor's promise to put in fixtures, made after the execution of the lease, does not show such consideration; Johnson v. Witte (Tex.) 32 S. W. 426. See as to this rule, generally, and the exceptions to it, PAROL EVIDENCE; CONTRACT; DEED. It was held that the question whether there had been a modification, as between lessor and lessee, was for the jury unless it was admitted by the pleadings; Evers v. Shumaker, 57 Mo. App. 454.

Leases by corporations. Aside from the question of power to make a lease, which is usually covered by the general powers conferred upon business corporations both under special charters and general incorporation laws, leases by and to such corporations will be found to be governed by the same rules as those applied to leases by natural persons. Accordingly, the general charter powers of purchasing, holding and dealing in real estate and other property and of selling, leasing or buying land were held sufficient to authorize the leasing and maintenance of a summer hotel by a railroad company at its terminus; Jacksonville, M. P. R. & Nav. Co. v. Hooper, 160 U. S. 514, 16 Sup. Ct. 379, 40 L. Ed. 515. So chartering a yacht by a newspaper corporation for the purpose of collecting news at the time of the war with Spain, was valid as within the means proper for the exercise of its charter powers; Sun Printing & Pub. Ass'n v. Moore, 183 U. S. 642, 22 Sup. Ct. 240, 46 L. Ed. 366. A corporation authorized to hold real estate may lease its real estate to be used in a business different to that which the corporation is In Woodruff v. R. Co., 93 N. Y. 601, it we

Co., 7 Mont. 320, 17 Pac. 451. Where a lease authorized to carry on; Nye v. Storer, 16

The execution of a lease by an authorize agent of a corporation is valid and effectua to create a term without the use of the co porate seal; Crawford v. Longstreet, 43 1 J. L. 329; Phillip v. Aurora Lodge, 87 In 505.

A corporation may lease a portion of i real estate to its directors subject to ratific tion by the stockholders; Nye v. Storer, se pra. See also Gamble v. Water Co., 123 Y. 91, 25 N. E. 201, 9 L. R. A. 527; Bjorn gaard v. Bank, 49 Minn. 483, 52 N. W. 48.

As to the nature of the interest and li bility for rent under gas and oil leases, se GAS; OIL See generally Landlord an TENANT.

Individuals who sign a lease to a fictition corporation as officers of it are individual liable on the lease though it is under sea Schenkberg v. Treadwell, 94 N. Y. Supp. 41 Lease of railroad. A lease by a railros company of all its road, rolling stock, ar franchises, for which no authority is give in its charter, is ultra vires and void; Thor as v. R. Co., 101 U. S. 71, 25 L. Ed. 950, tl leading case. The decision is based upo the ground that such a company exercis its functions in a large measure for the pu lic good, and that it is forbidden by publ policy to disable itself to perform its duti to the public without the consent of the state; id. The ordinary clause in a chart authorizing the company to contract wi other transportation companies for the mut al transfer of goods and passengers over each other's roads does not authorize a lease the road and its franchises; id. Unless sp cially authorized by its charter or some le islative action, a railroad company canno by lease or other contract, turn over to a other company for a long period of time i road and appurtenances or the use of i franchises and the exercise of its powers, n can any other railroad company make a co tract to run and operate such road, propert and franchises. Such a contract is n among the ordinary powers of a railros company; Pennsylvania R. Co. v. R. Co., 1 U. S. 290, 6 Sup. Ct. 1094, 30 L. Ed. 81; Mer phis & C. R. Co. v. Grayson, 88 Ala. 572, South. 122, 16 Am. St. Rep. 69; Middlese R. Co. v. R. Co., 115 Mass. 347; Str te v. Co., 24 Neb. 143, 38 N. W. 43, 8 Am. St. Re 164; Black v. Canal Co., 24 N. J. Eq. 45 "If it were otherwise, a railroad compan by leasing its road to irresponsible person might enjoy all the benefits conferred by i charter and practically leave the public ge erally, as well as individuals, without ar of the protection which the obligations in posed upon the company by its charter, well as the general law of the state, we designed to afford;" Harmon v. R. Co.,

S. C. 401, 5 S. E. 835, 13 Am. St. I ep. 68

franchises to an individual, being a raill corporation, though not authorized unthe general incorporating act, is neither um in se nor malum prohibitum, nor is it as contrary to public policy, but as to ther such a lease is ultra vires, quære. hat case the lessee brought suit to obtain the receiver of the defendant payment the use, but the receiver of the leased erty and the lessee set up the defence the lease was ultra vires. The court that having had possession and use of property the defendant was estopped a questioning its validity in an action to ver the rent and that the estoppel bound who claimed through or under it. Judgt having been recovered for the plaintiff he special term, it was reversed at the ral term, which in its turn was reversnd the judgment of the special term afed by the Court of Appeals. In Mahoney . Co., 63 Me. 68, where one company leasts entire road to another under authority statute, it was held "that the lessee cortion becomes the owner pro hac vice of road leased and is liable for damages" uing from negligence in the operation he road. The act authorizing the lease, ided specifically that nothing in it, or ny law or contract entered into under the ority of the same should exonerate the pany from any of its duties or liabilities osed upon it by its charter or by the genlaws of the state. The authority to the e company to make such lease is not ority to the lessor company for that pur-; Oregon R. & Nav. Co. v. R. Co., 130 U. 9 Sup. Ct. 409, 32 L. Ed. 837. Where a road company of New Jersey leased its chises and roads to a railway corporaof another state, the lease being not not authorized, but expressly forbidden aw, and its effect being to combine coal lucers and carriers of anthracite coal, it held to be an excess of corporate power ch tended to monopoly and the public in-; Stockton v. R. Co., 50 N. J. Eq. 52, 24 964, 17 L. R. A. 97; and the lessor road ubject to forfeiture; State v. R. Co., 24 . 143, 38 N. W. 43, 8 Am. St. Rep. 164.

lease made by one railroad corporation nother, neither of which is expressly auized by law to enter into the lease, is vires and void; Pittsburgh, C. & St. L. Co. v. Bridge Co., 131 U. S. 371, 9 Sup. Ct. 33 L. Ed. 157; Oregon R. & Nav. Co. v. Co., 130 U. S. 1, 9 Sup. Ct. 409, 32 L. Ed.

corporation of one state lawfully leasing ilroad in another state is, as to it, supto local legislation to the extent to the lessee would have been subject there been no lease; Stone v. R. Co.; 116 347, 6 Sup. Ct. 348, 29 L. Ed. 650. The of a state granting to a railroad company authority to lease its roads do not authority authority authority in the notation and not authority authority in the notation and notation authority authori that the making of a lease of its road thorize a lease of a part of it which runs in franchises to an individual, being a rail-the Indian country, without the consent of the United States expressly given; Briscoe the general incorporating act, is neither v. R. Co., 40 Fed. 280.

A corporation in debt cannot transfer its entire property by lease so as to prevent the application of the property to the satisfaction of its debts; Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Bank, 134 U. S. 276, 10 Sup. Ct. 550, 33 L. Ed. 900; and in such case equity may decree the payment by the lessee of a judgment debt of the lessor; Pennsylvania R. Co. v. R. Co., 118 U. S. 290, 6 Sup. Ct. 1094, 30 L. Ed. 83.

A lease of a parallel or competing railroad, if prohibited by the constitution, is void ab initio and no action lies on a covenant even if the lessee has had the benefit of the lease; East St. Louis Connecting R. Co. v. Jarvis, 92 Fed. 735, 34 C. C. A. 639; and foreign corporations are within such prohibition; Von Steuben v. R. Co., 4 Pa. Dist. R. 153. There is no prohibition against such leases in New York; Gere v. R. Co., 19 Abb. N. C. (N. Y.) Within the meaning of such prohibitions, lines connecting two important cities and seeking to obtain for one of them a monopoly of the trade in one part of the state, are parallel and competing; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Kentucky, 161 U. S. 677, 16 Sup. Ct. 714, 40 L. Ed. 849; or lines having a separate and through line of communication between two cities; Texas & P. R. Co. v. R. Co., 41 La. Ann. 970, 6 South. 888, 17 Am. St. Rep. 445; or where one of two lines reaches a common terminus only by means of a third line with which it has traffic arrangements; Com. v. R. Co., 1 Pa. Co. Ct. 214. The court will take judicial notice that two lines touching the same points are competing; Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. State, 72 Tex. 404, 10 S. W. 81, 1 L. R. A. 849, 13 Am. St. Rep. 815, 2 Interst. Com. Rep. 335. Mere incidental competition by reason of common intersecting lines does not make roads competing which are not so in their general features; Burke v. R. Co., 22 Ohio L. J. 11; nor are lines such which approaching each other at right angles are not available for the same business; Cumberland Val. R. Co. v. Ry. Co., 177 Pa. 519, 35 Atl. 952; or not having the same termini; Rogers v. Ry. Co., 91 Fed. 299, 33 C. C. A. 517; or not touching any two common points and having for a considerable distance another road interposed; Kimball v. R. Co., 46 Fed. 888. Parallel in such prohibitions means in the same general direction; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Com., 97 Ky. 675, 31 S. W. 476; traversing the same section of country, and running within a few miles of each other; State v. Ry. Co., 21 Mont. 221, 53 Pac. 623, 45 L. R. A. 271, and note collecting cases on leases and combinations.

A lessee is not estopped to deny the validation of a state granting to a railroad compatth of authority to lease its roads do not authority authority to lease its roads do not authority authorit & Nav. Co. v. Ry. Co., 145 U. S. 52, 12 Sup. Co., 12 Fed. 513; Metropolitan Elevated 1 Co. v. Ry. Co., 14 Abb. N. C. (N. Y.) 103; v. Ry. Co., 93 N. Y. 609; but a stockholder who has waited nineteen years cannot then object; St. Louis, V. & T. H. R. Co. v. R. the action of a majority of the stockhold in favor of a lease will not be upheld who co., 33 Fed. 440.

Two railroads contracted that one should operate the other for a term of years, the operating road to receive 65 per cent. of the gross earnings of the line so operated, and out of the remaining 35 per cent. pay interest on the road's bonds, and pay the residue to the company owning the road; this was held not to be a lease; Archer v. R. Co., 102 Ill. 493; nor a consolidation, but merely a connection between the two roads leaving in one the ownership of the road franchises and rolling stock and in the other the use and control of it.

A lease is not necessarily void because it extends beyond the time of the lessor's corporate existence, it may be valid for the period of the company's corporate existence; Gere v. R. Co., 19 Abb. N. C. (N. Y.) 193. The fact that the majority of the directors of a lessor company are personally interested in the lessee company will not make the lease void, but merely voidable at the election of the lessor, or at the suit of stockholders brought within a reasonable time; Jesup v. R. Co., 43 Fed. 483.

Where the rental was reduced by directors who were substantially the same in both companies, it was held that this action was voidable at the election of either company, so far as the power of the directors was concerned, but that as their act had been approved by the stockholders, it was valid; Harkness v. Ry. Co., 55 N. Y. Super. Ct. 532, 11 N. Y. St. R. 732. But where the rental was reduced on account of the financial embarrassment of the lessee, it was held within the power of the board of directors; Reveridge v. R. Co., 42 Hun (N. Y.) 656, affirmed 112 N. Y. 1, 19 N. E. 489, 2 L. R. A. 648.

Charter power to a railroad company to "let or farm out" the right of transportation authorizes a lease of the road; Hill v. R. Co., 143 N. C. 539, 55 S. E. 854, 9 L. R. A. (N. S.) 606; Harmon v. R. Co., 28 S. C. 401, 5 S. E. 835, 13 Am. St. Rep. 686. A lease of railroad property, by its terms, extends beyond the life of the corporation and is valid as long as it exists; id. Where a railroad contracted with a ferry company for the use of land for its business, paying taxes, not interfering with the business of the ferry company and employing the latter for its transportation across the river, it was not a lease and there was no relation of landlord and tenant; Wiggins Ferry Co. v. Ry. Co., 142 U. S. 396, 12 Sup. Ct. 188, 35 L. Ed. 1055.

A lease requires the consent of a majority operated as an irrevolute of the stockholders, which must be expressed at a stockholders' meeting; Peters v. R. v. R. Co., 78 Fed. 690.

Co. v. Ry. Co., 14 Abb. N. C. (N. Y.) 103; also does a modification of a lease; id.; a the action of a majority of the stockhold in favor of a lease will not be upheld who it appears that the interests of the minor will be seriously prejudiced by it; Mills R. Co., 41 N. J. Eq. 1. But it has been h that if power to lease its railroad is conf red upon a corporation by its charter or statute, the board of directors may exec a lease thereof; Beveridge v. Elevated Co., supra, where the state law provided the the lease should not be binding until as meeting of the stockholders a majority l assented in writing or until the holders a majority of the stock assented in writ and a certificate thereof signed by the pr ident and secretary, was filed with the s retary of state, and no meeting was cal of the stockholders, but a certificate was fil signed by the president, who owned nea all of the stock, and the secretary, and road was operated by the lessee without a objection from the lessor. It was held the the lessee could not plead ultra vires as the lease in a suit on a car trust agreeme Humphreys v. Ry. Co., 37 Fed. 307, wh the court considered that having obtained use of the equipments by its agreement pay the balance unpaid by the lessor, consideration was the use of the prope and the right to acquire title by such p ment and the contract of the lessee was direct undertaking and not a guarantee wi in the statute of frauds.

Where one company owns substantisall the stock and bonds of another, a le of the latter's line is not void for want consideration; Union Pac. R. Co. v. R. (51 Fed. 309, 2 C. C. A. 174.

The mere fact that the same persons w directors of both corporations is not of its sufficient to avoid the lease at the instan of stockholders against the will of the cor ration. The fact alone might entitle eith corporation to avoid the lease, but does give the right to a stockholder; Wallace R. Co., 12 Hun (N. Y.) 460. The lease o railroad does not dissolve the corporati and it remains liable for debts incur prior to the lease; U. S. v. R. Co., 1 Fed. 7 A lessee assumes all the duties of the less in relation to the property as well as rights and privileges, but this would not clude the payment of the debts of less Pittsburgh, C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Bridge C 131 U. S. 371, 9 Sup. Ct. 770, 33 L. Ed. 15 Brown v. R. Co., 35 Fed 444.

Where a lease of a railroad provided the payment of the net earnings to mortgath bondholders who were creditors of the less the agreement between the lessor and less having been assented to by the bordholde operated as an irrevocable assignment them of the net earnings; Grand 'frunk v. R. Co., 78 Fed. 690.

1897

Without a law authorizing it, railroads finot guarantee the performance of a lease a road entered into by two other roads, e leased road being outside of the states eating the guaranteeing roads, and not necting with their lines; Pennsylvania Co. v. R. Co., 118 U. S. 290, 6 Sup. Ct. 94, 30 L. Ed. 83.

Where, under a void lease, the property d been used for a time, the railroad comny may recover compensation for the use its property; Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. R. Co., 2 Fed. 117; Central Trans. Co. v. r Co., 139 U. S. 24, 11 Sup. Ct. 478, 35 L. l. 55; but a lessee, who had received nothg, but had been paying out money under void contract, cannot be compelled to pay ore money under the same contract; Pennlvania R. Co. v. R. Co., supra; but relief such case must be based on the invalidity the contract, and not in aid of its enforceent; id. The lessee of a railroad under a ise which all parties admit to be illegal, anot be compelled by mandamus to operate e road; People of State of Colorado v. R. ,, 42 Fed. 638. See Ultra Vires.

Where a railroad lease for ninety-nine ars contained covenants for monthly inilments of rent to keep the road in repair, a, a bill which shows failure to pay rent, preciation of the road, and a combination tween the guarantors of the lease and the see to divert the earnings of the road to be benefit of the guarantors, presents a case equitable jurisdiction when it prays for e specific performance of the obligations the lease. A suit at law on each instalent of rent is not an adequate remedy; nnsylvania R. Co. v. R. Co., supra.

A lease does not vest in the lessee the cht of eminent domain as to the lessor upany; Mayor, etc. of Worcester v. R. ., 109 Mass. 103; Gottschalk v. R. Co., 14 b. 389, 15 N. W. 695; Englewood Connectgray, Co. v. Ry. Co., 117 Ill. 611, 6 N. E.

A receiver does not become liable upon the venants of a lease because of his position receiver, but only by virtue of an election adopt the lease, if he sees fit to make ch election; and even if the lessee is vent, the lessor cannot force upon the rever the adoption of the lease; Empire stilling Co. v. McNulta, 77 Fed. 700, 23 C. A. 415. It is well settled that a receiver y take and retain possession of leasehold erests for such period as will enable him elect intelligently whether it is best to opt the lease or return the property; Carsll v. Trust Co., 74 Fed. 88, 20 C. C. A. 282; S. Trust Co. v. Ry. Co., 150 U. S. 287, 14 p. Ct. 86, 37 L. Ed. 1085. It is his duty take possession of a leasehold estate inded in the property, but he does not therebecome assignee of the term and is un-contracts; Pennsylvania Steel Co. v. Ry. Co., 198 Fed. 721, 117 C. C. A. 503, reversing 188 Fed. 343, and modifying 189 Fed. 661, and 190 Fed. 609; Quincy, M. & P. R. Co. v. Humphreys, 145 U.S. 82, 12 Sup. Ct. 787, 36 L. Ed. 632. He holds the property for the court; id. But where the lessor immediately demands of the receivers and of the court either an adoption of the lease or a surrender of the road, and against its protest a decision is delayed for several months, in order to determine which policy is expedient, then the receivers should equitably pay the full rental during the time of their possession; Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. v. R. Co., 58 Fed. 257. And where, in a lease of a consolidated electric railway company composed of several independent companies, there was a provision that the property should be kept up to its value and efficiency at the date of the lease, and that at the end thereof the lessee should return it to the consolidated companies in as good condition and repair as at the date of the lease with additions, betterments, etc., it was held that the receiver of the lessee was bound to return equipment to each constituent company equal in value and efficiency to that which was received, and not merely equal in value and efficiency to that received under the lease as a whole; Johnson v. Traction Co., 138 Fed. 601. A receiver is not required to pay rental for a depot property as stipulated by the railway company, and is liable only for a reasonable rental if he occupies the property; Carswell v. Trust Co., 74 Fed. 88, 20 C. C. A. 282. The appointment of a receiver is not an eviction of a lessee, nor is an unexecuted decree for the sale of a portion of the demised railroad, to satisfy a mortgage made prior to the lease, such an eviction of the lessor by a paramount title as to terminate the lease; Pittsburg, C. & St. L. Ry. Co. v. Ry. Co., 8 Biss. 456, Fed. Cas. No. 11,197.

As to the relative liability of the lessor and lessee for injuries committed in the operation of the road, the following conclusions are stated in Wood, Railroads, 2054, where many cases are collected: 1. The lessee is liable for all injuries resulting from the negligent operation of the road. Where the lease is void the liability of the lessor continues. 3. Where the lease is valid. some authorities hold that the lessor is relieved from liability for injuries resulting from the negligent operation of the road. But the last rule admits of serious question, unless the lease contains a specific provision for the lessor's exemption from liability. Some of the cases hold that the lessor cannot be relieved from liability unless there is express authority in the statute.

take possession of a leasehold estate inded in the property, but he does not therebecome assignee of the term and is uncompany's defined lines. When the lease is authorized ble to third persons for injuries resulting baugh, 43 Ind. 354; Stephens v. R. Co., from the negligent operation of the line by the lessee company; Caruthers v. R. Co., 59 Kan. 629, 54 Pac. 673, 44 L. R. A. 737, and note reviewing the cases in detail. The doctrine of the Kansas case seems to be with the weight of authority, though the mere authority to lease without express statutory exemption does not relieve the lessor company from liability for wrongs arising from the breach of its own duty as indicated by defects in the original construction; Logan v. R. Co., 116 N. C. 940, 21 S. E. 959; or release the lessor from the discharge of its charter obligations; Central & M. R. Co. v. Morris, 68 Tex. 49, 3 S. W. 457; Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Willard, 220 U. S. 413, 31 Sup. Ct. 460, 55 L. Ed. 521; or enable it to evade any duty it may owe to the general public; Lakin v. R. Co., 13 Or. 436, 11 Pac. 68, 57 Am. Rep. 25; Nugent v. R. R., 80 Me. 62, 14 Atl. 797, 6 Am. St. Rep. 151; and in several states the courts go further and hold that there must be express statutory exemption to relieve the lessor from liability for the torts of the lessee; Singleton v. R. R., 70 Ga. 464, 48 Am. Rep. 574; Balsley v. R. Co., 119 Ill. 68, 8 N. E. 859, 59 Am. Rep. 784; Chollette v. R. Co., 26 Neb. 159, 41 N. W. 1106, 4 L. R. A. 135; Braslin v. R. Co., 145 Mass. 64, 13 N. E. 65; Arrowsmith v. R. Co., 57 Fed. 165. On the other hand, in much the greater number of states, the courts accept the doctrine that statutory authority for lease, whether under general or special act, relieves the lessor company from liability for the torts of the lessee; Briscoe v. Ry. Co., 40 Fed. 273; Philips v. R. R., 62 Hun 233, 16 N. Y. Supp. 909; Heron v. R. Co., 68 Minn. 542, 71 N. W. 706; Cain v. R. Co., 27 App. Div. 376, 50 N. Y. Supp. 1; Byrne v. R. Co., 61 Fed. 605, 9 C. C. A. 666, 24 L. R. A. 693; Virginia M. R. Co. v. Washington, 86 Va. 629, 10 S. E. 927, 7 L. R. A. 344; Missouri P. R. Co. v. Watts, 63 Tex. 549; Harper v. R. Co., 90 Ky. 359, 14 S. W. 346. The lessee is liable whether the lease is valid or invalid; Jacksonville, T. & K. W. R. Co. v. Mfg. Co., 27 Fla. 1, 157, 9 South. 661, 17 L. R. A. 33, 65. But it has been held that though the lease is void, a servant of the lessee company cannot recover against the lessor company for injuries sustained in the operation of the road; Hukill v. R. Co., 72 Fed. 745; Abbot v. R. Co., 80 N. Y. 27, 36 Am. Rep. 572; East Line & R. R. Ry. Co. v. Culberson, 72 Tex. 375, 10 S. W. 706, 3 L. R. A. 567, 13 Am. St. Rep. 805; Hanna v. R. Co., 88 Tenn. 310, 12 S. W. 718, 6 L. R. A. While the lessor may be liable to a party injured by the negligence of its lessee's servants, the lessee is also liable; 35 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 440.

In some states statutes provide for the joint and several liability of both lessor and court, and in those cases in which the

by law, a lessor railroad company is not lia- | lessee; Fort Wayne, M. & C. R. Co. v. Hir Ia. 327; Stearns v. R. Co., 46 Me. 95; Bra lin v. R. Co., 145 Mass. 64, 13 N. E. 6 Brown v. R. Co., 27 Mo. App. 394.

LEASE AND RELEASE. A species conveyance much used in England, consist ing theoretically of two instruments, b which are practically united in the sar instrument.

It was invented by Sergeant Moore, so after the enactment of the statute of use It is thus contrived: a lease, or rather be gain and sale upon some pecuniary consi eration for one year, is made by the tena of the freehold to the lessee or bargaine This, without any enrolment, makes t bargainor stand seised to the use of t bargainee, and vests in the bargainee ti use of the term for one year, and then the statute immediately annexes the possession Being thus in possession, he is capable receiving a release of the freehold and a version, which must be made to the tena in possession, and accordingly the next de a release is granted to him.

The lease and release, when used as conveyance of the fee, have the joint oper tion of a single conveyance; 2 Bla. Con 339; 4 Kent 482; Co. Litt. 207; Cruise, Di tit. 32, c. 11.

LEASEHOLD. The estate held by virt of a lease. In practice the word is general applied to an estate for a fixed term years. A lease of chattels is not a leaseho interest; 48 L. J. Ex. 35.

LEAVE AND LICENSE. A defence to a action of trespass setting up the consent the plaintiff to the trespass complained of Whart. Lex.

LEAVE OF COURT. Permission grants by the court to do something which, withou such permission, would not be allowable.

The statute of 4 Anne, c. 16, s. 4, providthat it shall be lawful for any deferdant tenant in any action or suit, or : or ar plaintiff in replevin, in any court of recor with leave of the court, to plead as mar several matters thereto as he shall think ne essary for his defence. The principles this statute have been adopted by most the states of the Union.

When the defendant, in pursuance of th statute, pleads more than one plea in be to one and the same demand or thing, all o the pleas except the first should pu port be pleaded with leave of the court. But the omission is not error nor cause of de nurre Lawes, Pl. 132; 2 Chitty, Pl. 42; An Steph. Pl. 167; Story, Eq. Pl. 72, 76 Goulr'l. c. 8, § 21; Steph. Pl. 272; Perrson Eames, 3 N. H. 523.

Asking leave of court to do any a:t is a implied admission of jurisdiction of th tion to the jurisdiction must be taken, at all, by plea to the jurisdiction, and it is be taken in no other way, the court, by the asking leave, becomes fully vested with jurisdiction. Bacon, Abr. Abatement; Bacon, Abr. Pleas, etc. (E 2); Lawes, 91; Guild v. Richardson, 6 Pick. (Mass.) L. But such admission cannot aid the judiction except in such cases.

LEAVE TO DEFEND. The bills of exange act 1855 (18 & 19 Vict. c. 67) allowed tions on bills and notes commenced within months after being due to be by writ of nmons in a form provided by the act, and less the defendant should within twelve ys obtain leave to appear and defend the ion, allowed the plaintiff to sign judgment proof of service. This procedure was ained by the judicature act, but abolished 1880. It is now provided that in all acns where the plaintiff seeks merely to reer a debt or liquidated demand in money, possession where a tenancy has expired been determined by notice to quit, the it of summons may be specially indorsed th the particulars of the amount sought to recovered after giving credit for any paynt or set-off; in which case, if the dedant fail to appear, judgment may be ned for the amount claimed; and it is ther provided that where the defendant pears on a writ of summons especially lorsed, the plaintiff may, on affidavit vering the cause of action and swearing that his belief there is no defence to the action, l on the defendant to show cause why the intiff should not sign final judgment for e amount so indorsed; and the court or ige may, unless the defendant, by affivit or otherwise, satisfy the court or judge it he has a good defence on the merits disclose sufficient facts to entitle him to permitted to defend the action, make an ler empowering the plaintiff to sign judgnt accordingly. Whart. Lex. See Allo-TUR.

LECCATOR. A debauched person. Cow-

LECTOR DE LETRA ANTIQUA. In anish Law. The person duly authorized the government to read and decipher anint documents and titles, in order to entitle the to legal effect in courts of justice.

LECTORES. A term applied to notaries in e Middle Ages. So. Afr. Law Dict.

LECTRINUM. A pulpit. Mon. Ang. iii. 243.

LECTURER. An instructor; a reader of ters who has the copyright in them if be an author by 5 & 6 Wm. IV. c. 65. See PYRIGHT.

A clergyman who assists rectors in preachz. 7 & 8 Vict. c. 59; 18 & 19 Vict. c. 127. hart. Lex.

Assistants appointed to the rectors of churches. They are chosen by the vestry or chief inhabitants. Within the meaning of the term a readership is not an ecclesiastical preferment; 4 D. & R. 720; 3 B. & C. 49; nor is it included under the definition of benefice given by 1 & 2 Vict. c. 106. The power of the bishop over the lecturer is limited to the right to judge of his qualification and fitness for the office; he may not determine his right to a particular lectureship; 13 East 419. In the absence of a custom to employ a lecturer, and where the lectureship is to be supported by voluntary contributions, and where the rector has refused his consent to the person applying for the lectureship, the ordinary is the proper judge as to whether or not a lecturer should be admitted; 1 Wils. 11; 4 Term 125. In the language of Lord Mansfield, "No person can use the pulpit of another unless he consents. But if there has been an immemorial usage, the law supposes a good foundation for it; and if the lectureship be endowed, that furnishes a strong argument to support the custom." 1 Term 331.

The court will not grant a mandamus to compel a bishop to grant a license to a clergyman to preach as lecturer to a parish; 1 Wils. 11. Trustees of a lecture to be preached at a convenient hour may appoint any hour they please and vary their appointment; 1 W. Bla. 210. As to the right of and qualification for voting in the nomination of a lecturer, the usage of the parish is, if consistent with the deed of trust, a safe criterion; 14 Ves. 7; 3 Atk. 599; but no person can be a lecturer, although elected by the parishioners, without the rector's consent, unless there be an immemorial custom to such effect; 1 Add. 97; 4 B. & C. 569. See 2 Burn, Eccl. L. 398.

LEDGER. In Commercial Law. A book in which are inscribed the names of all persons dealing with the person who keeps it, and in which there is a separate account, composed generally of one or more pages for each. There are two parallel columns, on one of which the party named is the debtor, and on the other the creditor, and presents a ready means of ascertaining the state of the account. As this book is a transcript from the day-book or journal, it is not evidence per se.

LEDGER BOOK. In Ecclesiastical Law. The name of a book kept in the prerogative courts in England. It is considered as a roll of the court, but, it seems, it cannot be read in evidence. Bacon, Abr.

LEEMAN'S ACTS. Acts 30 Vict. c. 29 and 35 & 36 Vict. c. 91, by which contracts for the sale of bank shares are void unless the number of the shares are set forth in the contract. 9 Q. B. D. 546; and by which are authorized the application of the funds of municipal corporations and other governing bodies under certain conditions towards promoting or opposing parliamentary and other proceedings for the benefit or protection of the inhabitants.

LEET COURT. See COURT LEET.

LEGACY. A gift of personal property by last will and testament.

A gift or disposition in one's favor by a last will. Schoul. Ex. & Ad. § 459. term is more commonly applied to a bequest of money or chattels, although sometimes used with reference to a charge upon real estate; 2 Wms. Ex. 1051; see Quincy v. Rogers, 9 Cush. (Mass.) 297; Williams v. Mc-Comb, 38 N. C. 450; 7 Ves. 391, 522. A direction to the executor to support and maintain a person during his life gives him a legacy; Farwell v. Jacobs, 4 Mass. 634; but a recommendation "to give from time to time some little assistance to A" does not; Succession of Trouard, 5 La. Ann. 390. It is said that the word legacy in a will may include real as well as personal property; Homes v. Mitchell, 6 N. C. 228, 5 Am. Dec.

An absolute legacy is one given without condition, to vest immediately; 1 Vern. 254; 19 Ves. 86; Com. Dig. Chancery (I 4); they are usually absolute; Schoul. Ex. & Ad. § 466; 19 Ves. 86.

An additional, or, more technically, a cumulative legacy is one given to a legatee to whom a legacy has already been given. It may be given by the same will in which a legacy has already been bequeathed, or by a codicil thereto; 1 Bro. C. C. 90; Edwards v. Rainier's Ex'rs, 17 Ohio St. 597; Minor v. Ferris, 22 Conn. 371.

An alternate legacy is one by which the testator gives one of two or more things without designating which.

A conditional legacy is a bequest the existence of which depends upon the happen, ing or not happening of some uncertain event; 1 Rop. Leg. 645. The condition may be either precedent; Wheeler v. Walker, 2 Conn. 196, 7 Am. Dec. 264; Fox v. Phelps, 17 Wend. (N. Y.) 393; Inhabitants of Princeton v. Adams, 10 Cush. (Mass.) 129; or subsequent; Brown v. Town of Concord, 33 N. H. 285; Finlay v. King's Lessee, 3 Pet. (U. S.) 376, 7 L. Ed. 701; Hammond v. Hammond, 55 Md. 575.

A demonstrative legacy is a bequest of a certain sum of money, stock, or the like, payable out of a particular fund or security; Wms. Ex. 360; Wallace v. Wallace, 23 N. H. 154; Corbin v. Mills' Ex'rs, 19 Gratt. (Va.) 438; In re Barklay's Estate, 10 Pa. 387: Giddings v. Seward, 16 N. Y. 365. See DEMONSTRATIVE LEGACY.

A general legacy is one so given as not to amount to a bequest of a particular thing or money, of a particular fund, distinguished Leg. 170; Tifft v. Porter, 8 N. Y. 516; Madd. 92. It is a gift of quantity, merely and embraces all bequests, not specific or de monstrative; Kelly v. Richardson, 100, Ala 584, 13 South. 785.

An indefinite legacy is a bequest of thing which are not enumerated or ascertained a to numbers or quantities: as, a bequest b a testator of all his goods, all his stocks i the funds; Lownd. Leg. 84; Swinb. Will 485; 1 P. Wms. 697; of this class are gen erally residuary legacies.

A lapsed legacy is one which, in conse quence of the death of the legatee befor the testator or before the period for vesting has never vested. See Lapsed Legacy.

A legacy for life is one in which the legs tee is to enjoy the use of the legacy for life

A modal legacy is a bequest accompanie with directions as to the mode in which should be applied for the legatee's benefit for example, a legacy to Titius to put his an apprentice; 2 Vern. Ch. 431; Lownd. Le 151.

A pecuniary legacy is one of money Pecuniary legacies are in most cases gen eral legacies, but there may be a specifi pecuniary legacy, for example, of the mone in a certain bag; 1 Rop. Leg. 150, n. I Maryland pecuniary legacies are by statut to be paid out of the real estate if the pe sonal is insufficient; Laws 1894, ch. 438.

A residuary legacy is a bequest of all th testator's personal estate not otherwise e fectually disposed of by his will; Lowne Leg. 10; Bacon, Abr. Legacies (I); 6 H. 1 Cas. 217. An ordinary residuary beques cannot be treated as specific, but from it very nature must be considered as a ger eral legacy; L. R. 3 Ch. D. 309; even thoug some of its particulars are enumerated i the will; 4 Hare 628; but a bequest of th remainder of a particular thing or fund af er the payment of other legacies or of a one's estate in a particular locality may b specific so long as the identity of the thin or fund is not destroyed; 5 Ves. 150; Schou Ex. & Ad. § 462.

A specific legacy is a bequest of a spec fled part of the testator's personal estat distinguished from all others of the san kind; 3 Beav, 349; Bradford v. Haynes, 2 Me. 105; In re Walker's Estate, 3 Raw (Pa.) 237; Perkins v. Mathes, 49 N. H. 107 L. R. 20 Eq. 304; Kahl v. Schober, 35 N. Eq. 461; Johnson v. Goss, 128 Mass. 43 Such a legacy may be the undistributed ba ance of a partnership or a good-vill; 3 Beav. 602; or debt due testator; Titus McLanahan, 2 Del. Ch. 200; Farnum v. Ba com, 122 Mass. 282; in such case it is rea dered worthless by insolvency; Schoul. Ex & Ad. § 461. A specific legacy may be o animals or inanimate things, provided the are specified and separated from all other from all others of the same kind; 1 Rop. | things, as money in a bag, or money market l so described: as, I give two eagles to B, on which are engraved the initials of name. Such a legacy may also be given of a general fund; 4 Ves. 565. If the cific article given be not found among the ets of the testator, the legatee loses his acy.

acy. capable of becoming legatees, unless hibited by statute or alien enemies. The tute under which it is created must be orted to in order to ascertain whether a poration has legal capacity to take a acy, but the act of incorporation or legisive confirmation of the rights may be seed after the legacy takes effect; England Vestry of Prince George's Parish, 53 Md. ; Zimmerman v. Anders, 6 W. & S. (Pa.) , 40 Am. Dec. 552. The right of a corporan to take by will is subject to the general s of the state passed after the incorpora-1; Kerr v. Dougherty, 79 N. Y. 327. See RPORATION; FOREIGN CORPORATION. A best to the United States from which came Smithsonian Institute was held valid in English chancery court; Schoul. Ex. & § 460, note; but under the terms of the te statute a devise of lands in New York the United States was held void; U.S. v. k, 94 U. S. 315, 24 L. Ed. 192; In re Fox, N. Y. 530, 11 Am. Rep. 751. As to the difence of the law applicable to real and peral property, see Conflict of Laws. Legas to the subscribing witnesses to a will are statute often declared void. See 2 Wms. 1053; Rop. Leg. 201; L. R. 13 Eq. 381; livan v. Sullivan, 106 Mass. 474, 8 Am. p. 356. It was held in England that a sublbing witness to whom a legacy was given s incompetent by reason of interest, and t the will would fail unless there was ugh witnesses without him; 2 Stra. 1253. save the will it was enacted that the legshould be void; 25 Geo. II. c. 6. Similar tutes have been enacted in most of the tes; Schoul. Wills § 357; 1 Stims. Am. L. § 2650. In most of these, if there are ugh witnesses without the legatee, the acy is saved, but in a few states it is said t it seems that it may be void in any e; id. Bequests to superstitious uses prohibited by many of the English stats; 5 Myl. & C. 11. But in the United tes the free toleration of all religious nions would seem to make it almost imsible to hold any use superstitious; Hoge Hoge, 1 Watts (Pa.) 218, 26 Am. Dec. 52; ss v. Wilhite, 2 Dana (Ky.) 170, 26 Am. 2. 446. Legacies by Roman Catholics for sses for the repose of the soul were held England void as for superstitious uses; Myl. & K. 684; but in this country have n held valid; Hagenmeyer v. Hanselman, em. (N. Y.) 87; In re Schouler, 134 Mass. ; contra, McHugh v. McCole, 97 Wis. 166, N. W. 631, 40 L. R. A. 724, 65 Am. St. p. 106.

It is held the courts will not intervene to support and maintain a legacy for any purpose which is illegal or subversive of public policy; Zeisweiss v. James, 63 Pa. 465, 3 Am. Rep. 558. Bequests to charitable uses are favored both in England and the United States. See Charitable Use.

Construction of legacies. First, the technical import of words is not to prevail over the obvious intent of the testator; 1 M. & K. 571; L. R. 11 Eq. 280; Crocker v. Crocker, 11 Pick. (Mass.) 257; Lamb v. Lamb, 11
Pick. (Mass.) 375; Jackson v. Babcock, 12 Johns. (N. Y.) 389; Dow v. Dow, 36 Me. 216; In re Fetrow's Estate, 58 Pa. 427; Mathes v. Smart, 51 N. H. 443; Nutter v. Vickery, 64 Me. 490; Peet v. Ry. Co., 70 Tex. 522, 8 S. W. 203. Second, where technical words are used by the testator, or words of art, they are to have their technical import, unless it is apparent they were not intended to be used in that sense; 1 Younge & J. 512; Ide v. Ide, 5 Mass. 500; In re France's Estate, 75 Pa. 220; Campbell v. Rawdon, 18 N. Y. 417. Words are to be construed with reference to the surrounding of the testator when the will was made; Peet v. R. Co., 70 Tex. 522, 8 S. W. 203. The particular intent will always be sacrificed to the general intent; Appeal of Yarnall, 70 Pa. 335; Schaffer v. Wadsworth, 106 Mass. 24; Rose v. Mc-Hose's Ex'rs, 26 Mo. 590; Smith v. Bell, 6 Pet. (U. S.) 68, 8 L. Ed. 322. Third, the intent of the testator is to be determined from the whole will; 1 Coll. Ch. 681; Finlay v. King, 3 Pet. (U. S.) 377, 7 L. Ed. 701; Loring v. Loring, 100 Mass. 342; Gale v. Drake, 51 N. H. 83; Estate of Schott, 78 Pa. 40; Grimes' Executors v. Harmon, 35 Ind. 198, 9 Am. Rep. 690; Wetmore v. Parker, 52 N. Y. 450; Price v. Cole's Ex'x, 83 Va. 343, 2 S. E. 200. In ascertaining this intention, courts should not seek it in particular words and phrases, or confine it by technical objections, but should find it by construing the provisions of the will with the aid of the context and by considering what seems to be the entire scheme of the will; Riker v. Cornwell, 113 N. Y. 115, 20 N. E. 602; McMurry v. Stanley, 69 Tex. 227, 6 S. W. 412; Thackston v. Watson, 84 Ky. 206, 1 S. W. 398; and should put itself in the position occupied by a testator; Lee v. Simpson, 134 U. S. 572, 10 Sup. Ct. 631, 33 L. Ed. 1038. every word shall have effect, if it can be given without defeating the general purpose of the will, which is to be carried into effect in every reasonable mode; Annable v. Patch, 3 Pick. (Mass.) 360; Smith v. Bell, 6 Pet. (U. S.) 68, 8 L. Ed. 322; 9 H. L. Cas. 420; Dennett v. Dennett, 40 N. H. 500; Chrystie v. Phyfe, 19 N. Y. 348. But where it is impossible to form a consistent whole the latter part will prevail; 5 Beav. 100; Orr v. Moses, 52 Me. 287; Van Nostrand v. Moore, 52 N. Y. 12; Snively's Ex'rs v. Stover, 78 Pa. 484; Covert v. Sebern, 73 Ia. 564, 35 N.

W. 636; Ball v. Ball, 40 La. Ann. 284, 3 South. 644. Fifth, the will will be favorably construed to effectuate the testator's intent, and to this end words may be transposed, supplied, or rejected; 7 H. L. Cas. 68; Latham v. Latham, 30 Ia. 294; Tayloe v. Johnson, 63 N. C. 381; Butterfield v. Hamant, 105 Mass. 338; Wright v. Denn, 10 Wheat. (U. S.) 204, 6 L. Ed. 303; McBride v. Smyth, 54 Pa. 245; East v. Garrett, 84 Va. 523, 9 S. E. 1112; Marshall's Ex'rs v. Hadley, 50 N. J. Eq. 547, 25 Atl. 325; it will be so construed when not inconsistent with rules of law; Colton v. Colton, 127 U. S. 300, 8 Sup. Ct. 1164, 32 L. Ed. 138; In re Stewart, 74 Cal. 98, 15 Pac. 445; Weed v. Knorr, 77 Ga. 636, 1 S. E. 167; McCulloch v. Valentine, 24 Neb. 215, 38 N. W. 854. Sixth, in the case of a will of personalty made abroad, the lex domicilii must prevail, unless it appear the testator had a different intent; Story, Confl. Laws § 479 a, 490; L. R. 1 H. L. 401; Bowditch v. Soltyk, 99 Mass. 136; Bascom v. Albertson, 34 N. Y. 584; Ennis v. Smith, 14 How. (U. S.) 426, 14 L. Ed. 472. Seventh, a will of personalty speaks from the time of testator's death; 8 De G. M. & G. 391; Mc-Naughton v. McNaughton, 34 N. Y. 201; Loveren v. Lamprey, 22 N. H. 434. In interpreting a will several of the states provide by statute that they are to be construed and take effect, as of the date of the death of testator, with respect to both real and personal property, unless a contrary intention appear in the will. It is so provided in Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, Kentucky, and Tennessee. Georgia words of survivorship refer to the death of the testator in order to vest remainders. In Louisiana a legacy must be delivered with everything appertaining to it in the condition in which it was on day of testator's decease. In some states where death or survivorship are referred to, the words relate to the time of testator's death unless possession is actually postponed, in which case they refer to time of possession. Such is the statute law in California, the Dakotas, Montana, and Utah; Stims. Am. Stat. L. § 2806.

In interpreting a will, the true inquiry is not what the testator meant to express, but what the words used express; Couch v. Eastham, 29 W. Va. 784, 3 S. E. 23; Stokes v. Van Wyck, 83 Va. 724, 3 S. E. 387; and effect cannot be given to unexpressed intention; Montgomery v. Montgomery, 11 S. W. 596, 11 Ky. L. Rep. 87; Sutherland v. Sydnor, 84 Va. 880, 6 S. E. 480. As to the weight to be given to previous decisions upon the construction of certain words, it may be said that if the words are identical they are not strictly binding, much less so if the words are only similar; L. R. 10 Ch. 397; and this is true even of the decision of the appeal court; 23 Ch. D. 111.

The general policy of the law and trules of interpretation require that legacin all cases, unless clearly inconsistent withe intention of the testator, should be he to be vested rather than contingent; Neils v. Bishop, 45 N. J. Eq. 473, 17 Atl. 96 Coggins' Appeal, 124 Pa. 10, 16 Atl. 579, Am. St. Rep. 565; Willett's Adm'r v. Rutter Adm'r, 84 Ky. 317, 1 S. W. 640.

Whether cumulative or repeated. Whe a testator has twice bequeathed a legacy one person it becomes a question wheth the legatee is entitled to both or one on Where there is internal evidence of the i tention of the testator, that intention is be carried out; 2 Beav. 215; 7 id. 107; R. 3 Ch. Div. 738; Dewitt v. Yates, 10 John (N. Y.) 156, 6 Am. Dec. 326; Jones v. Crev ling's Ex'rs, 19 N. J. L. 127; and eviden will be received in support of the appare intention, but not against it; 2 Beav. 11 1 My. & K. 589; 4 Hare 216. Where the is no such internal evidence, certain pr sumptions are recognized; 10 Sim. 453; as the following positions of law appear to established. First, if the same specific this is bequeathed twice to the same legatee the same will, or in the will and again in codicil; in that case he can claim the ber fit of only one legacy; Toll. Ex. 335; Hare 432. Second, where two legacies quantity of equal amount are bequeathed the same legatee in one and the same instr ment, there also the second bequest is co sidered a mere repetition, and he is entitle to one legacy only; 1 Bro. C. C. 30; 3 M; & K. 29; Dewitt v. Yates, 10 Johns. (N. Y 156, 6 Am. Dec. 326. See Cunningham Spickler, 4 Gill (Md.) 280; Creveling's Ex v. Jones, 21 N. J. L. 573. Third, where to legacies of quantity of unequal amount a given to the same person in the same instr ment, the one is not merged in the other, b the latter shall be regarded as cumulative and the legatee entitled to both; 2 Bro. C. 225; 3 Hare 620. Legacies not of the sar kind are presumed to be cumulative; 2 Rus 257; otherwise the presumption is slight as easily shaken; 17 Ves. 34, 41. Fourth, whe two legacies are given simpliciter to t same legatee by different instruments, that case also the latter shall be cumulative whether its amount be equal; 17 Ves. C 34; 4 Hare 216; or unequal to the forme 1 P. Wms. 423; 4 H. L. Cas. 393; 7 Ch. Ap 448. For cases where they were held cum lative, see Utley v. Titcomb, 63 N. H. 12: Barnes v. Hanks' Adm'r, 55 Vt. 317; Appe of Sponsler, 107 Pa. 95. See, generally, o this subject notes to Hooley v. Hatton, Lead. Cas. Eq. *346; Schoul. Ex. & Ad. 468, n. 3.

Description of legates.—Children. The may have reference to the time of the tetator's death, or that of making the will the former is the presumed intention, un from the connection or circumstances latter is the apparent intent, in which e it must prevail; 11 Sim. 42; 2 Wms. 1089; Chase v. Lockerman, 11 Gill & J. d.) 185, 35 Am. Dec. 277; Everett v. Carr, Me. 325; Worcester v. Worcester, 101 ss. 132; Quinn v. Hardenbrook, 54 N. Y. Watson v. Watson, 110 Mo. 164, 19 S. 543; Sevier v. Douglas, 44 La. Ann. 605, South. 804; 2 Jarm. Wills 154, 156, and elow's notes. And this rule extends to ndchildren, issue, brothers, nephews, and sins; 3 De G. M. & G. 649; Whall v. Conse, 146 Mass. 345, 15 N. E. 660; Schoul. ls § 529. The judicial disposition to let subsequent issue and near relations of a s as generously as possible has resulted rule thus stated by the author last cited: ence the English rule, confirmed by ny American precedents, that the devise bequest of a corpus or aggregate fund children as a class, where the gift is not nediate, vests in all the children in exnce at the testator's death, but so as to n and let in children who may come into stence afterwards, at any time before the d is distributable." Id. § 530; 1 Bro. C. 537; Dulany v. Middleton, 72 Md. 67, 19 . 146; Moore v. Dimond, 5 R. I. 129; tt v. Terry, 37 Miss. 65; Handberry v. dittle, 38 Ill. 206. This rule also extends grandchildren, issue, brothers, nephews, cousins; 3 De G. M. & G. 649.

his term will include a child en ventre mère; Smart v. King, Meigs (Tenn.) 149, Am. Dec. 137; Hall v. Hancock, 15 Pick. ass.) 255, 26 Am. Dec. 598; Coggins' Apl, 124 Pa. 10, 16 Atl. 579, 10 Am. St. Rep. ; Russell v. Russell, 84 Ala. 48, 3 South. ; Toole v. Perry, 80 Ga. 681, 7 S. E. 118; R. 1 Ch. Div. 460. Such a child is includin a devise by a father to his children ing" at his death; Picot v. Armistead, 37 C. 226. The rule of construction by which hild en ventre sa mère is in law consideras a child in esse is not confined to cases which the unborn child is benefited by its lication; [1895] 2 Ch. 497.

Vhere the division of a fund to legatees postponed until a certain event or period, word "child" will apply to all those wering that description when the fund to be divided; 8 Ves. 38; Cole v. Creyon, III Ch. (S. C.) 322, 26 Am. Dec. 208; Worter v. Worcester, 101 Mass. 128; Inge v. nes, 109 Ala. 175, 19 South. 435. But it l sometimes have a more restricted apeation, and thus be confined to children n before the death of the testator. But ldren born after the period of distribution e no share; L. R. 12 Eq. 427; Hill v. nk, 45 N. H. 270; Bull v. Bull, 8 Conn. 20 Am. Dec. 86; State v. Raughley, 1 ust. (Del.) 561. And it will make no difence that the bequest is to children be-born"; 14 Beav. 453; Brown v. Williams, 5 R. I. 318; 1 Rop. Leg. 51; unless such be the testator's clear intent; 19 Ves. 566; Moore v. Weaver, 16 Gray (Mass.) 305; Shinn v. Motley, 56 N. C. 490; 2 Jarm. Wills

"Children," when used to designate one's heirs, may include grandchildren; Hughes v. Hughes, 12 B. Monr. (Ky.) 115, 121; Prowitt v. Rodman, 37 N. Y. 42; Rop. Leg. 68; Estate of Schedel, 73 Cal. 594, 15 Pac. 297; Douglas v. James, 66 Vt. 21, 28 Atl. 319, 44 Am. St. Rep. 817; but see Demill v. Reid, 71 Md. 175, 17 Atl. 1014. But if the word "children" is used, and there are persons to answer it, then grandchildren cannot be comprehended under it; L. R. 11 Eq. 91; Tayloe v. Mosher, 29 Md. 443; Feit's Ex'rs v. Vanatta, 21 N. J. Eq. 85; Hallowell v. Phipps, 2 Whart. (Pa.) 376. The general rule is, that a bequest to a man and his children, he having children living at the time the will takes effect, creates a joint estate in the father and children; but if he have no children, he takes an absolute estate; L. R. 14 Eq. 415; L. R. 7 Ch. App. 253; Parker v. Converse, 5 Gray (Mass.) 336. But in both cases slight circumstances will warrant the court in holding the limitation to be for life to the father, with remainder over to the children; 4 Madd. 361; Nebinger v. Upp, 13 S. & R. (Pa.) 68; Carr v. Estill, 16 B. Mon. (Ky.) 309, 63 Am. Dec. 548; Furlow's Adm'r v. Merrell, 23 Ala. 705.

The term children will not include illegitimate children, if there are legitimate to answer the term; Appel v. Byers, 98 Pa. 479; Heater v. Van Auken, 14 N. J. Eq. 159; 2 Russ. & M. 336; see 2 Wms. Ex. 1100 (but see Elliott v. Elliott, 117 Ind. 380, 20 N. E. 264, 10 Am. St. Rep. 54; Sullivan v. Parker, 113 N. C. 301, 18 S. E. 347); otherwise, it may or may not, according to circumstances; Kirkpatrick v. Rogers, 41 N. C. 135; Collins v. Hoxie, 9 Paige (N. Y.) 88; Stewart v. Stewart, 31 N. J. Eq. 398; L. R. 1 Ch. Div. 644; Hughes v. Knowlton, 37 Conn. 429; L. R. 7 H. L. 576. See Schoul. Wills § 534. Nor will it include a child adopted after the will was made; Russell v. Russell, 84 Ala. 48, 3 South. 900. It is said that although, prima facie, the word "children" in a will means legitimate children, there may be sufficient explanation, in the light of surrounding circumstances, that the word is not used in its primary meaning, and the word was held to mean stepchildren; 13 Reports 627. But a legacy to a natural child of a certain man still en ventre sa mère was held void, as contravening public morals and decency; 2 My. & R. 769; contra, L. R. 3 Ch. Div. 773; Pratt's Lessee v. Flamer, 5 Harr. & J. (Md.) 10. It is said that the term grandchildren will not usually include great-grandchildren; 4 My. & C. 60; 8 Beav. 247; but it has been ten, or to be begotten, or which "may be held otherwise in the absence of anything to show a contrary intent; Morton's Estate, 43 Pittsb. L. J. (Pa.) 403. See Child. The same rule applies to adopted children who are not prima facie included; Schafer v. Eneu, 54 Pa. 304.

It is held that a bequest to "my beloved wife," not mentioning her by name, applies exclusively to the wife at the date of the will, and is not to be extended to an after-taken wife; L. R. 8 Eq. Cas. 65. One not lawfully married may, nevertheless, take a legacy by the name or description of the wife of the one to whom she is reputed to be married; 1 De G. J. & S. 177; but not if the reputed relation is the motive for the bequest; 5 My. & C. 145; L. R. 2 Ex. 319. But see 1 Keen 685.

